"Though Basil Francis did a staggering amount of research in preparing his biography of the English actress Fanny Kelly, and was unquestionably enamored of his heroine, he fails to bring her to life and to establish the cause of her fame. . . For students of English theatrical history, the book contains a great deal of information about charters, patent laws, monopolies, sponsorships, pseudo-rehearsals, benefits, and changes in acting techniques, together with the first 'dress circle.'" Bernard Sobel
Theatre Arts 35:7 Ap '51 320w

"The charm of Miss Kelly is not to be caught. When we have read all that Lamb wrote of her we know all there is to know of it. Mr. Francis wins respect for his courage in undertaking so difficult a task, but the question remains whether it has not proved too difficult. . . This implies, of course, an attitude that is too exacting. Judged by the usual standard of theatrical biography, Fanny Kelly of Drury Lane is a praiseworthy book."

FRANCIS, BASIL—Continued
Times [London] Lit Sup p765 D 1 '50 650w

FRANCOISE, pseud. See Seignobosc, F.

FRANK, BERNARD, and NETBOY, ANTHONY. Water, land, and people. 331p il maps $4 Knopf

628.1 Water supply—U.S. Conservation of resources 50-10432

For descriptive note see Annual for 1950.

Booklist 47:184 Ja 15 '51
Bookmark 10:86 Ja '51

"Conservationists will be particularly grateful for the sound presentation of the depth of the problems caused by man's mishandling of natural resources. Nowhere have I read so clear a picture of the growth of soil, and the intricate way its usefulness is interwoven into all the natural forces that affect it." Miller Stewart
+ Canadian Forum 33:261 F '51 210w
Eng N 146:51 Ja 18 '51 260w

"No one agency, no one group, no one viewpoint on the enormous problem of wise land and water use, is sufficient—no, not even the oldtime Pinchot-inspired Forest Service approach. Frank and Netboy make this plain in their stimulating, hopeful and badly needed book." Russell Lord
+ New Repub 124:21 Mr 19 '51 500w

"This book is important. It will arouse controversy—and it should. Yet it is written in a constructive spirit and without needless personalities. It should open up a profitable debate." R. L. Duffus
+ N Y Times p12 Ja 21 '51 800w

"Historical in perspective but up to the minute in time, lively in phrase but soundly grounded in fact, this remarkably well-written book is the happy collaboration of technician and trained writer." Walter Slovik
+ Survey 87:295 Je '51 190w

"A government executive has here collaborated with a professional writer who is familiar with federal activities to provide a lucid and reliable discussion of water and the public welfare."
+ U S Quarterly Bk R 7:77 Mr '51 250w

FRANK, LAWRENCE KELSO. Nature and human nature; man's new image of himself. 175p $3 Rutgers univ. press

110 Man 51-9982

"A book for those who are confused about their own values, or troubled about the future of the world, this asserts the worth of the individual and the dignity of man. We are living, the author says, in an age of revolution, the inevitable outcome of scientific thought and discovery which compels us to a new concept of man as an organism functioning in a multiple environment. The author believes that, far from degrading humanity, this view recognizes man as a unique development capable of controlling his own future, rather than a special creation subject to a higher authority." Booklist

"It is impossible to disagree with the author's central theses, and the book can be highly recommended to the general reader as a pleasant and thoughtful, if somewhat repetitious and lyrical, series of essays." G. A. Lundberg
+ Ann Am Acad 278:218 N '51 300w
Booklist 47:287 Ap 15 '51
San Francisco Chronicle p20 Je 17 '51 90w

"Nothing more fundamental could be asked of us today. And nowhere could clearer help be given for the reshaping of our self-image and our world-image than in these lucid and authoritative pages. It is regrettable that in so penetrating and usable a volume the author has not seen fit to include an index." H. A. Overstreet
+ — Sat R of Lit 34:39 Je 16 '51 750w

Reviewed by Jackson Toby
Survey 87:363 Ag '51 550w
U S Quarterly Bk R 7:187 Je '51 280w

FRANK, WALDO DAVID. Birth of a world: Bolívar in terms of his peoples. 432p il maps $5 Houghton

B or 92 Bolívar, Simón. South America—History 51-12909

"Commissioned, in 1948, by the Venezuelan government, this biography does more than detail the incidents of the Liberator's life. It seeks to get at the complexity of him by projecting our vision into the complex of environmental factors which made him act." (Library J) Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 48:84 N 1 '51
Bookmark 11:30 N '51 30w

"In many respects it is an excellent biografy, one of the best of the some 5,000 dealing with Bolivar that have appeared within the last century. I only wish to suggest that it should be read with caution. Propaganda, fancy, and social philosofy, when mixed with history, are likely to distort and mislead. With the exceptions noted, however, Frank has not departed far from the facts as revealed by the documentary record and the ablest critics." J. F. Rippy
+ — Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 S 23 '51 400w

"Mr. Frank's style is emotional, given to paradox, flavored with hard-sought adjectives like planturous, instinctual, demotic, and rife with symbols—including Bolívar himself as a symbol of the values of the Hispanic world to the United States. He has based his life of Bolívar on scholarship, as is evidenced by the many sources cited in the bibliography." W. K. Rugg
Christian Science Monitor p9 S 25 '51 650w
Kirkus 19:372 Jl 15 '51 200w

"Reading almost like a novel this biography is unqualifiedly recommended to all." Milton Byam
+ Library J 76:1328 S 1 '51 160w

"Mr. Frank, out of affectionate insight and seasoned research, has written a sensitive narrative of the career of the man revered as Liberator by modern Venezuela, Colombia, Ecuador, Peru and Bolivia." Hubert Herring
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p3 S 16 '51 1150w

"Waldo Frank has written not only the biography of a man, but of a continent. He has done it brilliantly and beautifully, for he has a gift for the vital word and the illuminating phrase. His is a fascinating narrative. It is a truly fine book and one our own people would do well to read." C. G. Bowers
+ N Y Times p1 S 16 '51 950w

Reviewed by R. H. Dillon
San Francisco Chronicle p4 N 25 '51 750w

"Waldo Frank has performed a real service in giving us an exhaustive biography of one of the greatest Americans, one who has been too little known in the United States." Erna Fergusson
+ Sat R of Lit 34:18 S 22 '51 500w
Time 58:108 O 1 '51 460w
Wis Lib Bul 47:252 N '51

FRANKFORT, HENRI. Birth of civilization in the Near East. 116p il $5 Ind. univ. press, Bloomington, Ind.

913.3 Egypt—Antiquities. Mesopotamia—Antiquities. Civilization, Ancient [51-8621]

An expanded version of lectures delivered at Indiana University in 1948 and 1949 by a former professor in the Oriental institute of the University of Chicago. "It is composed of one chapter discussing theories of world history followed by three where historical theory is exemplified in comparative studies of the first emergence of civilisation in Mesopotamia and in Egypt." (New Statesman & Nation)

"If, as devotee or dabbler, you enjoyed Toynbee's 'A Study of History' or Spengler's 'Decline of the West,' Henri Frankfort's little book is must and fascinating reading for you. You still can salaam to Arnold Toynbee [as does this reviewer], but you'll have to cock at least one interrogatory eye upward." L. T. Heron

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 O 21 '51 240w

"This short, exhilarating book condenses and clarifies ideas which have already been expressed in The Intellectual Adventure of Ancient Man and Dr. Frankfort's other well-known works on the Near Eastern civilisations." Jacquetta Hawkes

+ New Statesman & Nation 42:235 S 1 '51 1050w

San Francisco Chronicle p25 O 28 '51 320w

"It is one of those books in which we are constantly hoping for some explicit statement of the author's own views but never given one. There are frequent references to other books by the same author, where perhaps we might be enlightened. The book seems to be written from the opposite point of view to that of Professor Gordon Childe, for the author denies that 'an increase in food-production or technological advances' can explain how civilization became possible, quoting a passage of Whitehead's about ages of 'high activity' (undefined). Having, it seems, no alternative explanation to offer, he adroitly suggests that the question of origins is unanswerable!"

Times [London] Lit Sup p457 Jl 20 '51 220w

FRANKFORT, MRS HENRIETTE ANTONIA (GROENEWEGEN). Arrest and movement; an essay on space and time in the representational art of the ancient Near East. 222p pl $7.50 Univ. of Chicago press

701.17 Composition (art). Perspective. Art, Ancient 51-11281

"The illustrations form a rich and varied collection of representations of pre-Grecian art in Egypt, Mesopotamia and Crete. On these concrete data the learned author constructs her exposition and argument concerning perspective, two-and three-dimensional space, action, poise, and the relation of figures to one another and to their backgrounds. These considerations, in turn, suggest interpretations of the social structures, the political and religious ideas, the theories of art, and in short, the whole cultural complex of these peoples. Mrs. Groenewegen-Frankfort has spent much time in the Near East as a working archaeologist with various research expeditions." Christian Century

"This is a highly technical work, but less narrow in its interest and less abstract in its material and treatment than one might suspect." W. E. G.

Christian Century 68:1162 O 10 '51 110w

"In this orderly presentation, the puzzles of spatial handling, formal rendering and historical or hieratic narrative are as never before smoothly and comprehensively resolved. Whole provinces of pleasure will be revealed to the careful reader who cannot again assume that these early reliefs are set as haphazard stencils, mechanically cut. Well produced and illustrated."

+ New Repub 125:19 D 10 '51 110w

"The distinction has often been made between the effort to express the obscure, which is immensely worth while, and obscurity of expression, which must always be blameworthy. In one—certainly fallible—judgment Mrs. Frankfort has given an example of the latter in writing a long and heavily burdened book on a subject which might have been exposed in one limpid essay. . . The final section on Crete is by far the most sympathetically written in the book. It is possible to disagree with many particular claims, and even to deny some of them, but the writing shows fresh life and feeling."

Times [London] Lit Sup p368 Je 15 '51 850w

FRANKL, LEE. How to expand and improve your home. 245p $5.95 Simmons-Boardman

643.7 Dwellings. Building—Repair and reconstruction 51-9598

"The complete, step-by-step illustrated guide for expanding, altering and modernizing your home, by Training-thru-sight associates." (Subtitle) Partial contents: Finish the attic; Create storage areas; Divide a room; Modernize the kitchen; Build a garage and breezeway; Add a wing and bathroom; Build a concrete walk, driveway, flagstone terrace.

Booklist 47:248 Mr 15 '51

"The book's chief fault is that many operations of interest in home expansion and modernization are omitted or not adequately treated." R. R. Hawkins

Library J 76:522 Mr 15 '51 150w

N Y New Tech Bks 36:19 Mr '51

FRANKLIN, BENJAMIN, and MECOM, MRS JANE (FRANKLIN). Letters; ed. with an introd. by Carl Van Doren. 380p il $5 Princeton univ. press

B or 92 Mecom, Mrs Jane (Franklin) 50-10857

"These letters furnish the ideal supplement to the late Mr. Van Doren's biography of Jane Mecom, who was Franklin's favorite sister. They cover a correspondence of 63 years. In fact, Franklin wrote more letters to his sister Jane than to any other person. Ninety-eight of these letters are published here, 30 for the first time." San Francisco Chronicle

"Since our knowledge of Jane is based so largely on the Letters, they have an importance quite apart from the fact that they are excellent reading. . . The correspondence 'fills out and enlarges the picture of Franklin,' while it discovers 'an important American woman, a valiant, upright spirit, with so much woman and so much mind.' Franklin, one of the world's ablest letter writers, is revealed in a new light, dealing not with political, scientific, social, or any other of the amazing variety of his activities, but as an understanding brother with a fine loyalty to family ties, reflecting the homely philosophy of Poor Richard in deeds as well as words." W. E. Lingelbach

+ Am Hist R 56:588 Ap '51 330w

Booklist 47:172 Ja 1 '51

Bookmark 10:57 D '50 30w

Reviewed by Robert Cromie

Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 Jl 2 '51 70w

"They are charming letters, dealing more with personal than with public affairs, though in Franklin's life the two were always intermingled." W. E. Garrison

+ Christian Century 68:112 Ja 24 '51 350w

Nation 172:66 Ja 20 '51 60w

"In substance Jane's were essentially family letters. Her assiduity in letter writing was a major factor in holding together the family group of Franklins, Baches, Hubbards, and Greenes. Her letters to them and their replies are bed-rock social history. They add much to our knowledge of life in the last half of the eighteenth century in Boston, Rhode Island, and Philadelphia." W. G. Roelker

+ New Eng Q 24:110 Mr '51 500w

"Editing these letters and writing a biography of Jane Mecom was the last literary work of Carl Van Doren's fruitful life and beyond a doubt it was a labor of love. This scrupulously edited and attractively printed volume will be cherished as a pleasing memento of him by his many friends." Dumas Malone

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 Ja 7 '51 850w

FRANKLIN, BENJAMIN—Continued

"Mr. Van Doren has long been recognized as a master of editorial techniques, and his contribution to this volume is so unobtrusive and effective as to appear effortless. It is peculiarly fitting that this great expositor of things American, who began his literary career as a scholar, should close it with a piece of scholarship suffused with the humanity that was both his and Benjamin Franklin's outstanding attribute." Carl Bridenbaugh

+ N Y Times p6 Ag 5 '51 600w

New Yorker 26:91 Ja 27 '51 120w

"The job of editing the letters is remarkably well done." J. V.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p16 D 17 '50 130w

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p419 Jl 6 '51 1250w

"Although these letters do not add much to the store of knowledge about American history, they do present fresh insights for the biographer of Franklin."

U S Quarterly Bk R 7:8 Mr '51 230w

FRANKLIN, GEORGE CORY. Wild horses of the Rio Grande [il. by William Moyers]. 181p $3 Houghton

Horses—Legends and stories 51-11766

Twelve short stories of western ranch life in which the heroes are horses. Preliminary pages contain a glossary of ranch terms, notes on some old cattle ranches, and information on how cowboys are trained.

Booklist 48:15 S 1 '51

"Stallion fights, roundups, mountain avalanches, a horse's revenge on a thief who had branded him, all are brought thrillingly to life for wide eyed boys who never tire of another good story of the west. William Moyers' dramatic illustrations are especially effective." Polly Goodwin

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p12 S 16 '51 160w

"A fine collection of stories."' O. D. Hormel

+ Christian Science Monitor p7 S 20 '51 50w

Kirkus 19:397 Ag 1 '51 120w

"This is a book that western fans and horse lovers will certainly enjoy. . . Recommended for most children's rooms." M. D. Read

+ Library J 76:1342 S 1 '51 60w

"The main contents are a dozen fine original horse stories, all excellent in realism and in feeling for the Southwest. All are said to be based on true experiences of the author or others." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 N 11 '51 90w

Reviewed by C. E. Van Norman

+ N Y Times p22 Ag 19 '51 160w

+ Sat R of Lit 34:66 N 10 '51 100w

FRANTZ, JOE B. Gail Borden, dairyman to a nation. 310p il maps $5 Univ. of Okla. press

B or 92 Borden, Gail. Borden company 51-11349

Biography of the American pioneer who first marketed evaporated milk successfully. "Borden lived thru the first three quarters of the 19th century, and into the first 50 packed perhaps as much activity and as many failures as any man of his time. Born in New York, he was brought to Indiana by his family, and then, on his own responsibility, settled in Texas. He started the first newspaper there that had any permanence, helped write the Texas constitution, fought in the war with Mexico, surveyed the site of Houston, and was one of the principal developers of Galveston. . . Even when he hit on the great idea of his life, preservation of milk by concentrating it, he failed twice before getting an associate with a business head and a big pocketbook." (Chicago Sunday Tribune) Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 48:10 S 1 '51

"Professor Frantz has evidently thrown himself heart and soul into his task, and has produced a book which, despite its unpromising title, makes an amusing and interesting contribution to the history of his native State, and of the United States." P. C. Armstrong

+ Canadian Forum 31:237 Ja '52 600w

"Prof. Frantz of the University of Texas has done a meticulous research job for his biografy, aided by a grant from the Borden company. He is a better scholar than writer, so that the first part of the book suffers from over elaboration and the rest from prosiness. More's the pity, because Borden, himself, is a juicy subject for a character sketch by a master hand." Russell McFall

Chicago Sunday Tribune p2 Jl 22 '51 280w

Cleveland Open Shelf p18 S '51

FRASER-TYTLER, SIR WILLIAM KERR. Afghanistan; a study of political developments in central Asia. 330p il maps $5 Oxford

958 Afghanistan. Eastern question (Central Asia) 51-704

"This book starts with a description of the country of the Hindu Kush range of mountains, a brief history of the early empires in that region and an account of the diverse races who in the eighteenth century passed for the first time under the dominion of an Afghan leader, Ahmad Shah Durrani." (Times [London] Lit Sup) "In the last section of the book, the author analyzes India, Pakistan and Afghanistan and attempts to formulate, aided by Toynbee and Huntington, a broad philosophy of history that will explain their past and predict their future." (Current Hist)

"The author, at one time British Minister to Afghanistan, had excellent opportunities for first-hand observation. He exhibits that pleasant literary talent so characteristic of British diplomats and, in addition, illustrates throughout the book a deep attachment for the land and people of the Hindu Kush." Arnold Fletcher

Current Hist 20:170 Mr '51 550w

Foreign Affairs 29:679 Jl '51 40w

"Diplomatic history is often not very readable. This book is an exception." G. W.

+ Manchester Guardian p4 Ja 12 '51 270w

Times [London] Lit Sup p795 D 15 '50 1200w

FRAZEE, STEVE. Shining mountains. 248p $3 Rinehart

51-10257

An adventure story of the days following the Civil war. Two groups of men, once Confederate and Union soldiers, join in a mid-winter gold rush in the Colorado mountains. Life in a primitive mining town is part of the story. The search of one man for peace and for God is another.

Booklist 47:362 Je 15 '51

"Good reading." R. W. Henderson

+ Library J 76:704 Ap 15 '51 70w

"Mr. Frazee's novel is that satisfying and unfortunately rare combination: A book that challenges while it entertains." M. L. Mueller

+ San Francisco Chronicle p17 Jl 29 '51 140w

FREEDGOOD, MORTON (JOHN GODEY, pseud). Man in question. 187p $2.50 Doubleday

51-13245

A spy chase in which Peter Manning comes to America from behind the Iron Curtain to help in the anti-communist resistance, and nearly loses his life.

Kirkus 19:414 Ag 1 '51 70w

"It is all swift and economical and plausible enough although the final coincidences come a little thick and the author lets himself escape the answer to one staring question by blowing things up distractingly." James Sandoe

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p20 O 21 '51 120w

"As entertaining and ironic suspense as has appeared in some time. A few key plot details fail to make sense when you look back on them; but the writing is bright enough to keep you going with no strain on your credulity." Anthony Boucher

+ — N Y Times p44 O 21 '51 110w

"Mr. Godey's book probably contains more than its share of unconscious humor, but it is still an adequate entry in the chase department."

New Yorker 27:152 O 13 '51 130w

Reviewed by L. G. Offord
San Francisco Chronicle p12 O 21 '51 70w

Reviewed by Sergeant Cuff
Sat R of Lit 34:39 O 27 '51 30w

Springf'd Republican p12C N 18 '51 100w

FREEDMAN, MRS FLORENCE (BERNSTEIN). Walt Whitman looks at the schools. 278p $3.50 King's Crown press

370 Education. Whitman, Walt 51-9067

"More than 100 of Whitman's paragraphs, book reviews, and articles on schools and the education of youth comprise the major part of this book. Introductory chapters interpret his views in the light of his own background and the practice and philosophies of education in his time." (School & Society) Bibliography. Index.

"Much that Whitman says about the function of education in a democracy and the learning process makes stimulating reading and is relevant today. Particularly interesting is Florence Freedman's wit-enlivened introduction to this volume, which reconstructs the atmosphere and details of the classroom of Whitman's days and pays attention to the over-all education problems of the time." Siegfried Mandel

+ Sat R of Lit 34:33 Ap 28 '51 260w

School & Society 72:448 D 30 '50 50w

"Mrs. Freedman is to be commended for the salvage of basic first-hand-material by a major writer, and for her scholarly interpretation, as well."

+ U S Quarterly Bk R 7:158 Je '51 180w

FREEMAN, DOUGLAS SOUTHALL. George Washington, a biography; v3: Planter and patriot; v4: Leader of the revolution. 2v $15 Scribner

B or 92 Washington, George (48-8880)

"With the publication of these volumes, Dr. Freeman's monumental biography of Washington reaches the halfway point. The two previous volumes [Book Review Digest 1948, 1949] carried the story through his participation in the French and Indian War. . . The present story covers a score of years. It begins with his marriage to the rich young widow, Martha Dandridge Custis, and his assumption of the life of a great planter. . . It ends, in the spring of 1778, with the receipt by him, as Commander in Chief, of the news of the French Alliance—which ushered the Revolution into a fresh phase." N Y Herald Tribune Bk R

Booklist 48:41; 64 O 1 '51; O 15 '51

Reviewed by Paul Engle
Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 O 21 '51 500w

Reviewed by Paul Hutchinson
Christian Century 68:1409 D 5 '51 500w

Reviewed by Henry Sowerby
Christian Science Monitor p9 O 18 '51 1000w

Current Hist 21:353 D '51 170w

Reviewed by M. A. Fitzsimons
Commonweal 55:206 N 30 '51 420w

"The casual reader will find it too detailed, holding too closely to bare bones of tested data, lacking the color and drama that inspired Freeman's Lee. But for the scholar it is a must."

Kirkus 19:505 S 1 '51 320w

Reviewed by E. F. Walbridge
Library J 76:1558 O 1 '51 150w

Reviewed by Max Beloff
Manchester Guardian p3 D 18 '51 420w

Reviewed by J. G. Randall
+ New Repub 125:18 N 26 '51 1200w

"The author does not re-create and embroider a legend any more than he indulges in debunking for its own sake: he traces the development of a character. Even at Valley Forge, Washington appears as neither a perfect man nor a perfect soldier, but he has become the worthy embodiment of a cause greater than himself." Dumas Malone

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p3 O 14 '51 1800w

"That the Virginian is a hero to his biographer is obvious throughout these volumes, but his weaknesses and mistakes are not concealed. . . In this biography the essential greatness of Washington's character, his matchless integrity and whole-hearted devotion to his cause are strikingly brought out—but always from the externals. Freeman has the same problem that confronted Peale, Stuart, Trumbull and the other painters who sought to grasp the essential Washington. Details and incidents to indicate the outer man are legion; the means to delineate the inner man are difficult, probably impossible to come by." Carl Bridenbaugh

+ N Y Times p6 O 14 '51 1250w

New Yorker 27:141 O 27 '51 250w

Reviewed by Luther Nichols
San Francisco Chronicle p9 O 21 '51 1150w

Reviewed by L. H. Butterfield
Sat R of Lit 34:13 O 20 '51 1100w

"Keeping his camera at a respectful distance, Freeman has photographed Washington's 16 years of peace in such overwhelming and sometimes indiscriminate detail that Vol. III, often makes sluggish reading. But when he plunges into the war in Vol. IV, and takes Washington through the winter at Valley Forge, he writes with steam and fire. A bit pedestrian as a portraitist of character, Freeman handles military matters with rousing zest and precision."

+ — Time 58:130 O 15 '51 1050w

FREEMAN, GRAYDON LAVERNE. Melodies linger on; fifty years of popular song. 212p il $5 Century house

784 Songs 50-10832

" 'The Melodies Linger on' is not a song book; it is a history of the tune hits of the last half century. It is illustrated with the forgotten sheet music covers of the unforgotten tunes. The book lists the hits for each year from 1900 to 1950." Chicago Sunday Tribune

---

"It is invaluable as a reference book—or for a pleasant evening with your memories." Richard Blakesley

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 D 31 '50 300w

"It would be possible to use these 'popular' songs as the hook on which to hang a biting and satirical essay on recent and contemporary American culture. But that would not be quite fair. . . Even the history of Tin Pan Alley, rousing its raucous echoes in vaudeville, phonograph, radio, musical show and juke-box through these 50 years, is part of the history of America, and Americana must be treated with respect." W. E. G.

Christian Century 68:145 Ja 31 '51 170w

Reviewed by C. K. Miller
Library J 76:328 F 15 '51 100w

Nation 173:138 Ag 18 '51 50w

FREEMAN, KATHLEEN (MARY FITT, pseud). Pity for Pamela. 215p $2.50 Harper

51-10189

A novel of suspense in which a beautiful English heiress, Pamela, is the heroine. In a series of backflashes Pamela's life is traced, from the age of ten, until her sudden death in an airplane crash at the age of twenty-one.

Bookmark 10:185 My '51

Kirkus 19:14 Ja 1 '51 70w

FREEMAN, KATHLEEN—Continued

"Another of Miss Mary Fitt's excellent thrillers. It is better value than the majority of thrillers in that the characters and their situation are interesting before any question of crime arises." Elizabeth Jenkins

+ Manchester Guardian p4 Mr 31 '50 90w

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p27 My 13 '51 180w

"This is an unusual, and commendable, mystery story." Rex Lardner

+ N Y Times p21 My 20 '51 140w

"Miss Fitt has a nice gift for characterization, and her picture of a girl whose attachment to her weak and foolish mother leads gradually but inevitably to the ruin of a good many lives, including her own, is sound and fascinating."

+ New Yorker 27:123 Ap 28 '51 120w

"The story is much nearer to the straight novel than the thriller; as such, it's rewarding in a rather gloomy way." L. G. Offord

San Franicsco Chronicle p25 My 6 '51 70w

"Good but not quite jelled."

+ — Sat R of Lit 34:42 Ap 21 '51 50w

FREEMAN, LUCY. Fight against fears. 332p $3 Crown

131.34 Psychoanalysis. Fear 51-11282

A young New York newspaper woman recounts her experiences during her five-years psychoanalysis, and its results.

Booklist 47:395 Jl 15 '51

"A fascinating book. Most accounts of psychoanalysis are written for professional audiences and by the analysts. Here, instead, is an account of the way it feels to lie on the analyst's couch. The book is breezy, but not therefore superficial; it makes easy reading, but its truths are no less telling for being phrased in sprightly language." D. W. Fiske

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 Jl 1 '51 400w

"Recommended for lay readers because it has a constructive mental hygiene aspect and is a crusade for emotional freedom." J. M. Scherr

+ Library J 76:859 My 15 '51 100w

"A distinguished newspaper woman, Lucy Freeman writes ably and often humorously—sometimes with more ferocity than humor—of her personal quirks and troubles." Lorine Pruette

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Ag 12 '51 440w

"On the whole, it is successful and accurate. By merely telling her story with unusual honesty and simplicity, Mrs. Freeman explodes many popular misconceptions about psychoanalysis. The book shows clearly that psychoanalysis, far from being an 'escape' or 'indulgence,' is more in the nature of an ordeal in which the patient must struggle unceasingly against self-deception and rationalization in the long and painful search to know himself." Karl Menninger

+ N Y Times p7 Jl 8 '51 850w

"This is something new—a candid and intimate account of a young woman's psychoanalytic experience signed with the author's true name." Marguerite Clark

+ Sat R of Lit 34:17 Ag 25 '51 1050w

"The lack of technical terms and the very appealing way in which she has given many analytic concepts in everyday language make the book particularly valuable for lay people. It is as readable as a novel and yet at the same time instructive." A. L. Brush

+ Survey 87:499 N '51 490w

Time 58:36 Jl 9 '51 500w

FREEMAN, LYDIA, and FREEMAN, DON. Chuggy and the blue caboose [story and pictures]. 48p $2.50 Viking

51-10258

A picture-story book for ages 3 to 6. Chuggy was a switch engine, out of date and looked down on by the bigger flashier engines. The Blue Caboose had once belonged to a circus but had been left in the railroad yards for years. When the streamliner got snowed in during a blizzard Chuggy rescued the big train, and for a reward he and the Blue Caboose spent the rest of their years with a gay circus.

Booklist 47:315 My 1 '51

Reviewed by Polly Goodwin

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p10 Je 3 '51 130w

Reviewed by J. D. Lindquist and S. M. Andrews

Horn Bk 27:178 My '51 140w

"A gay, attractive picture-story book which will appeal to four and five year olds." Marian Herr

+ Library J 76:969 Je 1 '51 60w

"A new train story is always an event for a large portion of the picture book public. This one is distinguished by some fine pictures, vigorous, full of action and brilliantly colored." E. L. B.

+ N Y Times p30 Ap 29 '51 150w

"Those who know Don Freeman's excellent theatrical drawings in the New York Times and Herald Tribune, his illustrations for Saroyan and Thurber, his satire on Army life, 'It Shouldn't Happen' and his light-hearted autobiography, 'Come One, Come All.' will welcome his venture, in partnership with his wife, into a new field, children's books. There is the same imaginative touch of artist's brush and writer's pen, the same smile as the pages turn."

+ San Francisco Chronicle p10 N 11 '51 140w

Sat R of Lit 34:47 Je 9 '51 150w

FREEMAN, OTIS WILLARD, ed. Geography of the Pacific. 573p il maps $10; text ed $8 Wiley

919 Pacific ocean. Oceania 51-1109

"Authorities on the Pacific area have contributed regional studies, bringing together needed information on the area. Covers climates, currents, physical features, peoples, resources, and industries. Omits Japan, the mainland of Asia, and the western coasts of the American continents, since there is considerable information available on these; includes Australia and New Zealand. Extensive bibliographies for each section." Booklist

"This geographic textbook of the Pacific Ocean and most of its islands is of interest to anthropologists on two counts: its geographic data should be useful as background for Oceanic ethnography, and the chapters written by anthropologists about some of the archipelagoes offer compact ethnographic surveys. . . Mason's chapter on Eastern Micronesia is especially noteworthy; it provides an excellently balanced and comprehensive account of the human geography, and reflects the author's intimate familiarity with that area." Douglas Oliver

+ Am Anthropol 53:570 O '51 350w

Booklist 47:326 My 15 '51

"An authoritative, scholarly summary of what is known about half of the globe and the interrelations of its parts. The countries on which adequate literature is convenient—the Americas and Asia—are slighted, except as transit termini, in favor of Australia and the many islands." L. T. Heron

+ — Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 My 13 '51 80w

Current Hist 21:95 Ag '51 80w

"Photographs, maps, and graphs are numerous, well selected, carefully annotated, and unusually clear. The short index, lack of cartographic uniformity, and some spots in the text suggest that the book was put together hurriedly. It does, however, make readily available a wealth of reliable basic information on the increasingly significant Pacific Ocean areas."

+ — U S Quarterly Bk R 7:159 Je '51 250w

FREEMAN, WILLIAM. Concise dictionary of English idioms. 300p $2.95 Crowell

423.1 English language—Idioms [51-2718]

"Contains 3600 key idioms in the English language arranged in the standard dictionary style." San Francisco Chronicle

---

Booklist 48:116 D 1 '51

"Intended as a reference book, its tidbits of information are also fascinating reading; you'll pick up odds and ends of curious information on almost every page." J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p10 O 6 '51 160w

"In general the editor has donė well by idioms. Only in two particulars has he laid himself open to justly adverse criticism: single words, for instance Billingsgate or bloodsucker (even when written with a hyphen), do not constitute idioms; and now and then, he equates idiom and phrase, for not all phrases—especially not all phrasal verbs—are idioms. . . A Concise Dictionary of English Idioms will be valuable as a work of reference to beginners in composition and to foreigners." Eric Partridge
+ — Spec 185:216 F 16 '51 320w
Wis Lib Bul 47:248 N '51

FREMANTLE, MRS ANNE (JACKSON), ed. Greatest Bible stories. (Stephen Daye bk) 382p $3.50 Ungar

225.95 Bible stories 51-3886

An anthology of Bible stories compiled from Catholic literature. The stories are from New Testament incidents and are drawn from American, English, French, Spanish, Portuguese, Italian, German, and Scandinavian authors. The compiler is associate editor of Commonweal, and assistant professor of Creative writing at Fordham university.

"I must confess that most of the stories as re-told seem tame and even a bit wordy. The trouble is in the use the authors make of their imaginations, their preferring to embroider rather than to cast a revealing light of special insight upon this or that incident. I prefer to take the Gospels straight, and am disturbed by what often strikes me as superfluous frills. However, if such a collection had to be made, it would be hard to think of one who could do it better than Anne Fremantle." Theodore Maynard
+ — Commonweal 53:572 Mr 16 '51 250w

Reviewed by G. F. Whicher
N Y Herald Tribune R p17 Ap 29 '51 60w

"Most of the stories are from French or Spanish writers. All are Catholic and all are provocative." E. M. T.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p20 Ap 22 '51 100w

FREMANTLE, MRS ANNE (JACKSON), ed. Mothers; a Catholic treasury of great stories; with eight halftone reproductions; with an introd. by [the editor]. (Stephen Daye press bk) 383p $3.75 Ungar

808.83 Short stories—Collections. Poetry—Collections 51-4481

An anthology in prose and poetry about mother love. The selections are from American and foreign sources.

Booklist 47:399 Jl 15 '51
+ Commonweal 54:222 Je 8 '51 70w

Reviewed by G. F. Whicher
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 Ag 5 '51 50w

"The selections themselves are fine." Harvey Breit
+ N Y Times p20 Jl 1 '51 50w

FRENCH, JOSEPH MILTON, ed. Life records of John Milton; 4v; v2, 1639-1651. 395p $5 Rutgers univ. press

B or 92 Milton, John (50-5106)

"The second volume of these Records covers the years 1639 to 1651. It is planned to complete the work in two further installments." (N Y Herald Tribune Bk R) For volume I see Book Review Digest 1950.

Reviewed by D. N. Raymond
Am Hist R 56:955 Jl '51 280w

Reviewed by Ernest Sirluck
Mod Philol 48:273 My '51 180w

"Professor French records the data he has so painstakingly gathered with the cool objectivity that marks all true scholarship. It is impossible to believe, however, that he did not experience an inner glow as he created this volume. Certainly no reader can escape a stirring warmth or resist the wish that a fuller knowledge of Milton's public service might make him doctrinal to our age." D. A. Roberts
+ Nation 172:448 My 12 '51 450w

"The compilation is a task of the most arduous and austere scholarship, for the documents casting light upon Milton's career as poet and publicist and controversialist are extremely abundant and of the most varied character. . . Obviously this is not a work for the general reader, nor will even the specialist read it currently. But for any one concerned with Milton studies, here is the indispensable collection of documents and other materials upon which all biographies must be based."
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p22 F 25 '51 180w

"The presentation of the records shows the virtues of care and judgment. Except for a few slips, the transcriptions are scrupulously accurate, with special attention given to exact reproduction of abbreviations."
+ U S Quarterly Bk R 7:226 S '51 180w (Review of v1-2)

FREUCHEN, PIPALUK. Eskimo boy; tr. from the Danish; il. by Ingrid Vang Nyman. 96p $2 Lothrop

51-7031

The story of a brave Eskimo boy who had to become the family provider after his father was killed by a walrus. The author is the daughter of the Arctic explorer, Peter Freuchen.

Booklist 48:108 N 15 '51
Bookmark 11:61 D '51

"By the daughter of the Arctic explorer, this beautifully conceived and understated story of the solemn courage and unassuming daring of a young Eskimo boy combines a generous human warmth with a first-hand knowledge of the lives of an Eskimo family in Greenland."
+ Kirkus 19:579 O 1 '51 240w

Reviewed by E. C. Alexander
Library J 76:1945 N 15 '51 70w

"Will please adventurous boys, and will be a boon to elementary geography classes." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p16 N 4 '51 100w

"The author has made an Eskimo family as real as the people next door. The simple line drawings bring reality even closer." M. E. Martignoni
+ N Y Times p28 N 11 '51 170w

"A fine portrait of hardship and courage for eight- to twelve-year-old television lollers to meditate on." K. T. Kinkead
+ New Yorker 27:177 D 1 '51 50w

FREUD, SIGMUND. Dictionary of psychoanalysis; ed. by Nandor Fodor and Frank Gaynor; with a pref. by Theodor Reik. 208p $3.75 Philosophical lib.

131.34 Psychoanalysis 50-9853

Basic terms of psychoanalysis defined for psychologists, psychiatrists, and psychoanalysts.

Christian Century 67:1108 S 20 '50 220w

Reviewed by G. W. Davis
Crozer Q 28:287 Jl '51 160w

Reviewed by Walter Watson
Ethics 61:247 Ap '51 40w

FREUD, SIGMUND—Continued
"Is a genuine storehouse of information and at the same time an extremely convenient, useful reference work."
+ School & Society 72:190 S 16 '50 30w

"Exceptionally useful for students of psychology."
+ Social Studies 42:48 Ja '51 10w
Springf'd Republican p8C F 18 '51 310w

FREY, CHARLES F. (FERGUSON FINDLEY, pseud). Waterfront. 218p $2.50 Duell 51-1076

Detective story.

Kirkus 18:710 D 1 '50 90w

" 'Waterfront' is colorful and exciting but a little too reminiscent of 'My Old Man's Badge,' Mr. Findley's first yarn about an undercover cop."
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p15 F 18 '51 180w

"The behavior of police and criminals throughout is so wildly implausible as to approach comedy. . . Yet there's enough violent action here, including beatings, torture, attempted rape, and numberless killings (especially one choice item of death-by-rats), to please all fans of Mickey Spillane and James Hadley Chase." Anthony Boucher
N Y Times p29 Ja 14 '51 140w

"Malone seems to enjoy every minute of it. You may also, if you care for that sort of thing." L. G. Offord
San Francisco Chronicle p16 F 4 '51 100w
Sat R of Lit 34:38 F 17 '51 40w

FRIAR, KIMON, and BRINNIN, JOHN MALCOLM, eds. Modern poetry; American and British. 580p $4; students ed $3.25 Appleton
821.08 American poetry—Collections. English poetry—Collections 51-9990

"An anthology emphasizing writers of the metaphysical, surrealist, and symbolist kind together with such acknowledged predecessors as Emily Dickinson, Hardy and Hopkins, and certain cognate experimentalists in poetic prose. Though the word 'modern' is broadly interpreted as meaning either contemporary or advanced, it is clearly poets of the latter persuasion who most interest the compilers." (N Y Herald Tribune Bk R) The compilers are a past and present director of the Poetry Center, sponsored by the Young Men's and Young Women's Hebrew association. Indexes.

Booklist 47:325 My 15 '51

Reviewed by J. F. Nims
Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 Jl 8 '51 500w

"Judged from the apparatus with which it is provided, the book is intended for the scholar and student rather than the amateur or dilettante; in other words—semantics being what they are—for the eager and earnest rather than the lover and delighter. The appendix offers a long essay, Myth and Metaphysics, subtitled An Introduction to Modern Poetry. This is ordered and has obviously cost some laborious thinking, which is transmitted in an also somewhat laborious prose style, with some recklessness or insufficiency of judgment." Rolfe Humphries
Nation 172:449 My 12 '51 450w

"A concluding essay by the editors gives in little more than twenty pages a lucid rationale of modernist verse, while unusually extensive and helpful notes explain the contortions of language to which the poets of our time are driven." G. F. Whicher
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p17 Ap 29 '51 240w

"The best and fullest anthology in its field and the best single volume in which to read and study the twentieth-century Anglo-American poetry that has baffled and alienated numberless readers and infuriated more than one conservative critic." B. R. Redman
+ Sat R of Lit 34:33 Jl 21 '51 600w

FRIDLEY, WILLIAM C. A time to go home. 225p $3 Dutton
51-11432

"The confusion that existed during the Battle of the Bulge is vividly described in this novel. The author tells of the frightening V-1's with first-hand accuracy. And a fight between a half-track and tank is built with clanking suspense. To make his point that not all soldiers are hairy apes, Mr. Fridley places two characters out front: the lieutenant from Brooklyn and the former Ivy Leaguer who considers himself Noel Coward with a Tommy gun." N Y Times

"The story is written with vigor and clarity and gives a clear—and clean—insight into the minds of fighting men." Richard Blakesley
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p8 Jl 8 '51 200w

"The author writes with quick wit and deft clarity of style. Many of the characters are not named. A priest, a boy, a Driver, a Gunner, a captured German officer appear in the novel like characters of a drama, make their contribution to the theme, and pass off. The action itself is dramatic, and takes place in a series of 'scenes' which in general correspond to the chapter divisions." Russell Lord
Christian Science Monitor p9 Jl 17 '51 550w
Kirkus 19:249 My 15 '51 130w

"A sincerely written short book inclined to be a bit oblique in its observations but refreshing in its reflective aspects which for once seem to de-emphasize sex as the main concern of the soldier." H. L. Roth
+ Library J 76:1125 Jl '51 70w

"It is refreshing to come upon a war book whose characters are not always snarling at each other, working out their neuroses. Mr. Fridley's men are normal human beings, capable of deep friendships, tenderness and self-sacrifice. . . 'A Time to Go Home' is not likely to threaten any of the best sellers. One hopes, however, that it will not be lost in the shuffle, for it has honesty, warmth and sincerity." Louis Falstein
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 Jl 29 '51 550w

"As in many minor American war novels, the reporting here is capable. And besides, the intentions in 'A Time to Go Home' are honorable, for the author is on the side of humans and not war. Yet, by 1951, a reader may ask for more than fine details of World War II." Herbert Mitgang
N Y Times p15 Jl 15 '51 110w

"A thoughtful, solidly constructed tale of real men struggling with the external chaos of warfare and the internal contradictions of their own consciences." E. J. Fitzgerald
+ Sat R of Lit 34:17 Jl 21 '51 400w

FRIEDERICH, WILLARD J., and FRASER, JOHN HATHAWAY. Scenery design for the amateur stage. 262p pl $5; college ed $3.75 Macmillan
792 Theaters—Stage setting and scenery. Amateur theatricals 50-14785

A handbook on the scenic design and props for community theaters, high schools, colleges, or other amateur performers. Illustrated with photographs and diagrams. Glossary. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 47:185 Ja 15 '51
Bookmark 10:167 Ap '51

"A good and sound book. . . Recommended." George Freedley
+ Library J 75:2013 N 15 '50 30w

FRIERMOOD, MRS ELISABETH HAMILTON. Wabash knows the secret; il. by Grace Paull. 239p $2.50 Doubleday
51-10775

On a day in 1892 Henrietta Hale sat beside the Wabash River thinking of her great-grandfather's words, "The Wabash knows the secret." He had been murdered shortly after by men who wanted his wheat money. The story is about the solving of the mystery of more than forty years before, and its effects on Henrietta's family.

Booklist 47:369 Je 15 '51

Reviewed by Polly Goodwin
Chicago Sunday Tribune p7 Ag 26 '51 270w

Cleveland Open Shelf p20 S '51

"Here is a good example of the regional fiction now so much under discussion." J. D. Lindquist and S. M. Andrews
+ Horn Bk 27:251 Jl '51 90w

Kirkus 19:154 Mr 15 '51 130w

"Beautiful family relations are shown in the story, particularly the devotion of father and daughter. The atmosphere of the story appears to be typically 'Hoosier.' This will especially appeal to girls in the early teens. . . Recommended." Nelle McCalla
+ Library J 76:1034 Je 15 '51 80w

"A fast-moving tale with a tantalizing mystery." N. B. Baker
+ N Y Times p12 Jl 29 '51 140w

Sat R of Lit 34:56 My 12 '51 160w

Wis Lib Bul 47:194 Jl '51

FRIES, ROBERT FRANCIS. Empire in pine; the story of lumbering in Wisconsin, 1830-1900. 285p il $4 State hist. soc. of Wis.

338.1749 Lumbering. Lumber trade 51-13086

"This book analyzes, from various point of view, the development of the lumber industry in Wisconsin during the exploitive stage. . . . The first eight chapters are devoted to the economic and geographic conditions out of which the industry grew and the changing techniques and organizations which constituted its modus operandi. The rest of the book outlines the industry's internal problems and conflicts, the political, economic, and social forces shaping its development, and its growing influence upon the life of the state and nation." Pref

Booklist 48:115 D 1 '51

"His book is far more than a simple chronicle. It is a study in which the several chapters view lumbering from the viewpoint of the pioneer, the worker, the industrialist, the economist, the conservationist, and the political scientist. Moreover, tho it is by no means light reading, it makes very smooth and rewarding reading for the general reader." L. T. Heron
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p22 O 21 '51 150w

"Highly readable."
+ Wis Lib Bul 47:248 N '51

FRISCH, KARL VON. Bees; their vision, chemical senses, and language. 119p il $3 Cornell univ. press

595.799 Bees 50-11058

"Professor Karl von Frisch of Munich, the most distinguished living investigator of the comparative physiology of sensation, has devoted much of his time to elucidation of the vision, the chemical senses, and the methods of communication in bees. His contribution has added far more to our knowledge of the social organization of the hive than had been learned in the entire time prior to his investigation. In this little book, based on three lectures delivered in various American institutions in 1949, Professor von Frisch has given an account of his researches." (Yale R) Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 47:200 F 1 '51

Reviewed by Edmund Wilson
New Yorker 27:73 Jl 14 '51 500w

Time 57:42 Ja 1 '51 700w

"By far the most remarkable part of the book is the discussion in the third chapter of the method by which bees, coming into the hive, perform a ballet to communicate the direction and distance of the food flowers that they have found profitable to work. . . [The book] is not merely important as a study of a very fascinating subject, but has an indirect significance far transcending the limits of its subject. It is written with a simplicity, directness, and charm which all who know him will recognize as characteristic of its author. Any intelligent reader, without special scientific training, can enjoy it." G. E. Hutchinson
+ Yale R n s 40:546 spring '51 800w

FRISCHAUER, PAUL. Shepherd's crook. 307p $3 Scribner

51-12444

Historical novel of France during the reign of Louis XIV. The heroine is Isabeau, a beautiful orphan, who learns of her Huguenot heritage from an escaped galley slave. Thereafter she leaves the corrupt court at Versailles and flees to a Huguenot stronghold in the south. When she is caught and imprisoned in the notorious Tower of Constance, she is freed by the man she loves, who sacrifices his citizenship to marry her.

Booklist 48:49 O 1 '51

"The characters are intelligently and interestingly conceived and the story escapes the routine historical romance to tell a tale of dangerous times and their effect on those involved."
+ Kirkus 19:403 Ag 1 '51 180w

"Mr. Frischauer has done a good job, making his heroine interesting though pure, the villains credible though very wicked, and the times full of authentic atmosphere." E. L. Acken
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p16 S 16 '51 130w

"Paul Frischauer is something more than a contriver of costume melodrama. His story has intelligence and appeal. He has a fine sense of the dramatic scene, writes an economical prose touched with metaphorical grace and displays a robust wit that makes him one with the times he so vividly re-creates." Charles Lee
+ N Y Times p23 S 9 '51 160w

FRISCHAUER, WILLI. Rise and fall of Hermann Goering [Eng title: Goering]. 309p $3.50 Houghton

B or 92 Goering, Hermann Wilhelm 51-12445

A biography of Hermann Goering by a former Austrian journalist. Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by E. R. Noderer
Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 S 16 '51 450w

"In addition to its completely distorted perspective and its abundance in material from questionable sources, the book is written with amazing carelessness. It contains so many inaccuracies that one wonders how far one can depend on any of the author's assertions." Ernest Pisko
— Christian Science Monitor p7 S 17 '51 950w

Reviewed by James van Zandt
Churchman 165:16 N 15 '51 110w

Current Hist 21:228 O '51 120w

"One questions the market for a life of Goering which rarely has anything new to offer."
Kirkus 19:373 Jl 15 '51 250w

"It makes for excellent reading throughout, but somehow, evidently against the author's will, presents the former Reichsmarschel, one of the most ruthless and bloodthirsty political criminals of the twentieth century, too sympathetically. Therefore, recommended only with serious reservations for general purchase." F. E. Hirsch
Library J 76:1214 Ag '51 110w

"As a picture of the man it is quite worth reading if one were sure after all the research that it was a complete picture. Mr. Frischauer concentrates on character and incident and he never really squares it with the fact that Göring's achievement in the Third Reich though deplorable was very formidable. The fact is that very different sort of research is needed to explain just why Mr. Frischauer's Göring did what the historical Göring did." R. T. Clark
+ — Manchester Guardian p3 Mr 27 '51 200w

FRISCHAUER, WILLI—Continued
Reviewed by A. J. P. Taylor
New Repub 125:20 N 5 '51 650w

"Mr. Frischauer's basic interest really is the personality of his subject. He gives enough of the history of Nazi Germany so that the uninformed reader can make his way readily in the book, but this is not another attempt to understand the whole Nazi movement in terms of world history. This is a portrait of Hermann Goering. It is by no means the only possible portrait, for Goering was a complicated human being. Others may later see more deeply into him. For the moment, this is a stimulating and suggestive job." Crane Brinton
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p3 S 16 '51 600w

Reviewed by H. R. Trevor-Roper
+ N Y Times p3 S 16 '51 800w
New Yorker 27:116 S 22 '51 200w

Reviewed by C. E. Miller
San Francisco Chronicle p21 S 30 '51 550w

"Mr. Frischauer is not a psychologist who likes to probe into the mind of a psychopath, nor is he much interested in giving us a broad picture of Goering's times. He is more a faithful recorder of events and a successful reporter than a biographer in the modern manner." H. B. Kranz
Sat R of Lit 34:29 O 6 '51 1150w

"This biography of Goering is not very much more than cheap journalese, a stringing together of what Frau Emmy and other eminent personages 'said to me' about its subject. . . Almost without its author this book has considerable interest. We are indebted to Mr. Frischauer for confirming from Scotland Yard the rumour that Goering actually arrived in London on the occasion of the Coronation in 1937, only to be smuggled away before there should be demonstrations against him. . . One is tempted to wonder whether M. Frischauer did not succumb to a certain credulity in the writing of this book. People present at Frau Goering's trial thought she had never acted so well upon the stage." Elizabeth Wiskemann
Spec 185:292 Mr 2 '51 380w
Time 58:112 S 24 '51 750w

"The information he has extracted from Göring's closest associates . . . makes amusing reading, but for the next edition he should make up his mind whether General Jeschonnek's Christian name was Hans or Karl. He should also deprive Generals Ludendorff and Keitel of the aristocratic prefix 'von,' which he has bestowed upon them, turn Chancellor Bruenning into Bruening and General Faukel into Faupel. These and other slips mar an otherwise thorough and conscientious effort at reporting a somewhat naive story which time has shown to have become largely irrelevant."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p210 Ap 6 '51 600w

FROCHT, MAX MARK. Strength of materials; a first course. 439p il $5.50 Ronald 620.11 Strength of materials. Strains and stresses 51-11329

"An engineering college textbook by a well-known authority on photoelasticity and other methods of experimental stress analysis. The author has taken particular pains to emphasize the practical aspects of the subject and to describe contemporary methods. Among the numerous illustrations are a number of photographs of stress patterns obtained by photoelastic techniques. The book supersedes a text of the same title written by the author and N. C. Riggs and published in 1938 [Book Review Digest 1938]. Only one chapter has been carried over from that book without extensive revision." N Y New Tech Bks

"Those libraries that purchase a few textbooks on the subject should not overlook this one." R. R. Hawkins
Library J 76:1132 Jl '51 70w
N Y New Tech Bks p36:62 Jl '51

FROMM, ERICH. Forgotten language; an introduction to the understanding of dreams, fairy tales and myths. 263p $3.50 Rinehart
135.38 Dreams. Mythology. Fairy tales 51-13653

"The object of [this book] is to convey to layman and student the elementary knowledge necessary to understand dream language. Work includes analysis of Joseph's dream, Little Red-Cap, Jonah and the whale, Oedipus myth, Kafka's The Trial, Sabbath ritual, and Babylonian myth of creation. Interpretation viewpoints of Freud and Jung are contrasted." Library J

Atlantic 189:90 Ja '52 170w
Kirkus 19:519 S 1 '51 140w

"A public and college library acquisition." J. M. Scherr
Library J 76:1805 N 1 '51 130w

Reviewed by Lorine Pruette
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p11 D 16 '51 850w

"This is an introductory book, written without technical jargon and with Fromm's customary faculty for putting profound ideas simply. Though he promises a later, more advanced work on dreams, the professional readers will get here a great deal from the broad, synthesizing compass of this book and its many stimulating insights." Rollo May
+ N Y Times p18 N 11 '51 850w

FROMM, ERICH. Psychoanalysis and religion. 119p $2.50 Yale univ. press
131.34 Psychoanalysis. Psychology, Religious 50-9952
For descriptive note see Annual for 1950.

"The argument as Fromm offers it will arouse much discussion. Social scientists will probably remain unconvinced of intrinsic human needs like freedom. Many will see independence and freedom as culturally given values in western society in conflict with other cultural demands. Which set of values to favor in practice is, however, clearly a religious question. It is one that faces the therapist as well as the social engineer." J. J. Honigmann
Ann Am Acad 273:267 Ja '51 350w

"Psychoanalysis and Religion is clearly directed at those who question traditional religion and its supernatural doctrines, and to such readers it can be strongly recommended. Whichever way you look at it, Fromm's book is a model of conciseness and lucidity." C. J. Rolo
+ Atlantic 186:95 D '50 600w

"Prof. Fromm moves with assurance amid the intricacies of Freudian theory and is not even awed by the authority of Freud himself. Most psychologists would no longer accept Fromm's theory of a gregarious instinct, but, on the whole, his book should be stimulating both to minister and to psychotherapist." W. J. McKeachie
+ Christian Century 68:18 Ja 3 '51 480w

Reviewed by M. H. Maskin
New Repub 124:21 Mr 19 '51 850w

Reviewed by A. D. Harris
New Statesman & Nation 42:288 S 15 '51 450w

"I would hazard the opinion that Dr. Fromm has not been able to appreciate the modern concept of religion as practised by most churches today. Nor does he seem to understand the impact upon American culture of the Judea-Christian idea of a loving God and the influence of this loving God in curbing and modifying our aggressions. . . Dr. Fromm has nevertheless performed a real service in pointing out the failure of religion in the modern world. He also has valuable things to say about the unhealthy role that infantile religious beliefs may play.'" Smiley Blanton
+ — Sat R of Lit 34:39 F 10 '51 1200w

Reviewed by Seward Hiltner
Survey 87:42 Ja '51 600w

"Every page of this short but rather rambling book bears witness to Dr. Fromm's moral fervour, his earnest search for truth, and his deep insight into human nature. Happy phrases abound, and curious reflections such as the interpretation of nationalism and group loyalty in general as a form of the 'Oedipus complex'; but one cannot help feeling that he has tried to say too much in too small a space."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p601 S 21 '51 600w
U S Quarterly Bk R 7:34 Mr '51 270w
Wis Lib Bul 47:56 Mr '51

FROST, FRANCES MARY. Cat that went to college; pictures by Morgan Dennis. (Whittlesey house publication) 64p $2 McGraw
Cats—Legends and stories 51-12677

Story of a lost kitten found by two Harvard freshmen on a stormy night. Their kindness made the kitten adopt them at once and from then on Socrates or Sock for short became a freshman too. For grades three to five.

"The text is for 6 to 10 year olds, but the pictures will entrance cat lovers of all ages." Polly Goodwin
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p18 O 7 '51 90w
Kirkus 19:386 Ag 1 '51 90w
Reviewed by E. E. Frank
Library J 76:1713 O 15 '51 50w

"We think the college setting is rather beyond the younger children to whom the many charming sketches would appeal, and therefore for them the humorous possibility of the book is lost. It might better have been done as a more sophisticated bit of nonsense for adults." L. S. Bechtel
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 S 30 '51 60w

"Even though Miss Frost hasn't pursued the full possibilities of such a situation, younger children will enjoy Sock's introduction to nineteenth-century poetry and other small campus adventures and Dennis Morgan's drawings of him in many skittish moods." E. L. B.
N Y Times p28 S 16 '51 90w

FROST, JAMES ARTHUR. Life on the upper Susquehanna, 1783-1860. 172p maps $2.75 King's Crown press
974.77 New York (state)—History. Susquehanna river and valley 51-9991

"The Upper Susquehanna Valley includes that portion of New York State drained by the Susquehanna above the point where that river first crosses the Pennsylvania border. It is an extensive domain embracing all of Otsego County, large sections of Chenango and Delaware, and parts of Broome, Herkimer, Madison, Oneida, and Schoharie. The objective of this little book is to present a concise history of the Valley from the close of the Revolution to the beginning of the War between the States. It traces the social, political, economic, and cultural development from the frontier period through a series of painful adjustments to the achievement of a prosperous and stable community." (Pref) Bibliography. Index.

"Mr. Frost, working largely with manuscript sources, newspapers, local histories, gazetteers, and official manuals, has achieved a microcosmic study that is much more than a mere factual narrative. . . The result is an effective reconstruction of more than local interest, and a model worth general adoption—the application of sound scholarship to the high concerns of the courthouse steps and the village green." J. T. Winterich
+ Sat R of Lit 34:26 S 15 '51 210w
U S Quarterly Bk R 7:270 S '51 250w

FROST, ROBERT. The road not taken; an introduction to Robert Frost; a selection of Robert Frost's poems with a biographical preface and running commentary by Louis Untermeyer; il. by John O'Hara Cosgrave II. 282p $3.50 Holt
811 51-9831

"An enlargement of Come In [Book Review Digest 1943], with over 50 poems added, the biography brought up to date, and commentary amplified. Certain of the poems are published for the first time." Booklist

Booklist 47:256 Mr 15 '51

"The best Frost criticism is scattered here and there in the little magazines and the big; his poetry is to be found undiluted and in its impressive entirety in the 'Complete Poems' of 1949. That volume is not supplanted by this one, which, however, may well lead interested readers back to the pure source. All in all, 'pleasant' is the word for this handsome birthday tribute." J. F. Nims
Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 Mr 25 '51 420w
Kirkus 19:47 Ja 15 '51 160w
Reviewed by G. D. McDonald
Library J 76:519 Mr 15 '51 130w

"Robert Frost's poetry has met with such wide acceptance that commentaries like those offered in 'The Road Not Taken' seem intrusively superfluous. Just conceivably a range of readers who could not normally be brought to face a book of poems and its integrity may be drawn in by the tinsel enticements of Mr. Untermeyer's patter-talk. Admirers of Frost, however, are not apt to see any advantage in having his poems packed in sawdust." G. F. Whicher
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p17 Ap 1 '51 360w
Reviewed by B. R. Redman
Sat R of Lit 34:33 Jl 21 '51 20w
Reviewed by Richard Henchey
Springf'd Republican p16A Ap 1 '51 140w
Wis Lib Bul 47:118 My '51

FRY, CHRISTOPHER. Boy with a cart. 40p $1.75 Oxford
822

An early one-act play of this author, in which he retells the legends of Cuthman, the shepherd saint, and how he built his church at Steyning.

Manchester Guardian p4 Jl 18 '50 110w

"Christopher Fry is surely some yeoman-poet with a green hood, whose words are bright and keen as peacock arrows. What magic took this Englishman from a medieval time and set him down among our motor cars and atom smashers? He makes use of the mother tongue as though all the centuries were one, as though the crypto-jargon of our current ways and plays were flimflam fit only for robots." Richard Gaines
+ N Y Times p10 Ja 14 '51 300w

"The technique is simple and unpretentious, largely that of the medieval mysteries, with no attempt to be dramatic in the modern sense. There is some amusing dialogue between the Saint and the practical people, and broad humor in some of the miracles, but the play is primarily an attempt to express the simple faith of medieval peasants and hagiographers, and as such is pleasantly successful." M. K. Spears
+ Poetry 78:30 Ap '51 180w

"From this naive English legend of miracle and faith Fry has woven a charming poem notable for its reverence and pastoral simplicity. The poem is illuminated by humanity and wit and an appealing innocence of spirit." F. J.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p22 Ja 28 '51 160w

"His humour, though held in judicious restraint, is always effective when it comes into the open. The sudden wind that whirls the obstructive woman over the trees and, zig-zag like a paper bag, out of sight is an excellent invention. And the miracle which restores to its place the king-post of the church after it has defied all human effort is beautifully described."

FRY, CHRISTOPHER—Continued

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p416 Jl 7 '50 300w

FRY, CHRISTOPHER. A sleep of prisoners. 49p $2 Oxford

822 51-13186

"In A Sleep of Prisoners [Fry] presents four prisoners of war locked in a church in enemy territory. But almost immediately, he projects the mechanical problem of imprisonment onto a spiritual plane, concerning himself with the tribulations of man, his secret burdens, his guilt, and with the faltering steps of the child as he grows in wisdom and stature. In a series of dreams wrapped in Biblical lore each man struggles, as in life, not only with his brother, the war raging outside the walls, but with himself, which is the fiercest battle of all." Canadian Forum

Bookmark 11:39 N '51 20w

"Today, when so many of our writers crawl about with broken backs or mumble fearfully through hare-lips, Christopher Fry is a solitary figure standing erect in the mainstream of the great English tradition; and yet, because he is part of Everyman his voice is unashamedly universal, full of gentleness and humor and the language of love." Samuel Roddan

+ Canadian Forum 31:141 S '51 400w

Cleveland Open Shelf p27 N '51

"A Sleep of Prisoners is essentially an experiment in drama, an interim work: it is not so much a change of direction as a development and like all Fry's plays, after the performance is over or the script has been closed, lines echo in the memory." Neville Braybrooke

Commonweal 55:74 O 26 '51 500w

"Recommended for drama and theatre collections." George Freedley

+ Library J 76:1228 Ag '51 30w

"The author has a deserved reputation; the title is completely typical; the intent is serious; the excellent English company of four seems to believe in what it is doing; and, besides, the once natural alliance between religion and the drama is something which ought to be encouraged. Unfortunately, however, the truth of the matter is that, title aside, the play has none of the characteristics or virtues of its author and that it is vehemently incoherent. I have seldom been more uncomfortable in either a theater or a church, and I have, on occasion, been pretty uncomfortable in each."

Nation 173:381 N 3 '51 350w

"Mr. Fry's language here lacks much of the joyously leaping metaphors which made listening to 'The Lady's Not for Burning' a delight, though it maintains his odd conversational quality. On the whole, the play is an experiment which doesn't quite come off and does not justify by any inner necessity its production in a church, as Eliot's 'Murder in the Cathedral' so triumphantly did." W. P. Eaton

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p14 D 16 '51 280w

"One of the first obligations of all writing, whether sacred or profane, is clarity. It is the lack of light in 'A Sleep of Prisoners' that makes a trying experience out of what could so easily have been stirring." Dramatic criticism by J. M. Brown

Sat R of Lit 34:60 N 17 '51 1150w

Reviewed by John Guest

Spec 187:71 Jl 13 '51 450w

Reviewed by Richard McLaughlin

Theatre Arts 35:86 D '51 160w

"A Sleep of Prisoners is more austere than anything Fry has written; an inquiry into—and seemingly away from—spiritual desolation. But it lacks the strong simple current, the climactic movement, of religious and dramatic emotion alike. It has none of the widening allegoric vision of a Langland or a Bunyan."

Time 58:38 O 29 '51 550w

Times [London] Lit Sup p486 Ag 3 '51 350w

FRY, ROSALIE K. Pipkin sees the world; il. by [the author]. 96p $2 Dutton

51-12027

In twelve brief chapters, one for each month of the year, the adventures of a little woodmouse are described. For ages six to ten.

Booklist 48:52 O 1 '51

Reviewed by Polly Goodwin

Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 N 11 '51 60w

"The excitement that can agitate those who live down at grass level, the terror inspired by a snake or by a mechanical reaper, the relief and delight at escaping a barn owl or at snuggling down for the winter—all these are conveyed even more skillfully by the author's excellent line drawings than by her often sentimental prose." S. C. Gross

N Y Times p18 Ag 26 '51 90w

"A delightful and entertaining nature story." D. F. M.

+ Springf'd Republican p7C S 16 '51 50w

FRYE, JOHN T. Basic radio course. 175p il $2.25 Radcraft publications, 25 W Broadway, N.Y. 7

621.384 Radio. Radio apparatus—Repairing 51-6320

"The current emphasis on television makes the appearance of an introductory book for radio servicemen that contains no mention of television a novelty indeed. The novel effect is increased, because the book appears to have been written on the assumption that a good many young men are just now entering the trade of servicing radio receivers." N Y New Tech Bks

"This manual is just what its name implies. The author assumes the reader knows nothing about radio theory, and sets forth to explain it, simply and clearly." William Yates

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p9 S 16 '51 60w

"Whether it is an anachronism or not, it is written in an informal, chatty style, and without mathematics. Anyone who wants a simple explanation of such radio elements as the A-C, D-C supply will find it here though he will not find very much on any one topic."

N Y New Tech Bks 36:76 S '51

FRYE, RICHARD NELSON, ed. The Near East and the great powers; with an introd. by Ralph Bunche. 214p $3.50 Harvard univ. press

956 East (Near East)—Politics 51-12813

"Compilation of the papers written and presented by specialists in Near Eastern matters at the conference on 'The Great Powers and the Near East,' held at Harvard University in August 1950. The Near East appears to have been defined as the region consisting of Turkey, Iran, and Afghanistan in the north, the Arabian peninsula and the Fertile Crescent in the center, and the Nile Valley in the south. Pertinent and current facets are discussed: The impact of the Great Powers upon the Near East, economic development, Soviet propaganda, Israel and the United States, the Palestine problem, oil resources and oil production, the problems inherent in inter-Arab relations, and the status of labor in Egypt in 1950." Library J

Booklist 48:63 O 15 '51

Reviewed by J. G. Harrison

Christian Science Monitor p9 O 20 '51 300w

Current Hist 21:356 D '51 60w

"Recommended." R. P. Breaden
+ Library J 76:1214 Ag '51 120w

"Mr Frye, as editor, has done much to impart a measure of unity to this diversified series of papers. If he has not been altogether successful, the fault is not entirely his. The Near East is an unwieldy subject, difficult to manage in the best of circumstances." E. A. Speiser
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p14 O 28 '51 700w

"It is a good sample of some of the best professional observations, even if some papers by distinguished academic and diplomatic names appear rather sketchy in cold hard print." Farnsworth Fowle
+ N Y Times p10 S 30 '51 160w

San Francisco Chronicle p21 N 11 '51 230w

"'The Near East and the Great Powers' frankly limits its attention to the Arab states and Israel as being the core of the Near East. It does not, however, give a rounded picture even of these areas. The claim that it is a 'survey' of the Near East is misleading. The work contains much specific material of interest and importance to a student of the region, but anyone who accepts Dr. Bunche's thesis and seeks for the first time to become really acquainted with the Near East will do well to begin his search for information and understanding elsewhere. Only later will he appreciate the real values of 'The Near East and the Great Powers.'" P. L. Hanna
Sat R of Lit 34:38 O 27 '51 600w

Reviewed by Donald Derby
Springf'd Republican p12C N 18 '51 250w

FULLAM, THOMAS, pseud. See Johnson, H. W.

FULLER, EDMUND. Brothers divided. 365p $3.50 Bobbs
51-12910

The brothers of the title are Dan and David Fairchild, sons of a Presbyterian minister. The story of their lives follows David, the artist and idealist, thru his years in Greenwich village and his departure to fight in Spain, to his death there. Dan, the minister, is left behind to pick up the pieces, care for David's illegitimate son, and comfort his widow.

"A complex but finely developed tale. . . Mr. Fuller achieves [his] effects thru plotting that is at all times bold and which, in its essence, approaches the fantastic. . . All this is so thick, as to become utterly unpalatable were it not for the intensity of conviction the author succeeds in injecting into the writing of nearly every scene." Henry Cavendish
+ — Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 S 23 '51 420w

"A power and urgency in this novel survive the many burdens of its ineptitudes. The whole first portion could have been compressed into two pages. . . After one has read the book, one wishes that Mr. Fuller had given his thesis more time and size. But such as it is, it moves, reveals and satisfies. This should be a best seller." Hugh McGovern
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 S 23 '51 600w

Reviewed by John Nerber
N Y Times p27 N 11 '51 190w

San Francisco Chronicle p22 O 14 '51 380w

"This is a fascinating novel about the generation which grew to adulthood during the 1930's. . . Altogether the story is sincere, warm, and always absorbing, an unusual portrait of a generation which did not fully understand itself, and whose behavior is still the subject of public investigation and wonderment." Donald Harrington
+ Sat R of Lit 34:13 O 27 '51 360w

"Particularly facile is Mr. Fuller in contriving romantic relationships, as well as conventional marriages, in this challenging book well worth the concentration needed for its perusal." S. M. N.
+ Springf'd Republican p14C O 14 '51 170w

FULLER, EDWARD. Right of the child; a chapter in social history; with a foreword by Countess Mountbatten of Burma and an introd. by L. H. Green. 159p $2 Beacon press

362.7 Children—Charities, protection, etc. Save the children fund, London. Jebb, Eglantyne Mary [51-1994]

"Eglantyne Jebb founded in 1919 the Save the Children Fund. Mr. Fuller's book is a record of the development and achivements of this organization. The book is not the story of the life of Eglantyne Jebb but the history of one of the world's great social service organizations, which stands today as a memorial to her vision and industry. . . The Declaration of the Rights of the Child put forth by Miss Jebb in 1924 before the League of Nations is now accepted by the Social Commission of the United Nations." Canadian Forum

---

"The book is an historical study of major importance to anyone interested in the welfare of children. It is a valuable resource book for the child welfare worker." A. F. Klein
+ Canadian Forum 31:94 Jl '51 140w

"Mr. Fuller has presented a readable succinct account which libraries should find useful." E. P. Nichols
+ Library J 76:864 My 15 '51 70w

Reviewed by M. F. Langer
Survey 87:331 Jl '51 50w

FUNK & Wagnalls standard dictionary of folklore, mythology and legend: Maria Leach, ed; Jerome Fried, associate ed; v 1-2. 1196p $15 Funk

398.03 Folklore—Dictionaries, indexes, etc. (49-48675)

For reviews of Volume I of this reference book see Book Review Digest 1949: Volume two covers subjects from J to Z.

Reviewed by C. J. Rolo
+ Atlantic 187:89 F '51 100w

Bookmark 10:82 Ja '51 20w

"Fascinating reference work."
+ Current Hist 20:105 F '51 60w

"A world-wide view in brief, showing something of the work's scope and thoroughness. Really an extraordinary achievement." E. L. Lewis
+ Library J 76:408 Mr 1 '51 140w

"The work of thirty-three specialists, the dictionary is useful, varied and extremely readable." N. K. Burger
+ N Y Times p15 D 31 '50 130w

"The material is set down in tight, well-condensed, direct English, lively and informative to the last comma or semicolon. Obviously much of the credit here goes to the editor who must have kept before her every minute the guiding principles of clarity and simplicity." J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p18 Ja 3 '51 600w

"Funk & Wagnalls Standard Dictionary of Folklore, Mythology and Legend will be of interest to persons working in many fields. Its full usefulness cannot be gauged until the volume containing the index and bibliography is published, but even in its present state it will be of value to public, school, college, and special art, music and theological libraries. These will find the dictionary an excellent guide in the identification of individual songs, tales, myths, and folk heroes, as well as a source of varying ideas on the many problems in this vast area of research."
+ Subscription Bks Bul 22:31 Ap '51 1650w

FUNK—Continued

"A sensational account of the Indian rope trick . . . cites a writer who seems to believe that the trick can actually be done. It is surprising to find Mr. Robert Graves's The White Goddess frequently cited as an authority. Mr. Graves has won his high reputation as an author in other fields and The White Goddess, though an interesting and well-written book, is open to criticism on many grounds. These, however, are minor blemishes on what is a very useful work of reference, containing a wealth of information on many out-of-the-way subjects, though—as in the first volume—attention is largely directed to the customs and beliefs of the American Indians."

+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p320 My 25 '51 250w

"As they now stand, the volumes are an adjunct to any reference library; their usefulness will be considerably enhanced by the addition of the index."

+ U S Quarterly Bk R 7:113 Mr '51 250w

Wis Lib Bul 47:18 Ja '51

FURCOLOWE, CHARLES. This will kill you; the executive's health book. 192p il $2.75 Forbes

613 Hygiene 51-12198

"Flippant, but sound advice on health, particularly aimed at the businessman over forty. Under cover of humor, it insinuates information on blood pressure, indigestion, obesity, diets, insomnia, ulcers, mental ills, hypochondria, smoking, drinking, colds, recreation, exercise, work, sex, senescence, and regular medical check-ups." Booklist

Booklist 48:25 S 15 '51

"This is a good book, if only because in it you can see yourself as others see you—certainly good medicine for anybody." F. G. Slaughter

+ N Y Times p20 Ja 13 '52 180w

"There is little here that is brand new. But it may be that the author's choice of a humorous approach will drive the old lesson home to many who let other kinds of advice slide off their shoulders." J. H. Jackson

+ San Francisco Chronicle p18 S 5 '51 180w

"Something out of the top drawer. You can read it and enjoy it, even if you live sensibly all the time, for you're sure to spot a clever caricature of some favorite friend or relative along the way. If you're not the type who lives sensibly, this book is for you, and you'd better read it before it's too late." R. J. C.

+ Springf'd Republican p10B S 30 '51 320w

FURMAN, BESS. White House profile; a social history of the White House, its occupants and its festivities. 368p il $4 Bobbs

923.173 Presidents (U.S.). Washington, D.C. White House 51-14153

A social history of the White House beginning with the year 1800 when Abigail Adams was First Lady of the United States, and ending with the present reconstruction of the building, and the life of the Trumans at the Blair-Lee House. Index.

Booklist 48:41; 121 O 1 '51; D 1 '51

"Bess Furman takes no political sides, even by implication. Of the women she has known as a Washington correspondent during the last 20 years she has only pleasant things to say, which, if she wants to stay in Washington, proves what a smart newspaper woman as well as chronicler she is." Fanny Butcher

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p8 N 25 '51 650w

"Miss Furman has compressed a great deal of history between two covers in this book, but she has managed to keep it focussed on the White House in a fascinating story of Presidents and First Ladies who were at the same time husbands and wives." Josephine Ripley

+ Christian Science Monitor p15 N 29 '51 700w

"Miss Furman has written sympathetically and with touches of humor that brightens it materially. . . In the main her material is carefully checked and she shows little personal bias, unless one chooses to object to her softening of the case against Mary Todd Lincoln. . . The book is definitely a contribution to the history of the Presidency." G. W. Johnson

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 N 18 '51 550w

"This book is remarkable because it establishes, with imaginative depth and political aptness, the national importance of the White House as the continuing outward symbol of executive authority in the United States." Adrienne Koch

+ N Y Times p3 N 25 '51 850w

"Thirty-one families have lived in the White House. Miss Furman, a Washington reporter, has done an excellent job in giving you 'the feel of the people who have lived busy lives in the house and have been moved by mighty events.' She is chatty, but never malicious in her pronouncements." Jane Voiles

+ San Francisco Chronicle p15 D 23 '51 850w

"Miss Furman, a Washington newspaper writer, has done excellently with her assignment, and her story of the 31 families who lived, loved, quarreled and worried about the plumbing in the White House's 150 years makes some of the most entertaining reading to come out of the capital in many a day." R. F. H.

+ Springf'd Republican p41A D 9 '51 270w

FURNAS, JOSEPH CHAMBERLAIN. Voyage to windward; the life of Robert Louis Stevenson. 566p il $5 Sloane

B or 92 Stevenson, Robert Louis 51-12678

"Employing no literary tricks, it is a straightforward, chronological account, not without interpretation, but with a steadfast attempt for honesty in controversial matters, such as the relations of RLS with W. H. Henley, and whether Fanny, his Hoosier wife, was a good or a bad influence. Critical appendix, bibliography, good index, and quotes from letters, plus a fine section of portraits." Library J

Booklist 48:64 O 15 '51

Bookmark 11:31 N '51 20w

Reviewed by Clorinda Clarke

Cath World 174:239 D '51 230w

"Furnas has done a big job on a big scale, without losing control or his newspaper man's knack for a neat phrase." A. C. Ames

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 O 7 '51 320w

Reviewed by M. W. Stoer

Christian Science Monitor p11 O 11 '51 750w

"Mr. Furnas makes an earnest appeal for a reexamination of Stevenson's work and for recognition of his stature as an artist. But even if his biography doesn't set into motion this wholesale re-reading of The Master of Ballantrae and A Footnote to History, it makes a wonderful story itself." C. H. Weiss

+ Commonweal 55:305 D 28 '51 700w

"A sympathetic but not a sentimental treatment of the Scottish novelist and poet, this will probably stand as the most readable biography of Stevenson for some time to come." Shirley Barker

+ Library J 76:1559 O 1 '51 90w

"It was time indeed that somebody really got at the facts and gave us a full and fair account of Stevenson the man. This Mr. Furnas has done admirably. Here at last is an adult biography of R. L. S., accurate, perceptive, understanding, drawing on much unpublished material, the product of indefatigable research and clear intelligence. It is, I am convinced, more essentially sound in its view of Stevenson than any previous biography, and will long remain as the definitive life." David Daiches

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 O 14 '51 850w

"Stevenson, the storyteller, finally has a biography worthy of him. . . Furnas has rescued Stevenson alike from the hagiographers and the psychoanalysts; he has made a three-dimensional portrait of a complex and fascinating man. In so doing, moreover, he has never forgotten that what made the man important was his writing." Delancey Ferguson

+ N Y Times p7 O 7 '51 700w

"When a professional writer, equipped also with the judgment to balance evidence, with the knowledge of scholarly techniques that enable him to use and weigh new evidence and to organize the whole, and with the knowledge of his subject and its background that is here evident, decides to do a book of this kind it should be no surprise to find it a top-drawer piece of work. 'Voyage to Windward' is all of that. I'd call it a likely contender for the Pulitzer Prize in biography, and maybe, too, for the National Book Award." J. H. Jackson

+ San Francisco Chronicle p18 O 14 '51 1400w

"'Voyage to Windward' is by all odds the best biography of R.L.S. yet to have appeared. No one has told the fascinating story of Stevenson's life half so well as Mr. Furnas. No one has painted so vivid a full-length portrait of the man and his career. No one has written with so much new and enlightening material at his disposal. Or followed in every absorbing detail the shifts in Stevenson's reputation." J. M. Brown

+ Sat R of Lit 34:40 O 13 '51 1500w

FUSON, REYNOLD CLAYTON. Advanced organic chemistry. 669p $8 Wiley

547 Chemistry, Organic 50-10223

"A text and reference book for upperclass and graduate students who are preparing to do research work in organic chemistry. Essentially it is a survey of the reactions which are useful in laboratory syntheses. The reactions are discussed briefly, diagrammed, and information is given about yields and the effects of conditions. Much of the material has been taken from such sources as Organic Syntheses and Organic Reactions." (Library J) Index.

Bookmark 10:88 Ja '51 10w

Chem Eng 58:300 My '51 150w

"Since references are carefully given to the original articles and there are full author and subject indexes, the book will find a place on the desks of most organic chemists for its value as a reference book. Also it should be added to active library collections in organic chemistry." R. R. Hawkins

+ Library J 75:2008 N 15 '50 120w

N Y New Tech Bks 35:85 N '50

G

GABLE, SISTER MARIELLA, ed. Many-colored fleece. 336p $3.50 Sheed

Short stories—Collections 50-10979

"This book is the third in a series of anthologies in which I have collected short stories which ought, for one reason or another, to be of special interest to Catholics." (Introd) Contents: The devil in the desert, by Paul Horgan; Santa Lucia, by Joseph Petracca; Song without words, by Frank O'Connor; Miracle of Tepayac, by John Steinbeck; Baa-baa, black sheep, by S. B. Earley; The knife, by Brendan Gill; The road to the shore, by Michael McLaverty; The reluctant hangman, by Hugh Dickinson; Saturday nocturne, by Richard Sullivan; Home, by Langston Hughes; Trouble with the union, by Dennis Harrington; Barring the weight, by W. B. Ready; Gingerbread, by Betty Wahl; Prefect of discipline, by J. W. Carroll; Prothalamion, by Edward Sheehy; Missis Flinders, by Tess Slesinger; I took thee, Constance, by Ted Le Berthon; The little girls, by Lucile Hasley; A table before me, by Jill O'Nan; Yung Mari Li, by Bryan MacMahon; Unholy living and half dying, by Sean O'Faolain; The jilting of Granny Weatherall, by K. A. Porter; Brother Boniface, by Mary Lavin; The hint of an explanation, by Graham Greene.

"Selected with an eye to varying tastes—and the aim of making them all more discriminating—these stories explore the soul of man as it manifests itself in crowded tenements, in the desert, in school and convent." Riley Hughes

+ Cath World 172:391 F '51 250w

"The stories themselves are mostly by well-established writers. None of these seems to be the individual author's best work but all are worthy to represent the varied gifts displayed. . . During these recent years when there has been so much hand-wringing about the low state of Catholic fiction, Sister Mariella as teacher, anthologist and constructive critic has probably done more than anyone else to show people what decent Catholic fiction looks like and to hint at what it might be." John Cogley

+ Commonweal 53:284 D 22 '50 1350w

Reviewed by Serge Hughes

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p13 Je 3 '51 250w

Springf'd Republican p10D Ap 15 '51 200w

GABRIELSON, IRA NOEL. Wildlife management. 274p il $4.50 Macmillan

799 Wild life, Conservation of Agr51-501

"An effort to appraise present wildlife management activities in terms of both weakness and strength, emphasizing need for balanced programs and periodic checks. A fine plea for positive sportsmanship and real conservation. Well illustrated. Bibliographies." Library J

Booklist 47:216 F 15 '51

Reviewed by R. W. Henderson

Library J 76:413 Mr 1 '51 40w

Wis Lib Bul 47:59 Mr '51

GAEBELEIN, FRANK ELY. Christian education in a democracy; the report of the N.A.E. committee. 305p $4 Oxford

377.1 Religious education 51-10667

"A cogently presented philosophy of education sponsored by the National Association of Evangelicals. Accepting the Protestant principle of separation of church and state, it admits that this secularization of education fails to 'provide children with a spiritual heritage.' The obligation then rests upon Christians to provide first in the home, then in schools from elementary to university, an education founded on 'the Bible with its life-giving revelation of Jesus Christ.'" Library J

"This book is a strange combination of wisdom based on good scholarship and sectarianism based on the fundamentalist point of view. . . This book fails to look at the whole field admittedly because it is a book from, about and for 'evangelicals.'" J. B. Miller

Christian Century 68:1017 S 5 '51 600w

"The conflict with pragmatic philosophy is frankly recognised and the evangelical view ably upheld. Of considerable interest to parents, educators and especially to religious leaders." R. W. Henderson

+ Library J 76:864 My 15 '51 120w

School & Society 73:270 Ap 28 '51 30w

Reviewed by W. L. Sperry

Yale R n s 41:142 autumn '51 300w

GAER, JOSEPH. Lore of the Old Testament. 388p $4.50 Little

296 Folklore, Jewish 51-12446

"This volume contains 300-odd tales and legends, carefully selected from more than five-thousand allegories, fables, and parables of several civilizations, and arranged chronologically as they follow 'the Old Testament to achieve a continuity and unity which would be lacking if the legends were arranged topically.'" Churchman

GAER, JOSEPH—Continued
Booklist 48:78 N 1 '51

"Taken at its lowest common denominator, the book is wonderful entertainment, packed as it is with stories long and short, for the moment or for the hour of reading, and with humor, fairy tale, tragedy, or precept to meet a variety of tastes or moods. Over and above this are the values it offers to those who know and love the Bible itself, and who are enabled to see here the broad base of ancient tradition and legend upon which the Canon rests." Edmund Fuller
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 S 16 '51 350w
Christian Century 68:1513 D 26 '51 80w

"Quite aside from the unmistakable scholarship and literary excellence of this book which have received wide recognition, we recommend its 'human-divine' stories especially at this season which offers such unusual opportunities for better understanding between the followers of Moses and the followers of Jesus."
+ Churchman 165:14 S '51 800w
Cleveland Open Shelf p18 S '51

"An unusually valuable work of scholarship and a most readable book."
+ Kirkus 19:276 Je 1 '51 130w

"Surprising revelations await reader who accepts challenge to open this book, and once having opened it he will continue to read a most interesting and well-written volume. Heartily recommended." O. G. Lawson
+ Library J 76:1214 Ag '51 100w

Reviewed by Chad Walsh
N Y Times p22 D 2 '51 270w
Wis Lib Bul 47:209 S '51

GAGE, JOSEPH H. Beckoning hills [a story of the Italians in California] il. by Floyd Torbert. (Land of the free ser) 233p $2.50 Winston 51-13543

Story of two young Italian brothers who leave their home in Italy in the 1870's and come to America, making their way to California where they find employment in the lumber industry and in the vineyards.

Kirkus 19:352 Jl 15 '51 130w

"Excellent background material, and characterization of the individual Italians and their philosophy and problems is good. Recommended for larger collections for junior and senior high school where the others in this series have been found useful." M. B. Snow
+ — Library J 76:1236 Ag '51 80w

Reviewed by N. B. Baker
N Y Times p18 N 11 '51 140w

"This is a heartening story filled with great warmth."
+ San Francisco Chronicle p10 N 11 '51 320w
+ Sat R of Lit 35:37 Ja 12 '52 110w

"Like others in the series, the book is primarily designed for younger readers, but it can be enjoyed by adults as well. Interesting drawings by Floyd Torbert illustrate the volume." H. H.
+ Springf'd Republican p14C N 4 '51 150w

GALE, ELIZABETH. Julia Valeria; a story of ancient Rome; il. by Bruno Frost. 243p $2.50 Putnam
51-10261

A romantic tale of Rome in the age of Augustus. For junior high school girls.

Booklist 47:333 My 15 '51

"A lively and detailed picture of daily home life in Rome in 19 B.C., with a minimum of political background. Girls of junior high school age and also older girls who are studying Latin will find it good reading." S. M. A.
+ Horn Bk 27:251 Jl '51 70w

"Recommended." L. E. Cathon
+ Library J 76:1236 Ag '51 80w
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p19 My 13 '51 240w

Reviewed by N. B. Baker
N Y Times p20 Je 24 '51 180w

GALLERY, DANIEL VINCENT. Clear the decks! 242p $3.50 Morrow

940.545 World war, 1939-1945—Personal narratives, American. World war, 1939-1945—Naval operations 51-13654

Personal narrative of the author's experiences in naval operations in World war II, principally against the Germans in the Atlantic.

Reviewed by Robert Nicholas
Chicago Sunday Tribune p13 N 4 '51 330w

"As an idea book or a critical appraisal, it seems shallow and inadequate, the observations little more than anecdotes, the opinions smug and loaded with cliches. Unimportant."
— Kirkus 19:477 Ag 15 '51 120w

Reviewed by Alfred Stanford
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 D 2 '51 450w

"Although a qualified naval aviator, Dan Gallery is a sailor of the old school and knows a ship intimately. He writes with a lively sense of humor, a keen knowledge of human nature and a deep-rooted respect for the customs and traditions of the naval service." J. M. Connole
+ N Y Times p14 N 11 '51 380w

"His memoir is a rough, blunt-spoken, and exciting document, enlivened by a ribald, if rather primitive, sense of humor."
+ New Yorker 27:187 N 17 '51 140w
Time 58:112 D 10 '51 600w

GALLION, ARTHUR B., and EISNER, SIMON. Urban pattern; city planning and design; chapter title sketches by Anthony Fialkowski. 446p maps $12 Van Nostrand

711.4 City planning 50-13672

"Against a background of economic and social history, Dean Gallion of the School of Architecture of the University of Southern California has here examined the technical processes by which cities are planned and built, has appraised some of the results, described some of the defects, and posed a few suggestions for reorganization and improvement. The scope of the volume is indicated by the titles of its six divisions: The City of the Past, The Industrial City, The City of Today, The Planning Process, Contemporary Standards, and New Horizons." Am Soc R

"Urban sociologists and ecologists would profit greatly not only by reading this excellent treatise but by adopting in their own studies more of the down-to-earth approach, coupled with scientific imagination, exemplified here. In this type of study one gets the feeling of dealing with reality." M. R. Davie
+ Am Soc R 15:831 D '50 300w

"Given the competence and vision of the authors, the conclusion seems to be that the writing of an all-encompassing book on urbanism cannot be the task of architects and engineers alone. Men of other related disciplines must be involved. Indeed, some help from an experienced writer would tend to eliminate the twenty-two confusing metaphors on a single page." C. S. Ascher
Ann Am Acad 273:215 Ja '51 850w

"The book's weakness as a comprehensive text-book is that the contemporary chapters are largely confined to the United States. . . Apart from a rather tiresome, over-rhetorical style of writing, the only other weakness in the book is its lack of concern for the visual aspect of city planning."
Times [London] Lit Sup p66 F 2 '51 480w
U S Quarterly Bk R 7:77 Mr '51 160w

GALT, THOMAS FRANKLIN. Peter Zenger, fighter for freedom; il. by Ralph Ray. 242p $3 Crowell

B or 92 Zenger, John Peter—Juvenile literature 51-13010

"Biography of the energetic, fun-loving German immigrant whose publication of New York's first newspaper and trial for fearless printing of the truth about corrupt and unjust officials established the power of America's free press." (Library J) For ages 12 to 16.

Booklist 48:52 O 1 '51

Chicago Sunday Tribune p20 N 11 '51 160w

Cleveland Open Shelf p23 N '51

"A well-written, important study of the development of the American concept of liberty and justice."

+ Kirkus 19:298 Je 15 '51 70w

"Factual but never dull. For more serious readers of 11 and up." Virginia Haviland

+ Library J 76:1236 Ag '51 70w

"At a time when freedom of the press is not merely a phrase to intelligent young readers over twelve, this is a most significant publication. It is a well written, exciting biography of America's first real fight for such freedom, which happened in New York in the early eighteenth century." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p2 N 11 '51 170w

"This life of the eighteenth-century journalist is a fine exciting story, with vivid pictures of life in colonial New York." N. B. Baker

+ N Y Times p30 S 9 '51 170w

Wis Lib Bul 47:220 S '51

GANDHI, MOHANDAS KARAMCHAND. Selected writings; selected and introduced by Ronald Duncan. 253p $3 Beacon press

308.1 51-7081

In his Introduction, the editor says: "In making this selection, I have tried to bear three things in mind: firstly, my intention to present material of permanent interest as opposed to comments on day-to-day political matters; also to show the development and to give the essence of his philosophy of satyagraha, and its basis in the religious teaching of the Gita; and thirdly, I have tried to emphasize those ideas which, though they may not seem immediately applicable to Western life, should be of considerable relevance to contemporary thought."

Booklist 48:166 Ja 15 '52

Reviewed by A. C. Ames

Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 D 9 '51 230w

Reviewed by H. N. Brailsford

New Statesman & Nation 41:540 My 12 '51 360w

Reviewed by G. F. Whicher

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p20 N 11 '51 40w

"The reader is often up in the air as to the precise context to which Gandhi's thinking was related. This is all the sadder because Gandhi was a very concrete thinker. Except for this omission, Ronald Duncan has done a good job of selection from the copious writings Gandhi has left us." Dwight MacDonald

+ — N Y Times p3 D 9 '51 550w

Times [London] Lit Sup p343 Je 1 '51 480w

GANNETT, RUTH STILES (MRS PETER KAHN). Dragons of Blueland; il. by Ruth Chrisman Gannett. 87p $2 Random house 51-13557

Another story about Elmer Elevator and his friend, the baby dragon. In this Elmer and Boris (the baby dragon) rescue the latter's family trapped in a cave by a gang of men who want to sell them to zoos.

Booklist 48:108 N 15 '51

Bookmark 11:85 Ja '52

Reviewed by Polly Goodwin

Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 N 11 '51 140w

"An enchanting bit of earnest nonsense. One really encounters Miss Gannett's blend of thrifty story construction and fabulous fantasy in tales of make believe. Again the indispensable illustrations by Ruth Chrisman Gannett."

+ Kirkus 19:614 O 15 '51 120w

"Recommended for fairy-tale enthusiasts." Elizabeth Hodges

+ Library J 76:2013 D 1 '51 90w

"The author knows how to combine these gentle dragons of hers with the most exact realism about Elmer—just what he ate when he got home, what his father read in the paper the next morning, etc. All the books have the same charm, one of matter-of-factness plus a sort of comfortable fantasy. They are particular treasures to read aloud to a family of younger children. You can begin with any of the three, but, as usual the first is still the best." L. S. Bechtel

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 N 11 '51 270w

"The lithographic pencil drawings by Ruth Chrisman Gannett support the nonsense of the text with distinction." Eulalie Steinmetz

+ N Y Times p39 N 11 '51 130w

Reviewed by K. T. Kinkead

New Yorker 27:182 D 1 '51 60w

"The story is highly original and will please every child in the 6 to 9 group who doesn't demand strict reality."

+ San Francisco Chronicle p7 N 11 '51 100w

Sat R of Lit 34:46 D 15 '51 180w

GANNON, DAVID. Father Paul of Graymoor. 372p il $4 Macmillan

B or 92 Paul James Francis, Father, originally Lewis Thomas Wattson 51-5046

Account of the life and work of Father Paul, founder of the Society of Atonement at Graymoor near Garrison, New York. Index.

Cath World 173:399 Ag '51 170w

Reviewed by Theodore Maynard

+ Commonweal 54:221 Je 8 '51 450w

"It is a vivid story of a vivid personality. Both Catholics and Anglicans will find it absorbing."

+ Kirkus 19:273 Je 1 '51 250w

"Recommended." R. P. Breaden

+ Library J 76:959 Je 1 '51 140w

GANT, WILLIAM JOHN. Moffatt Bible concordance; a complete concordance to: The Bible, a new tr. by James Moffatt [Eng title: Concordance of the Bible in the Moffatt translation]. 550p $6 Harper

220.2 Bible. Whole—Concordances 50-12690

"The Moffatt Bible Concordance was first published in England in the summer of 1950. . . The work is described in the subtitle as complete, but it is not complete in the sense that the older Bible concordances by Strong and Young were complete. . . The preface indicates that the book is made up of between 60,000 and 70,000 references. The entries in an 'exhaustive' concordance might number up to 350,000." Subscription Bks Bul

---

Reviewed by R. P. Morris

Library J 75:2150 D 15 '50 20w

"The Moffatt Bible Concordance may be described as complete in the sense that it contains all that is needed to serve the student of Moffatt's translation. . . The Moffatt Bible Concordance is recommended for those librarians which have Moffatt's Bible translation or any of the seventeen volumes of the Moffatt New Testament Commentary, based upon his translation."

+ Subscription Bks Bul 22:33 Ap '51 450w

GANZ, A. W. Berlioz in London; biography and unpublished letters of the great composer. 222p il $3.50 Musiciana unlimited, 14 E. Jackson Blvd, Chicago 4

B or 92 Berlioz, Hector Louis

"The twelve orchestral concerts Berlioz conducted in London between 1848 and 1855, especially the season of the New Philharmonic Society in 1852, established his reputation in England. . . William Ganz played in the orchestra under Berlioz; a diary which he kept during the period supplied important details for his book. Letters from Berlioz to family and friends, some of them unpublished hitherto, correspondence and minutes from the records of the Royal Philharmonic Society, and important critiques by Morris Barnett, Edward Holmes, and J. W. Davison round out the picture." Music Lib Assn Notes

"Mr. Ganz has done a worthy service in bringing out this very readable volume. . . Readability is considerably enhanced by the selections from the letters and literary articles of Berlioz, which give us a fascinating idea of the impressions London made upon the composer." J. C. Haskins

+ Music Lib Assn Notes 8:710 S '51 400w

New Statesman & Nation 41:80 Ja 20 '51 150w

"The author, though professedly only an amateur in music, exhibits scholarship as well as an entertaining style. His treatment has personal flavor, since his father was an English musician more or less associated with Berlioz in the London days." Moses Smith

+ N Y Times p31 S 30 '51 140w

Reviewed by Martin Cooper

Spec 184:708 D 15 '50 500w

Times [London] Lit Sup p753 N 24 '50 400w

GARCILASO DE LA VEGA, EL INCA. Florida of the Inca; a history of the adelantado, Hernando de Soto, governor and captain general of the kingdom of Florida and of other heroic Spanish and Indian cavaliers; tr. and ed. by John Grier Varner and Jeannette Johnson Varner. 655p $7.50 Univ. of Tex.

973.16 Soto, Hernando de. America—Discovery and exploration—Spanish

First complete translation into English of Garcilaso de la Vega's narrative of the expedition of Hernando de Soto, describing the exploits of the Conquistador and his followers. The book was first published, in Spanish, in Lisbon in 1605. Index.

Reviewed by John Randolph

Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 Je 17 '51 300w

Kirkus 19:228 Ap 15 '51 100w

"The chapters dealing with the death of de Soto and the final burial of his remains midst the waters of the Mississippi to prevent their violation by hostile Indians are fascinating as well as representative of the character of the entire work. It has been admirably translated with notes by Professor and Mrs. Varner. The volume is also a praiseworthy example of bookmaking." Joseph Borome

+ Library J 76:774 My 1 '51 110w

"It is a distinguished and beautiful book, greatly translated. Mr. and Mrs. Varner have superbly caught the flavor of Garcilaso's Spanish, carrying over the courtly simplicity of the narrative." Hubert Herring

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 My 6 '51 700w

"The translation by Mr. and Mrs. Varner could hardly be more readable, even while it reflects much learning in the materials, airs and conventions of the Spanish Golden Age. The introductory matter, notes and index are all excellent." Paul Horgan

+ N Y Times p7 Ap 15 '51 900w

"The book is an unqualified, absolute 'must' for the Latin American historian, as valuable and necessary as a Prescott or a Bernal Diaz. The bibliophile should have a copy as well, to grace his shelves." R. H. D.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p28 N 4 '51 180w

"A truly remarkable work of scholarship, in which much learning on the part of the Varners is worn lightly—the first book of a university press which has set itself a high mark for its debut, both from the point of view of literary merit and bookmaking. It is also fitting that this work should have been done at a university with one of the most magnificent collections of Latin-American documents and books in existence. Mr. Varner is a member of the faculty there, and his wife is with the Austin Public Library." Herschel Brickell

+ Sat R of Lit 34:18 Je 16 '51 250w

GARD, ROBERT EDWARD. Midnight: rodeo champion; il. by C. W. Anderson. 159p $2.50 Duell

51-9605

"Story of Sandy MacPherson growing up on a Canadian ranch near Calgary. Here, he raises Midnight, a horse that could be ridden only by him and, at that, only because the horse wanted it so. Sandy and Midnight finally take the rodeo trail, and Midnight proves the better of the two." Library J

Booklist 47:385 Jl 1 '51

"This is a wistful, warmhearted fictionized life story of Midnight, the famous bucking bronco of all time, and Sandy, a young Canadian who loved horses and riding more than anything else on earth." Al West

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 Je 3 '51 140w

+ Kirkus 19:185 Ap 1 '51 100w

"Good story, fine characters, and a wonderful horse. Recommended for all children's rooms and young people's collections." M. D. Read

+ Library J 76:715 Ap 15 '51 70w

"The style is crisp and authentic, the rodeo lore fascinating, the characterization excellent, and the illustrations by an expert." M. C. S.

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 My 13 '51 100w

Wis Lib Bul 47:194 Jl '51

GARDEN, JOHN, pseud. See Fletcher, A. L. V.

GARDEN, MARY, and BIANCOLLI, LOUIS. Mary Garden's story. 302p il $3.75; readers' ed pa $1 Simon & Schuster

B or 92 Musicians—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc. 51-10603

The life story of Mary Garden as she told it to her collaborator, Louis Biancolli in a series of talks. Appeared serially in Woman's home companion with the title Fabulous Mary Garden. Many photographs. Index.

Booklist 47:326 My 15 '51

Bookmark 10:228 Jl '51 30w

"Extremely entertaining, if not particularly edifying reading." B. J. Thompson

Cath World 173:315 Jl '51 300w

"Here, at last, are Mary Garden's long awaited memoirs, a book crowded with glamor, filled with exciting and amusing anecdotes and fascinating glimpses of some of the most vital people of our time. It is a book for all who love music, but above all it is Chicago's book, for Mary Garden was, thru 20 years, the very personification of the artistic life of our city, and they were the years of our glory." Edward Wagenknecht

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 Ap 29 '51 750w

"Written with disarming frankness, her book will be eagerly read by all who saw her unforgettable performances, nor can it fail to interest those to whom she is but a colorful legend." C. B. Burnett

+ Christian Science Monitor p15 My 10 '51 500w

"Her story is an intensely interesting and vibrant one." W. P. Sears

+ Churchman 165:15 My 15 '51 90w

"The memoir of the singer or prima donna, more so even than that of the actor, is a discouraging genre. . . An earlier effort of Miss Garden's own having come to grief, Mr. Biancolli was called in to take down her words and put them into shape, the publishers insisting that she 'tell all' and put in plenty about her celebrated 'romances.' This means that the history her book records is a jumbled blur; that dates and facts come helter-skelter if at all; that letters and documents are missing; that musical values become mostly a matter of gush, ecstasy, critical confusion, and 'uninhibited' self-promotion; and that the famed 'romances' . . . become the banal things such affairs inevitably turn out to be in books of this kind." M. D. Zabel

— Nation 172:475 My 19 '51 750w

"In her seventies, Miss Garden is quite as vivid a person as she ever was, and the story she tells here turns out to be one of the most charming musical autobiographies in the entire literature." Alfred Frankenstein

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 Ap 22 '51 600w

"'Mary Garden's Story' is written exactly as Mary Garden talks. It couldn't be better." Leo Lerman

+ N Y Times p7 Ap 22 '51 900w

"Happily for the illusions of her public, who have stubbornly refused to believe in her austere personal simplicity, the prima donna's definition of emptiness seems to be a superbly elastic one, and her autobiography is crammed not only with anecdotes about the famous and ardent musical gentlemen who invaded her privacy but with commentaries on less noted but equally persistent ones. . . All this has been rendered with admirable faithfulness, down to the last exclamation point, by Mr. Biancolli."

+ New Yorker 27:119 Ap 28 '51 170w

Reviewed by Carl Van Vechten

Sat R of Lit 34:19 My 26 '51 1150w

"That Garden should be a good writer as well as a great singing actress is of course asking too much, but we do wish that with the aid of a collaborator the book might have had more substance and the writing been a little more comparable to her stage art. But for that one will still have to turn to the opening chapters of James Huneker's 'Bedouins' or the chapter on Garden in Carl Van Vechten's book 'Interpreters.'" Victor Prahl

Springf'd Republican p12C Ap 22 '51 650w

Wis Lib Bul 47:187 Jl '51

GARDNER, ERLE STANLEY. Case of the angry mourner. 241p $2.50 Morrow

51-13232

Detective story.

Bookmark 11:60 D '51

"The story has an unusually well concocted circumstantial murder case. The solution is little more than a weakly supported incidental." Drexel Drake

+ — Chicago Sunday Tribune p18 N 18 '51 90w

Kirkus 19:457 Ag 15 '51 70w

"This is excellent Gardner." James Sandoe

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p22 O 28 '51 90w

"Least Suspected Person and a gratifying long courtroom scene such as only Gardner can write." Anthony Boucher

+ N Y Times p30 O 28 '51 90w

"Mr. Gardner's plot is up to standard and his characters seem rather better defined than usual."

+ New Yorker 27:144 O 27 '51 110w

Reviewed by L. G. Offord

San Francisco Chronicle p28 N 4 '51 80w

"Courtroom stuff, present in generous dose, is full of zip and gavel-pounding." Sergeant Cuff

+ Sat R of Lit 34:76 N 17 '51 40w

Springf'd Republican p14C N 4 '51 140w

GARDNER, ERLE STANLEY. Case of the fiery fingers. 277p $2.50 Morrow

51-10604

Detective story.

Booklist 47:382 Jl 1 '51

Bookmark 10:208 Je '51

Kirkus 19:166 Mr 15 '51 70w

"It's economical—there's no time wasted on either writing or characterization. But as pure puzzle, it's supreme."

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 Je 10 '51 130w

"I'm happy to say that 'The Case of the Fiery Fingers,' if not the best, is decidedly one of the good Perry Mason cases. There have been more interesting characters and more complex plots in some others; but this one offers some absorbing data on fluorescent powder and on the admissibility of deathbed statements." Anthony Boucher

+ — N Y Times p18 My 6 '51 160w

"The publishers claim that this is Mr. Gardner's best; it's certainly his most intricate."

New Yorker 27:124 My 26 '51 160w

Reviewed by L. G. Offord

San Francisco Chronicle p21 My 20 '51 80w

Springf'd Republican p20A My 13 '51 190w

GARLAND, GEORGE, pseud. See Roark, G.

GARNSEY, MORRIS EUGENE. America's new frontier; the mountain West. 314p $3.50 Knopf

978 West—Industries and resources. West—Economic conditions 50-7765

For descriptive note see Annual for 1950.

"Professor Garnsey's book on the Mountain West in many ways is the best regional study yet made. In the first place, it reflects a dozen or more years of living in the Mountain West, teaching at the University of Colorado, thinking and writing about the mountain-high plains economy, and participating in various progressive movements in that region. Second, the book definitely has a thesis and a program for action broad and deep enough to meet the development problems and challenges of the Mountain West, which means the book is not economics narrowly confined. Third, there is much careful statistical and analytical work behind the various generalizations presented, but the author considerately refrains from employing figures to overwhelm the reader. Fourth, the emphasis is upon a developing and balanced region within a growing national economy; eastern Peter is not to be robbed, at least unduly, for the benefit of western Paul. Finally, Garnsey writes with an easy, direct style and the book is beautifully designed and printed." J. L. Fisher

+ Am Econ R 41:246 Mr '51 1350w

"As a nation we have not yet satisfactorily examined the extent to which respective regions of this country should develop along autonomous lines or instead, as specialized areas in an overall complementary system. Before we embark upon some of the expensive projects that are being proposed for the Rocky Mountain West, or for other regions, this is a problem which must be squarely faced. To this much-needed evaluation the contributions of this book will be significant." E. A. Engelbert

+ Am Pol Sci R 45:239 Mr '51 550w

"The book is well written, in parts even entertainingly written, though in places it is unduly repetitious. Since it is not large, only the most elementary facts and analyses are presented for each of the topics treated, of which there is a disconcertingly wide variety. Because of this comprehensive coverage, much of the material will be already known to many readers, but even the specialist will be able to gain new insight into some aspects of the Mountain West. For geographers generally, however, the book's greatest interest is technical. . . The greatest weakness of the book

GARNSEY, M. E.—Continued
lies in the attempt to substantiate strongly the subtitle—'A New Frontier.' Although the potentialities of the region are fairly stated, little or no mention is made of the enormously difficult problems, both technical and economic, that must be overcome before more than a small part of the potential can be realized." Wesley Calef
+ — Geog R 41:353 Ap '51 390w

GARRISON, ROGER H. Creative approach to writing [trade ed with title: Guide to creative writing]. 221p $2.25; trade ed $2.95 Holt
808 Authorship 51-10159

"Mr. Garrison has taken the premise that 'creative writing is writing produced by a creative mind.' Carrying out this thesis, he has constructed in this book a number of methods by which the reader can develop the kind of creative thinking that produces fine writing. Thus, Mr. Garrison cuts below the usual level of writing instruction and presents a series of problems in creative thinking. If the reader works through these problems, he will then have in his possession some subject-matter of interest." N Y Times

Booklist 47:307 My 1 '51

"Good handbook for class study or individual aid."
+ Kirkus 19:96 F 1 '51 100w

Reviewed by Shirley Barker
Library J 76:324 F 15 '51 80w

Reviewed by Gorham Munson
N Y Times p18 Ap 1 '51 400w

"What, you say, another textbook on writing? Yes, but hold on: this one's different. It wins respect by reason of its own readability. It inspires confidence by performance." Charles Lee
+ Sat R of Lit 34:46 Jl 14 '51 250w

GARST, MRS DORIS (SHANNON). Rusty at Ram's Horn ranch; il. by Raymond Creekmore. 191p $2.50 Abingdon-Cokesbury 51-12150

Twelve-year-old Rusty, running away from a rascally uncle, finds a refuge and friends, and finally a home, at a sheep-ranch in Colorado. For grades 4-7.

Booklist 48:52 O 1 '51

Chicago Sunday Tribune p10 D 16 '51 120w

"Good characterization and lively writing." J. D. Lindquist and S. M. Andrews
+ Horn Bk 27:328 S '51 60w

Kirkus 19:434 Ag 15 '51 110w

"Recommended." Sonja Wennerblad
+ Library J 76:1573 O 1 '51 50w

GARTH, DAVID. Fire on the wind. 378p $3.50 Putnam 51-3332

Historical novel of life in the Great Lakes region in the period following the Civil war. Wayne Preston turned down a good offer from the Union Pacific, after the war, because he wanted to help his father in his dream of the development of Michigan's timber lands. His struggle was complicated by dishonest men, and at least one dishonest woman, but his dream finally came true thru the agency of another woman, a beautiful part-Indian girl.

Booklist 47:347 Je 1 '51

Bookmark 10:232 Jl '51 40w

"Not top drawer but readable." Riley Hughes
Cath World 173:474 S '51 250w

"Stop right here if you are a person who demands deep moral or social significance in your reading; but if you like a story packed full of thrills and exciting action against a background of bygone years you'll find 'Fire on the Wind' as satisfying a yarn as this year is likely to bring us." Kelsey Guilfoil
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 My 20 '51 450w

"The setting is magnificent. . . The plot has an old-fashioned pull. It grows in threat like a day of thunder and when the storm breaks, Mr. Garth's powers are equal to that overwhelming melee. . . 'Fire on the Wind' unfortunately fails in its characters, most of whom are from the stock pile and insufficiently explored." T. M. Longstreth
+ — Christian Science Monitor p11 My 24 '51 500w

Cleveland Open Shelf p20 S '51

Kirkus 19:213 Ap 15 '51 90w

"'Fire on the Wind' contains a wealth of log and lumber lore but it hews to the story line—and the story is a good one." Lisle Bell
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 Je 3 '51 360w

"There is action in plenty, and suspense, and all the other elements employed in what is called a fast-paced story. Yet these elements are so completely the preoccupation of the author that he has missed altogether what is called psycho-emotional awareness. Everything from wardrobe to jargon bears the mark of theatricality." L. S. Doughty
+ — N Y Times p17 Je 3 '51 130w

"In scores of passages this unflagging novel carries the feel of the upper Lakes country. And it pictures the country with vividness and variety—the bustling posts and the busy landings, the gloom of the woods and the gleam of the water. But for want of more authentic people than its costumed figures the novel leaves only a Technicolor impression, graphic and ephemeral." Walter Havighurst
+ — Sat R of Lit 34:19 Jl 7 '51 600w

GARVE, ANDREW, pseud. By-line for murder [Eng title: Press of suspects]. 213p $2.50 Harper 51-11706

Detective story.

Kirkus 19:282 Je 1 '51 70w

"A smooth and entertaining picture of life on a London newspaper, and a good suspense story."
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Ag 12 '51 150w

"The lively intelligence of the writing and the satirically heightened realism of the London newspaper background make this an item not to be missed by any literate reader." Anthony Boucher
+ N Y Times p20 Ag 19 '51 90w

"Mr. Garve hasn't provided much in the way of suspense, but his action is lively and his picture of the unearthly leisureliness of English journalism has its own charm."
New Yorker 27:119 S 8 '51 120w

"This inverted mystery succeeds because it's also an interesting novel." L. G. Offord
+ San Francisco Chronicle p18 Ag 12 '51 70w

"Good job—read by all means." Kathleen Sproul
+ Sat R of Lit 34:29 Ag 25 '51 40w

Wis Lib Bul 47:215 S '51

GARVE, ANDREW, pseud. No tears for Hilda. 215p $2.50 Harper 51-429

Mystery story.

Booklist 47:255 Mr 15 '51

Bookmark 10:110 F '51 10w

Kirkus 18:666 N 1 '50 90w

"Mr. Garve has done a splendid portrait of a murderee, which is as breathlessly exciting as the best of the thrillers."
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 F 4 '51 170w

"Admirers of such writers as Anthony Berkeley, Shelley Smith and Nicholas Blake shouldn't miss a chapter henceforth in the career of Mr. Garve, who's moving in on them fast." A. B.
+ N Y Times p27 F 18 '51 170w

"This is another specimen of a patient and intelligent man's attempt to explain a murder by assembling and analyzing a series of events that happened far back in the past, and all in all it is an interesting and successful one."
+ New Yorker 26:87 Ja 13 '51 170w

"The suspense in this unemphatic, straightforwardly-written novel is wonderfully sustained." L. G. Offord
+ San Francisco Chronicle p11 Ja 14 '51 100w

"A honey."
+ Sat R of Lit 34:34 Ja 20 '51 40w

Wis Lib Bul 47:24 Ja '51

GASKIN, CATHERINE. All else is folly. 242p $3 Harper

51-11767

"Tells the history of an Anglo-American war-time marriage which failed." Times [London] Lit Sup

Reviewed by Edmund Fuller
Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 O 7 '51 430w

Kirkus 19:304 Je 15 '51 130w

" 'All Else is Folly' brings Catherine Gaskin, a twenty-one-year-old English writer who has already had considerable success in England and Australia, to American readers. Her book is an intelligent love story, and should prove a happy introduction."
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p16 S 16 '51 280w

"Miss Gaskin winds her way skillfully through the intricacies she has imposed on her basically simple plot, and her characters, although suffering at times from lack of motivation, are drawn on the whole with sympathetic insight." Lily van Ameringen
+ — N Y Times p23 S 9 '51 120w

Reviewed by Pamela Taylor
Sat R of Lit 34:34 S 22 '51 270w

"The heroine is such a supremely tiresome creature, so earnest and fatuous an egoist, that all Miss Gaskin's skill as a story-teller, which is not inconsiderable, cannot succeed in arousing much interest." Barbara Worsley-Gough
Spec 185:424 Mr 30 '51 180w

Reviewed by S. M. Neal
Springf'd Republican p10B S 30 '51 120w

"Miss Gaskin is a perceptive writer and is particularly successful in conveying the irritation which England arouses in a certain type of American and the powerful attraction it exerts on others. But the story does not quite carry conviction because the rigid time-frame of seven days in which she has confined herself, although it heightens the tension, makes it hard for the reader to understand why things went wrong in the first instance."
Times [London] Lit Sup p145 Mr 9 '51 130w

Wis Lib Bul 47:215 S '51

GASSER, HENRY MARTIN. Casein painting; methods and demonstrations; ed. by Arthur L. Guptill. 67p il $6 Watson-Guptill

751.4 Casein. Painting 50-12144

"A person who knows painting technique and terminology should find these step-by-step instructions and illustrations a valuable introduction to the medium of casein painting. A beginner will need more elementary help. The techniques of use in water color, gouache, gesso, and underpainting for oils are described." (Booklist) No index.

Booklist 47:112 N 15 '50

Cleveland Open Shelf p2 Ja '51

GASTER, THEODOR HERZL. Purim and Hanukkah in custom and tradition; feast of lots [and] feast of lights. 134p il $2.50 Schuman

296 Festivals—Jews 50-10632

"This little volume purports to sketch the 'true history and development' of two of the most enchanting festivals of the Jewish people —Purim and Hanukkah—and at the same time 'to describe the manner of their observance throughout the ages.' " (N Y Herald Tribune Bk R) Bibliography. Index.

"This seems almost too scholarly in substance and approach for anything but a specialized market. The general public among Jewish readers will not like to have their pet traditions regarding Purim exploded nor the story of Esther retold in proper form, nor the glaring incongruities as to the accepted sources of the legends pointed out. Scholars, however, will find this revealing and convincing."
+ — Kirkus 18:579 S 15 '50 120w

"An informative, interesting addition to the 'Great Religious Festivals' series. Recommended." Anne Whitmore
+ Library J 75:1654 O 1 '50 130w

"Within its self-imposed limits, this is a very fine book—informative, well written, beautifully printed, and attractively illustrated." Joshua Kunitz
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p9 D 24 '50 420w

"Teachers in public and Sunday schools, ministers, librarians and group workers will find this book in the Great Religious Festival series of all creeds very helpful and interesting." I. B.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p23 D 3 '50 120w

GATES, DORIS. Little Vic; il. by Kate Seredy. 160p $2.50 Viking

Horses—Legends and stories 51-13558

Story of a young colored boy, son of a jockey, who falls in love with the colt, Little Vic, the day he is born. From master to master, Pony Rivers follows Little Vic; proves in a solitary race against death that Little Vic is a great horse, and finally rides him to victory in the Santa Anita Handicap.

Booklist 48:108 N 15 '51

+ Kirkus 19:443 Ag 15 '51 160w

"A memorable story." Alice Fedder
+ Library J 76:1642 O 15 '51 60w

"This story of a colored boy's devotion to a horse is told with deep sympathy and keen understanding." Averil Randall
+ Library J 76:2013 D 1 '51 70w

"This is a moving, exciting story, beautifully illustrated by Kate Seredy."
+ Sat R of Lit 34:66 N 10 '51 250w

GAUSS, CHRISTIAN FREDERICK, ed. Teaching of religion in American higher education, by Christian Gauss [and others]. 158p $2.75 Ronald

377.1 Religious education 51-11129

Essays on the teaching of religion in American colleges and universities. Contents: Religion and higher education in America, by Christian Gauss; The meaning of liberal education, by Robert Ulich; The present religious situation in higher education, by H. B. Jefferson; The teaching of religion in higher education, by K. W. Morgan; Responsibility not immunity, by J. H. Miller. Index.

Booklist 47:396 Jl 15 '51

School & Society 73:351 Je 2 '51 40w

Reviewed by W. L. Sperry
Yale R n s 41:142 autumn '51 300w

GAYER, ARTHUR DAVID, and others, eds. Basic economics; a book of readings. 624p $2.95 Prentice-Hall

330.8 Economics 51-9656

"A collection of 116 readings of varying length arranged in 14 chapters covering a broad field of economics. Authors quoted range from the classical economists to the moderns of varying schools. Included are such items as the Taft Hartley Act, the Rerum Novarum, and the price system in a P.O.W. camp. An interesting collection, intended for use with a college course." Library J

GAYER, A. D.—Continued
"All the material is clear, and in its context all should be found interesting. . . On balance, the items chosen have been well-handled, and the book should be fun to teach. It must, also, have been fun to compile." G. P. Adams
+ Am Econ R 41:686 S '51 550w

Reviewed by J. E. Cross
Library J 76:869 My 15 '51 60w

GAYNOR, FRANK, ed. New military and naval dictionary. 295p maps $6 Philosophical lib.
355.03 U.S.—Armed services—Dictionaries 51-13233

"Covers terminology, technical phrases, and slang of all branches of the U.S. armed forces. Definitions are concise; no explanation is given of origin of terms. Organization charts and district maps appended." Booklist

Am Pol Sci R 45:1213 D '51 10w
Booklist 48:94 N 15 '51

"The word 'new' in the title of this book of 7,000 definitions means that the terms comprised are almost exclusively those current in this new day. For such terms, the book seems reasonably complete and quite authoritative. If you hunt such words as 'sloop,' or 'grape' or 'Minié,' however, you search in vain." L. T. Heron
+ — Chicago Sunday Tribune p8 O 28 '51 50w

"Seems essential in most reference collections of any scope and depth." R. E. Kingery
+ Library J 76:2003 D 1 '51 70w

GAZDANOV, GAITO. Buddha's return; tr. from the Russian by Nicholas Wreden. 224p $3 Dutton
51-12227

"A 23-year-old student in Paris gives a beggar a ten-franc note; is captured and released by Kafkaesque secret police; has erotic visions with all the force of reality; is accused of murdering the beggar, now rich (a clue is a statuette of Buddha, like Hammett's Maltese Falcon); seems to live more lives than one; finally inherits and enjoys a fortune." Library J

Kirkus 19:330 Jl 1 '51 120w

"With more popular appeal than the Specter, this can be read as a novel of murder and suspense, in spite of its ingrained metaphysics." E. F. Walbridge
Library J 76:1220 Ag '51 100w

"Both the essence of the tale and Mr. Wreden's English rendering have a lean macabre quality that holds the reader in suspense. The combination of actual murder and demons of the mind make this little book an original contribution to a shelf of tales of mystery and horror." Margaret Evans
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 S 9 '51 290w

"Some of the characters, types out of the exile's underworld of Paris, are drawn with a sure hand. Unfortunately, most of the dialogue is written in an outré and hardly believable style. This novel lacks the well-knit plotting which distinguished Gazdanov's far more successful 'thriller'—The Specter of Alexander Wolf [Book Review Digest, 1950]. However, the translator, Nicholas Wreden, does as well by Buddha as he did by the Specter." Rene Fueloep-Miller
N Y Times p21 S 16 '51 320w

"There is something dated about this milieu of Russian exiles in Paris, of beautiful Kasbah-trained prostitutes, and so on; and that fact somehow cheapens the novel, and harms the efforts of its author—who, when all is said, is a thoughtful writer." Robert Pick
+ — Sat R of Lit 34:40 O 6 '51 260w
Springf'd Republican p10D O 7 '51 70w

GEBHARD, MRS ANNA LAURA (MUNRO). Parsonage doorway; il. by Janet Smalley. 144p $1.75 Abingdon-Cokesbury
253 Clergy. Country church 50-10109

Further reminiscences of the author of Rural Parish [Book Review Digest 1948]. The family includes four children in this book, and many of the anecdotes have to do with Charlene, Duane, Dennis, and Gwendolyn.

Booklist 47:153 D 15 '50

"Everything the Gebhards do is an adventure in loving and learning and doing. Whether it is financing a bicycle or making a lilac bush do for a Christmas tree, they meet the situation with ingenuity, humor, and an appreciation of true values. Mrs. Gebhard writes with such a deft hand for narration, description, and characterization that the reader himself is transported across the parsonage threshold." F. D. Heron
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 O 22 '50 360w
Kirkus 18:696 D 1 '50 80w

"Mrs. Gebhard has written a kind book and essentially a happy book. Sometimes she does hint that some church members have little love for the parsonage youngsters and that committees are apt to override the parson's wife on questions of what color to paint the woodwork or what height to make the sink. Still, her own life in the parsonage has been a rich one and she has learned to smile at whatever happens." E. M. T.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p31 D 10 '50 170w

GEIKIE-COBB, IVO. See Cobb, I. G.

GEMANT, ANDREW. Frictional phenomena. 497p $12 Chemical pub. co.
531.4 Friction 50-2470

"Designed more as a reference work for advanced engineering students than as a textbook for a course, this volume is one of the few which bring together and summarize the scanty quantitative knowledge of friction. . . The bulk of the book is concerned with internal frictional effects, due to viscosity, in gases and liquids, and with plastic flow, thermal, and viscous effects internal to solids." U S Quarterly Bkl

"The generally theoretical approach will make this book interesting to advanced students and researchers in such fields as fluid flow, mechanical metallurgy, and general engineering physics." E. R. Booser
Chem & Eng N 29:1055 Mr 12 '51 240w
N Y New Tech Bks 35:56 Jl '50
U S Quarterly Bkl 6:504 D '50 160w

GEORGE, ALFRED LEWIS. Your weight and your life; a scientific guide to weight reduction and control. 272p $2.95 Norton
616.39 Corpulence. Diet 51-10960

"A discussion of obesity and its causes, repeatedly warning of the dangers inherent in being overweight. Explains in detail the relation between metabolism, calories, and energy; disposes of the twin myths that glandular disturbances are a common cause of corpulence, or that drugs, massage or exercise can control it; establishes the principle that obesity is due to overeating; draws attention to the importance of psychological factors; gives instructions and basic diets for reducing while maintaining a proper nutritional balance." Booklist

Booklist 47:358 Je 15 '51

"A very commendable feature of the menus is a lunch substitute for each day which conforms with the type of food at the drugstore or snack bar. Dr. George's listing of the caloric content of common foods is more complete than that given in most diet reduction books. Trade-name products are mentioned, which is helpful to the layman. . . The book is readable and worth while." F. I. Scoular

+ J Home Econ 43:806 D '51 250w

Kirkus 19:175 Mr 15 '51 150w

"This [is a] common sense, readable—and life-saving for the overweight—book." F. G. Slaughter
+ N Y Times p18 Je 24 '51 270w

San Francisco Chronicle p14 S 16 '51 90w

Springf'd Republican p11D Je 10 '51 170w

GERAHTY, DIGBY GEORGE (ROBERT STANDISH, pseud) Storm centre. 261p $3 Macmillan 51-13134

The scene is a British colonial station, somewhere in Malaya. Diana Maynard, the beautiful sister of one of the young officers comes on a visit. In one short year her calm becomes the centre of a full-sized storm, with death and disaster spreading thru the station.

"Absolute corn." V. P. Hass
— Chicago Sunday Tribune p14 O 14 '51 310w

Kirkus 19:366 Jl 15 '51 170w

"Mr. Standish writes smoothly, with penetration and pleasant satire and his story moves swiftly to its fateful end. You are likely to read this book at a sitting. He is more successful in picturing the malicious deviltry that Diana aroused in conventionally good women than in making wholly credible, on afterthought, the impeccable figures of Jules and Diana. . . 'Storm Centre' is a thriller in a civilized sense of the word, and the 'magic' whereby Mr. Standish whisks his readers out of everyday reality is one of the prerogatives and gifts of the storyteller." Mary Ross
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 O 14 '51 500w

"As always, Robert Standish writes smoothly against a well-drawn background of the East. His tightly packed plot is peppered with sensationalism which at times verges on absurdity. 'Storm Centre' is entertaining, although not to be taken too seriously." Nancie Matthews
N Y Times p32 O 28 '51 170w

GERARD, JAMES WATSON. My first eighty-three years in America. 372p $3.50 Doubleday
B or 92 51-1103

"Aided by 'a faithfully kept diary, as well as a long memory,' these reminiscences touch on the ancestry, experiences and observations of the distinguished statesman who 'ranged widely over Europe and North America as schoolboy, lawyer, judge, ambassador, traveler, and Man of Affairs.'" (Bookmark) No index.

Booklist 47:252 Mr 15 '51

Bookmark 10:130 Mr '51 50w

Reviewed by Paul Kiniery
Cath World 173:316 Jl '51 230w

"To young and old, to the highly placed and to those not quite so lucky, the book is thoroly interesting. The author is an observer of his times and a critic of the men and women who make the wheels go round." H. B. Swope
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 Mr 18 '51 550w

Reviewed by Henry Sowerby
Christian Science Monitor p11 Mr 7 '51 500w

Current Hist 20:230 Ap '51 150w

Foreign Affairs 29:671 Jl '51 30w

Kirkus 19:18 Ja 1 '51 160w

"It was a rich life, in more than one sense, which James Gerard has lived. His account of it has an engaging quality which is not easy to pin down—perhaps 'old-fashioned' conveys it best. In days when the new fashions of life and letters produce little satisfaction, the temptation to turn backward is very great. Mr. Gerard makes a pleasant companion for a little journey into the past." H. W. Baehr
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 F 25 '51 800w

"To do it justice, it is touched here and there with a pawky humor. . . At 83 Mr. Gerard is, in general, mellow, but a few of his hatreds still survive. . . In fact this book, like the life it records, is a long link with a world now one with Nineveh and Tyre. Its judgment may not be too sound, nor its wisdom overwhelming, but it is an honest book that will add somewhat to any fair-minded reader's knowledge of our times." G. W. Johnson
+ — N Y Times p7 F 18 '51 700w

San Francisco Chronicle p24 Ap 1 '51 600w

"Though this volume is filled with many errors of fact, it is probably ungracious to criticize a man who takes the trouble to write his memoirs at eighty-three. However, Mr. Gerard has taken care of himself in such a generous way that much can be subtracted without doing him an injustice." A. S. Link
Sat R of Lit 34:12 Mr 10 '51 900w

Springf'd Republican p8D Mr 11 '51 650w

GERNSHEIM, HELMUT. Masterpieces of Victorian photography; with a foreword by C. H. Gibbs-Smith. 107p 72pl $6 Phaidon
770.9 Photographs. Photography—History
[51-14156]

"During the past summer a small exhibition in the Victoria and Albert Museum brought home for the first time to many the achievements of Victorian photographers. . . Helmut Gernsheim, who organised that exhibition from the collection he built up in [England] during only six years of research, has now chosen seventy-two of the photographs then shown [for this book]." (Spec) "In his introduction Mr. C. H. Gibbs-Smith, of the Victoria and Albert Museum, pays a well-deserved tribute to Mr. Gernsheim as a pioneer who opens up a new field for serious study by his endeavour to strike a proper critical balance between the historic development of Victorian photography and its artistic achievement." (Times [London] Lit Sup)

"Gernsheim has introduced his collection with a somewhat unrelieved essay in Teutonic-academic style, which is yet full of excellent sense about photography. There is a difference between early photographs and old photographs. Gernsheim is ready to assign value to certain of the former and to leave the latter to the dusty curiosity they may engender: to the aroma of the attic shoebox, the rainy afternoon." Walter Evans
N Y Times p7 D 9 '51 320w

"A delightful and scholarly book which anyone can enjoy and students of photography will cherish. The choice of pictures is excellent. The plates are well printed on a fine art paper—essential for a true photographic quality. Wide margins set off the pictures, and there are admirable notes on the photographers and their ways of working. In addition, Mr. Gernsheim has written an introduction which, apart from one or two rather wild expressions, provides the most complete and careful examination of the relation between photography and painting I have ever read." Tom Hopkinson
+ Spec 187:578 N 2 '51 650w

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p690 N 2 '51 1500w

GERSON, NOEL B. Mohawk ladder. 276p $3 Doubleday
51-10433

Historical novel about a small band of American soldiers who fought under the Duke of Marlborough against Louis XIV of France. The hero is Lieutenant Joshua Peattie, late of Pennsylvania; the heroine a beautiful French spy.

"It is a satisfying novel, especially for those whose tastes run to flashing sabres, torture

GERSON, N. B.—Continued
dungeons and high-level intrigue." Richard Blakesley

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 Ap 29 '51 230w

Kirkus 19:134 Mr 1 '51 150w

"The narrative may not be history, but it is certainly a lusty package of entertainment."

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p7 Jl 8 '51 250w

Reviewed by John Cournos

N Y Times p16 My 27 '51 200w

"Mr. Gerson's kind is the tale with action, plenty of it, a fast-moving plot with enough intricacies to baffle us agreeably, a sympathetic hero, a villianous villain, and somewhat perfunctory characterization." Evelyn Eaton

+ Sat R of Lit 34:30 Jl 7 '51 250w

Springf'd Republican p5D Jl 15 '51 120w

GHIRARDI, ALFRED A., and JOHNSON, J. RICHARD. Radio and television receiver circuitry and operation. 669p il $6 Rinehart

621.384 Radio receivers. Television receivers (51-10605)

"An introduction written primarily for practical students who are preparing for or are already engaged in radio and television installation and servicing. Also, there is some appeal to radio amateurs. For an introductory book the treatment is unusually full. The chief aim of the authors was apparently to impart a basic understanding of the principles of circuit elements and typical complete circuits. Full circuit diagrams of specific makes and models of receivers are, of course, not included. The first-named author has written the widely used Radio Physics Course and other books." N Y New Tech Bks

Reviewed by R. R. Hawkins

Library J 76:1032 Je 15 '51 70w

N Y New Tech Bks 36:42 My '51

GHOSE, SUDHINDRA NATHA. Cradle of the clouds; with il. by Shrimati Arnakali E. Carlile. 304p $3.50 Macmillan

915.4 India—Social life and customs [51-3402]

"In his first book published in this country, 'And Gazelles Leaping,' [Book Review Digest 1949] Sudhin N. Ghose gave a picture of his childhood on the Hooghly River near Calcutta. . . 'Cradle of the Clouds' continues the same autobiography up to adolescence." N Y Times

Booklist 48:123 D 1 '51

"This could have been a naturally dramatic story. . .but the drama is hidden by the weight of digressions and attendant tales. For all its beauty this book could have done with a sharp cutting, a less lazy—because not to eliminate is lazy—and loose weaving; as it is I fear that many people will not have patience for it." Rumer Godden

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 D 16 '51 650w

"The engaging blend of naïveté, mock gravity and bubbling good humor that Ghose began to fashion in the earlier book, grows here to fuller stature, a style all his own, charmingly pliable and yet controlled." J. G. Hitrec

+ N Y Times p25 N 11 '51 800w

"His readers will look forward to Dr. Ghose's third instalment of autobiography. He has the unusual gift of writing in perfect English of what is perfect India."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p232 Ap 13 '51 700w

GIBB, GEORGE SWEET. Saco-Lowell shops; textile machinery building in New England, 1813-1949. 835p il $7.50 Harvard univ. press

677.215 Saco-Lowell shops. Textile machinery 50-10184

"It was new textile machinery such as the power loom that ushered in rapid industrial change in eighteenth-century England, and it was the corporate ancestors of the Saco-Lowell Shops that successfully began the manufacture of power looms in New England in the early nineteenth century, with comparable results there. Through the history of these oldest firms, Dr. Gibb traces the rise of this seminal industry." (U S Quarterly Bkl) Index.

Reviewed by J. B. Hedges

+ Am Hist R 56:599 Ap '51 220w

"A thorough, well-documented study. . . It is a worthy addition to textile collections as well as collections on economics and business." R. R. Hawkins

+ Library J 76:332 F 15 '51 130w

"Another of those Harvard studies in business history which are the envy of the English economic historian. . . There is much that is worth the attention of the Lancashire textile reader, notably the comments on the 'unparalleled technical stagnation of the 1890-1920 period.'"

+ Manchester Guardian p4 Mr 16 '51 330w

Reviewed by I. D. Neu

New Eng Q 24:258 Je '51 600w

U S Quarterly Bkl 6:449 D '50 260w

GIBBINGS, ROBERT. Sweet Cork of thee; with engravings by the author. 235p $4.50 Dutton

914.195 Cork (county) Ireland 51-13982

"This continuation of Lovely Is the Lee [Book Review Digest 1945] is a veritable treasure trove covering all manner of subjects from light fantasies to the dry bones of history gathered by Mr. Gibbings in his wanderings on foot and in travelling van over a good bit of the south-west of Ireland. Nothing escapes the artist's eye (nor ear for that matter) for he does justice to the color and song of the bird as well as the good talk to be heard in pubs and along the countryside." Library J

Booklist 48:142 D 15 '51

"Filled with legends and nature lore and enhanced by exquisite engravings, this is a beautifully written description of leisurely wanderings through County Cork."

+ Bookmark 11:57 D '51 30w

Reviewed by J. M. Flynn

Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 N 25 '51 400w

Reviewed by Eric Forbes-Boyd

Christian Science Monitor p9 Ag 8 '51 200w

Kirkus 19:475 Ag 15 '51 90w

"As enchanting as anything that has come from his pen thus far." M. H. Zipprich

+ Library J 76:1559 O 1 '51 60w

Manchester Guardian p4 Je 26 '51 40w

Reviewed by Arthur Marshall

New Statesman & Nation 42:210 Ag 25 '51 90w

"You really couldn't find a nicer book, and the illustrations would have your heart scalded for a sight of the ould sod." Thomas Sugrue

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 N 11 '51 800w

"Gibbings is the artist writing. He has a good eye and ear, a relaxed sense of humor, a quiet relish for life. . . He has the true temper of the essayist: life for him is exploration." Horace Reynolds

+ N Y Times p40 N 18 '51 340w

"Mr. Gibbings' style is still strongly marked by an authentic-sounding Gaelic lilt, but he seems to have been in something of a rush when it came to assembling his book. The engravings with which he has illustrated it, however, were obviously done with care and affection."

New Yorker 27:175 D 8 '51 120w

"This book is as lush and as green as Ireland. The illustrations are delightful and the writing is easy. This book is in line with those other travel books by the same author, about the rivers Lee and Wye and the sweet Thames. Travel books are generally either painfully dull or terribly exciting, but this book falls gently into another stream." W. B. R.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p23 N 25 '51 250w
Spec 187:344 S 14 '51 220w

"The author's love of his native land is everywhere apparent, and he brings the knowledge gained through wide travel to bear on all he sees and hears."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p487 Ag 3 '51 320w

GIBBS, HENRY. Twilight in South Africa. 288p il $4.50 Philosphical lib.
916.8 South Africa [50-11771]
For descriptive note see Annual for 1950.

Reviewed by W. P. Hall
Am Hist R 56:530 Ap '51 850w
Reviewed by S. W. Reed
Am Soc R 16:128 F '51 290w
Reviewed by L. A. Mills
Ann Am Acad 275:212 My '51 400w

"Mr. Gibbs's hard-hitting political and social report tells an important story which the press has rather neglected."
Atlantic 187:86 My '51 80w

"If this book leaves the reader deeply disturbed, that is exactly what the author intended. In the course of a well documented study, Mr. Gibbs (who is an Englishman) carefully exposes the inner turmoil of the South African Union and powerfully indicts the Nationalist government of Dr. Malan. The book thus complements Alan Paton's magnificent novel Cry, the Beloved Country, expanding the political background and sketching in sociological detail which the novel could only suggest." Iain Wilson
+ Christian Century 68:430 Ap '51 650w
Foreign Affairs 29:333 Ja '51 20w
Reviewed by R. W. Logan
Nation 172:233 Mr 10 '51 850w

"[The author] went more closely than any other outside observer into South Africa's industrial world, and he discusses in detail the alarming acceleration of soil erosion. Perhaps the most striking passages are those on the danger offered by members of the present government to the whole democratic fabric of the South African state. Yet Mr. Gibbs tends to fall into the error of other overseas reporters by overemphasizing the responsibility of the present Nationalist Government for the difficulties of the nation. It is only by fully understanding the problems raised in this most significant of plural societies that the political pattern can be truly appreciated." John Hatch
New Repub 124:18 Ap 23 '51 1100w

"Although many of the problems he takes up have been dealt with before—and, on occasion, a bit more literately—by visiting journalists, Mr. Gibbs has included some fresh and extremely interesting material gathered from interviews with the leaders of the Nationalist Party and from researches into the activities of the Broederbond, an underground organization with aims strikingly analogous to those of the Herrenvolk."
New Yorker 27:110 F 17 '51 200w
Reviewed by D. C. Gordon
Social Studies 42:370 D '51 310w
Springf'd Republican p10C Ja 21 '51 420w

GIBBS, SIR PHILIP HAMILTON. Thine enemy. 316p $3 McBride
50-10833

The novel begins in Königsberg as it is about to fall under the Russian advance. A little group of refugees manage to reach Berlin. "We are then shown various aspects of life under Allied Military Government, the misunderstandings and privations caused by nonfraternization in the American zone and the degrading effects on conquerors and conquered of occupied Berlin. The story ends with the election of the present German Government." (Times [London] Lit Sup)

Reviewed by Pat Patten
Chicago Sunday Tribune p10 Ja 28 '51 160w
Cleveland Open Shelf p8 Mr '51

"Despite some effective description of misery in Germany, the novel cannot survive its stereotyped characters and situations." Alan Abelson
— + N Y Times p26 Ja 7 '51 150w
Reviewed by E. J. Fitzgerald
Sat R of Lit 34:36 F 17 '51 330w
Reviewed by Robert Kee
Spec 184:224 Ag 18 '50 310w

"Sir Philip Gibbs made a tour of Germany a year ago to get first-hand material. He spoke with all kinds of people, he has the journalist's wide knowledge of current affairs, and he has done his best to represent all points of view. Nearly all the dialogue in his book—and most of it is dialogue—attempts to summarize a historical background, a philosophy or a political argument. This means that many profound subjects receive rather cursory treatment, but there is no doubt of Sir Philip's earnestness and of his Christian determination to be kind and understanding to a defeated enemy."
Times [London] Lit Sup p529 Ag 25 '50 340w

GIBBS, WOLCOTT. Season in the sun; a comedy. 168p il $2.50 Random house 812 51-9254

A play which takes place on the front porch of a summer bungalow on Fire Island, New York. It opened on Broadway in September, 1950.

Booklist 47:216 F 15 '51
Reviewed by Milton Crane
Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 My 6 '51 280w
Reviewed by George Freedley
Library J 76:329 F 15 '51 50w
Reviewed by W. P. Eaton
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p14 F 18 '51 500w

"The sophisticated will thoroughly enjoy reading Mr. Gibbs' play but because of the author's choice of supporting characters—a jocund sporting house madam and two ineffectual but obvious homosexuals—this play will probably suffer limited stage experience outside of metropolitan centers." F. J.
San Francisco Chronicle p24 Ap 1 '51 280w
Wis Lib Bul 47:162 Je '51

GIBSON, EDMUND A. Basic seamanship and navigation. 414p $6 McGraw 656 Navigation. Naval art and science
51-11350

"This welcome book is for rank beginners, but it is fairly comprehensive nevertheless. It covers most of the work of the practical seaman whether he is a member of the navy or the merchant marine. In the first part there are chapters on such topics as deck seamanship, cargo handling, and ship handling. The second part is devoted to navigation, and it includes a chapter on loran and other electronic aids to navigation. There is a long glossary that will be useful in library reference work." Library J

Booklist 48:25 S 15 '51
Reviewed by R. R. Hawkins
+ Library J 76:1231 Ag '51 120w

GIBSON, FLORENCE ELIZABETH. Attitudes of the New York Irish toward state and national affairs, 1848-1892. 480p $5.75 Columbia univ. press
325.2415 Irish in New York (city). U.S.—Politics and government—19th century. New York (state)—Politics and government
51-9425

"The Irish immigrants who settled in large numbers in New York because of economic difficulties and political wrongs in their native land have always been blamed for much of the character of New York politics, and have often deserved criticism. Dr. Gibson in a careful detailed study of the most significant period of Irish influence on New York politics, 1848-1892, has documented the grievances other Americans have had and has shown with a combination of a historian's detachment and a human being's calm acerbity many of the reasons for resentment on both sides." Am Hist R

GIBSON, F. E.—Continued

"Dr. Gibson has written her study with a true historian's perspective. She has confined it to the manifestation of political attitudes. The analysis of these attitudes, she writes, must be left for future study. It is to be hoped that she is engaged in such a useful study to supplement this excellent contribution to American history." M. R. Werner
+ Am Hist R 56:916 Jl '51 750w

"The documentation of this volume, meticulous though it may be, was somewhat overwhelming. Dr. Gibson has been a diligent and thorough researcher, but she has lacked the ability to edit her material. . . The excessive substantiations and many digressions, while attesting to the scholarship of Dr. Gibson, denoted a certain lack of discrimination. Notwithstanding these procedural shortcomings, the writer has made an impressive contribution to the literature on one of the most powerful minority groups in the nation today." G. E. Janosik
Ann Am Acad 276:142 Jl '51 370w

"A highly significant case study in American politics. . . Dr. Gibson has not written a popular book. Her extensive use of sources and her determination to tell a factual story with a minimum of interpretation will discourage all readers save specialists in the history of immigration and politics. The latter will be everlastingly in her debt, however, as many such meticulous studies as hers must be written before the final story of the immigrants' role in American politics can be assessed."
+ U S Quarterly Bk R 7:165 Je '51 200w

GIBSON, JOHN MENDINGHALL. Physician to the world; the life of General William C. Gorgas. 315p il $4.50 Duke univ. press

B or 92 Gorgas, William Crawford 50-10881

A biography of General William Gorgas, "the man who made the building of the Panama Canal possible." Bibliography. Index.

"The story of the life and accomplishments of General Gorgas has been told before and told well. There is always, however, a freshness to the retelling of a good story, especially when it can be adorned with previously unknown details and can be told with the warmth of feeling and sincere admiration revealed by Mr. Gibson. A former newspaperman and now director of the Division of Public Health Education of the Alabama State Health Department, Mr. Gibson takes obvious pride in this retelling of the deeds of one of the great figures of public health and one of the worthiest sons of Alabama." G. W. Anderson
+ Am Hist R 56:921 Jl '51 600w

Reviewed by J. A. Tobey
+ Am J Pub Health 41:593 My '51 320w

"As a biography Physician to the World has some limitations that should be mentioned. There are no footnotes of identification and explanation, and one wishes frequently for them. A number of the quotations are too long. The author might have paraphrased parts of the extensive excerpts and have woven them into his narrative more carefully. . . The definitive biography of Dr. Gorgas has not yet been written and should be a real labor of love for some enthusiastic scholar." G. C. Osborn
Ann Am Acad 275:188 My '51 450w

Bookmark 10:154 Ap '51 20w

"Mr. Gibson writes clearly and concisely of Gorgas's professional achievements and of the political and other obstacles he had to surmount. He also gives an engaging picture of a gentle and kindly doctor, some of whose patients insisted it was worth while to have had yellow fever to have had him care for them. An extensive bibliography and index add to the value of the book." Mary Ross
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p21 Mr 18 '51 370w

"Mr. Gibson has captured the personality as well as the accomplishments of this great physician in a well-written biography." F. G. Slaughter
+ N Y Times p7 D 31 '50 650w

Reviewed by Myron Weiss
Sat R of Lit 34:42 Je 16 '51 400w

"The book is sound, authentic, and includes some records of events and correspondence not formerly available. Before malaria has completely left the United States, there should be millions of grateful readers of this biography." Haven Emerson
+ Survey 87:142 Mr '51 450w

GIDAL, SONIA (MRS TIM GIDAL). Meier Shfeya; a children's village in Israel; phot. by Tim Gidal. [42p] $1.25 Behrman

362.7 Children in Palestine 51-623

Pictures and text in the form of a letter to America, describe life in a children's village in Palestine.

Booklist 47:276 Ap 1 '51

"Recommended for 8-12-year-olds." H. M. Brogan
+ Library J 76:339 F 15 '51 60w

"The style will appeal to those of about eight to eleven; the beautiful pictures will appeal to all who love photography." L. S. Bechtel
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 F 25 '51 100w

GIDE, ANDRE PAUL GUILLAUME. The counterfeiters; with Journal of The counterfeiters; the novel translated from the French by Dorothy Bussy; the Journal translated from the French and annotated by Justin O'Brien. 432p $3.50 Knopf

51-2384

A reprinting of Gide's "first and last and only real novel" which appeared in French in 1925, in English in 1927. Combined with this are the notes Gide kept while working on the novel, now translated into English for the first time.

Booklist 47:365 Je 15 '51

Reviewed by Paul Engle
Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 Je 24 '51 490w

Kirkus 19:85 F 1 '51 110w

Reviewed by G. F. Whicher
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p29 My 13 '51 90w

"'Journal of "The Counterfeiters"' remains candid in its self-centered discussion of technicalities. It will enlighten novelists and critics. It will be healthy reading for the layman who does not seek peace of mind and mere entertainment in literature." Henri Peyre
+ N Y Times p27 Mr 18 '51 700w

"'The Counterfeiters' is a novel that must be reread and weighed with care as an achievement which did not attempt to please the readers of the day or to court facile approval. Gide, like Stendhal whose fascinating presence is often felt in these pages, repeatedly asserted that his aim was to swim against the current of his time and to win, if at all, in the Court of Appeal." Henri Peyre
+ Sat R of Lit 34:12 Mr 31 '51 1350w

GIDE, ANDRE PAUL GUILLAUME. Journals; v4, 1939-1949; tr. from the French, with an introd. and notes, by Justin O'Brien. 341p $6 Knopf

B or 92 Authors—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc.

"Fourth and final volume of the Journals, covering the years 1939-1949, Gide's seventieth to eightieth year. Not limited in interests to those years since there is many a backward glance to earlier thoughts and doings. . . This volume as the earlier ones, is translated with introduction and notes by Justin O'Brien. It has a glossary of persons mentioned and an index." Library J

Booklist 47:309 My 1 '51

"Of the four volumes this one probably will be of more interest to the general reader than the others, not only because of what it says but because in the days of France's downfall and the shadow of a world's gloom, Andre Gide found a refuge for his spirit and steeled himself against the insincerity of describing anything that did not immediately concern him." Fanny Butcher

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 Ap 22 '51 650w

Reviewed by Serge Hughes
Commonweal 54:147 My 18 '51 500w

Reviewed by R. E. Kingery
Library J 76:595 Ap 1 '51 130w

Manchester Guardian p4 Jl 13 '51 60w

Reviewed by Richard Chase
Nation 173:36 Jl 14 '51 1000w

Reviewed by V. S. Pritchett
New Statesman & Nation 41:711 Je 23 '51 1000w

"The 'Journals,' covering in their four volumes a period of sixty years, offer a magnificent picture of our era. They likewise furnish a record, unrivaled in its completeness, of the life and evolution of a contemporary artist. But, in addition, they do something even more valuable. Gide's 'Journals' set forth, in terms comprehensible to every one, the central adventure of our time—the search, in a world of collapsing values and dissolving certainties, for an impregnable faith." Lloyd Morris

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p3 Ap 29 '51 1150w

Reviewed by G. F. Whicher
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p29 My 13 '50 90w (Review of 4 vols)

"The entries after 1944 are few and tired—Gide is in his late seventies, still alert, but conscious of approaching death. However, as a diary of the war years the volume is very interesting for the light it sheds on Gide as a political man. . . Here, in politics, is the consequence of trying to transvalue the accepted moral values of our society. . . Most important of all: here, we must conclude, is the result of so grossly exaggerating the importance of art. Far more than Gide was anything else—a novelist, a moralist, a Frenchman—he was a man of culture. It is an excellent thing to be, but unfortunately Gide's notion of culture was rather too simple." Diana Trilling

+ — N Y Times p4 Ap 15 '51 1400w

New Yorker 27:121 Ap 28 '51 280w

Reviewed by William Rose
San Francisco Chronicle p21 My 13 '51 850w

Reviewed by V. M. Ames
Sat R of Lit 34:15 Ap 28 '51 800w

Times [London] Lit Sup p482 Ag 3 '51 1100w

Reviewed by Henri Peyre
Yale R n s 40:756 summer '51 1050w

GIES, JOSEPH. Matter of morals. 245p $3 Harper
51-1375

A midwestern state university faced with a problem in academic freedom is the scene; the time 1938. A campus-held rally is addressed by a labor leader who is anathema to a university backer. With this as starter the novel traces the course of the downfall of several people who dare to defy the college authorities.

Kirkus 18:736 D 15 '50 140w

"Joseph Gies here gives an almost photographic picture of ordinary people and unfortunately common issues. Any one who has spent even a brief time on a college campus will call to mind persons like those whose big and little concerns are faithfully recorded in this novel. The book is intelligent, if somewhat depressing, reading." Mary Ross

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 Mr 4 '51 450w

Reviewed by Gordon Cotler
N Y Times p17 Je 24 '51 130w

"In the telling, Mr. Gies has retrieved his locale from much of its banality, its even rhythms and generally placid demeanor. Structurally, too, the book is well knitted. And it is written in a fluid style, with a directness of approach to his material that sustains interest." C. E. Miller

+ San Francisco Chronicle p14 Mr 11 '51 650w

GILBERT, ANTHONY, pseud. See Malleson, L. B.

GILBERT, FELIX, ed. Hitler directs his war; the secret records of his daily military conferences; annotated by [the editor] from the manuscript in the University of Pennsylvania library. 187p $3.25 Oxford

940.534 World war, 1939-1945—Germany. Hitler, Adolf

For descriptive note see Annual for 1950.

"Entertaining reading."

+ Am Pol Sci R 45:270 Mr '51 50w

Reviewed by Gilbert Twiss
Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 Ja 7 '51 440w

"A valuable collection of the records of Hitler's military conferences between 1942 and 1945. . . They are excellently selected and arranged to give a vivid picture of Hitler in his dealings with his generals and to give in Hitler's own words his theories, military and political."

+ Current Hist 20:103 F '51 70w

Foreign Affairs 29:493 Ap '51 40w

"When the time comes to paint a portrait of Hitler with detachment, this book will be essential, though tantalising. It is unique of its kind." A. J. P. T.

Manchester Guardian p3 Ap 24 '51 400w

"The responsibility of the editor was far greater than in the average job of documentary publication. And Professor Gilbert has admirably carried out this assignment. Besides providing a lucid and illuminating introduction, he has filled out the fragmentary record at his disposal by drawing on a wide variety of war histories and memoirs. With such devices as a brief dramatis personae at the beginning of the book, an explanatory paragraph or two setting the stage for each conference, and a series of running comments in the footnotes, he has made it easy for the reader to follow the thread of the discussion." H. S. Hughes

+ Nation 172:111 F 3 '51 1150w

"What emerges is a blueprint of the stripped-down ego of a man whose ignorance and whose vulgarity of thought and speech —common enough failings—could not make him even remotely human. Of all the biographies and studies of Adolf Hitler, this book will probably prove of most service in giving one an idea of what he was like."

+ New Yorker 26:104 F 10 '51 280w

Reviewed by Telford Taylor
Sat R of Lit 34:16 F 24 '51 750w

"Immensely interesting. No one who is concerned with the conduct of the war can ignore it. There are many points which stand out more clearly through the appraisal of Hitler and his generals."

+ Spec 185:726 Je 1 '51 850w

Times [London] Lit Sup p226 Ap 13 '51 850w

U S Quarterly Bk R 7:53 Mr '51 200w

Reviewed by H. A. DeWeerd
Yale R n s 40:543 spring '51 850w

GILBRETH, FRANK BUNKER. I'm a lucky guy. 239p $3 Crowell
B or 92 51-12912

The co-author of Cheaper by the Dozen presents a record of eighteen years of his own life. He begins with his departure for college, describes his college years, his stint in the Navy

GILBRETH, F. B.—Continued
in World war II, his newspaper work, and his marriage. The chronicle ends with 1947.

Booklist 47:393; 48:120 Jl 15 '51; D 1 '51
+ Cath World 174:321 Ja '52 80w
Reviewed by Marge Lyon
Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 S 16 '51 400w

"Biography as modest as this is rare. The alert will not be fooled but will note the unstated but continuously manifested instances of character in this son of Father and Mother Gilbreth." T. M. Longstreth
+ Christian Science Monitor p7 S 20 '51 360w
Cleveland Open Shelf p24 N '51
Kirkus 19:373 Jl 15 '51 240w

"Uproariously funny, a masterpiece of understatement, shot through with native wisdom in the most unexpected places, this tale of one of the famous dozen Gilbreth children provides refreshing reading for teen agers and adults. Highly recommended." H. R. Forbes
+ Library J 76:1328 S 1 '51 80w
Reviewed by Lisle Bell
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 S 16 '51 350w
Reviewed by Henry Meyler
N Y Times p27 S 16 '51 290w
Reviewed by J. H. Jackson
San Francisco Chronicle p18 O 2 '51 750w

"In the main the narrative is straightforward self-history, most of it agreeably matter-of-fact, and none of it tremendously exciting. What heartiness and zest emerge is largely in the salt-water experiences. Mr. Gilbreth obviously had a good time in the Navy, or at least he has a good time remembering it, and he lets the reader share his enjoyment. He should have had more to say about it." J. T. Winterich
+ Sat R of Lit 34:49 S 22 '51 240w
Wis Lib Bul 47:250 N '51

GILDER, ROSAMOND, ed. Theatre arts anthology. See Theatre arts (magazine)

GILES, HENRY EARL. Harbin's ridge. 233p $2.75 Houghton
51-5287

A novel of life in the Kentucky hills. It is the story of two men, friends of many years' standing, who finally come to the parting of the ways because of the treachery of one of them.

Booklist 48:2; 11 S 1 '51

"This simply told narrative is yet another in a mounting stack of books about the Kentucky hill people, already superbly done by Jesse Stuart, James Still, and Elizabeth Madox Roberts. Mr. Giles, whose first novel this is, is not quite in the class of his older contemporaries, but he writes a good solid novel on its own merits." August Derleth
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p13 S 30 '51 340w
Reviewed by T. M. Longstreth
Christian Science Monitor p13 S 27 '51 450w

"Sustained in its intensity, soft in sympathy, this is a first novel of particular character and conviction."
+ Kirkus 19:334 Jl 1 '51 200w

"A well-written novel. . . Recommended for adults." Clarence Gorchels
+ Library J 76:1221 Ag '51 70w

"The structure of the novel is as tight and compact as a well built mountain cabin. The telling is simple and straightforward, but cadenced and richly poetic. The dangers of an affected simplicity are inherent in such a style but, except for what may be a momentary awkwardness at the outset, in the convention that this is Jeff Harbin dictating a sort of last will and testament, the style rings true." Coleman Rosenberger
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 S 23 '51 330w
Reviewed by Frances Gaither
N Y Times p53 D 2 '51 180w

"Mr. Giles writes with an extraordinary ability to get over to the reader the sounds and sights and smells, even, of the ridge country. His own warm feeling—and there is something of the poet in him, too—comes through every page of this book." J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p18 S 6 '51 750w

"Mr. Giles is an author with a very great talent for words—similes, metaphors, pretty sounding phrases abound on almost every page. Moderately used they strengthen and enrich his prose, but at times too many descriptive phrases, too great an effort to use good old hill words create a note of artificiality instead of reality so that we lose the illusion of the tale's being told by an old hill farmer." H. S. Arnow
+ — Sat R of Lit 34:40 O 6 '51 420w
Springf'd Republican p14C O 28 '51 150w
Wis Lib Bul 47:254 N '51

GILES, MRS JANICE HOLT. Miss Willie. 268p $3 Westminster press
51-9085

A sequel to The Enduring Hills (Book Review Digest 1950). Miss Willie, the new school teacher from Texas, tried to reform the people of Piney Ridge, when she first came to Kentucky. They were too used to their own traditional behavior to respond until Miss Willie married a Piney Ridge man. By that time Miss Willie had discovered what was wrong with her outlook.

Booklist 47:205 F 1 '51
Bookmark 10:133 Mr '51 70w
Kirkus 18:705 D 1 '50 120w

"Recommended as an absorbing and readable character study." R. P. Tubby
+ Library J 76:39 Ja 1 '51 80w

"Mrs. Giles writes with humor and a poet's sense of the rhythm of 'earth turning around the sun, of corn greening and then ripening, of dayspring and nightfall, and of a woman's time come in the night.' "
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p15 F 11 '51 180w

"The book is frankly sentimental. So are mountain ballads. It has as much flavor as woodsmoke and is as sturdy and clean as a freshly washed 'coverlid' patched on a cabin porch." C. N. Govan
+ Sat R of Lit 34:39 F 17 '51 300w
Wis Lib Bul 47:24 Ja '51

GILES, RICHARD Y. Credit for the millions; the story of credit unions. 208p il $2.50 Harper
334.2 Credit unions 51-9097

"An account of the people and forces behind the rise and growth of the clubs or cooperatives known as credit unions whose purpose is service rather than profit." (Bookmark) Index.

"A simple, straightforward, eminently readable account of the development of credit unions. . . The book, although it contains a good index, is entirely without documentation. Particularly in the case of direct quotations from published books and articles, the conventions might well have been observed and the usefulness of the book thus increased." H. C. Jennings
+ — Ann Am Acad 275:196 My '51 450w
Booklist 47:199 F 1 '51

"A dependable, lively account."
+ Bookmark 10:106 F '51 30w

"Mr. Giles writes well and is realistic in his appraisal of the movement's achievements, failings and possibilities."
+ Commonweal 53:406 Ja 26 '51 250w

"Well documented account by an intelligent advocate." D. K. Oko
+ Library J 76:603 Ap 1 '51 80w

"It is a handbook, history, biography and human interest story in one readable volume." C. M.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p21 F 25 '51 170w
Social Forces 29:467 My '51 170w
Springf'd Republican p30A Mr 18 '51 90w

Reviewed by L. N. Robinson
Survey 87:243 My '51 650w
U S Quarterly Bk R 7:154 Je '51 170w
Wis Lib Bul 47:57 Mr '51

GILLEN, PAUL BATES. Distribution of occupations as a city yardstick. 144p pa $2.75 King's Crown press

323.352 Cities and towns—U.S. Occupations 51-1851

"This study takes Thorndike's G-score as a point of departure and aims at the development of a simple measure to reflect accurately the 'goodness' of a city. The score is a sum of the deviations of the occupational distribution of a city (using a modification of the census classification for this purpose) from all cities of its size group category, times a weighting based on average income for each occupational group." Am Soc R

"A major weakness of the volume is its absence of ecological sophistication. Of the sixty low-scoring cities, for example, fifty-four are in the south. A measure which reflects regional values so clearly does not constitute an adequate yardstick. Furthermore many of the cities, scoring both high and low on the scale are not complete cities; that is, they are parts of metropolitan areas. . . Another weakness is the fact that size of city is so rigorously controlled as to yield no possibility of examining the effect of the variable except within very narrow limits." P. K. Hatt
Am Soc R 16:430 Je '51 370w
School & Society 73:158 Mr 10 '51 20w

GILLESPIE, CECIL MERLE. Accounting systems; procedures and methods. 811p il $8.65; to schools $6.50 Prentice-Hall

657 Accounting 51-3916

"Shows how to install new and revise present accounting systems in order to achieve the most efficient operation at the lowest cost. Strictly functional in approach, the exhaustive reference work presents information on how to make a survey, basic plans of summarizing, internal check and accounting control, accounting for small businesses, methods, systems and procedures, reports and manuals, and punched card tabulating. Specially designed forms and standard forms for all types of procedures, which can be adopted or used as models, are shown." Management R

Reviewed by J. E. Cross
Library J 76:1129 Jl '51 60w

"A recommended guide to the business man who must improve, change, or install any phase of an accounting system."
+ Management R 40:385 Je '51 70w
School & Society 73:366 Je 9 '51 20w

GILLETT, HORACE WADSWORTH. Behavior of engineering metals. 395p il $6.50 Wiley

620.18 Metals. Metals—Testing 51-2027

"Written to be a practical aid in selecting the right metal or alloy for a particular engineering use. Because of the great number of metals and alloys now available, and the many special treatments to improve the performance of particular metals for particular uses, the selection of the right metal frequently requires the cooperation of several specialists, each speaking his own language. This book interprets metallurgical knowledge for those who have not specialized in the field." Chem & Eng N

"An outstanding characteristic of this author was his ability to assemble great masses of pertinent information on a given subject, to digest and condense this information to usable volume, and, finally, to express his results clearly and definitely. Dr. Gillett never wrote a poor or a mediocre manuscript; the present book, completed shortly before his death, again demonstrates his unusual ability to compile and interpret technical information." J. G. Thompson
+ Chem & Eng N 29:2090 My 21 '51 220w

"The book is an excellent complement to standard handbooks because it contains much essential information that is not presented in them. Chapters are well supplemented with reference lists; an appendix describes sources of more detailed information." R. R. Hawkins
+ Library J 76:875 My 15 '51 80w
N Y New Tech Bks 36:26 Mr '51
+ U S Quarterly Bk R 7:322 S '51 160w

GILLISPIE, CHARLES COULSTON. Genesis and geology; a study in the relations of scientific thought, natural theology, and social opinion in Great Britain, 1790-1850. 315p $4.50 Harvard univ. press

213 Religion and science 51-10449

"Describes the background of social and theological ideas and the progress of scientific researches which, between them, produced the religious difficulties that afflicted the development of science in early industrial England." (Publisher's note) Index.

Reviewed by C. L. Willard
Churchman 165:17 O 1 '51 170w

"Excellent book on the early nineteenth-century geologists." Noel Annan
+ Manchester Guardian p4 Jl 24 '51 280w

"It is a learned and scholarly but at the same time readable and even witty account of a fascinating chapter in the history of British scientific thought and natural theology. If only the controversies recalled had been conducted with the same acumen and objectivity, much needless offence would have been avoided."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p470 Jl 27 '51 700w

"Thorough and excellent study."
+ U S Quarterly Bk R 7:271 S '51 230w

GILMAN, LAWRENCE. Orchestral music; an armchair guide; ed. by Edward Cushing. 484p $6 Oxford

785 Orchestral music 51-11733

Collection of Lawrence Gilman's program notes. "Mr. Cushing has assembled the material alphabetically by composers. Each section begins with a short biography of the composer and then continues with historical and musical comments on his major works. Mr. Gilman's writing is replete with allusions drawn from literature, painting, philosophy, or mystical thought. He was, as many will recall, music critic of the New York Herald-Tribune from 1923 until his passing in 1939. His notes were written for the National Symphony Orchestra, the Philharmonic-Symphony Orchestra of New York, and the Philadelphia Orchestra." (Christian Science Monitor)

Booklist 48:6 S 1 '51

Reviewed by Edward Barry
Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 S 9 '51 200w

"Lawrence Gilman's program notes, collected and edited by Mr. Cushing, are rare examples of the annotator's art. They combine erudition and scholarship with command of language, literary style, and ingratiating informality. Mr. Gilman's analysis of a symphony is not a dry-as-dust musicological treatise." Harold Rogers
+ Christian Science Monitor p7 Ag 9 '51 420w

Reviewed by K. G. Roy
Christian Science Monitor p15 D 13 '51 70w

GILMAN, LAWRENCE—Continued

Kirkus 19:418 Ag 1 '51 100w

"Gilman was always able to write freshly and vibrantly, but it was especially in his discussions of programmatic music and music with text that he excelled. They offered his well-furnished mind an opportunity to range in fields, especially the literary and artistic, as familiar to him as was that of music itself." C. K. Miller

+ Library J 76:1426 S 15 '51 150w

"Excellently printed, this book contains enough beauty to delight all lovers of music—and of inspired writing." D. G. Mason

+ Sat R of Lit 34:63 O 27 '51 190w

GILMAN, WILLIAM HENRY. Melville's early life and Redburn. 378p $5 N.Y. univ. press

B or 92 Melville, Herman 51-12126

"A study of Herman Melville's early years, particularly the obscure ones between his birth, in 1819, and 1841. Its main object is to show that Melville's imaginative fourth novel, 'Redburn,' the tale of a boy's first sea voyage, which most critics and biographers have taken as straight personal history, is nothing of the sort." (New Yorker) Index.

Reviewed by Edward Wagenknecht
Chicago Sunday Tribune p2 O 21 '51 280w

Kirkus 19:315 Je 15 '51 180w

"Recommended for any library interested in American literature." R. S. Taylor

+ Library J 76:1214 Ag '51 100w

"Gilman, who is Assistant Professor of English at the University of Rochester, proves that the intelligent student can take a restricted subject and make an important study from it. Who could have dreamt, ten years ago, that a study like this could produce so much evidence and such a readable book? Its subject is restricted and its appeal will be limited, but its scholarly soundness and critical shrewdness contrast strikingly with the shallow persiflage of some recent Melville criticism." H. P. Vincent

+ N Y Times p1 N 11 '51 350w

"To take 'Redburn' as literal biography, the author contends, is not only to miss the whole point of an interesting, if immature, novel but to deny Melville his artistic birthright. Because of the lack of complete records, Mr. Gilman has naturally been unable to clear the matter up entirely, but he has done a thorough and highly competent piece of work with what was available to him."

+ New Yorker 27:135 S 15 '51 120w

"The reader who knows 'Moby-Dick' and rereads it every now and then, as many do, I know, will find here new keys to that tremendous book, too. Which is a final excellent reason for calling your attention to Professor Gilman's sharp corrective study of Melville's youth." J. H. Jackson

+ San Francisco Chronicle p12 S 3 '51 700w

Reviewed by J. M. Cohen
Spec 187:794 D 7 '51 500w

GILPATRIC, GUY, and RAINE, NORMAN REILLY. Glencannon meets Tugboat Annie. 214p $2.50 Harper

51-9255

The perennially thirsty Mr Glencannon, engineer of the freighter Inchcliffe castle, and Tugboat Annie, of the Deep-Sea Towing and Salvage company, meet at last, and the excitement is rare and confused.

Booklist 47:236 Mr 1 '51

Reviewed by Al Chase
Chicago Sunday Tribune p9 F 25 '51 100w

Kirkus 18:683 N 15 '50 120w

"A successful blend."

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p15 F 11 '51 230w

"The plot is less important than the salty insults traded on fog-wet decks, the Gargantuan appetites of all concerned, and the amazing resiliency of the two principals. . . One turns the last page with just one regret—the fact that Mr. Gilpatric's untimely death last year has already cut short a collaboration that promised great things." James MacBride

+ N Y Times p16 F 18 '51 270w

"Annie and Glencannon in collaboration cook up enough nonsense, action, broad humor, and just plain confusion to satisfy completely the most exigent admirers of their separate shenanigans in the past. Which should be either a tip-off or warning, depending on how you look at Glencannon or Tugboat Annie, or both." J. H. Jackson

+ San Francisco Chronicle p18 F 2 '51 350w

"There are some funny cracks in the book and even now and then a funny scene. But in total effect Mr. Gilpatric and Mr. Raine have not written a comedy; they have merely compiled a joke book." Vance Bourjaily

Sat R of Lit 34:32 F 24 '51 270w

Wis Lib Bul 47:62 Mr '51

GILSON, ETIENNE HENRY. Héloise and Abélard [tr. by L. S. Shook]. 209p $3 Regnery

B or 92 Abélard, Pierre. Héloise

"A new interpretation of the famous love affair and a detailed documentary refutation of arguments raised against the authenticity of the Abelard-Heloise correspondence. M. Gilson proposes in his conclusion that the case be considered more carefully by those who would too cleanly separate the spirit of the Middle Ages from that of the Renaissance." Commonweal

"Mr. Gilson brings to the tragic and moving account not only immense resources of scholarship, but real urbanity of attitude as well. . . He adds to the natively romantic quality of the narrative itself a solid, but not dull, weight of historical fact and informed speculation." Paul Engle

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 Jl 1 '51 250w

"That the ablest Roman Catholic historian of medieval philosophy, a member of the French Academy, would retell the familiar story of Abélard and Héloise with distinction and with some fresh interpretation, is the least one could expect, if he did it at all. The theme affords wonderful material for a study of personalities and motives against a background of medieval ideas which this author knows as few men know them." W. E. G.

+ Christian Century 68:942 Ag 15 '51 320w

"There is a chance that this work, which grew out of a series of lectures given at the Collége de France some years ago, may become Gilson's most widely read book in English speaking countries. The story alone will interest a general reading public. . . Yet, although Gilson's touch is light in this instance, there is no mistaking his scholarly spirit, which will frighten away a considerable number of readers, for this is a compact piece of scholarship." Serge Hughes

+ — Commonweal 54:386 Jl 27 '51 800w

Kirkus 19:144 Mr 1 '51 140w

San Francisco Chronicle p17 Jl 29 '51 260w

GINZBERG, ELI. Agenda for American Jews. 90p $2 King's Crown press

296 Jews in the U.S. 50-10882

"Mr. Ginzberg analyzes the situation for American Jews, with reference to Jewish faith and life, 'Common ground,' synagogue and school, the republic of Israel and the Gentile world; and in conclusion he presents a numbered outline of things that Jews should do and not do." Christian Century

Reviewed by Marshall Sklare
Am Soc R 16:433 Je '51 270w

"This is a book which defies any attempt to review it intelligently for it is really not a book but the outline of a book. The primary intention, apparently, was to make an outline available for discussion and review and to raise certain questions. But whatever the intention, one may reasonably object that it is difficult to review an outline or to review a book largely made up of a series of questions." Carey McWilliams

Ann Am Acad 274:253 Mr '51 450w

Christian Century 68:497 Ap 18 '51 100w

School & Society 72:351 N 25 '50 30w

GINZBERG, ELI, and others. Occupational choice; an approach to a general theory. 271p $3.75 Columbia univ. press

371.425 Profession, Choice of. Vocational guidance 51-10961

"The authors, noted men in their respective fields of economics, psychiatry, sociology, and psychology, sought to develop a theory of occupational choice. Their analysis has tackled a phase of vocational guidance that has not been studied extensively. Teachers, counselors, and other educators are provided an opportunity to see just how the process of choosing an occupation evolves from childhood to young adulthood. The material is built upon case studies." Library J

"While the data reported in the book, based on 91 single interviews with students from the 6th grade to graduate school, are rather thin, this defect is mitigated by the skillful organization of the argument. . . The analysis makes certain gestures in the direction of cultural determinants, but the essential premise is that the individual seeks to maximize his attainments. One may reject this premise as unfruitful and still find much that is provocative in this sound, readable monograph." F. L. Strodtbeck

+ — Am Soc R 16:900 D '51 270w

"Once the authors' ambitious and impossible claim for Occupational Choice is discounted, the merits of their work are more easily perceived. It is, for example, a very honest book. . . Then, again, the study admirably documents a truth that still deserves more attention than it commonly receives, that is, that most persons' knowledge of their job opportunities is pitifully limited at best and often shockingly inaccurate. . . Occupational Choice deserves the attention of readers who are concerned professionally with the difficulties of their fellow-men in the labor market." Donald Dewey

J Pol Econ 59:540 D '51 550w

"While the conclusions reached have been suspected by guidance people, this is the first time the ideas have been backed by research, not conjecture. Will no doubt be an important addition to the field of vocational guidance." C. J. Roth

+ Library J 76:1028 Je 15 '51 150w

School & Society 73:351 Je 2 '51 20w

"The book performs a definite service in clarifying the problem of occupational choice, presenting a theory and specific hypotheses to be studied, developing methods, and contributing to research on a subject vital to democracy, the freedom of the individual to make his own choice of means of earning his living."

+ U S Quarterly Bk R 7:298 S '51 200w

GIRVETZ, HARRY K. From wealth to welfare; the evolution of liberalism. 323p $5 Stanford univ. press

301.15 Liberalism 51-165

An analysis of the liberal creed. "The first section is devoted to a systematic exploration of the assumptions underlying the classical liberalism of the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries; the second, to a brilliant analysis of the fallacies and inadequacies of these assumptions as revealed, say, after 1870. A third section synthesizes the elements making up contemporary liberalism." (Nation)

Reviewed by Frederick Sethur

Am Econ D 41:959 D '51 1550w

Reviewed by D. M. Wright

Am Pol Sci R 45:932 S '51 420w

Reviewed by A. B. Miller

Ann Am Acad 276:144 Jl '51 700w

"The method by which this book attempts to justify its basic theme and by which it avoids the fundamental issues involved in freedom and in social problems in general succeeds in casting doubt on its tenets in spite of their humanitarian garb. . . And, although this book reveals an awareness of weaknesses and dislocations in our social structures (not a new awareness, however), its practical principles will hardly stand up under such a comparison, especially in view of what the author holds the two liberal positions have in common; a love of freedom and a belief in the essential dignity of human nature." E. D. Rucker

Ethics 62:74 O '51 600w

Reviewed by Max Beloff

Manchester Guardian p4 Jl 27 '51 100w

"In fulfilment of a long-recognized need, here at last, is a scholarly, penetrating, and consistently pertinent analysis of the liberal creed." Carey McWilliams

+ Nation 172:42 Ja 13 '51 700w

"Harry K. Girvetz, a professor of philosophy, performs a worthwhile service by setting forth simply and plainly the significant historical changes that have altered the content of liberal doctrine. Unfortunately, his style is so dry that one suspects his book to be but a compilation of amplified lecture notes." B. B. Seligman

New Repub 124:20 Mr 12 '51 490w

"An interesting, valuable, and eloquent defense of modern liberalism." S. E. Harris

+ Sat R of Lit 34:30 Je 16 '51 750w

"I do not wish to take off the edge of enjoyment which may come to prospective readers of 'From Wealth to Welfare' by defining or describing Professor Girvetz's resolution of this dilemma, but I am constrained to say that it is the most satisfying display of sound reasoning I have thus far encountered in this context. . . I might add, that his language and his logic, both of which reveal the marks of a genuine scholar, represent no barrier to clear comprehension and delightful reading." E. C. Lindeman

+ Survey 87:237 My '51 600w

"Dr. Girvetz has written a valuable book which will enormously clarify the meaning of the word 'liberal' and at the same time itself contribute to the development of contemporary liberalism." Arthur Schlesinger, Jr.

+ Yale R n s 40:541 spring '51 700w

GLASSTONE, SAMUEL. Sourcebook on atomic energy [introd. by Gordon Dean; prepared under the direction of the Technical information service, Atomic energy commission]. 546p il $2.90 Van Nostrand

541.2 Atomic energy 50-11014

"Beginning with the earliest theories of the atom and its structure [this work] describes the growth of thought and knowledge in the field, the development of the theories of the nature of electricity, radiation, and energy, the discovery, and early study of the phenomenon of radioactivity and so through nuclear transmutation, artificial radioactivity, nuclear structure, nuclear fission, and the new man-created elements. The release of atomic energy and atomic piles are covered and such additional topics as the acceleration of charged particles, the uses of isotopes, cosmic rays and mesons, and radiation protection and health physics are also included." (Chem & Eng N) Index.

"Glasstone writes very clearly and beautifully, and his explanation of various equations ought to be very clear to non- or semi-technical people. I believe that the book will be particularly useful to people who are not specialists in the field but who wish to have a rather broad, although superficial, knowledge of the subject. I would think that it would be particularly appealing and inspirational for

GLASSTONE, SAMUEL—Continued
bright boys in high school who intend to major in science." R. D. Fowler

+ Am Chem Soc J 73:5516 N '51 360w

Booklist 47:289 Ap 15 '51

Bookmark 10:168 Ap '51

"Dr. Glasstone has succeeded admirably in his task. In fact the book is much more than such a sourcebook. . . The book is clearly written, exceptionally well organized, and free from errors." G. T. Seaborg

+ Chem & Eng N 29:816 F 26 '51 350w

Reviewed by Russell MacFall

Chicago Sunday Tribune p11 Jl 8 '51 90w

Cleveland Open Shelf p9 My '51

"The book, which can be warmly recommended, should be in the reference library of all journalists, scientists, engineers, medical practitioners, and students." G. D. Rochester

+ Manchester Guardian p3 Ap 27 '51 300w

N Y New Tech Bks 36:3 Ja '51

"A readable and reasonably concise encyclopedia. It has an abundance of illustrations and diagrams, and Van Nostrand has matched its readability with an excellent typographical arrangement." Michael Amrine

+ N Y Times p26 Ap 1 '51 280w

"The book requires rather more concentration than most books. Read slowly and carefully, it is an inspiring story of a great triumph of the human mind. Little time or space is given to the atomic bombs, but a great deal of emphasis is rightly placed on the significant contributions of nuclear research to other fields of science. Though it may be difficult to understand in parts, the 'Source Book' can be easily comprehended as a whole." Don Fabun

+ San Francisco Chronicle p14 Ja 21 '51 400w

"Dr. Glasstone's Sourcebook is an admirably planned and well written guide to every aspect of atomic science and its applications in peace and war. The amount of information and the unusual clarity of this narrative are impressive, and it is astonishing that this book, of some 300,000 words, should have been written by one person."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p226 Ap 13 '51 460w

"The comprehensive coverage required has been met by restricting the detailed discussion of each topic. The readers for whom it was prepared should find the volume a useful tool in their work and, at present, will find in it more accurate information on the subject under discussion than is assembled elsewhere in any other single book."

+ U S Quarterly Bk R 7:104 Mr '51 190w

GLAY, GEORGE ALBERT. Beggars might ride. 341p $3 Appleton

51-4762

Portrait of a ruthless man, Steve Marks, tracing his rise from New York's East Side to the time when he became a great lumberman, contractor, and builder of empire in Canada, and then depicting his fall.

Kirkus 19:357 Jl 15 '51 130w

"A sharp, unflinching study of the sheer cruelty of ambition divorced from all moral sense."

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p34 D 2 '51 180w

"Mr. Glay's characters are wooden and seldom come to life. Some of the background is realistic, such as the establishment of the portage-to-lake transportation system and the stock-market speculation, but on the whole the book is not effective or convincing." Marshall Carlbom

N Y Times p15 Ag 26 '51 360w

"Mr. Glay has treated us too lightly. Having defined his Steve Marks he pushes him up the scale of triumph over the supine bodies of friends and women and competitors". . .and then down again, broken by a woman harder and crueller than he. There is no reason evident in his words or actions for his irresistible rise to power, nor any reason for his sudden and complete downfall." N. L. Rothman

Sat R of Lit 34:19 Ag 18 '51 230w

GLAZEBROOK, GEORGE PARKIN DE TWENEBROKER. History of Canadian external relations; issued under the auspices of the Canadian institute of international affairs. 449p $4.50 Oxford

327.71 Canada—Foreign relations. Canada—Foreign policy 50-4723

"A tracing of Canada's growing strength in foreign matters in keeping with her expanding industrial power and her contribution to the success of our arms in two wars. The trend, under Prime Ministers Borden, Arthur Meighen, R. B. Bennett, Mackenzie King, and now Louis St. Laurent, all point to the one main Canadian objective: running her own show in partnership with, but not as a blind follower of British and/or American views." Sat R of Lit

---

"Mr. Glazebrook writes with competence and authority. He is critical, and sometimes sharply so, of the shortcomings in Canadian policy. He relates that policy to the Canadian background; he explains, but he does not defend. His book merits wide reading. Because of its balanced presentation, readers will view with indulgence such obvious signs of haste as the frequent repetition; they will only regret that the same cause evidently led to limiting discussion of the development of Canadian foreign policy to one third of the volume." R. A. Spencer

+ Canadian Forum 30:284 Mr '51 550w

Foreign Affairs 31:165 O '51 30w

"Whether the part which Canada to-day is playing in world affairs entirely merits the epithet 'leading' is a matter upon which opinions may differ. Some allowance may be made, by those who cherish doubt, for the fact that Professor Glazebrook is writing primarily for Canadians. But in all its readers—the convinced, the doubting, the informed, the uninitiated—this book will stimulate thought and encourage second thoughts." M. R. K. B.

+ Manchester Guardian p4 Ap 13 '51 250w

"Mr. Glazebrook has performed a useful piece of work for those who require a straightforward narrative together with an analysis of of the more obvious elements in the development of Canada's role in the wide world." H. S. Ferns

+ Pacific Affairs 24:219 Je '51 450w

"A factual [study] in simple, non-controversial style. . . Mr. Glazebrook's work should be read by students of Canadian-American relations and is essential for those working at the Canada desk in the State Department." L. L. L. Golden

+ Sat R of Lit 34:8 S 1 '51 350w

Times [London] Lit Sup p511 Ag 17 '51 200w

GLAZEBROOK, GEORGE PARKIN DE TWENEBROKER. Short history of Canada. 238p maps $2.50 Oxford

971 Canada—History 50-58321

"Mr. Glazebrook follows three strands in Canadian history. These are the development of Canada from earliest French times to the present as a North American community rather than as an offshoot of Europe; the efforts toward internal unity in a country where French and English have had divergent interests, if not divergent aims; and the continued and strong ties to the British system tempered throughout by the dominant position of the United States in North America and tempered recently by recognition of Canada's responsibility in world affairs." Am Hist R

" 'Canada had reached maturity' in 1950. This is Mr. Glazebrook's considered judgment toward which he builds his case throughout this admirable book. . . It is necessary in so short a book, designed for the adult reader who possesses more than a smattering knowledge of Canadian history, to lay stress on fundamentals rather than on detailed descriptions. This gives to Mr. Glazebrook's book a comprehensiveness and a depth which makes of Canadian history a moving pageant of a dynamic society in which economics and politics are of chief concern." A. B. Corey

+ Am Hist R 56:644 Ap '51 270w

"It is hard to review this book in satisfactory terms. I have not noticed, and I would not expect from Professor Glazebrook, any misinformation or misinterpretation. What did strike me was the triumphant height of understatement to which he has risen in the first few chapters. . . I am inclined to be captious about the author's attitude toward Canada's participation in foreign affairs. He indulges in the practice, which I would expect him to leave to others, of writing in half-congratulatory manner of this country's growing up, taking its place among others and, in general, behaving like a sovereign state. . . All of which to the contrary, this small manual will be found handy and informative." A. R. M. Lower

Canadian Forum 31:162 O '51 480w

"Mr. Glazebrook's interpretation does not strive after novelty, and although there is an occasional crotchet . . . it is not often that one has to quarrel with him. In general, the book is a sound introduction to Canadian history. It is agreeably free from any form of bias. To the present writer, however, one phrase prominently used by the author seems misleading. The preface begins 'The growth of Canada as a world power, so marked in the last decade. . .' But is Canada really a 'world power'?" C. P. Stacey

+ Canadian Hist R 31:410 D '50 900w

Foreign Affairs 30:165 O '51 30w

GLEASON, JOHN HOWES. Genesis of Russophobia in Great Britain; a study of the interaction of policy and opinion. 314p $5 Harvard univ. press

327.42 Great Britain—Foreign relations—Russia. Russia—Foreign relations—Great Britain. Public opinion—Great Britain 50-11104

"A detailed analysis of Anglo-Russian relations, political and economic, between 1815 and 1841." Am Pol Sci R

"A fine monograph, which should provide helpful background material for students of Anglo-Russian relations in the nineteenth century. It is possible that by implication and analogy it may be useful in clarifying some of the issues of our own day." J. D. Squires

+ Am Hist R 56:956 Jl '51 320w

Am Pol Sci R 45:270 Mr '51 20w

"The importance of the book lies not only in the interesting complete account of Anglo-Russian relations, but also in the background of the general development of international politics in the 26-year period covered. In showing the interaction of public opinion and of policy the author provides a valuable contribution to the psychology and technique of public opinion." Frieda Wunderlich

+ Ann Am Acad 276:170 Jl '51 230w

Reviewed by W. O. Aydelotte

Pol Sci Q 66:618 D '51 470w

"The book is of great value as a study of diplomatic relations in a critical period. It has the drawback of being documented exclusively from the British and not from the Russian side, but gains immensely from the author's close study of British newspapers, periodicals, memoirs and other contemporary works."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p687 N 2 '51 1400w

U S Quarterly Bk R 7:53 Mr '51 230w

GLENDINNING, MARGARITE. Gertie, the horse who thought and thought; il. by Louis Slobodkin. (Whittlesey house publication) 88p $2.25 McGraw

Horses—Legends and stories 51-13544

Gertie was a middle-aged farm horse whose habit of thinking got her into hot water constantly. One summer the farmer rented her to a hotel keeper, where her lack of attention to her work increased her reputation for stupidity. But not with the hotel keeper's little son. He loved Gertie and understood her, and in the end his love paid off. Ages 6 to 10.

Booklist 48:130 D 1 '51

Bookmark 11:85 Ja '52

Reviewed by J. D. Lindquist and S. M. Andrews

+ Horn Bk 27:407 D '51 100w

Kirkus 19:348 Jl 15 '51 90w

"A fresh and amusing story illustrated with Louis Slobodkin's expressive drawings." M. C. Skinner

+ Library J 76:2013 D 1 '51 70w

"Younger horse-lovers will welcome Gertie with her well-phrased thoughts. She undoubtedly fulfills their dreams that even their old farm horses are heroes or heroines under their shaggy manes." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 N 11 '51 140w

"A very funny story, made even funnier by Louis Slobodkin's illustrations, this will please young children who are themselves often misunderstood." Elizabeth Hodges

+ N Y Times p28 Ja 13 '52 120w

"This is a character study of a horse that is funny all through and in spots rather exciting."

+ Sat R of Lit 34:56 N 10 '51 220w

GLICK, CARL. Secret of serenity; decorations by Joe Karov. 237p $3 Crowell

170 Conduct of life 51-1944

Informal, entertainingly written chapters on applications of the Chinese philosophy of life, as the author has observed them among his friends and acquaintances in Chinatown in New York.

Booklist 47:229; 287 Mr 1 '51; Ap 15 '51

Bookmark 10:180 My '51 30w

Reviewed by J. A. Clark

Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 Ap 29 '51 250w

Cleveland Open Shelf p14 Jl '51

Reviewed by M. C. Scoggin

Horn Bk 27:242 Jl '51 30w

Kirkus 19:88 F 1 '51 150w

"Recommended addition to the new literature made popular by such books as Peace of Mind." H. S. Taylor

+ Library J 76:511 Mr 15 '51 130w

"Desiring nothing too much, taking the good with the bad, a wise Chinese welcomes the approach of the best of his life, old age. And when it is time to 'ride the Dragon' (Death) he will do so with serenity. If all this seems not to cut too deep, one grants to the point of view no small kernel of truth." Frances Witherspoon

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p9 S 30 '51 260w

"It is good that this volume appears at this moment to freshen the old sayings and possibly convert some Chinese to the American interpretation of their own heritage. Mr. Glick's book is closer to the original teachings than what could be found in China for many years." Mai-Mai Sze

+ N Y Times p10 Jl 1 '51 270w

San Francisco Chronicle p22 Je 17 '51 120w

Springf'd Republican p6D Ap 8 '51 180w

GLOVER, EDWARD. Freud or Jung. 207p $3.50 Norton

131.34 Freud, Sigmund. Jung, Carl Gustav. Psychoanalysis [50-11060]

"One of the leading British psychoanalysts offers in this short book a critical comparison of Freud's and Jung's systems. Discussing their theories on the nature of unconscious processes, libido, character formation, sociology, politics, art and religion, the author outlines in each chapter the theoretical position taken by Freud and Jung respectively and then proceeds to present his own critical evaluation of Jung's system." (N Y Herald Tribune Bk R) Index.

GLOVER, EDWARD—Continued

"This book is an extremely important work. It is carefully put together, scholarly and erudite. To those interested in psychopathology Dr. Glover is always worth reading, and perhaps never more so than in this his latest book." Robert Orton
+ Manchester Guardian p4 Je 6 '50 350w

Reviewed by A. D. Harris
New Statesman & Nation 40:177 Ag 12 '50 950w

"Glover's book is not a dispassionate analysis; it is written from the standpoint of rigid Freudian orthodoxy, for which every deviation from Freud is heresy and scientifically untenable. . . This rigidity and the author's lack of appreciation for philosophical and religious problems sometimes prevent him from doing justice to Jung. But in spite of these shortcomings Glover's book is a keen and illuminating analysis which will be read with profit by those seriously interested in this field." Erich Fromm
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 Mr 11 '51 600w

"The reviewer has found this an extraordinarily valuable book, though not an easy one." T. A. C. Rennie
+ N Y Times p7 My 6 '51 800w

San Francisco Chronicle p25 Ap 1 '51 370w

GLOVER, JOHN GEORGE, and CORNELL, WILLIAM BOUCK, eds. Development of American industries; their economic significance; with a foreword by G. Rowland Collins. 3d ed 1121p il $8; to schools $6 Prentice-Hall

338 U.S.—Industries and resources 51-2589

"The third edition of this work, which presents authoritative analyses of 41 major American industries, has been brought fully up to date. Additional chapters have been included, covering industries of particular significance in our national economy; new products and processes have been described; and statistics have been revised to reflect recent trends and experience. Individual chapters have been prepared by leading spokesmen-experts of the industries covered." (Management R) For first edition see Book Review Digest 1933.

Booklist 47:365 Je 15 '51
Management R 40:720 N '51 70w

GODDARD, HAROLD CLARKE. Meaning of Shakespeare. 690p $6 Univ. of Chicago press

822.33 Shakespeare, William—Criticism and interpretation 51-2298

"Harold C. Goddard, 1878-1950, was head of the English Department at Swarthmore College from 1909 to 1946. This work, published posthumously, occupied the last fifteen years of his life." (Publisher's note) The book is composed of several general chapters and essays embodying the author's personal interpretations of thirty-three plays.

Booklist 47:307 My 1 '51

"In the reviewer's judgment this is one of a rather limited number of really great books among the almost unlimited number of pretty good ones about Shakespeare." W. E. G.
+ Christian Century 68:965 Ag 22 '51 170w

Kirkus 19:172 Mr 15 '51 110w

"One may speak only praise of 'The Meaning of Shakespeare' if the volume is viewed as a traditional memorial to Professor Goddard. . . Its three chapters of generalization and thirty-three chapters of comment on separate plays, although associated pensées rather than articulated essays, will bring a nostalgic pleasure to those who knew the author in their youth; that they have a claim upon other readers, or genuine significance as literary criticism, cannot in honesty be affirmed."
— + Nation 173:37 Jl 14 '51 130w

"Mr. Goddard has left us the portrait of a humane, cultivated, intelligent lover of literature—but he himself sat for the portrait." Milton Crane
N Y Times p4 Jl 8 '51 400w

"These addled interpretations of some of the most famous of Shakespeare's plays show that as criticism this volume is a freak. But if regarded as a personal testament it can be seen to reveal the noble spirit of a devout and orthodox Quaker." O. J. Campbell
Sat R of Lit 34:22 Jl 14 '51 800w

School & Society 74:79 Ag 4 '51 40w

"It is in unity—in an aesthetic, moral, psychological unity and in a spiritual, poetic, and classic synthesis—in Shakespeare's complete poetic works that the meaning of his genius lies and is here brilliantly shown. It is the analysis of plays and poems, comparison and evaluation to discover interrelation, which the author's eclectic literary knowledge enables him to present." W. H. Beyer
+ School & Society 74:121 Ag 25 '51 1900w

Reviewed by Richard Henchey
Springf'd Republican p9B My 20 '51 300w

Times [London] Lit Sup p694 N 2 '51 360w

GODDEN, RUMER (MRS LAWRENCE SINCLAIR FOSTER). Breath of air. 280p $3 Viking

51-9206

A kind of modern Tempest, the scene of which is a remote Pacific island. A Scotch earl is the modern despot, his daughter Charis the Miranda. The novel describes the arrival of two English airmen, forced down by a storm on a nearby island, and the effects their arrival had on Charis, her father, and the natives.

"This story of Miss Godden's casts a pretty spell; it lulls the imagination with its picture of languorous living where every pleasure is available and where nothing is for sale. It adds little, in fact I think it detracts from the savor of the fantasy to say that she is following the pattern of The Tempest, for that comparison is not to Miss Godden's advantage." Edward Weeks
Atlantic 187:82 F '51 300w

Booklist 46:133; 47:236 D 15 '49; Mr 1 '51

Bookmark 10:109 F '51 70w

Reviewed by Riley Hughes
Cath World 172:471 Mr '51 210w

Reviewed by Fanny Butcher
Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 F 11 '51 550w

Reviewed by Ruth Chapin
Christian Science Monitor p13 Ja 25 '51 600w

Cleveland Open Shelf p8 Mr '51

"Here is an idyllic tale, with less of the perceptiveness, the authenticity of exploring the emotional factors, than one associates with Rumer Godden, but with her imaginative quality, the skilled craftsmanship and originality of her style, the artistry of her story-telling. Where another writer might have made the symbolism, the parallels, into a contrived and artificial tale, Rumer Godden has woven into it much of her own magic."
+ — Kirkus 18:2 Ja 1 '50 230w

"In her characteristic way the author unravels a fantastic but believable story with great skill and beauty. Sometimes Black Narcissus and River are recalled but for the most part there is a freshness in the mystery of these new personalities that will make the book widely bought and read." K. T. Willis
+ Library J 75:2149 D 15 '50 130w

"A good-tempered satire, cosy rather than stimulating, but with more edge than at first appears, and with elements of 'The Tempest' warding off the languors of 'The Blue Lagoon.' "

+ Manchester Guardian p4 O 6 '50 90w
New Repub 124:20 Ap 9 '51 260w

"Rumer Godden has written a parable, an entertainment, a gay and delightful sermon of which 'The Tempest' is the text. She has given us a 'world elsewhere' that, like Shakespeare's, illuminates the one in which we live." Irwin Edman
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 Ja 28 '51 1200w

"All good writers are allowed at least one not-so-good publication. . . So far this is Miss Godden's only 'thing of naught.' Her style is a pleasure, as usual, and there are passages which remind us of the Rumer Godden capable of writing 'Black Narcissus,' 'A Candle for St. Jude,' and 'The River.' " Evelyn Eaton
N Y Times p4 Ja 28 '51 450w
New Yorker 26:93 F 3 '51 80w

"All this is confected with admirable skill. Miss Godden, indeed, writes so well that the essential lightness of the story is disguised, at least while the reader is letting her lead him adroitly from one incident to the next." J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p14 F 1 '51 700w

"It is a sprightly drama, however mean and drab the picture that it presents of our Western civilization; a drama that gives us sad truths camouflaged in comedy's bright motley. Writing to entertain, Miss Godden succeeds by virtue of a skill that conceals effort. Always in easy command of her material she surpasses her average excellence in a few descriptions of scene and action." B. R. Redman
+ Sat R of Lit 34:14 Ja 27 '51 900w
Time 57:108 Ja 29 '51 550w

"Miss Godden writes very nicely, of course, and her descriptions of the marine pleasures of the island paradise are vivid and pleasing. Her characterization, however, is a trifle thin, and if she has any special satirical intention it is not immediately apparent. It might have been wiser for her to have left the Bard alone."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p625 O 6 '50 330w
Wis Lib Bul 47:88 Ap '51

GODDEN, RUMER (MRS LAWRENCE SINCLAIR FOSTER). Mousewife; with pictures by William Pene Du Bois. 46p $2 Viking 51-10262

Based on an anecdote in Dorothy Wordsworth's journal, this is the story of a little mouse who set free a captive dove, and ever afterwards could see farther afield than any ordinary mouse. For ages six to nine.

Booklist 47:297 Ap 15 '51
Bookmark 10:208 Je '51
Chicago Sunday Tribune p14 Ap 29 '51 120w
Cleveland Open Shelf p22 N '51

"As lovely and as ageless in appeal as a tale of Hans Christian Andersen." A. C. Moore
+ Horn Bk 27:93 Mr '51 240w

"It seems to me one of the loveliest things Rumer Godden has written. Children will like it because they will be interested in both the mousewife and the dove and what happens to them; but no adult should miss the beauty of the prose, or the pictures that fit the text so perfectly." J. D. Lindquist and S. M. Andrews
+ Horn Bk 27:102 Mr '51 90w
Kirkus 19:61 F 1 '51 130w

"Children and grownups will treasure this book." Phyllis Fenner
+ Library J 76:781 My 1 '51 100w

Reviewed by J. A. Smith
New Statesman & Nation 42:684 D 8 '51 120w

"The famous English novelist writes this short story for younger children so skillfully that it becomes a moving little fable for any age to enjoy. Mr. du Bois makes it a collector's item with his beautiful bookmaking. He assists the unfolding of the tiny drama with true understanding." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 Ap 22 '51 210w

"Those who know Miss Godden's adult novels and her memorable story for children, 'The Dolls' House,' will rightly expect something special. They will not be disappointed. . . Unfortunately Mr. Du Bois' illustrations are uneven. The small ones are charming, but the larger ones so refined as to be almost empty." E. L. Buell
+ — N Y Times p22 Mr 25 '51 230w

Reviewed by K. T. Kinkead
New Yorker 27:182 D 1 '51 80w

"Miss Godden found the germ of this enchanting story in the journals of Dorothy Wordsworth. It is illustrated by an artist who brings distinction to all that he does. These soft gray drawings show deep feeling, humor, and beauty of design. This is one of the most beautiful of the spring books for 1951."
+ Sat R of Lit 34:46 My 12 '51 250w

"The tale, though slight, is distinguished." Gwendolen Freeman
+ Spec 187:785 D 7 '51 90w
Times [London] Lit Sup p9 N 23 '51 70w
Wis Lib Bul 47:152 Je '51

GODEY, JOHN, pseud. See Freedgold, M.

GODINE, MORTON ROBERT. Labor problem in the public service; a study in political pluralism. 305p $5 Harvard univ. press
351.1 Civil service—U.S. Trade unions
51-10394

"A documented study of the controversial role of organizations of workers in government services. The author, now 'associated with the Market Forge and Morandi-Proctor Companies . . . and formerly instructor in the Department of Government at Harvard University,' has presented the subject historically and philosophically. But he has based his conclusions on extensive study of contemporary cases and factual data." Library J

"This study was apparently completed in 1948. It is a pity that its publication has been held up so long without the author having the opportunity to include an examination of the literature which has come out since 1948 or an evaluation of events such as the passage of state anti-strike laws applying to public employees. The inclusion of such material would have added to the interest and significance of this work." S. D. Spero
Ann Am Acad 278:202 N '51 500w

"A valuable book on a subject of great importance to trade unions as well as government officials but unfortunately not written in a style that either group will find easy to read. Extensive bibliography." D. K. Oko
+ Library J 76:872 My 15 '51 140w

"This volume should be on the shelf of every personnel manager. The concept of 'management's right to manage,' though sharply differentiated by law in public and private employment, is implicit in both. The status of management may be different; its problems are not. The author's 'proposed principles' of collective bargaining in public service will prove of great interest to managers in private as well as in government enterprise." Phillips Bradley
+ Management R 40:513 Ag '51 430w
San Francisco Chronicle p17 Ag 26 '51 180w

"Familiar to students of public administration are such problems as the state as an employer, the objectives of public service unionism, forms of employee representation, and strikes and political activity in the public service. These and other aspects of the general problem are discussed with care, analyzed with insight, and documented with patient, accurate scholarship. The materials are drawn from a wide assortment of sources, federal, state, and foreign, and the conclusions emerge simply and fairly from the excellent exposition."

GODINE, M. R.—Continued
+ U S Quarterly Bk R 7:286 S '51 210w

GODLEY, JOHN RAYMOND. See Kilbracken, J. R. G.

GODWIN, GEORGE STANLEY. Great revivalists. 220p $2.50 Beacon press
269 Revivals. Psychology, Religious [A51-9833]

"Defining revivalism as the mobilization of the emotions to excite religious fervor the author analyzes the motivations of both the practitioner and the recipient. In the former he always finds a severe personal conflict and in the latter, unbalance, insecurity, unhappiness. The Crusades, the Reformation, the Puritan Movement, Wesley, Booth and many other men and movements are subjected to his scrutiny." Churchman

Christian Century 68:821 Jl 11 '51 350w
Churchman 165:16 O 15 '51 80w

Reviewed by R. L. Hightower
Crozer Q 29:94 Ja '52 200w

GODWIN, MRS STEPHANI (ALLFREE), and GODWIN, EDWARD. Roman eagle [il. by the authors]. 211p $3 Oxford
51-12460

A novel for high-school age readers, telling a story of a young Roman soldier and a Jewish girl in the first century A.D.

Booklist 48:105 N 15 '51

"A creative imagination and a keen sense of color bring this story alive and make the times and the people real to us in a way which older boys and girls will enjoy." S. M. A.
+ Horn Bk 27:333 S '51 150w

"A story of the early Christian era, rich in period detail and action, but to many readers the combination of religious emphasis and some rather lush elements for which this period is a fertile field may seem distasteful."
+ — Kirkus 19:488 S 1 '51 160w

"A beautifully-written love story that will appeal to mature readers." Elizabeth Burr
+ Library J 76:2016 D 1 '51 80w

"The relationship of Stephani and Edward Godwin's 'Roman Eagle' to actual Biblical events is not extensive, but it is crucial. This is a fully plotted, well researched historical novel for the older teens. . . While 'Roman Eagle' has the inevitable convenient miracle and happy ending, it does not entirely ignore the hard truth that faith can also mean discipline, sacrifice and martyrdom." N. K. Burger
+ N Y Times p6 N 11 '51 170w

"A beautifully written love story that will appeal to mature readers."
+ Wis Lib Bul 47:261 N '51

GOES, ALBRECHT. Unquiet night; tr. from the German by Constantine Fitzgibbon [Eng title: Arrow to the heart]. 122p $2.25 Houghton
51-12153

Tells the story of a German army chaplain somewhere in the Ukraine in 1942. He has been sent for to be present at the execution of a young German soldier. The author, who was a chaplain for five years of the war, describes the fiction chaplain's efforts to pursue his vocation in the midst of the inhumanity of war.

Booklist 48:31 S 15 '51

"The story is told with a certain amount of sober matter-of-factness but the human tragedy of the condemned man and the farewell of two lovers are skilfully blended, creating a tender lyrical poetry in the midst of the grim atmosphere of total war." Max Fischer
+ Commonweal 54:532 S 7 '51 200w
Kirkus 19:306 Je 15 '51 130w

"Highly recommended for mature readers in public and academic libraries." F. E. Hirsch
+ Library J 76:1221 Ag '51 80w

Reviewed by H. I'A. Fausset
Manchester Guardian p3 My 18 '51 150w

"The Unquiet Night is a long, inconclusive short story in drab, unleavened prose, marked by a depressing naiveté—literary, psychological and even moral." David Goldknopf
— New Repub 125:20 S 24 '51 270w

"The book is moving and well-written and while not necessarily agreeing with Captain Liddell-Hart that 'it is one of the most remarkable war novels that have yet appeared,' it is certainly much above the average standard. Personally, I think this book fails through a blurring of the moral centre." John Raymond
+ — New Statesman & Nation 41:660 Je 9 '51 300w

"In simple accents, with unadorned fidelity, 'Unquiet Night' records not only the corruption of evil men but also the corruptibility of the good. The very fact that the chaplain, an upright, high-minded believer, is also a little unctuous, a trifle complacent, just a shade selfish, adds to the poignance of the portrait. . . A few gaucheries in an otherwise competent translation mar the narrative." Frederic Morton
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 Ag 26 '51 370w

"The story is remarkable for its warmth, its simplicity and for the classical restraint with which the somber, swift moving events are related. Much of the credit should go to the excellent translation by the English writer Constantine Fitzgibbon, one of the top practitioners in this field." Richard Plant
+ N Y Times p5 Ag 26 '51 360w
New Yorker 27:124 O 6 '51 180w
San Francisco Chronicle p30 N 4 '51 340w

"This is a story of Christian love in a world hardly Christian any longer. It is very moving. It is religious writing of a kind that probably comes to life only where religion in its hope for survival has to go back to its sources in man." Robert Pick
+ Sat R of Lit 34:17 S 22 '51 500w

Reviewed by R. D. Charques
Spec 185:730 Je 1 '51 300w

"This book is notable for its crisp, lucid style and for a pleasing absence of the involved circumlocutions which are likely to characterize works of this nature. In addition, the volume gives some sharp profiles of German army types, and through it all there emerges a graphic picture of the rigid Prussian military system which tries, but fails, to turn all men into mere automatons." H. H.
+ Springf'd Republican p12C Ag 26 '51 220w
Time 58:120 S 3 '51 550w

"An unusually vivid piece of writing. . . Mr. Constantine FitzGibbon's translation is admirable."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p321 My 25 '51 270w
Wis Lib Bul 47:215 S '51

GOGARTY, OLIVER ST JOHN. Intimations. 268p $3 Abelard 827
50-10968

A collection of twenty-seven essays and tales by the Irish "poet and wit, friend of W. B. Yeats, neighbor of George Moore, and classmate of James Joyce," who is now an American citizen.

Bookmark 10:131 Mr '51 20w

"Recommended." M. H. Zipprich
+ Library J 75:2000 N 15 '50 110w

"In these well told tales and essays, Oliver St. John Gogarty gives gay and convincing proof that he is a long, long way from his anecdotage. In fact, 'Intimations' is the best prose effort since that merry memoir of his early days in Dublin, 'As I was Going Down Sackville Street.'" Richard Harrity
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p7 D 31 '50 1000w

"In [these] essays Gogarty shines as a literary entertainer who can excite the imagination and enlarge the spirit. Naturally he is much better on the Irish past than on the American present. He is at his unique best when he is the ardent amateur, whether his subject be verse or archery. His is at his worst in denunciation, whether his victim be Joyce, Moore, or American lecture bureaus... Surely [this] is Gogarty's best book of prose since 'Tumbling in the Hay.'" Horace Reynolds

+ — N Y Times p4 D 31 '50 550w

GOLD, HERBERT. Birth of a hero. 370p $3.50 Viking

51-12089

"Reuben Flair at forty-five embarks on a personal journey to achieve the status of hero. Middle class, comfortable, family man, educated, he followed a prescribed course almost without thinking and certainly without assessing values. He becomes a hero when he begins to discern values and feel emotions that should attend the complex problem of living even an ordinary life." Library J

Reviewed by Edmund Fuller
Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 S 16 '51 280w

"Although several sequences hang heavy, this is spasmodically brilliant, experimental, interesting."

+ — Kirkus 19:332 Jl 1 '51 220w

"The story is well told with a great stress on the use of the stream-of-consciousness technique. Good first novel. Recommended." H. L. Roth

+ Library J 76:1333 S 1 '51 80w

Reviewed by Harvey Swados
Nation 173:283 O 6 '51 900w

Reviewed by David Tilden
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 S 9 '51 650w

"Gold writes well. His style is rich and rolling, with intoned rhythms and phrasing. One feels the surge of a novelist's talent in the observations of human behavior under stress. Despite sharp tools 'Birth of a Hero' shows muddled construction." James Kelly

+ — N Y Times p20 S 16 '51 400w

"Mr. Gold's vigorous, figurative use of words marks him as a talented writer as well as a shrewd observer of the human scene, but his novel suffers from the inclusion of too many obscurities and the lack of a stirring plot. Nevertheless, 'Birth of a Hero,' as a portrait of a type, is an artistic job." J. A.

+ — San Francisco Chronicle p25 S 30 '51 270w

"Herbert Gold is a young man as novelists go, a war veteran who has studied philosophy in Columbia University and in France. He has something to say in his first novel that is worth listening to in these days when most of our serious fiction is cluttered with the tag ends of psychoanalysis and drowned in a morbid interest in sexual aberrations and misanthropy." Harrison Smith

+ Sat R of Lit 34:20 S 8 '51 950w

Springf'd Republican p10D O 7 '51 170w

GOLDBECK, FREDERIK. Perfect conductor; an introduction to his skill and art for musicians and music-lovers. 202p il $3.50 Pellegrini & Cudahy

781.63 Conducting (music). Orchestras

51-9328

"Not a formal manual but it covers nevertheless the duties, techniques, and philosophy of conducting. Well illustrated musically and seasoned with references to well known composers and conductors. Will help concert goers and beginning conductors." Booklist

Booklist 47:233 Mr 1 '51

"Frederick Goldbeck is apparently a Dutchman, living in France as a critic and editor, and writing a charmingly British English. His book is a thoroughly 18th-century creation, in a quaintly delicious style, and full of mottoes, quotes, verses, and enchanting chapter headings." K. G. Roy

+ Christian Science Monitor p9 D 22 '51 210w

Reviewed by C. K. Miller
Library J 75:2015 N 15 '50 80w

Reviewed by Frederick Dorian
Music Lib Assn Notes 8:715 S '51 300w

"Mr. Goldbeck's disquisiton is short; much wisdom can be found in it; the writing is original and witty. High praise for any book, doubly so for a book on music, an art that has inspired some considerable stretches of flat prose. . . I know of no book that better unravels the skein of written music." Roland Gelatt

+ Sat R of Lit 34:21 My 26 '51 330w

GOLDBERG, MARTHA. Lunch box story; pictures by Beatrice Tobias. [28p] $1.25 Holiday

51-11000

A story for very young readers about little Tony Castro. Tony was promoted from kindergarten to first grade and with promotion came the duty, responsibility and privilege of carrying lunch to school.

Booklist 47:348 Je 1 '51

Reviewed by J. D. Lindquist and S. M. Andrews
Horn Bk 27:247 Jl '51 80w

Kirkus 19:208 Ap 15 '51 110w

"Since lunch boxes are a matter of much concern to first- and second-graders, this little book will find an eager audience. . . Recommended." M. F. Cox

+ Library J 76:880 My 15 '51 20w

"The author is a teacher who knows just how small boys feel, and what they like to read about their own doings." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Jl 15 '51 40w

"For beginning readers, Martha Goldberg's language is appropriately simple, and the story happily not over-simple. The subject, however, will appeal more to the about-to-read set just starting first grade than to those young sophisticates already able to read the book." Miriam James

+ N Y Times p12 Jl 8 '51 100w

Wis Lib Bul 47:191 Jl '51

GOLDEN, FRANCIS LEO. Laughter is legal; foreword by Alexander F. Ormsby; il. by Barye Phillips. 280p $2.95 Fell 340.9 Law—Anecdotes, facetiae, satire, etc.

50-10903

A collection of jokes all about lawyers and the legal profession.

Reviewed by Robert Cromie
Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 Ja 21 '51 80w

"Most of the laffs are off-color, neither bawdy enough for a men's smoker nor funny enough for, say, a whole book. Though the author has done a thorough job of researching and adapting old jokes to law situations, he has overlooked that whole branch of genuine legal humor and wisdom appearing in American and British decisions. Instead, he prefers the . . . nudge-in-the-rib laff." Herbert Mitgang

N Y Times p15 D 31 '50 140w

"Once the smoke has cleared—so far as the book is concerned—you are left with the feeling that a barrister's humor, after all, is much the same as anyone else's. Still, the book definitely would be much more appreciated by a lawyer than by his clients." Bernard Kalb

Sat R of Lit 33:18 D 16 '50 120w

GOLDENWEISER, EMANUEL ALEXANDROVICH. American monetary policy. 391p $4.50 McGraw 332.11 Federal reserve banks. Money—U.S.

51-5868

"The object of this book is to contribute to an understanding of the Federal Reserve Sys-

GOLDENWEISER, E. A.—Continued
tem and its role in the American economy in the past thirty-five years. An effort has been made to keep the language nontechnical and understandable to students, bankers, businessmen, and legislators. It is not primarily a book for scholars and does not pretend to contribute to monetary theory except as it generalizes the experience with monetary management under the Reserve System." (Pref) Index.

"There have been many books and brochures on this vital subject, but none more pertinent or timely than this volume by the chief of the economic staff of the Federal Reserve Board. While inflation today is gnawing at the value of the dollar and everybody is saying we must stop it, Dr. Goldenweiser throws a cold, clear light on the Federal Reserve's responsibility to this problem. He writes with logic distilled from a quarter century of inside observation." G. R. Ericson
+ Christian Science Monitor p7 S 10 '51 340w
Current Hist 21:354 D '51 130w

Reviewed by J. E. Cross
Library J 76:1568 O 1 '51 60w

GOLDIN, HYMAN ELIAS, and others, eds. Dictionary of American underworld lingo. 327p $5 Twayne

427.9 English language—Slang 50-58288

"This unique glossary of criminal slang was compiled in a large American prison, with the collaboration of the prison chaplain and an advisory board comprising Bad Bill, Butch, Hal the Rebel, Jo Jo, Red Mack, and other scholarly graduates of various penitentiaries. . . A second section translates plain English into crime jargon." Library J

"An amazing volume of underworld slang, which, as the authors themselves point out, should be of inestimable value to law enforcement officers, writers, and students of psychology, sociology, and penology. It also is fascinating reading for anyone interested in word origins or colorful slang, but should be kept off the children's shelf." Robert Cromie
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 Ja 7 '51 240w

"Praised by Mencken, this should also be a boon to writers of hardboiled whodunits." E. F. Walbridge
Library J 75:1905 N 1 '50 90w

Reviewed by John Lardner
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 D 24 '50 550w

"The dictionary deliberately avoids any attempt at linguistic derivation. Rather the aim has been to provide a source book for 'students, writers, and law-enforcement agencies.' It may even help the general reader in understanding modern fiction." David Dempsey
N Y Times p44 N 26 '50 230w

"The book contains a good deal of material not to be found in Eric Partridge's 'A Dictionary of the Underworld' and is a valuable contribution to its field. No attempt at etymologies has been made, but many of the definitions are equipped with elaborate illustrations of the use of underworld cant, and there is a section that allows the reader to look up ordinary words and find their equivalents in argot."
New Yorker 26:170 N 11 '50 200w

"A book such as this naturally has a limited potential audience, like writers, psychologists, police departments and criminals themselves, but has a definite appeal to all who ever are confused by newspaper or magazine references to half-familiar but confusing terms. No attempt has been made to trace derivations, the roving editors not being the research type, but even an authentic dictionary of underworld terms obviously is of value in an era when the underworld seems to be influencing the upper world." R. F. H.
Springf'd Republican p8D N 12 '50 380w

GOLDSTEIN, MORRIS. Jesus in the Jewish tradition. 319p $4 Macmillan

232 Jesus Christ. Jews 50-10439

"Rabbi Goldstein, of San Francisco's Congregation Sherith Israel, Doctor of Hebrew Letters from Hebrew Union College and Pacific School of Religion faculty member, analyzes the Jewish tradition concerning Jesus from the first through the Eighteenth Century in this first book in English telling the story with continuity." (San Francisco Chronicle) Index.

Reviewed by A. B. Hulen
Christian Century 68:684 Je 6 '51 600w

Reviewed by J. A. Maynard
Churchman 165:16 S '51 200w

"A very careful, fair, and objective study that every Christian and Jewish scholar who seeks the truth will want to read." W. F. Stinespring
+ Crozer Q 28:253 Jl '51 650w

"It is a scholarly work which should be valuable both to Jewish and Christian Church historians and theologians and should lead to a better understanding between the two groups, for the author's approach is quite objective."
+ Kirkus 18:597 O 1 '50 120w

"Recommended highly for the reference library." R. P. Breaden
+ Library J 75:1398 S 1 '50 140w

"General readers, Christians and Jews, (as well as students of comparative religions) will find interesting this fair, objective book giving clearer understanding of the relationship between Judaism and Christianity." J. B.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p15 N 26 '50 650w
U S Quarterly Bk R 7:148 Je '51 250w

GOLDSTONE, LAWRENCE ARTHUR. See Treat, L.

GOLDTHWAITE, EATON KENNETH. Cut for partners. 219p $2.50 Duell

51-10402

Mystery story.

Kirkus 19:251 My 15 '51 60w

"The motivation for this story is a little confused but it has an interesting background and Denver is something unusual in the field of amateur detectives."
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Ag 12 '51 100w

"Though he has not published a book in several years, admirers of Eaton K. Goldthwaite still recall such items as his 'Cat and Mouse' and 'Root of Evil' as unusually successful blends of psychological study with tricky mystery plotting. Those enthusiasts will simply fail to recognize their boy in Goldthwaite's new Cut for Partners." Anthony Boucher
N Y Times p17 Ag 5 '51 180w

Reviewed by L. G. Offord
San Francisco Chronicle p16 Jl 29 '51 70w

"Honest job." Kathleen Sproul
+ Sat R of Lit 34:36 Ag 11 '51 40w

GOLLANCZ, VICTOR, comp. Man and God; passages chosen and arranged to express a mood about the human and divine [Eng title: Year of Grace]. 576p $3.75 Houghton

208.2 Religious literature—Collections 51-11493

"Mr. Gollancz has sought in this book to give us a survey, from certain points of view, of man's ideas about God, about his fellowmen, about the virtues which God and humanity require, and about the moral and spiritual problems that have beset us throughout the ages. His material is drawn from the Scriptures, from Hasidic writings, from thinkers, saints, poets, divines, Eastern and Western, ancient and modern." (N Y Times) Index.

Reviewed by Harvey Breit
Atlantic 188:83 S '51 270w

Booklist 47:399 Jl 15 '51

"The author is to be praised for his insistence upon certain truths, for his search after God and his eagerness to relate man to God. But it is a pity that he did not get a grasp of the total doctrine of the Catholic authors whom he quotes. It is significant that only five words appear from St. Thomas Aquinas, who wrote two great treatises on God and man. For this book is a telling witness to the assertion of that magnificent teacher that the man who lacks the fullness of divine revelation to guide him will go astray even in the truths that belong to the order of natural reason." Ben Hunt
+ — Cath World 174:77 O '51 470w

Reviewed by Edward Wagenknecht
Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 Jl 15 '51 380w

Reviewed by Robert Peel
Christian Science Monitor p7 Ag 2 '51 550w

Cleveland Open Shelf p18 S '51

"Although designed to be read as a whole, it also serves as a remarkable work of inspiration, well worth picking up in contemplative moments, renewing a sense of the presence of God in human lives." R. W. Henderson
+ Library J 76:1225 Ag '51 140w

"Ancient and modern, the Bible and the poets, mystics and philosophers, novelists, musicians, and even the contemporary newspaper —all are significantly drawn upon. This book, indeed, may well represent Mr. Gollancz's most lasting service to humanity." H. I'A. F.
+ Manchester Guardian p4 O 6 '50 170w

Reviewed by Herbert Read
New Statesman & Nation 40:389 O 28 '50 800w

"Every reader stands to gain in his individual life by a close perusal of 'Man and God.'" Marvin Lowenthal
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 Je 24 '51 1150w

"'Man and God' is not a ragbag, or yet a Short Cut to the Wisdom of the Ages. The net is fine-meshed, and has been thrown wide; but it is one man's haul, and the haul is not laid on our plate already filleted. What can be done to illuminate each passage by placing it in an enlightening context the compiler has done with masterly skill. Yet the lazy-minded, the dense or the prejudiced had better avoid this book." C. D. Lewis
+ N Y Times p1 Je 24 '51 950w

New Yorker 27:79 Jl 21 '51 140w

"'Man and God' is at once a treasury and a cathedral and a fortress of faith, fabulously furnished and raised to the skies and fortified by men and women of many faiths. But some readers will have to be content to view this triple structure from a distance, with wonder and respect, and—perhaps—a twinge of envy. When I finished this remarkable book, I found myself thinking: Yes, it is probably true that religion is the ultimate poetry of mankind; but it is certainly true, alas, that not all of us can learn to read it." B. R. Redman
+ Sat R of Lit 34:19 S 29 '51 800w

Reviewed by Austin Clarke
+ Spec 184:708 D 15 '50 500w

Times [London] Lit Sup p424 Jl 6 '51 1000w

Wis Lib Bul 47:212 S '51

GOODE, RICHARD B. Corporation income tax. 242p $3 Wiley

336.243 Corporations—Taxation. Income tax —U.S. 51-10395

"This analysis is a comprehensive study of the effects of the federal corporate income tax on national income and employment, and a consideration of its proper role in the tax system. Alternative taxes and tax policies are considered, and conflicting arguments about corporate taxes are recognized." U S Quarterly Bk R

"This book will rightly become the standard work on the economic effects of the corporate-income tax. It will prove indispensable in fiscal-policy courses that want to give the student a model of tax analysis, not solely one for the corporate tax. Goode's breadth, judiciousness, and craftsmanship make this an impressive study." E. C. Brown
+ Am Econ R 41:985 D '51 1150w

Reviewed by J. E. Cross
Library J 76:869 My 15 '51 80w

Management R 40:792 D '51 30w

"Of special interest to economists, this study should also be valuable to legislators and policy makers."
+ U S Quarterly Bk R 7:257 S '51 300w

GOODENOW, EARLE. Cow concert; il. by [the author]. [32p] $1.50 Knopf 51-10263

Nonsense picture book for ages four to eight. It is all about a musically inclined little Swiss girl who trained her father's cows to play tunes by ringing the bells they wore at the right time. Marie-Louise conducted, and together they won the prize at a bell ringers contest.

Booklist 47:348 Je 1 '51

Bookmark 10:208 Je '51

Cleveland Open Shelf p12 My '51

"An enchanting picture story book."
+ Kirkus 19:207 Ap 15 '51 120w

Reviewed by Phyllis Fenner
Library J 76:781 My 1 '51 80w

"The story, not too short, is written in able, amusing prose. Some beginning readers, though they will like the big type, will have a hard time with the cows' names, but will go on because of the many nonsensical pictures, especially the extraordinary positions and expressions of the cows. The Swiss backgrounds of mountain farm and village are very true." L. S. Bechtel
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p15 My 13 '51 180w

"Like all good nonsense, this is a judicious mixture of realism, improbability and foolishness. So are the pictures, some deftly drawn black-and-white, some richly colored." E. L. B.
+ N Y Times p18 Ap 15 '51 130w

GOODMAN, NELSON. Structure of appearance. 315p $4 Harvard univ. press

142 Phenomenology 51-9677

"The problems faced in this work are the analysis of phenomena and the study of the phenomenalistic systems. The purpose is to further the systematic description of phenomena, and to determine what can be claimed for such a description. A faithful system, the author believes, must provide not an epistemological diary, but a precise, adequate, and integrated description of observed fact. Dr. Goodman constructs his system on a nominalistic, as opposed to a platonistic, basis, although the book is not explicitly an argument for nominalism." U S Quarterly Bk R

Reviewed by W. V. Quine
J Philos 48:556 Ag 30 '51 3000w

"Written for the technical philosopher, the book is an important contribution to its field. It incorporates the author's much-discussed but unpublished work, A Study of Qualities, and his studies in various journals. Of particular value is the paragraph-by-paragraph criticism of Rudolf Carnap's attempt to sketch a particularistic system in Der Logische Aufbau der Welt, 1928, as well as the clear presentation of the author's own system."
+ U S Quarterly Bk R 7:249 S '51 230w

GOODWIN, HAROLD LELAND. Real book about stars; il. by Paul Wenck. 189p $1.25 Garden City bks.

523 Astronomy—Juvenile literature 51-12211

Introduction to astronomy for grades 5 to 8. Two chapters locate the stars as they appear in the sky month by month. Contains a pronouncing dictionary, an alphabetical list of constellations, and other data, besides a bibliography and an index.

GOODWIN, H. L.—Continued

Booklist 48:52 O 1 '51

Kirkus 19:321 Jl 1 '51 100w

"Presenting the complex facts of astronomy in a manner both interesting and accurate for young readers is a difficult task, but it has been well done in this book."

+ San Francisco Chronicle p18 N 25 '51 50w

GOODWYN, FRANK. Life on the King ranch; photographs by Toni Frissell; drawings by Bruce Marchin. 293p $5 Crowell

917.64 Ranch life. King ranch, Texas. Folklore—Texas Agr51-513

"Frank Goodwyn, former cowhand and now a professor of Spanish at the University of Maryland, began this book as an autobiografy. But he soon discovered that the vast King Ranch in southeastern Texas, on which he was raised, was much more important than his own affairs. 'So this is the story of me and my ranch friends; of the heritage that was ours, the way we worked, the tales we told, and the fun we had on America's largest, most progressive cattle ranch,' he says in a foreword." (Chicago Sunday Tribune) Glossary of ranch terms. Bibliography. No index.

Reviewed by Edward Weeks
Atlantic 188:82 Jl '51 380w

Booklist 47:326 My 15 '51

"The colorful and varied routine of ranch life is woven thru this story of a great and typically American industry, making it fascinating reading. The book is illustrated." Al Chase

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 My 13 '51 360w

"This handsome book, with its exciting double-page photographs, bibliography, and glossary of ranch terms, should interest both Texans and those not so fortunate as Dr. Sam Parks of Dallas so modestly puts it." N. N. Lamar

+ Christian Science Monitor p11 My 31 '51 470w

+ Kirkus 19:94 F 1 '51 120w

"Fine story of a boy growing up on America's largest ranch. Frank Goodwyn is related to Frank Dobie and has all the latter's skill in retelling the folk stories of the southwest." M. D. Read

+ Library J 76:1036 Je 15 '51 60w

"His intimate pictures of vaquero character and ways and several of the vaquero tales, told with charm and in the right tune, are what make the book a refreshing addition to literature on the American scene." J. F. Dobie

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 My 6 '51 800w

San Francisco Chronicle p22 S 23 '51 230w

Wis Lib Bul 47:186 Jl '51

GOOSSENS, EUGENE. Overture and beginners; a musical autobiography. 327p il $5 British bk. centre

B or 92 Musicians—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc. Goossens family [51-13320]

"The Eugene Goossens, conductor and composer, who is the author of this autobiography, is the third of his line to bear that name. The overture to his memoirs, which are here only taken to 1931 and so cover only some 20 years of his professional life, is therefore the story of Eugene I, his Belgian grandfather, and Eugene II, his father, who served the Carl Rosa Opera Company for many years as its conductor. Further, Eugene III had a mother who was a singer, and was herself the daughter of a singer; he is also the brother of an oboist and two harpists. So that the family history covers three-quarters of a century of musical history and throws plenty of light on what the day-to-day life of a professional musician is like." (Times [London] Lit Sup) Index.

Reviewed by C. K. Miller
Library J 76:1809 N 1 '51 80w

"Mr. Goossens has been content to write entertainingly of memories stored up after years of travel rather than to attempt the probing of mind and motive and character expected in an autobiography. Yet these pages are not of a mere gossipy kind. They are full of frank and witty remarks about eminent musical personalities and about many of the world's best-known orchestras." Granville Hill

+ Manchester Guardian p4 S 28 '51 500w

Reviewed by Andrew Porter
New Statesman & Nation 42:442 O 20 '51 230w

"Mr. Goossens writes frankly and with a most engaging humility of the hard and often stony path by which he climbed from a comparatively unimportant place in the orchestral pit to the conductor's rostrum; and how his unfailing readiness to 'stand in' at the last moment and conduct, often with less than 24 hours' notice, large works of hair-raising difficulty abandoned at the last moment by his superiors, won him his present outstanding position among conductors. . . . He is a charitable as well as a modest chronicler, and reserves his occasional mockery, always tolerant even then, for the critics, legitimate and often deserving butts for the shafts of both performers and public." Martin Cooper

+ Spec 187:482 O 12 '51 500w

"The book makes no pretensions to literary style, but it is easy to read, evokes many pleasant memories and conveys the impression that the author has lived both a useful and a happy life. The chronology is fairly clear and one or two small errors of fact serve to show how reliable Mr. Goossens is in general as a historian."

+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p608 S 28 '51 750w

GORDON, CAROLINE (MRS ALLEN TATE). Strange children. 303p $3.50 Scribner 51-12447

"A reflection of the polished attitudes and circumlocutious living of a group of restless American intellectuals and their abortive attempts to put down roots—into human relationships, into religion, into local legend. . . There is Lewis, engaged in the faintly teasing riddles of the Civil War period; his wife, who wishes for the security of a Southern tradition; Tubby, who desires above anything else the beautiful Mrs. Reardon, a Lewis house guest; and Kev Reardon, yearning for the clear call of a traditional religion to satisfy his father-guilt. Placed against the aimless vegetating and religious fanaticism of the native neighbors, the tiresome round would lack any solidity were it not for the character of Lucy whose pre-adolescent cynicism together with a fanciful romanticism provide an effective satiric perspective." Kirkus

"Miss Gordon knows her people and her Tennessee and presents them with fidelity and felicity."

+ Atlantic 188:97 N '51 110w

Bookmark 11:34 N '51 40w

Reviewed by Riley Hughes
Cath World 174:313 Ja '52 220w

Reviewed by Henry Cavendish
Chicago Sunday Tribune p10 S 23 '51 650w

"Wife of Allen Tate, the poet and critic, and herself a daughter of the South, Miss Gordon has successfully epitomized a way of life. But she affords no unique insight: neither explanation nor explicit condemnation. Technically skillful, the book is without a concrete moral focus." Ruth Chapin

+ — Christian Science Monitor p11 O 4 '51 260w

Reviewed by Anne Fremantle
Commonweal 55:155 N 16 '51 370w

Kirkus 19:403 Ag 1 '51 200w

"The composition of the book is shapely; the style rises light and bright in dialogue (always interesting, never failing in revelation, often amusing) above a certain tedium of pastoral description. The problems of these adults are as humanistic as they are religious. They are serious and, for all the wit and entertainment of the writing, this novel is one for the serious reader." Hazel Hawthorne

+ New Repub 125:28 O 29 '51 360w

"Her most richly rewarding work. . . Her novel is beautifully written, lucid, subtle, evocative, and illuminated with flashes of true wit." Coleman Rosenberger

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 S 9 '51 1100w

"Her touch is equally sure in her brilliant pictures of a child's world and her satiric record of the talk of intellectuals. As a novel, though, 'The Strange Children' has just a little more in the way of symbolism, high dramatics and elaborate interweaving of diverse themes than it is quite capable of absorbing or fusing or causing to seem imaginatively necessary." R. G. Davis

+ — N Y Times p5 S 9 '51 600w

"The background is attractive, and the people, all of them fairly young, are very attractive, although their relationships, even among the married, remain unclear and watery to the end."

+ New Yorker 27:131 S 15 '51 190w

"The whole tale is wrought with delicate precision and captivating grace—always and especially as to this child of natural dignity and infinite appeal, traced evanescently in one enchanted moment of her ninth year." Frances Gaither

+ Sat R of Lit 34:13 S 15 '51 450w

GORDON, MRS DOROTHY (LERNER). You and democracy; pictures by Lois Fisher and Karl Murr. 59p $2 Dutton

321.8 Democracy—Juvenile literature. Citizenship—Juvenile literature 51-169

"Simple text and many pictures make up this small concise book on what democracy is and what privileges the people enjoy. The various freedoms—of the press, of religion, of work—and the rights—such as right to petition, to vote, to a fair trial—are explained and illustrated. It also differentiates between freedom and license, and warns against the latter." Chicago Sunday Tribune

Booklist 47:261 Mr 15 '51

Bookmark 10:110 F '51 10w

"It is an excellent book for use with younger children in clarifying their thoughts about the popular but often misunderstood term, 'democracy.' The drawings aid in making the meaning clear for youngest ones." A. L. Shea

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p10 F 4 '51 100w

Christian Science Monitor p7 Je 30 '51 110w

"Recommended for school and public libraries." Augusta Baker

+ Library J 76:531 Mr 15 '51 90w

Reviewed by L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 F 4 '51 170w

"One of the most constructive aspects of the book is its emphasis upon the responsibilities of the citizen as well as upon his rights and privileges. The cartoon-style illustrations are uneven in quality, but they are very useful in bringing home the points of the text. This timely book should be valuable to adult newcomers to the United States as well as to young people." E. L. Buell

+ N Y Times p18 Ja 7 '51 230w

GORDON, IAN. Burden of guilt. 207p $2.50 Simon & Schuster 51-10805

Detective story.

Kirkus 19:166 Mr 15 '51 60w

"A novel of neuroticisms, frankly discussed but on the whole unrealistic and emotionally unconvincing."

— N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p9 Jl 15 '51 80w

N Y Times p12 Je 24 '51 90w

"This item, obviously meant for a serious theme novel, may be psychologically sound and is well presented; but it's an especially depressing inverted type without much mystery." L. G. Offord

— San Francisco Chronicle p21 My 20 '51 100w

GORDON, LELAND JAMES. Elementary economics. 576p $4.75 Am. bk.

330.1 Economics

"This book is an introduction to an extensive body of knowledge. While it deals primarily with economics, it also includes frequent references to psychology, philosophy, sociology, and politics." School & Society

"It would be hard to make a more thoroughgoing attempt to introduce economics from the point of view of the consumer, and Professor Gordon has brought ingenuity and a deep interest to his task. It is obvious that the treatment of economics would be much more appealing and much more significant to students in general if there were more of a consumer's point of view in it." E. E. Hoyt

+ Am Econ R 41:202 Mr '51 1050w

"Professor Gordon's latest book, a text for beginning students of economics, will be particularly useful to home economics teachers and students as a reference on consumption economics questions. It ties economic facts to everyday experiences in an interesting and realistic way." Calla Van Syckle

+ J Home Econ 44:66 Ja '52 1050w

School & Society 74:143 S 1 '51 20w

GORDON, MRS PATRICIA (JOAN HOWARD, pseud). 13th is magic; il. by Adrienne Adams 169p $2.50 Lothrop 50-11061

Ronald and his sister Gillian lived on the fourteenth floor of a New York apartment house. The management insisted there was no thirteenth floor, but when a small black cat adopted the children, they learned things about it. On the thirteenth of each month they had some lively adventures on the non-existent floor. For ages six to ten.

Booklist 47:224 F 15 '51

"This is for the child who likes fantastic adventure and can take magic in his stride. The illustrations are delightful, and for the right child the book offers good reading and many a laugh." A. L. Shea

Chicago Sunday Tribune p8 Ja 21 '51 200w

Cleveland Open Shelf p8 Mr '51

"A fresh and original story for lovers of imaginative tales."

+ Horn Bk 27:31 Ja '51 90w

Kirkus 18:725 D 15 '50 200w

"Recommended." Elizabeth Hodges

+ Library J 76:338 F 15 '51 110w

"It will be seen that the author has tried to cover practically every imaginative interest of modern city children, giving wilder outlets for their dreams than most of them could possibly think up. She writes well, and has achieved a real city-magic atmosphere, most unusual, original, and utterly nonsensical." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 D 17 '50 350w

"This is good fantasy, deftly handled and all the funnier because it moves so easily from everyday city life into the realm of magic and back again." E. L. B.

+ N Y Times p14 D 31 '50 210w

"When there is humor in them the adventures seem logical; where it is lacking they seem 'made up.' The modern, humorous draw-

GORDON, PATRICIA—Continued
ings help to sustain the story. Not all children will accept the magic of the little black cat, but there are some who will."
+ — Sat R of Lit 34:39 Ja 20 '51 190w
Wis Lib Bul 47:92 Ap '51

GORDON, WENDELL CHAFFEE. Economy of Latin America. 434p $5.50 Columbia univ. press
330.98 Latin America—Economic conditions 50-10634

"This book is designed to serve as a general economic survey of Latin America. Especially it is intended to serve two needs: (1) the need for a general survey to fill the requirements of the businessman and public official; (2) the need for a satisfactory text for survey courses on the economy of Latin America. First, it is an economic survey of one of the great regions of the world. . . Second, this book represents an effort to provide a source of information suitable as a text for the increasing number of courses on economic conditions in Latin America." (Pref) Bibliography. Index.

"For the first time a general picture of the economy of Latin America has been brought together in one volume written in an easy and readable style." R. J. Alexander
+ Am Econ R 41:211 Mr '51 750w

"Any person who is planning to give a course in Latin American economics should in all fairness examine this book before he finally selects a text. There is always the possibility that he will be impressed more favorably than the writer of this review." A. F. Macdonald
— + Ann Am Acad 275:225 My '51 330w

"For business men and students of Latin-American growth and economy, Mr. Gordon has provided a most valuable book." G. J. Scharschug
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 Mr 4 '51 140w
Foreign Affairs 30:169 O '51 10w

"This impressive work runs a straight surveying line through one of the most confused areas of information and controversy in the world. . . [It] provides an enormous amount of up-to-date information on all phases of contemporary Latin-American developments." Duncan Aikman
+ N Y Times p18 Ja 14 '51 460w

GORHAM, MICHAEL, pseud. Real book about Abraham Lincoln; il. by Elinore Blaisdell. (Real books) 186p $1.25 Garden City bks.
B or 92 Lincoln, Abraham—Juvenile literature 51-12212

"This biography in the new 'Real Books' series, edited by Helen Hoke for the 8-and-up group, contains an abundance of anecdotes and real incidents from Lincoln's full life." Library J

Booklist 48:108 N 15 '51

"Less of a man-and-era biography than an affectionate collection of almost legendary stories about the great President. However, it is a pleasure to see so many of the touching, heart-warming and amusing cracker barrel anecdotes gathered in one book."
+ Kirkus 19:321 Jl 1 '51 130w

"Its chronology, a selection of 'Things that Lincoln Really Said,' and an index give it a possible special usefulness, but its packed narrative makes it less readable and less attractive to young girls and boys than the recent Foster and Judson biographies." Virginia Havmilan
Library J 76:1573 O 1 '51 80w

GOTTMANN, JEAN. Geography of Europe. 688p il maps $6.75 Holt
914 Europe—Description and travel
For descriptive note see Annual for 1950.

"To this reviewer at least, the book is not just another text; it is essential reading for all who seek to know and understand the lands, the peoples, and the problems of present-day living in Europe. . . If there be a pronounced weakness, that weakness is in the lack of adequate maps." H. M. Kendall
+ — Ann Am Acad 273:292 Ja '51 500w
Bookmark 10:82 Ja '51 50w
Current Hist 20:41 Ja '51 40w
Foreign Affairs 29:672 Jl '51 20w

"Few other geographers enjoy the unique advantage of being as completely bilingual and international as Jean Gottmann. . . In this book . . . where he goes beyond the bounds of geography to describe and analyze the 'personality' of regions and countries he is at his best—penetrating and incisive, often provocative. With its numerous well-reproduced pictures this is an attractive book, but it is disappointing in certain respects. . . One naturally tends to judge a book by its treatment of the areas one knows best. If Gottmann's book is tested by the description of the British Isles, it must be admitted that there are errors of fact or interpretation. . . So one reads on, suspicious that similar errors are present in the descriptions of areas one knows less well. . . The common problem that besets the writers of texts of this nature is, of course selection, generalization, and verification of a vast mass of material, and the greater the scope the greater the problem. If the above criticism seems harsh, it recognizes the difficulty, and it is offered in the hope that in a future edition these defects will be removed from a really stimulating and original book." L. D. Stamp
+ — Geog R 41:174 Ja '51 1000w

Reviewed by L. V. Updegraff
N Y Times p24 Ja 21 '51 270w

"Designed primarily for the American student but suitable also for the layman, this physical, cultural, and economic geography makes minimum use of technical terminology and statistics, and, for the most part, supplants maps with illustrations. . . Dr. Gottmann's well-organized treatise incorporates many facts from a variety of sources, projects, in clear and succinct style, the 'personality' of Europe, and analyzes the basic problems of its many diverse regions."
+ U S Quarterly Bkl 6:441 D '50 240w

GOTTSCHALK, LOUIS REICHENTHAL. Understanding history; a primer of historical method. 290p $3.25 Knopf 907 Historiography 50-10475

"Professor Gottschalk defines numerous historical terms which are commonly confused by students and laymen alike. He demonstrates how historical method differs from historiography, explains the distinction between primary and second sources, and offers advice on both how to avoid pit-falls in research and how to test accounts for authenticity. . . The book contains a treatment of the various schools of history, such as that of Von Ranke, and evaluates those sciences auxiliary to history. An appendix closes the volume with a guide to correct manuscript preparation and proof correction." (San Francisco Chronicle) Index.

Reviewed by S. D. Clark
Am J Soc 57:95 Jl '51 280w

"This is a very helpful, stimulating volume." R. H. Heindel
+ Ann Am Acad 274:228 Mr '51 210w
Booklist 47:172 Ja 1 '51

Reviewed by R. Flenley
Canadian Hist R 32:87 Mr '51 280w

"A virtue of the volume is that it raises more questions than it answers. The good student will find the answers." John Randolph
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p7 D 3 '50 110w

"This wise and witty book is commended to anybody who would like to understand history better, whether he be a mature scholar or a beginner, a writer or a reader." Dumas Malone
+ N Y Times p16 Ja 14 '51 600w

San Francisco Chronicle p26 D 3 '50 210w

School & Society 72:399 D 16 '50 50w

"Teachers of younger students will find suggestions which, properly adapted and implemented, will help their students to become more critical judges of whatever they read or hear. In our age of mass communication and propaganda the social studies can make no greater contribution than this to develop citizens who may become sound judges of public policy and of public men. And to this objective Professor Gottschalk's little book will make a sound and significant contribution." R. E. Keohane

+ Social Educ 15:253 My '51 800w

Reviewed by Crane Brinton
Yale R n s 40:560 spring '51 270w

GOUDEY, ALICE E. Merry fiddlers; il. by Bernard Garbutt. [47p] $1.75; lib ed $2.25 Aladdin

A nature story for ages five to eight. It follows a little boy from spring to fall as he listens for the song of the cricket, and learns from his mother about the tree cricket, the mole cricket, and the house cricket.

Booklist 47:369 Je 15 '51

Reviewed by J. D. Lindquist and S. M. Andrews
Horn Bk 27:257 Jl '51 100w

"Recommended for ages 6-8." H. M. Brogan
+ Library J 76:1232 Ag '51 70w

"This is one of the best nature books we know, to read aloud to children of about four to six." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p7 My 13 '51 150w

Reviewed by G. O. Blough
N Y Times p18 Jl 15 '51 70w

Wis Lib Bul 47:192 Jl '51

GOUDGE, ELIZABETH. God so loved the world. 311p $3.50 Coward-McCann

232.9 Jesus Christ—Biography 51-10022

A retelling of the story of the life of Jesus, from the Annunciation to the crucifixion and resurrection.

Booklist 47:302 My 1 '51

Bookmark 10:154 Ap '51 30w

Cath World 173:159 My '51 110w

"It is the best novelist's life of Christ since Elizabeth Stuart Phelps published 'The Story of Jesus Christ, An Interpretation,' 54 years ago." Edward Wagenknecht
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 Mr 25 '51 750w

Cleveland Open Shelf p11 My '51

+ Kirkus 19:168 Mr 15 '51 420w

"Miss Goudge from the very start flings history to the winds, and gives free play to her bold and beautiful imagination. . . She is turning into a religious romance the scriptural content of the New Testament. This task is legitimate enough, and fascinating in its more poetic moods. But readers must not be confused into believing that this book is to be treated as history, or interpretation of history. It is a 'story' in the fictional or poetical sense. As such it must take rank among the best religious books of our time." J. H. Holmes
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 Mr 25 '51 550w

"Miss Goudge takes no account whatever even of the wide divergence between the first three ('synoptic') gospels and the Gospel of John. In a writer of Miss Goudge's perceptiveness, this is truly remarkable. Nevertheless, the fact is that her book is written just as though the last two centuries of Christian scholarship had not existed. . . To some of those whose faith has not yet reckoned with scientific findings, Miss Goudge's book may be acceptable. Yet, they may have difficulties. . . Elizabeth Goudge has written some good books which many of us will like much better than this one." A. P. Davies
N Y Times p12 Mr 25 '51 600w

"As far as describing the background of the life of Jesus, Miss Goudge does a beautiful and enriching piece of work. But her redundant commentaries and her exhortations may have a tendency to make the reader put aside her book and turn to the dignity and directness of the New Testament itself." J. V.
+ — San Francisco Chronicle p22 My 13 '51 160w

"Many of Miss Goudge's descriptions of landscapes have their attractions, lush though they usually are, but she can be gravely misleading on fact, and she seems quite unfamiliar with the conclusions of even quite conservative modern scholarship." Wilson Harris
— + Spec 185:320 Mr 9 '51 550w

Reviewed by O. J. Aldrich
Springf'd Republican p20A My 13 '51 370w

Wis Lib Bul 47:182 Jl '51

GOUDGE, ELIZABETH. Reward of faith; il. by Nora Unwin. 186p $2.75 Coward-McCann

Christmas stories 51-7747

Eight short stories, based on legends, the Bible, and the lives of the Saints, emphasizing the beauty of faith and the Christmas spirit. Contents: The canticle of the sun; The reward of faith; The three gray men; The legend of the first Christmas tree; Son-of-David; The icon on the wall; The well of the star; By the waters of Babylon.

Booklist 48:105 N 15 '51

Reviewed by F. D. Heron
Chicago Sunday Tribune p16 N 11 '51 110w

Reviewed by A. C. Moore
Horn Bk 27:401 D '51 30w

"Eight beautifully told stories with religious background. . . They are all good for holiday reading and some of them for telling,—principally for older boys and girls. A few, however, such as the title story and 'The Legend of the First Christmas Tree,' will be welcome additions also to the story hour for third-to-fifth-graders." J. D. Lindquist and S. M. Andrews
+ Horn Bk 27:416 D '51 80w

"Eight beautifully written, enthralling stories of Christian religion."
+ Kirkus 19:395 Ag 1 '51 180w

"Told in straightforward, devout fashion, with a flavor of mysticism, the stories exemplify this author's storytelling genius. Follows in style and doctrine her recent God So Loved the World. Useful for Christmas story hours. Entire collection recommended for all libraries, adult and juvenile." C. A. Hulton
+ Library J 76:1434 S 15 '51 90w

Reviewed by L. S. Bechtel
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p16 N 25 '51 70w

"Miss Goudge's stories meet one of the tests of all truly good writing for children: they can be read with interest and pleasure by adults. Such writing can bring to any reader an increased awareness of the spirit and meaning of the Bible and the Judeo-Christian faith that it enshrines." N. K. Burger
+ N Y Times p38 N 11 '51 100w

"[The first story] is beautifully written, and its sadness is lightened by the serene faith of Brother Clemente. Each story is headed with one of Nora Unwin's lovely drawings."
+ Sat R of Lit 34:47 D 15 '51 220w

GOULD, JOHN. Neither hay nor grass. 216p il $2.75 Morrow

630.1 Country life. Maine—Social life and customs Agr51-539

"Once again the editor of a weekly Maine newspaper presents to the reading public essays on life in a small Maine village." Library J

GOULD, JOHN—Continued
Booklist 48:82 N 1 '51
Bookmark 11:31 N '51 10w
Reviewed by Edmund Fuller
Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 O 28 '51 340w

"Here is a book which emits warmth like a good steady hearth fire on a cold winter's night. It crackles with dry, well-seasoned Yankee wit, and glows with a genial appreciation of life in rural Maine ." Maxine Shore
+ Christian Science Monitor p9 O 18 '51 400w

"A head-on dabster who never sells farm or Maine life short expounds expertly on his likes and dislikes and the good things of life, with more than a little humor. Rewarding."
+ Kirkus 19:469 Ag 15 '51 100w

"Mr. Gould writes with an amusing turn of phrase and at the same time makes country living interesting and worthwhile. . . Recommended." M. P. McKay
+ Library J 76:1559 O 1 '51 40w

"In style, in philosophy, Mr. Gould is close kin to the late Will Rogers. When he writes about the medicinal virtues of cider, about the menace of modern efficiency in the life of our feathered barnyard friends, about the power of the legal mind to reduce a river stench out of documentary existence, about the changeable nature of Maine weather, it is with a dry, smiling humor that carries a persuasive point." Rose Feld
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p20 O 28 '51 280w

"No funnyman can be funny all the time and Gould is no exception. He is probably least funny when he takes up the old familiar topics and tries to squeeze new laughs out of them. . . Still, the good things in this volume are good indeed. What this book needs is ruthless editing, by the author or somebody who knows wheat from chaff." Hal Borland
+ — N Y Times p40 O 21 '51 220w
Reviewed by Ethel Dexter
Springf'd Republican p30A D 2 '51 120w
Wis Lib Bul 47:249 N '51

GOULDNER, ALVIN WARD, ed. Studies in leadership; leadership and democratic action. 736p $5 Harper
301.15 Leadership 51-9006

"An anthology of thirty-three undated published and unpublished papers by social scientists centered on an effort to provide some understanding of leadership behavior with an introduction and correlating 'contexts' by the editor. Types of leaders—bureaucrats, agitators, informal leaders; group settings; minority groups; authoritarian and democratic leaders; ethics and technics of leadership. The attitude is generally sociological. Four papers deal with business and union leadership." (Library J) Index.

"It would be almost impossible for anyone to find nothing of interest in a volume which takes as its subject matter so wide an area as leadership and then proceeds to go well beyond that to tackle problems like political apathy and democratic planning. Some will be disappointed not to find selections from the 'classics' on leadership but the papers by and large are not intended as disinterested statements of theoretical and research findings. The book, bringing together as it does a series of interesting papers oriented toward the problems of democratic leadership, with the added virtue of being skilfully organized and introduced by the editor, merits a favorable reception." William Kornhauser
+ Am J Soc 57:203 S '51 800w

"This volume could not have been better timed. At a period when the concern with leadership among all social sciences appears to be strongly ascendant, Professor Gouldner has assembled a series of articles, most of them specifically for this volume, that illuminate many facets of his important theme." L. G. Seligman + Am Pol Sci 45:901 S '51 700w

"The book is well tied together by the editor, Professor Gouldner of the University of Buffalo. He contributes the introduction, summaries of the various parts and comment, and one of the thirty-three articles as well. He is skillful in showing the relationship between divergent and even contradictory selections. His writing suffers from one deadly defect—a defect he shares with the majority of sociologists—which is an unreadable style. Here is a book on a subject of very general interest. It contains useful data on a matter of vital importance. Most of it is so badly written that hardly anybody, except professional sociologists, will ever read it." L. P. Edwards
Am Soc R 16:416 Je '51 550w

"Considering the number of authors contributing and the diversity of subject matter, the editor has succeeded reasonably well in bringing a unity to the work. Although styled as a 'joint contribution by well-known social scientists,' the great majority of the contributors are professional sociologists. The volume's greatest appeal will be for the sociologist and social psychologist." H. A. Bone
Ann Am Acad 275:173 My '51 600w
Reviewed by J. E. Cross
Library J 76:45 Ja 1 '51 80w
San Francisco Chronicle p22 Ja 28 '51 450w
Reviewed by E. M. Beard
Social Studies 42:370 D '51 260w

"A distinguished achievement." Bruno Lasker
+ Survey 87:298 Je '51 480w
U S Quarterly Bk R 7:187 Je '51 350w

GOURMET; the magazine of good living. Gourmet cookbook. 781p il $10 Gourmet distributing corp, Hotel Plaza, 5th av. & 59th st, N.Y. 19
641.5 Cookery 51-689

"Patterned after the most elegant French cookbooks, 'The Gourmet Cookbook' is bound in gold-stenciled red Burgundy cloth and includes in its 781 pages a wealth of recipes, principally French and American but spiced with dishes from China, India, Scandinavia and elsewhere. It is not a book for daily use in everyone's kitchen, but it is a practical reference library for endless good meals." N Y Times

"The price, although higher than most cookbooks, is not excessive when we consider that the publishers have devoted to this particular subject its proper due of luxuries—colored photographs, charming line drawings by Henry Stahlhut and well-spaced pages. A greater compliment to a favorite host or hostess could not be paid than the presentation of 'The Gourmet Cookbook.'" Charlotte Turgeon
+ N Y Times p24 F 25 '51 280w

"A sophisticated and discriminating cookbook for the person who knows and appreciates fine food. It makes for good reading as well as good eating. . . The connoisseur will be delighted with this book and will wish to own it as well as give it to a special friend." M. A. Gram
+ Sat R of Lit 34:46 Mr 10 '51 220w

GOVAN, MRS CHRISTINE (NOBLE) (J. N. DARBY, pseud). Surprising summer; il. by Sari. 171p $2.25 Aladdin
51-12412

"Polly Trent and Jenny Spears, the two little girls of Pink Maple House, spend the summer together with Jenny's aunt and uncle at Green Fields farm. They share all the wholesome fun and enjoyment that little girls can experience on a pleasant summer visit." Library J

Bookmark 11:35 N '51

"Truly it was a wonderful summer and little girls of all ages will enjoy reading about it or having the story read to them." P. G.
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 N 11 '51 80w

"High times little girls love to read about."
+ Kirkus 19:349 Jl 15 '51 110w

"Recommended for ages 9-11." Virginia Russell
+ Library J 76:1815 N 1 '51 70w

Reviewed by L. S. Bechtel
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p20 O 14 '51 90w

"Written with spontaneity and an easy humor, this is a good story for the reader who wants a book 'about other little girls like me.' " E. L. Buell
+ N Y Times p50 O 21 '51 170w

GOYA Y LUCIENTES, FRANCISCO JOSE DE. Francisco de Goya, by José López-Rey. 19p 31pl 8 col pl $3 Harper

759.6 Paintings, Spanish 51-458

"The forty reproductions in this new addition to Harper's Art Library cover very representatively the vast field of Goya's activity, from the early Crucifixion in the Prado . . . and the St. Louis Self-Portrait at Twenty-five, to the Milkmaid (Prado, 1825-28) painted during Goya's last years in Bordeaux. Professor Lopez-Rey eliminates from his account all the merely legendary aspects of Goya's career. He is concerned, he says, with 'the lifelong process of creation.' " Nation

Booklist 47:221 F 15 '51

Canadian Forum 31:214 D '51 70w

Reviewed by A. S. Plaut
Library J 76:43 Ja 1 '51 50w

"In considering the late works of Goya, Lopez-Rey might have made more of the extraordinary amount of time it took Goya to reach his full stature. . . On the whole, the book gives a sense of Goya as responsive to the prevailing ideas of his time, and rather passively so, but not as one of the great minds who helped create those ideas and who evolved through a process of his own artistic logic." S. L. Faison
Nation 172:569 Je 16 '51 550w

"Recommended for larger libraries."
+ Wis Lib Bul 47:19 Ja '51

GRABER, RALPH SCHULTZ, ed. Baseball reader. 302p $3.50 Barnes, A. S.

Short stories—Collections 51-13529

"An anthology designed 'to provide entertaining reading about baseball drawn from novels and stories of high literary quality by some of America's greatest authors,' including J. T. Farrell, Thomas Wolfe, J. G. Thurber, R. G. Benchley, Heywood Broun, Sinclair Lewis, Ring W. Lardner, Damon Runyon and Mark Twain. Arranged in reverse chronological order." Library J

Booklist 48:85 N 1 '51

"A volume worth acquiring. . . Assuming that you care for baseball, you'll be purring with delight when you start browsing thru it. . . It's a home run with the bases loaded." Robert Cromie
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p18 O 28 '51 140w

Reviewed by R. W. Henderson
Library J 76:1812 N 1 '51 50w

San Francisco Chronicle p22 N 25 '51 130w

GRAEF, HILDA C. Case of Therese Neumann. 162p $2.50 Newman press

B or 92 Neumann, Therese 51-10857

"The 'case' discussed in this volume is that of the celebrated stigmatic about whom so much has been said and written, especially within the last year. The book presents the result of a critical examination made by a lady well qualified on several accounts to examine and report upon the history and interpretation of Therese Neumann's illness and activities." Cath World

"Although Miss Graef seems to have begun her investigation with a belief in the preternatural phenomena manifested by the subject of the study, she has evidently arrived at a conclusion contrary to this belief; and Father Martindale endorses this conclusion as 'incontrovertible.' That the phenomena approach the threshold of the supernatural seems undeniable; but no more than this can be stated with finality at the present time."
Cath World 173:399 Ag '51 190w

Discussion by the author
Commonweal 55:94 N 2 '51 1700w

GRAEFENBERG, ROSIE (GOLDSCHMIDT) (COUNTESS WALDECK) (R. G.) Europe between the acts. 329p $3.50 Doubleday

914 Europe—Description and travel 51-9087

"This book is the result of a long, leisurely journey through western Europe. The observations which went into the first chapter—on England—were made in June 1948, and the last chapter—on Belgium—is based on several stays there between the autumn of 1948 and the spring of 1950." Author's note

Booklist 47:235 Mr 1 '51

Bookmark 10:132 Mr '51 40w

Reviewed by Richard Blakesley
Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 Ja 21 '51 330w

"In spite of all her antics, R. G. Waldeck has written a serious book. I doubt, for instance, whether her 'Vatican friends' really gave her confidential information. . . The detachment, the historical perspective and the balance of judgment of the ecclesiastical statesmen is stressed with remarkable intensity in a book that mostly mirrors the chaotic conditions of the present European mind. . . There are here some unusual observations which, I am inclined to think, may prove as prophetic as those in the author's former political chats. I hope that her reports find due attention in spite of the light manner in which they are told." Max Fischer
+ — Commonweal 53:404 Ja 26 '51 1000w

Foreign Affairs 29:672 Jl '51 20w

"A wide, if not deeply penetrating, coverage of assorted countries and characters by an historical novelist has its quota of interesting anecdote and interpretation."
Kirkus 18:651 O 15 '50 120w

"The book is a warmly human account of postwar Europe. Recommended." W. K. Harrison
+ Library J 75:2001 N 15 '50 80w

Reviewed by Virgilia Peterson
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 Ja 14 '51 850w

"On the basis of personal observation and ordinary common sense, Countess Waldeck's book seems to be notable for its penetrating and frequently wise observations. These observations, though, are at times obviously colored by her nostalgia for the 'established' order of her childhood. . . Yet, this longing for a return to the era of tradition and impeccable manners in government should not be permitted to distort an otherwise sound appraisal." Delbert Clark
+ — N Y Times p28 F 4 '51 400w

"The first thing to say about Countess Waldeck's new book is that it is by an extremely worldly, witty, and observant woman. It is somewhat patchily written and is full of mildly annoying colloquialisms like 'mad' for 'angry' and so on. Countess Waldeck is, however, to be forgiven for this, since she is writing in English—not her native tongue—and it is in fact astonishing that anybody not born to our language should have learned to handle it with such sharp skill. But her editors might have given her help in some minor terminological details. Parts of the book seem to me to be dated, and I also found it hard to be patient with some of the political discussion." John Gunther
Sat R of Lit 34:33 Ja 13 '51 1200w

Wis Lib Bul 47:60 Mr '51

GRAF, HERBERT. Opera for the people. 289p pl $5 Univ. of Minn.

782 Opera 51-13790

"A discussion of opera production by the stage director, Metropolitan Opera, who suggests practical methods for making opera part of the American community. Photographs, diagrams, musical notations. Index." Bookmark

---

Booklist 48:119 D 1 '51

Bookmark 11:55 D '51 30w

Reviewed by K. G. Roy
Christian Science Monitor p15 D 13 '51 140w

"Stimulating as well as full of information." C. K. Miller
+ Library J 76:2114 D 15 '51 140w

"There's nothing wrong with opera, Mr. Graf seems to believe, that common sense and community enterprise can't cure. He administers a good dose of the former in this book, drawing on his own experiences in the contemporary musical scene, as well as the history of operatic stagecraft, to illustrate his ideas. More than 100 truly excellent photographic plates point up the importance of this book, which should help keep the operatic hot-stove league going for quite a time." Herbert Kupferberg
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 D 16 '51 320w

"Graf's book should prove of great value to American communities which are contemplating a leap into opera or are expanding current programs of modest dimensions. It has facts and figures, and its illustrations are useful as well as illuminating. Most of all, this book should prove an inspiration to Americans who have sold their institutions short. Here is a European-turned-American who believes in America's future—realistically as well as affectionately." Howard Taubman
+ N Y Times p4 D 9 '51 550w

Reviewed by Alfred Frankenstein
Sat R of Lit 34:27 D 15 '51 550w

GRAHAM, MRS ELINOR (MISH). My window looks down East. 218p $3 Macmillan

917.41 Maine—Social life and customs 51-4246

Futher anecdotes and sketches of her Maine neighbors by the author of Our Way Down East, and Maine Charm String (Book Review Digest 1943 and 1946).

Booklist 47:353; 379 Je 15 '51; Jl 1 '51

Bookmark 10:228 Jl '51 30w

Reviewed by Olive Carruthers
Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 Jl 1 '51 420w

"Mrs. Graham has been looking out of her 'window' Down East with a warm heart, a steady sense of real values, and keen sensitivity to both beauty and drama. She writes not as a native, but as one whose perception of native qualities has progressively deepened during fifteen years in a country community along Casco Bay in Maine." G. P. Lancaster
+ Christian Science Monitor p7 Je 28 '51 550w

Kirkus 19:224 Ap 15 '51 190w

"Readers who like regional books, 'salt of the earth' characters, and personal philosophizing should enjoy." M. P. McKay
Library J 76:860 My 15 '51 80w

"Mrs. Graham herself has brought to this life her own eagerness for experience and catholicity of taste and her ability, more often than not, to detect the working of some bit of witchcraft or white magic. Despite the coldness of winter and the even more trying laggardness of spring, the view from her 'window' has satisfying warmth and color and a pattern of life that at times she considers the hope of the world." David Tilden
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Je 24 '51 650w

Reviewed by F. F. Van de Water
+ N Y Times p16 Ag 19 '51 240w

San Francisco Chronicle p16 Ag 19 '51 230w

"This is Mrs. Graham's third book, and in it she has grown up. The first two, 'Our Way Down East' and 'Maine Charm String,' were completely charming, but in retrospect and in comparison to this one they seem a little superficial. In them she wrote as an observer; in 'My Window Looks Down East' she writes as a participant. It makes all the difference. This book has a warmth and sympathy that the others lacked and a much more mature outlook on life." L. D. Rich
+ Sat R of Lit 34:19 Ag 11 '51 600w

Wis Lib Bul 47:163 Je '51

GRAHAM, HARVEY, pseud. See Flack, I. H.

GRAHAM, PHILIP. Showboats; the history of an American institution. 224p il $3.75 Univ. of Texas

792 Showboats 51-14160

"A staid chronicle that nevertheless conveys some of the glamorous appeal of the showboats that brought entertainment to people along the Mississippi and Ohio Rivers. Begins with pre-showboat days and carries through to the present. Many illustrations." Booklist

---

Booklist 48:119 D 1 '51

"Graham—who is Professor of American Literature at the University of Texas—writes with a style that matches the charm of his subject. And he has been thorough. . . In all, this is a valuable, entertaining volume, handsomely presented by its publishers." Robert Downing
+ N Y Times p10 N 25 '51 600w

School & Society 75:15 Ja 5 '52 20w

GRANGE, WILLIAM JAMES, and others. Wills, executors, and trustees; a practical work on the law, administration, and accounting of estates and trusts; with the collaboration of G. Harold Blattmachr. rev ed 546p $6 Ronald

347.6 Wills. Executors and administrators. Trusts and trustees 50-8872

"First published in 1933, now considerably revised. An attempt to supply, in readily accessible form, the information which executors, administrators and others engaged in administering estates or trusts may reasonably require in the ordinary course of their duties. Based mainly on New York law, as essentially representative of all states. Laws of Wills and Intestacy; Administration of Estates; Trusts and Trustees; Accounting for Estates and Trusts; many (94) useful forms of wills, probate and administration, trusts, and accounting forms." Library J

"The book is not entirely for the professional practitioner, already experienced in the fields covered, but for the intelligent but inexperienced person who undertakes certain activities with little or no awareness of legal requirements."
Harvard Law R 64:359 D '50 440w

"Well designed to meet the normal needs for circulation or reference." J. E. Cross
+ Library J 75:1413 S 1 '50 110w

GRANT, BRUCE. Cowboy encyclopedia. 160p il $2.75 Rand McNally

917.8 Cowboys 51-10382

Dictionary of western and cowboy terms, containing about 600 entries and 200 line drawings on "the old and the new west from the open range to the dude ranch." (Title page) For grades 5-8.

"Before buying, libraries should take note of the entries on knife fighting and knife throwing."
Booklist 47:316 My 1 '51

Reviewed by Lloyd Wendt
Chicago Sunday Tribune p7 Je 17 '51 130w

Cleveland Open Shelf p20 S '51

Kirkus 19:209 Ap 15 '51 110w

"As a whole, I think the book will be quite popular. Recommended for all children's rooms." M. D. Read
+ Library J 76:782 My 1 '51 70w

"The author is a newspaper man who grew up in cow country, and has been collecting this material for years. It will appeal to all from about ten up who read westerns, or care about the cowboy from any angle. Though it is not very 'distinguished' bookmaking, the whole has an aura of trading posts and prairies." L. S. Bechtel
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p20 My 13 '51 230w

"A happy hunting-ground for any would-be cowboy in search of information." E. L. Buell
+ N Y Times p24 Je 3 '51 100w

GRANT, EUGENE LODEWICK. Principles of engineering economy. 3d ed 623p $5 Ronald

620.02 Engineering 50-8664

"Without changing the fundamental objective of earlier editions of explaining the technique of answering the 'Will it pay?' question in engineering situations, the author has rewritten more than two-thirds of this book. Most of the revision was aimed at improving presentation of fundamentals. Mr. Grant, however, has also added a substantial amount of new material. He has included, for example, a discussion of the currently important topic: treatment in economy studies of prospective price changes. And in a completely new chapter, he considers the basic principles of accounting for income taxes in economy studies." Eng N

"The third edition of this well known book is considerably rewritten and expanded. Grant has wisely followed the general organization of the earlier editions which were characterized by clear, careful presentations of the methods to be used in making engineering economic studies." C. C. Monrad
+ Chem & Eng N 28:4392 D 11 '50 180w

"This book should be of value to engineers in practice as well as to students. Answers are given to about 30% of the 400 problems offered. It is easy reading and presents the subject in an inspiring style."
+ Eng N 145:43 Ag 10 '50 170w

GRAVES, ROBERT, tr. Transformations of Lucius, otherwise known as the Golden ass. See Apuleius, L.

GRAY, ALBERT WOODRUFF. Family legal adviser. 352p $2.98 Greystone

340 Law—U.S. 50-9814

A home reference book on essential points of law on divorce, rights of children, husbands and wives, civil rights, wills, gifts, libel and slander, real estate, personal property, insurance, etc. Where laws differ from state to state, tables or summaries are given. Index.

Booklist 47:246 Mr 15 '51

"An unusually readable, and enlightening treatment. . . Recommended." J. E. Cross
+ Library J 75:2005 N 15 '50 90w

GRAY, ASA. Manual of botany. 8th centennial ed 1632p il $9.50 Am. bk.

581.973 Botany—U.S.

"A handbook of the flowering plants and ferns of the central and northeastern United States and adjacent Canada. Largely rewritten and expanded by Merritt Lyndon Fernald, with assistance of specialists in some groups. The last revision of this standard work was published in 1908. In general, the sequence of families is that of the seventh edition; the synoptic keys have been dropped except in the synopsis, in favor of the regularly dichotomous keys. New drawings have replaced some old ones." Booklist

Booklist 47:117 N 15 '50

N Y New Tech Bks 35:50 Jl '50

GRAY, DWIGHT E., and MARTENS, JOHN H. Radiation monitoring in atomic defense. 122p il $2 Van Nostrand

539.7 Geiger-Muller counters. Atomic bomb 51-9427

A manual describing the technique and instruments for the detection of harmful radiation from radioactive materials. Designed particularly for civil defense personnel. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 47:248 Mr 15 '51

Cleveland Open Shelf p9 My '51

Reviewed by R. R. Hawkins
Library J 76:522 Mr 15 '51 80w

"In most instances executive and technical personnel, such as safety engineers, will need more comprehensive treatments of the subject, but this book can be recommended as a first one for anyone but specialists."
N Y New Tech Bks 36:13 Ja '51

GRAY, JAMES. University of Minnesota, 1851-1951. 609p il $3.75 Univ. of Minn. press

378 Minnesota. University 51-4250

This history of the first hundred years of the University of Minnesota describes "what happened in the century span to make this state university a great midwestern center of learning and service to the people, giving a close-up of the personalities and ideas that have shaped the course of the university's development." (School & Society) Index.

"Recognizing what was expected, Gray has celebrated the many things in Minnesota that are fine, and for the rest has made confusion congenial. In the image of his university his book is characteristically and confidently American—a midwest symphony." G. W. Pierson
Ann Am Acad 278:226 N '51 400w

"What easily might have been a plodding record turns out to be a fascinating story well told." Walter Blair
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p7 Jl 1 '51 400w

"Mr. Gray, author of numerous novels, plays and studies in Americana, was for years literary critic of The St. Paul Pioneer Press and book editor of The Chicago Daily News. He is now Professor of English at Minnesota, and is proud of his college. Yet he has not whitewashed the unlovely, and [his volume has] balance and readability." J. K. Bettersworth
+ N Y Times p10 Jl 15 '51 300w

San Francisco Chronicle p18 Jl 22 '51 50w

Reviewed by Vernon Carstensen
Sat R of Lit 34:33 S 8 '51 210w

School & Society 73:366 Je 9 '51 50w

GREELEY, WILLIAM BUCKHOUT. Forests and men. 255p $3 Doubleday

634.9 Forests and forestry—U.S. Conservation of resources 51-10806

The history of forest conservation in the United States during the last forty years. The author is a former United States chief forester. Index.

Booklist 47:340 Je 1 '51

Bookmark 10:231 Jl '51 20w

Reviewed by Shane Leslie
Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 Je 24 '51 310w

Reviewed by R. C. Cowen
Christian Science Monitor p11 My 17 '51 440w

GREELEY, W. B.—Continued

"A book for every forestry school and lumber industry, this should prove a valuable reference as well as educational tool."
+ Kirkus 19:176 Mr 15 '51 160w

"Recommended." Clarence Gorchels
+ Library J 76:860 My 15 '51 130w

"Because Col. Greeley is widely known as a man who has opinions, plus the courage to state and the knowledge to support them cogently, his book has been looked forward to with more than usual interest by foresters, lumbermen and conservationists of all degrees. The book will not disappoint them. The colonel is in fine form." Stewart Holbrook
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 My 20 '51 900w

Reviewed by Russell Lord
N Y Times p17 My 20 '51 350w

"Partly a history of the whole Forest Service idea, partly persuasion and partly straight-out reporting of a movement that has spread widely and is now taking on new impetus, the book is one that anyone interested in the future of his country should know about. And it's good reading, too, for those who have ever thought about what trees mean to the U.S." J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p16 My 22 '51 600w

Wis Lib Bul 47:185 Jl '51

GREEN, ABEL, and LAURIE, JOE. Show biz, from vaude to video. 613p $5 Holt

792 Vaudeville. Television broadcasting. Theater—U.S. 51-13791

A history of all phases of American show business during the last fifty years. The authors are editor of Variety and star of radio and television respectively. Glossary. Index.

Booklist 48:119 D 1 '51

"This is a cool chronicling of the changing face of the amusement scene." William Leonard
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 N 25 '51 500w

Reviewed by John Beaufort
Christian Science Monitor p15 D 6 '51 250w

"What seems to be a complete roster should provide excellent reference, with a glossary and index to round it out."
+ Kirkus 19:522 S 1 '51 130w

"Highly recommended for theatre and American collections regardless of size." George Freedley
+ Library J 76:2116 D 15 '51 70w

" 'Show Biz' is written in a style of remarkable squalor, but with such tender faith and tireless attention to factual detail that it automatically becomes indispensable reading for students of the art of laying the peasants in the aisles. As to the style, it is based officially on the language of 'Variety.' " John Lardner
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 N 11 '51 800w

Reviewed by Lewis Nichols
N Y Times p4 N 11 '51 950w

Reviewed by William Hogan
San Francisco Chronicle p6 N 25 '51 120w

"The authors of this remarkable book will probably not consider it a compliment to be told that their work is an important historical and sociological document. Sounds too longhair. But it is that. They would doubtless prefer to hear that it is boffo or socko or b.o. Well, it's that, too." Garson Kanin
+ Sat R of Lit 34:31 D 22 '51 500w

Reviewed by Richard McLaughlin
Theatre Arts 36:3 Ja '52 100w

GREEN, FREDERICK LAWRENCE. Clouds in the wind. 528p $3.50 Coward-McCann 51-10266

"Using the chaos of World War II, and the uneasy peace that has followed for his background, the author has written a thriller in this story of Frank Chester, who in an attempt to preserve his marriage, becomes a British Army deserter and gets himself involved with black-marketeers and petty crooks." Library J

"The concept and scope of this dramatic novel take it out of the ordinary thriller category. Highly recommended." W. K. Harrison
+ Library J 76:704 Ap 15 '51 70w

Reviewed by Paul Bloomfield
Manchester Guardian p4 Mr 24 '50 100w

"An altogether preposterous book, in which the grossly improbable is regularly capped by the utterly incredible."
— New Statesman & Nation 39:438 Ap 15 '50 360w

"A weighty and somewhat leaden novel. . . It is a curiously ineffectual portrait. It is heavily burdened by an artificial and quite unconvincing plot, and its characters, ranging from the middle class to the lowest, have a classlessness which makes it impossible to distinguish one from the other."
— N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p11 Ap 29 '51 240w

"Engrossing and baffling in turn." C. V. Terry
N Y Times p16 Ap 15 '51 400w

"Clouds in the Wind is distended with analysis and comment which to me are of less value than its dramatic sequence of incident. That, I think, is why I cannot confidently say what the novel is about. The analysis and the comment make it look as if Mr. Green was attempting a full-length study of character. The sequence of incident is dramatic, or even cinematic. I do not know on which aspect he intends the emphasis to lie, and I feel that for all its merits the story falls between these two stools." L. A. G. Strong
— + Spec 184:396 Mr 24 '50 650w

Times [London] Lit Sup p225 Ap 14 '50 420w

GREEN, FREDERICK LAWRENCE. The magician. 255p $2.75 Coward-McCann 51-12461

"Concerned with the outlaw in both the spiritual and legal sense. The central characters are a conjuror, Phil Jonson, and his wife, Frankie. While Jonson discovers his terrible secret in the basement of Pemberger's Emporium where he is employed Frankie becomes involved in the dealings of a black-market gang. They each transgress in their own fashion limits set by society or reality and enter a strange, intense world." Publisher's note

Reviewed by Norman Shrapnel
Manchester Guardian p4 Mr 16 '51 120w

"F. L. Green has not been content to make this book a mere shocker. As a result, 'The Magician' alternates smooth terror and pace with passages of embarrassing overwriting. Even with these faults, however, the net effect is striking." Elizabeth Bullock
+ — N Y Times p47 N 18 '51 230w

"Ingredients of a nightmare—and well-mixed and spooned out; but injustice is done book and author by presentation in 'mystery' field. Perhaps half-baked as 'mysticism,' but very promising. Worth reading."
Sat R of Lit 34:48 N 3 '51 40w

"The first half of the Magician could scarcely be bettered, and recalls Mr. Patrick Hamilton's Hangover Square in its masterly evocation of petty evil . . . but suddenly symbolism comes creeping in, and our interest is abruptly transferred to a scarcely credible tale."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p161 Mr 16 '51 360w

GREEN, HENRY, pseud. of HENRY VINCENT YORKE. Caught. 196p $3 Viking 50-11006

London during the early days of World war II is the scene of this novel. The hero, Richard Roe, is a member of the auxiliary fire service. His little son has been sent to relatives in the country for the duration, and part of the story is of Richard's attempts to keep in touch with the boy on his rare days off. Richard's instructor at the fire station proves to be the brother of the demented woman who had once abducted Richard's son, and therein lies the tragedy of the novel.

Reviewed by C. J. Rolo
Atlantic 187:87 F '51 330w

Booklist 47:188 Ja 15 '51

Reviewed by Fanny Butcher
Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 D 31 '50 200w

"An effective and brilliant novel."
+ Kirkus 18:703 D 1 '50 150w

"This is one of the HG stories that the less enthusiastic may read and admire." K. T. Willis
+ Library J 76:41 Ja 1 '51 90w

"Not much of the wit and warmth that glowed from Henry Green's Loving and Back can be found in Caught. A partial explanation may lie in the fact that it was published in England in 1943 and must therefore have been written during or immediately after his enlistment in London's Auxiliary Fire Service. . . The depressing mood of Caught stems not only from the general atmosphere of bewilderment and suspicion but also from the main character, Richard Roe, who (as his name might indicate) is no character at all." Kate Simon
New Repub 124:20 Ja 29 '51 850w

Reviewed by James Hilton
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 D 31 '50 550w

Reviewed by Mark Schorer
N Y Times p5 D 31 '50 550w

New Yorker 26:92 F 3 '51 70w

"'Caught' is the most thoroughly serious, and very likely the best of Henry Green's novels so far published here." William Rose
+ San Francisco Chronicle p8 Ja 14 '51 250w

"It is a curious story, part whimsy, part satire, part mystery, and it does not add up at all." Walter Havighurst
Sat R of Lit 33:11 D 30 '50 450w

Time 57:62 Ja 1 '51 350w

GREEN, HENRY, pseud. of HENRY VINCENT YORKE. Concluding. 254p $3 Viking 51-5

"Takes place in one summer's day at a girl's school sometime in the future when England is entirely controlled by the state. Mr. Rock, an aged state pensioner lives in a school cottage. The fantastic happenings of the day play about the deaf old man." Library J

Reviewed by C. J. Rolo
Atlantic 187:87 F '51 330w

Booklist 47:188 Ja 15 '51

Reviewed by Fanny Butcher
Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 D 31 '50 200w

"A summer idyll with delightful humor as well as an indulgent sadness at the passing of time."
+ Kirkus 18:703 D 1 '50 150w

"If the reader considers this a stylized fairy tale it may be amusing. If not, it seemed to this reader an obscure anti-climax to HG's best stories. In spite of some clear and beautiful passages it is difficult going and is not one of the novels that need be bought by the library that chooses HG titles with discrimination." K. T. Willis
Library J 76:41 Ja 1 '51 90w

Reviewed by Kate Simon
New Repub 124:20 Ja 29 '51 850w

"'Concluding' is a novel of imagination and compassion, profoundly sexual, shot through and through with random beauties. . . [It] is a better novel than 'Caught'; but here too the terrain is a borderland of aberration in which the chief characters twist and turn in almost trance-like maneuverings." James Hilton
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 D 31 '50 250w

Reviewed by Mark Schorer
N Y Times p5 D 31 '50 550w

New Yorker 26:92 F 3 '51 70w

Reviewed by William Rose
San Francisco Chronicle p8 Ja 14 '51 250w

Reviewed by Walter Havighurst
Sat R of Lit 33:11 D 30 '50 450w

Time 57:62 Ja 1 '51 350w

GREEN, HENRY, pseud. of HENRY VINCENT YORKE. Party going. 255p $3 Viking 51-12431

"A party of young and idle society folk meet at a London station on their way to France for a holiday. Delayed by fog, they are forced to spend a number of hours in a hotel. In his unusual clipped and satirical style, Mr. Green has the characters reveal themselves not through lengthy description but through their own conversation." Library J

"This early novel of Henry Green's, published in England at the end of the twenties, gets off to a slightly confusing and rather self-consciously experimental start. But thereafter, admirers of Henry Green should find it utterly enchanting: a divertissement incongruously drenched in fog; a frivolity full of serious perceptions."
+ — Atlantic 188:86 O '51 140w

Booklist 48:50 O 1 '51

Bookmark 11:34 N '51 30w

Reviewed by Riley Hughes
Cath World 174:234 D '51 190w

Reviewed by August Derleth
Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 S 16 '51 360w

"This is subtle artistry, within its carefully defined limits." Ruth Chapin
+ Christian Science Monitor p13 S 13 '51 480w

"It is a book which collectors and devotees of Green will want and, for various reasons and in varying degrees, enjoy, but it will not, I think, win him new acclaim or new readers." Robert Wichert
Commonweal 54:626 O 5 '51 420w

Kirkus 19:335 Jl 1 '51 170w

"The author has a keen sense of high comedy and the ridiculous which whittles people down to pocket sizes. Recommended." C. J. Roth
+ Library J 76:1420 S 15 '51 70w

Reviewed by Kate Simon
New Repub 125:20 O 1 '51 200w

"Mr. Green writes his complex little novel in his own highly individual, frequently almost non-objective style. His sentences ramble and involute and occasionally come out with a jewel, but far more often empty handed." F. H. Bullock
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 S 16 '51 850w

"As an exercise it is brilliant, wonderfully exhibiting Green's talent for strange juxtapositions—of people, of situations, of emotions, of ideas. He is—and he was even when he wrote this book—a master of the incongruous. Through his incongruities he gives an effect not of the bizarre but of the absolutely life-like, and one relishes the freshness of his perceptions even when his material scarcely seems worth the imaginative effort he has spent on it." Granville Hicks
N Y Times p5 S 16 '51 450w

Reviewed by Brendan Gill
New Yorker 27:142 O 13 '51 180w

"Mr. Green can be trusted to treat all his people with freshness and accuracy. He sketches complex relationships and complications within character; his dialogue reveals tensions and temperaments. With a cool surgical hand he probes the natures of his people. In these trivial and irksome hours of waiting for the fog to lift and the trains to run, he tells all there is to know about this part." Walter Havighurst
+ Sat R of Lit 34:14 S 22 '51 550w

Time 58:114 S 17 '51 290w

GREEN, JULIAN. Moira; tr. by Denise Folliot. 200p $3 Macmillan
51-13792

"Concerns an American college student. Joseph Day isn't quite driven to insanity by his inner turmoil, but he does murder his chief temptress Moira before he exorcises the devil in his flesh." Library J

"American readers will not, I fear, find 'Moira' as ecstatically to their tastes as have the French critics. In a word, it is a tale, convincingly grim, and terrifyingly perceptive of dark urges, but strangely unconvincing so far as its characters are concerned." Fanny Butcher
Chicago Sunday Tribune p12 O 28 '51 500w

"A wittily-turned, wryly conceived story of the gargantuan crack-up of a religious fanatic, which succeeds only as ironic comment on irrational behavior rather than as tragedy."
Kirkus 19:452 Ag 15 '51 150w

"Can be safely skipped for most collections." R. E. Kingery
Library J 76:1333 S 1 '51 90w

Reviewed by Paul Bloomfield
Manchester Guardian p4 My 25 '51 150w

"A novel which sets out with the most serious intentions but never achieves anything but the profoundest bathos." John Raymond
— New Statesman & Nation 41:660 Je 9 '51 180w

"Whatever its merits as an examination of the heritage of Puritanism in America, 'Moira' is a powerful and impressive addition to the imaginative structure, at once repetitive and varied, which Green has been building since his 'Avarice House' appeared in 1927." Coleman Rosenberger
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 N 4 '51 900w

Reviewed by Walter Mehring
N Y Times p4 O 21 '51 410w

New Yorker 27:140 O 27 '51 120w

Reviewed by Henri Peyre
Sat R of Lit 34:17 N 24 '51 1200w

"M. Julian Green's latest novel is disappointing—very." R. D. Charques
— Spec 185:730 Je 1 '51 90w

Times [London] Lit Sup p383 Je 22 '51 600w

GREEN, PAUL D. Fabulous Freddie and the Saints and sinners. 289p il $3.50 Funk, W.
B or 92 Benham, Freddie. Circus saints and sinners club of America 51-5158

A biography of Frederick Darius Benham: war correspondent, circus reporter, press agent, and founder of the Saints and Sinners and other clubs.

"A Runyonish character in the midst of a frenzied gaiety, this is an entertaining record of antic, if ephemeral, actions."
+ Kirkus 19:240 My 1 '51 190w

"Paul D. Green tells the story in carnival spieler prose, naming and identifying participating celebrities by the bushel."
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p22 N 18 '51 200w

"It is to be feared that this book has one distinction, and not an enviable one. It may well be the most unnecessary book of recent times. . . I doubt if Mr. Green's accounts, running into scores of pages, of what the Saints and Sinners mischievously did at this luncheon and what they did at the next luncheon, on and on almost endlessly, will strike many as thrilling or amusing reading." John McNulty
— N Y Times p13 Jl 22 '51 750w

GREEN, ROGER LANCELYN. Story of Lewis Carroll. (Story biography ser) 179p il $2 Schuman
B or 92 Carroll, Lewis, pseud. (Charles Lutwidge Dodgson) 51-9791

American edition of a biography of Lewis Carroll which first appeared in England in 1947. It refutes the idea that the author of Alice, and the Oxford mathematics lecturer, was a dual personality. No index.

Booklist 47:241 Mr 1 '51

Kirkus 18:677 N 15 '50 170w

"An analytical undramatized English treatment, of importance to librarians, but of less general interest to young people." Virginia Haviland
+ Library J 76:122 Ja 15 '51 110w

"A surprisingly interesting biography. . . Mr. Green's book should be in every school library, though children will not be its only readers." Naomi Lewis
+ New Statesman & Nation 38:660 D 3 '49 90w

Reviewed by L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 Ja 21 '51 50w

GREENBERG, DAVID MORRIS, ed. Amino acids and proteins: theory, methods, application. 950p il $15 Thomas, C.C.
547.8 Amino acids. Proteins 51-9508

"A collection of original monographs on several aspects of the amino acids and proteins which are currently of interest in research. In each paper the topic named in its title is treated compactly with extensive references to the related literature. The book is written on a professional level and is aimed specifically at graduate students and professional biochemists beginning work in the field. It is a product of the famous Biochemistry Laboratory of the University of California." N Y New Tech Bks

"The general level of the chapters in the book is high. Surveying the treatise as a whole, however, one notices some important gaps. . . Most of all of the contributions to Greenberg's book were apparently prepared originally in 1947-1948, added passages being inserted later to cover further developments. . . However, taking due account of all these criticisms, the book remains a valuable contribution, and most workers seriously concerned with protein chemistry will wish to have a copy available." J. T. Edsall
+ — Am Chem Soc J 73:3549 Jl '51 600w

"This book represents an extremely valuable contribution and one which every person interested in amino acids and proteins should have on the bookshelf within easy reach." W. M. Stanley
+ Chem & Eng N 29:5076 N 26 '51 410w

N Y New Tech Bks 36:50 Jl '51

"As a whole, with its extensive chapter bibliographies, the volume is a valuable reference work."
+ U S Quarterly Bk R 7:200 Je '51 300w

GREENBERG, LEON ARNOLD. Antipyrine; a critical bibliographic review; with an introd. by Howard W. Haggard. (Inst. for the study of analgesic and sedative drugs. Monograph) 135p $4 Hillhouse press
615.75 Antipyretics

"Antipyrine was the first antifebrile and analgesic to be synthesized. The book opens with a brief historical introduction, which is followed by chapters on the physicochemical properties of antipyrine, the fate of antipyrine in the body, pharmacology and toxicology, therapeutic uses, antipyrine poisoning, tolerance, addiction, and habituation. Representing summaries of the literature on antipyrine over a period of more than thirty years, the chapters serve mainly as leaders to the sources listed in the Bibliography and Author Index, which contains 1,735 entries." (U S Quarterly Bk R) Bibliography. Indexes.

"The bibliographic search is so complete that it is apparent that but very few references in the usual scientific languages could have been overlooked." L. E. Warren
+ Chem & Eng N 29:1577 Ap 16 '51 220w

U S Quarterly Bk R 7:96 Mr '51 170w

GREENBERG, MARTIN, ed. Journey to infinity; introduced by Fletcher Pratt. 381p $3.50 Gnome press

Short stories—Collections 51-9207

An anthology of science fiction, arranged "around a central idea, one which moves logically from story to story—and which, taken in its entirety, tells a complete story." The central idea is the history of mankind from prehistoric times to the year 1,562,430 A.D.

Booklist 47:255 Mr 15 '51

Kirkus 18:737 D 15 '50 90w

N Y Times p19 Je 3 '51 150w

"Excellently edited. . . Although each of these [stories] was written by a different man, working independently, and appeared at different times in magazines, they have been fitted together so smoothly that you feel you are reading a cosmic Toynbee. Certainly this new volume belongs alongside this same editor's 'Men Against the Stars' as one of the most successful anthologies in the field." Don Fabun

+ San Francisco Chronicle p17 F 4 '51 150w

GREENBERG, SIDNEY. Infinite in Giordano Bruno; with a tr. of his dialogue: Concerning the cause, principle, and one. 203p $3 King's Crown press

195 Bruno, Giordano 50-8533

"The material of this study falls into three separate parts: an introduction, a translation, and notes. The second part is a complete translation into English of Bruno's Concerning the Cause, Principle, and One. . . The Introduction is presented in nine sections and occupies one-third of the book; its chief contributions lie in the history of the interpretation of Bruno—showing how the doctors disagree—and the running commentary on both the De la causa and the De l'infinito." (U S Quarterly Bkl) Bibliography. Index.

"Sidney Greenberg has given a very scholarly analysis of the highly intricate philosophy of Giordano Bruno." J. L. Jones

+ Crozer Q 29:75 Ja '52 950w

Reviewed by Alan Gewirth

Ethics 61:91 O '50 190w

"This is a useful book." H. T. C.

+ J Philos 48:368 My 24 '51 350w

"Mr. Greenberg has rendered a great service to those interested in sixteenth-century Italian thought not only in his essays on Bruno which preface this volume but also by his translation of the dialogue on the cause, principle, and one." G. B.

+ J Philos 48:369 My 24 '51 150w

"The translation is smooth and clear, and brings out the brilliant style of the original dialogues. . . The notes are scholarly; the bibliography brings Salvestrini's standard one down to date but omits translations of Bruno."

+ U S Quarterly Bkl 6:293 S '50 240w

GREENE, GRAHAM. End of the affair. 240p $3 Viking

51-13559

A story of an adulterous love affair and of how it changed from love to hate and back again to love, but in the last instance to divine love.

"An absorbing piece of work, passionately felt and stirringly written. There are exceedingly few novelists who can match Greene's superb command of language, mood, and suspense." C. J. Rolo

+ Atlantic 188:88 N '51 550w

Booklist 48:101 N 15 '51

"This is not everybody's book. Yet in structure and in quick moments of insight The End of the Affair surpasses everything Mr. Greene has done before." Riley Hughes

+ Cath World 174:312 Ja '52 300w

Reviewed by Richard Sullivan

Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 O 28 '51 320w

"The story [is] a singularly beautiful and moving one. . . The relationship of lover to husband with its crazy mutations of pity, hate, comradeship, jealousy and contempt is superbly described. For the first time in Mr. Greene's work there is humor. The heroine is consistently lovable. Again and again Mr. Greene has entered fully into a scene of high emotion which any one else would have shirked. Instead of pistol-shots there are tears." Evelyn Waugh

+ Commonweal 54:458 Ag 17 '51 1000w

Reviewed by Francis Downing

Commonweal 55:298 D 28 '51 320w

Kirkus 19:492 S 1 '51 160w

"A fearfully depressing triangle novel, scene laid in wartime London; it is relieved by ironic perception and felicitous phrasing, but so proselytizing in tone that Sarah, the recently dead mistress of the narrator, actually works two miracles near the end of the novel." E. F. Walbridge

Library J 76:1333 S 1 '51 100w

"This is beyond question a wonderfully written book. Here Greene has abandoned violence, and this is all gain. The needs of his characteristic shock tactics have still to be met; for melodrama he has substituted a few mild miracles but these need bother nobody and can even be ignored without much loss. The narrator, a novelist who is Sarah's lover, is superbly drawn." Norman Shrapnel

+ Manchester Guardian p4 S 7 '51 240w

Reviewed by Louise Bogan

New Repub 125:29 D 10 '51 800w

Reviewed by J. D. Scott

New Statesman & Nation 42:258 S 8 '51 900w

Reviewed by Thomas Sugrue

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 O 28 '51 850w

Reviewed by George Mayberry

N Y Times p5 O 28 '51 450w

Reviewed by Anthony West

New Yorker 27:154 N 10 '51 400w

Reviewed by Don Pitt

San Francisco Chronicle p8 O 21 '51 750w

"This is the most brilliantly written of Mr. Greene's books. All the twentieth-century techniques are used: the flashback, the stream-of-consciousness, the interior monologue, the dialogue carrying action forward à la Hemingway, the various devices to get around the first narrator's suspect authority, diaries, letters, detectives emptying wastepaper baskets. Yet all together prove absolutely valid, as fluently successful as the various angles of camera shots in the faultless movie." Anne Fremantle

+ Sat R of Lit 34:11 O 27 '51 1050w

"The characters are strongly drawn, the writing is clear and relaxed, the construction superb. I foresee that I shall read the book often, and each time get something more from it." L. A. G. Strong

+ Spec 187:310 S 7 '51 390w

Reviewed by U. K. Alpert

Springf'd Republican p30A N 11 '51 100w

Reviewed by Richard McLaughlin

Theatre Arts 35:34 D '51 600w

Time 58:98 O 29 '51 4300w

"In spite of its startling conclusion this is an uninspired and rather humourless novel. Almost all the characters are stock characters."

Times [London] Lit Sup p561 S 7 '51 500w

GREENER, LESLIE. Moon ahead; il. by William Pène du Bois. 256p $2.50 Viking

51-14070

Science-fiction adventure tale for teen-age boys and girls.

Booklist 48:161 Ja 1 '52

Bookmark 11:61 D '51

Kirkus 19:443 Ag 15 '51 130w

GREENER, LESLIE—Continued

"Mr. Du Bois' drawings, diagrams, endpapers, are of course fascinating, and well worth the attention of those junior high readers who say they prefer to do their own imagining. This is handsome bookmaking indeed compared to other fiction at the same price." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p22 N 11 '51 90w

"Written in a light vein, this tale of space adventure is easy to read, not too sophisticated and refreshing in its lack of grimness." F. C. Smith

+ N Y Times p52 N 25 '51 200w

"This is one of the best of the 'science-fiction' stories. . . The awe-inspiring effect of the dead moon and of space is particularly well described. The drawings by William Pène du Bois and his diagrams are an essential part of a very successful book."

+ Sat R of Lit 35:36 Ja 12 '52 150w

GREENLEAF, ALLEN R. Photographic optics. 214p $4.75 Macmillan

771.352 Photographic optics 50-14514

"This book deals with such topics as the resolving power of lenses, aberrations of lenses, focusing, choosing and testing a lens, camera shutters, filters, viewfinders, rangefinders, computation of required exposure, and stereoscopy. Much more space is given to optical principles and to mathematical calculations in optics than to descriptions of lenses and other camera accessories. However, there is a fair amount of material of the latter kind. . . Included is a useful appendix in which lens types are described and diagrammed and the type of each commercial make of lens is identified." Library J

Booklist 47:91 N 1 '50

Cleveland Open Shelf p18 S '51

Reviewed by R. R. Hawkins

Library J 75:2009 N 15 '50 160w

GREENWOOD, ORMEROD. The playwright; a study of form, method, and tradition in the theatre. 214p $3.75 Pitman

808.2 Drama—Technique [51-2059]

"[An] approach to playwriting, with bold comparisons between modern work and the Restoration, Elizabethan and Greek. Of value to the student, historian and critic." Library J

"Highly recommended for drama and theatre collections." George Freedley

+ Library J 76:1128 Jl '51 30w

"In a compact compass of 214 pages Ormerod Greenwood has covered the theatrical ground between the ancients and the moderns in a thoroughly informative and pleasurable fashion." Siegfried Mandel

+ Sat R of Lit 34:34 S 29 '51 180w

GREER, DONALD. Incidence of the emigration during the French revolution. 173p $3 Harvard univ. press

944.04 France—Emigration and immigration. France—History—Revolution. Emigrés 51-9541

"This volume, based on archival sources, treats the emigration during the French Revolution between July 1789 and November 1799. An attempt is made to determine statistically the number of émigrés, the regions most or least affected, the social classes to which the displaced persons belonged, and the motives of individuals for emigrating." (U S Quarterly Bkl) Bibliography. Index.

"The value of such a study as this is beyond question. The reviewer would urge the author to apply the statistical method also to an investigation of the incidence of prison life in France during the Terror." M. B. Garrett

+ Am Hist R 56:881 Jl '51 320w

"Everyone who is interested in the French Revolution will benefit from this book. It is worth a glance, as well, by anyone who is concerned in historical problems at all. . . Statistics open a new and most exciting door to history; and we ought to have books like this on all kinds of subjects." A. J. P. Taylor

+ Manchester Guardian p4 Je 29 '51 280w

U S Quarterly Bk R 7:165 Je '51 160w

GREER, GERTRUDE G. Adventures in weaving. 425p il pl col pl $12 Bennett

745.52 Weaving 51-4961

"Essentially this is a reference and 'idea' book for advanced amateurs, or at least those amateurs who have become enough interested in the weaving craft to desire to know a good deal about intricate designs and unusual fabrics. The chapter titled 'Some Hints for Beginners' contains useful information, but it is hardly adequate for those who are really starting from scratch. Most of the book consists of illustrations and directions for both standard and unusual weaves. In addition, there are aids to further study, such as a glossary of Swedish-English weaving terms and a bibliography of books on weaving. The chapter on trouble shooting will be of practical help to many amateur weavers." N Y New Tech Bks

Booklist 48:7 S 1 '51

Reviewed by A. S. Plaut

Library J 76:2006 D 1 '51 130w

N Y New Tech Bks 36:79 S '51

GREER, HOWARD. Designing male. 310p il $4 Putnam

B or 92 51-6641

The autobiography of a Nebraska farm boy who at one time worked with Lady Duff Gordon, and later established his own dress designing studio in Hollywood.

Booklist 48:158 Ja 1 '52

"His story is incredible at times, daring, informative—but never dull. The 'Designing Male' is a local boy who made good." Richard Blakesley

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 S 16 '51 400w

Reviewed by Lisle Bell

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p13 D 16 '51 240w

"Greer is discreet when it comes to the problems of helping misshaped forms to look divine and mentions no names. But he is outspoken in his admiration for Greta Garbo, among others. His chapter on the shy, silent Swede (whom he met after opening his first house of couture on Sunset Boulevard in 1927) is the most affectionate and revealing portrait of the real Garbo that this reviewer has ever read." T. M. Pryor

+ N Y Times p21 S 30 '51 500w

GREGOR, ARTHUR STEPHEN. Time out for youth. 235p $2.50 Macmillan

136.7354 Conduct of life. Youth 51-5717

"Straightforward discussion of modern teenage problems by New York teacher who has helped young people through their difficulties for many years. Treats such vital subjects as relations with family, teachers, fellow students; petting, going steady, drinking, smoking, driving the family car; money troubles, part-time work, use of leisure time; mental health, prejudices, self respect. Questions at end of chapters encourage self analysis." (Library J) No index.

Booklist 48:35 S 15 '51

"If teen-agers want advice from books, this is a good source of help on understanding parents; on brother and sister relationships; on attitudes toward school, teachers, other boys and girls, and minorities; and on other behavior problems which concern young people." S. M. A.

+ Horn Bk 27:338 S '51 60w

"A sane, practical and thorough investigation of teen age problems with the emphasis on fruitful self-analysis."
+ Kirkus 19:188 Ap 1 '51 130w

"Highly recommended for high school age." Ruth Bostwick
+ Library J 76:970 Je 1 '51 60w

"Contains twenty talks which offer a lot of serious, good advice. . . It is recommended." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Ja 13 '52 80w

"Boys and girls alike will find Mr. Gregor's discussions of democracy in everyday life and the problems of the atomic age stimulating and encouraging with their suggestions as to what young people can do to meet the challenges of this age." E. L. B.
+ N Y Times p22 Ag 19 '51 120w

GREGORY, HORACE. Selected poems. 143p $3 Viking 811 51-11788

"Almost one half of this volume is given over to the new poems of Horace Gregory, those composed during the last decade. With the earlier poems which fill the rest of the book, one is able to follow the development of a very distinguished art in contemporary poetry." N Y Times

"The new poems, 'The Garden and the City,' have the same finish, the same intelligence and passion as the earlier work; they add a certain 'quality of hauntedness'—the voice of a decade in which so much is nightmare. Published by themselves they would be a notable collection; together with the earlier achievements they constitute probably the most important volume of poetry published this year." J. F. Nims
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 S 16 '51 400w

Kirkus 19:340 Jl 1 '51 100w

Reviewed by Gerald McDonald
Library J 76:2115 D 15 '51 110w

Reviewed by M. L. Rosenthal
New Repub 125:28 D 10 '51 480w

"Not all his best poems are in this new book; the selecting has been rigidly done. But I would suppose that Gregory has brought together the poems which now most interest him, and those are bound to be—for us—the ones in which his maturing as a poet is evident in most individual ways. Certainly this is the process one feels in reading through." W. T. Scott
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p3 Ag 19 '51 700w

"This is poetry of a man who participates in all phases of his world and who is able to create out of their innumerable contexts descriptions which are bare and brief, and commentaries which are often of a highly metaphysical nature. The ease and the keenness of this participation seem to me to be Horace Gregory's outstanding power." Wallace Fowlie
+ N Y Times p5 Ag 19 '51 650w

Reviewed by Lawrence Ferling
San Francisco Chronicle p19 N 18 '51 '51 110w

GREGORY, WILLIAM KING, ed. Anatomy of the gorilla; the studies of Henry Cushier Raven; and contributions by William B. Atkinson [and others] a collaborative work of the American museum of natural history and Columbia university. 259p 116pl $15 Columbia univ. press
599.82 Gorillas. Raven, Henry Cushier

"Collection of the material began with an African expedition supported by the American Museum of Natural History and Columbia University and led by Raven in 1929-1930. The illustrations are all based on original observations and dissections. They are clear and well reproduced. Raven's own material is supplemented by essays and drawings by six of his colleagues." (Library J) A complete bibliography of the writings of Henry Cushier Raven is included. Index.

"It is certain that this is not the book that Raven had planned, or that he would have prepared had he lived to complete it. It suffers from the defects of nearly all posthumous publications—incompleteness and unevenness of treatment. Both Raven and Hill had worked chiefly on the musculature, and the major part of the book is a thorough description of the muscles, illustrated with magnificent plates. The description of the viscera, in the form of short supplementary sections by various anatomists, are more sketchy and less adequately illustrated. None of them can be regarded as definitive descriptions. A few regions, notably the central nervous system and the ligaments, have been omitted entirely. Despite such defects, unavoidable under the circumstances, The Anatomy of the Gorilla is a magnificent volume that will be used by generations of anatomists and physical anthropologists." D. D. Davis
+ — Am Anthropol 53:393 Jl '51 380w

"A monumental work whether viewed as a contribution to comparative anatomy or as an extension of our knowledge of the gorilla. . . The work is for advanced students of anatomy and graduate scientists working in comparative anatomy and allied fields rather than for the general reader. However, its importance justifies its purchase for any active collection of anatomy." R. R. Hawkins
+ Library J 76:117 Ja 15 '51 120w

"So far as it goes, the text is a masterpiece, and will serve as a standard reference to comparative anatomists."
+ U S Quarterly Bk R 7:202 Je '51 280w

GREIG, MAYSIE (JENNIFER AMES, pseud). Dark carnival. 245p $2.50 Random house 50-12635

Mystery story.

Kirkus 18:535 S 1 '50 100w

"Only a rather obtuse heroine would fail to put two and two together to solve this mystery. But it takes Shirley the length of a novel to do it."
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 D 31 '50 170w

"The dialogue, full of that arch, breathless quality that is popular on daytime radio serials, is probably most effective if read while munching chocolate creams." Hillis Mills
N Y Times p27 D 10 '50 150w

Reviewed by L. G. Offord
San Francisco Chronicle p15 N 19 '50 80w

"With the deftness of an old, practised hand Maysie Greig has juggled romance, intrigue, and murder against a background of luxury hotels, flower-laden floats, and mysterious masked revelers. 'Dark Carnival' is a racy, cliché-ridden story." Ray Pierre
Sat R of Lit 34:33 Ja 6 '51 240w

GRENE, DAVID. Man in his pride; a study in the political philosophy of Thucydides and Plato. 230p $4 Univ. of Chicago press
320.938 Thucydides. Plato. Greece—Politics and government 50-10329

"This little volume presents two related studies of the political philosophies of Thucydides and Plato. Thucydides' philosophy, the author believes, can be discerned in his directly expressed verdicts, in his judgments concerning personalities whose political orientations are known from other sources, and in the speeches incorporated in the historical narrative. . . In his discussion of Plato's political principles, the author, a classicist, follows recent interpretation in disallowing that Plato taught philosophy beyond the materials presented in the Dialogues." U S Quarterly Bk R

GRENE, DAVID—Continued

"This work of genuine scholarship is rich in evaluative statements. A few generalizations may be questioned." R. C. Macridis
+ — Am Pol Sci R 45:541 Je '51 750w
+ U S Quarterly Bk R 7:35 Mr '51 190w

GRETOR, ESTHER. Kippie, the cow; tr. from the Danish by Kurt Singer; il. by Gettermann. 28p $2 Messner
51-13088

Story of a Danish farmer and his cow Kippie, who had a mind of her own. In this story the farmer took Kippie the cow to the fair and earned enough money so he could keep her, to the delight of his children.

Booklist 48:108 N 15 '51

"A tale storytellers and children will welcome." J. D. Lindquist and S. M. Andrews
+ Horn Bk 27:323 S '51 60w
Kirkus 19:481 S 1 '51 100w

"A humorous story with the flavor of the folk tale." Inger Boye
+ Library J 76:1942 N 15 '51 70w

GREW, DAVID. Paddy points the way. 244p $2.75 Coward-McCann
50-10226

Story of a boy and a dog who ran away with each other but had to learn some bitter truths before they could really belong.

Reviewed by Vernon Ives
Chicago Sunday Tribune p17 Mr 4 '51 150w

"An eventful summer and a struggle of a boy and dog to get together makes a good story with plenty of dog interest."
+ Kirkus 18:643 O 15 '50 130w

"Both boys and parents will profit by the lesson taught, but the unsympathetic family life, shown in the beginning of the story, detracts from the value of the whole. Recommended with some reservations. Ages 12-14." D. M. Blasco
+ — Library J 75:2162 D 15 '50 80w

"Mr. Grew handles animals much better than people. His characters, except for the dog, are very wooden, very unreal, and in the case of Paul's father and mother unpleasant, yet unconvincing. Story doesn't come off—a disappointment after his earlier books. Not recommended." Elizabeth Johnson
— + Library J 75:2162 D 15 '50 80w

"It is unfortunate that the basically sound conceptions of character and situation are not wholly rounded. But the story is sincerely told, and boys and girls will probably like Paul and his dog and the girl he meets on the farm." F. C. Smith
+ — N Y Times p34 O 29 '50 170w

GRIFFITH, ERNEST STACEY. Congress; its contemporary role. 193p $3.50 N.Y. univ. press
328.73 U.S. Congress 51-6209

"In this small volume Director of Legislative Reference Service depicts Congress' function in our national life. Author's position gives him insight rivalled by few. Avoiding technical or legal angles, he deals with various aspects such as executive-legislative relations, appropriations, economic planning, pressure groups, political parties, etc. all with regard to Congress." Library J

Booklist 47:393; 48:43 Jl 15 '51; O 1 '51

"Here is a book which will give the ordinary reader both a better opinion and a better understanding of Congress. It is a useful counterbalance to most destructive criticism of Congress and it helpfully challenges with pragmatic knowledge some of the more theoretical programs for reform." Donovan Richardson
+ Christian Science Monitor p9 O 16 '51 600w
Current Hist 21:229 O '51 60w
Kirkus 19:371 Jl 15 '51 160w

"While many readers might wish a more critical viewpoint, book will be informative and stimulating to the layman as well as to the expert in the field. Recommended for public and educational libraries." H. H. Bernt
+ Library J 76:1214 Ag '51 90w

"Ernest S. Griffith has had a distinguished university career, is the author of several books on modern government, and is now director of the Legislative Reference Service in Washington. He is admirably fitted for the task he undertakes in these lectures: to make the experience of Congress meaningful within the context of contemporary conditions. His conclusions are generally optimistic." August Heckscher
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 S 16 '51 470w

"Griffith's book covers so many aspects of a highly complex subject as to permit only a sketch of the highlights here. It is a well-informed and provocative volume, with much solid material in it and many debatable conclusions. His work, however, would be more stimulating if he were as able a writer as he is an observer." Nona Brown
+ — N Y Times p3 S 9 '51 950w

GRIGSON, GEOFFREY, ed. Horse and rider; eight centuries of equestrian paintings. 96p 64pl 2 col pl $3 Thames 758.39725 Horses—Pictures, illustrations, etc.
51-5134

A collection of 64 photogravure plates with 2 in color, illustrating European equestrian painting over eight centuries. Includes a short introduction and a note on each plate.

"Recommended for both sport and art." R. W. Henderson
+ Library J 76:780 My 1 '51 40w

"Lovers of art, notably that portraying the horse, will find this book of special interest." C. E. M.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p20 Jl 22 '51 170w

"It is possibly a sign of foreign selection (as well as production) of the plates that they omit such characteristic English horse-painters as Seymour (who had a highly individual vision of the horse and jockey), Wootton and James Ward. Yet, even with such omissions, the selection is agreeable."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p16 Ja 12 '51 230w

GRINGHUIS, RICHARD H. (DIRK GRINGHUIS, pseud). Tulip time. 32p il $1.50 Whitman, A.
51-3279

"The annual tulip festival at Holland, Michigan provides the background for this easy-to-read story of Dutch customs and costumes. Gaily illustrated by the author, it will be read by third and fourth graders and useful for the study of old Holland and Michigan." Wis Lib Bul

Kirkus 19:245 My 15 '51 90w

"Children will like it, and teachers will find it useful to correlate with the study of both old Holland and Michigan." E. E. Frank
+ Library J 76:1034 Je 15 '51 40w
Springf'd Republican p8D Jl 1 '51 70w
Wis Lib Bul 47:192 Jl '51

GRISWOLD, DON L., and GRISWOLD, JEAN HARVEY. Carbonate camp called Leadville. 296p il $7.50 Univ. of Denver press
978.846 Leadville, Colorado. Mines and mineral resources—Colorado

A history of the mining camp town of Leadville, Colorado, from 1860 when mineral was first discovered in the district to the summer of 1880. The story is a composite of facts, legends and yarns taken from local newspapers and books written by authors who knew the town in those days.

"The Griswolds—native Coloradoans, both—have dug deeply into old records and have come up with the best history of Leadville from 1859 to 1881 this reader has seen. It must be recorded, however, that as history it is incomplete, since the decline of Leadville and of characters such as H. A. W. Tabor was quite as spectacular as their meteoric rise." Hoffman Birney

+ N Y Times p31 S 23 '51 170w

"Perhaps the authors shouldn't be called to account for failing to do something they did not set out to do. But the fact remains that this volume is a lot closer to being the well-arranged notes for a book than it is to being a book." J. H. Jackson

San Francisco Chronicle p14 Ag 7 '51 550w

GROENEWEGEN-FRANKFORT, HENRIETTE ANTONIA. See Frankfort, H. A. G.

GROVE, SIR GEORGE. Beethoven, Schubert, Mendelssohn; with an introd. by Eric Blom. 394p $5 Macmillan

780.92 Beethoven, Ludwig van. Schubert, Franz Peter. Mendelssohn-Bartholdy, Felix

Three essays written by Sir George Grove for the original editions (1878 and 1879) of his Dictionary of Music and Musicians. The editor of the forthcoming fifth edition explains in his introduction that while these lengthy chapters can no longer be incorporated in the dictionary, they are classics and should be preserved.

"We have here, admirably reprinted, three essays, of which the second is the most touchingly appreciative; the third, despite fine passages, the most disproportionate and in some respects outgrown . . . and the first, immeasurably the best, indeed one of the permanently outstanding masterpieces of music biography and criticism. The biographical pages on Beethoven, dealing with the master's eccentricities as well as his powers, have made thousands of musical youths draw breath more quickly. . . And there is plenty of humor. . . One has to respect, one has even to love, the deep devotion Grove gave to the musicians he studied so faithfully and so long." D. G. Mason

+ Sat R of Lit 34:21 O 27 '51 500w

Times [London] Lit Sup p336 Je 1 '51 240w

GRYLLS, ROSALIE GLYNN. Trelawny. 256p il $4 Macmillan

B or 92 Trelawny, Edward John

"Edward John Trelawny, who gained immortality as the companion and chronicler of the last days of Shelley and Byron, lived such an adventuresome existence that his unconventional career from a sea-roving youth to a truculent old age has a perennial interest. This biography, the third in twenty years, stresses the Cornish background of Trelawny as responsible for his roving spirit and the imaginative qualities which helped 'the pirate' achieve such an easy rapport with the poets. The author, also a native of Cornwall, has uncovered a number of hitherto unpublished letters and documents which illuminate the portrait." N Y Times

"The author has done a useful service in filling in the background of Trelawny's later life, when he had become a legend among the younger generation, the last surviving link with the giants of an earlier age." L. A. Marchand

+ N Y Times p5 My 6 '51 800w

New Yorker 26:95 F 3 '51 190w

GUERARD, ALBERT JOSEPH. Andre Gide. 263p $4 Harvard univ. press

843 Gide, Andre Paul Guillaume 51-11673

"The volume contains first a preface, spiced with personal anecdotes, and then five chapters of about the same length. The first is a psychological study of 'The Crisis of Individualism' in our time; the second treats of Gide's 'Spiritual Autobiographies' (such books as 'The Notebooks of André Walter' and 'If It Die'); the third is dedicated to the earlier novels (particularly 'The Immoralist'), and the fourth to the narratives of the later years, especially 'The Counterfeiters.' The concluding fifth chapter bears the ironical title, 'The Corruptor of Youth'—an unmistakable allusion to Socrates' trial, and a very fitting one. For at each step, Gide's 'corrupting' effect . . . is reminiscent of Socrates and the radical-Protestant confessionalism of J. J. Rousseau. It stands, so to speak, in this mythical tradition." (N Y Times) Chronology. Index.

Reviewed by Harvey Breit
Atlantic 188:82 S '51 350w

Booklist 48:46 O 1 '51

Reviewed by Paul Engle
Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 Ag 19 '51 450w

Reviewed by Van Meter Ames
Christian Century 68:1279 N 7 '51 410w

"As a scholarly study, the book presumes intimate acquaintance with the texts. For the student of the technical, formal, and comparative aspects of literature, it abounds in penetrating and often unorthodox insights admirably expressed." Ruth Chapin

+ Christian Science Monitor p7 Ag 23 '51 600w

"Not an introductory book for it assumes substantial familiarity with Gide and his works. Essential for serious study of this writer. Not needed in general, popular collections." R. E. Kingery

Library J 76:1214 Ag '51 70w

"This new volume by Albert J. Guerard will easily stand as the best book on Gide in English and, next to Jean Hytier's acute analysis of Gide's art, the best in any language." Henri Peyre

+ Nation 173:174 S 1 '51 1250w

"The death of André Gide six months ago makes this illuminating study of his personality and art especially timely." Lloyd Morris

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 Ag 19 '51 550w

"Albert J. Guerard, Associate Professor of English at Harvard, an American of European descent, a man of comprehensive literary erudition, intimately familiar with French intellectual currents, does understand and makes understandable, America's aloofness toward a writer who has acquired the rank of a 'contemporain capital' during a life conducted with magnificent and conscientious candor. . . The ordered, lucid intelligence of a sagacious critic is needed to conquer the contradictions and paradoxes of the oeuvre born from this anarchy—and Mr. Guerard's book possesses and practices this skill. Its author is precisely the stylist which the task requires. A thoroughly Americanized Frenchman, he uses his rich vocabulary to write an English of utmost flexibility that matches achievement with achievement and is able to follow the tortured twists of its theme, since it is both progeny and instrument of the determination to simplify the complex and bring order into the chaos." Thomas Mann

+ N Y Times p1 Ag 19 '51 3150w

"By and large, this is one of the most brilliant studies of Gide in existence; it transcends literary criticism and enters the region of philosophy."

+ New Yorker 27:71 S 1 '51 230w

"It would be unjust to criticize Mr. Guerard for not having written a more comprehensive analysis of Gide. But having chosen as his subject the novelist, why did he follow a suggestion made by André Gide himself and devote his last chapter to an erudite but confused discussion of the Gidian influence, which far transcends his subject and could not but get out of hand? That Gide, piqued by the limitations his critic saw in him as a novelist, should have tried to draw attention to his lasting influence as a moral disturber is natural enough. But in so doing he led Mr. Guerard to elaborate a conclusion which, at best, belongs with a different book. Despite this, his book is by far the best we have on Gide in English." Justin O'Brien

+ — Sat R of Lit 34:12 Ag 18 '51 550w

GUEST, GORDON HAMILTON. Radioisotopes; industrial applications. 185p il $4.50 Pitman

541.2 Isotopes 51-11330

"This book by a Canadian author is designed to supply information to laboratory and industrial users about radioisotopes, what they are, what they can be used for, and the necessary precautions in their use." Library J

Reviewed by W. D. Tiedeman
Am J Pub Health 41:1303 O '51 170w

Booklist 47:397 Jl 15 '51

"This book is recommended as a concise, readable collection of background information for the layman or industrialist who is considering the use of radioisotopes in his business." A. F. Rupp
+ Chem & Eng N 29:4016 S 24 '51 170w

Reviewed by R. R. Hawkins
Library J 76:1429 S 15 '51 110w

GUETZKOW, HAROLD STEERS, ed. Groups, leadership and men; research in human relations; reports on research sponsored by the Human relations and morale branch of the Office of naval research, 1945-1950. (Carnegie press publication) 293p $5 Rutgers univ. press

301.155 Leadership. Group work 51-11130

"A series of research reports in the field of human relations. It tells the story of five years of work in the study of human behavior sponsored by the Office of Naval Research but carried out by individuals and research groups across the United States. These reports were presented originally at a conference of research people in September of 1950." Ann Am Acad

"On the whole and by and large, as the lawyers say, it is an excellent summary of an unusually fruitful conference." Douglas Courtney
+ Ann Am Acad 277:249 S '51 500w

School & Society 73:335 My 26 '51 20w

Reviewed by N. J. Demerath
Social Forces 30:240 D '51 650w

"Social psychologists will find this book stimulating and valuable; and although some of the papers are somewhat technical, an appendix is provided to assist the general reader."
+ U S Quarterly Bk R 7:301 S '51 210w

GULICK, LUTHER HALSEY. American forest policy; a study of government administration and economic control. 252p $3.50 Duell

634.9 Forests and forestry—U.S. 51-10882

"The rapid depletion of our timber resources and the ever-soaring prices of lumber are matters of immediate concern to all of us. To combat this depletion and to ensure future supplies of cheap lumber, a complicated forest policy based on theories, political decisions, practical programs, and conflicting interests, has been evolved in this country. This volume describes the development of this policy, shows how its various programs have come about, and analyses and assesses the effectiveness of its operations." Library J

Booklist 48:95 N 15 '51

"Of interest to political economists, forestry officials and those concerned with the lumber industry." J. E. Brown
Library J 76:1926 N 15 '51 100w

"Neither alarming nor optimistic, but a sensible, down-to-earth study invaluable for everyone interested in the subject."
+ Nation 173:457 N 24 '51 40w

"Despite the rather stiff form that a staff study report imposes, Gulick writes warmly and penetrates at many places to the core of complexities and conflicts which badly need unbiased approach. 'American Forest Policy' will serve as a useful shelf-book for a number of years to come." Russell Lord
+ N Y Times p18 Ja 13 '52 420w

GULICK, PEGGY, and DRESSER, ELIZABETH. Dear Uncle Looy [il. by the authors]. unp $1.75 Knopf

51-11089

Another picture storybook for ages 4 to 8 about the Panda family, Mama and Papa and Sing, Sang, Sung and Willie, and Uncle Looy who sent them a present they did not understand.

"It is hard to conceive of any child who would not enjoy this book, as delightful in its text as in its illustrations." Marcia Winn
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 N 11 '51 50w

Reviewed by E. C. Ince
Christian Science Monitor p13 S 27 '51 90w

Kirkus 19:432 Ag 15 '51 90w

"Recommended for purely frivolous addition to the picture-book section." S. J. Johnson
+ Library J 76:1942 N 15 '51 80w

"Although the story is rather light in weight, most youngsters from 3 to 7 who have ever received a present will want to know what's in the package and will be intrigued by the mystery wrapped up in it. The bold and spacious illustrations are a delight." Elena Baker
+ N Y Times p40 N 11 '51 140w

GULLIKSEN, HAROLD. Theory of mental tests. 486p $6 Wiley

151.2 Mental tests 50-12652

"Brings together the technical developments in test theory of the last 50 years (material previously scattered throughout many different books and periodicals) in one convenient and authoritative source. Intended primarily for those working in test development." Management R

"In general, the book represents a thorough coverage of the literature of test theory. . . The author has drawn on a wide variety of sources in presenting his materials and has faithfully and painstakingly rendered acknowledgments to the many workers whose studies are presented." K. W. Vaughn
+ El School J 51:534 My '51 800w

Management R 40:163 Mr '51 40w

"Some of the material is new and has not yet appeared in the literature. A semester course in statistics is an absolute minimum of preparation for a course using this as a textbook. College algebra and a year of psychological statistics would be normally adequate. Some slight use is made of matrix algebra, and several pages are devoted to such elementary theorems as are needed in the text."
U S Quarterly Bk R 7:73 Mr '51 200w

GUMP, RICHARD. Good taste costs no more. 185p il $5 Doubleday

749 Furniture. House decoration. Design, Industrial. Esthetics 51-13815

A merchant-designer, head of a famous San Francisco house, discusses various aspects of good taste in interior decorating, advancing such rules as: Age is not an automatic measure of value; A foreign stamp is no criterion of extra value; A master doesn't always create a masterpiece; Overelaboration is not beauty.

Bookmark 11:80 Ja '52 20w

Library J 77:51 Ja 1 '52 90w

"Mr. Gump's book is exceedingly readable. Although his theme is fairly simple he manages to hold your interest all the way through." Peter Blake
+ N Y Times p14 D 9 '51 500w

"Altogether, with its lavish use of illustration and its solid horse-sense text, its willingness to talk plain language and let the chips fall where they may, this is a very good book in its field. It should help enormously to raise the level of taste still another notch." J. H. Jackson

+ San Francisco Chronicle p18 O 22 '51 900w

Sat R of Lit 34:40 D 22 '51 250w

GUMPERT, MARTIN. Anatomy of happiness. 310p $3.50 McGraw

171.4 Happiness. Mind and body 51-4455

"Dr. Gumpert, specialist in dermatology and geriatrics, who wrote the popular You Are Younger Than You Think (1944), offers a 'how to' achieve the so-called state of happiness. Unlike current psychiatric reading, his book employs chatty, colloquial, and autobiographical impressions based on long experience with 'unhappy' people. The nontechnical, medical analysis of happiness and unhappiness in daily life touches upon 50 topics, such as constipation timidity, home, clothes, marriage, maturity, money, obesity." Library J

"An intelligent, garrulous, digressive, and at some points debatable book that leaves practically no stone of daily life unturned, from housing to gout, from snobbishness to insomnia, from love to allergies. How much of The Anatomy of Happiness is good sense and how much nonsense the individual reader will have to weed out for himself."

Atlantic 188:86 S '51 200w

Booklist 47:393; 48:4 Jl 15 '51; S 1 '51

Reviewed by D. W. Fiske

Chicago Sunday Tribune p8 S 2 '51 500w

Kirkus 19:310 Je 15 '51 160w

"A sensible addition to the mental-hygiene shelf." J. M. Scherr

+ Library J 76:1215 Ag '51 80w

"'The anatomy of happiness' is a misleading title for this modest and engaging book. The reader is led to expect a clear structure and an organized argument. What he finds instead is a series of essays, classified, it is true, under such headings as Profile of Unhappiness, Landscape of Happiness, and so on, but the classification is not rigid, and the essays are not so much analyses as meditations. They happen to be the reflections of a practicing physician who happens also to be wise and in the best sense a man of the world." Irwin Edman

+ Nation 173:244 S 22 '51 900w

Reviewed by Mary Ross

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p9 S 9 '51 650w

"Dr. Gumpert's book . . . is written for the millions of unhappy people who need help. The many readers this book deserves, and undoubtedly will find, will appreciate the entertaining, popular and pragmatic deliberation of a profound human problem. The book is well written and contains chapters of poetic beauty. The reader will find valuable information, comfort and guidance and may learn the rare art of savoir vivre." Herman Vollmer

+ N Y Times p6 Ag 19 '51 850w

"In the end it comes down to this: Almost everyone can come far closer to happiness than he commonly does. This book, seriously read and apprehended, can, and I think will, be very helpful to many thousands of readers." J. H. Jackson

+ San Francisco Chronicle p14 Ag 22 '51 600w

Reviewed by H. C. Link

Sat R of Lit 34:13 N 10 '51 550w

Springf'd Republican p5D Jl 29 '51 110w

"It is on the whole a discursive, conversational sort of book which leaves the impression of contact with a warm, liberal, and informed mind. Though little which can be said on such a subject is new, it is said here with vigor and a certain amount of originality. Bits of real wisdom are not infrequent." A. R. Smith

+ Survey 87:494 N '51 460w

GUMZ, WILHELM. Gas producers and blast furnaces; theory and methods of calculation. 316p $7 Wiley

665.7 Gas producers 50-10260

"In this book the processes which take place in gas producers and blast furnaces are treated as problems in chemical engineering which can be solved largely by mathematical methods. There is necessarily considerable discussion of the chemical reactions, but the author's chief contribution is the presentation of the apparently complex gassification process as one to which the concepts and techniques of physical chemistry and chemical engineering are applicable." (N Y New Tech Bks) Index.

"The book is of interest mainly to engineers and supervisory personnel responsible for the operation of gas producers or of blast furnaces. It is also a good example of applied physical chemistry, and from this standpoint is of interest to advanced students of chemistry." R. R. Hawkins

Library J 75:2009 N 15 '50 130w

"The book is of interest primarily to engineers associated with the steel industry."

N Y New Tech Bks 35:89 N '50

GUNERMAN, MILTON JOHN, ed. How to operate your power tools. (The Home craftsman's manual) 224p il $2.95 Home craftsman

621.9 Machine tools 51-9312

"A Home Craftsman's manual on the selection, care and use of small woodworking machines. Fully illustrated, step-by-step instructions show both beginners and experienced craftsmen the best methods of operating bench, band, radial and jig saws . . . lathe, drill press, jointer, shaper, planer . . . sander, router, portable drills, paint sprayers and all types of power-tool accessories." Subtitle

Booklist 47:200 F 1 '51

"Accessories and homemade attachments are gone into fully and every operation is described step by step with profuse illustrations." William Yates

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 Ja 21 '51 60w

Reviewed by R. R. Hawkins

Library J 76:332 F 15 '51 130w

GUNTHER, JOHN. Riddle of MacArthur; Japan, Korea, and the Far East. 240p $2.75 Harper

B or 92 MacArthur, Douglas. Japan—History—Allied occupation, 1945- 51-548

A character study of General Douglas MacArthur, combined with the author's analysis of the Korean problem. The author and his wife arrived in Tokyo to prepare the material for this book only a short time before hostilities broke out in Korea. Index.

Atlantic 187:80 Ap '51 150w

Booklist 47:218 F 15 '51

Bookmark 10:131 Mr '51 30w

Reviewed by F. H. Soward

Canadian Hist R 32:266 S '51 190w

"Not always beyond reproach as far as honest objective reporting is concerned, the widely traveled newspaper man who took MacArthur's personality as an assignment has turned in a fine piece of work." Joseph McSorley

+ — Cath World 173:157 My '51 300w

"In trying to give a balanced picture of the complex MacArthur personality, Gunther's scissors-and-paste-pot technique succeeds only in producing a fantastic pastiche. Every story about MacArthur, good or bad, is sucked up by the literary vacuum cleaner and then dumped out amid a shower of dust. Little attempt at critical appraisal of the materials is made. This is most unfortunate, for in places there are evidences of acute perception." Walter Simmons

— + Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 F 4 '51 500w

GUNTHER, JOHN—Continued

Reviewed by M. B. Jansen
Christian Science Monitor p9 F 10 '51 600w

Reviewed by Richard Deverall
Commonweal 53:474 F 16 '51 700w

Foreign Affairs 29:505 Ap '51 20w

"Good reading. Probably experts will consider it superficial, but for the average reader it is good coverage."
+ Kirkus 18:740 D 15 '50 220w

"As good an estimate of a great man as can be made by a contemporaneous reporter, this volume offers also a readable and liberal survey of the present situation in relation to the Supreme Commander." Donald Wasson
+ Library J 76:327 F 15 '51 100w

"John Gunther's heart is in the right place, but he hasn't got his story straight—and often hasn't got it at all. His point of view is creditable, but his errors so gross that his book will embarrass those who agree with him. . . It is easy to see that whole sections of the book were rewritten in a mad hurry as the book went to press in mid-December. But the worst errors do not flow from the quixotic attempt to keep up with the headlines; they occur in Gunther's estimate of MacArthur's stewardship in Japan, which occupies exactly one-third of the book. The first and by far the best third is a very shrewd appraisal of MacArthur, the man and the legend." Harold Strauss
+ — Nation 172:135 F 10 '51 2350w

Reviewed by Samuel Grafton
New Repub 124:27 F 26 '51 1250w

"This is a top notch piece of reporting on a highly controversial figure and a much misunderstood situation. . . In one sense the reader ends up where he began—in the sense, that is, that MacArthur emerges as what most Americans believe him to be, an intricate combination of greatness and mediocrity. But when you are through with this book you have a clear view of the general's strong points and his shortcomings stripped of legend and rumor. You are then in a position to make your own evaluation of his place in history." A. T. Steele
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p1 F 4 '51 1600w

" 'The MacArthur story,' as Gunther well says, 'is one of the worst-reported stories in history.' It is also one of the most important. Gunther, with his sharp perception, balanced judgment and facile pen, has done it justice. With the aid of his name on its covers and his amusing anecdotal writing between them, this will probably be the most widely read book about MacArthur, Japan and the Far East. Luckily, it is an essentially sound book—light enough to keep the average reader's attention, while providing him with many basically accurate judgments. The reader will take away with him some solid ideas as well as a mass of memorable quips and stories." E. O. Reischauer
+ N Y Times p1 F 4 '51 700w

"The author poses the riddle, all right ('paradox' might have been a better word), but he doesn't solve it. Even so, this is a useful book, if only for the way it unravels the tangle of fact, illusion, and untruth coiled about the General. . . All in all, considering the haste in which the book had to be written, a good job."
+ New Yorker 26:95 F 3 '51 240w

San Francisco Chronicle p20 F 18 '51 1050w

"Once more this writer clinches his title as one of the most readable of the reporters who have the knack of putting current events into a book form that will be valuable to future historians. But the book is not a penetrating analysis of the riddle of MacArthur, who is one of the makers of history of our times. It states the riddle but offers no answer." Hallett Abend
Sat R of Lit 34:9 F 3 '51 1150w

Reviewed by Edward Hodgkin
Spec 185:352 Mr 16 '51 800w

Reviewed by Donald Derby
Springf'd Republican p8C Mr 4 '51 600w

Times [London] Lit Sup p243 Ap 20 '51 240w

"Although this unfortunately titled book abounds in errors of factual detail, it manages to convey a tolerably correct over-all impression. Mr. Gunther is at his best in depicting the characteristics and idiosyncrasies of men and women whom he has observed at first hand."
U S Quarterly Bk R 7:173 Je '51 250w

Wis Lib Bul 47:61 Mr '51

"John Gunther's flair for timely reporting was never exploited to better advantage than in his latest volume. This study of the most controversial figure of the moment may not answer all the questions at issue, but it clarifies many of them for any reader who is seeking enlightenment and not merely confirmation of preconceived views." Edgar McInnis
+ Yale R n s 40:729 summer '51 600w

GURIAN, WALDEMAR, ed. Soviet union; background, ideology, reality; a symposium. 216p $3.50 Univ. of Notre Dame

947.084 Russia 51-5087

"This book includes the papers, revised for this volume, originally presented February 7 and 8, 1950, to a Symposium at the University of Notre Dame, organized by the Committee on International Relations. Perhaps the book's most important contribution is that its authors succeeded in dispelling a number of myths entertained by many Americans about the Soviet Union. Professor Gurian's essay, 'The Development of the Soviet Regime From Lenin to Stalin,' shows that it is a fallacy to suppose that Stalin's policies are a retreat or even a deviation from those of Lenin." Cath World

Reviewed by H. J. Berman
Am J Soc 57:287 N '51 750w

Am Pol Sci R 45:584 N '51 50w

"The various chapters on religion form a valuable part of the book and go a long way towards clearing up some of the obscurities of the problems in the relations between church and state, not only in the Soviet Union but in the satellite countries as well." S. R. Tompkins
+ Ann Am Acad 277:268 S '51 500w

"These papers exhibit a high degree of scholarship, and contain a mine of facts about their subject matter." N. D. Roodkowsky
+ Cath World 173:236 Je '51 550w

"Professor Gurian's problem in organizing this book was to report some basic truths about Russia without either re-hashing old material or indulging in pedantic over-specialization. Somehow, he has managed to succeed completely." Daniel Seligman
+ Commonweal 54:194 Je 1 '51 1250w

"The selection of the contributors deserves in this case the highest praise. All of them combine expert scholarship and considerate judgment." Hans Kohn
+ N Y Times p9 Jl 29 '51 280w

GUTHRIE, EDWIN RAY, and POWERS, FRANCIS FOUNTAIN. Educational psychology. 530p $4 Ronald

370.15 Educational psychology 50-6785

"This book presents the more important psychological facts and theories that have a clear and direct application to educational practice, and only these." (School & Society) Bibliographies. Index.

School & Society 71:205 Ap 1 '50 20w

"In general, the content is elementary but substantial, repetitious but relevant, not always fresh but frequently useful. Interestingly written." W. W. Brickman
School & Society 74:198 S 29 '51 200w

"The book has a freshness of style and a succinctness of statement which appeal to college students because it does not have the effect of being a restatement of principles of general psychology. At the same time, the interdependence of educators and psychologists is strongly emphasized." J. H. Angell

+ School R 58:563 D '50 900w

GUTHRIE, JOHN ALEXANDER. Economics of pulp and paper. 194p $2.50; pa $1.50 State college of Wash. School of economics & business. Bur. of economic & business res, Pullman, Wash.

338.47676 Paper making and trade. Wood pulp 50-63178

"The author's purpose is to assemble and analyze the available economic data pertaining to the industry and to appraise its particular problems and trends. Much light is thrown on prices and pricing policies, and on regional differentials. A broad picture is presented of the industry in the United States and Canada, illustrated by many tables and charts embodying statistical material." (Library J) Index.

"The volume may be helpful to a person who is beginning his study of paper as such, particularly if he is interested in the problems of the Pacific Coast. It adds little to our understanding of the operation of these diverse industries or of the firms which comprise them. It is to be hoped that one of these days there will be prepared a thorough analysis of the pulp and paper industries, which are important not only because of their combined size, but because their methods of operation and their problems mirror the whole economy. It will, however, likely be a series of studies on the individual industries which comprise the group called paper and pulp, because of their diversity." J. E. Gates
Am Econ R 41:244 Mr '51 800w

"The author has done an excellent piece of work in collecting and presenting these statistical data. This interesting and well-written book makes a genuine contribution to our knowledge of the pulp and paper industry." R. H. Van Voorhis
+ J Pol Econ 58:553 D '50 500w

Reviewed by J. E. Cross
Library J 75:1188 Jl '50 70w

GUTHRIE, WILLIAM KEITH CHAMBERS. The Greeks and their gods. 388p $3.75 Beacon press

292 Greece—Religion 51-2187

"The primary aim of this book is to serve as a kind of religious companion to the Greek classics. It does not so much set out to interest specialists as to be useful to those who enjoy Greek literature, whether in the original or in translation, and have made the inevitable discovery that almost every branch of it—epic, tragedy, comedy, philosophy, history, and even the life of the political arena and the law-courts as revealed by the orators—is permeated by religion." (Pref) Index.

"This scholarly work is made easily intelligible to the layman. The liberal use of footnotes enables scholars to check on the sources and the authorities, and in many instances portions of the Greek text are given. As exceptional as the merit of the work are the very reasonable price and the attractive format. One hopes the publisher will not be disappointed in the deserved response by the public." W. D. Wallis
+ Ann Am Acad 277:262 S '51 320w

"Mr. Guthrie has collected and organized his material, and has presented it in fascinating fashion. Incidentally, this results in an invaluable body of data for students of 'comparative religion.'" W. E. G.
+ Christian Century 68:1312 N 14 '51 170w

"The author uses the Greeks to interpret the Greeks; for them religion was concerned with gods. His book is intended as a religious companion to the Greek classics. It is highly competent, is well written, and affords stimulating reading for anyone who cares about man's spiritual experience." L. A. Post
+ Crozer Q 29:79 Ja '52 600w

"This is a very readable, very well-informed and in some ways original account of the Greek gods and the Greek conception of God from the earliest times down to Plato and Aristotle, which will enlighten the general reader of Greek literature in translation as well as being fundamental for the classical student." T. B. L. W.
+ Manchester Guardian p4 Ag 11 '50 220w

"This new study of ancient Greek religion is most warmly to be welcomed. It should appeal both to the scholar and to the general reader. It is thorough, but not pedantic, very readable but in no way superficial." Rex Warner
+ New Statesman & Nation 41:18 Ja 6 '51 700w

Reviewed by Dudley Fitts
+ N Y Times p13 Ag 12 '51 250w

"The book is more than 'a kind of religious companion to the Greek classics.' It is a brilliant example of scholarship by a don whose writing manages to be as gay as it is learned, as sprightly as it is profound." Robert Bierstedt
+ Sat R of Lit 34:18 S 15 '51 300w
Spec 184:490 N 10 '50 210w

"To criticize where so much has been given so readably is ungrateful, but one general criticism may perhaps be allowed—partly in the hope of eliciting a further book. There are no pictures and very little mention of works of art except incidentally as evidence for particular facts. . . Mr. Guthrie has made so many of the essential concepts of Greek religion clear that it is to be hoped that he will go farther and give us a more complete picture of the changes of religious spirit within the classical period."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p577 S 15 '50 700w

H

H bomb; introd. by Albert Einstein; commentary by George Fielding Eliot; contributors: Stewart Alsop [and others]. 175p $2.50 Didier pubs.

623.45 Hydrogen bomb 50-12362

For descriptive note see Annual for 1950.

Reviewed by T. R. Henry
Chem & Eng N 29:3892 S 17 '51 220w

"This reviewer does not consider that the introduction written by Prof. Albert Einstein contributes anything very substantial to helping the man in the street appreciate the H-bomb. On the other hand, the chapter by Dr. Harold C. Urey . . . is a forthright statement in which Dr. Urey says this country should go ahead with its plans for building the weapon. He also tells why. Good technical information that easily is comprehended also is set forth in the work by Dr. Hans A. Bethe." Roy Gibbons
Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 Ja 14 '51 600w

Reviewed by W. E. Garrison
Christian Century 68:209 F 14 '51 1050w
Foreign Affairs 29:490 Ap '51 30w

"The book is aimed at lay readers who devote some thought to the political and military problems of our day. All such who can spare an hour to read the book will find a number of profoundly disturbing things in it."
N Y New Tech Bks 35:82 N '50

"The scientists, Congressmen, and writers who contribute to 'The H-Bomb' do not agree on the solution of the problems inherent in the presence of the bomb. They do agree on its cataclysmic power." D. B. Thorburn
Sat R of Lit 34:14 F 3 '51 380w

HADER, BERTA (HOERNER), and HADER, ELMER. Lost in the zoo [story and pictures]. [34p] $2.50 Macmillan 51-13319

John Henry William went to the zoo with his older sister. While sister was telephoning mother John Henry William followed a pigeon and got very lost. His sister called the police and everybody was alerted to find John Henry William, who finally solved the mystery himself. For ages four to eight.

Booklist 48:89 N 1 '51

Reviewed by Marcia Winn
Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 N 11 '51 60w

Reviewed by E. C. Ince
Christian Science Monitor p11 N 21 '51 50w

Reviewed by J. D. Lindquist and S. M. Andrews
Horn Bk 27:403 D '51 50w

"Recommended." M. F. Cox
+ Library J 76:2009 D 1 '51 70w

"The story is slight, but the animal pictures are fine. . . The art work offers many skilled, exact and also appealing portraits. Small children will look at them over and over again. The end of the brief text, with John Henry finding himself, to help the police, is delightful." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 N 11 '51 140w

"The story moves at a brisk pace and youngsters will enjoy the topsy-turvy joke of how John Henry found himself, because they are in on the secret all the time." E. L. B.
+ N Y Times p42 N 11 '51 90w

"Here is one of the best of the Hader books for younger boys and girls. . . The zoo is in New York, and children will thoroughly enjoy the pictures of the New York police force hastening to search for John Henry William, the people wandering around feeding the pigeons, eating under the bright umbrellas, and streaming down Fifth Avenue to help in the search. We predict that this will be a very popular picture book."
+ Sat R of Lit 34:51 N 10 '51 140w

HADLEY, JAMES. Diary, 1843-1852; ed. with foreword by Laura Hadley Moseley. 334p il $4 Yale univ. press

B or 92 Yale university 51-9832

Selections from the diary of James Hadley, father of Arthur Twining Hadley, thirteenth president of Yale. The diary begins in 1843 when he was twenty-two and starting his graduate study at Yale. Later he became tutor and then professor of Greek language and literature. The diary, edited by his granddaughter, ends with the year 1852. Index.

"This is a very personal journal of great interest to any devoted son of Yale or to the scion of any old New Haven family or to one who has marvelled at the wide knowledge, perfect memory and instantaneous wit of James Hadley's descendants, but appealing less than might have been hoped to the student of political, educational or social history. . . The book is perfectly edited." C. W. Mendell
+ New Eng Q 24:261 Je '51 600w

"Mrs. Moseley, granddaughter of the diarist, has exercised an editorial privilege in omitting portions of the work regarded as negligible, but nothing of great importance seems to be missing. The diary inevitably lacks the distinction and power of a longer work which sweeps over a score of years and records slow growth and sudden upheavals. . . . To the present writer nothing in this attractive man is more arresting than his interest in certain English authors then in the full glow of their reputation." C. B. Tinker
Yale R n s 40:740 summer '51 600w

HADMAN, VIRGINIA (BALLARD). As the sailor loves the sea. 232p il $3 Harper

B or 92 Frontier and pioneer life—Alaska. Fishing—Alaska 51-12679

"An autobiographical account of a young woman who went north during the depression and who now divides her time between painting, fishing and raising a young son. Mrs. Hadman went first to visit her Alaskan fishermen brothers in the small village of Craig, stayed on for the wonder of her first northern winter, and came to love the serenity and simplicity of a life without phones, streets and cars." Kirkus

Booklist 47:373; 48:47 Jl 1 '51; O 1 '51

Bookmark 11:31 N '51 30w

"If Ballard Hadman hadn't had a terrific capacity for hard living and for taking chances she could never have lasted. She did last, and she has harvested an episodic book of great gusto, held together and kept moving briskly by the personality of one of the most amazing women ever to write a book." A. C. Ames
Chicago Sunday Tribune p12 O 21 '51 490w

Reviewed by N. N. Lamar
Christian Science Monitor p13 S 27 '51 350w

"A pleasant, but unincisive, idyll of America's last frontier."
+ Kirkus 19:376 Jl 15 '51 80w

Reviewed by H. A. Wooster
Library J 76:1416 S 15 '51 100w

"Mrs. Hadman is no born storyteller, but she likes her life." Ernestine Evans
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p16 S 23 '51 500w

"Loving Alaska as the sailor loves the sea, Mrs. Hadman writes with enthusiasm, humor and a fine feeling. A very human and refreshing book." Walter Hayward
+ N Y Times p20 O 7 '51 150w

"A self-styled 'happenstance sourdough,' Mrs. Hadman describes her adventures with earthy humor, an artist's eye for scenic splendors, and a keen ear for the tall tales spun by lusty old salts." Ray Pierre
+ Sat R of Lit 34:43 N 10 '51 400w

Wis Lib Bul 47:251 N '51

HAGEN, MIRIAM ANN. Murder—but natch. 220p $2.50 Doubleday 51-9209

Mystery story.

"Light, unpretentious."
Kirkus 18:684 N 15 '50 70w

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 F 4 '51 170w

N Y Times p25 Mr 18 '51 140w

"Her friend, the be-jeweled dancer, is rather fun, and there's plenty of humor, but that old shipboard plot is back again, awash with cliches." L. G. Offord
San Francisco Chronicle p16 F 4 '51 90w

Sat R of Lit 34:40 F 24 '51 40w

HAGMAN, E. PATRICIA, ed. Good health for you and your family; prepared from publications of the Health and welfare division, Metropolitan life insurance company. 305p il $3.75 Barnes, A.S.

613 Hygiene. Medicine, Popular 51-4271

"An 'invaluable source book' of modern, scientific knowledge in understandable form on sensible daily living, common diseases and disorders, child care, safety and first aid. Drawings. Tables, index." Bookmark

"An excellent reference." Louisa Eskridge
+ Am J Pub Health 41:1429 N '51 310w
+ Bookmark 10:228 Jl '51 30w
School & Society 73:352 Je 2 '51 20w

HAHN, EMILY (MRS CHARLES BOXER). Francie. 237p $2.50 Watts, F.
51-10268

Novel for teen aged girls. Francie, a seventeen-year-old American girl, much spoiled in her home town, accompanied her father to England where she entered a girl's school. Impetuous Francie was horrified at the English school system and tried to liven things up. But instead of conquering, she was herself conquered and happy about it.

Booklist 47:313 My 1 '51

"Handled with great good humor, sympathy and understanding. While enjoying her story, girls will find a lot to learn from it."

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 Jl 8 '51 180w

Cleveland Open Shelf p23 N '51

Horn Bk 27:251 Jl '51 120w

"A charming and sensitive portrait of a young American sub-deb."

+ Kirkus 19:187 Ap 1 '51 160w

"Although the story is well told—Miss Hahn's command of language is excellent—one feels that her interest in and knowledge of young people is rather superficial. Will prove popular with girls of junior high school age. Recommended for its style and attempt to interpret young England to young America." C. A. Hulton

+ — Library J 76:881 My 15 '51 80w

"Habitual readers of Emily Hahn may be surprised to find her latest book a boarding-school story for girls. It is a good one. Seventeen-year-olds will not only gallop through it but pick up something worth while on the way." M. L. B.

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 My 13 '51 360w

"This story is more told than written, and the clichés fall where they may. However, 'Francie' gives a shrewd picture of English homes and manners, and the differences in bringing up nice young girls on either side of the Atlantic." Marjorie Fischer

— + N Y Times p26 My 20 '51 130w

"There are incidents in the story that will puzzle, and perhaps annoy, American readers. The picture of England in the postwar years is a grim one. But Emily Hahn is an experienced writer. The values that Francie discovers in her school are important values. Because of them Francie will undoubtedly be a saner and wiser American."

+ — Sat R of Lit 34:47 Je 9 '51 220w

Times [London] Lit Sup p9 N 23 '51 60w

Wis Lib Bul 47:154 Je '51

HAHN, OTTO. New atoms; progress and some memories; a collection of papers ed. by W. Gaade. 184p $1.75 Elsevier

541.2 Atoms. Transmutation (chemistry). Nuclear physics 51-7332

"This short book by the co-discoverer in 1938 of the fission of uranium contains the lecture which he delivered upon receiving the 1944 Nobel Prize for chemistry and a number of other papers written since World War II. The presentation is semitechnical. The papers on chain reaction of uranium and on artificial new elements constitute the heart of the book, but the final part in which the author recounts events of his own career is of special interest." N Y New Tech Bks

---

"The fact that several different papers have been included did lead to some repetition beyond what would have been desirable. Even so, the larger sections of the book make one of the easiest-to-read accounts of developments in the indicated subjects for nonspecialists. And Hahn's personal reminiscences of earlier days make valuable reading for any student of physical science." J. W. Kennedy

+ Chem & Eng N 29:1446 Ap 9 '51 210w

"The last chapter of this small, easily read book is autobiography. It's a too brief mixture of men and atoms, of memories and work. You can read the whole book—so well translated by Dr. Gaade—in an hour or so. And you will be well repaid if you have the slightest interest in chemical history, nucleonics or chemistry."

+ Chem Eng 58:284 F '51 200w

"This account of the past fifty years of atomic science and radioactivity by the distinguished discoverer of fission has an interest not only to those directly engaged in this field but also to all who will welcome a personal account of one of the greatest—if not the greatest—discovery of all times. For surely none can doubt the influence of atomic fission on science and on all human affairs." S. C. Lind

+ J Phys & Colloid Chem 55:616 Ap '51 450w

"This is not a book for the layman but for the scientist who wants a short and yet scientifically rigorous account of the transmutation of uranium and of the new elements, technetium, promethium, astatine, francium, neptunium, plutonium, americium, curium, berkelium, and californium. . . The book is edited by Dr. W. Gaade, and apart from slight modifications and additions is a straightforward English translation of several of Hahn's papers. This has led to a good deal of overlapping in certain sections." G. D. R.

Manchester Guardian p3 Ja 2 '51 370w

N Y New Tech Bks 35:96 N '50

Reviewed by John Pfeiffer

N Y Times p10 F 11 '51 290w

Reviewed by J. E. Pfeiffer

Sat R of Lit 34:32 Je 9 '51 330w

Times [London] Lit Sup p376 Je 15 '51 600w

HAIG-BROWN, RODERICK LANGMERE HAIG. Fisherman's spring; il. by Louis Darling. 222p $3 Morrow

799.12 Fishing. Fly casting Agr51-519

Essays on the art of fly fishing in which the author "muses over his subject, discussing such things as putting fish back, how to handle a boat in swift water (and who should, and who should not try it), when to use waders, what constitutes the proper equipment for different kinds of fishing, and why fishermen should leave their guns at home. In a short sketch of Charles Cotton, a seventeenth-century amateur fisherman and rural magistrate . . . Mr. Haig-Brown, who is also a country magistrate, unconsciously gives a pretty good characterization of himself." (New Yorker)

Reviewed by Edward Weeks

+ Atlantic 188:83 Jl '51 180w

Booklist 47:341 Je 1 '51

Bookmark 10:205 Je '51 30w

Kirkus 19:148 Mr 1 '51 130w

Reviewed by R. W. Henderson

Library J 76:1127 Jl '51 40w

"This is a capital book for between-times reading; and that is exactly the purpose for which it is intended." J. R. De La Torre Bueno

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p11 My 20 '51 360w

"By the time he has turned a dozen pages in this very pleasant and informative book, the reader appreciates that Roderick Haig-Brown is much more than an expert fisherman. This is a book for everyone who delights in the out-of-doors. If one happens to enjoy fishing, so much the better. . . This book is a little gem among fishing books; if there is a fisherman or nature lover in your family, this is a book for him and her." Haydn Pearson

+ N Y Times p12 My 13 '51 380w

"Mr. Haig-Brown, whose prose is as taut and graceful as a good trout line, whips out now and then at the gross stupidity and cruelty of some of those who go to the woods and streams on slaughter bent."

+ New Yorker 27:118 My 3 '51 250w

Wis Lib Bul 47:118 My '51

HAINES, MRS EDITH (KEY). Wonderful ways to cook. 655p $3 Rinehart

641.5 Cookery 51-1347

"'Wonderful Ways to Cook,' first published in 1937 under the title 'Edith Key Haines' Cookbook,' is now being republished. . . Mrs.

HAINES, E. K.—Continued
Haines, a practical gourmet with wide experience, presents a large collection of very good things to eat with a judicious mixture of old favorites and interesting new recipes. Her book includes basic information for the beginner and many novel ideas for family and party menus." N Y Times

Christian Science Monitor p2 Ag 3 '51 50w

Churchman 165:15 My 15 '51 80w

Reviewed by K. T. Willis
Library J 76:966 Je 1 '51 20w

Reviewed by Charlotte Turgeon
+ N Y Times p24 F 25 '51 90w

"If Edith Key Haines set out to create a new excitement in foods she has brilliantly succeeded. She makes cooking sound different and even thrilling." M. A. Gram
+ Sat R of Lit 34:47 Mr 10 '51 180w

HALDANE, MRS CHARLOTTE (FRANKEN). Truth will out. 339p $3.50 Vanguard
B or 92 Communism—Great Britain
51-11131

The author of this autobiography is an English writer and journalist who was for some time the wife of J. B. S. Haldane, the English scientist. It was as his wife that she became a member of the British Communist party, but it was a visit to Russia in 1941 that convinced her that Communism was not the final truth for mankind but the "opium of the so-called rationalist." Index.

"This is one of the better books of its kind because it is lacking in ostentation, it is innocent in many respects, and, without too much subjective torture, it suggests the process by which a reasonably cultivated woman could get herself entangled in the tentacular Communist network." Harvey Breit
+ Atlantic 188:83 Ag '51 550w

"One more strayed sheep, appalled by the brutal Asiatic horror of soviet realities, had returned to the fold of West European culture and civilization. The result is an interesting record of an interesting life, written with spirit and detachment and without a trace of the strain and bitterness which some commentators like to attribute to all ex-Communists." W. H. Chamberlin
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 Ag 5 '51 500w

"The author of this frank autobiography is the former wife of the British scientist and avowed Communist, J. B. S. Haldane, a fact which in itself should attract a large audience. However, its real value and timeliness lie in its revealing account of how a well-educated and highly intelligent woman espoused the Communist cause, and how she finally saw Communism in its true light and broke with both the Party and her husband." J. E. Brown
+ Library J 76:1028 Je 15 '51 130w

"Her conversion was an act of emotional faith and it was not until that faith was shaken by what she saw in Russia that emotional revolt came. It would be entirely unfair to suppose that emotion constituted the sole basis of her evolution; she applied an acute and trained mind to the effect of emotion. But she has only this ingenuous chronicle to thank if friends and enemies alike deprecate her testimony by asserting that her heart invariably ruled her head. It will be a pity if it is so deprecated, for this lively and exciting book has deep political significance." R. T. Clark
+ — Manchester Guardian p4 Ja 17 '50 470w

"In the course of repudiating Communism, Mrs. Haldane has learnt one lesson, that politics is not her métier. The second lesson which is much more irksome, is that her present anti-Communism is as amateurish as her past Communism. Now that she has got Truth Will Out off her chest and Communism out of her system I hope that she will write the real personal autobiography of which she is capable." R. H. S. Crossman
New Statesman & Nation 39:168 F 11 '50 450w

"In her candid, self-written case history, Mrs. Haldane reveals herself as emotional, sensitive, well read and, at times, astonishingly naive. She admits to a streak of romanticism in her make-up, and it shows up all through her book." A. T. Steele
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p11 Ag 19 '51 550w

"This book is often exasperating but it is emphatically one to be read by those who are interested in the political psychology of their middle-class contemporaries." Stephen Spender
+ — N Y Times p10 Je 24 '51 950w

"The reminiscences of an erstwhile member of the British Communist Party, written with considerably more thoughtfulness and restraint than other recent contributions to this rapidly growing literary genre."
+ New Yorker 27:116 Je 9 '51 220w

Times [London] Lit Sup p22 Ja 13 '50 550w

HALE, GARTH, pseud. See Cunningham, A. B.

HALE, KATHLEEN. Henrietta, the faithful hen. 32p il $2 Coward-McCann

Picture storybook describing the adventures of Henrietta, a hen with a sense of duty. In her efforts to help her beloved mistress she discovered a Roman city under Miss Fowler's house, and Henrietta and her mistress lived happily ever after.

Bookmark 10:233 Jl '51

"The story is whimsical and funny, full of action and absurdities, and the pictures are delightful. Whether taken in to the full or not it is likely to be enjoyed by American children." M. J. T.
+ Christian Science Monitor p7 Je 30 '51 60w

"Splendid nonsense about a conscientious and modest hen and her mistress, written with that appealing delectation of fantastic minutiae children love."
+ Kirkus 19:291 Je 15 '51 130w

"Semi-fantastic, with English type humor and many clever touches. Picture book age or later. Limited appeal." M. F. Cox
Library J 76:1138 Jl '51 40w

"The big, brilliantly colored pictures, so full of extraordinary, imaginative detail are not 'pretty' but simply fascinating in their variety of imagination, sometimes eerie and fearsome (entrance of the rent-collector), sometimes just indescribably wonderful." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Jl 15 '51 110w

Sat R of Lit 34:48 Jl 21 '51 110w

HALE, KATHLEEN. Orlando's home life; il. by [the author]. 30p $1 Coward-McCann

"Orlando, that debonair marmalade cat from England, always has a way with him, and generally his own. In this new story, however, things don't turn out exactly as he had planned. Despite his ambitions, his children prove highly resistant to education. Nevertheless, everyone has a wonderful time." N Y Times

Christian Science Monitor p7 Je 30 '51 60w

Reviewed by J. D. Lindquist and S. M. Andrews
Horn Bk 27:260 Jl '51 50w

Kirkus 19:292 Je 15 '51 110w

Reviewed by Phyllis Fenner
Library J 76:1232 Ag '51 70w

"We have long loved Orlando, the Marmalade Cat, and his wife Grace, and their three clever kittens. The Hale drawings are like no others in the world, and the story is packed with action to amuse any cat-lovers from about eight up." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Jl 15 '51 40w

"Told, as usual, with the most convincing matter-of-fact air and pictured in fine detail. This book is smaller than the first out-size Orlando books, and some of the drawings are crowded, but most of them are as amusing as ever." E. L. B.

+ N Y Times p24 Je 3 '51 190w

HALECKI, OSKAR. Eugenio Pacelli; pope of peace; in collaboration with James F. Murray, jr. 355p $3.50 Creative age

B or 92 Pius XII (Eugenio Pacelli) pope 51-9673

"A study of Pius XII's constant efforts toward peace, which deals with his private life 'before he entered the stage of history' and with Vatican policy since 1914. Bibliography, index." Bookmark

Bookmark 10:154 Ap '51 30w

Cath World 173:319 Jl '51 120w

"Dr. Halecki has read widely in the voluminous writings of Pius XII and has investigated all the diplomatic records now available. He carries his learning lightly, there is not a footnote in the book, yet it has the authentic ring of conscientious scholarship." H. C. Koenig

+ Commonweal 54:21 Ap 13 '51 550w

Current Hist 20:291 My '51 120w

"A very fine summary of the life and work of Pope Pius XII with especial emphasis upon the part he has played in international affairs."

+ Kirkus 19:51 F 1 '51 180w

"Oscar Halecki and his collaborator, James F. Murray, Jr., have wisely concentrated not on the personality of the Pope but on his influence in world affairs. . . With the detachment and perspective of a first-class historian, Mr. Halecki clarifies the role of the Vatican in its dealings with contemporary nations and answers, if indirectly, the honest doubts of those who regard anything but the administration of sacraments as meddling in politics." R. I. Gannon

+ N Y Times p7 Mr 25 '51 750w

"Whatever the reader's point of view, he will want to read this study of an outstanding figure of our age, the Patriarch of the West, who has never flinched in his efforts toward preserving a peace that is still on parole." C. E. M.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p24 Ap 22 '51 650w

HALL, CHALLIS ALVA. Effects of taxation: executive compensation and retirement plans. 365p $4.25 Harvard univ. Division of res.

336.24 Taxation—U.S. Wages. Old age pensions 51-11530

"The author examines the various forms of compensation as affected by federal taxation to explain their relative importance, advantages and disadvantages to corporation and executive. Specific forms of compensation and retirement plans, and their effect on the executives' mobility, performance and retirement are also considered." (Library J) Index.

Reviewed by Leo Fishman

Ann Am Acad 278:213 N '51 300w

"The volume is very carefully outlined and organized. Professor Hall, working in an area where factual data are difficult to obtain, is a thorough believer in the scientific approach. He takes extreme care to distinguish opinion from reasoned conclusion, and to present the precise basis for each. As a result this book is not light reading. Indeed, although the author's accumulation and classification of data undoubtedly will be of value to economists, and although his conclusions are clear, interesting, and thoroughly supported, it must be admitted that his contribution to the body of available economic knowledge is made at the cost of readability."

+ — Columbia Law R 51:925 N '51 210w

Reviewed by J. E. Cross

Library J 76:1229 Ag '51 60w

HALL, CLARENCE WILBUR, and HOLISHER, DESIDER. Protestant panorama; a story of the faith that made America free; with an introd. by Charles P. Taft. 180p il $4 Farrar, Straus

284 Protestantism. U.S.—Religion 51-13261

"This is the story of Protestantism in the United States. Not a definitive study, it is rather a panoramic view, a sweeping look at Protestantism as it is today. It is also a reminder to Protestants of the heritage that is theirs, of the part—the tremendous part—their faith has played and is playing in the life of our country, its development and culture." (Prelude) Copiously illustrated. Bibliography. No index.

Booklist 48:78 N 1 '51

"Protestant Panorama is unique, so far as I know, among books designed to expound and exalt Protestantism." W. E. Garrison

+ Christian Century 68:1311 N 14 '51 550w

Reviewed by R. R. Brunn

Christian Science Monitor p9 D 10 '51 280w

"This is a good book for faltering Protestants."

+ Kirkus 19:560 S 15 '51 250w

"A well and popularly written book for the layman. Mr. Holisher's pictures are outstanding. Mr. Hall is a religious journalist and the author of Samuel Logan Bringle; Portrait of a Prophet and Out of the Depths. Mr. Holisher is a writer, photographer and illustrator, with several books to his credit. Recommended for all public libraries." E. H. Weeks

+ Library J 76:1564 O 1 '51 140w

Time 58:79 N 5 '51 550w

HALL, DONALD S., ed. See Harvard advocate (periodical). Anthology

HALL, MARJORY. Linda Clayton; il. by Catherine Barnes. 243p $2.50 Sloane 51-12139

Novel for older girls in which Linda Clayton comes to New York city from upstate and makes a success in her efforts to gain a footing in statistics gathering. After several tries she discovers the 'right' man too.

Booklist 48:127 D 1 '51

Reviewed by Lucille Pannell

Chicago Sunday Tribune p19 N 11 '51 90w

+ Horn Bk 27:419 D '51 60w

Kirkus 19:354 Jl 15 '51 100w

"Recommended for girls of 17-20." R. C. Buell

+ Library J 76:1434 S 15 '51 70w

"Not many girls will be lured into 'Research' by this story, but because of its basic honesty, such girls as recognize themselves in Linda will know whether they can 'take' that sort of job, and also whether they are meant to have a city career. The book's limitation is a certain one-job, one-field view on Linda's part which is not apt to be true of modern girls." L. S. Bechtel

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p16 O 28 '51 190w

"What girls will really enjoy in this story is Linda's New York adventure. The people she meets, her experiences in housekeeping, her three beaux are described with an eye for detail and character." E. L. Buell

+ N Y Times p12 S 2 '51 110w

HALL, NEWMAN ARNOLD. Thermodynamics of fluid flow. 278p $7.35; to schools $5.50 Prentice-Hall

536.7 Thermodynamics. Hydrodynamics 51-3862

"This text is designed to provide an introduction to two basic techniques of analysis in engineering science—fluid mechanics and thermodynamics—and an understanding of the combined fields." School & Society

HALL, N. A.—Continued

"Emphasizing preponderantly the theory of flow, the book is essentially a compilation of thermodynamic relations for generalized solution of flow problems and contains relatively little descriptive matter spelling out the implications of the many equations. The book should consequently be of far greater value to one working in this field than to the chemical engineer or chemist." G. T. Skaperdas

+ Chem & Eng N 29:3771 S 10 '51 270w

N Y New Tech Bks 36:63 Jl '51

School & Society 73:366 Je 9 '51 30w

HALL, MRS RUBYLEA. Davey; il. by Ralph Ray, jr. 288p $2.75 Duell

51-10885

Story of life on a sharecroppers farm in Florida thirty years ago. The hero is Davey, small for his age, but possessing courage and intelligence far beyond his years and size.

Booklist 48:160 Ja 1 '52

"There are times when a reviewer wishes he could come up with a new word that would express something more than 'appealing,' 'tender,' 'agreeable,' 'engaging,' and the like which have been worked to tatters along with 'rich' and 'warm.' Yet neither my thesaurus nor my word cluttered mind can produce anything better at the moment. Any and all of those words apply to 'Davey' and they must suffice." V. P. Hass

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 D 30 '51 300w

Kirkus 19:411 Ag 1 '51 160w

"Teenagers will enjoy the story; adults will appreciate its real worth. A book that will live! Strongly recommended for young and old." R. W. Henderson

+ Library J 76:1932 N 15 '51 80w

"The artificial plot and ending mar what is, at base, a good and moving book. It is more a sociological study than a novel, and definitely an adult rather than a children's book." L. S. Bechtel

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 D 30 '51 250w

"Touched by overtones that every adult will remember from his own childhood, 'Davey' will be a pleasure to young and old alike. Ralph Ray Jr. adds a series of excellent illustrations that capture the full magic of the 'Cypress Country.'" Henry Cavendish

+ N Y Times p34 O 21 '51 200w

Reviewed by K. T. Kinkead

New Yorker 27:176 D 1 '51 80w

"Will interest older boys and girls as well as the ones of Davey's age."

+ Sat R of Lit 34:62 N 10 '51 180w

HALL, WILLIAM WEBSTER. Small college talks back; an intimate appraisal. 214p $3 Smith, Richard R.

378 Colleges and universities—U.S. Caldwell, Idaho. College of Idaho 51-9493

"The first six chapters contain the biographical and background material necessary for understanding the man and the job. It is interesting to note that the foundation for Dr. Hall's approach to his first presidency was laid in his experience of teaching at Robert College, Istanbul, and the American College of Sophia. . . The seventh chapter . . . describes how the decision was made as to what the College of Idaho should become. . . It was decided that there was room in southern Idaho for a small college which would stress the liberal arts rather than vocationalism and quality rather than quantity, and would pioneer in education rather than follow the beaten track. . . The rest of the book relates Dr. Hall's experiences, both comic and tragic, in attempting to carry out such a purpose." Christian Century

Booklist 47:288 Ap 15 '51

"This is a most welcome book, particularly at a time like ours when the voice of American collegiate education sounds weak, doleful and inconsistent. It is a real inspiration to read this book by a college president (Westminster) who talks in terms of service rather than survival, principles rather than prerogatives and hope rather than despair, and backs it up with an impressive record of achievement. The avowed purpose of the book is to 'generate heat as well as light,' and it does just that." N. E. Richardson

+ Christian Century 68:401 Mr 28 '51 700w

HALLEN, JULIENNE. How to make foreign dolls and their costumes. 93p il $1.98 Homecrafts

649.55 Dolls. Costume 50-11131

Directions for making seventeen nationality dolls and their costumes; plus directions for four smaller dolls, and a clown doll. Illustrated with photographs, diagrams and patterns.

Booklist 47:184 Ja 15 '51

Bookmark 10:84 Ja '51 10w

Reviewed by A. S. Plaut

Library J 76:599 Ap 1 '51 40w

Wis Lib Bul 47:58 Mr '51

HALLIDAY, BRETT, pseud. See Dresser, D.

HALLIDAY, DAVID. Introductory nuclear physics. 558p il $6.50 Wiley

539.1 Nuclear physics 50-11581

"A college textbook which is also a compact statement of the current knowledge in nuclear physics. The discussions under such topics as electrons in disintegration processes, nuclear forces, nuclear fission and cosmic rays convey the observations and hypotheses at the time of the book's writing, but give the impression that the whole field is in a state of flux." Library J

"Considering the high level of the book, the mathematics employed is not difficult. Literature references are abundant and there is an unexpectedly high number of graphs and other illustrations." R. R. Hawkins

+ Library J 76:117 Ja 15 '51 180w

"Even though it is a text and is quite beyond the grasp of the lay reader, the book merits addition to library collections on nuclear physics."

N Y New Tech Bks 36:28 Mr '51

HALSEY, ASHLEY. Illustrating for the Saturday evening post; with a foreword by Kenneth Stuart. 160p $5.95 Writer

741.65 Illustrators. Saturday evening post (periodical) 51-10267

"This book tells how 'Post' covers are assigned and produced. Gives you inside information on how top-flight artists create 'Post' covers. Illustrations of working drawings, posing models, finished art and biographical notes on each artist. The author takes you on a 'guided tour' through the studios of the artists, giving you an unusually informal introduction to the personalities that illustrate for the 'Post.'" School Arts

"Of interest to illustrators and to the millions who read the SEP. . . Lively text. Reproductions of covers and pictures and people." A. S. Plaut

+ Library J 76:964 Je 1 '51 60w

"Should provide many background details which are authentic. This it does very well. . . On close examination the 'inside information' is limited to rather superficial details. And aside from a brief note about undraped female figures, there are very few facts about taboos or techniques which might guide an artist in his work." H. B.

San Francisco Chronicle p23 My 6 '51 300w

School Arts 51:8a D '51 140w

HALSEY, GEORGE D. Selecting and inducting employees; a handbook of tested procedures. 361p $4.50 Harper

658.3115 Employees, Training of. Ability—Testing 51-376

"Primarily for executives responsible for employee selection. The author has had a long career as a successful personnel director, [and] is now with the Farm Credit Administration. . . In the present work he presents the minimum essentials of knowledge about each phase of employee selection—interviewing, testing, statistical techniques, employment office forms and procedures—needed for a person starting a program of employee selection in a business or industrial organization." Library J

"The book may well be a useful addition to an industrial firm's library and might also be used as supplementary reading in university courses." W. A. McCoy
Ann Am Acad 277:244 S '51 200w

Booklist 47:232 Mr 1 '51

Reviewed by Winifred Baum
Chicago Sunday Tribune p14 S 23 '51 60w

"An intelligent factual job on this phase of personnel administration, but it lacks that vital spark that would take it out of routine."
Kirkus 18:687 N 15 '50 130w

"Highly recommended." J. E. Cross
+ Library J 76:601 Ap 1 '51 160w

"In general, though material worth reading can occasionally be found, the book as a whole can hardly be considered a contribution to personnel literature." M. M. Bruce
Management R 40:314 My '51 800w

Wis Lib Bul 47:58 Mr '51

HAMBLEDON, PHYLLIS. Nobody's child [Eng title: No difference to me]. 283p $3 Rinehart 51-11434

Story of what happened to a little girl when her parents got a very "sensible" divorce and then proceeded to fight over the custody of the child. The scene is laid in a post-war English industrial town.

Reviewed by Paul Engle
Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 Ag 5 '51 320w

"Relatively free from doctrinaire psychology, 'Nobody's Child' is an always competent, often moving documentary of divorce from a child's-eye view." Ruth Chapin
+ Christian Science Monitor p7 Ag 2 '51 140w

Kirkus 19:236 My 1 '51 170w

"Adequate characterization, appealingly presented without sentimentality. Teen-agers, as well as adults, will profit from reading." E. P. Nichols
+ Library J 76:1125 Jl '51 70w

" 'Nobody's Child' is not a problem novel in the sense of being a treatise against divorce; it seems clear that Jake was too wise and sensitive to have avoided suffering had her parents stayed together, their situation being as it was. It does show soberingly, in terms of a particular and especially appealing child, the wreckage that is likely to occur when two people disrupt the relationship on which their child has to depend and the difficulty in constructing any substitute that will give him or her a sufficient chance to be happy." Mary Ross
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p9 Ag 12 '51 340w

" 'Nobody's Child' deals with important problems and has its moving and even humorous moments, but the net effect is mechanical. It hums more than it hurts." Charles Lee
— + N Y Times p15 Jl 15 '51 350w

"Miss Hambledon writes stiffly and with frequent flourishes of melodrama, but her work is so sincere and thoughtful that it makes interesting reading, of a light-morbid kind."
New Yorker 27:77 Jl 21 '51 60w

"Around her decent, well-meaning English characters Phyllis Hambledon weaves a heart-breaking, entirely believable, and always interesting story which underscores, as she intended it to do, the futility of believing that divorce need make no difference in the lives of the young children involved." Pamela Taylor
+ Sat R of Lit 34:15 Jl 28 '51 240w

HAMBURGER, MAX. Morals and law; the growth of Aristotle's legal theory. 191p $3.75 Yale univ. press

340.1 Aristotle. Law—Philosophy. Ethics
51-11352

" 'There is a perfect harmony between Aristotle's ethical, legal, and political theory—the theory of the right mean is the basis; philia, social sympathy, is the life force; equity, fairness, reasonableness, and humaneness the leitmotiv; and well-being, i.e., human happiness and perfection, the supreme end.' So states Dr. Hamburger in his concluding paragraph. The main body of the work, subsequent to a brief inquiry into the authenticity of Aristotelian texts and a brief statement of Platonic views on law and morals, is a detailed examination of relevant Aristotelian texts and a comparison of differences in their arguments, together with smaller sections devoted to historical setting and to summary of arguments." Ann Am Acad

"The main body of the work will be of interest only to the specialist, though its overall conclusions are of more general concern. The brilliant foreword of just over three pages by Huntington Cairns makes more significant generalizations on the course of development of Western legal thought than one would have believed possible in so brief a space." T. I. Cook
+ Ann Am Acad 278:206 N '51 550w

"It may be said that this book raises important issues not only as to the interpretation of Aristotle but as to the general history and philosophy of ideas and institutions. Hamburger deserves great credit for his insistence on viewing Aristotle's doctrines not as an antique specimen but as a perennially relevant body of ideas. But he does his own cause a disservice by failing to place equal insistence on the unique and specific characteristics of those ideas. Sound thought is poorly served by finding revolutionary changes where there are continuities, but it is served equally poorly when the continuities are blurred into identities." Alan Gewirth
+ — Ethics 62:66 O '51 2600w

Reviewed by E. N. Cahn
Harvard Law R 65:363 D '51 1400w
San Francisco Chronicle p18 Jl 15 '51 200w

HAMERSLAG, FRANK E. Technology and chemistry of alkaloids. 319p $6.50 Van Nostrand

615.336 Alkaloids 50-9815

"The considerable commercial value of a number of alkaloids has led to the development of broad and diverse literature, and much use of special art. It has been the purpose of the author of the volume at hand to provide a guide for those requiring information on the manufacture of alkaloids. Most of the work must needs relate to isolations from botanical material." Chem Eng

"The chemist who hopes to learn all the details or design of industrial alkaloidal processes will not always be satisfied for quite often the author has done nothing more than record the methods of preparation given in the literature and such methods are often impractical for manufacturing processes. The book has another weakness, namely, it does not include manufacturing processes for all the alkaloids; for example, omitted are the cinchona alkaloids and many minor ones." E. H. Stuart
Chem & Eng N 29:330 Ja 22 '51 280w

HAMERSLAG, F. E.—Continued

"While one may not consider alphabetical order as satisfactory for the classification of other technical data it seems acceptable here. The lack of information on adhatoda, anhalonium and senecio alkaloids is understandable in a brief and practical work. To have wilfully eliminated the cinchona and morphine alkaloids, however, is a major fault of the author despite the opinion expressed in the preface to this volume. The arrangement of references is not particularly attractive." E. A. Steck

Chem Eng 57:273 D '50 600w

N Y New Tech Bks 35:82 N '50

U S Quarterly Bk R 7:105 Mr '51 180w

HAMID, GEORGE A. Circus; as told to his son George A. Hamid, junior. 253p il $3 Sterling

B or 92 50-58095

George A. Hamid was born in Lebanon in 1896 and left there at the age of ten to become a professional acrobat. While Buffalo Bill's circus was touring Europe in the early 1900's he joined it and thus came to America. This account of his life covers his childhood and his long career in the circus world.

Booklist 47:173 Ja 1 '51

Cleveland Open Shelf p16 Jl '51

Reviewed by M. C. Scoggin
Horn Bk 27:197 My '51 30w

"This is one of those 'as told to' books which is superior in every way. It is smoothly written and reasonably authoritative while being completely readable at the same time." George Freedley

+ Library J 75:2000 N 15 '50 140w

"Fine picture of show business; fine feeling for America. Recommended for all young people's collections." M. D. Read

+ Library J 76:342 F 15 '51 80w

Reviewed by Lisle Bell
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p18 F 18 '51 470w

Reviewed by John Lardner
N Y Times p7 Ap 8 '51 400w

Springf'd Republican p12B D 31 '50 220w

HAMILTON, EDMOND. City at world's end. 239p $2.75 Fell

51-10074

"The gimmick in this one is a super-bomb that blasts a medium-sized Midwestern city, not into Kingdom Come, but into the far distant future when the sun has become a wan, flickering red disc, and the heart of the Earth has grown cold. Alone on the face of the planet is this shivering Twentieth Century city, swaddled in ignorance and warmed with confusion. From then on the story deals with the problem of survival." San Francisco Chronicle

Booklist 47:347 Je 1 '51

Bookmark 10:158 Ap '51

Reviewed by H. H. Holmes
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Jl 29 '51 140w

"The first part of the book has genuine interest, but the second half runs down rapidly." B. D.

+ — N Y Times p19 Ag 19 '51 170w

"Time travel is a well-worn theme, and certainly the science behind the super-bomb and the blast into the future is not very sound, but Mr. Hamilton has managed to make his people real and their problem convincing." Don Fabun

San Francisco Chronicle p23 Ap 22 '51 200w

HAMILTON, HOLMAN. Zachary Taylor, soldier in the White House. 496p il $6 Bobbs

B or 92 Taylor, Zachary

The second volume in this biography of Zachary Taylor studies the four years before Taylor's death in 1850. For first volume see Book Review Digest 1941. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 48:100 N 15 '51

"The author meets the criticism of the first volume by comprehensively presenting Taylor's attitude on Whiggery, slavery and the Compromise of 1850. His intensive treatment makes this the definitive biography of the short-lived President." R. S. Taylor

+ Library J 76:1416 S 15 '51 130w

+ Nation 173:408 N 10 '51 50w

"It is an exciting story, well told, of the old slave-holding soldier taking his stand against the extension of slavery and attempting to hurry statehood forward so as to avoid sectional conflict. Throwing aside the usual interpretations which place Clay, Webster and Calhoun at the center, Hamilton shows Taylor and his loyal Whigs more than holding their own and refusing compromises which settled nothing." Avery Craven

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 D 16 '51 650w

"Despite the excellence of his scholarship, Hamilton is only moderately successful in achieving his aim. His subject, the hero of Buena Vista, is the difficulty. Uninteresting when out of uniform and unimaginative in thought, Taylor had the misfortune to come to power in 1849, when the bonds of Union were being tested in the grim aftermath of the Mexican War. Coyly, he had rejected political overtures until, succumbing to the Whig siren-song, he assured himself: 'I cannot withdraw from the Canvass. I am in the hands of the people.' " H. F. Graff

N Y Times p10 O 28 '51 430w

"The author has done a considerable amount of research, and his new evaluation of Taylor should correct the widespread impression that the American people were asleep at the switch when they elected him. The writing is of a very high quality."

+ New Yorker 27:188 N 17 '51 180w

HAMLIN, TALBOT FAULKNER, and HAMLIN, MRS JESSICA VANSTRUM (WALTERS). We took to cruising; from Maine to Florida afloat; drawings and phot. by the skipper. 320p $3.50 Sheridan

797.14 Yachts and yachting. Atlantic Coast —Description and travel 51-10478

The authors are a Columbia professor and his wife. Looking forward to retirement they decided to indulge their hobby, cruising. In the course of the book they describe the building and equipping of two motor boats, and the trips they have taken from Main to Florida. Includes photographs, plans, and drawings; a list of first aid supplies; tools carried; bibliography; and index.

Booklist 47:359 Je 15 '51

"Fascinating account of vacation trips and of new values discovered as owners of a small cruiser."

+ Bookmark 10:180 My '51 40w

"It's fascinating reading even if the armchair voyager couldn't afford such an expensive hobby. Fine illustrations by the author add much to the enjoyment, but the book sadly lacks a set of sketch maps." Al Chase

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 My 6 '51 110w

"An extremely interesting account. . . Most valuable hints to those similarly enticed. Replete with charming drawings, detailed sketches, photographs. Recommended." R. W. Henderson

+ Library J 76:780 My 1 '51 50w

"This is a quiet and delightfully illustrated introduction to motor-boat cruising." A. F. Loomis

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 Je 10 '51 170w

San Francisco Chronicle p18 Je 24 '51 190w

"This book of the Hamlins concerns the ways of people as much as it does the ways of nature. There is pathos, charm, admiration, and kindly humor; warmth of feeling goes out to all the people who march through its pages in one capacity or another. Strange it is perhaps to see this friendly human touch in one who seemingly has been trying to run away from his neighbors." A. K. Lobeck

+ Sat R of Lit 34:19 Ag 11 '51 600w

HAMMERSTEIN, OSCAR. The king and I; music by Richard Rodgers; book and lyrics by Oscar Hammerstein, 2d. 146p il $2.50 Random house

812

The text of the musical comedy based on the novel Anna and the King of Siam, by Margaret Landon. Illustrated with photographs from the play.

Booklist 48:7 S 1 '51

Kirkus 19:286 Je 1 '51 40w

"Highly recommended for drama, theatre and music collections." George Freedley
+ Library J 76:1228 Ag '51 40w

"The book is about the next best thing to an aisle seat at Manhattan's St. James Theater, where this abundant entertainment has held forth since last March 29." W. H.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p24 O 7 '51 110w

HAMMOND, C. S., and COMPANY, INCORPORATED. Hammond's library world atlas [new ed] a Hammond golden anniversary atlas. 312p il col pl $5 Hammond

912 Atlases Map 50-62

"This medium-sized atlas is similar in title and appears to be identical in many respects with the same publishers' Illustrated Library World Atlas, published at the same price in 1946. . . The pages of colored maps, of which there are over 100, commonly resemble very closely those in more expensive atlases issued by the same firm. . . Many have the same plate numbers and basically are photographic reductions of the corresponding maps in the larger atlases. Such reduction often results in crowding and in rather fine print. . . The maps also show evidence of plate revision to bring them up to date." Subscription Bks Bul

"Maps are clear cut and accurate, print is excellent. Recommended particularly for home and school use." R. P. Tubby
+ Library J 75:494 Mr 15 '50 120w

"All of the features that have made Hammond production so good for so many years are found in the 'Library World Atlas.' Modernity, logical organization of materials, and rather good maps on the whole make it a very desirable home or library acquisition. Nevertheless there are certain features that might be reviewed by the publishers for the next issue. For example, the idea of referring the reader in the gazetteer index to the maps which will show the place best is an excellent idea but it is not consistently followed."
+ — Sat R of Lit 34:35 F 3 '51 600w

"Hammond's Library World Atlas may be summed up as a bargain package directed primarily to the individual purchaser. It contains a good collection of maps for the price, somewhat vitiated by small print, poorly indexed for foreign areas, with extensive supplementary material of varying quality and relevance. It is recommended for the home which does not have a more extensive and reasonably up-to-date atlas and for supplementary purchase in libraries."
+ — Subscription Bks Bul 21:55 O '50 1100w

HAMMOND, MASON. City-state and world state in Greek and Roman political theory until Augustus. 217p $4 Harvard univ. press

320.937 State, The. Political science—History 51-11285

"Author, Professor of Greek and Latin and of History at Harvard University, studies here one of the key problems of ancient political philosophy. He deals with the conflict between Plato's and Aristotle's concept of the city-state and the later ideas underlying the Roman world state and dwells with special thoroughness on Cicero's often underrated contribution to political thought." Library J

Reviewed by G. H. Sabine
Ann Am Acad 278:227 N '51 900w

"Well-written volume, with rich notes and good selective bibliography, will be important for scholarly collections on ancient history and political theory, but not necessary for public libraries." F. E. Hirsch
Library J 76:959 Je 1 '51 110w

School & Society 74:415 D 22 '51 30w

HAMMOND-INNES, RALPH (HAMMOND INNES, pseud). Angry mountain. 279p $2.75 Harper

51-9531

A tale of international intrigue. The hero is Richard Farrell, an English aviator who had lost a leg in the war. In Czechoslovakia he met an old companion in arms and his daughter, and fell in love with the latter. The climax came when Richard, his friend and his daughter, and various other people, mostly of questionable manners and morals, were caught in an Italian villa during an eruption of Vesuvius.

Booklist 47:236 Mr 1 '51

Kirkus 18:707 D 1 '50 150w

Library J 76:718 Ap 15 '51 60w

"In 'The Angry Mountain,' the climax is an eruption of Mount Vesuvius only a few years ago, but the characters involved are so hard to believe in—and the antecedent plot so confused—that not much excitement is created. Mr. Innes normally keeps a tight rein on his imagination and a firm cinch on style, but these restraints are absent from this narrative. He might almost be suspected of caricature." Lisle Bell
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p20 F 25 '51 300w

"This is not for the squeamish. And when, during the eruption, the villain steals the hero's aluminum leg, leaving him helpless, there is about the situation something both a little gruesome and a little grotesque. Still, when all is said, this is certainly one of the better thrillers." Basil Davenport
N Y Times p20 Ap 29 '51 160w

"In his previous book, 'The Survivors,' Mr. Innes inflicted almost every conceivable disaster on his characters. He has outdone himself this time."
New Yorker 27:115 F 17 '51 160w

Reviewed by L. G. Offord
San Francisco Chronicle p17 Mr 4 '51 90w

"It is a vague, slam-bang affair, in one key throughout. There is a coy toying with and drawing back from sex which I found rather repellent, and the general atmosphere is exceedingly morbid, indeed. But if you read for excitement only and your chief preoccupation is with what will happen next, as in a murder mystery, then you may find 'The Angry Mountain' to your taste. At least it has the most 'colossal' climax I've encountered in many years of novel reading." W. R. Burnett
Sat R of Lit 34:35 F 17 '51 500w

Springf'd Republican p8C Ap 29 '51 180w

"The Angry Mountain is just another Secret Service thriller . . . but Mr. Innes's efforts to enliven this familiar idea with liberal doses of violence and psychoanalysis make it unsuitable for schoolboys and wearisome for their elders."
Times [London] Lit Sup p741 N 24 '50 90w

Wis Lib Bul 47:62 Mr '51

HANCOCK, WILLIAM KEITH. Wealth of colonies. 81p $1.75 Cambridge

325.342 Great Britain—Colonies, dominions, etc. Colonies

This volume contains the Marshall lectures, delivered at Cambridge on 17 and 24 February

HANCOCK, W. K.—Continued
1950. "In Part I Professor Hancock demonstrates from three examples in history some lessons of nineteenth-century economics which he holds to be essential for all new colonial development policies. In Part II he reviews current problems of development and welfare within the British Commonwealth." (Publishers note)

Am Pol Sci R 45:598 Je '51 30w

"In both lectures the steady gaze of the historian has penetrated some dark corners of the colonial economic problem. Both contain many useful pointers to future policy and action, although they nearly all presuppose that there is still plenty of time. Unfortunately there is not. It is thus no good explaining that no one ought to expect quick results. It is no good explaining even that quick results are unattainable. The problem which the hurrying mood of the colonies poses is no doubt insoluble —but no purpose is served by appearing to think that, because it ought not to exist, it does not."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p39 Ja 19 '51 800w

HANDLIN, OSCAR. Uprooted; the epic story of the great migrations that made the American people. (Atlantic monthly press bk) 310p $4 Little 325.73 U.S.—Emigration and immigration
51-13013

"This Harvard professor admits searching many newspapers and direct immigrant sources for this absorbing study. . . Showing how simple peasant life finally ended in Europe, when 35,000,000 people of all nationalities fled to America from 1750 to 1900 alone, Handlin then describes minutely such phenomena as steerage, quarantine, tenements, slums, ghettos, unions, denominations, languages, and traditions. He soothes uprooted, brokenhearted immigrants with 'that blow was an act of liberation.'" (Library J) No index.

Atlantic 189:91 Ja '52 160w
Booklist 48:60 O 15 '51
Bookmark 11:31 N '51 20w

"If this volume has a fault, it lies in its heavy emphasis upon the depressing, sometimes tragic nature of the immigrant story often to the exclusion of the more optimistic side. It is also possible that the author understands the urban setting somewhat better than the rural one. But these minor reservations will not detract from such an outstanding book. With the added attraction of stylistic simplicity this volume should receive the wide reading it richly deserves. Indeed, there are few Americans who will fail to respond to its theme." C. L. Ver Steeg
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 D 16 '51 400w

Kirkus 19:423 Ag 1 '51 140w

"A most unusual book; I cannot praise it enough. . . Should be read by millions of our first- and second-generation Americans to appreciate their parents' conflicts." J. M. Scherr
+ Library J 76:1559 O 1 '51 120w

Reviewed by J. B. Brebner
Nation 173:504 D 8 '51 600w

"Seeing altogether through the backward-straining eyes of one whose roots have been wrenched loose and who has been hurtled violently into an indifferent, if not hostile environment, Professor Handlin writes a book of great poignancy." Frances Witherspoon
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p21 D 9 '51 550w

"The author's insights into what a peasant must have felt on being transplanted to a place where there was neither fruitful earth nor animals nor seasonal regeneration, where no one could be self-sufficient and no man's estate was fixed, are searching and persuasive. . . 'The Uprooted' is history with a difference—the difference being its concern with men's hearts and souls no less than an event." Milton Rugoff
+ N Y Times p6 O 7 '51 550w

"This is strong stuff, handled in a masterly and quite moving manner."
+ New Yorker 27:142 O 27 '51 200w
School & Society 74:336 N 24 '51 50w

"We have had histories of American immigration in two, in twelve, and in forty volumes; but never has a single volume given us so well rounded and appealing an account of its meaning in terms of individual and family experience. All of the vast literature—public records and sociological studies, newspapers, personal journals and letters—has provided the material for a narrative that sweeps through more than two centuries. A great movement here is pictured as it was lived." Bruno Lasker
+ Survey 87:545 D '51 550w

"Recommended."
+ Wis Lib Bul 47:209 S '51

HANES, FRANK BORDEN. Abel Anders, a narrative. 209p $2.75 Farrar, Straus 811 51-3692

"A novel in verse form. . . This is the story of Abel Anders, youngest son of a mountain family, and his bitter fight to escape the tough-fibered life in Tate Canyon to seek the adumbrated goal toward which the mountains beckoned." Kirkus

---

"He can be overtricky, as on page 47, where, describing a wasplike man, he arranged the typografy so that the print looks like a wasp. On the other hand, he can sometimes describe character and physical action with a rugged vividness, and his poetry can sometimes communicate the passion and mystery of the life he describes." J. F. Nims
Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 Je 10 '51 400w

"Although inheriting the difficulties peculiar to this form [the novel] is often extremely effective. . . a strenuous and stimulating experiment."
+ Kirkus 19:190 Ap 1 '51 150w

"Mr. Hanes, a young North Carolina newspaper man, has written a novel in verse. It is his first book and unfortunately it exhibits no evidence that he is either a novelist or a poet. . . As verse the book is deplorable." W. T. Scott
— N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p9 Jl 8 '51 200w

"The most flagrant weakness of 'Abel Anders' is the fact that the several sections of the poem, which are intended to show the development of the hero's character, remain stubbornly isolated. The farm boy is only dimly recognizable in the college student or the financial wizard, and one is left with the impression that these various avatars of Abel Anders have little in common save their name." Milton Crane
— N Y Times p36 N 18 '51 150w

"There is a proper ordering of incidents in the four sections; there is admirable delineation of character, there are graphic situations in the small; but the novel as novel doesn't ring whole and round. As poetry it is as rugged as the mountain country it describes, and its pacing is in keeping with the detailed episodes of the development."
+ — Sat R of Lit 34:13 D 29 '51 210w

HANLEY, GERALD. Consul at sunset. 254p $3 Macmillan
51-6203

A story of several English officials in a desolate African outpost in the months during the war when the British had taken over the region from the Italians.

"Highly recommended." Riley Hughes
+ Cath World 174:152 N '51 200w

Reviewed by V. P. Hass
Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 Ag 12 '51 280w

"The author of this grim tale does anything but idealize the natives; he makes no bones about the treachery and cruelty and savagery of which they are often capable. But Gerald Hanley, who knows these tensions first-hand, is less interested in over-all solutions of the British colonial problem than he is in its effects on the individual conscience of those thrust into authority. That is as it should be with a good novelist. He is also thorough and slow-going. By the time the final breath-taking chapters are reached the stage is completely set." E. S. Skillin

+ Commonweal 54:460 Ag 17 '51 820w

Kirkus 19:279 Je 1 '51 140w

"Gerald Hanley knows the terrain, he knows his Army, he sees the problem clearly and he can write brilliantly; the result is a very fine novel." W. B. Ready

+ Library J 76:1221 Ag '51 70w

"The story is interesting, without portentous significance." Paul Bloomfield

+ Manchester Guardian p3 Ja 19 '51 60w

Reviewed by Robert Phelps

New Repub 125:20 S 3 '51 200w

"This is, to use a modest phrase, a good book; and being a good book it is thoroughly disturbing. Mr. Hanley possesses all the talents that enable people to write novels: his story is expertly constructed and well narrated, is fitted with an exciting plot, and contains credible characters drawn with much subtlety. What particularly distinguishes him and raises him above the mediocre is the quality of the moral feeling with which his book is charged." Michael Ramsbotham

+ New Statesman & Nation 41:226 F 24 '51 800w

"Mr. Hanley is a skilled analyst of divergent military types from the traditional fighter moulded by history books at school and Kitchener hero worship to the cynical and disillusioned, doing a job and filing his reports. 'The Consul at Sunset' explodes in a savagery grotesquely beyond the tribal trouble that caused it. It is a case history of the world malady." Lisle Bell

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 S 2 '51 320w

"An exciting, ably written and enthralling novel." H. F. West

+ N Y Times p5 Ag 12 '51 360w

New Yorker 27:85 Ag 18 '51 70w

"The story is full of suspense and admirably captures the atmosphere of the desert outpost. But the author's story, in its assault on British imperialism, is likely to make Kipling devotees wage war on Mr. Hanley, who has a very dim view of the British Empire and its stimulating statement of a new and current colonial practices. Mr. Hanley is too good a story-teller to lose sight of his exciting narrative. But at the same time his story has some philosophic overtones which recall Graham Greene's 'The Heart of the Matter.'" Irving Babow

+ — San Francisco Chronicle p19 S 23 '51 420w

"Mr. Hanley succeeds in communicating the arid, sun-baked, violent spirit of the African desert and the mood of desperate boredom that permeates the men stationed there. Against this authentic background, the interplay of conflicting outlooks and temperaments is all the more impressive." Martin Levin

+ Sat R of Lit 34:28 Ag 25 '51 290w

"In places the novel sags heavily, and its transitions of time and place are clumsily handled; but even with these disadvantages it is fundamentally thoughtful and interesting, and can be forcefully recommended as a problem." Marghanita Laski

+ — Spec 185:90 Ja 19 '51 350w

Springf'd Republican p7C S 16 '51 190w

Times [London] Lit Sup p38 Ja 19 '51 170w

HANNA, ALFRED JACKSON, and HANNA, KATHRYN (ABBEY). Florida's golden sands; maps and decorations by Don J. Emery. 429p $4 Bobbs

975.9 Florida—History. Florida—Description and travel 50-10520

"An informal social history of Florida's East Coast from Fernandina above Jacksonville all the way to Key West. . . The story is also the history of Flagler and of Carl Fisher, who both had so much to do with Miami. . . And since the state is so close to Cuba the book mixes as liberally as did Florida in the affairs of the Cuban liberation." (Sat R of Lit) Bibliography. Index.

"Florida's Golden Sands is not strictly a piece of historical research, though undoubtedly the emphasis falls on the historical aspect; it is not a book of travel, though few readers who had never visited Florida could fail to wish immediately to turn southward; it is definitely not a book of memoirs, though it records bits of memories from old residents. Altogether it is a delightful volume, compounded of all three types and written in a charming style." Ella Lonn

+ Am Hist R 56:681 Ap '51 500w

Booklist 47:133 D 1 '50

"It is a book which will render prompt and efficient service on any book shelf. Its index, its careful long bibliography and lists of sources are admirable. It is the sort of thing, one hopes, that will quicken the writing, all over this too-little-known country, of many more such carefully written regional histories. The American people need to be more aware of the richness and variety of human experience which crams this enormous and storied continent." M. S. Douglas

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 D 31 '50 700w

Sat R of Lit 34:40 Ja 6 '51 170w

HANSEN, ALVIN HARVEY. Business cycles and national income. 639p $6.75; text ed $5 Norton

338.54 Business cycles. Income 51-9587

"Hansen, Littauer Professor of Political Economy at Harvard, brings together the most important ideas presented in his previous writings. It is not, however, a mere collection of these earlier writings. It is rather a comprehensive and well-integrated treatise on business cycles, national income, and the various policies that have been proposed to iron out cyclical fluctuations." (N Y Times) Bibliography. Index.

"The discussion throughout is concise, illuminatingly clear, and reflects Professor Hansen's firm adherence to Keynesian emphasis on investment as the strategic element in business cycles, and his faith in the corresponding type of reasoning as a basis for understanding economic processes and formulating economic policy. The book attempts a summary of wide literature, and thus constitutes a highly useful reference volume. And surely it more than satisfies the purpose which the author unduly minimizes in the Preface when he describes it as 'a modest contribution to a better understanding of the current theory and historical development of macro-economics.'" Simon Kuznets

Am Econ R 41:967 D '51 1700w

"Obviously intended for other economists and students rather than for the lay reader. However, it is positive rather than eclectic in approach, and those who disagree with the author's conclusions will certainly find practically all of it controversial." C. E. Noyes

Nation 172:255 Mr 17 '51 600w

Reviewed by George Soule

New Repub 125:20 O 15 '51 390w

"This book is a useful addition to the literature dealing with national income and its fluctuations. It makes few original contributions, but it is a comprehensive and well-reasoned presentation of existing theory and is written in clear and straightforward style. It is especially suited for the general reader courageous enough to invade this difficult area." L. V. Chandler

+ N Y Times p3 Mr 18 '51 360w

"Specialized experts in business cycles and national income will discover in this volume little that is new. Others should, however, find it valuable, for its quality is high, its coverage is broad, and its style outstandingly clear."

+ — U S Quarterly Bk R 7:257 S '51 220w

HANSEN, HARRY. North of Manhattan; persons and places of old Westchester; with fifty-four phot. by Samuel Chamberlain. 181p $3.50 Hastings house

974.727 Westchester county, New York 50-10905

Descriptions of some historic buildings in Westchester, illustrated with photographs. Among the buildings described are Philipse Manor, Philipse Castle on the Pocantico, and Sunnyside, the home of Washington Irving. Among the historic persons are Anne Hutchinson, Major Andre, and Washington Irving. No index.

Booklist 47:154 D 15 '50

"There are times when this very 'guidebook' fidelity and detail overwhelm us just a little; when it might be feared that Mr. Hansen's intensity of interest in certain details runs a bit ahead of his reader. . . He is at his best —and broadest—when recounting for us the latter days of stormy Anne Hutchinson; the struggles of John Peter Zenger, the father of our 'freedom of the press'; aspects of the André-Arnold story; and in his review of the quiet, gracious tradition of Washington Irving." Edmund Fuller
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 D 10 '50 410w

"It is a little book charming for its air of leisurely poking around in odd corners, and informative for the nuggets it finds there. The former Chicago and New York literary critic, now editor of 'The World Almanac,' is a man who savers a good story and knows a curious fact when he meets one. Accordingly, while 'North of Manhattan' pretends to be no thorough-going guide to Westchester, it can hardly fail to tell any one a good deal he hadn't known before." J. K. Hutchens
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p1 D 10 '50 550w

HANSEN, ROBERT P. Dead pigeon. 248p $2.50 Mill

51-12175

Detective story.

Reviewed by Drexel Drake
Chicago Sunday Tribune p11 S 16 '51 80w

Kirkus 19:336 Jl 1 '51 70w

"This begins with a fresh bounce and very likeable liveliness, and then disintegrates regrettably." James Sandoe
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p20 O 21 '51 90w

"Robert P. Hansen has the first-rate idea of using a merchant seaman on the beach as a tough detective. His writing is fast and readable, and he avoids the worst excesses of the 'tough' school, but nothing much comes of his novel premise. Seaman Tim Lanagan is just another muscle-boy and the case he investigates is duller and more confused and unlikely than most." Anthony Boucher
— + N Y Times p31 S 9 '51 40w

"Too much space is given to solving a fairly obvious mystery; the action parts are fast and tolerably decent." L. G. Offord
San Francisco Chronicle p12 S 16 '51 50w

Reviewed by Sergeant Cuff
Sat R of Lit 34:32 O 20 '51 50w

Springf'd Republican p12C O 21 '51 160w

HANSLICK, EDUARD. Vienna's golden years of music, 1850-1900; tr. and ed. by Henry Pleasants III. 341p il $3.75 Simon & Schuster

780.072 Music—Vienna 51-1320

"Here are some forty collected reviews by Eduard Hanslick, the all-powerful critic of nineteenth-century Vienna, then the hub of the musical world. All his writings were one great battle for certain principles of 'absolute music' that he believed must be followed to make music a truly creative art." Sat R of Lit

Booklist 47:233 Mr 1 '51

Reviewed by Ernest Pisko
Christian Science Monitor p14 Mr 8 '51 700w

Reviewed by C. K. Miller
Library J 76:707 Ap 15 '51 110w

Reviewed by Neville Cardus
Manchester Guardian p4 Jl 20 '51 550w

Reviewed by B. H. Haggin
Nation 173:199 S 8 '51 250w

Reviewed by Cecil Smith
New Repub 124:29 F 26 '51 230w

Reviewed by Andrew Porter
New Statesman & Nation 42:442 O 20 '51 230w

"I know of no book of musical criticism of the past half century that gives at once more pleasure and more instruction. This is all the more remarkable inasmuch as these are scattered essays and reviews, very skillfully selected (and judiciously annotated) by Mr. Henry Pleasants. I say skillfully, for though these short critical pieces extend over fifty years . . . the editor has selected in such a way that one could, I think, from these essays, translated by the way into fluent and stylish English, give a coherent account of the consistent controlling ideas Hanslick had about music and the qualities in music to which he responded and which he communicated with wit, learning, and charm. . . There is great excitement in the belated discovery of a great symphony that has long lain dormant. There is almost as much delight in discovering a long-neglected critic of the first order. The editor, Mr. Henry Pleasants III, is to be congratulated on his translation, his editorial notes and on the admirably informative biographical essay with its illuminating picture of the musical Vienna which gives a context to Hanslick's criticism." Irwin Edman
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p1 Ja 21 '51 1350w

"[The editor] diminishes the stature of his hero by not including Hanslick's essays on the artistic life of London. Obviously, in a book designed to acquaint Anglo-Saxon readers with Hanslick, the reviews of Sullivan's 'Mikado' or of a Dickens lecture should not be missing—even though the book's title is 'Vienna's Golden Years of Music.' This title, though chosen for understandable reasons, is slightly misleading anyhow, for the book deals less with Vienna than with Hanslick." H. E. Jacob
N Y Times p7 Ja 7 '51 750w

"The most interesting pieces in the book, of course, are the Wagner reviews, which grumble about everything from the poor hotel accomodations in Bayreuth to the dangerous effect on German music of 'endless melody,' and display what must have been to the original readers a terribly exasperating mixture of dogmatism and good sense."
New Yorker 27:122 My 26 '51 180w

Reviewed by R. H. Hagan
San Francisco Chronicle p21 F 11 '51 600w

"These collected reviews form most interesting and timely reading. Hanslick's portrayals of famous performers of his time such as Patti, Lilli Lehmann, Clara Schumann, Anton Rubinstein, Bülow, and others still emanate charm and excitement, notwithstanding the somewhat outmoded style and some perhaps slightly ridiculous details." Rudolph Reti
+ Sat R of Lit 34:21 Ja 27 '51 550w

Reviewed by Victor Prahl
Springf'd Republican p8C F 18 '51 750w

Times [London] Lit Sup p674 O 26 '51 1750w

HARBAUGH, ROSE OLLER, and ADAMS, MARY. Favorite torte and cake recipes; 232 tested recipes; il. by William Sayles. 164p $2.95 Simon & Schuster

641.631 Cake 51-11809

"Mouth-watering recipes for a variety of cakes, including the usual favorites, and a smaller section of the more difficult tortes. Instructions are simple, and the authors have taken pains to include all the miscellaneous hints an inexperienced cook would need." Booklist

Booklist 48:25 S 15 '51

Reviewed by Morrison Wood
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 Ag 5 '51 250w

Cleveland Open Shelf p28 N '51

Reviewed by K. T. Willis
Library J 76:2008 D 1 '51 40w

"A very attractive book." Charlotte Turgeon
+ N Y Times p43 O 14 '51 70w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson
San Francisco Chronicle p22 N 19 '51 200w

HARBIN, ELVIN OSCAR. Games for boys and girls [il. by Karl J. Murr]. 160p $2 Abingdon-Cokesbury

793 Games 51-9924

Covers indoor home games, playroom games, and outdoor games for all size groups. Directions and diagrams are given for making the equipment required. Index.

Booklist 47:277 Ap 1 '51

Christian Science Monitor p6 Ap 28 '51 110w

Kirkus 19:130 Mr 1 '51 80w

"A complete, well-organized book of games. . . Definitely recommended." E. E. Beatty
+ Library J 76:712 Ap 15 '51 70w

Reviewed by L. S. Bechtel
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p9 Je 3 '51 80w

HARBISON, FREDERICK HARRIS, and COLEMAN, JOHN R. Goals and strategy in collective bargaining. 172p $2.50 Harper

331.116 Collective bargaining 51-6006

"An evaluation of union-management relations in the mass production industry based on published studies, personal contacts in bargaining situations, and on field studies, it generalizes the experiences of some 17 industries and 13 unions. After discussing the objectives of both union and management, three general types of relationships are discussed in greater detail. The trends which the authors believe will eventually lead to a more stable economy are presented in a final chapter." Library J

Booklist 48:43 O 1 '51

Reviewed by D. K. Oko
Library J 76:1569 O 1 '51 100w

HARD, WALTER R. Mountain township; with an introd. by Dorothy Canfield Fisher. (Stephen Daye press bk) new enl ed 234p il $2.75 Ungar

811 50-9136

"Volume of prose-poem sketches of New Englanders. . . Practically every poem is a plot for a short story or novel, with more detail of events than we find in the autobiographical statements of 'Spoon River.' " Sat R of Lit

"From Mr. Hard's easy, conversational pages there emerge intimate portrait sketches of rural Vermont which, taken perhaps with Dorothy Canfield's 'Hillsboro People,' give as clear and perceptive an insight into the folkways of that highly individual state as can be found anywhere. Those who know and love Vermont will want this book for remembrance." Edmund Fuller
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 Ag 27 '50 460w

"I confess that Walter Hard's language sounds like conversational prose every time I pick the book up, but I feel that I have listened to a poet, an old-fashioned bard, when I put the book down. Rich in his material, Hard lets his story tell itself. I have a suspicion that he could turn the stories into more powerful, dramatic narratives and ballads if he had a notion to do so, and American poetry might profit by it. But we cannot coax Mr. Hard to abandon a method that has already won for him a substantial, if regional, audience."
+ Sat R of Lit 33:42 N 18 '50 360w

HARDMAN, JACOB BENJAMIN SALUTSKY, and NEUFELD, MAURICE F., eds. House of labor; internal operations of American unions; prepared under the auspices of the Inter-Union institute, inc. 555p $7.65; to schools $5.75 Prentice-Hall

331.88 Trade unions—U.S. 51-2599

"The forty-nine contributors, who are either union staff members or 'academicians' with special knowledge of the labor field, discuss the following subjects: 'Unions and Political Activity;' 'Publicity and Public relations;' 'Union Research and Engineering;' 'Welfare, Health and Community Services;' 'Union Administration;' 'Workers Education.' " Library J

Booklist 47:356 Je 15 '51

Reviewed by J. L. Harrington
Canadian Forum 31:137 S '51 420w

Reviewed by Winifred Baum
Chicago Sunday Tribune p14 S 23 '51 50w

"This is a valuable contribution to the growing literature dealing with American labor." D. K. Oko
+ Library J 76:872 My 15 '51 150w

"Some readers may object to the frankly admitted and constantly present pro-union bias, but a book like this cannot be written without it. This reviewer does object, however, when that prejudice occasionally blossoms into a less acceptable naiveté that the union movement and the public's welfare are, if not the same thing, sufficiently alike to be treated as one. These critical comments are only to warn the potential reader not to be disappointed if he finds certain weaknesses on reading the book. We may hazard the guess, however, that this book will meet with a ready success and be widely quoted for many years to come. The editors have accomplished a difficult job remarkably well. It is a book worth reading." N. W. Chamberlain
+ — Management R 40:585 S '51 1000w

"Not only union people, but businessmen, public officials, university and research workers in social science, and the general reader who wants the facts about American labor will find this comprehensive volume of great value." I. B.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p22 Je 24 '51 220w

U S Quarterly Bk R 7:258 S '51 160w

HARE, CYRIL, pseud. See Clark, A. A. G.

HARK, MILDRED (MRS NOEL MCQUEEN), and MCQUEEN, NOEL. Good luck cat; pictures by Jack Ferguson. 155p $2.50 McBride

Cats—Legends and stories

Black cats are said to bring bad luck, but not Blacker who belonged to Meg and Tommy. This story for ages eight to twelve tells the story of all the good luck that came to the children after Blacker became their cat.

Reviewed by A. L. Shea
Chicago Sunday Tribune p10 Mr 25 '51 200w

Kirkus 19:2 Ja 1 '51 110w

"Well-written, interesting story for children 8-12 and even older cat lovers." E. E. Frank
+ Library J 76:338 F 15 '51 70w

"The story includes some familiar, sentimental devices, including a crusty bachelor and his solemn but warm-hearted butler. But when did children ever object to sentiment? Certainly not in a story as gentle and happily written as is this." E. L. B.
+ N Y Times p14 D 31 '50 140w

HARK, MILDRED (MRS NOEL MCQUEEN), and MCQUEEN, NOEL. Modern comedies for young players. 373p $3.50 Plays
812 51-9258

Twenty-three non-royalty one-act plays for young people. All the plays have the same cast.

Booklist 47:383 Jl 1 '51

"Innocuous family humor of the Aldrich variety, and just as subject to nauseous interpretation. Mildly funny situations, small cast and simple set requirement may be points in favor."
Kirkus 19:67 F 1 '51 100w

Reviewed by George Freedley
Library J 76:520 Mr 15 '51 10w

HARKINS, PAUL DONAL, and HARKINS, PHILIP. Army officer's guide [foreword by Maxwell D. Taylor]. 545p il $6 McGraw 355 U.S. Army—Officers' handbooks 51-11779

"A general handbook for young officers. Practically all military and organizational matters that concern officers in the United States Army are touched upon, and the more important are discussed thoroughly. The book will be most useful to men who find themselves suddenly in the position of having to lead other men in the U. S. Army and are consequently in need of general orientation and information on details. It will be useful also to general readers in need of information on such points as the organization of an infantry division. The book is based partly on the senior author's long experience as Commandant of Cadets at West Point." (N Y New Tech Bks) Index.

Booklist 48:5 S 1 '51

"Recommended." W. K. Harrison
+ Library J 76:1337 S 1 '51 80w
N Y New Tech Bks 36:79 S '51

HARKNESS, GEORGIA ELMA. Through Christ our lord [a devotional manual based on the recorded words of Jesus]. 147p $1.25 Abingdon-Cokesbury
242 Devotional exercises. Jesus Christ—Teaching 50-9164

"Meditations for individual or group worship, each page containing a gospel quotation, a practical explanation of its meaning, questions for self-appraisal and a personal prayer. Contents arranged topically. No index." Bookmark

Bookmark 10:82 Ja '51 30w

"This booklet should be of great value to many seekers after truth as well as to those who are concerned to learn more about the art and value of prayer." J. F. Davidson
+ Churchman 165:18 Ap 1 '51 100w

Reviewed by R. E. Keighton
Crozer Q 28:96 Ja '51 60w

"To be placed high on the list of personal devotional literature."
+ Kirkus 18:696 D 1 '50 100w

HARLOW, ALVIN FAY. Ringlings; wizards of the circus. 181p il $2.75 Messner
791.3 Circus. Ringling family 51-10072

The story behind the "greatest show on earth," and the family responsible for it, explaining the growth of Ringlings from a tiny circus in 1884, to its present great size. Index.

Booklist 47:296 Ap 15 '51
Bookmark 10:185 My '51
Cleveland Open Shelf p16 Jl '51

Reviewed by Siri Andrews
Library J 76:881 My 15 '51 90w

"Not too much about the circus itself which is disappointing. Recommended but not too strongly." M. D. Read
Library J 76:1036 Je 15 '51 40w

"This is not definitive biography or distinguished writing but it's good Americana. And its appeal for both circus enthusiasts and adventure lovers should be certain." M. C. S.
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p16 My 13 '51 160w

"This is required reading for every young circus fan, and good Americana too." E. L. B.
+ N Y Times p24 Ap 8 '51 170w
Sat R of Lit 34:50 N 10 '51 140w
Wis Lib Bul 47:126 My '51

HARLOW, VIRGINIA. Thomas Sergeant Perry; a biography and letters to Perry from William, Henry and Garth Wilkinson James. 394p $5 Duke univ. press
B or 92 Perry, Thomas Sergeant 51-383

Biography of a "Boston Brahmin," born in 1845, who died in 1928. "He was an aristocrat by birth and an aristocrat of letters by preference. A great-great-grandson of Benjamin Franklin, he was also the grandson of Commodore Perry of Lake Erie fame and the grandnephew of the other Commodore Perry who opened up Japan to the West." (N Y Times) He was a great friend of William and Henry James, and an appendix contains over a hundred pages of letters to Perry from William, Henry and Garth Wilkinson James. Bibliographies. Index.

"A full-scale biography, scrupulously documented and researched, the story of a quiet New England life that for all its subdued tone left its mark on letters in this country." Leon Edel
+ N Y Times p3 F 4 '51 600w

"A distinguished re-creation."
+ Sat R of Lit 34:49 Je 16 '51 240w

HARMAN, JEANNE. (PERKINS) (MRS HARRY HARMAN). Love Junk [il. by Ira Smith]. 312p $3 Appleton
917.297 Virgin Islands of the United States 51-10723

"An account of how a former staff member of Life married a young man who was in search of an uncomplicated existence, went to live with him on a remodelled barge in a harbor in the Virgin Islands, and had a perfectly wonderful time being acutely uncomfortable." New Yorker

Booklist 47:361 Je 15 '51
Bookmark 10:205 Je '51 30w

"Recommended." W. K. Harrison
+ Library J 76:967 Je 1 '51 60w

"'The Love Junk' will satisfy several categories of readers besides those who want escape, amusement and refreshment. No one who has ever wrestled either with a Diesel engine or any other kind, who has lost a temper or gained a fortune out of surplus Army and Navy supplies, who has lived on a barge, a motorboat or any variety of sailing craft but can get practical hints from these chapters." Ernestine Evans
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p23 My 13 '51 400w

"Mrs. Harman's descriptions of the permanent residents of the Islands, and of the oddly assorted tourists who eventually rode in the glass-bottomed boat built by her husband as a means of laying up a little hard cash, are shrewd and diverting. She doesn't quite manage, however, to make hurricanes, domestic troubles, bad food, and chronic exhaustion sound like jolly good fun, as was her intention."
+ New Yorker 27:129 My 12 '51 140w

"It must be that they had fun getting the thing into livable and running condition, but Mrs. Harman manages to make it sound rather ghastly. . . This failure is all the more remarkable because the last third of the book is much more successful." Raymond Holden
Sat R of Lit 35:35 Ja 12 '52 270w
Wis Lib Bul 47:119 My '51

HARPER, ROBERT STORY. Lincoln and the press. 418p il $6 McGraw

B or 92 Lincoln, Abraham. U.S.—History —Civil war 51-9098

Analyses the attitude of the press toward Lincoln especially during the Civil war years. The author puts special emphasis on the civilian attitude toward editorial opinion, and concludes that large sections of the American press were hostile toward Lincoln. List of quoted and source newspapers. Bibliography. Index.

"Lincoln and the Press cannot be placed among the important [books] that already have appeared. At most it is a minor contribution to the crowded field of Lincolniana. . . But the organization of this material is so illogical and unsystematic that one wonders at times whether the author wrote from handfuls of notes selected at random. The book lacks the virtue one normally associates with history written by journalists: readability." K. M. Stampp
+ — Am Hist R 56:914 Jl '51 600w

Reviewed by Richard Hooker
Ann Am Acad 275:189 My '51 500w

Booklist 47:218 F 15 '51

Reviewed by Walter Trohan
Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 F 11 '51 850w

Reviewed by Donald McDonald
Commonweal 53:524 Mr 2 '51 1000w

Current Hist 20:171 Mr '51 70w

"An important contribution to Lincolniana, and one that subsequent researchers will find of enormous value and interest."
+ Kirkus 19:17 Ja 1 '51 150w

Reviewed by D. C. Mearns
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p1 F 11 '51 1500w

"Mr. Harper, a former journalist and a lifelong Lincoln student, has done a great deal of research and has uncovered much that is curious and more that is important. Unfortunately, however, Mr. Harper is too ambitious; he tries too many things to do any of them well. . . Inevitably, the result is a book at once too thin and too detailed. Because of the vast extent of his subject, Mr. Harper's treatment, though usually accurate, is often superficial." David Donald
N Y Times p23 F 25 '51 650w

Reviewed by Edith James
San Francisco Chronicle p20 F 11 '51 1050w

"This is an exhaustive and valuable work—a rich and convenient reference for students of the period, of Lincoln, of American mores, and the American newspaper. The general reader may find it tedious as a cover-to-cover excursion. A different scheme of organizing the material and a little more charm in the writing might have lightened the task, though it could hardly have improved the book as a record." T. B. Sherman
+ — Sat R of Lit 34:10 F 10 '51 1050w

Springf'd Republican p8C F 4 '51 170w

U S Quarterly Bk R 7:166 Je '51 300w

HARRELL, MRS KILDA A. Look before you leap: then go to South America. 180p il $2.75 Bond Wheelwright

918 South America—Description and travel 50-10752

Informal guidebook for a cruise to South America, which takes the form of a first-person narrative of the trip taken by the author and daughter Betty.

"Mrs. Harrell misses little. She tells about the Argentine gaucho and the processing of yerba mate tea, the cathedrals of Bahia and the correct wardrobe for tourist time in Montevideo. With the same gusto she tells about samba dance forms and the attractions at the National Museum in Rio. The book is informally and pleasantly written." J. V.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p15 D 17 '50 120w

"Perhaps it was hoping for too much to have expected that books like this one had gone out of vogue. But here is a chatty lady setting down all her incredibly dull experiences on a South American cruise."
— Sat R of Lit 33:48 N 25 '50 110w

HARRIMAN, MRS MARGARET (CASE). Vicious circle; the story of the Algonquin Round Table; il. by Al Hirschfeld. 310p $3 Rinehart

818 Authors, American. Actors and actresses 51-9907

This "story of the Algonquin Round table" is told by the daughter of Frank Case, in whose hotel the daily meetings of the club took place. It is largely a collection of anecdotes about the men and women who were the frequenters of the Round table.

Reviewed by Edward Weeks
Atlantic 187:72 Ap '51 550w

Booklist 47:229; 249 Mr 1 '51; Mr 15 '51

Bookmark 10:131 Mr '51 50w

Canadian Forum 31:94 Jl '51 150w

"A lively, chatty, entertaining work, touched with nostalgia." Harry Hansen
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 Mr 11 '51 550w

Cleveland Open Shelf p14 Jl '51

Kirkus 19:22 Ja 1 '51 170w

"The author has been somewhat repetitious and has included a few astounding errors but in general her bright New Yorker style, coupled with the fact that she is the daughter of the late Frank Case, owner of the Algonquin, combines to make this a delightful book. Recommended for paid circulation, circulation, and all reference collections." George Freedley
+ Library J 76:324 F 15 '51 200w

"Mrs. Harriman brings vividly to mind and to memory some of the most vivid people who ever sat around a table and harassed one another, and brings a period to mind almost as brightly. She writes with enthusiasm and charm and if she obviously admires her subjects it is without any fluttering in their presence." Richard Lockridge
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p3 Mr 11 '51 800w

Reviewed by S. T. Williamson
N Y Times p4 Mr 18 '51 1200w

"Authentic, firsthand, primary-source history. The fact that it is written with a light touch, with a deft hand, with an abundance of anecdotage, with high readability, and with equally high amiability does not alter this fact." J. T. Winterich
+ Sat R of Lit 34:19 Mr 24 '51 900w

Time 57:102 Mr 12 '51 650w

HARRIS, MRS BERNICE (KELLY). Wild Cherry Tree road. 282p $3 Doubleday 51-13531

A North Carolina country district a generation ago is the scene of this story. The tale of every day life moves along quietly, with odd Kalline as one of the central characters. Kalline wanders in and out, working for this one or that one, and finally ends her days happily in the poorhouse.

Booklist 48:125 D 1 '51

"Unlike most modern novels, there is no strong central story taking precedence above all others. Yet there is an extraordinary unity in the narrative, so that one feels that it is the neighborhood as a whole, and not anyone in it, Mrs. Harris has intended as her protagonist. . . 'Wild Cherry Tree Road' is not a great book, but it is an eminently satisfying novel." August Derleth
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p13 O 14 '51 450w

"As a novel it is tenuous and episodic, but Bernice Harris' readers will know what to expect."
Kirkus 19:454 Ag 15 '51 200w

HARRIS, B. K.—Continued

"Mrs. Harris's art as a novelist makes one think of those primitive paintings warm and colorful, in which a number of small figures, engaged in a variety of activities, are scattered about a landscape and become an integral part of it. No one figure in 'Wild Cherry Tree Road'—although many are carefully delineated—seems life size; and Mrs. Harris appears less interested in any one of them as an individual than in the character's contribution to her whole design." Coleman Rosenberger

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p20 N 4 '51 410w

Reviewed by Charlotte Capers

N Y Times p59 N 25 '51 200w

"If Mrs. Harris had been able to bring Kalline to full size, she would have created a triumphant figure. As it is, through timidity or for some other reason, she has presented merely a pathetic old woman who is disagreeable to listen to but diverting to hear about."

New Yorker 27:138 O 27 '51 70w

HARRIS, KENNETH. Innocents from abroad 238p $2.50 Houghton

917.3 Debates and debating. National characteristics, American. U.S.—Description and travel 51-2285

First entered in Book Review Digest 1950 under title: Traveling Tongues.

Booklist 47:271 Ap 1 '51

"We can see ourselves as others see us in his comments on American speech, questions, homes, courses of study, football games, attitudes toward the British, our own government, and private enterprise. Entertaining." M. C. Scoggin

+ Horn Bk 27:242 Jl '51 80w

"Before coming here, he was warned about the danger of generalizing about the U.S.A.; the few weaknesses in the book occur when this warning is forgotten. Otherwise, a well written, easy to read, and informative book." C. J. Roth

+ Library J 76:324 F 15 '51 150w

"'Innocents From Abroad' throws light upon American manners and customs from many odd angles, some of them astonishing and instructive. Besides, the book is written in an openhearted, beguiling style, sparked with excellent observation and lightened with humor. It is pleasant reading." G. W. Johnson

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p11 Ap 1 '51 650w

"On the whole, it seemed to me that 'Innocents from Abroad' was at its best when noting minuscule matters. In fact, I closed the book with the conviction that most travel diaries of this type are at their best when they are doing just that—and that they give the reader the most enjoyment when the writer is having a good time." John McNulty

N Y Times p7 Ap 1 '51 1400w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson

San Francisco Chronicle p18 Je 6 '51 900w

"Highly recommended."

+ Wis Lib Bul 47:119 My '51

HARRIS, SEYMOUR EDWIN. Economics of mobilization and inflation. 308p $4.50 Norton

338.973 Industrial mobilization (for war). Inflation (finance). U.S.—Economic policy 51-13080

"The last in a series of books by the author dealing with problems of mobilization and war and the effects on a national economy. This is an analytical study of the U.S. situation today and is for the specialist rather than the general reader." Booklist

Booklist 48:94 N 15 '51

"The entire orientation of this unfortunately shallow and inadequate effort at a primer on economic mobilization is toward winning the Battle of the Dollar as if the monetary front were one on which the enemy could be hurt." Eliot Janeway

— N Y Times p32 N 18 '51 800w

HARRISON, HAL H. Outdoor adventures; photographs by the author. 128p $2.75 Vanguard

574 Natural history—Juvenile literature 51-5350

Photographs and text set forth the experiences of two children, Jane and Billy (in real life the author's children) as they learn about animals and insects, birds and flowers, in visits to their own backyard, the city park, or the woods and fields of the countryside.

Booklist 48:15 S 1 '51

"Ostensibly for children, this book should appeal to any intelligent parent [you naturally are one] not only as a helpful method of teaching the small fry but as fascinating in its own right." Polly Goodwin

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p13 N 4 '51 150w

"Here is a book for the whole family. The 51 adventures are likely to be only a beginning of stimulating family fun together along similar lines, waking everybody up to something more active than sitting too long in front of a TV set." M. J. T.

+ Christian Science Monitor p12 S 1 '51 170w

"There is nothing contrived about any of the children's adventures and experiences, and the information grouped around each is always interesting. An important book because of its catholic taste for nature and its attitude of interest and enjoyment." N. S. Chasteen

+ Library J 76:1234 Ag '51 70w

Reviewed by L. S. Bechtel

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p14 O 21 '51 100w

Reviewed by E. L. Buell

N Y Times p11 D 23 '51 100w

HARROD, ROY FORBES. Life of John Maynard Keynes. 674p il $7.50 Harcourt

B or 92 Keynes, John Maynard. Economics 51-9880

A biography of the man behind the mathematician, philosopher, and economist who was John Maynard Keynes. Index.

"Mr. Harrod's magnificent and absorbing book about the fascinating life of J. M. Keynes is not only a most revealing biography of a great man but also a highly important document on the cultural, social, and intellectual life of late nineteenth and twentieth century Britain. It gives the reader a rare opportunity to look deeply into the inner structure of British society and down to the very foundations of the ruling class." Gottfried Haberler

+ Ann Am Acad 276:148 Jl '51 1350w

"While it contains too much economics to be easy reading, is both an admirable personal history and a trenchant study of Keynes's doctrine, far-reaching influence, and concrete achievement." C. J. Rolo

+ Atlantic 187:79 Ap '51 1100w

Booklist 47:292 Ap 15 '51

Reviewed by Melchior Palyi

Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 Je 3 '51 300w

Reviewed by W. W. Rostow

Christian Science Monitor p15 Mr 15 '51 1250w

Reviewed by Harold Hobson

Christian Science Monitor p11 Ap 5 '51 370w

Foreign Affairs 29:678 Jl '51 80w

Reviewed by S. L. Jackson

Library J 76:515 Mr 15 '51 80w

Reviewed by Keith Hutchison

Nation 173:284 O 6 '51 900w

"R. F. Harrod's life of Lord Keynes is a book that is extremely difficult to review fairly. It has great and outstanding virtues, irritating mannerisms, lapses in style and taste and minor inaccuracies which appear magnified into major blemishes in the eyes of some of Keynes's intimate friends. Yet it is a great book. Mr. Harrod has achieved a remarkable balance." David Garnett

+ — New Repub 124:19 My 7 '51 950w

"Mr. Harrod has written a long and very readable book on an immense and varied subject. His comments on the early Bloomsbury and the Apostles are seldom happy: he underestimates the difficulty of any one who did not belong to that charmed circle describing and commenting on its character. The best picture of Keynes as a human being in this book is contained in the account of Mr. Hugh Durnford of Keynes as a Don." Kingsley Martin

+ — New Statesman & Nation 41:133 F 3 '51 1250w

"Mr. Harrod has written a great biography of a great man. I predict that the English-speaking world will continue to read his 'Life' as it reads Boswell on Johnson and Trevelyan on Macaulay. Keynes, by later generations, may not be read entire as surely Johnson and Macaulay are not; but Johnson and Macaulay have deeply penetrated our tradition, as Keynes will. And Mr. Harrod's 'Life' will continue to remind Britishers and Americans of Keynes extraordinary impact on his age." L. M. Hacker

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p 1 Mr 4 '51 1350w

"This biography, by an almost idolatrous disciple, tells the story of the man behind the incessant controversies and, on the whole, tells it very well." P. H. Douglas

N Y Times p1 Mr 4 '51 2000w

New Yorker 27:105 Mr 24 '51 200w

"Despite the exhaustive and devoted scholarship, the wealth of detail, the innumerable quotations from personal letters and the sensitive flight of Mr. Harrod's own imagination, Keynes the man does not quite come alive as a real and convincing person. He is here, he is there; he is this, he is that; but in this book he does not quite hang together as a single human being. Yet I think all who knew him would agree that, however complex and superficially inconsistent he often seemed, a very warm and simple man really did stand smiling behind the glittering and sometimes thorny façade. Perhaps there was simply too much of Keynes to be squeezed within the covers of a single book." J. W. Angell

Pol Sci Q 66:599 D '51 1200w

"Harrod presents the evidence fairly, as abundantly as was practicable in a single sizable volume, and in a manner which makes fascinating reading." Jacob Viner

+ Sat R of Lit 34:20 Mr 24 '51 850w

"Much of the detail of Mr. Harrod's book will probably arouse controversy. His interpretation of episodes is often highly idiosyncratic. He tells us in his preface that though he has 'sought out the best authorities and endeavoured to follow them,' he has 'not at every point been able to do so.' . . It is not altogether clear that Mr. Harrod has limited this technique to 'the interpretation of motives,' and his account of several matters will seem to those acquainted with them to be considerably out of focus. Yet, save for one rather serious distortion, the perspective of the picture, if we view it as a whole and stand back a little from the details, is just and true." H. D. Henderson

+ — Spec 185:116 Ja 26 '51 1450w

Reviewed by H. W. Hintz

Survey 87:231 My '51 490w

"Mr. Harrod has not merely written a biography of J. M. Keynes. He has produced a great document in the history of twentieth-century Britain."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p109 F 23 '51 2950w

"This is a good book about a great man and will stand as an important document of the age just past." R. B. Tennant

+ Yale R n s 40:753 summer '51 700w

HART, ALBERT GAILORD. Defense without inflation; with recommendations of the Committee. 186p $2 Twentieth century fund

332.41 Inflation (finance). Industrial mobilization (for war) 51-10480

"This first volume, in a projected series of at least four, outlines 'ways to maintain the most effective civilian economy at a time when the most effective defense is the primary aim.' " Bookmark

---

Reviewed by P. J. Strayer

Am Econ R 41:971 D '51 600w

Am Pol Sci R 45:909 S '51 60w

Reviewed by H. M. Groves

Ann Am Acad 276:155 Jl '51 450w

Booklist 47:323 My 15 '51

Bookmark 10:180 My '51 40w

Reviewed by D. C. Corbett

Canadian Forum 31:117 Ag '51 280w

"It is not difficult to accept the professor's thesis that by quickly building up our military strength to a point where full mobilization can be attained in a few months Russia may be deterred from attacking. But, we are warned, this costly readiness, which may last for a decade or more, cannot be had without some decline in living standards. The author says quite simply that no financial trick or device will solve the problem. And there can be no dissent from his assertion that dollars as well as manpower must be mobilized. He sees the American public lackadaisical, however, since he declares inflation a sign that the country is giving divided support to the defense effort." George Ericson

Christian Science Monitor p9 Je 18 '51 490w

Current Hist 20:292 My '51 80w

Foreign Affairs 30:159 O '51 30w

"For wide reading." J. E. Cross

+ Library J 76:869 My 15 '51 80w

Management R 40:720 N '51 130w

Reviewed by J. K. Galbraith

Nation 173:14 Jl 7 '51 750w

"A clear, definitive and objective handbook, 'Defense Without Inflation' is a constructive and altogether praiseworthy effort to piece together the skeleton of a new subject. No more impressive academic sponsorship could have been found." Eliot Janeway

+ N Y Times p11 Jl 1 '51 800w

"The best extant treatment of the inflation problem which now confronts the country and in a program for action which will generally be approved by economists." E. E. Witte

+ Survey 87:442 O '51 600w

U S Quarterly Bk R 7:258 S '51 200w

" 'Defense Without Inflation' is a stimulating and compact analysis of the current threat of inflation. Professor Hart approaches the problem with realism and due attention to the various political, psychological, and social factors involved." J. P. Miller

+ Yale R n s 41:151 autumn '51 600w

HART, ALBERT GAILORD, and others. Financing defense; federal tax and expenditure policies; with policy recommendations by the Committee on Economic Stabilization. 161p $2 Twentieth century fund

336.73 Finance—U.S. U.S.—Defenses 51-12077

"The second volume in a series on how to protect and maintain the civilian economy in a period of defense mobilization. . . This considers in greater detail the possibilities of various taxes, effects of subsidies and tariffs, and the need for adapting the government budget to uncertainty." Booklist

---

Reviewed by P. J. Strayer

Am Econ R 41:971 D '51 600w

Am Pol Sci R 45:1213 D '51 20w

Booklist 48:5 S 1 '51

Reviewed by Melchior Palyi

Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 O 7 '51 180w

"Some readers may feel that the authors have given too much weight to political possibilities as against ideal solutions. However, since the discussion is limited almost entirely to the budgetary problems of the next two or three years, there would not have been much point in considering proposals which could not conceivably be accepted by Congress." C. E. Noyes

Nation 173:245 S 22 '51 420w

HART, JAMES DAVID. The popular book; a history of America's literary taste. 351p il $5 Oxford

028 Books and reading. U.S.—Intellectual life 50-9417

For descriptive note see Annual for 1950.

"What Mr. Hart offers in this book is something of substantial value: a shrewd, witty, and altogether intelligible account of what were American values in different periods of our development and of how these values came to be represented in popular taste. This view of social history, oblique as it is, possesses the advantage of a kind of uncluttered consistency." James Gray

+ Am Hist R 56:606 Ap '51 800w

"As he comes closer and closer to the present day, the problem complicates itself; and by the time he reaches the last two decades his book looks like a catalog. Despite quantities of information concerning size of editions and number of books sold, a reasonably accurate index of a book's popularity should include figures on book borrowing—particularly public library circulation—which are practically impossible to determine. Anything like scientific certainty is, as a result, impossible in the kind of investigation Hart has chosen to make. Actually The Popular Book is a sensitive, intelligent series of generalizations, even though necessarily based on too few instances. There should be more studies in American Civilization as ambitious, and as witty, as this one." Carl Bode

+ — Am Soc R 16:129 F '51 300w

"Although Dr. Hart's book throws a good deal of light on the history of American literary taste, that light does not penetrate very far beneath the surface." F. B. Millett

+ — Library Q 21:217 Jl '51 700w

Reviewed by S. K. Ratcliffe

Manchester Guardian p4 F 13 '51 1300w

"Professor Hart has worked a large canvas, undertaking to discuss works, imaginative and otherwise, which have engaged the attention of Americans from colonial times to the present, and to describe the conditions which have made them receptive to such works. The result is an urbane study, lightened with many pleasant turns of wit, which can be scanned in order to match recollection of past reading, and rumors of books, with those deemed popular in the various decades of our national and colonial life." Louis Filler

+ New Eng Q 24:396 S '51 700w

"It is one of the many services performed by Professor Hart's very useful and highly entertaining book to remind us that many of the best writers were also best-sellers—Shakespeare, Dickens, Mark Twain." D. W. Brogan

+ Spec 185:216 F 16 '51 1200w

"When Mr. Hart deals with the past his method is successful, revealing and fascinating."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p65 F 2 '51 700w

"An arsenal of facts, often amusing, as when the author considers the sentimental novel, this work will be of some value and considerable entertainment to the general reader. From the scholar's point of view, however, it is not so satisfactory."

+ — U S Quarterly Bkl 6:411 D '50 280w

"The fact that Mr. Hart's literary and sociological judgments are conventional does not detract from the great value of his compilation. He has managed a vast amount of material with as little error as could be hoped for, he gives a systematic and intelligible progression to our fashions, and he makes the story continuously interesting." Lyman Bryson

+ Yale R n s 40:369 winter '51 750w

HART, JOSEPH KINMONT. Education in the humane community [ed. with] introd. by H. Gordon Hullfish. 172p $3 Harper

370.19 Education—Aims and objectives. Community and school 51-6824

"The John Dewey Society feels 'especially privileged to bring to the profession and to the larger community of democracy this last writing of Joseph Kinmont Hart.' It was his plan to develop the meaning of community for the modern human scene and for an education that would infuse the scene with a permanent humane quality." School & Society

Reviewed by F. E. Hirsch

Library J 76:1417 S 15 '51 130w

School & Society 74:191 S 22 '51 50w

"The book is stimulating and thought-provoking and it presents a sweeping analysis of educational theory through the ages that is both suggestive and disturbing. The merit of the author's essay is its sincere and convincing effort to make education a living reality for living people. Its weakness—like that of so many books of the sort—is its failure to grapple with fundamental issues. His words set lofty goals, but they do not tell us how to get there." Donald Derby

+ — Springf'd Republican p10D O 7 '51 260w

HARTLEY, PAUL. How to paint better. 150p il $3 Harper

751.4 Painting 51-13951

"For those who now paint pictures—either for fun or livelihood; for art students, art lovers, and those who would view art through the eyes of the artist." (Subtitle) Illustrations, diagrams. Index.

Bookmark 11:57 D '51 30w

"Written with sound horse sense and considerable humor." W. C. Smith

+ Springf'd Republican p30A D 2 '51 210w

HARTMANN, FREDERICK H., ed. Basic documents of international relations. 312p $3.25 McGraw

341.08 International relations. Treaties 51-9293

"Mr. Hartmann has selected documents designed to illustrate the forces and problems of world politics and international relations. This should be a handy and valuable text for students of modern international affairs. The Quadruple Alliance, the Triple Alliance, the Holy Alliance, the Hague Convention, the Treaty of Versailles, the Locarno Pact, all of the important World War II agreements—Yalta, Teheran, Potsdam, etc.—are included." (Current Hist) Index.

Am Pol Sci R 45:597 Je '51 40w

Current Hist 21:35 Jl '51 50w

HARTNOLL, PHYLLIS, ed. Oxford companion to the theatre. 888p $8 Oxford

792 Theater—Encyclopedias and dictionaries 51-6016

"Emphasizing the popular rather than the literary theatre, this valuable storehouse of information contains long articles on the history of the theatre in different countries, biographical and explanatory material, alphabetically arranged. Full bibliography." Bookmark

Booklist 48:7 S 1 '51

Bookmark 10:228 Jl '51 40w

"Concise, authoritative and entertaining, this one-volume encyclopedia of the theatre provides rewarding reading for the playgoer." John Nicol

+ Canadian Forum 31:167 O '51 150w

"One reason why this book is such fascinating reading is that it takes no pains to achieve the painful objectivity generally characteristic of reference books." Edward Wagenknecht

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 Ag 5 '51 430w

"Amateur and professional theater people—not to mention members of that perpetually waning profession, dramatic criticism—will undoubtedly welcome this new Oxford companion. It is invaluable, indispensable, and almost always trustworthy." John Beaufort

+ Christian Science Monitor p7 Ag 9 '51 750w

"The accent of the book is not on literature, but on production; the volume is thus unique in its field and very welcome." Walter Kerr
+ Commonweal 54:366 Jl 20 '51 220w

Kirkus 19:255 My 15 '51 120w

"This is the most valuable reference tool yet to be published in the theatre world. . . If I could have only one reference book on my theatre library shelf, I'd choose Hartnoll without hesitation. Highly recommended." George Freedley
+ Library J 76:1030 Je 15 '51 60w

Manchester Guardian p4 Je 15 '51 160w

"The present reviewer has discovered one wrong date and no doubt there are others, but the general impression is of informed trustworthiness and commendable absence of the slapdash compilation evident in more than one other remotely similar volume."
+ — Nation 173:57 Jl 21 '51 220w

Reviewed by T. C. Worsley
New Statesman & Nation 42:161 Ag 11 '51 850w

"This 'good companion' in the celebrated Oxford company of similarly delightful works in literature and music is the first comprehensive, encyclopedic treatment of theatre in all countries and periods to which more than fifty authorities, of whom fifteen are Americans, have contributed. . . 'The Oxford Companion to the Theatre' will lead you on many random paths but always with pleasure and information, for every page returns to the reader enjoyment of theatre in its many forms that the several authors reflect." Russell Rhodes
+ Sat R of Lit 34:30 S 29 '51 600w

"This remarkable compilation is irresistible. Its bulky weight may at first seem somewhat forbidding—it is impossible, however, to read three pages of it without becoming absorbed. One begins by dipping at random, but soon finds it impossible to come upon any paragraph that does not fascinate, amuse and inform." John Gielgud
+ Spec 185:828 Je 22 '51 100w

"What has been included seems more remarkable than what has been omitted, and we incline to think that the intrepid editor, Miss Phyllis Hartnoll, has in fact achieved a companion to the playhouse which will stand up to many subsequent revisions and never need to be begun afresh."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p435 Jl 13 '51 700w

HARTOG, JAN DE. Lost sea. 153p $2.50 Harper
51-12214

This brief novel, a combination of fantasy and personal reminiscence, tells the story of a boy who lives for three months in the role of "sea mouse" on a Dutch fishing vessel.

Booklist 48:105 N 15 '51

Reviewed by Edmund Fuller
Chicago Sunday Tribune p12 O 21 '51 400w

"Has a gentle charm and humored understanding."
+ Kirkus 19:330 Jl 1 '51 150w

"Like Westheimer's The Magic Fallacy this too is an almost perfect evocation of a childhood. Its wonderfully strange quality should capture the hearts of both young and old. Highly recommended." W. K. Harrison
+ Library J 76:1333 S 1 '51 90w

"There are qualities in this rare and poetic little book that are deeply touching. To all who find small boys strange and appealing creatures and to those who like the simple things of the sea—the sounds of a ship at night, the aroma of hemp and tar and fish—this volume by Jan de Hartog will be a happy discovery." Alfred Stanford
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 S 16 '51 400w

"A pleasant, nostalgic little book, half legend, half childhood memories." William McFee
+ N Y Times p22 S 9 '51 280w

New Yorker 27:115 S 22 '51 100w

"This is entirely palatable whimsy. In that vibrant half-world between boy and man, where what is emerges with what seems to be, where there is much to fear, much to worship, and an infinity to hope for, Mr. de Hartog moves with a sensitive sureness. He sings a sighing chanty and one that is very sweet." C. M. Brown
+ Sat R of Lit 34:16 S 15 '51 260w

"For keen, graphic writing on a simple but heart-gripping subject, this newest book by Mr. de Hartog stands in the front rank. Although not an elaborate or complicated work, it enhances his reputation as one of the foremost living Dutch authors." H. H.
+ Springf'd Republican p22A S 9 '51 220w

HARVARD ADVOCATE (periodical). Anthology; ed. by Donald Hall. 327p il $5 Twayne

810.8 American literature—Collections
51-9257

"Contains one or more selections from the undergraduate efforts of 48 contributors who later achieved some measure of literary fame. . . Two of the most mature items reproduced here were written by H. V. Kaltenborn in 1909 and Arthur M. Schlesinger, Jr., in 1936. . . The Advocate, a weekly magazine founded in 1866, is regarded as 'the nearest thing to an undergraduate literary center that Harvard has.'" Springf'd Republican

Reviewed by John Lardner
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 Mr 11 '51 750w

"The Harvard Advocate is 85 years old—a respectable age for any college literary magazine—and no more fitting commemoration could be imagined than Mr. Hall's admirably chosen anthology." Dudley Fitts
+ N Y Times p12 Ap 8 '51 600w

Reviewed by W. V. O'Connor
Poetry 78:241 Jl '51 700w

"Here is the beginning of talent, and a consistently interesting anthology it certainly makes." C. W. W.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p18 Mr 11 '51 290w

"It is a distinguished roll that Mr. Hall has called, and 'Mother Advocate' has many reasons to be proud." B. R. Redman
+ Sat R of Lit 34:23 Jl 14 '51 700w

"While this anthology may be of limited appeal, it is well worth examining for embryonic inklings of what was to follow, and some of the poems and stories are quite adult." D. B. B.
Springf'd Republican p16A Ja 28 '51 300w

HARVEY, JOHN HOOPER. Gothic world, 1100-1600; a survey of architecture and art. 160p 295il maps $6.75 British bk. centre

723.5 Architecture, Gothic [51-2293]

"It is the author's conviction that 'in the Gothic age the architect led the way with a flourish of trumpets, while the rest brought up the rear.' In this volume many well-known and less familiar castles and cathedrals, vaulted ceilings and towers and arches are given their handsome due. Not only England, France, Germany and Italy but Finland and the Levant are part of the text and picture." Library J

Reviewed by A. S. Plaut
Library J 76:599 Ap 1 '51 130w

"The Gothic World sets out to reveal the essence of Gothic art and architecture to the general reader, and to prove that, contrary to the usual belief, the medieval master-builders were designers who conceived their buildings as an inspired whole. Mr. Harvey completely succeeds in the second purpose, but in the first he fails. His enthusiasm is admirable, but it seems a pity it did not lead him to some revelation of the Gothic mind, a more generally interesting subject than scholarly researches into medieval records." Michael Swan
+ — New Statesman & Nation 40:634 D 16 '50 900w

HARVEY, J. H.—Continued

"There may be a better picture-book of Gothic architecture than this at this price, but this reviewer confesses he has never heard of it. The text may reach a much smaller audience than the illustrations, for John Harvey's prose is easier digested in a library than on a commuter's train, but anyone who has ever tried to solve the puzzle that's Gothic architecture will be anxious to ponder the evidence the author has amassed." Wayne Andrews

+ Sat R of Lit 34:56 O 6 '51 260w

Times [London] Lit Sup p624 O 5 '51 1200w

HASKELL, ARNOLD LIONEL. Baron at the ballet. See Baron, —

HASKELL, ARNOLD LIONEL. How to enjoy ballet [Eng title: Going to the ballet]. 126p il $3 Morrow

792.8 Ballet 51-9958

A discussion of the ballet as a whole, followed by chapters on the dancing, music, drama, costumes, and scenery. The author is director of the English Sadler's Wells school of ballet. Glossary. Index.

Booklist 47:269 Ap 1 '51

Bookmark 10:180 My '51 40w

Cleveland Open Shelf p15 Jl '51

"This well illustrated volume is a basic book for those who wish to appreciate and understand ballet. Lucidly written. Recommended for theatre and dance collections." George Freedley

+ Library J 76:86 My 15 '51 20w

Reviewed by Edith James

San Francisco Chronicle p22 Mr 23 '51 50w

"Mr. Haskell's background being what it is, many items of interest are present. Nobody will learn how to enjoy ballet through this book, but the average reader will get an idea of the countless details that go into the making of a ballet performance. There are many fine illustrations, too, and especially novel are the early pictures of Baronova, Toumanova, Markova, and Kiabouchinska." Rosalyn Krokover

+ — Sat R of Lit 34:26 My 26 '51 410w

"The book is a fine contribution to the literature on ballet appreciation. The 42 photographs of celebrated artists of the ballet and of ballet sets adds to its enjoyment and the glossary of ballet terms at its end makes it a handy reference book." W. C. Smith

+ Springf'd Republican p26A My 6 '51 300w

HASKINS, CARYL PARKER. Of societies and men. 282p $4.50 Norton

301 Sociology. Evolution 51-1007

"This is a study of the growth and evolution of human society as seen through the eyes of an eminent biologist. In seeking to determine similarities and differences which exist between human societies and other social organisms, the author devotes a major portion of the book to descriptions of social behavior in the animal world." (Library J) Bibliography. Index.

"Haskins' book is rich in interest for a biologist as well as for a sociologist. His examples from the insect world are fascinating and unhackneyed, and the range of his reading is enormous. A minor complaint is that there are no illustrations." E. S. Deevey

+ — Am Soc R 16:576 Ag '51 360w

Atlantic 187:86 My '51 100w

"Here is a fine example of how a scientist can utilize his specialized knowledge and skills in clarifying and perhaps solving problems usually considered beyond his sphere of interest. . . This phase of the study is fascinating in itself, but it is the conclusions regarding the future of the totalitarian and democratic states which makes the book important and timely." J. E. Brown

+ Library J 76:409 Mr 1 '51 130w

"The present volume by a competent biochemist examines the question whether our present knowledge justifies the belief that living organisms have been consistently evolving from single cell to social insect and that the society of human beings is following a parallel line. His answer is no. . . What makes his book extremely interesting is not this very tentative, possibly wish-directed guess but a wealth of data calculated to baffle those who make easy generalizations, a generally skeptical attitude toward the analogies which many scientists are prone to accept as confirmations strong as Holy Writ, and a gift for explanations neither oversimplified nor difficult to follow. Readers will get a lot of biology and learn at the same time not to draw conclusions too readily."

+ Nation 172:496 My 26 '51 210w

"Quite aside from its thesis, Mr. Haskins's book is a fascinating—and very readable—presentation of contemporary knowledge about the history and behavior of living organisms. Because of that fact, it may well be read even by those absolutely skeptical concerning our ability to prophesy the future of man on the basis of such knowledge. Moreover, even for such skeptics, it has another value. What Mr. Haskins has to say can be used very effectively to demolish those who more facilely and more dogmatically reach conclusions the opposite of his." J. W. Krutch

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p3 F 18 '51 1100w

"The best pages of the book are the fascinating descriptions of the behavior of termites, ants, wasps and other species of non-human life. . . Mr. Haskins is refreshingly free from dogmatism and does strive to do justice to the uniqueness of man and his social evolution despite his 'fundamental similarity' to other living things. None the less, by the time the reader reaches the chapters on totalitarianism and democracy, it is apparent that almost everything that precedes them is vastly irrelevant to the nature and future of human culture." Sidney Hook

+ — N Y Times p3 F 11 '51 1100w

San Francisco Chronicle p18 Mr 11 '51 230w

Reviewed by Roderick Seidenberg

Sat R of Lit 34:11 Mr 24 '51 900w

"Dr. Haskins' reassuring words once again give hope to all peoples that the Canaan of democracy will be ultimately achieved." G. A. Panichas

+ Springf'd Republican p8C Mr 4 '51 600w

"The book does not pretend to be a systematic analysis but is frankly speculative and based on analogies. It is very informative and stimulating." B. C. Gruenberg

+ Survey 87:239 My '51 100w

HASS, HANS. Diving to adventure; the daredevil story of hunters under the sea; tr. from the German by Barrows Mussey. 280p il $3.75 Doubleday

799.14 Spear fishing. Photography of fishes 51-13262

The author is a Viennese, an ardent follower of the sport of "goggle-fishing." This is an account of his adventures in Atlantic and Pacific waters hunting and photographing under-water life, armed with water-tight goggles, a spear, and a water-tight camera.

Booklist 48:79 N 1 '51

Bookmark 11:81 Ja '52 30w

Reviewed by Al Chase

Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 N 4 '51 190w

Kirkus 19:474 Ag 15 '51 130w

"A most unusual, fascinating work. General appeal. Strongly recommended." R. W. Henderson

+ Library J 77:58 Ja 1 '52 40w

"Mr. Hass has written a book in a lighthearted style that is easy to read, instructive and intensely interesting to a landlubber who wouldn't think of goggle-fishing himself." E. L. Acken

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p20 O 28 '51 450w

"Hass writes with boyish enthusiasm and is inclined to overdramatize his adventures. The many striking photographs are a graphic record of life in a world that few humans enter." W. B. Hayward
+ — N Y Times p16 O 28 '51 360w

"The serious reader will discover a wealth of scientific observation in this book, while the casual reader will be confronted with every element of adventure in the references to the death-dealing tentacles of the lurking octopus and the slashing attack of the killer shark." B. F. K.
+ Springf'd Republican p12A Ja 6 '52 300w

HASSLER, JOHN W. Active carbon. 380p il $7 Chemical pub. co.
661.126 Carbon, Activated. Adsorption 51-1786

"A monograph in which the whole field is compactly covered and references are given to the pertinent literature. The bibliographies include not only books, periodicals, and patents, but also some references to unpublished information. The excellent discussions of applications in specific fields account for about one-third of the book. The author is Director of Active Carbon Research for the West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company." N Y New Tech Bks

"Because of the broad scope, the treatment is descriptive rather than critical, not infrequently assuming the character of a series of abstracts rather than maintaining the form of an integrated review of past investigations. Consequently specialists may find the discussion too general for their purposes, but those wishing to survey the field will gain an appreciation of its complexity and extent." E. P. Barrett
Chem & Eng N 29:3132 Jl 30 '51 140w
N Y New Tech Bks 36:19 Mr '51

HASTINGS, MACDONALD. Cork on the water. 242p $2.50 Random house 51-13324
Detective story.

Kirkus 19:369 Jl 15 '51 60w

"One of the most disorderly and unabashed clots of melodrama the Highlands have witnessed in the annals of print. . . If Mr. Cork is senseless enough to involve himself in some other hurly-burly I, for one, shall be glad to see him again." James Sandoe
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p24 N 4 '51 180w

"Freshly original approach." Anthony Boucher
+ N Y Times p30 O 28 '51 130w

Reviewed by L. G. Offord
San Francisco Chronicle p20 N 18 '51 100w

"Very good." Sergeant Cuff
+ Sat R of Lit 34:76 N 17 '51 30w

HATCH, ALDEN. American express; a century of service. 287p il $3.50 Doubleday
385.23 American express company 50-10925

A history of the American Express from its beginnings in 1850, when the company carried parcels from Albany to Buffalo, to its present world-wide coverage. Index.

Reviewed by T. C. Cochran
Am Hist R 56:989 Jl '51 110w
Booklist 47:168 Ja 1 '51

"Mr. Hatch had the advantage of a good subject. There is plenty of interest in the growth of any of our industrial and financial giants, but seldom is it brought out in these institutional histories. But everyone who has traveled at all widely, or bought express money orders or travelers' checks, knows the name of American Express, and when a talented writer like Mr. Hatch gets his hand in with a subject like that you have a readable book." Kelsey Guilfoil
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 D 17 '50 380w
Kirkus 18:628 O 1 '50 120w

"An interesting and readable piece of promotional 'literature', but why should libraries be expected to pay $3.50 for it?" E. F. Walbridge
Library J 75:1901 N 1 '50 80w
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p18 Ap 1 '51 180w
San Francisco Chronicle p22 F 18 '51 200w

Reviewed by J. B. Thurston
Sat R of Lit 34:54 Ja 20 '51 350w

"It is the stirring story of hard work, genius and perseverance, of a famous company which has always pioneered its field, and a record of service in all corners of the globe." Leo Marceau
+ Springf'd Republican p19A Ja 14 '51 420w

HATFIELD, HENRY CARAWAY. Thomas Mann. (Makers of modern literature ser) 179p $2 New directions
833 Mann, Thomas 51-11030

"A rather erudite, critical account of Mann's novels and stories, treating various works as aesthetic units, each with its own 'central intention.' Developing theme that Mann's novels are 'always in some sense autobiographical,' Hatfield skillfully shows Mann's transition from a narcissistic Nietschean to a man 'politically and ethically right in his humanistic "Western" orientation.'" (Library J) Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 47:402 Jl 15 '51
Bookmark 10:228 Jl '51 30w

"This is the finest, clearest, and most perceptive volume on the great German novelist yet to appear." Paul Engle
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 Jl 8 '51 450w

Reviewed by Ernest Pisko
Christian Science Monitor p7 Jl 12 '51 500w

"An excellent guide for students. Recommended." R. W. Henderson
+ Library J 76:959 Je 1 '51 130w

Reviewed by Kenneth Rexroth
New Repub 125:20 Ag 20 '51 320w
New Statesman & Nation 42:164 Ag 11 '51 150w

Reviewed by J. C. Thirlwall
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p36 D 2 '51 450w

"This is the best introduction for the American reader into the unique, intriguing and often labyrinthian world of Thomas Mann." Richard Plat
+ N Y Times p 4 Jl 1 '51 550w

"The present sensible work should help to win back some readers who have been alienated by the quacks and claques."
+ New Yorker 27:117 Je 9 '51 180w

Reviewed by Claude Hill
Sat R of Lit 34:18 S 29 '51 700w
U S Quarterly Bk R 7:237 S '51 200w

HAUROWITZ, FELIX. Chemistry and biology of proteins. 374p il $5.50 Academic press
547.8 Proteins 50-12895

"The author has presented proteins from the following standpoints: (1) structure, (2) biological activity, (3) biosynthesis in the living cell. These aspects are well integrated, but wherever knowledge is available to explain the behavior or biosynthesis of proteins on the basis of physical chemistry, the author has presented it. The book is written on the graduate level." N Y New Tech Bks

"Into this relatively brief book, intended as an introduction to the subject, Haurowitz has

HAUROWITZ, FELIX—Continued
packed an astonishingly large range of information. Moreover, he has given detailed references to the original literature throughout—each chapter contains at least 50 references, some more than 150. Some work published as recently as the beginning of 1950 is discussed. . . Altogether this book should prove of great value to many students and investigators who wish a satisfactory introduction to the present state of protein chemistry." J. T. Edsall
+ Am Chem Soc J 73:3549 Jl '51 400w

"While experimental detail has been given adequate attention, the author has not shrunk from speculative argument. He has produced a well written and highly readable book. . . In spite of the inclusion of some 1500 references, the book is not merely a survey of the literature. Each chapter develops a self-contained argument, so that the book will fulfill its intended function as a text for graduate students. This combination of a highly readable text and a thorough introduction to the literature should also make the book valuable to workers in related fields of biology and chemistry." Robert Warner
+ Chem Eng 29:954 Mr 5 '51 320w

"Excellent book."
+ N Y New Tech Bks 35:92 N '50

"Although at times it is difficult to separate the author's speculations from the experimental conclusions, the book is successful in gathering and correlating most of the data which shed some light on the nature of the protein molecule."
+ U S Quarterly Bk R 7:101 Mr '51 160w

HAUSER, ARNOLD. Social history of art [tr. in collaboration with the author by Stanley Godman]. 2v 1022p pl $12.50 Knopf
709 Art—History. Art and society

"This study develops the thesis that all art is sociologically determined and reflects the society from which it emerges. . . It examines the history of art from the Stone Age, through Ancient-Oriental, Graeco-Roman and Western cultures to the present Film Age. Not only are painting, architecture, sculpture and folk arts discussed but literature, the theatre and music. While emphasis is placed on economic and political backgrounds, patterns of belief and intellectualization are also traced." (Library J) Index.

"Dr. Hauser is a German scholar and his book was written in German. The translation by Stanley Godman is its first publication in any language. It is an immense contribution to the world library of art history." Neil Martin
+ Christian Science Monitor p5 D 27 '51 600w

Kirkus 19:551 S 15 '51 240w

"Written with lucidity, force and a concentration of thought which makes demands on the reader, it is provocative, sometimes controversial and always engrossing." R. B. Robertson
+ Library J 76:1802 N 1 '51 150w

"This is a long, learned, amply documented survey. . . Excellent subject index." Lawrence Haward
+ Manchester Guardian p4 O 23 '51 480w

"If one can buy only one art book this year, this should be the choice."
+ New Repub 125:19 D 10 '51 120w

Reviewed by Clement Greenberg
N Y Times p7 D 23 '51 1250w

"The Social History of Art is full of stimulating ideas and much of it makes fascinating reading. . . The publishers tell us that Dr. Hauser's work is the fruit of 30 years' constant study at Continental universities and in Italy. Few can claim to be armed with the wide range of knowledge needed to approach the entire book with critical faculties fully awake; every chapter is packed with facts which will be unfamiliar to most readers. If The Social History of Art is unlikely to make any great appeal to the general reading public, it should certainly prove an invaluable quarry for students, University Extension lecturers and sociologists." Francis Watson
+ Spec 187:712 N 23 '51 750w

HAUSMAN, LEON AUGUSTUS. Beginner's guide to attracting birds; il. by Jackson Miles Abbott and the author. 127p $2 Putnam
598.2 Birds 51-13106

A practical handbook for those wishing to attract wild birds to house or apartment, in city or country. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 48:79 N 1 '51

Reviewed by Bob Becker
Chicago Sunday Tribune p33 D 2 '51 50w

Reviewed by M. J. Taylor
Christian Science Monitor p5 D 27 '51 180w

"A practical book, it includes handy charts, tables, and a list of useful books and publications. Recommended for all nature and public libraries." N. S. Chasteen
+ Library J 76:1575 O 1 '51 70w

HAVELOCK, ERIC ALFRED. Crucifixion of intellectual man; incorporating a fresh translation into English verse of the Prometheus bound of Aeschylus. 218p $2.75 Beacon press
882.1 Aeschylus—Prometheus bound 51-291

"The last half of this book is devoted to a translation of Aeschylus' Prometheus Bound. . . The first half consists of nine brief essays on the ideas of the drama. The author shows how Aeschylus improves on the ancient myth of Prometheus recorded in Hesiod's Theogony by transforming fire from a secret and mysterious power into a symbol of the uses and triumphs of scientific technology. Prometheus the fire bringer becomes Prometheus the humanist, defender of man's confidence in himself and his works." Crozer Q

"The book is full of arresting insights. If it has a fault, it is that these are not brought together into a total argument that is readily grasped. . . Yet if the ideas are good I don't know why we should haggle over the question of whose they are. For real insight give us metaphysics rather than history every time, and metaphysics of a stimulating sort is what this book has." J. S. Bixler
+ Crozer Q 28:276 Jl '51 450w

"The essays and analyses which accompany his translation are essential reading, inspiring both despair and hope. . . Unhappily, the translation suggests almost nothing of the power of the argument. Mr. Havelock is clearly no poet either in ear or in diction, and it is a pity that he did not choose prose as a medium. Yet when so much is given, it is ungenerous to cavil." Dudley Fitts
+ — N Y Times p13 Ag 12 '51 250w

HAVILAND, VIRGINIA. Travelogue storybook of the nineteenth century. (Caroline Hewins lecture) 70p il $2.25 Horn bk.
028.5 Children's literature—History and criticism 50-9953

The second Caroline Hewins lecture deals with the travel phase of 19th century children's literature. Partial contents: Peter Parley books and Jacob Abbott's "Rollo"; Horace Scudder's "Bodleys"; Butterworth's "Zigzag Journeys"; Stephens' "Knockabout Club"; Mrs. Chamoney's "Vassar Girls"; Colonel Knox and "The Boy Travellers"; "Family Flight" of the Hales; "Seven Little Sisters" and "Hans Brinker." Bibliographies.

Booklist 47:231 Mr 1 '51

"Miss Haviland describes ten series simply and sympathetically, although without much analysis. A reader of her text might notice, for example, that these children's books were often marked by a concealed chauvinism which seemed to teach benevolent tolerance rather than real understanding of the Turks, whom they called 'singular,' or the Italians, who are declared to be 'weak.'" J. D. Hart

Library Q 21:135 Ap '51 600w

"Today the travel story has been largely replaced by straightforward fiction, the modern counterparts of 'Hans Brinker and His Silver Skates,' and by frankly factual books, but it is both amusing and illuminating for any student of juvenile literature to trace in Miss Haviland's book the literary trails which our grandparents followed." E. L. B.
+ N Y Times p26 Mr 4 '51 310w

San Francisco Chronicle p22 D 3 '50 130w

School & Society 72:206 S 23 '50 40w

HAVILL, EDWARD. The Pinnacle. 248p $3 Sloane
51-10112

The setting is the grape growing region of upstate New York; the plot is concerned with the love of two men for the same woman. Holley Mathew, returned to his father's rundown farm after the war, lived alone, getting his food from the forests and lakes. Jim Vining, after a university education, decided to make a living on the land. Both men loved Silky Cornel. The situation was climaxed by the tragic death of Holley.

Booklist 48:11 S 1 '51

"A rich and vital book that merits wide readership." V. P. Hass
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 My 6 '51 500w

"Toned by the world it reflects, this has a simplicity and sincerity of place and people."
Kirkus 19:73 F 1 '51 170w

"Recommended." A. J. Gaines
+ Library J 76:514 Mr 15 '51 90w

"If you don't inquire too deeply into its intentions, here is a fine few hours of reading." Hugh McGovern
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p9 S 9 '51 450w

Reviewed by Granville Hicks
N Y Times p10 Jl 8 '51 330w

"Mr. Havill understands the farmer and the grape-grower, and his picture of the countryside, its hills and its vines, its gray lakes and the fishing, its woods and deer, the grapes and the wine-making and the rest—all this adds up to a regional reflection-in-fiction which is exceptionally convincing and transparently true. 'The Pinnacle' will satisfy many a reader who knows by instinct whether a novelist really understands his country or is writing, as the saying is, 'off the top of his mind.'" J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p18 Ap 24 '51 650w

Sat R of Lit 34:32 Jl 7 '51 290w

HAWES, ELIZABETH. But say it politely. 257p $3 Little
B or 92 Authors—Correspondence, reminiscenses, etc. St Croix, Virgin islands of the United States 51-14096

Narrative account, avowedly partly fictionized, of the author's life on one of the smaller Virgin Islands.

Booklist 48:142 D 15 '51

"Bright, sparkling, witty and shallow, this is more of Hawes than I can take."
Kirkus 19:521 S 1 '51 140w

"The chapter 'Back To An Ivory Tower' telling of her return to New York and the brief reopening of her design shop is the most interesting part of the book. Miss Hawes previous books will probably create a demand for this, but small libraries should read before purchasing." E. M. Lilley
Library J 76:1802 N 1 '51 100w

"'But Say It Politely' will hearten some readers and exasperate others. I wager however, that very few will fail to find unusual interest in at least some of its amazingly varied attempts to shoot at the stars or will be willing to lay it down before the end." Mary Ross
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 N 18 '51 650w

HAWTHORNE, NATHANIEL. Best of Hawthorne; ed. with introd. and notes by Mark Van Doren. 436p $2.50 Ronald 51-9259

An anthology of Hawthorne, consisting of ten short stories; passages from the American notebooks; the whole of the Scarlet Letter; four prefaces; and a magazine sketch of Lincoln published in 1862. Bibliography.

Booklist 47:253 Mr 15 '51

"An excellent job." Edward Wagenknecht
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 F 25 '51 500w

Reviewed by G. F. Whicher
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p20 Mr 4 '51 80w

"This 'Best of Hawthorne' is some of our country's best heritage." D. P.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p21 Mr 11 '51 230w

School & Society 73:48 Ja 20 '51 10w

HAY, CLYDE LEMON. Blind spot in American public education; with introd. by Herbert B. Mulford. 110p $2 Macmillan
377.1 Religious education. Education—U.S. Church and education 50-9702

For descriptive note see Annual for 1950.

"This book is in no sense final. It is a thoughtful attempt by an experienced person to throw some light on a very confusing problem." J. V. Thompson
+ Christian Century 69:16 Ja 2 '52 1100w

"Apparently preoccupied with the Protestant problem of religious illiteracy, Dr. Hay is a bit over-enthusiastic about the non-sectarian character of his ideas, which happen to have a marked resemblance to very sectarian Protestant theology. . . On the whole, the book accurately describes the blind spot but, I fear, it sheds little light upon it." W. E. McManus
Commonweal 53:405 Ja 26 '51 400w

"In view of the wide diversity of laws and practices in the several states regarding the reading of the Bible, Dr. Hay's book provides a program on which religious leaders and public school teachers could well agree as a vital plan of providing spiritual food for the children of our nation who are enrolled in our public schools." F. R. Morey
+ Crozer Q 28:178 Ap '51 500w

Reviewed by William Taeusch
Sat R of Lit 34:16 S 8 '51 550w

"This book is not a pamphleteering effort for 'released time.' Rather it is a highminded plea for wider recognition by citizens of all faiths and no faith that there is content and matter now ignored in public education which should be incorporated into the instruction." Ordway Tead
+ Survey 87:40 Ja '51 360w

HAY, MALCOLM VIVIAN. Foot of pride; the pressure of Christendom on the people of Israel for 1900 years; with an introd. by Thomas Sugrue. 352p $3.75 Beacon press
296 Jews—Politics and social conditions 50-10545

A history of anti-semitism from the time of St John Chrysostom down thru the ages to the setting up of the State of Israel. Bibliography. Index.

"Numerous writers have attempted to give the world some idea of the concentration camps, the gas chambers, the brutal intimidations, mutilations, and murders, but no author has done it with a sincerity greater than Malcolm Hay has achieved in this book. Moreover, Hitler's satanic revels in blood are only the point of departure from which Mr.

HAY, M. V.—Continued
Hay leads us on a tour of the devilish scenes and spectacles which have been produced by Christian hatred of Jews for some eighteen hundred years. . . Mr. Hay has written a thought-provoking book. It has a wonderful fund of information. It will be a good tonic for any person who is interested in the great problems of our time. Anti-Semitism is a cultural disease, and with some degree of validity one may characterize Semitism in the same way. Mr. Hay has dealt with one important symptom but not with the disease itself." S. V. McCasland
+ — Crozer Q 28:63 Ja '51 2200w

"A book rooted in profound scholarship, written on an historical level, rather than a psychological one. A record that should be known, by Jew and Christian alike. Extensively documented; excellent bibliography."
+ Kirkus 18:503 Ag 15 '50 160w

"This is an excellent history of the doctrine of anti-semitism. . . Splendid bibliography." H. L. Roth
+ Library J 75:1400 S 1 '50 140w

"This is an admirably documented, impressive and slightly overlong indictment. It is not a balanced history, and it is not an attempt to go beyond the deeds and the rationalizations of anti-Semitism to the social and individual motivations of anti-Semitism. Major Hay's book can be a useful part of a serious sociological study of anti-Semitism; he can give many leads, many suggestions. . . But, to borrow from the medical sciences, [books like Major Hay's] give us, at least from the point of view of scientific understanding, no more than the signs or symptoms of a given malady; they do not give us the etiology, the complex set of causes without which the physician can hardly hope for a cure." Crane Brinton
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p14 Ja 14 '51 850w

HAY, SARA HENDERSON (MRS RAYMOND PECKHAM HOLDEN). Delicate balance. 52p $2.50 Scribner 811 51-10270

Short poems by an American writer. They are about simple emotions, flowers, insects, birds, and people, with now and then a touch of satire. Some of the poems are reprinted from magazines.

Booklist 47:307 My 1 '51
Christian Century 68:1438 D 12 '51 50w
Kirkus 19:170 Mr 15 '51 70w
Reviewed by G. D. McDonald
Library J 76:1427 S 15 '51 60w

"It is refreshing to find some one who is content to be a skillful writer of verses without straining after more fashionable techniques." David Daiches
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p15 Ag 26 '51 240w

"Restraint, balance, clarity are often commendable features of her work, yet these poems lack evocative power, partly because they incline toward adroitness rather than intensity and partly because they are, with a few exceptions, conventional in tone, diction and imagery." Robert Hayden
+ — N Y Times p22 Ap 29 '51 230w

"What gives 'The Delicate Balance' viability as a work of art is Sara Henderson Hay's approach to her craft. A traditionalist by temperament, she accepts the conventions of writing and exploits her themes in a metric at once simple and intelligible." I. L. Salomon
+ Sat R of Lit 34:23 Jl 21 '51 450w

HAYCOX, ERNEST. By rope and lead. 174p $2.50 Little 51-1322

Nine short stories of the old West.

Reviewed by Al Chase
Chicago Sunday Tribune p2 Ap 8 '51 70w
Kirkus 19:38 Ja 15 '51 120w

"A fine collection of tight, exciting stories of the old west. . . A worth while book for your western fans." M. D. Read
+ Library J 76:1036 Je 15 '51 30w

"All are top-drawer." Hoffman Birney
+ N Y Times p24 Mr 25 '51 20w

HAYEK, FRIEDRICH AUGUST VON. John Stuart Mill and Harriet Taylor. See Mill, J. S. and H. H. T.

HAYES, CARLTON JOSEPH HUNTLEY. United States and Spain: an interpretation. 198p $2.75 Sheed
327.73 U.S.—Foreign relations—Spain. Spain—Foreign relations—U.S. 51-13793

"The author is a distinguished historian who was sent to Spain as our Ambassador at a time when the cooperation of Franco seemed important to the success of our armed forces in Europe. This year he gave the Fenwick Lectures at the College of the Holy Cross in Worcester, Mass., and these lectures have been expanded into an argument that we should regard Spain as a member in good standing of the European family of nations, and as such entitled to equal treatment with the more democratic members of that family." Sat R of Lit

Bookmark 11:81 Ja '52 30w

"Long recognized as a professional historian of wide interests, of judicial mind, of forthright speech, the author has given us here a book for which every fair-minded American should be grateful." Joseph McSorley
+ Cath World 174:236 D '51 450w
Reviewed by W. E. Garrison
Christian Century 68:1512 D 26 '51 400w
Reviewed by E. S. Skillin
Commonweal 55:157 N 16 '51 320w

"A lively and stimulating report on Spain."
+ Kirkus 19:545 S 15 '51 250w

"If further testimony to the knottiness of the Spanish question is needed, there is surely no more competent witness than the American who served his country as Ambassador to Madrid from 1942 to 1945 and whose sagacity as a historian lends weight to his presentation. Mr. Hayes' interpretation is a welcome addition to the debate, which is far from stilled by Washington's recent overtures to Spain's ruler." Hubert Herring
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 N 11 '51 2000w

"When it comes to Spain one preaches to the converted, and Hayes' earnest defense of the Franco regime will confirm pro-Francoists in their opinions; it is unlikely to convert any opponents. The greatest weakness of this book is its intransigence and its premise that those who disagree with the author are innocent dupes of Moscow or Communists or fellow-travelers. This is hardly fair to many Americans and Europeans who hold anti-Franco views and who base them on a careful study of the problem." H. L. Matthews
N Y Times p14 O 28 '51 800w
Reviewed by Herschel Brickell
Sat R of Lit 34:19 O 27 '51 650w
Springf'd Republican p28A N 25 '51 190w

HAYES, MRS CATHY. Ape in our house. 247p il $3.50 Harper
591.5 Chimpanzees 51-13300

A non-technical, but on the whole restrained and serious account of how two young people, the author and her psychologist-husband, adopted a baby chimpanzee and raised it like a child.

Booklist 48:79 N 1 '51
Kirkus 19:467 Ag 15 '51 160w
Reviewed by E. M. Cole
Library J 76:1560 O 1 '51 100w

"Young parents will find themselves taking a new and self-satisfied view of the ease of raising their children as compared to the problem of raising Viki. They will find this book (and its engaging photographs) interesting and in a way comforting; at least their children cannot crayon on the ceilings, or jump onto their heads from the top of the kitchen cabinets." Joanna Spencer

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p18 N 25 '51 600w

"Having watched for years the failure of dozens of such experimental associations between man and wild animals, including apes, I approached this chronicle with real skepticism. . . After reading Cathy Hayes's book I must admit in all honesty, that somewhere in the first two chapters I was completely disarmed and became thoroughly sympathetic toward my three new friends, Vicki, Cathy, and Keith Hayes." B. J. Benchley

+ Sat R of Lit 34:15 N 3 '51 950w

Wis Lib Bul 47:248 N '51

HAYNES, GEORGE EDMUND. Africa, continent of the future. 516p $3.50 Assn. press

916 Africa 51-11531

"A country-by-country survey of Africa south of the Sahara. Sponsored by and really written for the World's Committee of the Y. M. C. A." Foreign Affairs

Booklist 48:8 S 1 '51

Reviewed by L. T. Heron

Chicago Sunday Tribune p19 N 4 '51 90w

Christian Century 68:1379 N 28 '51 60w

Foreign Affairs 30:169 O '51 20w

"Dr. Haynes' book greatly enlarges our understanding of present African problems and it is to be hoped that his suggestions may be translated into action, to help assure their proper place in the free world to the people of this great continent." E. S. Reynolds

+ Survey 87:494 N '51 550w

HAYWOOD, CAROLYN. Eddie and Gardenia; il. by [the author]. 191p $2 Morrow 51-11435

In the third Eddie book, Eddie and his beloved goat, Gardenia, visit a Texas ranch and both become real ranchers. For ages eight to twelve.

Booklist 47:405 Jl 15 '51

"Little Eddie's friends are certainly going to be glad to know that he is back in a fine new story." Polly Goodwin

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 S 2 '51 200w

Kirkus 19:292 Je 15 '51 150w

Reviewed by N. L. Rathbun

Library J 76:1234 Ag '51 30w

Reviewed by L. S. Bechtel

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p20 O 14 '51 130w

Reviewed by S. C. Gross

+ N Y Times p18 Ag 12 '51 140w

Reviewed by K. T. Kinkead

New Yorker 27:175 D 1 '51 80w

+ Sat R of Lit 34:58 N 10 '51 90w

Springf'd Republican p12C Ag 26 '51 90w

Wis Lib Bul 47:218 S '51

HAYWOOD, CHARLES. Bibliography of North American folklore and folksong. 1292p $27.50 Greenberg

016.398 Folklore, American—Bibliography. Folklore, Indian—Bibliography. Folk songs, American—Bibliography 51-1941

"This 1292-page work, with 40,000 entries, is a round-up of printed sources of folklore and song, together with recordings and musical arrangements. Book 1 is devoted to the American people north of Mexico. Following the pages on general works are sections broken down by region, ethnic group, occupation, etc. Book 2 is devoted to the North American Indian, classified first by culture area then by tribe. Publications appearing after 1948 are not included." Library J

"All students of this subject, whether here or abroad, will find themselves greatly in the debt of Professor Haywood and will be looking forward in the course of some years to a new edition of this bibliography." Stith Thompson

+ Am Anthropol 53:553 O '51 600w

"The work has imperfections: weakness in local history sources; inconsistencies in form of entry; uncertain classifications and doubtful entries. But the virtues of the compilation overweigh these faults. It is unique in its field and will be extremely useful to school, college and research libraries. Its price is high but must be regarded as an essential expenditure." G. D. McDonald

+ — Library J 76:862 My 15 '51 130w

"Mr. Haywood's work is a most useful and excellent one. Any slight shortcomings must perforce be pardoned when we consider the monumental task which a single individual set himself and successfully completed. It is to be hoped that annual or biennial supplements to the Bibliography will keep it up to date." Duncan Emrich

+ Music Lib Assn Notes 8:700 S '51 550w

"Excellent progress has been made in the last sixty years in collecting and studying America's folklore, but American folklorists have generally been slow in providing handbooks, bibliographies, and the other necessary tools of their trade. None of these basic works of reference has been more sorely missed than a standard bibliography of American folklore. With the publication of the present volume, that need has been well filled."

+ U S Quarterly Bk R 7:326 S '51 220w

HAZELTINE, ALICE ISABEL, and SMITH, ELVA SOPHRONIA, eds. Stories of love. 308p $3 Lothrop

Short stories—Collections 51-9640

A collection of stories, poems and plays all about romantic love. Chosen for grades seven to nine.

Booklist 47:277 Ap 1 '51

Reviewed by A. C. Moore

Horn Bk 27:238 Jl '51 40w

"If anthologies are needed, this is one which has literary merit." Siri Andrews

+ Library J 76:606 Ap 1 '51 90w

"The only possible criticism is that the sources are not clear enough. The fine bits from Hardy, Rostand, A. M. Huggins, Marchette Chute, surely should lead to reading the whole of each book. These titles cannot easily be found in the publishers' acknowledgment pages. Perhaps, in a reprint, a list of the books could be put at the back. The book-making will appeal to the eyes of those girls beginning to grow up." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 Mr 4 '51 270w

"The selections have been made with taste and imagination, and are unexpectedly varied in period, setting and mood. . . The choice of lyrics is particularly happy." E. L. B.

+ N Y Times p30 Ap 22 '51 90w

Wis Lib Bul 47:62 Mr '51

HAZLITT, HENRY. Great idea. 374p $3.50 Appleton

51-9833

"Tacking the merest appendix-tail of a plot onto what amounts to practically a book-long dialectical dialogue between a young future world dictator and his Number 2 deputy, this yet provides an economic solution to any future world-wide Union of Soviet States. Stalenin's son, Peter, sheltered from babyhood on a remote Bermudian isle, returns to Moscow, capitol of Wonworld, to face a rigorously regimented life. . . Stalenin's death places Peter in power, but opposed by ambitious Number 1

HAZLITT, HENRY—Continued
Deputy Bolshekov, and aided in his search for a restoration of humanitarian government by Number 2, the American, Adams. Peter and Adams engage in endless economic discussion, but do take time out to activate reforms by restoring Free Enterprise. For this, they are forced to flee westward, where they form Freeworld in America." Kirkus

"Unlike Orwell's masterpiece, this is not a passionate book, but its cool, bland portrayal of totalitarian horror carries a conviction of its own." Riley Hughes
Cath World 173:311 Jl '51 280w

Reviewed by A. C. Ames
Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 Ap 1 '51 470w

"More than two-thirds of the words in this alleged novel are devoted to abstract economic problems, as you might have expected from the author of the well-informed column 'Business Tides' in Newsweek. Nevertheless I would not vouch for the fact that even all the statements on economics are correct." Max Fischer
Commonweal 54:42 Ap 20 '51 950w
+ Kirkus 19:74 F 1 '51 240w

"Essayed in the form of 1984 and Looking Backward this book does not succeed in creating the illusion of probability which its predecessors did." H. L. Roth
Library J 76:705 Ap 15 '51 130w

Reviewed by Herbert Kupferberg
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p13 Ap 1 '51 900w

"Mr. Hazlitt does not believe that we are lost, and his confident optimism is the most refreshing quality of his book. 'The Great Idea' has none of the negativism and black despair of '1984' or 'The Age of Longing.' Partly this is because Mr. Hazlitt is not a creative artist, as Orwell and Koestler are in part, and therefore is not adept at communicating feeling. Partly, no doubt, it is because he has never had the close direct experience of totalitarianism." James Burnham
N Y Times p4 Mr 25 '51 90w
New Yorker 27:118 Ap 7 '51 180w

Reviewed by C. E. Miller
San Francisco Chronicle p12 Ap 8 '51 700w

Reviewed by C. E. Ayres
Sat R of Lit 34:31 Ap 14 '51 600w

HEAD, MATTHEW, pseud. See Canaday, J. E.

HEADLEY, ELIZABETH CAVANNA. Catchpenny street. 223p $2.50 Macrae Smith co.
51-10607

Camden, New Jersey, in the summer of 1917, is the scene of this novel for older girls. Ellen, just graduated from high school, tries to decide between two suitors and makes the better choice.

Kirkus 19:66 F 1 '51 150w

"Pleasant romance for younger teens." M. W. Cooley
+ Library J 76:970 Je 1 '51 70w
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 Je 17 '51 240w

"Ellen is such a nice girl, and her story is told with such persuasive warmth that it is a very readable one. The feeling of the period is ably recreated." E. L. Buell
+ N Y Times p22 My 27 '51 150w
Sat R of Lit 34:57 My 12 '51 80w

HEADLEY, MRS ELIZABETH (CAVANNA). Two's company; il. by Edward J. Smith. 189p $2.50 Westminster press
51-12729

This novel for older girls tells the story of young Claire Farrell, who, in pursuit of a glamorous actor, goes on a visit to her grandparent's home in Williamsburg, Virginia, and there finds a fresh perspective on life —and a better love.

Booklist 48:87 N 1 '51

"Characters are well drawn and the story is engrossing." F. D. H.
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p19 N 11 '51 80w
Kirkus 19:446 Ag 15 '51 80w

"This is a 'junior novel' whose interest depends much on its background. At Claire's own age most girls would be impatient with it, but at about twelve to fifteen, it is good enough pass-the-time reading. The style is marred by occasional clichés, but the teen-age talk has a brisk realism." L. S. Bechtel
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p16 O 28 '51 180w

"A light novel with nothing unusual but the setting." G. C. Castor
N Y Times p10 N 11 '51 130w

HEADSTROM, BIRGER RICHARD. Living year; il. by Anne Marie Jauss. 255p $3 Washburn
574 Natural history 50-10546

Twelve chapters, one for each month of the year, describing walks which the author took, and his observations on the flora and fauna of each particular season of the year.

"This is a gentle book, for those who love a ramble through the woods, or in the fields, at any season of the year. . . Mr. Headstrom finds more, much more, in every bush, tree, bird track, and stream, than the layman ever could: but his language is simple and homey, and harks back to things we ourselves have known."
+ Christian Science Monitor p19 N 25 '50 150w

"A delightful arm-chair gift book for amateur naturalists."
+ Kirkus 18:580 S 15 '50 140w

"It follows the honored pattern, in this genre, of breaking the year into twelve chapter-months. Each chapter has a detailed calendar of Natural Events. These calendars are admirably done, in a way greatly to help any reader who lives in Mr. Headstrom's territory (generally speaking, New England). The writing, in a tradition as familiar as the book's form, is rapturous going in a good deal for 'sunny glens aglow,' May-flies 'joining in joyous dance,' columbine 'dancing in the breeze with elfin charm,' and so on." Alan Devoe
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p17 Ap 22 '51 170w

"Here is that rare combination—a useful reference book and an interesting nature book for general reading. . . The writing, unhappily, is a bit labored in spots; one stumbles over pedantic expressions." H. S. Pearson
+ — N Y Times p19 Ja 21 '51 190w
Sat R of Lit 34:28 Jl 7 '51 150w

HEAGNEY, HAROLD JEROME. Madame de Chantal. 285p $3.50 Kenedy
B or 92 Chantal, Jeanne Françoise (Frémiot) de Rabutin, baronne de, Saint

A slightly fictionized biography of St Jeanne Frances de Chantal, a seventeenth century French aristocrat, who came under the influence of St Francis de Sales and with him founded the Order of the Visitation.

"Charmingly simple and urbane narrative." D. H. Moseley
+ Commonweal 53:574 Mr 16 '51 330w

"As religious biography this is much above the average."
+ Kirkus 18:700 D 1 '50 150w

"This life of St. Jeanne Frances de Chantal is exceptional. For Madame de Chantal is exceptional, and she is pictured as a real person as well as a good one."
+ Sat R of Lit 34:45 F 10 '51 230w

HEARD, GERALD. Black fox; a novel of the seventies. 275p $3 Harper 51-13533

A novel of the supernatural the scene of which is the close of an English cathedral city in the 1870's.

Bookmark 11:59 D '51 30w
Kirkus 19:660 N 1 '51 110w

"This is one of the most distinguished novels of the supernatural since The Turn of the Screw. Recommended only to readers with strong nerves, however." E. F. Walbridge
+ Library J 76:1806 N 1 '51 80w

"One of the few distinguished supernatural novels of the last decade—a sort of collaboration of Montague Rhodes James and Charles Williams, with much that can only be the inimitable Heard." H. H. Holmes
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 N 11 '51 320w

"Subtle, beautifully written fantasy. . . 'The Black Fox' will never be a best seller. But for those who like to sip of subtlety in style, wit and idea—obscured though they may be by the complexities of an ecclesiastical hierarchy—it will prove to be a gracious vintage." Villiers Gerson
+ N Y Times p30 D 9 '51 150w

"According to your taste 'The Black Fox' deserves a place on the shelf with either Montague Rhodes James's ghost stories, or with the philosophic romances of Charles Williams and C. S. Lewis." Basil Davenport
+ Sat R of Lit 34:73 N 17 '51 460w
Wis Lib Bul 47:254 N '51

HEARD, GERALD. Is another world watching? the riddle of the flying saucers [Eng title: Riddle of the flying saucers]. 183p il $2.75 Harper
629.133 Hallucinations and illusions. Rockets (aeronautics). Interplanetary voyages
51-10396

"This treatise on space ships, Martian bees, and 'floating jetties' (interplanetary hitching posts) is described as the result of the author's 'reasoned speculations.' . . The author's method is inductive right up to the point of faith: take what can be proved (the principles of rocket propulsion), add it to what can be scientifically assumed (life on Mars) and arrive at what may be hoped for (unbidden guests seeking to save us from our own atomic destruction). Thus, he sees the 'invasion from Mars' as engineered by a race of 'super bees' quite capable of building and piloting interplanetary craft that behave according to recent observation." N Y Times

Reviewed by H. B. Nichols
Christian Science Monitor p9 My 16 '51 650w
Cleveland Open Shelf p17 S '51
Kirkus 19:145 Mr 1 '51 120w

"Readers whose credulity was strained by Scully's Behind the Flying Saucers, will be equally unhappy with this latest probing of a popular mystery." J. E. Brown
Library J 76:775 My 1 '51 120w

Reviewed by Michael Ramsbotham
New Statesman & Nation 40:683 D 30 '50 1050w

Reviewed by J. K. Hutchens
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 Ap 15 '51 650w

"Mr. Heard is almost a professional anti-skeptic. . . To this task he brings a formidable array of scientific information—all directed against scientific skepticism, it should be added—particularly in the fields of astronomy and entymology. Much of this is instructive and fascinating for its own sake, although it cannot be said to prove anything beyond some kind of theory of remote probability—i. e., since A cannot be proved impossible, therefore it may be possible." R. L. Plabb
N Y Times p18 Ap 29 '51 400w

"Several difficulties mar Mr. Heard's story. Matters of easily checkable fact, such as place names, or quantities, are in error. . . Despite this, Mr. Heard writes with a fine, imaginative style, and the chapters on the bees and how our life must appear to an extra-terrestrial, are brilliantly and excitingly handled." Don Fabun
+ — San Francisco Chronicle p24 Ap 29 '51 1100w

"In spite of beautiful presentation [Heard's] attempt to reduce the queer and complex phenomenon known as the flying saucers to a single cause, by examination of what seemed to him pertinent evidence, is unconvincing. Though he failed in this, he has succeeded in producing a very fine science-fiction story instead. You will not agree with his conclusion and you'll find flaws in the reasoning. But you'll find that it was reading time well spent." Willy Ley
+ — Sat R of Lit 34:20 Ap 28 '51 1100w
Springf'd Republican p8C Ap 29 '51 300w
Times [London] Lit Sup p49 Ja 26 '51 300w
Wis Lib Bul 47:210 S '51

HEARD, GERALD. Morals since 1900. 223p $3 Harper
170.904 Moral conditions 51-1801

"A dark look at the moral fabric of British society, which the author thinks has been steadily unravelling since the beginning of the century, and some suggestions as to how a new ethic, in keeping with the present scientific era, might be developed. . . Much of what he says here about the changes in the 'five natural moral laws,' which deal with force, sex, wealth, word (meaning honor), and thought, can be applied to the United States as well as to Britain, and some of what he says, particularly his remarks about mendacity in advertising and the public indifference to it, fits this country even better than Britain." (New Yorker) Index.

"William Sheldon, Columbia University psychologist, once characterized Gerald Heard as perhaps the best informed man alive. When one of whom this can be said writes a book about Anglo-American morals since 1900, the result is bound to be fascinating even if the thesis is controversial." Huston Smith
Christian Century 68:430 Ap 4 '51 1200w

"It is an excellent introduction to the moral phases of our contemporary democratic civilization. It abounds in interesting observations, penetrating analyses and insights, and sound criticisms. Every alert reader, abreast of the times, will find it an informing and stimulating volume." A. C. Knudson
+ Crozer Q 28:255 Jl '51 700w

"Unfortunately the first thirty or so pages of the present book are very badly written. The thinking is often incoherent, the writing crude and sometimes ungrammatical, the punctuation poor and misleading, and some of the statements almost meaningless. . . There is a grave danger that the opening pages of this book may put off new readers and damage Mr. Heard's reputation with others. Though the rest of the book improves, and some of it is on the high level of his other work, there are signs of haste. It contains some of his best things, superbly put, exciting, vivid, profound, but is rather sketchy and fragmentary." Robert Hamilton
Hibbert J 49:197 Ja '51 800w

"A book which should have a wide appeal to the thoughtful students of the contemporary scene, especially those who would bring a religious interpretation to the problems of the world."
+ Kirkus 19:53 F 1 '51 160w

"A busy man or woman might do worse than read nothing for a couple of months but this book of Mr. Heard's; reading slowly, scribbling 'Yes' or 'No' or 'Look it up' in the margin, and sometimes retiring for a few minutes into a quiet back room to think about some of the points. A gesture of this kind would bode well for morals in the year 2000." Paul Bloomfield
Manchester Guardian p4 Jl 7 '50 480w

HEARD, GERALD—Continued

"The book is full of ideas. In fact there are too many. In consequence everything tends to appear of equal importance and it is difficult to retain a sense of perspective. One wishes that Mr. Heard would restrict his scope, for the canvas is so wide, the brush so broad, the strokes so slapdash that no clear picture emerges." C. E. M. Joad

New Statesman & Nation 40:330 S 30 '50 1150w

Reviewed by Reinhold Niebuhr

N Y Times p3 F 11 '51 600w

"Mr. Heard is adept at critical analysis, seeing human flaws with an icy clearness. . . By and large his writing is provocative of thought as well as of temper, and certainly it is consistently stimulating."

+ New Yorker 26:95 Ja 20 '51 220w

Reviewed by Robert Bierstedt

Sat R of Lit 34:31 Jl 28 '51 280w

"His book, for all its faults, is unusually stimulating. It is not nearly as slapdash as a certain carelessness in production (there are many misprints) might suggest; and it never loses a tonic vigour with which it often infects the reader." D. M. Mackinnon

+ — Spec 184:122 Jl 28 '50 750w

"His pessimism is only a prelude to a vague but sincere optimism. And he is always interesting."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p659 O 20 '50 1200w

HEATH, SIDNEY HERBERT. In the steps of the pilgrims. 296p il $4 Putnam

914.2 Pilgrims and pilgrimages. England—Social life and customs 51-10452

"Drawing upon contemporary writings, the author has written a history of the pilgrimages to sacred shrines and wells in England during the Middle Ages. Full of curiosities, the book should prove popular with persons visiting England this festival year. Illustrated and indexed." (Library J) First published in 1911 with title Pilgrim Life in the Middle Ages (Book Review Digest 1912).

"This is one of the most delightful travel books I have ever read. The pleasure comes not only from the content, but also from the manner of recital of a fascinating tale." F. A. Levy

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p8 Jl 1 '51 100w

"Recommended." W. K. Harrison

+ Library J 76:967 Je 1 '51 40w

"Mr. Heath offers his reader a fund of rare and curious information. . . The book contains 73 illustrations." J. V.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p22 Je 24 '51 220w

HEBDEN, NORMAN, and SMITH, WILBUR STEVENSON. State-city relationships in highway affairs. 230p $4 Yale univ. press

388.1 Municipal government—State relations. Roads—U.S. 50-4766

"Urban motor transport has notably increased in the United States during recent years; the revenue derived from motor taxes, especially from highway-user taxes, has, however, gone principally to the states. This situation has led state governments to assume a larger share in the financing of city roads. They have done this by the grant of state funds to city administrations, by absorbing city streets into state highway systems, and by the expenditure of money received from the federal treasury for urban highway development. The present study presents a detailed and classified report upon forms of state or state-federal assistance in twenty-two American cities located in twelve states." (U S Quarterly Bk R) Index.

"The chapters by Wheaton J. Lane, Sigvald Johannesson, Charles Ross, and David Levin offer rich rewards to those who will take time to read them." L. G. Harvey

+ Am Pol Sci R 44:1040 D '50 250w

Eng N 145:50 S 14 '50 220w

"The study is a useful source of information, and a collection of constructive comments and ideas. It will be of interest to persons connected with state and municipal administrations, and to students in the fields of transportation and of public finance."

+ U S Quarterly Bk R 7:68 Mr '51 250w

HEBERDEN, MARY VIOLET (CHARLES L. LEONARD, pseud). Sleeping witness. 190p $2.50 Doubleday

51-12101

Detective story.

Kirkus 19:309 Je 15 '51 60w

"A colorful group of characters and a fresh background add zest to a weak plot."

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 S 9 '51 80w

"Miss Heberden knows her milieu well and writes about it with comprehension and bite, to produce her best book to date and one certain to fascinate anyone remotely interested in the background of the theatre or TV." Anthony Boucher

+ N Y Times p11 S 2 '51 100w

New Yorker 27:87 Ag 25 '51 120w

Reviewed by L. G. Offord

San Francisco Chronicle p18 S 9 '51 50w

"Pedestrian." Sergeant Cuff

Sat R of Lit 34:42 S 22 '51 30w

Springf'd Republican p10D O 7 '51 80w

HEBERDEN, MARY VIOLET (CHARLES L. LEONARD, pseud). Treachery in Trieste. 189p $2.50 Doubleday

51-10453

A tale of international intrigue starring the American private detective Paul Kilgerrin.

Reviewed by Drexel Drake

Chicago Sunday Tribune p7 Jl 15 '51 60w

Kirkus 19:140 Mr 1 '51 60w

"Rather too confused and trivial a situation to be really exciting, in spite of a well-informed political background."

— + N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 Je 10 '51 100w

Reviewed by Nancie Matthews

N Y Times p21 My 20 '51 130w

Reviewed by L. G. Offord

San Francisco Chronicle p24 My 13 '51 60w

"Interesting though confusing." Kathleen Sproul

+ — Sat R of Lit 34:32 Jl 7 '51 40w

HEDLEY, GEORGE PERCY. Superstitions of the irreligious. 140p $2.50 Macmillan

277.3 U.S.—Religion 51-13953

"A reply to those who from the outside and without understanding, criticize religion and religious practices. After presenting a clear definition of superstitions, the author deals commendably with several superstitions—the changelessness of religious thought and teaching, the superfluity of religion in understanding our cultural heritage, religion at odds with fact and reason, religion, an escape mechanism, and the social unconsciousness of religion. Mr. Hedley weighs both pros and cons in his inquiry and reaches conclusions which are unbiased." Library J

"This is a challenging book for those who think religion out of date. . . This little book might be used helpfully for a series of discussions on 'religion in the modern world' by church groups adequately prepared for a new point of view." Alexander MacColl

+ Crozer Q 29:88 Ja '52 400w

"This book ought to prove intensely interesting to religious and irreligious readers. Recommended to all types of libraries." O. G. Lawson

+ Library J 76:1417 S 15 '51 110w

Time 58:87 N 12 '51 550w

HEELY, ALLAN VANDERHOEF. Why the private school? 208p $3 Harper

373 Private schools 51-3394

A justification of the American private secondary schools, by the head of the Lawrenceville School. No index.

"I must say I like the direct and persuasive style in which the author sifts the evidence drawn from his mature experiences, and states his very reasonable opinions." Edward Weeks

+ Atlantic 188:82 Jl '51 350w

Booklist 47:338 Je 1 '51

+ Kirkus 19:200 Ap 1 '51 170w

"A fine book on the American private school—a book refreshingly free from the extravagant claims, technical jargon, irritating clichés, and the overemphasis on mere tradition which so frequently have marred previous volumes on the subject." C. M. Fuess

+ Sat R of Lit 34:16 Je 30 '51 600w

School & Society 73:287 My 5 '51 50w

"This volume will provide especially valuable reading for parents who are considering sending their children to private schools." Richard Henchey

+ Springf'd Republican p5D Je 17 '51 100w

U S Quarterly Bk R 7:265 S '51 160w

HEGARTY, EDWARD J. How to write a speech. 226p $3.50 McGraw

808.5 Speeches, addresses, etc. 51-828

"Gives concrete suggestions to the average speaker on planning, writing and checking his material and making it interesting to his audience. Index." Bookmark

Booklist 47:291 Ap 15 '51

Bookmark 10:156 Ap '51 20w

Cleveland Open Shelf p10 My '51

Kirkus 18:626 O 1 '50 160w

"Author practices what he preaches. Result is fast-moving book of considerable appeal and wide potential usefulness to anybody who has to make a speech. Note that this is not concerned with the speaking part of making a speech." R. E. Kingery

+ Library J 75:2003 N 15 '50 80w

Wis Lib Bul 47:186 Jl '51

HEINLEIN, ROBERT ANSON. Between planets; il. by Clifford Geary. 222p $2.50 Scribner

51-7229

Science-fiction story.

Booklist 48:105 N 15 '51

Bookmark 11:35 N '51

Reviewed by August Derleth

Chicago Sunday Tribune p18 N 11 '51 160w

Cleveland Open Shelf p24 N '51

Kirkus 19:446 Ag 15 '51 130w

"Fine dialogue, well presented technical material, and a good story make excellent reading. Heinlein is one of the best writing S-F for youth. Grade 8 and up." L. T. Bulman

+ Library J 76:2125 D 15 '51 90w

Reviewed by L. S. Bechtel

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p22 N 11 '51 150w

"Heinlein's science fiction always seems so real you almost catch yourself thinking you may as well take the next bus down to the space port. His latest is a tightly constructed tale of revolution in the sky." F. C. Smith

+ N Y Times p20 N 11 '51 200w

Reviewed by Don Fabun

San Francisco Chronicle p24 N 18 '51 50w

HEINLEIN, ROBERT ANSON. Puppet masters. 219p $2.75 Doubleday

51-13249

Science-fiction story.

Kirkus 19:414 Ag 1 '51 90w

"Even such a tired theme becomes freshly exciting in Heinlein's hands. The taut melodramatic plotting, the skillful indirect exposition, the careful thinking through of details make for a nuclear-reactor-propelled thriller with a deeper conviction of reality than the average spy or detective story." H. H. Holmes

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p22 O 14 '51 200w

"By any standard, this is first-rate entertainment, with likable characters, excitement and plenty of rather hard-boiled humor." B. D.

+ N Y Times p41 N 18 '51 230w

Reviewed by Don Fabun

San Francisco Chronicle p18 N 18 '51 60w

"This is an unusually good S. F. book, and one of the best by Heinlein." R. F. H.

+ Springf'd Republican p14C O 28 '51 120w

HELLMAN, LILLIAN. Autumn garden; a play in three acts. 139p $2.50 Little

812 51-10951

A summer "guest house" on the Gulf of Mexico near New Orleans is the scene of this play. During the week which covers the action a group of middle aged people meet and try to revive their old dreams. The landlady's hardheaded half-French niece, a girl of eighteen, is the only one who really comes off well.

Booklist 47:360 Je 15 '51

Bookmark 10:227 Jl '51 30w

Kirkus 19:171 Mr 15 '51 80w

"Recommended for all drama collections." George Freedley

+ Library J 76:1030 Je 15 '51 30w

"In virile, masterful strokes Miss Hellman conveys the aura of these people and their deterioration; her compassion—if she has any—is not underlined. 'The Autumn Garden' is a play to be read and re-read by those who like modern drama at its most evocative, subtle best." F. J.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p25 S 30 '51 120w

HELT, SCOTT. Practical television engineering. 708p il $7.50 Rinehart

621.388 Television 50-8763

Contents: The fundamentals of picture transmission; The cathode-ray tube; The cathode-ray oscillograph; Electron tubes for image pick-up; The synchronizing generator—timing, shaping and deflection circuits; The video amplifier and cathode follower; The voltage-regulated power supply; The television receiver; The television camera chain; The television transmitter; Television broadcasting techniques. Glossary. Index.

Booklist 47:7 S 1 '50

N Y New Tech Bks 35:95 N '50

"The book is perhaps at its best in its presentation of TV 'know-how' in a new and fast-changing field sorely in need of the establishment of efficient practices."

+ U S Quarterly Bkl 6:505 D '50 260w

HELVICK, JAMES. Beat the devil. 256p $3 Lippincott

51-10965

"Take a bunch of assorted confidence men on the lam from half the police of Europe and ship them to the Belgian Congo is search of uranium. Cross their paths with a young English couple also bound for Africa in search of sudden riches. Coop them in a leaky tub with wheezy engines, spice generously with romance and heady talk, bring to a boil with a murder or two, and you have the dish Mr. Helvick has whipped up for a summer afternoon." N Y Times

Booklist 47:354; 362 Je 15 '51

Kirkus 19:301 Je 15 '51 160w

"'Beat the Devil' reflects a certain gay pessimism which is a prevalent note of today;

HELVICK, JAMES—Continued
it highlights a civilization that might well go out not with a bang, but with a titter. And when, on the last page, the ship's purser says: 'No doubt you'll survive, Mr. Dannreuther. And all the very best of luck'—one can feel that benediction itself has been set to the modern mood of genial despair." James Hilton
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 Ag 26 '51 550w

"Follows the now familiar Ambler-Greene recipe for understated exaggeration. Mr. Helvick is a master of the menacing eyebrow and the double-edged wisecrack. Being a bright and rather flippant fellow, he scatters more dialogue across his pages than the story strictly needs; but, since most of it is as easy to take as a Tom Collins, no reader is likely to cavil." John Barkham
+ N Y Times p14 Ag 26 '51 210w

"The suspense in this novel won't exactly jolt you out of your chair, but it's there—along with quietly cynical comedy and some well-handled atmosphere. There's also a notable feeling of realism in spite of the wild character of the adventures. The book is of the sort that unaccountably sticks in your memory." L. G. O.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p25 O 28 '51 170w

Reviewed by J. M. Grant
— Sat R of Lit 34:39 O 6 '51 330w

HENDEL, SAMUEL. Charles Evans Hughes and the Supreme court. 337p $4.50 King's Crown press

B or 92 Hughes, Charles Evans. U.S. Supreme court. U.S.—Constitutional law 51-9221

A study of Charles Evans Hughes which stresses his years with the Supreme court, from 1910 to 1916, and from 1930 to 1941. Table of cases. Index.

"This is a book by one who knows both his law school and his political science law and whose literary style is better than we have been led to expect from either camp. Nevertheless, the total effect is 'choppy,' because the book is essentially a case by case analysis of numerous Hughes opinions. In that analysis the lawyer in Mr. Hendel prevails, which is all to the good as there is plenty of evidence of top-flight legal craftsmanship. One might have hoped, however, that the author, as a political scientist, would do more to tie the opinions together to show a philosophy, or lack of it, behind them." Wallace Mendelson
+ — Am Pol Sci R 45:570 Je '51 480w

"Professor Hendel's book is both more and less than its title may suggest. In the fullness of its treatment of the Court's decisions during Hughes' membership, and particularly his Chief Justiceship, the volume approaches a history of a period in the life of the tribunal itself. The cases surrounding the President's Court Plan of 1937 are recounted in detail. This is not the first time the story has been told, but it has not been done elsewhere with greater accuracy of statement and dispassionateness of tone." P. A. Freund
+ Harvard Law R 65:370 D '51 1200w

"To students of law or of government this book is warmly recommended. And it would be a great boon to the Republic if every active citizen were to make himself familiar with the constitutional issues summarized by Mr. Hendel, who is Assistant Professor of Government at the College of the City of New York. The lawyers who sit on the Supreme Court can be trusted to take good care of the Constitution—as long as they are watched." E. N. Cahn
+ N Y Times p7 F 11 '51 900w

"Mr. Hendel's work, apparently written more from the point of view of the political scientist than the lawyer, is sympathetic and rather generalized, but it affords a good introduction for Americans not sufficiently familiar with the contributions to our history made by Charles Evans Hughes." C. W. W.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p23 Ap 22 '51 220w

"Mr. Hendel presents his thesis well, and has developed his argument logically and effectively. The study presents an unusual approach to an important political problem, and should find readers not only among lawyers but also among those interested in government and the social sciences generally."
+ U S Quarterly Bk R 7:177 Je '51 250w

HENDERSON, J. Y. Circus doctor; as told to Richard Taplinger. 238p pl $3.50 Little

B or 92 Circus. Veterinary medicine
Agr51-506

Reminiscences of the chief veterinarian of the Ringling Brothers and Barnum & Bailey circus. Illustrated with photographs.

Booklist 47:245; 269 Mr 15 '51; Ap 1 '51

Bookmark 10:229 Jl '51 20w

Reviewed by J. T. McCutcheon
Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 My 13 '51 340w

Cleveland Open Shelf p16 Jl '51

Reviewed by M. C. Scoggin
Horn Bk 27:197 My '51 40w

"Recommended for all lovers of animals and the circus." J. L. Ross
+ Library J 76:595 Ap 1 '51 80w

"The author has to keep seven hundred beasts in good physical condition, and since almost everybody is interested in animals, circuses and operations, his book should have quite an appeal."
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p14 My 20 '51 270w

Reviewed by John Lardner
+ N Y Times p7 Ap 8 '51 400w

"Perhaps the most notable thing about this book, aside from its wealth of true stories about the author's life with animals, is the understanding of animals the author has acquired, which is communicated to the reader surprisingly well." J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p16 Ap 26 '51 650w

Reviewed by W. L. Gresham
Sat R of Lit 34:40 My 5 '51 200w

Wis Lib Bul 47:161 Je '51

HENDRICK, BURTON JESSE, and HENDERSON, DANIEL MACINTYRE. Louise Whitfield Carnegie; the life of Mrs Andrew Carnegie. 306p il $5 Hastings house

B or 92 Carnegie, Louise (Whitfield)
51-9349

A biography of the New York-born wife of Andrew Carnegie. It is based partly on Mrs Carnegie's diary which she kept for sixty of her eighty-nine years. Illustrated with photographs. No index.

Kirkus 19:83 F 1 '51 130w

"Though without special literary quality, Mr. Hendrick's book, completed after his death by his friends, makes agreeable reading. Yet an imp of doubt raises its head to ask if no disturbing rumors from the business and industrial world ever reached Mrs. Carnegie. Did no word of the 1892 Homestead Steel Strike, or the later convulsions in the industry, ever trouble her serenity? Did the charming chatelaine of New York and Scotland, for all her reputed gayety, even playfulness, have a sense of humor?" Frances Witherspoon
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p18 F 25 '51 700w

"Mrs. Carnegie's human qualities are stressed in this biography." J. V.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p25 Ap 22 '51 400w

HENRY, MRS MARGUERITE. Album of horses; il. by Wesley Dennis. 112p $2.95 Rand McNally

636.1 Horses. Horses—Pictures, illustrations, etc.
51-14002

"Facts, legends and authentic bits of genealogy concerning all the major breeds of horses in this country. The reader is shown not only how the different types of horses look and move and how they vary from one another but also their uses now and in the days before motors. Miss Henry makes clear the connection between historical need and present-day blood lines. . . There is also a chapter on the mule, one on the donkey and two of general information or 'horse sense.' " N Y Times

Booklist 48:130 D 1 '51

Bookmark 11:61 D '51

Reviewed by Polly Goodwin
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 D 9 '51 300w

Cleveland Open Shelf p22 N '51

Kirkus 19:636 N 1 '51 100w

"A good buy." Mary Strang
+ Library J 76:2123 D 15 '51 70w

"Boys and girls from ten up are so fond of this author and artist that they will greet an informational book by them with joy. . . The last excellent chapters tell some very worthwhile things about keeping your horse or pony happy. It's an elegant book, one of the best gift-books of the year. This horse-lover longs for time to read it all over again at leisure." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 N 11 '51 150w

" 'Album of Horses' will do more than please enthusiasts, it is likely to create many new ones." L. R. Davis
+ N Y Times p34 N 11 '51 180w

"Bound to enrapture enthusiasts of ten and over." K. T. Kinkead
New Yorker 27:188 D 1 '51 70w

HENRY, THOMAS ROBERT. White continent; the story of Antarctica. 257p $3.75 Sloane

919.9 Antarctic regions. Byrd Antarctic expedition, 4th, 1946-1947 51-9142

A factual study of the Antarctic continent by a science journalist who was with the 1946-47 Navy expedition, under Admirals Byrd and Cruzen.

Booklist 47:186 Ja 15 '51

Reviewed by Mason Warner
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 Ja 28 '51 450w

"All of the still scant information about the world's least known continent is presented in a manner to elucidate and delight all arm-chair explorers from boy scout age on up."
+ Kirkus 18:649 O 15 '50 140w

Reviewed by M. D. Read
Library J 76:1036 Je 15 '51 30w

"In an era which seems to have run amok with its love for the strange and sensational . . . 'The White Continent' may well become a best-seller. But the important and badly needed book on Antarctica remains to be written." E. P. Hanson
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p11 Ja 7 '51 1150w

New Yorker 26:85 Ja 13 '51 160w

San Francisco Chronicle p19 Mr 11 '51 110w

"If the world is too much with you Thomas R. Henry's informed and absorbing book about Antarctica, 'the green-skyed continent,' is your passport to escape. The author's qualifications attest to the fact that you will be in good hands en route." Charles Lee
+ Sat R of Lit 34:30 Je 9 '51 600w

Times [London] Lit Sup p713 N 9 '51 600w

Wis Lib Bul 47:21 Ja '51

HENRY, WILL. Wolf-Eye, the bad one; il. by Wilfrid Bronson. 173p $2.50 Messner

Dogs—Legends and stories 51-12787

Life story of a German shepherd dog which had inherited wolf-like traits from some remote ancestor. Wolf-Eye answered the call of the wild when it came but in the last hours of his life he returned to the dog-tradition of friendship with man.

Kirkus 19:485 S 1 '51 120w

"Recommended for those who can take human mentality in dogs." R. M. McEvoy
Library J 76:2016 D 1 '51 80w

Reviewed by L. S. Bechtel
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p30 N 11 '51 70w

"This is a well-plotted story with sharply drawn characters and fast-moving action. The alien spirit of Wolf-Eye is sensitively conveyed. The only flaw is an excess of sentimentalism. Occasionally it takes the form of incidents that may slightly stretch readers' powers of belief." Howard Boston
+ — N Y Times p42 O 7 '51 170w

HENSON, TRUMAN. Sporting rifles and scope sights; how to build them; with phot. and working drawings by the author. (NRA lib. bk) 204p $3.75 McKay

683 Rifles. Gunsmithing

"Directions for the home-workshop conversion of discontinued military arms into fine sporting rifles, together with instructions for the like manufacture of precision metallic and optical sighting equipment." (Subtitle) Illustrated with drawings, diagrams and photographs. No index.

Bookmark 10:167 Ap '51 20w

Reviewed by J. A. Menaugh
Chicago Sunday Tribune p10 F 4 '51 140w

"Clearly written, well illustrated text for the mechanically capable sportsman. Recommended by the National Rifle Association of America." R. W. Henderson
+ Library J 76:50 Ja 1 '51 40w

HEPPE, HEINRICH LUDWIG JULIUS. Reformed dogmatics set out and il. from the sources; foreword by Karl Barth; rev and ed. by Ernst Bizer; English tr. by G. T. Thomson. 721p $8.50 Macmillan

284.2 Reformed church [A50-6715]

"Heppe's work was first published in 1861, and was re-edited by Ernst Bizer in 1934. It presents Calvinist dogmatic theology mainly by means of copious extracts from the classical German, Swiss and Dutch exponents. In this way it is an introduction to a range of theological writing with which few in England are familiar. But it is not intended to have a merely 'period' interest. Its republication is one of the signs of the German Calvinist reaction against liberal theology. Here we find no whisper of the higher criticism and no dilution of the stark doctrines of Calvin. Its polemical temper is that of an age which, for better or for worse, had not yet discovered Christian cooperation." Times [London] Lit Sup

"Heppe's great work is a pillar, a landmark and a history of Calvinistic orthodoxy. . . Since this review is being written chiefly from the foreword and after only a few arduous excursions into the jungle depths of the text, it ought to be said that Barth considers Heppe as affording a good place to start but a poor place to stop in the recovery of a sound orthodoxy." W. E. G.
Christian Century 67:1524 D 20 '50 410w

"As a source-book of Calvinist theology it is unrivalled." E. L. Allen
+ Hibbert J 48:399 Jl '50 110w

"How far the original views of Calvin can now appear reasonable is a question which should perhaps be left to Calvin's spiritual descendants to answer. At any rate it is surely a good thing that members of every Christian body should not be content with some watered-down faith which may exempt them from controversy but which cannot be the whole of Christianity; they do far better by reexamining their distinctive traditions and trying to see whether these have stood the test of time and are really consonant with reason and revelation. On this ground the republication and translation into English of this massive deposit of Calvinist theology may be taken, even by those who have least sympathy with Calvin, as a welcome sign of a renewal of interest in exact theological doctrine."

HEPPE, H. L. J.—Continued
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p297 My 12 '50 900w

HERBERG, WILL. Judaism and modern man; an interpretation of Jewish religion. 313p $4 Farrar, Straus
296 Jews—Religion 51-13107

A discussion of the nature of Hebraic religion, and a study of Judaism on three levels: God and man; God and history; and God and Israel.

"A book to be featured. There are few more deserving."
+ Kirkus 19:560 S 15 '51 290w

Reviewed by J. M. Scherr
Library J 76:1564 O 1 '51 130w

"Mr. Herberg's method is not to challenge interpretations with which he disagrees explicitly, but to state his own with great force and cogency. It is a very good pedagogical method which may have the limitation of obscuring the point at issue to the uninitiated. But if this be a weakness it will not seriously detract from the creative value of a book which can have no other effect than to stimulate the most thoughtful adherents of faith and the doubters in both the Christian and the Jewish world." Reinhold Niebuhr
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 D 16 '51 1150w

"Will Herberg is an eminently thoughtful and altogether modern man. He finds the needed 'new' philosophy in the ancient Hebraic religious teaching that is common to Judaism and Christianity. He is convinced that man himself is the problem and that what has gone wrong is not the external machinery of life but something within man's soul. . . This is a book which probes deeply and challengingly. We and our children will have to make the decision whether to continue to rush on to the abyss of self-destruction or to learn the lesson of redemptive history." D. D. Pool
+ N Y Times p24 N 18 '51 800w

HERBERT, SIR ALAN PATRICK. Independent member. 363p $5 Doubleday
B or 92 Authors—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc. Great Britain. Parliament 51-11287

Reminiscences of the English humorous writer, A. P. Herbert, covering the fourteen years he spent in the British House of Commons as an "independent" member for Oxford University. No index.

Booklist 47:380 Jl 1 '51

Bookmark 10:229 Jl '51 30w

"Sir Alan gives acute glimpses of the war, what it meant to be a British subject when Mr. Churchill made his 'finest hour' speech. . . American readers who do not know England will find such sections more appealing than Sir Alan's military experiences with the Water Gypsy on the Thames, punctuated by a bewildering array of geographical details. Likewise his experiences in the intricacies of parliamentary protocol will be difficult for many American readers to follow in contrast to the chapters on Sir Alan's trip to Newfoundland or his visits later with Monty at the front." Roland Sawyer
+ Christian Science Monitor p9 Je 9 '51 700w

Kirkus 19:223 Ap 15 '51 210w

"Sir Alan's narration of these fifteen full years is written, as you would expect, with an art that succeeds without flaunting itself, but what makes the book's appeal is that its author's interest in what he thought, did, and failed to do in Parliament is still at white heat. What zest and what a faculty for communicating it!" H. B.
+ Manchester Guardian p4 N 17 '50 280w

Reviewed by T. P. Peardon
Nation 173:76 Jl 28 '51 850w

"A delightful book, full of good anecdotes and stirring episodes. It has the full ripe flavor of a country that uses the epithet 'crackpot' sparingly and hardly ever against an honest man who has definite ideas of his own and is also 'gracious, gallant and gay' in advancing them." James Hilton
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 Je 17 '51 950w

"Below the playfulness in this book is always a fine appreciation of the meaning of free institutions, of the sufferings and courage of London in the Blitz and in the days of the doodle-bugs. Punch and Parliament both survived. This modest offhand chronicle is a fine exhibit of the humane good sense which helped England save freedom for itself—and for us all." Irwin Edman
+ N Y Times p7 Je 10 '51 900w

"A discursive but entertaining memoir."
+ New Yorker 27:86 Je 23 '51 120w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson
San Francisco Chronicle p16 Je 7 '51 800w

"This is certainly no simple tract for the times; there is little directly concerned with the great problems of Britain's 'revolution by consent.' But it is clear that to this 'independent member' a good deal of that revolution is by no means palatable." Crane Brinton
Sat R of Lit 34:10 Jl 28 '51 750w

"A. P. H. is both versatile and voluminous. In this book he is a little too voluminous. Close on five hundred pages, divided into eighty-two chapters are generous measure for a period of fifteen years, and entertaining as the Junior —for one period Senior—Burgess's speeches in the House always were, pages of small print lifted straight from Hansard break the run of a narrative rather badly. The book, of course, like the speeches, is full of entertainment." Wilson Harris
Spec 184:476 N 10 '50 650w

Time 57:96 Je 25 '51 600w

"Wherever the reader is carried he is always in good company, for Sir Alan Herbert, in the tradition of English wits, has enough common sense, sincerity, and principle in his make-up to equip a whole row of political hacks who vote to the order of the whips. If, sometimes, he mistakes bees in the bonnet for lions in the path, he can claim with modest understatement that 'many of my causes had become respectable and, once or twice, I had even been right.'"
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p704 N 10 '50 750w

HERBERT, FREDERICK HUGH. The moon is blue; with an introduction by Ben Hecht. 162p $2.50 Random house
812 51-11133

Text of the current Broadway play about an innocent but clever young girl who manages to get the man she wants.

Booklist 47:360 Je 15 '51

Cleveland Open Shelf p18 S '51

Kirkus 19:240 My 1 '51 10w

"This is a natural for college and community theatres and will be widely produced when available. A big Broadway hit, it is amusing and readable. Recommended." George Freedley
+ Library J 76:1030 Je 15 '51 20w

HERBERT, HENRY WILLIAM (FRANK FORESTER, pseud). On upland shooting; ed. and with supplementary chapters, by A. R. Beverley-Giddings; il. by James W. Von Brunn. 276p $5 Morrow
799.2 Game and game birds. Shooting 51-7267

"Frank Forester" was the pseudonym of an Englishman who came to the United States in 1831 and after a few years of school teaching made a living by writing, chiefly books on hunting and fishing. This volume contains chapters from two of his best-known works, Field Sports and Complete Manual for Young Sportsman, with some additional material by the editor.

"Forester's information on hunting dogs, setters, pointers, and the spaniels is as good today as when he originally wrote it. Likewise his chapter on methods of shooting the various upland birds can well be followed by modern hunters." J. A. Menaugh

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p13 O 28 '51 170w

Kirkus 19:469 Ag 15 '51 160w

"Forester is well worth re-reading, and the knowledgeable chapters by the editor enhance considerably the value of the book. . . Recommended." R. W. Henderson

+ Library J 76:1813 N 1 '51 70w

"Although Herbert lived in a day when the trappings and targets of sport shooting were so different from those we know now as to be almost unrecognizable to most of us, his material still has the brightness of a new Winchester, the freshness of a fall morning. It is a matter of fairness to credit Mr. Beverley-Giddings with not merely the editing of these chapters, but with some timely chapters of his own which up date the Forester material in a most appropriate manner." Jack Pegues

+ San Francisco Chronicle p4 N 25 '51 200w

HERKLOTS, HUGH GERALD GIBSON. Fresh approach to the New Testament. 176p $2 Abingdon-Cokesbury

225.6 Bible. N.T.—Criticism, interpretation, etc. 51-5323

An introduction to the New Testament for the layman. The book "recounts the circumstances which called these writings forth. The 'fresh approach consists in realizing that the New Testament writings were the propagandist literature of a widespread and successful missionary movement.' This small volume could easily be used as a primer leading toward larger and more detailed books such as Bewer and Scott on the Literature of the Old and New Testaments respectively." (Churchman) Index.

"The volume is neither startling nor revolutionary. Probably most readers of it—including those competent to have an opinion as to the facts involved—will differ from the author on certain minor points. It will be surprising if on the whole they do not find it a wholesome and useful little book." M. S. Enslin

+ Christian Century 68:797 Jl 4 '51 650w

"Valuable little book. . . It should be invaluable to leaders of classes studying the times and religious movements of New Testament days." G. F. Taylor

+ Churchman 165:16 Je '51 120w

"The most likely audience for this book is the adult Bible class. Its short chapters, its easy style, its general adherence to conventional views will counteract the effect of the terms 'fresh approach' and 'propagandist literature' in conservative circles." M. E. Andrews

+ Crozer Q 28:356 O '51 750w

"I shall be surprised if any clergyman reads this book without getting many sermons out of it or any Bible-class teacher without getting many lessons."

+ Manchester Guardian p5 Je 5 '50 200w

HERLING, ALBERT KONRAD. Soviet slave empire. 230p $3.75 Funk, W.

331.51 Labor, Compulsory. Labor and laboring classes—Russia. 51-11421

An exposé of slave labor in the USSR and its satellite countries. The report contains reprinted photostats of documents from the files of the Russian secret police. The author is a Unitarian minister who temporarily left his parish to devote himself to this new slavery. He became Director of Research for the commission of inquiry into forced labor, which was begun in December, 1948. Index.

Am Pol Sci R 45:915 S '51 40w

Booklist 48:94 N 15 '51

"Mr. Herling's study is fervently written. In the nature of things his evidence about details is not always conclusive. Unfortunately the proportions of his volume are not well thought out . . . The major defect of the book is its somewhat negative argument—'spiritual freedom rather than these horrors.'" M. A. Fitzsimons

Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 Jl 15 '51 420w

Foreign Affairs 30:164 O '51 20w

Kirkus 19:172 Mr 15 '51 160w

"On this subject a whole library already has been written, including such fundamental works as David Dallin's and Boris Nicolaevsky's 'Forced Labor in Soviet Russia' and hundreds of eyewitness accounts of life in concentration camps scattered over the Soviet Union. In this library Mr. Herling's "The Soviet Slave Empire' will receive its special place between research works and memoirs written by refugees. On almost every page of his book living voices can be heard." Mikhail Koriakov

+ N Y Times p6 Je 17 '51 800w

HERMENS, FERDINAND ALOYS. Europe between democracy and anarchy. 291p $4 Univ. of Notre Dame

940 Europe—Politics. Proportional representation 51-8436

"The author presents to his readers a survey of representative governments in various parts of the world in an effort to find some correlation between their stability and power to govern and the means by which their parliaments are chosen." (Commonweal) Index.

Reviewed by A. J. Zurcher

Am Pol Sci R 45:1207 D '51 950w

"Professor Hermens' book is a valuable document for contemporary political science, but I would not seem to take it for granted that he will convince everyone." R. M. Weaver

Commonweal 54:266 Je 22 '51 1050w

"Excellent and important volume." S. B. Fay

+ Current Hist 21:92 Ag '51 700w

"In his zeal to discredit PR, Hermens sometimes proves too much." J. S. Schapiro

Nation 172:522 Je 2 '51 600w

Reviewed by Hajo Holborn

Pol Sci Q 66:612 D '51 950w

HERRICK, MARVIN THEODORE. Comic theory in the sixteenth century. 248p $3.50; pa $2.50 Univ. of Ill. press

808.7 Terence (Publius Terentius Afer). Literary criticism. Comedy 50-9785

"This volume is an exploration of an area which even to most specialists in the history of literary criticism is a terra incognita: commentaries on Terence from the fourth century to approximately the middle of the sixteenth century, at which time the influence of Aristotle's dramatic criticism begins to supersede the rhetorical approach to problems of comic theory. Most of the critics whom Professor Herrick expounds belong to the late fifteenth and early sixteenth centuries. . . Preliminary chapters deal with the relationship between rhetoric and poetics and the traditional conceptions of comedy and tragedy, with major emphasis on the opinions of these Terentian commentators. Subsequent chapters synthesize their theories in terms of Plot, Character, Sentiment, and Diction." U S Quarterly Bkl

"Its usefulness would have been enhanced many times had Mr. Herrick kept his central problem more clearly in mind, maintained a more objective and a more philosophical attitude toward his materials, and devoted to the central issues time and space which have been spent on matters which must be regarded, I fear, as extraneous." Bernard Weinberg

Mod Philol 48:271 My '51 1300w

HERRICK, M. T.—Continued

"One of the chief merits of his work is the breadth and sureness of perspective which he brings to bear upon a problem that invites myopic antiquarianism. . . One may question whether the Renaissance commentators on Terence have quite the importance Professor Herrick assigns them, but there can be no doubt that this study of a neglected province in the history of literary criticism is in the main both accurate and imaginative."

U S Quarterly Bkl 6:412 D '50 250w

HERRINGTON, LEE. Carry my coffin slowly. 239p $2.50 Simon & Schuster

51-4764

Detective story.

"Held within realistic bounds, the story grips interest." Drexel Drake

Chicago Sunday Tribune p13 S 23 '51 120w

"Fast paced, a bit on the tough side, ably plotted."

+ Kirkus 19:282 Je 1 '51 70w

"An extremely involved but very deftly managed series of plots and counterplots." James Sandoe

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p22 S 23 '51 240w

Reviewed by Anthony Boucher

+ — N Y Times p20 S 16 '51 60w

Reviewed by L. G. Offord

San Francisco Chronicle p24 S 30 '51 70w

Springf'd Republican p5C S 23 '51 70w

HERTZ, DAVID BENDEL. Theory and practice of industrial research. 385p $5.50 McGraw

607 Industrial research 50-14703

"A rather comprehensive introduction to industrial research viewed as a phase of sound management. Such aspects as the methods of research, the organization of a research program, management of research personnel, the budgeting of research, the preparation of reports, patent policies, and the relationship of research departments to other departments within the company and to the public are covered." (Library J) Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by C. S. Hyneman

Ann Am Acad 277:240 S '51 430w

"Well-written, well-manufactured treatise. . . The author has contributed usefully in the direction of education toward more objective ways of thinking and doing on the part of the technologist as well as the industrial manager. . . The work is so important that a copy should be in the library of every research institution and of every industrial research laboratory. Its bibliography is exceptionally well prepared." W. A. Hamor

+ Chem & Eng N 29:816 F 26 '51 300w

"Although the book appears to be designed for college students specializing in industrial management or preparing for careers in industrial research, it is of potential interest also to executives of corporations and to other persons such as stockholders who desire to understand the aims and methods of industrial research. There is a good bibliography." R. R. Hawkins

+ Library J 75:2009 N 15 '50 140w

"The man who picks up this book expecting to find readily some down-to-earth, practical suggestions he can use immediately will not find that help—unless he persists through the larger part of the volume, which is devoted to theoretical discussion. It is to be hoped that others will continue to the end, for it will prove rewarding. The language of the author is complicated and labored." E. F. Pike

+ — Management R 40:44 Ja '51 750w

N Y New Tech Bks 35:94 N '50

HERTZ, LOUIS HEILBRONER. Complete book of model railroading. 335p il $4.95 Simmons-Boardman

625 Railroads—Models 51-12533

"This book really does cover the subject of model railroading. There is an account of the history of this hobby, and pictures are included of not only early model locomotives but also of early catalogs of equipment for model railroaders. Most of the book deals with present-day construction techniques. There are discussions of both standard problems and special ones, such as how to lay curved track and how to wire a control board. Toward the end of the book, there is material on unusual miniature railroads such as outdoor live steam systems and trolley lines. Also included is a discussion of the literature of model railroading which covers both the current periodicals and the outstanding books." N Y New Tech Bks

Booklist 48:44 O 1 '51

N Y New Tech Bks 36:74 S '51

HERZ, JOHN HERMANN. Political realism and political idealism; a study in theories and realities. 275p $3.75 Univ. of Chicago press

320 Political science 51-10397

In his introduction the author writes: "The following pages do not purport to represent another political theory or to add another history of political thought to those which already exist. They represent rather an attempt to describe and analyze some basic types of political thinking which to the author seem to recur again and again throughout history quite independent of, and indeed without any relation to, specific periods or details of particular systems and ideologies."

"Systematic and analytic studies of political theories and realities are rare. For this reason alone Professor Herz's book deserves much praise and many readers. But in addition to his ability for theoretic thinking, the author can draw upon a varied and significant experience. Not only is he widely read in politics, law, philosophy, and literature, but as a citizen of both hemispheres he has witnessed the ravages of a depression, the rise and fall of Nazism, the metamorphoses of Bolshevism, and the horrors of two world wars." O. K. Flechtheim

+ Am Soc R 16:733 O '51 650w

"However suggestive [the author's] first chapters may be, the task of formulating a meaningful political classification still wants doing." Joseph Kraft

Nation 173:15 Jl 7 '51 900w

Reviewed by H. J. Morgenthau

Sat R of Lit 34:10 Jl 21 '51 850w

"Professor Herz gives many interesting examples of the paths along which his Realistic Liberalism might happily lead us. Legislators, businessmen, and students will find his volume useful."

+ U S Quarterly Bk R 7:286 S '51 220w

HESCHEL, ABRAHAM JOSHUA. Man is not alone; a philosophy of religion. 305p $3.75 Farrar, Straus

201 Religion—Philosophy. Jews—Religion 51-9992

"A philosophy of religion has been given us by this Jewish religious leader. The first part of the book deals with the problem of knowing God. The author is neither rationalist nor mystic, but comes at his theistic position through an analysis of the human personality and through finding basic there wonder, awe and reverence, 'a sense of the ineffable,' as he puts it. The second part of the book deals with man's needs and their satisfaction through religious faith. In this connection he gives an exposition of the faith of Judaism, not in terms of beliefs and practices but in terms of a satisfying philosophy of life." (Kirkus) Index.

Bookmark 10:180 My '51 40w

Reviewed by F. A. Levy
Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 Jl 22 '51 450w

"One of the finest religious books to appear in recent years. It will appeal to both the scholar and the layman for its rare combination of religious insight, intensity of concern, philosophical acumen, and beauty of style. The freshness and originality of Heschel's philosophy are the products of a profound and comprehensive knowledge of Judaism in all its phases and a deeply personal relationship to Hasidism." M. S. Friedman
+ J Religion 31:292 O '51 700w

"A scholarly and beautifully written book."
+ Kirkus 19:52 F 1 '51 130w

"A reverent and beautifully written discourse. . . Recommended." Anne Whitmore
+ Library J 76:511 Mr 15 '51 90w

"Dr. Heschel will not long remain unknown after the publication of this volume. It is a safe guess that he will become a commanding and authoritative voice not only in the Jewish community but in the religious life of America. The volume is so impressive because it is the work of a poet and mystic who has mastered the philosophical and scientific disciplines and who with consummate skill reveals the dimension of reality apprehended by religious faith, as distinguished from all the coherences and sequences and causalities which science charts and philosophy arranges into a total rational scheme." Reinhold Niebuhr
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 Ap 1 800w

Wis Lib Bul 47:209 S '51

HESSEL, ALFRED. History of libraries; tr. with supplementary material, by Reuben Peiss. 198p $4 Scarecrow press, 3341 Prospect av, N.W, Washington 7, D.C.

020.9 Libraries—History 50-8938

"The 'present volume consists of a straightforward translation of the first eight chapters of Dr. Hessel's Geschichte der Bibliotheken, with a new ninth chapter by the translator.'—Preface. The chapters by Hessel are a brief history of libraries from 283 B.C. through the nineteenth century, Peiss's account of the first half of the twentieth century is considerably more detailed. Thirty-seven page bibliography. I.B.M. typing reproduced by offset process results in a readable type page with irregular right-hand margins." Booklist

Booklist 47:4 S 1 '50

"This small volume is a necessity for every library, for every librarian, and for every student of librarianship." W. A. Fitzgerald
+ Library J 75:1888 N 1 '50 420w

"A compact and scholarly survey of world library history from its known beginnings to World War I." J. H. Shera
Library Q 21:46 Ja '51 1700w

HESSELTINE, WILLIAM BEST. Confederate leaders in the new South. 146p $2.50 La. state univ. press

973.713 South—History. Confederate States of America 50-12947

"In three pithy essays, presented in 1949 as the Walter Lynwood Lectures in Southern History at Louisiana State University, Mr. Hesseltine analyzes the activities and attitudes after Appomattox of 585 men who were prominent in the Confederacy. He devotes major emphasis to ministers, educators and industrialists as best illustrating the problems of adjustment that Southerners faced in the post-war period." (N Y Times) No index.

Reviewed by L. J. Cappon
Am Hist R 56:998 Jl '51 550w

"The book is clearly intended to be semi-popular, as it is burdened with none of the paraphernalia of scholarship—no bibliography and no footnotes—though it is difficult to understand why the prohibition applied to an index. Any one with an interest in southern history will recognize a valuable addition to our literature." Ella Lonn
+ Ann Am Acad 275:187 My '51 480w

Reviewed by H. S. Commager
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p20 F 25 '51 700w

"The author demonstrates exceptional talent as a writer by the skill with which he weaves an enormous mass of diffuse material into a coherent and lively narrative." B. I. Wiley
+ N Y Times p12 D 31 '50 500w

"This book by Professor William B. Hesseltine, is based on a carefully-documented analysis of the post-bellum careers of 585 Confederate leaders. It offers a challenge to current concepts of political sociology for, as the author points out, it deals with a recurrent problem in history; what happens to the leaders of a defeated people." Seymour Fiddle
+ Social Forces 29:465 My '51 800w
Social Studies 42:144 Mr '51 20w

"The reviewer highly recommends this study to all students of American history and particularly to all interested in this aspect of Southern history during the Reconstruction period." J. L. Harr
+ Social Studies 42:320 N '51 420w
U S Quarterly Bk R 7:54 Mr '51 260w

HEUER, KENNETH. Men of other planets; foreword by Charles H. Smiley. 160p il $3 Pellegrini & Cudahy

523.13 Plurality of worlds. Interplanetary voyages 51-10208

"For the avid reader of science fiction or the one who is thinking tentatively of the existence of life on other worlds, this contains a wealth of observed fact and scientific speculation, liberally adorned with pure fancy and flashes of satire. Based on the theory that all planets support some form of life, adapted, as is life on Earth, to whatever chemical and climatic conditions are extant." Booklist

Booklist 47:305 My 1 '51
Cleveland Open Shelf p17 S '51

Reviewed by M. C. Scoggin
Horn Bk 27:243 Jl '51 30w

"An uneven dish, interesting in spots, confusing in others."
+ — Kirkus 19:94 F 1 '51 110w

"A fascinating and factual book could be written about the possibility of life in other parts of the universe. As Mr. Heuer says correctly, life may exist under all sorts of conditions, and wherever life is possible, it will probably appear. Yet 'Men of Other Planets' is not such a book. Its facts are too few and they are too intimately mixed with unlabeled misinformation."Jonathan Leonard
— N Y Times p10 Ag 5 '51 700w

"That the book is the author's first is evident. But the facts, as one can expect of a lecturer at the Hayden Planetarium, are correct, the fantasy is amusing and marked as such, and the younger readers for whom the book is written will probably like it a lot." Willy Ley
+ Sat R of Lit 34:30 Ap 28 '51 140w
Times [London] Lit Sup p703 N 9 '51 400w

HEWINS, RALPH. Count Folke Bernadotte; his life and work. 279p il $3 T. S. Denison & Company, 321 5th Av, S, Minneapolis 15

B or 92 Bernadotte af Wisborg, Folke, greve 51-401

The life story of the Swedish humanitarian, who married an American heiress. Chronology. Bibliography. No index.

"The style of the book is vigorous and the story is fascinating. The sincere emotion of the author may be excused, but not his inaccuracies. The items in central focus are for the most part dependable, but background material is often mishandled. . . The author is a British journalist who, oddly for such a man, has learned neither to polish his writing nor to verify his sources." F. D. Scott
+ — Am Hist R 56:968 Jl '51 350w

HEWINS, RALPH—Continued
"A pedestrian account of the life and work of this modern humanitarian. . . That Bernadotte is a worthwhile subject for a book is not questioned, but that this volume does not do him justice is an unfortunate fact." Donald Wasson
— Library J 76:113 Ja 15 '51 80w

HEWLETT, JOHN HENRY. Blarney stone. 346p il $3.50 Appleton
398.3 Blarney stone 51-12681

A combination of fact and legend about the Blarney stone and castle, the village, the lake, and the people who give it meaning.

Bookmark 11:31 N '51 30w

"The tale does not hold up to the introduction; the light hearted anecdotes, the legends and whimsy and Irish brogue, the mundanely described human pranks and foibles pall all too soon. But for the Barry Fitzgerald fans who take their Irish as it comes, it provides entertainment."
Kirkus 19:461 Ag 15 '51 150w

"Book is an odd mixture, at times profound and scholarly, then again nonsensical and flip. The author's remarkable research makes it valuable for its definitive history on the Blarney Stone, Blarney Castle and all its environs." M. H. Zipprich
+ Library J 76:1564 O 1 '51 70w

"Hewlett has as many words as a columnist, and he loves to fling them down hard and fast for his reader to wonder at. Too often a too self-conscious wordman, Hewlett is at his best when he gets so interested in what he is saying he forgets to think about how he is saying it." Horace Reynolds
N Y Times p22 O 7 '51 170w

"The reader will be grateful for having at hand such a store of data about the noble stone, its traditions and its side traditions. He may be less grateful for Reporter Hewlett's style—full to the scuppers of 'oulds' and 'divils' and other arch evidences of failure to imitate the inimitable in the glowing and graceful talk of the Irish." D. N. T.
Springf'd Republican p14C N 4 '51 280w

HEYES, DOUGLAS. Kiss-off. 243p $2.50 Simon & Schuster
51-11261
Detective story.

"The chase for the document is fast and gory and winds up in several deaths, but the plot itself is a trifle misty on some details."
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p9 Jl 29 '51 80w

"There's nothing particularly new about his story of gangsters. . . Yet he writes with a clean, fresh individuality." Anthony Boucher
+ — N Y Times p16 Jl 15 '51 180w

Reviewed by L. G. Offord
San Francisco Chronicle p21 Je 17 '51 80w

HEYM, STEFAN. Eyes of reason. 433p $3.75 Little 51-122

"An historical novel concerning the effect of the seizure of power and transformation of Czechoslovakia into a communist state (1948) upon members of the industrialist family of Benda. Written from communist viewpoint, sympathetically portraying revolutionists, unsympathetic to upholders of old regime." Library J

Booklist 47:205 F 1 '51

Reviewed by Warren Beck
Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 F 25 '51 450w

"These bare bones of the story are overlaid with much incident, with many vignettes of the wholesome working class and the sly and grasping bourgeoisie. Interestingly enough, however, Mr. Heym never allows a confrontation between the democratic and the Communist point-of-view. Whenever we think that we are at last to have an argument, the scene shifts and opponents walk past each other talking to themselves." Elizabeth Janeway
Christian Science Monitor p11 Mr 1 '51 1050w

Kirkus 18:705 D 1 '50 190w

Reviewed by R. W. Henderson
Library J 76:180 F 1 '51 100w

"For the first few hundred pages one can believe this is a leisurely family chronicle in the tradition of Galsworthy or Bennett. Only gradually does it become apparent that the book is nothing more or less than an extended apology for the establishment of a police state." Harvey Swados
New Repub 124:29 Ap 16 '51 600w

"One objection may be raised: in his pursuit of non-partisanship Mr. Heym occasionally overshoots the mark. His version, for instance, of the Communist coup in Prague will be accepted by few Americans. But the significance of the novel is not wholly dependent on the accuracy of its historic framework; nor need the reader agree with all of the author's conclusions to appreciate the impact of a message well worth remembering." Frederic Morton
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 F 4 '51 700w

"The characters and their political motivations are confused, if not deliberately bigoted; the novel's focus is blurred, and the only sympathetic figures, besides the children, are 'the simple working men' who believe in the all-redeeming power of the official party dogma." Richard Plant
N Y Times p20 F 11 '51 600w

New Yorker 26:103 F 10 '51 100w

"'Eyes of Reason' is well worth reading not only for its fine story, but also for its vivid picture of what life is like in a country which has changed from democracy to Communism." Irving Babow
+ San Francisco Chronicle p19 Ap 15 '51 650w

"A considerable mass of facts, mostly of such political detail as to be uninteresting to the ordinary reader, fills this long and not very readable book—facts used or abused with the utmost cynicism. In the later chapters the veil not immediately perceived dissolves from the face of these facts, and Communist jargon rolls forth with increasing momentum. Yet the author clings to certain devices which may have been intended to disarm a general public. . . If the book were written with any sign of real passion or with real art it might be terrible even if preposterous. As it is it does not manage even to be insidious." Marcia Davenport
Sat R of Lit 34:12 F 10 '51 950w

Wis Lib Bul 47:88 Ap '51

HEYN, ERNEST VICTOR, ed. Twelve more sport immortals. 303p il $3 Bartholomew house
927.96 Sports—Biography 51-5242

Contents: Christy Mathewson, by Jack Sher; James J. Corbett, by Jack Sher; Bobby Jones, by Jack Sher; Red Grange, by Ed Fitzgerald; Judge Landis, by Ed Fitzgerald; Grover Cleveland Alexander, by Jack Sher; Walter Johnson, by Shirley Povich; John L. Sullivan, by Jack Sher; Bill Tilden, by Al Stump; Eddie Shore, by Ed Fitzgerald; Rogers Hornsby, by Jack Sher; Jim Thorp, by Al Stump.

Reviewed by R. W. Henderson
Library J 76:1127 Jl '51 30w

"This is a lush array of talent. . . This book does them full justice and will delight all levels of fandom." C. X. L.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p20 Jl 22 '51 120w

"There are photographs of them all, and if the intimate and absorbing stories in their exhaustiveness and straining for 'color' may seem to the general reader somewhat overstuffed and glorified, they will not seem so to the avid sports fan for whom they were designed." D. B. B.
Springf'd Republican p8D Jl 1 '51 210w

HEYWOOD, ANNE. There is a right job for every woman. 192p $2.50 Doubleday

331.4 Woman—Occupations. Woman—Employment. Success 51-12879

Practical advice on jobs for women, by the founder of the Career-Changing clinic. There are chapters for women in business, and also for homemakers who want to work outside the home.

Booklist 48:60 O 15 '51
Bookmark 11:84 Ja '52 20w

"Many practical suggestions are offered... This book is also designed to help women choose work which will interest them after having raised families or been housewives. The final chapter includes tests which will help the reader to determine her basic interests." E. C. L.
+ Christian Science Monitor p12 N 2 '51 160w

"With a 'basic interest' test at the back of the book, and breezy style, this has a predictable 'You-too' market."
+ Kirkus 19:382 Jl 15 '51 130w

"Anecdotes and case histories help to illustrate Miss Heywood's theories. They are interesting and often amusing and add to the informality of the narrative. A basic interests' test and a housewives' career guide test which conclude the book are fun to take, if of dubious value." J. C. C.
+ Springf'd Republican p14C N 4 '51 120w

HIBBEN, FRANK CUMMINGS. Treasure in the dust; exploring ancient North America. 311p il $5 Lippincott

913.7 North America—Antiquities. Man, Prehistoric. Indians of North America—Antiquities 51-11201

"Lively account of the earliest inhabitants of North America. Bering Strait is shown to have been the point of entry for these first Americans about 30,000 years ago. The story expanded beyond Folsom and Sandia men to include chapters on Eskimo, the early Indians of the West and the Great Plains, the Moundbuilders, the Aztecs and the Mayas. Specific instances are cited to show that more accurate determination of the periods of these cultures has been made possible by recent development of radio-active dating methods." (Library J) Index.

Booklist 48:99 N 15 '51

"'Treasure in the Dust' is rewarding reading. It is not the last word, scientifically, nor does it pretend to be. It is a story of man against nature at a time when nature was the sole arbiter of survival. It is a story that will give courage to a civilization on trial. Others have had their trials, too. Civilizations wax and wane, but civilized man goes on!" W. M. Krogman
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p11 N 18 '51 500w

"Some fascinating information, and the scientific approach here is also an exciting one for a lay as well as learned public."
+ Kirkus 19:468 Ag 15 '51 150w

Reviewed by E. M. Cole
Library J 76:1930 N 15 '51 130w

"I think a few maps and a few diagrams (of the toggle-harpoon and the spear-throwing stick, say) might well have been included in Hibben's book, but that is a small complaint. The volume conveys a large amount of information in a highly readable manner." Rex Lardner
+ — N Y Times p7 N 25 '51 450w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson
San Francisco Chronicle p14 N 30 '51 550w

HIBBERT, ELEANOR (JEAN PLAIDY, pseud). Madame Serpent. 339p $3 Appleton

Catherine de' Medici, consort of Henry II, king of France—Fiction 51-760

A historical novel of the sixteenth century court of France. The central character is Catherine de Medici, the Italian "merchant's daughter" who married Henri II.

Booklist 47:230; 253 Mr 1 '51; Mr 15 '51

"Jean Plaidy has brought this remarkably sinister woman into full focus in this historical thriller. Seldom has a character been brought to life with such clarity. Set against the background of the dazzling French court, the story is a suspense novel of first rank." Richard Blakesley
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 My 13 '51 240w
Kirkus 19:7 Ja 1 '51 190w
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p16 Mr 18 '51 150w

"If it is not a great novel, 'Madame Serpent' is at least a highly readable one. . . The author follows history closely, though with imagination. Adventure, sword-play, intrigue and poisoning are there for those who want them." T. C. Chubb
+ N Y Times p22 Mr 11 '51 180w

"In spite of its lack of dramatic incident, 'Madame Serpent' would have some justification if it produced a few insights into the behavior of its characters. But none of the figures in the novel is sufficiently well motivated to be more than an historic name." Martin Levin
Sat R of Lit 34:38 Mr 24 '51 240w

Reviewed by Tangye Lean
Spec 187:252 Ag 24 '51 250w

"Miss Plaidy traces the history of the snubbed and neglected wife in great detail and, it must be confessed, sometimes a little dully; but she does succeed in arousing for the unfortunate young girl a sympathy which gradually changes into repulsion for the woman she became."
Times [London] Lit Sup p529 Ag 24 '51 220w

HICKEY, JAMES C. Introducing the universe; il. with phot. and endpaper maps. 154p $3.50 Dodd

520 Astronomy 51-9862

An introductory study of astronomy for young people. Describes the solar system, individual planets, stars, comets, meteors, constellations, swarming asteroids, and zodiacal light. Index.

Booklist 47:268 Ap 1 '51

"Reading this title may well start one on the hobby trail. For young people rather than adults. Recommended." M. I. Ross
+ Library J 76:716 Ap 15 '51 80w

"A highly readable, lucid description of the most important observed features of the universe about us. . . Mr. Hickey's book can be recommended to anyone who desires a nontechnical, brief, simple, yet accurate account of the results of modern observational astronomy." Harrison Brown
+ Sat R of Lit 34:19 Ap 28 '51 600w

"Scientifically accurate and fluently written, 'Introducing the Universe' is educational and enjoyable." Richard Henchey
+ Springf'd Republican p5D Mr 25 '51 130w
Wis Lib Bul 47:160 Je '51

HICKS, JOHN RICHARD. Contribution to the theory of the trade cycle. 201p $2 Oxford

338.54 Business cycles [50-7270]

"Mr. Hicks offers a theory in explanation of the trade cycle, claiming no more than that the theory is reasonable in itself, is mathematically defensible, and would fit the facts that have been experienced. Certain elements, notably the multiplier process, are taken from the General Theory [by Keynes] but their treatment by Mr. Hicks differs from their treatment by Keynes in important ways." Times [London] Lit Sup

"This is an important step forward in business cycle theory. It is indeed a masterpiece—a masterpiece in organization, exposition and analysis. . . Much of the greatness of this book lies in the new vistas which it opens up, not only to theorists and statisticians, but also to those interested in policy. Certainly no economist can afford to miss it." H. A. Adler

HICKS, J. R.—Continued

+ Ann Am Acad 273:237 Ja '51 280w

"Mr. Hicks is an excellent expositor. . . Given the difficulty of the subject, his new work is written with great clarity, but it remains so technical throughout that it is addressed presumably to his professional colleagues." Thomas Wilson

+ − Manchester Guardian p4 My 26 '50 480w

"The argument is expounded lucidly and with unremitting directness, but from the nature of the method pursued, as well as from the formidable mathematical apparatus by which it is supported, it is not of the kind that can be followed without toil by a general reader."

+ − Times [London] Lit Sup p41 Ja 19 '51 850w

HIGGINS, MARGUERITE. War in Korea; the report of a woman combat correspondent; photographs by Carl Mydans and others. 223p $2.75 Doubleday

951.9 Korea—History—War and intervention, 1950- 51-8015

The first woman war correspondent in Korea here reports the war as she has seen it. The book is illustrated with photographs by Carl Mydans and others. Maps on end papers.

"All in all, War in Korea is a book that packs a man-sized punch. Marguerite Higgins, in the fullest sense of the phrase, was there." C. J. Rolo

+ Atlantic 187:80 My '51 600w

Booklist 47:308 My 1 '51

Bookmark 10:180 My '51 40w

Cath World 173:398 Ag '51 90w

"Maggie Higgins' 'report' from Korea is a hurried book, indignant, factual, and a reflection of the confusion of the early terrible days of the war itself. It is typically feminine in its helter-skelter approach, but its gives an amazingly accurate and true picture of days of defeat, retreat, and the discovery by Americans that Asiatics are tough foes." Wayne Thomis

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p10 Ap 22 '51 500w

"Her writings on the soldier disclose an author who shared the soldier's hardships, and understood what happened to his heart and mind and body. The less successful portions of her book, those farthest removed from combat, disclose an author possessing taste, honesty, and zeal, but lacking something of that experience which would give further point to her perception." H. B. Ellis

+ − Christian Science Monitor p9 Ap 24 '51 500w

Foreign Affairs 29:680 Jl '51 10w

Reviewed by M. C. Scoggin

Horn Bk 27:242 Jl '51 70w

Kirkus 19:170 Mr 15 '51 190w

"It is still ephemeral from the library point of view but considering the lack of material on the battle situation it is useful until more considered studies are published." H. L. Roth

Library J 76:595 Ap 1 '51 130w

Reviewed by M. D. Read

Library J 76:1719 O 15 '51 70w

"In this vivid and highly readable book Miss Higgins gives some shrewd judgments on the principal actors in the Korean drama." Marquis Childs

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 Ap 15 '51 900w

"The fact that Maggie Higgins is a woman is a pleasant enough coincidence, but that is all. She is above all a fine reporter, and because she is Maggie Higgins manages to attain in her book a high degree of objectivity—difficult in her case because a few high ranking officers tried to have her thrown out of the combat area. They should have known better. Maggie is very attractive, and she has soft eyes and a soft voice with a breathless quality about it. The high ranking officers never had a chance. She can also write very well indeed." Quentin Reynolds

+ N Y Times p3 Ap 15 '51 1100w

New Yorker 27:119 Ap 28 '51 180w

Reviewed by G. G. Stevens

San Francisco Chronicle p20 My 13 '51 700w

"Maggie Higgins . . . writes a whale of a war story. In fact, this Maggie's eye view of the Korean police action is downright irresistible in its candor, in its simple expression of things which many of us feel strongly but can't say very well, in its change of pace between the tragedy of the battlefield and the high comedy of much human behavior in close relationship to it, and in all that is said of the ordeal of the female correspondent." S. L. A. Marshall

+ Sat R of Lit 34:20 Ap 21 '51 650w

Wis Lib Bul 47:120 My '51

HIGHET, HELEN (MACINNES). See MacInnes, H.

HIGMAN, HARRY WENTWORTH, and LARRISON, EARL JUNIOR. Union bay; the life of a city marsh; il. by Edmund J. Sawyer. 315p $4 Univ. of Wash. press

574.9797 Natural history—Seattle 51-13089

A study of the wild life in and on a marsh which is near the University of Washington in Seattle. Illustrated with many drawings.

Booklist 48:118 D 1 '51

Bookmark 11:58 D '51 10w

Reviewed by John Bayless

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p16 O 28 '51 230w

"Recommended." R. W. Henderson

+ Library J 77:58 Ja 1 '52 40w

"Both authors are soundly grounded in science which guarantees that their book is reliable, and also are both authentically daft 'nature-nuts,' which guarantees that their enthusiasm carries over infectiously to the reader. The product of their talents (enhanced by the drawings of Edmund Sawyer) should please a wide audience of nature-enthusiasts." Alan Devoe

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 N 25 '51 450w

"No one who read and liked 'Pilchuck' will want to miss this, and through it many who may have missed that first book may discover the authors and take the trouble to go back and read the earlier volume. The two belong side by side on the same shelf in the library of anyone who has any feel for the outdoors and for the wild life that is a part of it." J. H. Jackson

+ San Francisco Chronicle p12 D 28 '51 950w

HILDEBRAND, JOEL HENRY, and SCOTT, ROBERT LANE. Solubility of nonelectrolytes. 3d ed 488p $10 Reinhold

541.34 Solubility. Solution (chemistry) 50-10478

"The third edition of this American Chemical Society Monograph bears no resemblance to the previous one which appeared 14 years ago save the title! Enlisting the able cooperation of Dr. Scott as junior author, Dr. Hildebrand has been able to bring this text up-to-date by expanding it nearly two and a half fold in size." (Chem Eng) For earlier edition see Book Review Digest 1936.

"This treatise is packed with useful information, presented in a brief, often too brief, a manner. It is the most authoritative work on the subject, and should be of great influence in stimulating further research in this difficult field. This reviewer thinks that the present edition should have a broader title since the work discusses many properties of non-electrolytic solvent mixtures at concentrations far from saturated solutions." H. S. Harned

+ Am Chem Soc J 73:4059 Ag '51 360w

"In the present edition this already familiar work has considerably more than doubled in size and likewise in value. This increase results both from the very considerable development of theory since the second edition and from some enlargement in scope, so that essentially all fields which can properly be included under the title are touched on." R. M. Badger
+ Chem & Eng N 29:1576 Ap 16 '51 270w

"As the present text is practically a new one, there are few typographical errors; but more annoying is the poor printing . . . absence of suitable page margins which give the reader an impression of 'pinching.' Aside from these more formalistic objections the book deserves nothing but praise and should be of immense usefulness to investigators in various fields of research." F. C. Nachod
+ — Chem Eng 58:269 Ja '51 170w

"The reviewer can find much to praise in this work and but little to criticize adversely. He considers it an excellent contribution to the scientific literature and is glad to recommend it to all who want a well-written, theoretically sound treatise on the subject." M. L. Huggins
+ J Phys & Colloid Chem 55:619 Ap '51 350w
N Y New Tech Bks 35:85 N '50

HILDRETH, GERTRUDE HOWELL. Readiness for school beginners. 382p il $3.60 World bk.
372 Education, Elementary

"A comprehensive restatement of the means by which to determine readiness and of the ways in which to develop a curriculum for first graders. Parent-school relationships are emphasized throughout the book. Useful in teachers' collections." Booklist

Booklist 47:168 Ja 1 '51

"As it stands, Readiness for School Beginners will be approached best, not with intent of continuous reading, but for reference in attacking particular problems of readiness, in determining how far we have gone in the last twenty-five years, and in directing the attention of teachers away from subjects and skills to children. So used, the book will afford effective and profitable reading." B. E. Leary
+ El School J 51:531 My '51 1000w

HILKERT, ROBERT C. (FATHER X, pseud). Everybody calls me father. 180p $2.25 Sheed
253 Roman Catholic church—Clergy 51-9545

"A priest who takes his calling seriously—but not himself—writes of his first five years and of the parishioners who delight, annoy or bewilder him." San Francisco Chronicle

Cleveland Open Shelf p18 S '51

"It might have been written by Damon Runyon if he were a young parish priest who couldn't write very well. . . Another reviewer has suggested that perhaps the explanation for these memoirs is that they are true. In either case Father X was wise to remain anonymous." John Cogley
— Commonweal 53:550 Mr 9 '51 150w

"A sage and witty little book about a man and his people." D. P.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p21 Mr 18 '51 250w
Springf'd Republican p12C Ap 22 '51 80w

HILL, FRANK ERNEST. King's company; drawings by Addison Burbank. 294p $2.75 Dodd 50-10883

A historical romance for high school boys and girls. The scene is seventeenth century England. The hero is Roger Darrell who defies his father, goes up to London and works with Burbage and Shakespeare.

Booklist 47:224 F 15 '51

"This is the sort of book every high school teacher of English is glad to get hold of, to recommend to that junior or senior English class learning about Shakespeare and the old Globe Theater. Best of all, it is a really good story, exciting and absorbing." M. J. T.
+ Christian Science Monitor p9 F 3 '51 240w

"Recommended." L. E. Cathon
+ Library J 76:340 F 15 '51 120w

"A fine, solid, richly informing book. . . It all is excitingly imagined, and there is plenty of action. It leaves us with a most living sense of Bankside, Westminster, and the first presentation of some of the greatest plays ever written." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 D 17 '50 160w

"Mr. Hill handles his story with skill and spirit. His biography, 'To Meet Will Shakespeare,' attests to his knowledge of Elizabethan England. The new book, eruditely graceful, reconstructs the life of the Globe Theatre in convincing and intimate fashion. Shakespeare is delicately drawn." Charles Lee
+ N Y Times p18 Ja 7 '51 160w

"This is an excellent historical tale, obviously based on a thorough knowledge of its subject. It is also an appealing and convincing adventure story."
+ Sat R of Lit 34:46 F 17 '51 270w
Wis Lib Bul 47:94 Ap '51

HILLES, MRS HELEN (TRAIN). Farm wanted; il. by Roger Duvoisin. 236p $3 Messner
630.1 Farm life 51-9925

The author's account, written in rather restrained but entertaining fashion, of how she and her husband, city people, bought a house and fifteen acres in Dutchess county, New York, and beginning with no more lofty ambitions than "a nice place for summer vacations," gradually developed a subsistence farmstead with even a few paying sidelines. Hints are included on a variety of topics from how to patch a lawn to what to do with a whole hind-quarter of veal.

Booklist 47:229; 268 Mr 1 '51; Ap 1 '51
Bookmark 10:154 Ap '51 50w

"'Farm Wanted' is as good a spring tonic as sassafras tea. Drink deeply! It will not hurt you if you do not overlook the fact that the man from whom the Hilleses bought their farm stayed on as a hired man." Marge Lyon
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 Ap 1 '51 270w

Reviewed by C. B. Burnett
Christian Science Monitor p11 Ap 26 '51 220w
+ Kirkus 19:92 F 1 '51 210w

"Family anecdote is at a minimum and farm anecdote at a maximum. Good advice and good reading." M. E. Monroe
+ Library J 76:511 Mr 15 '51 90w

"Mrs. Hilles, who has written cookbooks and articles on food, has tucked dozens of good food suggestions into her account of the farm along with the animal husbandry and gardening. She writes without the 'cuteness' that spoils many such books (if the reader will ignore the chapter headings) and down to the last runt piglet and surplus eggplant she makes the whole experiment sound rewarding." Joanna Spencer
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p13 Ap 22 '51 360w

"How or when in a subsistence farm economy Mrs. Hilles found time to produce so excellent a book is a mystery to which she supplies no clue." F. F. Van de Water
+ N Y Times p12 Ap 1 '51 410w

Reviewed by Dorothy Van Doren
+ Sat R of Lit 34:18 My 5 '51 700w

HILLES, H. T.—Continued
Reviewed by S. M. Neal
Springf'd Republican p20A My 13 '51 160w
Wis Lib Bul 47:85 Ap '51

HILLIARD, JAN. Salt-box. 212p il $3 Norton
818 Nova Scotia—Social life and customs 51-9033

Reminiscences of the author's childhood in Nova Scotia, where their home was called The Salt-box. Her father, an English "gentleman", lived in hopes of finding a fortune in gold. After the death of his wife he left his five children largely in charge of his spinster sister-in-law, and wandered far from The Salt-box. But the children brought up by their puritanical aunt managed not to miss him.

Booklist 47:165; 185 Ja 1 '51; Ja 15 '51
Bookmark 10:131 Mr '51 40w

"This is a hearty, humorous, and very human family chronicle. It is a zestful 'Life Without Father.'" Walter Havighurst
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 F 18 '51 400w

Reviewed by C. B. Burnett
Christian Science Monitor p9 Mr 27 '51 400w
Kirkus 18:746 D 15 '50 250w

"There is such persistent comedy in this book that one is grateful for the desperately unattractive school-teacher whose voice could unexpectedly convey the magic of 'The Forsaken Merman.' Also for the picture of the children idling summer days on the beach. As we leave the Salt-Box, by the way, they are still hopefully waiting for Father to send for them." Frances Witherspoon
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 F 18 '51 500w

"Its lack of sentimentality sets this book off from many of the others. Miss Hilliard keeps the theme of 'the good old days' to a minimum, and sets down her recollections spontaneously, almost as if in conversation." W. McG.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p25 Ap 1 '51 400w

"What with sea captains as neighbors and boats from the seven seas as harbor visitors life in the lichened salt-box was a thing of suspenseful gaiety and poetic charm. I wish, though, that I knew what became of the little father who wasn't there." A. F. Wolfe
+ Sat R of Lit 34:21 My 12 '51 400w
Wis Lib Bul 47:86 Ap '51

HILLIS, MARJORIE (MRS THOMAS HENRY ROULSTON). You can start all over; a guide for the widow and divorcee; with drawings by Winifred Mury. 141p $2.50 Harper
396 Widows 51-9288

The author of Live Alone and Like It (Book Review Digest 1936) writes a book of commonsense advice for the widow or divorcee or any woman who finds herself alone and must adjust to a new status. Her advice is based partly on personal experience, for her husband died and she had her problems of adjustment.

Booklist 47:109; 215 N 15 '50; F 15 '51
Bookmark 10:132 Mr '51 30w
Cleveland Open Shelf p14 Jl '51
+ Kirkus 18:689 N 15 '50 130w

Reviewed by S. M. Neal
Springf'd Republican p8C F 18 '51 180w
Wis Lib Bul 47:248 N '51

HILTNER, SEWARD. Self-understanding through psychology and religion. 224p $2.75 Scribner
150.13 Psychology, Applied 51-1877

"A seasoned pastoral consultant uses many interesting case histories to demonstrate how proper attitudes toward 'personal past experiences' can further individual and social growth. Reading list, references, index." Bookmark

Booklist 47:321 My 15 '51
Bookmark 10:154 Ap '51 30w

"The book is written in simple nontechnical language, but is eminently sound; it abounds in revealing case studies; and it is permeated with a sincere Christian spirit. It should be widely read by ministers, teachers and all who wish to understand themselves a bit better." C. T. Holman
+ Christian Century 68:1017 S 5 '51 700w

"Anything from the pen of Seward Hiltner is a 'must' for clergy, but here is something to read with profit by laymen as well. . . It makes a fine tool in the pastor's work kit." Joseph Fletcher
+ Churchman 165:18 Ap 15 '51 150w

Reviewed by C. M. Bond
Crozer Q 28:366 O '51 400w

"Reading of the book should help those in need, but a subsequent session with a psychiatrist will probably be needed in the thornier cases."
Kirkus 19:88 F 1 '51 110w

HILTON, JAMES. Morning journey. (Atlantic monthly press bk) 345p $3 Little 51-9261

Portrays the lives of Carey Arundale, an Irish actress, trained in the Abbey theatre, and her husband, Paul Saffron, an American writer and director. Carey's devotion to her intractable husband took her thru some bad times, and a second marriage besides, before she returned to Paul.

Atlantic 187:81 Ap '51 120w
Booklist 47:149; 219 D 15 '50; F 15 '51
Bookmark 10:133 Mr '51 60w

Reviewed by Riley Hughes
Cath World 173:152 My '51 220w

"'Morning Journey' is as good and pure theatrical 'ham' as one could ask for. In 'Morning Journey' James Hilton offers a personally conducted tour of the world of the theater and the movies, and, since he is a skilled and extremely articulate conductor, the tour is illuminating. The hero is a synthesis of the popular conceptions of egocentric directing geniuses. The plot has a strong aroma of the synthetic also." Fanny Butcher
— Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 F 18 '51 500w

"The author has made the Irish part of his narrative particularly free of stereotyped material; his American scene, when laid in a Hollywood film studio, abounds in factual information. His special gift lies in telling his story through the medium of easy, lively, illuminating conversations, and above all in creating characters that can be remembered." W. K. Rugg
+ Christian Science Monitor p9 F 24 '51 360w
Cleveland Open Shelf p8 Mr '51
Kirkus 18:728 D 15 '50 340w

Reviewed by H. L. Roth
Library J 76:326 F 15 '51 100w

Reviewed by Norman Shrapnel
Manchester Guardian p4 N 30 '51 30w

"'Morning Journey' is rather less warmly human, somewhat more smoothly turned than Mr. Hilton's previous novels. It is, however, within its own premises, wholly successful. For Mr. Hilton's knowledgeable close-up of a near-genius and a super-womanly woman adds up to a psychologically sound and continuously interesting novel." F. H. Bullock
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 F 18 '51 900w

"Mr. Hilton's novel is not 'fast-paced.' It is slow, even a bit thin in its action (this in spite of its coverage of time between the Sinn Fein troubles in Ireland and today). It is, however, rich in portraiture, especially of the bizarre Saffron; and it is close-packed in human understanding. Its characters may not engage your sympathies. It is hard to see how they could fail to engage your interest." Charles Lee

N Y Times p5 F 18 '51 700w

"A really high-class novel about interesting people who do things."

+ New Yorker 27:98 F 24 '51 200w

Reviewed by Jane Voiles

San Francisco Chronicle p20 Mr 8 '51 600w

"Strangely, it doesn't jell. I think the reason is that Mr. Hilton never really accepts the shopworn quality of his basic material. A careful craftsman, he has supplied all his characters with names and addresses, birthplaces, backgrounds, and conversation. But he has failed to bring them alive as the human beings he obviously intended them to be." E. J. Fitzgerald

Sat R of Lit 34:28 Mr 17 '51 500w

Springf'd Republican p20A My 13 '51 310w

Time 57:108 Mr 12 '51 380w

Times [London] Lit Sup p801 D 14 '51 230w

Wis Lib Bul 47:62 Mr '51

HILTON, RICHARD. Military attaché in Moscow. 231p $2.75 Beacon press

914.7 Russia—Description and travel. Russia—Social conditions [50-25325]

"To the rulers of the Soviet Union foreigners in Moscow are a necessary evil. However, Maj. Gen. Richard Hilton, British military attache in Moscow for a year after the war, must have been particularly irritating. He spoke Russian. He liked to take long walks. He had a lively curiosity. Combining all three he managed to find out a good deal about the life that exists in squalor and fear behind the façade of central Moscow and to agitate the Government to the point where it turned Pravda loose on him. What the general found out is written simply and coolly in [this book]." N Y Times

Reviewed by W. H. Chamberlin

Chicago Sunday Tribune p16 N 25 '51 140w

Foreign Affairs 29:156 O '50 30w

"Written amusingly and with plenty of prejudice. . . Perhaps, in theory, we know most of this already. But, on the small, significant facts that mean so much, this book has much to offer that is new and convincing. Even its weaknesses—poor organisation of material and argument from the particular to the general—seem to serve in emphasising its virtues. It is well worth reading as a personal record to touch us in a personal way." L. F. D.

+ — Manchester Guardian p4 Ja 3 '50 350w

"The net outcome of this angry but naive little book is really little more than this rather comic tit-for-tat: on the one hand, the tattered sheepskin coat, and on the other, the whole of Russia in scarecrow rags." Alexander Werth

New Statesman & Nation 38:654 D 3 '49 1650w

"Gen. Hilton's account of his experiences behind the Iron Curtain is leisurely, literate and anecdotal. It does not pretend to be profound, or to reveal all the answers. Nevertheless, his footnote to contemporary worries is illuminating and entertaining in its modest way." Marcus Duffield

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 Jl 8 '51 600w

"More satisfying than many books written with a more political approach." Drew Middleton

+ N Y Times p11 My 6 '51 650w

"General Hilton tells his observations in Moscow and Moscow's countryside. He lived there for more than a year, he spoke Russian, he met many Russians, officers and simple people. He is no doubt an objective chronicler, and his picture of the USSR is balanced and realistic." H. B. Kranz

+ Sat R of Lit 34:27 Je 23 '51 700w

"It is a pity that, although he repeatedly describes himself as a 'simple soldier' unqualified to engage in the discussion of subjects which require specialised knowledge, he has not withstood the temptation to air rather simple views on philosophy, education, party organization, history, literature, art, financial techniques, &c. The only topic about which literally nothing can be found in Military Attache in Moscow is the Russian armed forces." I. Deutscher

Spec 184:20 Ja 6 '50 550w

Times [London] Lit Sup p38 Ja 20 '50 700w

HINDUS, MAURICE GERSCHON. Magda. 314p $3 Doubleday

51-9429

The story of a Polish immigrant, Mike Koziol, who comes to America in 1910, starts as a farm worker, and ends up as a Texas land owner.

Booklist 47:253 Mr 15 '51

"All in all, the quality which really distinguishes his story and which will stay with its readers, is the wonderfully warm, rich texture of American rural life and of its meanings as democracy to the young idealist from Poland." Edmund Fuller

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p10 F 18 '51 500w

Kirkus 18:730 D 15 '50 140w

"Mr. Hindus has written 'Magda' in the same honest, unpretentious style which gave such authority to his earlier accounts of life on the land in Russia. . . Like his hero, Mr. Hindus is head over heels in love with the U. S. A. and, like any other man in love, has no inclination whatever to be critical in any way of the beloved." F. H. Bullock

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 F 11 '51 800w

"No swoops and climbs of romantic suspense in 'Magda.' No subtle styling. Hindus, the novelist, always stays in the impressive shadow of Hindus, the commentator. Yet the novel illuminates a segment of pastoral America, and Mike Koziol is an appealing young man as he learns to feel at home in the freedom and equality of his chosen new country." James Kelly

+ N Y Times p24 F 4 '51 320w

"Mr. Hindus writes with an enthusiasm that is more dogged than fiery, and gives us a flat, panoramic picture of the people he is interested in, making them gigantic, colorful, and strong but neither moved nor moving."

New Yorker 26:103 F 10 '51 50w

HINE, ALFRED B. An unfound door. 393p $3.50 Little

51-13954

Character study of Ginny McLaughlin, from an upper class home in Pittsburgh. Ginny goes thru a period in New York, and two marriages, one ending in divorce, before she finally bids farewell to her childhood. The time is from the twenties to the present.

"Although the author's style seems almost anachronistic in its third-martini laments, this is an unusual and important comment on an era, a way of life and a memorable personality."

Kirkus 19:499 S 1 '51 260w

"Written in the 'wise-guy' jargon of the advertising agency, which does little to enhance its thin theme and plodding plot, this novel adds little to the town vs city literary controversy of the early 1920's, which might have been its great value." M. S. Byam

— Library J 76:1804 N 1 '51 110w

"In his first novel, 'An Unfound Door,' Al Hine indicts the culture of a great American city—or at any rate of its privileged upper strata—for frivolity, purposelessness and snobbery. In an amiable tone, never once raising his voice, he piles up his damning evidence in this very readable story of Pittsburgh and its swankier suburbs." F. H. Bullock

HINE, A. B.—Continued
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p17 N 25 '51 750w

"This is a story which is pleasant, though sometimes ineptly tailored for a custom-made audience. A first novel, 'An Unfound Door' is serious without intensity or insight. The heroine, Ginny, is unimportant and, on the whole, commonplace, an infinitely less interesting woman than her unsympathetically portrayed mother. But Al Hine has captured the flavor of a time and place—his atmosphere is authentic and successful." John Nerber
+ — N Y Times p46 N 18 '51 320w

"It's a very readable book, hardy enough to survive Mr. Hine's careless, straggling way of writing, and so crammed with frantic detail that one cannot help suspecting that Fred Boyce spent most of his life not just taking notes but writing everything down in full the minute it happened."
New Yorker 27:160 N 10 '51 170w

Reviewed by Robert Lowry
Sat R of Lit 34:17 N 24 '51 650w

HINGLEY, RONALD. Chekhov: a biographical and critical study. 278p il $5 Macmillan
B or 92 Chekhov, Anton Pavlovich [51-10608]

This biographical and critical study of Chekhov attempts to prove that dreariness was only a part of Chekhov's life, that he had a sense of humor which showed both in his life and in his works. Photographs. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 47:344 Je 1 '51

"Recommended for theatre and Slavonic collections." George Freedley
+ Library J 76:1030 Je 15 '51 30w

"Most of us know little about the life of Anton Chekhov, and Mr Ronald Hingley is to be congratulated on having put together the known facts in a very scholarly and readable biography." G. L. Arnold
+ Manchester Guardian p2 D 29 '50 310w

"Mr. Hingley's new Life is pedestrian in manner and approach and unilluminating in its criticism, but it is a solidly informative book and contains things that will be new to the English reader. . . One misses in Mr. Hingley's useful book some more sensitive examination of Chekhov's art; what Chekhov believed or did not believe whether he had this kind of conscience or that, is not very important." V. S. Pritchett
+ — New Statesman & Nation 41:308 Mr 17 '51 550w

Reviewed by Ernestine Evans
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 Jl 15 '51 900w

Reviewed by Harry Levin
N Y Times p5 Je 3 '51 650w

Reviewed by Philip Trower
Spec 185:216 F 16 '51 600w

"Mr. Hingley has evidently a sound knowledge of Russian, is conscientious in his handling of sources, makes a point of rating the stories above the plays, and he has read all or most that has been written about Chekhov in Soviet Russia in recent years. Nevertheless he has produced a rather dull and colourless book. His approach is altogether too formal and too mechanical to enable him to bring out with any liveliness or force of persuasion the fascination of Chekhov's personality."
Times [London] Lit Sup p70 F 2 '51 330w

HINSHAW, DAVID. Rufus Jones, master Quaker. 306p il $4 Putnam
B or 92 Jones, Rufus Matthew 51-9891

The life story of a Quaker teacher, philosopher, and humanitarian, who retired from Haverford college in 1934, following forty-one years of teaching. In the course of the book there is a great deal of Quaker history. Index.

Booklist 47:271 Ap 1 '51
Bookmark 10:154 Ap '51 30w

"His biografy by his friend and fellow Friend, David Hinshaw, is written from close quarters, by a man whose style has a seemly directness, simplicity, and plainness. . . This book is a record of a cheerful, energetic, effectual and dedicated human being." A. C. Ames
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 Mr 11 '51 360w

"Here is one book that I am going to recommend immediately without stopping to read it, as I hope to do later for my own information and my soul's good. The recommendation is perfectly safe and is meant seriously." W. E. G.
+ Christian Century 68:404 Mr 28 '51 200w

"Mr. Hinshaw's biography of that outstanding Quaker of our time, the late Rufus Jones, is a pedestrian, but loving, account by a lifelong friend and associate. . . While Mr. Hinshaw's biography will remain useful as a record of the facts of the birth, education, achievement and influence of his friend, it does not give anything like so revealing a portrait of Rufus Jones as do the good doctor's own writings." Neil Martin
Christian Science Monitor p11 Mr 22 '51 1150w

Reviewed by A. W. Taylor
Churchman 165:16 Ag '51 270w

Reviewed by G. D. McDonald
Library J 76:405 Mr 1 '51 130w

Reviewed by Frances Witherspoon
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p11 Mr 11 '51 1000w

"For Quakers, this first biography of 'The Master Quaker' will arouse reverent pride; and for others, still warmer esteem for him and those of his faith." R. E. Bondy
+ N Y Times p10 Ap 1 '51 360w

"This is a detailed, well-written and deeply affectionate and respectful tribute to the busy, useful and conspicuously happy life of the most famous Quaker in the contemporary world." C. W. W.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p24 My 6 '51 380w

"One of Rufus's favorite words was 'radiant.' . . That was the kind of man Rufus was. This, unhappily, is not a radiant book. But it is on the whole a sound and attractive one, which will serve as a preliminary sketch of one of the indisputably great mystics and humanitarians of our time." F. B. Tolles
+ Sat R of Lit 34:26 Ap 21 '51 900w

"Mr. Hinshaw's book is on the whole a thorough, sensitive, readable, and accurate portrait. As one who had the privilege of knowing Rufus Jones personally, I feel that this biography has effectively caught the real flavor of the man in all his breadth and purity of spirit." H. W. Hintz
+ Survey 87:231 My '51 350w
Wis Lib Bul 47:120 My '51

HIRSCHFELD, ALBERT. Show business is no business. 141p il $2.95 Simon & Schuster
792 Theater 51-11354

"For the past thirty years, Hirschfeld has sat on the fringes of the show world, and in this book he demonstrates that he loves it but doesn't necessarily respect it. He gently reduces the whole thing to an absurdity . . . meanwhile exploring every facet of the theatre, from acting and designing to playwriting and directing, where 'being Hungarian is not enough.' In addition to the drawings that illustrate the text, there is a representative collection of Mr. Hirschfeld's newspaper and magazine work." New Yorker

"Amusing, satiric drawings are matched by trenchant, knowing comments on all phases of the Broadway theater."
+ Bookmark 11:31 N '51 20w

"Tho the woes of the legitimate theatrical production heading for its Broadway opening are an oft told tale, Hirschfeld's summing up, limned in waggish sketches and couched in lucid phrases, is a fresh, entertaining look at the tragi-comedy." William Leonard

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 S 9 '51 500w

Reviewed by John Beaufort
Christian Science Monitor p15 D 6 '51 100w

"Bright, light entertainment."
Kirkus 19:203 Ap 1 '51 150w

"A good section of 'Show Business Is No Business' is devoted to Hirschfeld drawings which have already been printed elsewhere. . . There are also new, and equally characteristic and delightful, drawings to illustrate Mr. Hirschfeld's text. . . Mr. Hirschfeld can write, too, 'Most artists cannot even spell,' Russel Crouse remarks, libelously I am sure, in his introduction. Mr. Hirschfeld can write. . . But Mr. Hirschfeld had better sign what he writes. . . A good many people could have written much as Mr. Hirschfeld writes here, and one is left, somehow, with a vague feeling that a good many people have." Richard Lockridge
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 S 30 '51 650w

Reviewed by Lewis Nichols
+ N Y Times p7 S 9 '51 650w

New Yorker 27:127 O 6 '51 150w

San Francisco Chronicle p17 S 9 '51 220w

"Reading Al Hirschfeld's text and poring over his drawings in 'Show Business Is No Business' is an uproariously disenchanting experience. It is enough to make anyone laugh who has had the remotest contact with that odd world which lies behind the Asbestos Curtain. . . Mr. Hirschfeld's is the most hilariously unhoodwinked exposure of the Broadway stage as it is in practice rather than in theory that has appeared in many a solemn season." J. M. Brown
+ Sat R of Lit 34:26 S 29 '51 1700w

Springf'd Republican p5C S 23 '51 350w

"I know what book my Broadway cronies and drum-beating friends are going to get for Christmas. For this is a primer for oldsters in the business more than for beginners." Richard McLaughlin
+ Theatre Arts 35:86 D '51 130w

HITCHENS, MRS DOLORES (BIRK). Love me in death, [by] D. B. Olsen [pseud]. 222p $2.50 Doubleday 51-1194

Detective story.

Kirkus 18:739 D 15 '50 70w

"Professor Pennyfeather is, as always, charming, and the case he solves is an intriguing one, peopled with a number of interesting characters."
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p18 Mr 11 '51 170w

Reviewed by Nancie Matthews
N Y Times p34 Ap 1 '51 140w

"Professor Pennyfeather is at his engaging and efficient best among all these peculiar types."
+ New Yorker 27:115 F 17 '51 160w

"The professor's peregrinations though somewhat improbable make pleasant enough reading; mystery not masterly but retains logic at least, with nice heroine."
Sat R of Lit 34:40 Mr 3 '51 50w

HITCHENS, MRS DOLORES (BIRK). Stairway to an empty room. 190p $2.50 Doubleday 51-11334

Detective story.

Kirkus 19:217 Ap 15 '51 90w

"Miss Hitchens spins out her whole story on a series of improbable motivations, but the story itself is lively and dramatic."
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 Ag 19 '51 140w

"You may rarely be surprised by any of the twists the plot takes; but you may be reminded a little of Wilkie Collins in the ingenious evil of villain and henchmen, a little of early Mabel Seeley in the drab everyday conviction of peril and terror." Anthony Boucher
N Y Times p13 Jl 29 '51 130w

"This story about a little girl who happens to know much too much about a murder and is, in consequence, a leading candidate for extinction herself contains a more than satisfactory amount of violence and ingenuity."
New Yorker 27:92 Je 23 '51 120w

"High-grade characterization and suspense in this one." L. G. Offord
+ San Francisco Chronicle p20 Je 24 '51 80w

"Slick as celluloid—but a fine stubborn child character and wonderful alcoholic cat. Expertly tautened action and style." Kathleen Sproul
+ — Sat R of Lit 34:45 Jl 21 '51 50w

HITREC, JOSEPH GEORGE. Angel of gaiety. 246p $3 Harper
51-9286

The tragic story of a Eurasian widow, living in Bombay, torn between her two conflicting heritages. The chief characters besides Stella, are three English business men, one of whom becomes almost hopelessly entangled with Stella.

"A mannered, weary, and finally pointless book." Riley Hughes
— Cath World 173:235 Je '51 240w

"Mr. Hitrec's style is often brilliant, but it suffers from a few eccentricities, such as the repetitious symbolizing of individualities as 'ponds.' The dialog is admirable, swift paced, and highly personalized." Warren Beck
+ — Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 Mr 4 '51 400w

"An unlovely portrait of an abnormal pattern of living."
Kirkus 18:680 N 15 '50 160w

Reviewed by Mary Ross
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 F 4 '51 500w

"Mr. Hitrec sends one flying to the dictionary for unusual words. At times his style is difficult and distracting, his flights of fancy too flamboyant (or too burdened with complex imagery) for the novel-reader to follow without fatigue. But India as the sahibs lived it takes on a compelling reality in these pages. . . Here is a gifted writer of essential integrity —and one whom it is well worth making an effort to understand." Nancie Matthews
+ — N Y Times p5 F 4 '51 550w

New Yorker 26:93 F 3 '51 70w

"An ambitious and successful piece of work. . . Take it for what it is . . . and you will find the story both touching and convincing. And, as in the earlier novel [Son of the Moon, Book Review Digest 1948] you will have to admire the author's exceptional ability to give his readers the atmosphere, the very sound and feel, of the India he wants to portray." J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p18 F 12 '51 900w

"Mr. Hitrec has composed a novel of considerably greater importance than his previous 'Son of the Moon.' If he has failed to be completely convincing he has demonstrated unexpected resources of power, and there are long stretches where the thing described is the thing seen." Robert Payne
+ — Sat R of Lit 34:14 Mr 10 '51 800w

Springf'd Republican p5D Mr 25 '51 120w

HITTE, KATHRYN. Lost and found; pictures by Priscilla Pointer. unp $1 Abingdon-Cokesbury 51-12149

"How a lost kitten, a puppy and a boy find their respective mothers is the theme of this story." N Y Times

HITTE, KATHRYN—Continued

"It is a warm, comforting, safe little book." M. W.

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 N 11 '51 70w

Kirkus 19:431 Ag 15 '51 110w

"This book for preschool children and those just learning to read, though much more instructive than entertaining, will probably appeal to both children and adults because of its simple, rhythmic text and its illustrations by Priscilla Pointer." Helen Wong

+ Library J 76:1572 O 1 '51 70w

"It is well told in direct language; the illustrations are clear, accurate and their meaning will be quickly recognized by small children." Lois Palmer

+ N Y Times p42 N 4 '51 130w

HITTI, PHILIP KHURI. History of Syria, including Lebanon and Palestine. 750p il maps $10 Macmillan

956.9 Syria—History [51-10100]

"Palestine and Lebanon are included in this account of historic Syria from the day the Neanderthal man left his bones there. More than half the text deals with ancient and Greco-Roman times. The compression of eight years of annals to the page is achieved by judicious selection of facts. . . The author [is] a professor of Semitic literature at Princeton university." Chicago Sunday Tribune

Reviewed by L. T. Heron
Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 Ap 1 '51 70w

Reviewed by J. G. Harrison
Christian Science Monitor p7 Jl 26 '51 600w

Reviewed by N. D. Palmer
Current Hist 21:34 Jl '51 300w

"It contains excellent illustrations. Highly recommended." R. P. Breaden

+ Library J 76:775 My 1 '51 150w

"A valuable feature of his book is its interest in the social and intellectual life of the people in the various periods. While some periods are rather lightly treated—a single page suffices for Herod and his father—the book is to be warmly commended to the reader who would have a good general view of the story of this part of the world, which is likely still to play an important part in its history." H. H. R.

+ Manchester Guardian p3 F 6 '51 180w

"The author does not pretend that his work is even largely the result of original research. He is most intimately conversant with the rise and decline of Arab fortunes, from the seventh to the fifteenth century. In dealing with the Arab era Hitti displays a masterful command of the source materials. . . As for the rest of the book, the author is dependent on the research of others." J. C. Hurewitz

+ Nation 173:194 S 8 '51 750w

"A work of scholarship of which the author should be as proud as he is of his native land." S. C. Chew

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p3 Je 3 '51 '51 1250w

"Although he is primarily a scholar whose contributions have been chiefly for specialists, Mr. Hitti has in this book accomplished his aim of writing a readable, non-technical history for the general reader. At the same time, 'History of Syria' stands as a worthy successor to his great work, 'History of the Arabs.'" Morroe Berger

+ N Y Times p19 Jl 1 '51 480w

"Professor Hitti, who now teaches at Princeton, is not only a thorough master of his subject but he also possesses the happy ability to convey his great wealth of knowledge in highly readable, comprehensive and scholarly form. Not only is this the first work which has attempted to cover the immense area handled so masterfully here but it is likely to stand as the classic history of this fascinating area where history began." C. W. W.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p23 Je 10 '51 370w

"No bare summary can do justice to the interest of this fine book, which is both stimulating and exciting. It is written for the general reader, based on primary sources and checked against the results of recent archaeological investigations and modern critical scholarship. It is well-documented, but unencumbered by any obtrusive mass of bibliographical detail." Philip Magnus

+ Spec 185:318 Mr 9 '51 650w

"Professor Hitti has not attempted to write history as historians know it: indeed he has undertaken a task which no historian would attempt. It is only fair to add that he seems well aware of this, and that he is not an academic historian but a distinguished scholar in the field of Semitic literature. . . The passages on cultural matters are the most readable—but the book is so arranged that they must be looked for. The historical chapters are not easy to follow without a good deal of background knowledge. . . There are many illustrations and a full index but the merits of the book as a work of reference would have been increased if it had been provided with the bibliography which its author is so well equipped to prepare."

Times [London] Lit Sup p182 Mr 23 '51 750w

U S Quarterly Bk R 7:271 S '51 260w

HLASTA, STANLEY C. Printing types and how to use them. 304p $7.50 (Carnegie press publication) for sale by Rutgers univ. press

655.24 Type and type founding 50-8940

"It is no exaggeration to say that printing types are the least understood of all the common objects that we use in daily life. . . Here is a reference book that points the way to remedying the situation. The elements of type are discussed in a short introduction, then the remainder of the book consists of samples and discussions of the type faces which are currently in use. For each type there is a sample page showing the entire alphabet and numerals, a description of the distinguishing characteristics, a short historical account and a helpful discussion of uses. Advertising and display faces are included as well as book and magazine faces. The author is professor of graphic arts at the Carnegie Institute of Technology." Library J

Booklist 47:111 N 15 '50

Reviewed by R. R. Hawkins
Library J 75:2010 N 15 '50 150w

Reviewed by Karl Kup
Library J 76:965 Je 1 '51 140w

"All sorts of people will find this a book they need, but especially fine printers, advertising agencies and layout designers, art and printing students, publishers—in fact anyone who works directly or indirectly with type. The volume is handsomely illustrated and there are examples of each type face mentioned." J. H. Jackson

+ San Francisco Chronicle p35 D 10 '50 170w

HOARE, E. GODFREY. Ascending line. 125p $2 Farrar, Straus

261 Christianity 50-10074

The author, who considered himself neither a theologian nor scholar, said in his preface: "This little book is the result, and it is written, not as a handbook to Christianity with the object of presenting the 'right' view, for no one can lay down the law about God, but in the hope that it may lead other ordinary laymen like myself to face the same problem and find their own answers. For the question, as I see it, is intensely personal: What is that which I myself believe so deeply that it affects every thought, every action of my daily life?"

"Place among devotional literature. Protestant, but appropriate for people of all faiths."

+ Kirkus 18:697 D 1 '50 160w

Reviewed by Anne Whitmore
Library J 75:1823 O 15 '50 140w

Reviewed by O. J. Aldrich
Springf'd Republican p8B Ja 7 '51 400w

HOBART, MRS ALICE TISDALE (NOURSE). Serpent-wreathed staff. 403p $3.50 Bobbs 51-13794

"Alan Towne, returned from a tour of duty as an Army surgeon in China and India, finds himself unable to carry on as formerly in partnership with his older brother Sam, also a surgeon and eminent in their native Midwestern city. Setting out on his own in group practice in an underprivileged section, Alan begins a crusade which has its effect on all whom it touches: his brother, his wife, doctors both for and against, patients grateful and otherwise." N Y Times

Booklist 48:22; 101 S 15 '51; N 15 '51
Bookmark 11:84 Ja '52 40w

"This is a thoughtful novel, characterized by high seriousness of purpose. It deals very effectively with modern medical problems that need airing and should start many discussions that may in turn develop greater awareness and understanding on the part of both medical and lay reader. It seemed to this reader, however, that the novel would have been more effective artistically if so many problems had not been raised." Mildred Walker
Chicago Sunday Tribune p15 N 18 '51 600w

"'The Serpent-Wreathed Staff' gives for American doctors and American social thinking interpretation and understanding. In addition, it is a story of families and individuals that will stir many readers who have no particular interest in the more general aspects of the author's theme." Mary Ross
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 N 4 '51 800w

"It would be pleasant to endorse the publishers' claim that this is Mrs. Hobart's best novel. Not to do so out of simple nostalgia for the enchantment of exotic backgrounds that made her other books so memorable would be obviously unfair. . . Could it be that 'The Serpent-Wreathed Staff' was written from the head rather than the heart? Is that why its hero, dedicated to the very highest human ideal, is too aloofly impersonal to quicken our pulse—and why his Midwestern city seems always more remote than the farthest Manchurian outpost." Frances Gaither
N Y Times p37 N 4 '51 410w

"Her writing is serene, industrious, and commonplace."
New Yorker 27:161 N 10 '51 110w

Reviewed by Jane Voiles
San Francisco Chronicle p11 D 9 '51 500w

Reviewed by Josephine Lawrence
Sat R of Lit 34:43 D 1 '51 600w

HOBART, JOHN HENRY. Quaker by convincement. 227p $3 McKay

B or 92 Friends, Society of 51-14163

"The spiritual autobiography of a 'birthright' English Quaker who settled in Canada during the 1920's. He was exceptionally fortunate in the circumstances of his life, knowing a happy childhood and youth, a contentment and congeniality in his marriage and many good friends." Library J

Booklist 48:114 D 1 '51
Bookmark 11:57 D '51 30w

Reviewed by A. C. Ames
Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 N 25 '51 230w

"His quest for spiritual satisfaction should be helpful to other men and women of quiet lives who are not satisfied with formal religious connections." A. R. Eaton
+ Library J 76:1806 N 1 '51 80w

HOBSON, MRS LAURA KEANE (ZAMETKIN). The celebrity. 308p $3.50 Simon & Schuster 51-12714

In a moment of boredom and indecision the board of judges of a book club compromise on the novel of a good but practically unknown writer, Gregory Johns. The story tells how the sudden fame of Gregory Johns affects the lives of a score of people, and particularly how, building on his brother's success, Thornton Johns becomes a "celebrity."

Booklist 48:65 O 15 '51

Reviewed by Riley Hughes
Cath World 174:233 D '51 250w

"It's an amusing story of the ease with which the lives of many people can be corrupted by a twist of circumstance. The characterization is superficial [Gregory is so much the helpless, dedicated writer that we hardly believe in him] and after the first few chapters we know exactly the method of the balance of the book—we know that each time a situation arises out of which Thornton can shake a fee he will do so." Paul Engle
Chicago Sunday Tribune p2 O 28 '51 550w

Kirkus 19:496 S 1 '51 230w

"While this novel is not notable for its characterization, outstanding writing, or exposing of a social evil, as in Gentlemen's Agreement, it does hold the readers interest. Will no doubt be a best seller and a good duplicate pay collection item." C. J. Roth
Library J 76:1563 O 1 '51 80w

"Has the fascination of those picture-stories of the creative man that make such good barbershop reading. Yet one's ultimate impression, as with the picture magazines, is one of utter irrelevance to the true meaning of the problems discussed."
Nation 173:360 O 27 '51 200w

Reviewed by F. H. Bullock
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 O 21 '51 600w

"The story is told with a meticulous calm, a careful understatement which makes it possible for the book to tread close to caricature without losing touch with reality. Mrs. Hobson has not misplaced the ability—so admirably revealed in 'Gentleman's Agreement'—to share with the reader her rage at human idiocy without permitting him to take his eye or his mind from a vitally exciting story." D. M. Mankiewicz
+ N Y Times p4 O 21 '51 550w

"The actual hero of the book is success, its symptoms and its action. The two men under trial are real and thoughtfully drawn, but so scrupulously ordinary that they are not interesting to read about, and since each one has a completely suitable wife; there are no irrevocable emotional disagreements to snarl the quite neat plot."
+ — New Yorker 27:148 O 20 '51 80w

"'The Celebrity' is obviously satirical as well as humorous. Fame in the modern world, the author believes, is simply having people—from waiters to clerks in stores—know your name; for that accolade they will surrender their dignity and their honor, even if their own names are known only in relation to someone. So while Miss Hobson's novel is neither hortatory nor monitory, it delivers a brightly packaged lesson on the decay of manners and honesty in the modern world." Harrison Smith
+ Sat R of Lit 34:20 O 20 '51 750w

HOBSON, RICHMOND PEARSON. Grass beyond the mountains; discovering the last great cattle frontier on the North American continent. 256p $3.75 Lippincott

917.11 Frontier and pioneer life—British Columbia 51-11192

Describes the experiences of the author and two companions in their search for grasslands in an unexplored region of British Columbia. They went north in 1934 and in 1938 succeeded in driving in a test herd of cattle.

Booklist 48:63 O 15 '51

"This is an amazing and dramatic chronicle of exploration, deftly told with humor, human interest, and punch. The author seems as much at home with a typewriter as he is on a bucking cayuse." Al Chase
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 O 21 '51 500w

HOBSON, R. P.—Continued

"The whole book, while full of human difficulties, has an air of sunrise and fresh beginnings. It should compete for the attention of even the smallest library." T. M. Longstreth

+ Christian Science Monitor p11 O 25 '51 550w

Cleveland Open Shelf p26 N '51

"Should attract a Western audience of all ages."

+ Kirkus 19:377 Jl 15 '51 120w

"Remarkable, true story. . . The most important role in the story is played by the horse, and the author throughout the book pays glowing tribute to its indispensable role in life of the frontier. Highly recommended." L. R. Etzkorn

+ Library J 76:1700 O 15 '51 100w

"It is a story of high-adventure, of dogged pioneering and bitter hardship. It took Richmond thirteen years before he was able to found a cattle ranch of his own. It is a fascinating book." Struthers Burt

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 O 28 '51 350w

Reviewed by R. L. Neuberger

N Y Times p14 O 21 '51 250w

"For an interesting, humorous account of a frontier opened only a dozen years ago, this book is excellent. It is a worthwhile contribution to Canadiana." R. H. D.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p33 N 4 '51 420w

Springf'd Republican p12A Ja 6 '52 200w

HOCKING, ANNE (MRS M. N. A. MESSER). Killing kin. 186p $2.50 Doubleday

51-4766

Detective story.

Kirkus 19:217 Ap 15 '51 60w

"Miss Hocking creates a reasonable and intelligent group of characters, but the plot in which they are involved is obvious and disappointingly simple."

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p9 Jl 22 '51 100w

"Will either surprise or displease devotees of the old-line straight detective story. The solution, to be sure, is most improperly based on guesswork and withheld evidence; and there's a flaw in the ending unless British laws of inheritance differ unbelievably from ours. Still, Austen's agreeable personality and the unusual Spanish setting make this a pleasant enough conventional story." Anthony Boucher

N Y Times p19 Jl 22 '51 90w

Review by L. G. Offord

San Francisco Chronicle p23 Jl 1 '51 70w

"Readable but slightly ho-hum." Kathleen Sproul

Sat R of Lit 34:45 Jl 21 '51 40w

HODGSON, LEONARD. Christian faith and practice; seven lectures. 116p $2.25 Scribner

230 Christianity 51-12463

A series of seven lectures which the author, as Professor of moral and pastoral theology, delivered each year after 1938 at the University of Oxford. In these lectures he "attempted to give a synoptic view of what Christianity is."

"There is much that stimulates and there is much sound thinking in this friendly and earnest book." L. H. Hough

+ Crozer Q 29:89 Ja '52 300w

"I confess to having been a little disappointed. I think he handicapped himself by deciding that the lectures should be merely descriptive and not either 'apologetic or hortatory.'. . But the book is clear and easy to read."

+ — Manchester Guardian p3 Ap 9 '51 130w

"The lectures were designed to meet a need felt among students; but the need is not confined to them. There is to-day a widespread and abysmal ignorance of what the Christian religion is, an ignorance which this book will do much to dispel, if people will only read it."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p11 Ap 27 '51 500w

HODGSON, LEONARD. Doctrine of the atonement. 159p $2.50 Scribner

232.3 Atonement 51-6326

A series of lectures delivered under the Hale foundation at the Seabury-Western Theological Seminary of Evanston, Illinois, in 1950. Contents: The Old Testament preparation; The wider background; Punishment and forgiveness; "God was in Christ"; Christ in His Church; Creation and redemption; The doctrine of the atonement. Index.

Reviewed by R. C. Miller

+ Churchman 165:17 O 15 '51 250w

"It is a learned and for the most part carefully reasoned treatise, worthy of careful study. And at heart it is less traditional and conservative in its standpoint than it may seem to be on first reading." A. C. Knudson

+ Crozer Q 29:84 Ja '52 450w

"This is a scholarly book, which will be of interest primarily to Protestant theologians."

+ Kirkus 19:564 S 15 '51 100w

Manchester Guardian p3 Jl 30 '51 60w

"In The Doctrine of the Atonement the Regius Professor of Divinity at Oxford has given definitive expression to his thought on a theme which has been one of his leading interests throughout his theological career. As one would expect, his discussion shows a remarkable penetration and balance."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p440 Jl 13 '51 550w

HOFFER, ERIC. True believer; thoughts on the nature of mass movements. 176p $2.50 Harper

301.1582 Social psychology. Association and associations. Fanaticism 51-1405

"This book concerns itself chiefly with the active, revivalist phase of mass movements. This phase is dominated by the true believer—the man of fanatical faith who is ready to sacrifice his life for a holy cause—and an attempt is made to trace his genesis and outline his nature." Pref

"Those who look to theory to stimulate research will like the book, as will those who look for a deeper understanding of the mass enthusiasms which precede historical change." H. E. Krugman

+ Am J Soc 57:297 N '51 180w

"Eric Hoffer is the son of a German immigrant. He has been a gold miner, migratory field worker, and longshoreman. He is not a scholar in the common sense. But he is a student of extraordinary perception and insight. The range of his reading and research is vast, amazing. He has written one of the most provocative books of our immediate day." Neil Martin

+ Christian Science Monitor p11 Ap 26 '51 1000w

Kirkus 19:23 Ja 1 '51 150w

Reviewed by J. R. Newman

New Repub 125:22 D 10 '51 1500w

"Here is a book in which the true title is hidden in the subtitle. What Mr. Hoffer has done, however, is much more systematic than his modest term, 'thoughts,' suggests. He has outlined a remarkably clear and suggestive theory about the kind of social change he sums up as 'mass movements,' supplied concrete illustrative materials drawn from a wide historical range, and put them together in a brief, readable, and provocative book." Crane Brinton

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p13 My 27 '51 600w

"The writing itself is a marvel. Line after line is quotable. . . The face on the dust-jacket is strong, hard, and simple, and smiles a quizzical smile which, it can be readily imagined, could easily fade into stoniness. This splendid, smiling face—an American face, one likes to think—is the only answer the book offers to the powers of frustration. It is no guarantee that reason will triumph over unreason; but it suggests that reason will take an awful thrashing before crying quits." E. B. Garside

+ N Y Times p10 Mr 18 '51 400w

"In a succinct statement on the matter of taste, Francis Hackett once remarked that he was always partial to short books on inescapable themes. Eric Hoffer's 'The True Believer' is one of these. It runs to only a hundred and seventy-six pages, reference notes and all, and its theme is political fanaticism, with which it deals severely and brilliantly. It owes its admirable compactness to the fact that Hoffer, a practicing longshoreman now resident in San Francisco, is not a professional social thinker and therefore has no need to comply with the guild rule that makes it unethical to generalize. . . It owes its distinction as a piece of writing to the fact that Hoffer is a born generalizer, with a mind that inclines to the wry epigram and the icy aphorism as naturally as did that of the Duc de La Rochefoucauld."

+ New Yorker 27:111 Ap 7 '51 1500w

San Francisco Chronicle p14 Mr 11 '51 290w

U S Quarterly Bk R 7:188 Je '51 260w

HOFFMAN, FREDERICK JOHN. Modern novel in America, 1900-1950. (Twentieth-century literature in America) 216p $3 Regnery

813.09 American fiction—History and criticism 51-13723

In this study the author examines two trends in American twentieth century fiction, the works of the followers of Henry James whose main interest is in style and technique, and on the other hand, the works of the naturalists, Howells, Dreiser, etc.

Reviewed by Milton Crane

Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 N 4 '51 150w

"A sane, stimulating appraisal of trends in the American novel since the turn of the century with a brief, incisive estimate of major figures on the literary scene."

+ Kirkus 19:384 Jl 15 '51 160w

Reviewed by Dudley Fitts

N Y Times p28 N 25 '51 300w

HOFFMAN, GLORIA. Home at last; a story of children in Israel today; il. with photographs by [the author]. [48p] $2.50 McKay

915.69 Children in Palestine 51-13724

Photographs and brief text follow the story of two orphan boys from France and Germany who go to live in Israel.

"It is the photographs of the settlement itself and the children from all over the world who work and live happily there that make this book a real contribution to other children's knowledge of Youth Aliyah." J. D. Lindquist and S. M. Andrews

+ Horn Bk 27:338 S '51 90w

"Of particular interest to junior high civics and current events classes and to those who wish to know more about the work of the Youth Aliyah."

Kirkus 19:635 N 1 '51 160w

"Excellent photographs." Alice Fedder

+ Library J 76:1644 O 15 '51 40w

"Recommended." M. E. Martignoni

+ Library J 76:2019 D 1 '51 50w

"Boys and girls whose families or schools are following developments in Palestine will probably be first to appreciate this collection. It will also serve to inform children who know little about this recent addition to the family of nations." C. E. Zagat

+ N Y Times p39 N 11 '51 90w

HOFFMAN, M. DAVID, ed. Readings for the atomic age. 424p il $2.80 Globe bk.

541.2 Atomic energy

"A collection of articles by outstanding newspapermen, radio commentators, educators, and scientists treats the atomic bomb in four ways: the emotional impact, the historical development, the fundamental scientific facts, a look into the future." Booklist

Booklist 47:159 D 15 '50

School & Society 73:142 Mr 3 '51 20w

Social Studies 42:48 Ja '51 20w

"The book, thoughtfully planned, should appeal, because of its modernity, to the maturer high school student who must see, even in this limited anthology, how the marvelous cooperation of scientists in the construction of the atom bomb, is affecting the literary and social thinking of this and of future ages." Sidney Farbish

+ Social Studies 42:190 Ap '51 230w

HOFFMAN, PAUL GRAY. Peace can be won. 188p $2.50; pa $1 Doubleday

327.73 U.S.—Foreign relations. World politics. Peace 51-10520

"The former director of the Economic Cooperation Administration charts a program of immediate action with long-term implications by which the U.S. can assume leadership in combating Russia's designs against the rest of the world. It is a program of military preparedness, and economic, political and psychological action. The author states his case with simple forcefulness and cites his experiences with ECA in stressing the need for economic aid and a good information service to propagandize for democracy." (Booklist) Index.

Reviewed by C. J. Rolo

Atlantic 187:85 Je '51 650w

Booklist 47:265; 308 Ap 1 '51; My 1 '51

Bookmark 10:181 My '51 20w

"The book is long on oratorical purple patches, reminiscent of after-dinner speaking. But it is rather short both on clear explanation of how the United States got into its present plight and how, concretely, it should get out of it. And the author does not seem altogether conscious of the contradiction between the American ideal of individual opportunity, which he indorses, and the various new government agencies which would be needed to implement his program." W. H. Chamberlin

Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 Ap 22 '51 550w

"Level-headed and well balanced are the words that first come to mind as descriptive of Mr. Hoffman's survey of the present state of the world and the part that America should and can play in saving the situation for all concerned." W. E. Garrison

+ Christian Century 68:613 My 16 '51 1000w

"Mr. Hoffman acknowledges that the book was written with extensive assistance of his ECA associates, and to this reviewer its impact is weakened by this fact. Many passages sound almost as pat as advertising copy. By contrast, where Mr. Hoffman wants to make a special point his message comes through the printed page with force and inspiration. The result is more a compilation of speeches, cleverly woven together, than the statement Mr. Hoffman might have given us had he been able to really write his book from beginning to end." Roland Sawyer

+ — Christian Science Monitor p9 Ap 21 '51 800w

Reviewed by Frances Witherspoon

Churchman 165:17 S '51 290w

Current Hist 21:168 S '51 80w

Foreign Affairs 29:664 Jl '51 90w

Kirkus 19:171 Mr 15 '51 160w

"Waging the peace is Paul Hoffman's phrase for the foreign policy which he believes the United States should follow, and he makes a very persuasive case for it. . . There is nothing startlingly new in Mr. Hoffman's presentation, but the fact that it comes from a hard-headed business man who was, by his own statement, brought up an isolationist and is still a Republican, may make some impression on the people who have been calling President Truman's Point Four program a world-wide WPA." C. E. Noyes

HOFFMAN, P. G.—Continued
+ Nation 172:379 Ap 21 '51 600w

Reviewed by Frederick Kuh
New Repub 124:18 My 21 '51 650w

"Paul G. Hoffman is an American of considerable parts. We who know him have only respect and admiration for his personal qualities and his standards for the public service. He is a simple, uncomplicated man who carries no false front of pomp or pretense. He is sincere, intelligent, and honest. Those adjectives that describe the man also describe this book." W. O. Douglas
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 Ap 22 '51 1600w

"Mr. Hoffman's little book is a political primer for mass education and an appeal for positive approach. In this it resembles Wendell Willkie's 'One World,' but Mr. Hoffman writes from practical experience, as Mr. Willkie did not. It is good that American statesmen and business men can still dream. It is still better that they plan according to their dreams." A. A. Berle
+ N Y Times p1 Ap 22 '51 2450w

"Mr. Hoffman presents no new information in Peace Can Be Won and students may question some of the generalizations, but he writes with a conviction that commands attention." G. T. Matthews
Pol Sci Q 66:470 S '51 650w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson
San Francisco Chronicle p20 Ap 19 '51 700w

"This book is an important contribution to our search for an enduring peace grounded on justice and human freedom. At the same time, facing the possibility that in spite of all our efforts peace may elude us, it lays the basis for a comprehensive strategy of victory. In 'Peace Can Be Won' Mr. Hoffman presents a tract for the times which should be widely read." Frank Altschul
+ Sat R of Lit 34:19 Ap 21 '51 1200w

Reviewed by Wilson Harris
Spec 185:691 My 25 '51 800w

Springf'd Republican p26A My 6 '51 500w

Reviewed by B. A. Javits
Survey 87:364 Ag '51 500w

Times [London] Lit Sup p430 Jl 13 '51 280w

U S Quarterly Bk R 7:287 S '51 210w

HOFFMANN, ERNST THEODOR AMADEUS. Tales from Hoffmann; tr. by various hands ed. and with an introd. by J. M. Cohen; with il. by Gavarni. 314p $3.75 Coward-McCann

51-10383

"Every American opera lover knows Jacques Offenbach's 'The Tales of Hoffmann' but few have ever read any of the stories of the great German romantic upon which the opera is based. . . In addition to 'Rat Krespel' and 'Der Sandmann,' used in the opera, the volume contains two of Hoffmann's masterpieces—'The Golden Pot' and 'Mlle de Scudéry' and his haunting story, 'The Entail.' A brief but informative introduction acquaints the reader with the outline of Hoffmann's life and points at the deep influence his work exercised on such writers as Poe, Kafka, and Rilke and on such musicians as Schumann, Wagner, and Tchaikovsky." Christian Science Monitor

+ Christian Science Monitor p7 Jl 26 '51 180w

Reviewed by V. S. Pritchett
New Statesman & Nation 41:684 Je 16 '51 1000w

Reviewed by G. F. Whicher
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p13 Je 24 '51 40w

Reviewed by E. M. Wilkinson
+ Spec 185:350 Mr 16 '51 700w

HOFFMANN, MRS MARGARET. Miss B.'s first cookbook; 20 family-sized recipes for the youngest cook; phot. by Gerald Hunter. [46p] $1.75 Bobbs

641.5 Cookery—Juvenile literature 50-10805

Twenty recipes with detailed instructions and illustrations for each. For ages seven to ten.

Booklist 47:207 F 1 '51

Reviewed by A. L. Shea
Chicago Sunday Tribune p14 Mr 11 '51 100w

"Directions are easy to read and to follow under Mother's guidance. Best of all, these recipes are family size and very good eating, too." D. M. Blasco
+ Library J 75:2157 D 15 '50 60w

"The book is planned for 6-to-10-year-olds, but it is a very handy 6-year-old who can handle a pineapple skillet cake." E. L. B.
+ N Y Times p24 Ja 14 '51 100w

HOGAN, INEZ (MRS RANDOLPH BOWERS). Read to me about the littlest cowboy; written and il. by [the author]. 45p $1.50 Dutton

51-9926

"Black-and-white drawings on every page illustrate this large picture book that tells of the first six birthdays of the littlest cowboy, Corky. On his second birthday, when there were two candles on the birthday cake, Corky was given a cowboy shirt and scarf. On his third birthday he was given a pair of chaps, on his fourth a pair of cowboy boots, on his fifth a tiny colt that had arrived that very morning, and on his sixth the present was a make-belive gun." Sat R of Lit

Kirkus 19:183 Ap 1 '51 100w

"Although a well-nigh perfect story for little boys (and girls), it is marred by one false note: the horse's thoughts are expressed. Recommended, nevertheless, as sure-fire material. Should be bought prebound for libraries." M. A. Herr
+ — Library J 76:781 My 1 '51 70w

Reviewed by L. S. Bechtel
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 Ap 8 '51 200w

Sat R of Lit 34:48 Je 9 '51 100w

Wis Lib Bul 47:123 My '51

HOGARTH, MRS GRACE (ALLEN). Lucy's league; il. by Nora S. Unwin. 208p $2.50 Harcourt

51-9589

"This is the story of a little girl who lived in London after the second World War, a member of a happy family circle. An invitation from Granny Gay to all of them to spend the summer in America stirs Lucy's initiative and imagination. She starts her League with the purpose of saving pennies for the trip to America. . . The author lives in Hampstead, overlooking London, and has woven into the story many of her own experiences and observations, making it authentically English." Sat R of Lit

Booklist 47:241 Mr 1 '51

Reviewed by Polly Goodwin
Chicago Sunday Tribune p11 My 6 '51 140w

Cleveland Open Shelf p12 My '51

Reviewed by J. D. Lindquist and S. M. Andrews
+ Horn Bk 27:102 Mr '51 100w

Reviewed by D. M. Blasco
+ Library J 76:604 Ap 1 '51 80w

"It is a good home and school story, with a well handled moral about money." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 Ap 22 '51 190w

"A natural, intimate story of English home life today." Irene Smith
+ N Y Times p26 Mr 4 '51 170w

Reviewed by B. W. Shaffer
+ Sat R of Lit 34:48 Mr 17 '51 220w

HOGBEN, LANCELOT THOMAS, ed. First great inventions; prepared by Marie Neurath and J. A. Lauwerys. 36p il $1.50 Chanticleer

608 Inventions—Juvenile literature 50-11039

"Picking up where How the First Men Lived left off, this book starts with 'How the Wheel Traveled around the World' and goes on to discuss the recorded word, sources of power—discovery and utilization—and the most significant inventions of man; those which have opened up to him the most possibilities." Library J

Booklist 47:224 F 15 '51

Reviewed by J. D. Lindquist and S. M. Andrews

Horn Bk 27:105 Mr '51 60w

"This world history of inventions is a bit too tightly-packed for comprehension and retention. . . The flood of names, countries, and rapid shifting of times and places weakens the appeal of the simplification. But schools should find this useful."

Kirkus 18:676 N 15 '50 140w

"For all children's libraries." N. S. Chasteen

+ Library J 76:54 Ja 1 '51 90w

Reviewed by L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Ja 7 '51 230w

N Y Times p26 F 4 '51 70w

HOGBEN, LANCELOT THOMAS, ed. How the first men lived; prepared by Marie Neurath and J. A. Lauwerys. 36p il $1.50 Chanticleer

571 Man, Prehistoric—Juvenile literature 50-10870

A simple introduction to prehistoric man, for ages eight to eleven. Describes how man discovered fire, how he hunted, built shelters, cultivated the soil, and what tools and weapons he used.

Booklist 47:224 F 15 '51

Christian Science Monitor p11 Je 2 '51 100w

Reviewed by J. D. Lindquist and S. M. Andrews

+ Horn Bk 27:105 Mr '51 60w

Kirkus 18:641 O 15 '50 90w

"This book is excellent in every respect. . . For all children's libraries." N. S. Chasteen

+ Library J 76:54 Ja 1 '51 100w

"One of the most important aspects of the book is the sense it gives of man's gradual development, of how, in short, he approached civilization. This is emphasized by the illustrations, which are amusing and decorative as well as explanatory." E. L. B.

+ N Y Times p26 F 4 '51 150w

Wis Lib Bul 47:125 My '51

HOGEBOOM, AMY. Christopher Columbus and his brothers; il. by [the author]. 188p $2.50 Lothrop

B or 92 Columbus, Christopher—Juvenile literature 51-7269

A biography in story form which emphasizes the great bonds of love and cooperation which existed between Christopher Columbus and his brothers Diego and Bartholomew. Christopher's son Ferdinand also enters into the story.

Booklist 48:130 D 1 '51

Chicago Sunday Tribune p20 N 11 '51 190w

Kirkus 19:618 O 15 '51 160w

"A welcome 'step up' biography for the avid readers of the 'Childhood of Famous Americans Series.' It may also be given to the 11-13-year-olds who are less mature in reading ability." E. C. Alexander

+ Library J 76:1945 N 15 '51 80w

"An adult finds here perhaps too much imagined conversation and incident, yet reads on because of the many facts seldom before used in children's stories of him. Those of nine or ten will like it, and probably on to twelve." L. S. Bechtel

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p2 N 11 '51 130w

Wis Lib Bul 47:259 N '51

HOGEBOOM, AMY. Forest animals, and how to draw them. 39p il $1.50 Vanguard

743.6 Drawing. Animals, Habits and behavior of 51-9311

How-to-draw book for grades three to five. Presents photographs, line drawings, and a page of text on each of the following: faun, beaver, rabbit, fox, weasel, skunk, squirrel, opossum, and elk.

Booklist 47:207 F 1 '51

"Recommended." E. E. Beatty

+ Library J 76:54 Ja 1 '51 70w

Sat R of Lit 34:70 N 10 '51 60w

HOGEBOOM, AMY. Sea animals and how to draw them. 39p il $1.75 Vanguard

743.6 Drawing—Instruction. Marine fauna —Juvenile literature 51-6014

"This book in the author's how-to-draw series follows the usual arrangement of photographs, descriptions, and simple suggested outlines for drawing nine different sea animals." Library J

Booklist 48:15 S 1 '51

"The combination of information about the subject with sketching is useful, and the photographs are excellent. Unfortunately, the book does not meet the approval of teachers, because this method of learning to draw destroys creativity by providing detailed instruction that prevents the child's expressing his own ideas of how sea animals look." M. M. Gantt

Library J 76:1342 S 1 '51 80w

Sat R of Lit 34:70 N 10 '51 20w

HOGGART, RICHARD. Auden; an introductory essay. 256p $3.75 Yale univ. press

821 Auden, Wystan Hugh 51-13822

A critical study of the poetry and plays of W. H. Auden. "This essay is meant to be an introduction only, a running of the finger down certain aspects of Auden's verse, so that the general reader may turn to it more readily. When he does, he will find that this is a very partial account, that I have not understood some things, and have, no doubt, misinterpreted others." (Preface) Bibliography. Index.

"Mr. Hoggart's aim has been to define a pattern behind all the mutations of cleverness and display. He has an intimate grasp of his subject and he studies in detail the poems and plays of the thirties and the long poems written in America. . . Mr. Hoggart's approach is appreciative but alertly critical. He clarifies both his subject's work and the anxiety-torn world which is his constant concern." H. I'A. F.

+ Manchester Guardian p4 Ag 17 '51 250w

"Auden has said that art is a game. He has expanded this concept significantly in other areas of his thinking, but as a plain statement it is crude and a little dangerous. For one of the essential requirements of a game is that it shall be unproductive; whereas art is not art at all unless it makes something. Mr. Hoggart succeeds very well in showing that Auden's own successes are scarcely the result of a game." Hayden Carruth

Nation 173:550 D 22 '51 950w

"It is a clear, thoughtful, orderly exposition of the technique and progress of Auden's work; its appreciation is serious and its criticisms are severe but precise." V. S. Pritchett

+ New Statesman & Nation 42:130 Ag 4 '51 2200w

"Excellent study of Auden's poetry." Selden Rodman

+ N Y Times p4 D 30 '51 600w

HOGGART, RICHARD—Continued

San Francisco Chronicle p20 D 2 '51 120w

"Mr. Hoggart speaks as one of those to whom the Auden era of the thirties 'has the nostalgic appeal of something involved with our own development'—he is unable to get his work into critical perspective and thus give us an intelligible account of its meaning as a whole. Instead, he provides a non-critical exposition of Auden's progress from the Poems of 1930 to The Age of Anxiety of 1948, interspersing it piecemeal with particular critical observations, many of them acute and discerning, but unorganised into a view-point." D. S. Savage

Spec 187:303 S 7 '51 750w

"Mr. Hoggart has served [Auden] extremely well, and the impression left by his carefully argued, clearly written book is that it was well worth doing. . . If Mr. Hoggart does not arrest with any startling aperçus, nor attempt any graces of style, his comments and his manner are workmanlike, he never claims too much for his subject, and he is sensibly aware of the defects in Mr. Auden's writing."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p495 Ag 10 '51 850w

HOGNER, DOROTHY (CHILDS) (MRS NILS HOGNER). Odd pets; phot. by Lilo Hess. 166p $3 Crowell

636.9 Pets—Juvenile literature 51-12838

"This book tells how to care for living things that make their homes in nature—in ponds or rivers, in woods or fields, or in one's garden—but unexpectedly may come, or be brought, into the house. . . Each life history is given in both photographs and text, so that the young naturalist will understand exactly what care is needed in an artificial environment." (Pref) Partial contents: Bullfrog; Turtle; Praying mantis; Bat; Click beetle; Walking stick; Earthworm; Hamster; Alligator; Cages, aquariums, nets. Glossary. Index.

Booklist 48:108 N 15 '51

"It is a useful and entertaining book. The photographs are excellent." J. D. Lindquist and S. M. Andrews

+ Horn Bk 27:424 D '51 120w

+ Kirkus 19:580 O 1 '51 140w

"Wonderful fare for the nature-loving child. . . Text is probably planned for fifth and sixth grades, but it is a useful book for almost any age." V. K. Fitch

+ Library J 76:2013 D 1 '51 80w

"It is an unusually useful book both for the home and the school library, fostering the side of nature-study that most children like best, stimulating real observation that goes a step beyond the mere 'pet' attitude." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p14 O 21 '51 140w

Reviewed by E. L. Buell

+ N Y Times p11 D 23 '51 120w

HOGNER, DOROTHY (CHILDS) (MRS NILS HOGNER). Wild little Honker; pictures by Nils Hogner. [48p] $1.50 Oxford

51-9892

Picture story book about a little wild goose born on the shore of the Bronx river. The father and mother and other members of the little family were content to stay where food was plentiful, but when the next spring came the wild little honker left home and joined its distant relatives on their flight north.

Reviewed by Polly Goodwin

Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 Jl 29 '51 150w

"A pleasing story with authentic observations on the habits of the familiar birds."

+ Kirkus 19:151 Mr 15 '51 100w

Reviewed by Augusta Baker

Library J 76:712 Ap 15 '51 70w

"The tale is a good length to read aloud to five to sevens, and for beginning readers. The geese are beautifully drawn, in many positions." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p7 My 13 '51 160w

"The familiar automobiles rushing through the story and the repetitious honking of the geese make this latest of the Hogners' picture-books seem very real to children. Its final outcome may not please every child, but the book gives an exciting, authentic inside view of domestic wild life, which will send young readers out to the nearest pond to see for themselves." A. L. Seekamp

+ N Y Times p22 My 6 '51 140w

Sat R of Lit 34:46 My 12 '51 70w

HOGUE, WILBUR OWINGS. Bob Clifton, jungle traveler; il. by Kurt Wiese. 146p $2.50 Holt

50-9909

A sequel to Bob Clifton, Elephant Hunter (Book Review Digest 1949). In this tale Bob goes into the African jungles in search of his father, missing on an airplane trip.

"Bob, whose parents own a coffee plantation in the Belgian Congo, leads the kind of life most boys dream about. The background of jungle drums, coffee raising, witch doctors, and marauding lions is all that anyone could wish."

+ Atlantic 186:102 D '50 60w

Kirkus 18:611 O 1 '50 120w

"Author has lived in Africa and has an understanding attitude toward the natives. Continual reference to the earlier title, a skimpiness in writing, and an amateurish style prevent wholehearted recommendation." V. K. Fitch

+ — Library J 75:2084 D 1 '50 70w

Reviewed by L. S. Bechtel

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 F 11 '51 60w

"A good yarn, with excellent illustrations by Kurt Wiese." H. B. Lent

+ N Y Times p26 Ja 21 '51 140w

HOLBERG, MRS RUTH (LANGLAND). Catnip man; with pictures by Lisl Weil. 114p $2.50 Crowell

51-5491

A story of Gloucester, Massachusetts. The twins, Bob and Nancy, are friendly with the old Catnip Man whom nobody else likes. Determined to improve his lot in life, the children try out several ways with varying success and finally win for him the friendship and aid of their elders.

Booklist 48:70 O 15 '51

"This book breathes the spirit of love and friendship, and its fairy tale quality will make it no less a joy to read for seven to ten year olds. The illustrations on every page are gay and lively and add much to the story's value." Polly Goodwin

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p14 S 23 '51 80w

Reviewed by J. D. Lindquist and S. M. Andrews

+ Horn Bk 27:323 S '51 50w

Kirkus 19:482 S 1 '51 120w

"Along with all its fun, this book will carry its simple message of true neighborliness. The fact that the twins are morally right about it, as against some of the grown-ups, turns out amusingly, and probably could happen." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 S 30 '51 180w

Wis Lib Bul 47:259 N '51

HOLBERG, MRS RUTH (LANGLAND). Tansy for short; il. by John Moment. 208p $2.50 Doubleday

51-12839

Story of life in a Norwegian-American home in Wisconsin in the 1860's. The heroine is Christiana Randina Lie—Tansy for short. For ages eight to twelve.

Booklist 48:108 N 15 '51

"Tansy is a grand character, warm and funny and human, who will certainly become a favorite with all little girls lucky enough to make her acquaintance." P. G.

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 N 11 '51 180w

"An entertaining tale of this energetic young American, whose greatest wish was to win the most coveted freedom—to go to school with other children." E. C. Ince

+ Christian Science Monitor p11 O 4 '51 120w

Cleveland Open Shelf p22 N '51

Reviewed by J. D. Lindquist and S. M. Andrews

+ Horn Bk 27:328 S '51 50w

"Ten year old Tansy is bound to be one of the favorite fictional pals of the season, especially for high-spirited, good humored little girls who want something doing every minute."

+ Kirkus 19:391 Ag 1 '51 190w

"Recommended for ages 9-12." Virginia Russell

+ Library J 76:2013 D 1 '51 90w

"The psychology of a child who is 'different' is well done, and not overstressed. The excellent pictures give us very real people." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p18 N 18 '51 120w

"Captivating and warmly humorous story of Norwegian-American life. Many of the amusing and authentic details with which Mrs. Holberg and the illustrator, John Moment, have filled both text and pictures are drawn from the author's own family history." S. C. Gross

+ N Y Times p34 O 28 '51 170w

Wis Lib Bul 47:259 N '51

HOLBORN, HAJO. Political collapse of Europe. 207p $2.50 Knopf

940.5 Europe—Politics 51-10940

"In a penetrating survey, beginning with a sketch of historic Europe and the rise of Russia, the Townsend Professor of History at Yale attempts a 'historical interpretation rather than a historical narrative of events.' Political foundations of modern Europe and history since about 1800 are reviewed, Russia's special policy noted. Main thesis maintains breakdown of old European system following World War I, and failure of American policy to recognize changed situation due to lack of understanding of European historical forces and conditions. United States' vital interest in continued existence of free Europe is stressed." (Library J) Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by V. J. Puryear

Ann Am Acad 278:240 N '51 380w

Booklist 48:8 S 1 '51

Reviewed by Ernest Pisko

Christian Science Monitor p9 S 4 '51 750w

Foreign Affairs 30:152 O '51 40w

"This is a soundly reasoned and documented study."

+ Kirkus 19:288 Je 1 '51 190w

"An important and timely book. . . Highly recommended." Kurt Schwerin

+ Library J 76:1026 Je 15 '51 110w

"With so ambitious a program Professor Holborn's book can scarcely fail to fall into some of the traps to which this type of literature is peculiarly exposed. Scholars will inevitably find many of its pages tame and over-familiar. The general reader will complain that personalities and events make their appearances and departures without adequate explanation. Both will quarrel with the author's selection of those episodes that receive a fairly full treatment and those that are dismissed in a sentence. . . These criticisms, however, largely apply to the first third of the book. Beginning with the turn of the present century, Professor Holborn's writing gathers momentum and his major thesis appears in clearer outline." H. S. Hughes

+ — Nation 173:74 Jl 28 '51 1050w

Reviewed by Hans Kohn

New Repub 125:19 S 24 '51 340w

"The swan song of Europe has been sung so loudly in the last year or two that this new clear note may be lost in the wailing chorus. This would be regrettable. For Mr. Holborn wears his rue with a difference. He places the problem in line with a true historical perspective; analyzes the patient's weakness with a surgeon's objectivity, and does not preclude the possibility of a recovery." Geoffrey Bruun

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p3 Ag 5 '51 700w

"A vigorous book for the intelligent layman." Hans Kohn

+ N Y Times p12 Ag 26 '51 600w

"On the whole the section dealing with the inter-war period up to Hitler's seizure of power in Germany appears to be the relatively weakest part of the study. Yet the following unorthodox discussion of National Socialist policy, the Russo-German pact of August 1939 and the analysis of Allied war strategy make stimulating reading. As to the well-annotated bibliography, the inclusion of a larger number of titles in foreign languages would have been warranted according to the author's own principles of selection (p 195). Some of these and other points are not the customary 'minor ones' questioned in the evaluation of a valuable book. Still it is a valuable book which would amply deserve the publication of a second revised and enlarged edition." R. A. Kann

+ — Pol Sci Q 66:608 D '51 800w

"Mr. Holborn writes as succinctly as Walter Lippmann wrote in 'U.S. Foreign Policy.' As the holder of a Ph.D. from the University of Berlin, as former assistant professor of history at Heidelberg, and now as professor of history at Yale he also writes of the past with a scholar's authority and a journalist's assurance." Quincy Howe

+ Sat R of Lit 34:8 Jl 21 '51 950w

"This is an interpretative survey of modern and contemporary international relations, of which the leitmotif is the development and destruction of the European political 'system.' It is a book of the first importance, not merely for the reader of columns dealing with foreign affairs who wishes to increase his perspective, but especially for the serious historical scholar." Charles Seymour

+ Yale R n s 41:114 autumn '51 600w

HOLCOMBE, ARTHUR NORMAN. Our more perfect union; from eighteenth-century principles to twentieth-century practice. 460p $6; text ed $4.50 Harvard univ. press

342.73 U.S.—Constitutional history 50-9371

For descriptive note see Annual for 1950.

"The latest major work of Professor Holcombe . . . as a constitutional and historical essay, has most appropriately been awarded the Franklin D. Roosevelt Memorial Foundation Award for the best publication during 1950 in the field of government and human welfare." D. K. Price

+ Am Pol Sci R 45:209 Mr '51 1000w

Reviewed by C. E. Merriam

Ann Am Acad 276:139 Jl '51 600w

Foreign Affairs 30:159 O '51 20w

"Likely to prove a valuable guide to those who have both the general knowledge of American history and the patience to follow a closely-knit and scholarly argument." M. B.

+ Manchester Guardian p4 F 2 '51 270w

Reviewed by C. B. Swisher

Pol Sci Q 66:141 Mr '51 1150w

U S Quarterly Bkl 6:462 D '50 280w

HOLDING, MRS ELISABETH (SANXAY). Too many bottles. 208p $2.50 Simon & Schuster 51-10209

Detective story.

Kirkus 19:81 F 1 '51 70w

"Mrs. Holding writes as always with a literate charm, but her story this time is

HOLDING, E. S.—Continued
slimmer and more obvious than her others have been."
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p27 My 13 '51 110w

"Back in the early Thirties, before anybody had ever heard of 'psychological novels of suspense.' Elisabeth Sanxay Holding was writing them, and brilliantly. And she's still the Old Mistress who can give cards and spades to any of the Jeany-come-latelys in the field." A. B.
+ N Y Times p19 Je 3 '51 170w

"This time, Mrs. Holding, usually a model of clarity, is somewhat obscure as to both plot and characterization."
New Yorker 27:124 Ap 28 '51 80w

Reviewed by L. G. Offord
San Francisco Chronicle p26 Ap 29 '51 80w

HOLLAND, MAURICE, and SMITH, THOMAS M. Architects of aviation. 214p il $4 Duell
926.2913 Aeronautics—History. Aviators 51-10403

Brief biographical sketches of twelve men who pioneered in various aspects of aviation. They are: Hunsaker, Bane, Nelson, Bruner, Klemin, Stevens, Hoffman, Stout, McDonnell, Lawrance, Trippe, Martin. Index.

Booklist 48:48 O 1 '51

"The book turns up some highly original biographical material in the history of aviation." A. D. Hughes
+ Christian Science Monitor p9 Ag 22 '51 600w

Kirkus 19:255 My 15 '51 120w

"Veterans and students of aeronautica will find this book interesting and useful." H. L. Smith
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p23 N 18 '51 400w

"Written in a simple narrative style, the sketches should appeal to people who have been hanging around aviation since World War I or earlier and personally knew or know the subjects of the sketches. To the hundreds of thousands of young people who have learned to fly or have joined some branch of flying since the outbreak of World War II, they may seem a little quaint." Frederick Graham
N Y Times p37 D 9 '51 470w

HOLLAND, RAYMOND PRUNTY, 1884-. Scattergunning; a book on hunting the feathered game of North America; with decorations by William J. Schaldach. 378p $5 Knopf
799.24 Game and game birds. Hunting—North America 51-11061

"A well-stocked volume on the pursuit of all fowl from railbirds to wild turkey, customarily brought down by shotgun in this country. The author, one of our more experienced and articulate sportsmen, includes a lot of sound pointers on such corollary items as how to choose guns and dogs, how to hang game, rules of hunting decorum, and so on." New Yorker

Booklist 48:7 S 1 '51

Bookmark 11:81 Ja '52 40w

Reviewed by Bob Becker
Chicago Sunday Tribune p33 D 2 '51 40w

Kirkus 19:311 Je 15 '51 180w

"A top-notch book of permanent value. . . Highly recommended." R. W. Henderson
+ Library J 76:1340 S 1 '51 70w

+ New Yorker 27:118 S 8 '51 60w

"It should be added that Mr. Holland is a recognized authority on his subject. If you are shooting pheasants or crows, Holland will tell you how and spin a couple of dandy yarns in the bargain." J. E. P.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p24 O 28 '51 110w

HOLLAND, RAYMOND PRUNTY, 1910-. Physical nature of flight. 287p il $4 Norton
629.13 Flight. Aeronautics 51-2397

"The whole anatomy of the subject is carefully dissected and described. The meanings of such terms as 'shock,' 'drag,' and 'downwash' are explained in terms and analogies that anyone with the least aptitude for technology can understand. The book is addressed to laymen, or at least to readers who are not specialists in aeronautical engineering." (N Y New Tech Bks) Index.

Booklist 47:324 My 15 '51

"Every student who has had to read dull chapters on lift and drag and airflow as part of his ground training for a pilot's license will find this book surprisingly stimulating." H. L. Smith
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 S 9 '51 450w

"It is recommended for student pilot and for laymen who want to be able to talk intelligently about airplanes. The author is an aeronautical engineer."
+ N Y New Tech Bks 36:33 My '51

HOLLING, HOLLING CLANCY. Minn of the Mississippi; il. by [the author]. 85p $3 Houghton
Turtles—Legends and stories 51-6290

Minn of the Mississippi is a tough snapping turtle. The story of the Mississippi river is here told in text and pictures as Minn is carried from the Minnesota headwaters of the Mississippi to the Gulf of Mexico. The time required in Minn's life is twenty-five years but the story reaches back into history to make the tale complete.

Reviewed by M. F. Kieran
+ Atlantic 188:104 D '51 110w
Booklist 48:52 O 1 '51
Bookmark 11:35 N '51 10w

"Minn's story—the river's story are of equal fascination as the author weaves them together in this beautiful book. His dramatic and informative text, his glowing full color illustrations and his wonderfully detailed marginal drawings make this a book to be cherished by all lovers of Americana—no matter what their age." P. G.
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p11 N 11 '51 250w

"A fascinating panorama of the whole Mississippi Valley. . . Beautiful accurate marginal drawings as well as full-page pictures." E. C. Ince
+ Christian Science Monitor p11 O 4 '51 70w

+ Horn Bk 27:411 D '51 100w

"This new lovely picture book, bursting with legend, history, natural science, convincing personalities and even a few wise saws, has such a bountiful collection of loving detail and good story, that it is bound to keep the reader happy and busy for some time."
+ Kirkus 19:530 S 15 '51 230w

Reviewed by Averil Randall
Library J 76:1945 N 15 '51 100w

"Young and old will share the new book with equal delight in its variety of facts, its stories of 'the River of Dreams,' and the contrasting dramas on all the brilliant big color pages. Congratulations and thanks to Mr. Holling." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 N 11 '51 340w

"Here is a rare combination of science, geography, history and fiction. Full-page illustrations and marginal drawings of birds, maps, boats and prehistoric animals add to its interest." M. R. Brown
+ N Y Times p30 N 11 '51 130w

Reviewed by K. T. Kinkead
New Yorker 27:188 D 1 '51 50w

"A valuable and beautiful book to give as a gift to boys and girls of almost any age."
+ Sat R of Lit 34:70 N 10 '51 130w
Wis Lib Bul 47:219 S '51

HOLLOWAY, MARK. Heavens on earth: utopian communities in America. 1680-1880. 240p il $4.75 Library pubs, 8 W 40th st, N.Y. 18

335.973 Utopias [51-6394]

"In this survey, Mark Holloway dispels the air of cynical amusement usually attending discussions of utopian communities and considers, instead, the seriousness of these 'quixotic adventures.' . . Against an introductory background of Sparta, Plato, the Essenes, and the heretical sects of the Middle Ages, the author discusses such American phenomena as the Labadists, the Shakers, Rappites, Brook Farm, Oneida and Icaria." N Y Times

"Very competent and charming book." W. E. Garrison
+ Christian Century 68:1378 N 28 '51 600w

Reviewed by Norman MacKenzie
New Statesman & Nation 41:568 My 19 '51 600w

Reviewed by G. R. Stephenson
N Y Times p9 D 23 '51 140w

"An entertaining and in some ways a very instructive book."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p472 Jl 27 '51 1000w

HOLMAN, MARY V. How it feels to be a teacher. 207p $3.25 Teachers college

371.1 Teaching 50-11015

"For women about to enter the teaching profession, for college girls about to major in 'education,' for parents doubtful how to answer the questions of their children on the minutiae of a woman's life as a schoolteacher, this book provides a kaleidoscopic view of the tribulations and frustrations, of the rewards and satisfactions which life in this service offers. The author, Director of Guidance in the Public Schools of Orange, N.J., considers the teacher a woman, since 80 per cent of teachers in America are women." (N Y Times) Bibliography. No index.

Cleveland Open Shelf p11 My '51

"Miss Holman's volume deserves a place on the reference shelf of professional libraries." Ole Sand
+ El School J 51:410 Mr '51 650w

"The implications of this study are many, and all of them are serious. Those responsible for educational standards, recruiting and morale need look no farther for the facts—and a warning." Nancy Lenkeith
+ N Y Times p23 Ja 21 '51 370w

School & Society 72:366 D 2 '50 40w

"Fresh and stimulating book." B. D. Gestie
+ Survey 87:297 Je '51 400w

HOLMAN, NATHAN. On basketball [foreword by Ned Irish]. 323p il $3; pa $1 Crown

796.32 Basketball

"Instructions on playing basketball with close attention given to the basic fundamentals—passing, dribbling, footwork, shooting, defense. A section for the beginning coach presents a plan for organization of duties and gives advice on handling players. Similar to author's other books but up-to-date." Booklist

Booklist 47:216 F 15 '51

"Excellent for coach or players." R. W. Henderson
+ Library J 76:413 Mr 1 '51 50w

San Francisco Chronicle p14 Mr 11 '51 120w

HOLMES, JOHN ALBERT. Double root. 79p $2.50 Twayne

811 50-10834

"These are poems in the New England tradition, and there is a good deal in them about nature, though it is the subdued, inferential nature of the suburb and the summer resort. These are poems about the little dramas of animals, children, and college professors." Nation

Reviewed by G. D. McDonald
Library J 76:519 Mr 15 '51 80w

"The longest, a poem called The Modern Poet, which seems to be the author's most laborious theme, is almost poisonously bumptious in its gist and awkwardly sententious in its expression. Yet most of the poems are highly readable, perceptive, and concise. They are poems for people who like to read poetry better than prose, and whose taste springs from critical principles so well understood that a new poem need not be a challenge to the aesthetic conscience." Hayden Carruth
Nation 172:91 Ja 27 '51 700w

HOLMES, MALCOLM HAUGHTON. Conducting an amateur orchestra. 128p $2.50 Harvard univ. press

781.63 Orchestras. Conducting (music) 51-10271

"This book is intended as a guide for conductors and prospective conductors of amateur orchestras of every type: elementary school, high school, preparatory school, college, and community. Its objectives are threefold: (1) to suggest methods of dealing with the various problems connected with the establishment, maintenance, and development of a good amateur orchestra; (2) to discuss the major technical difficulties involved in training amateurs, and the means for surmounting them; (3) to outline ways of enlarging the amateur orchestra repertory by drawing on little-explored sources of material of the highest standards, ideally suited to the needs of the groups under discussion." Introd

Booklist 47:324 My 15 '51

"That 'chimerical animal of ill-defined potentialities,' that perspiring inspirer, has finally found his Boswell; every musician must read this book, every music lover should, and no conductor is 'perfect' enough not to enjoy it hugely and to learn something from it." K. G. Roy
+ Christian Science Monitor p9 D 22 '51 460w

Reviewed by C. K. Miller
+ Library J 76:518 Mr 15 '51 70w

"Dean Holmes has written an excellent handbook, from which not only conductors of amateur orchestras can obtain immeasurable benefit but also many conductors of semi-professional and professional orchestras." P. G. Gelrud
+ Music Lib Assn Notes 8:530 Je '51 280w

San Francisco Chronicle p20 Jl 15 '51 230w

HOLT, FELIX. Gabriel horn. 221p $3 Dutton 51-6671

A picaresque novel dealing with the westward trek of settlers and hunters during the early nineteenth century. The chief characters are Big Eli (who carries the Gabriel horn), Little Eli, his son, and the bound girl Hannah.

Booklist 48:159 Ja 1 '52

Kirkus 19:36 Jl 15 '51 180

"A nice period piece." R. W. Henderson
Library J 76:1221 Ag '51 80w

"Felix Holt tells Big Eli's story with warmth and humor and a good deal of narrative skill. Or rather, he has little Eli tell it, and this bothers me a bit. Ten-year-old Little Eli has plenty to do . . . without being burdened as the narrator, too. It seems to me that in this case nothing is gained by the device, which is at best a restrictive one, of having a child tell the story." Coleman Rosenberger
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 S 30 '51 450w

Reviewed by Charlotte Capers
N Y Times p47 N 18 '51 250w

HOLT, FELIX—Continued

"An enchanting story of two comrades who believed that love and freedom were the most important things in life a man could have. Their wonderful adventures on the Kentucky frontier are certain to delight you." J. M. Grant

+ Sat R of Lit 34:36 N 3 '51 290w

HOLT, STEPHEN. Whistling stallion; decorations by Pers Crowell. 211p $2.50 Longmans 51-9730

"The real hero of this story is not the splendid palomino stallion but Roy Bell, who when his father was badly injured and the ranch failed financially took over the responsibility and with the stallion's help held on to the ranch and made enough money to keep it 'a going concern.'" Sat R of Lit

Horn Bk 27:188 My '51 70w

"Good as a western, a horse story, and a story of perseverence." Ruth McEvoy

+ Library J 76:716 Ap 15 '51 70w

"The family life, and Roy's special feeling for the ranch put this routine plot a bit above the usual horse story for boys of eleven or twelve up." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 Ap 8 '51 120w

"It is a fine story of a boy's courage and initiative and the rough, difficult life of a Western cattle ranch."

+ Sat R of Lit 34:47 Je 9 '51 90w

HOMAN, MRS HELEN (WALKER). See Walker, H.

HOME, MICHAEL, pseud. See Bush, C.

HOME CRAFTSMAN MAGAZINE. How to operate your power tools. See Gunerman, M. J., ed.

HOOVER, CALVIN BRYCE, and RATCHFORD, BENJAMIN ULYSSES. Economic resources and policies of the South. 464p il $5.50 Macmillan

330.975 South—Economic conditions 51-2037

"A survey of southern economy based chiefly on available statistical data, prepared by two well qualified economists with experience in both the theoretical and practical aspects of the subject [under the] sponsorship of the National Planning Association. . . Material presented deals with the physical, human and financial resources; how the interrelationships of these in the south and the relationships with their counterparts in the north have effected and will continue to effect the further economic growth of this region." Library J

Am Pol Sci R 45:909 S '51 60w

"The compilation and analysis of data appear to be competent, and the intermittent discussions of policy are balanced." O. D. Duncan

+ Am Soc R 16:434 Je '51 70w

"It is recommended for those having special interest in the South, in regional studies more generally, or in economic policy." J. P. Watson

+ Ann Am Acad 277:242 S '51 700w

Booklist 47:303 My 1 '51

Current Hist 21:96 Ag '51 60w

Reviewed by D. K. Oko

+ Library J 76:873 My 15 '51 140w

Management R 40:720 N '51 80w

"The book covers a very broad area, and it is also a gold mine of data gathered from dozens of statistical series, reports, books, and periodicals. The book's weakness for some may be that it covers too much territory to answer all questions on the numerous policy problems to which answers are suggested. It presents a consistent point of view, however, and for its purpose that accomplishment should be adequate." G. F. Gant

+ Survey 87:440 O '51 800w

U S Quarterly Bk R 7:258 S '51 220w

"Professors Hoover and Ratchford have produced a monumental study. It will be a long time before the job needs to be done again." Anthony Netboy

+ Yale R n s 41:147 autumn '51 290w

HOOVER, HERBERT CLARK. Addresses upon the American road, 1948-1950. 221p $3.50 Stanford univ. press

973.918 U.S.—Politics and government. U.S.—Executive departments. U.S.—Foreign policy 51-9590

"The development of Mr. Hoover's thinking on world problems during 1950 can be studied here in a series of public statements." (N Y Herald Tribune Bk R) "The most memorable of the addresses in this volume is the radio broadcast from New York City last Dec. 20, which precipitated the great debate on foreign policy now raging in congress. This is destined to live in history." (Chicago Sunday Tribune)

Am Pol Sci R 45:596 Je '51 20w

Reviewed by Phillips Bradley

Ann Am Acad 276:141 Jl '51 310w

Booklist 47:246 Mr 15 '51

"In these days when most public figures are little more than mouthpieces of ghost writers, it is refreshing to find a statesman who thinks and writes on his own. If for no other reason, these 47 speeches—studied and extemporaneous—by Herbert Hoover, former President of the United States, deserve serious reading." Walter Trohan

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 Mr 4 '51 600w

Cleveland Open Shelf p5 Mr '51

Current Hist 21:35 Jl '51 50w

Foreign Affairs 30:160 O '51 20w

"While the current volume of 'Addresses Upon the American Road' includes many speeches and messages by Mr. Hoover on subjects far removed from foreign relations, it is those which trace the development of his thought on the 'Western Hemisphere Gibraltar of Western Civilization' which have the greatest pertinence to present problems." Harry Baehr

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p16 Mr 11 '51 600w

"In this collection Mr. Hoover reveals a firm approach to and evaluation of public questions. Many may feel that he is short-sighted and others may regard what he says as the expression of the limited viewpoint of the engineer who sees the structural problems but not the political benefits of an international bridge. Everyone must agree that he is markedly consistent." Arthur Krock

N Y Times p3 Ja 28 '51 1900w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson

San Francisco Chronicle p20 F 9 '51 550w

HOOVER, HERBERT CLARK. Memoirs; v 1, Years of adventure, 1874-1920. 496p il $4 Macmillan

B or 92 Statesmen—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc. (51-13301)

The first volume of ex-President Hoover's Memoirs sketches his life from his birth in a Quaker family in Iowa in 1874, to 1920, when he became secretary of commerce in the Harding cabinet. Index.

"This first section is the best part of the book. But it leaves a rich lode of adventurous experience sketchily exploited. Personal adventure and the way men live in remote, strange places interest Mr. Hoover less than the prosy business of recording the success of his enterprises. The tone of his Memoirs, especially after his mining career has closed, is pretty dry, stilted and without humor." C. J. Rolo

+ — Atlantic 188:94 D '51 550w

Booklist 48:84 N 1 '51

"It is fascinating reading, this story of the evolution of one of the finest administrators in the history of the world, with a dozen monarchs and parliaments doing his bidding in order to save their countries from starvation and anarchy." A. S. Henning

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 O 14 '51 950w

Reviewed by Henry Sowerby

Christian Science Monitor p15 N 8 '51 800w

Kirkus 19:343 Jl 1 '51 280w

"Much of it was written years ago, with a feeling of closeness to events and personalities described. If published then it would have become a tremendous best-seller. It deserves such success in 1951, but in any event it will remain a permanent contribution to an understanding of the modern world. Highly recommended." G. D. McDonald

+ Library J 76:1328 S 1 '51 120w

"One effect of a good autobiography is to cause youths to wish they might have experiences like the author's. Of this quality there is abundance in ex-President Hoover's memoirs—it is wholly experience, intimately told, with such occasional reflection as goes with the experience." Mark Sullivan

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 O 21 '51 1450w

"These illuminating memoirs recite a moving Alger-like story that would be interesting if written about an anonymous individual. The background is an almost forgotten epoch of individual enterprise, hard work and rich rewards." H. B. Hinton

+ N Y Times p3 O 14 '51 800w

New Yorker 27:157 D 15 '51 120w

Reviewed by W. H. Baker

San Francisco Chronicle p19 O 14 '51 1000w

"Opinions differ sharply as to Herbert Hoover. None, however, will deny that he is one of the key figures in twentieth-century American history. In consequence, his memoirs are bound to be important. It is pleasant to report that the first volume of these recollections is also fairly interesting. And written, apparently, by Hoover himself—a noteworthy point in these days of the ghost." F. H. Harrington

+ Sat R of Lit 34:16 D 15 '51 650w

Springf'd Republican p12C O 21 '51 600w

Time 58:126 O 22 '51 900w

Wis Lib Bul 47:252 N '51

HOOVER, HERBERT CLARK, tr. See Agricola, G. De re metallica

HOPKINS, CHARLES HOWARD. History of the Y.M.C.A. in North America. 818p il $5 Assn. press

267.39 Young men's Christian associations

"The project was undertaken to mark the centennial of the organization in America; it is a comprehensive review covering the movement in both Canada and the U.S. up to the formation of separate associations. Will be of interest chiefly to those concerned with the Y.M.C.A. or with American social and religious movements." Booklist

---

Booklist 48:4 S 1 '51

Christian Century 68:1132 O 3 '51 100w

Reviewed by Russell Lord

Christian Science Monitor p9 Ag 29 '51 700w

HOPKINS, CLARK (ROY LEE, pseud). Indians, fire engines and rabbit; il. by Phyllis Rowand. 125p $2 Little

51-7288

Stories about a little boy named Cy (who is the author's son) and his wanderings in the forests of early America. At Cy's request the stories are about Indians and fire engines, too.

Reviewed by J. D. Lindquist and S. M. Andrews

+ Horn Bk 27:325 S '51 90w

"Charming sleepy-time stories."

+ Kirkus 19:388 Ag 1 '51 150w

"More successfully than might be anticipated, this imaginative yarn tells how the animals and Indians felt when White Man (and his boy Cyrus) first came to live in America. Quaintly postured drawings by Phyllis Rowand show Cyrus bamgoozled by Fox, playing with Rabbit, and peace-piping with Mr. How, the Indian." S. C. Gross

+ N Y Times p39 N 11 '51 130w

+ San Francisco Chronicle p21 N 25 '51 80w

HOPKINS, EDWARD SCOTT, and ELDER, FRANCIS B. Practice of sanitation. 423p $7.50 Williams & Wilkins

614 Sanitation. Public health 51-1699

"A readable reference on all phases of environmental sanitation for use of doctors, nurses and students of sanitary engineering and public health was the aim of the authors in preparing this elementary text. It might also be a handy reference for the engineer not directly involved or fully informed on sanitary engineering matters. Viewing each subject chiefly from the public health aspect, the authors discuss in detail without technology: water supply, sewage and refuse disposal, water and air pollution, swimming pool and food sanitation, rodent control and the administration of sanitation programs." Eng N

"This volume should be valuable to a variety of groups. Although not a self-sufficient text, it should provide a basis and a framework of information for organized instruction or for informal reading and study. For the experienced worker in sanitation and public health it will be useful as a reference for rapid review, for specific items of information, and for the location of references to more detailed sources." R. J. Morton

+ Am J Pub Health 41:1010 Ag '51 440w

"Presented in readable form. It is hard to imagine any chemist or chemical engineer who would not find something of personal interest in this volume." William Stericker

+ Chem & Eng N 29:2953 Jl 16 '51 160w

+ Eng N 146:44 My 10 '51 90w

HOPKINS, JAMES FRANKLIN. University of Kentucky; origins and early years. 305p il $4 Univ. of Ky. press

378 Kentucky. University 51-11336

"[This volume] is primarily a study of the origins of the institution and carries the story only to 1910, two years after Kentucky State College had been renamed the University of Kentucky." Sat R of Lit

---

Reviewed by J. K. Bettersworth

N Y Times p10 Jl 15 '51 280w

+ San Francisco Chronicle p18 Jl 22 '51 40w

"The author has written with a keen awareness of the various sectarian, political, and economic forces that helped to shape the institution. . . Hopkins's study is fully documented. It is a welcome contribution both to the history of higher education in the United States and to the social history of Kentucky." Vernon Carstensen

+ Sat R of Lit 34:34 S 8 '51 340w

School & Society 74:432 D 29 '51 20w

HOPKINS, JOHN APPLETON HAVEN, comp. Diary of world events. 54v il maps pa $108 The compiler, c.o. Nat. advertising co.

940.53 World war, 1939-1945 (42-19535)

"The Diary of World Events is a 'chronological record of the Second World War photographically reproduced from the American and foreign newspaper dispatches as reported day by day, including maps, pictures, cartoons,

HOPKINS, J. A. H.—Continued
anecdotes, official messages, reports and declarations, and congressional acts . . .'—Subtitle. The first two volumes of this set were reviewed in Subscription Books Bulletin, July 1942 and the first twenty were reviewed in the January 1945 issue. This review will cover the set of 54 volumes which was completed in 1947/1948. . . The chronological form of arrangement is satisfactory whenever the date of a particular event is known. However, there is no satisfactory index to the entire set. Topical indexes, alphabetically arranged, appear throughout the set and each is found in the first volume of the several it covers instead of in the last of the group." Subscription Bks Bul

"Despite the flaws resulting from poor production and poor indexing, the Diary of World Events is recommended for those needing detailed coverage of World War II and for the use of students of that period who do not have access to an indexed file of one or more of the leading newspapers of the country."
+ — Subscription Bks Bul 21:52 O '50 1050w

HOPKINS, VIVIAN CONSTANCE. Spires of form; a study of Emerson's aesthetic theory. 276p $4 Harvard univ. press

701.17 Esthetics. Emerson, Ralph Waldo 51-9713

"This study presents Emerson's aesthetic theory in a new synthesis. It seeks to analyze Emerson's ideas concerning literary and artistic production, and to relate these ideas to his own philosophical concepts as well as to similar views of his predecessors and contemporaries." (Introd) Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by Sherman Paul
New Eng Q 24:399 S '51 480w

"Considered as a whole this study provides a most inclusive, though diffuse, presentation of Emerson's esthetics and an indication of his immense range of knowledge and cultural importance." S. M.
+ Sat R of Lit 34:30 Je 30 '51 400w

"Tortuous though her path may be, Miss Hopkins does succeed in reaching conclusions about Emerson's position in the history of aesthetics which are indisputable. Her greatest contribution, however, to the study of Emerson is made almost incidentally, for she brings out very clearly the fact that though his theory of artistic creation was derived primarily from his own experience in writing poetry, Emerson had much to say of importance about the fine arts and that his ideas of organic form are clearest, not when he writes about literature but when he writes about architecture, while his theories on the reception of artistic effort are based on his own reaction to all of the major arts."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p546 Ag 31 '51 700w

"A valuable and long-needed study."
+ U S Quarterly Bk R 7:141 Je '51 250w

HOPPENSTEDT, ELBERT M. Secret of the Stygian river; il. by R. M. Powers. 233p $2.50 Harcourt

51-11722

A story for boys of twelve and up. A Kentucky farm boy with two great loves, for his dog and his home, manages to save both when he discovers the secret of the Stygian river.

Booklist 48:52 O 1 '51

"Altho one might wish for more attention to plausibility of plot and characterization, this is unusually rewarding fare for mystery minded young readers." V. I.
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p18 N 11 '51 130w

Kirkus 19:396 Ag 1 '51 100w

"Not as fine a story as Five Boys in a Cave but one, I think, boys will like better. . . It is all very satisfactory and, I should think, quite possible. Recommended." Ruth McEvoy
+ Library J 76:1435 S 15 '51 70w

"It makes good mystery adventure reading for boys of twelve to fourteen." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Ag 26 '51 150w

"Mr. Hoppenstedt vividly recreates the eerie spell of the caverns. The Gillis' anxiety for the future of their farm, threatened by the new road, adds special interest to an unusual mystery-adventure story." E. L. B.
+ N Y Times p12 S 2 '51 150w

"Girls as well as boys will find this story fascinating."
+ Sat R of Lit 34:60 N 10 '51 160w

Reviewed by S. M. Neal
Springf'd Republican p10D O 7 '51 170w

Wis Lib Bul 47:220 S '51

HORAN, JAMES DAVID, and SWIGGETT, HOWARD. Pinkerton story. 366p il $4.50 Putnam

351.74 Pinkerton national detective agency. Crime and criminals—U.S. 51-11110

A history of this famous detective agency, based on the agency files. Cases involving train robberies, bad men of the West, espionage, labor troubles, and murder are covered, except for such cases as the Jesse James pursuit which has been the subject of an earlier book. Illustrated. Index.

Booklist 47:356 Je 15 '51

"Pinkerton is an important American name, and this volume will tell you why, and entertain you in the telling. Recommended to cause a chill on warm summer nights." R. J. Graf
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 Je 24 '51 340w

Cleveland Open Shelf p17 S '51

Kirkus 19:227 Ap 15 '51 170w

"As a slam-bang, gee-whiz account of the famous criminals who were tracked down by the world's most celebrated private eye—'we never sleep'—'The Pinkerton Story' is everything that the most bloodthirsty crime addict could desire, an entertaining book about some remarkable crooks. Yet as a solid history of Pinkerton's National Detective Agency it falls considerably short of perfection." Herbert Asbury
+ — N Y Times p3 My 27 '51 1100w

New Yorker 27:65 Jl 7 '51 160w

"A good many of the chapters suffer from sheer wealth of material. Perhaps more ruthless editing or better arrangement would have made these really wonderful stories more coherent, and kept their important events from sinking under a mass of names and dates. The authors, however, have approached their task with a great respect for accuracy, and have set down their facts without resorting to imaginary conversations or too much editorial comment. As such, 'The Pinkerton Story' should be a valuable source volume." L. G. O.
+ — San Francisco Chronicle p14 S 16 '51 220w

"The Pinkerton Story reads too much like a collection of Sunday-supplement pieces, but the raw material survives anything writers can do to it."
Time 58:102 Jl 2 '51 650w

Wis Lib Bul 47:159 Je '51

HORNELL, JAMES. Fishing in many waters. 210p il $6 Cambridge

639.2 Fishing [50-10433]

A study of methods of fishing in many parts of the world, especially India, Ceylon, the Far East, and the South Seas. Illustrated with photographs. Bibliography. No index.

"The work is a masterpiece of descriptive ethnography, charmingly written and based on a wealth of personal observation, made especially while the author was engaged in governmental fishery duty. . . This surpassing example of ethnological description, in which the ancient is blended with the modern and the primitive with the civilized is worthy of a place on every anthropologist's book shelf, not only for professional reference, but for pastime reading." E. W. Gifford

+ Am Anthropol 53:383 Jl '51 600w

"To fish-lovers . . . this book is a mine of good things. But it is a mine in which they must dig. For, being a collection, partly scientific and partly descriptive, there is much detail—of fish-traps, for instance, and their local names—which the non-expert fish-lover will skip. . . It is sad that Mr. Hornell, a real expert with a vast experience, a seeing eye, and a pleasant vein of humour, is no longer here to give us more."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p71 F 2 '51 420w

HORNEY, KAREN. Neurosis and human growth; the struggle toward self-realization. 391p $4.50 Norton

616.8 Neuroses 50-9644

For descriptive note see Annual for 1950.

Reviewed by P. E. Johnson

Christian Century 68:176 F 7 '51 600w

Reviewed by J. J. Kessler

Churchman 165:16 Mr 15 '51 190w

Cleveland Open Shelf p14 Jl '51

"There are many vivid clinical illustrations to illustrate her basic conceptions, and the book as a whole, like all of her other works, carries with it a workmanlike literary quality which makes it very easy reading. From a professional as well as from a social and educational point of view, there is little that can be questioned about her concepts. They reveal a keen clinical mind and a capacity for description which have made her previous works so popular." M. R. Sapirstein

+ Nation 172:232 Mr 10 '51 750w

"Karen Horney's recent volume is an uneven work, illustrating both her acute skill in formulating the defensive strategies of neurotic personalities and her limitations as psychological theorist." M. H. Maskin

+ — New Repub 124:20 My 28 '51 650w

Reviewed by A. D. Harris

New Statesman & Nation 42:288 S 15 '51 480w

"So far as I can see, 'Neurosis and Human Growth' makes no important contribution whatever to psychoanalytic theory. It offers no real evidence that the 'core of neurosis' is to be found elsewhere than in human relations—when one really understands what interpersonal theory entails. In a book where the writer claims he has made a scientific advance one would like to learn occasionally just how this advance was made. All we do get are flat statements and anecdotes. And this does not constitute science." Patrick Mullahy

Sat R of Lit 34:17 F 17 '51 650w

"Although Dr. Horney has many wise and helpful things to say about the psychological causes of human unhappiness, she cannot be said to break new ground in the theoretical elucidation of them."

Times [London] Lit Sup p392 Je 22 '51 600w

U S Quarterly Bk R 7:90 Mr '51 240w

HORTON, HOLBROOK LYNEDON, ed. See Ingenious mechanisms for designers and inventors, v3.

HORTON, JOHN. Some nineteenth century composers. 106p $1.50 Oxford

927.8 Musicians

Brief biographical sketches of a dozen composers. The introduction discusses nationalism and the way in which the composers selected exemplify it. Among the composers studied are Liszt, Smetana, Borodin, Franck, Saint-Säens, Fauré, and Elgar.

"The over-simplification perhaps makes the collection more instructive and appealing to readers who lack the technical background for a deeper penetration of the subject. Purchase of the book would be desirable for large music libraries with a lay clientele." Armine Dikijian

Music Lib Assn Notes 8:359 Mr '51 90w

"A small book which at once commands attention through its striking characterization, sober yet alert style, and above all by the thoughtfulness and originality of its judgments. . . Every one of the biographical essays is vivid, thoughtful, and informative." D. G. Mason

+ Sat R of Lit 34:30 F 24 '51 300w

HORVATH, WALTER JULIUS. How to use your selling power. 199p il $3.95 Prentice-Hall

658.85 Salesmanship 51-5581

"The substance of materials used by the author in training courses for salesmen in many large organizations, presented frequently in dialogue form. Based on the thesis that there is a solution for every selling problem, if only it can be found. Various types of difficulties are explored and lines of approach indicated. 'Self-Operating Quiz' at end of each chapter." (Library J) Index.

Reviewed by J. E. Cross

Library J 76:1568 O 1 '51 60w

Management R 40:724 N '51 20w

HOUGH, HENRY BEETLE. Once more the Thunderer. 316p $3.50 Washburn

B or 92 Vineyard gazette, Edgartown, Massachusetts. Journalists—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc. Martha's Vineyard, Massachusetts 50-10792

For descriptive note see Annual for 1950.

Bookmark 10:82 Ja '51 30w

Nation 172:66 Ja 20 '51 30w

"Once More the Thunderer carries the reader on from page to page and is difficult to drop. It is a worthy successor to Country Editor." Gerald Chittenden

+ New Eng Q 24:268 Je '51 550w

"This is a good and worthy book, as one who came to know and admire the Houghs after reading 'Country Editor' has a right to testify. And it is an interesting book, contributing entertainingly as well as solidly to the record of the American country town. It ought to beat The Gazette in circulation." R. L. Duffus

+ N Y Times p14 Ja 14 '51 600w

"Some years ago, you may recall, there appeared a book called 'Country Editor.' . . Those who read it keep a very special place in their hearts for that book. Somehow it represented everything solid and good and right about the America you find the moment you get away from the asphalt. Now Mr. Hough comes along with another, a book to put on your shelf right alongside his earlier one." J. H. Jackson

+ San Francisco Chronicle p14 Ja 12 '51 750w

"The book is a superb collection of vignettes and a masterpiece of simple, homely reporting. . . This is New England down to the tang of salt-water spray, the taste of apple pandowdy, and the creeping aromatic dusk. It is also the nostalgic record of any small American town as seen through the eyes of those who have loved it and served it best—the so-called 'country doctor,' the 'country editor,' the small-town professional who is satisfied with the Blue-Plate Special rather than the De Luxe Platter and with the warm intimacy of community life rather than the brittle reward of a metropolitan career." Frank Waters

+ Sat R of Lit 34:16 Ja 6 '51 700w

Wis Lib Bul 46:34 D '50

HOUGH, HENRY BEETLE. Singing in the morning, and other essays about Martha's Vineyard; il. by Will Huntington. 242p $3.50 Simon & Schuster

917.4494 Martha's Vineyard, Massachusetts 51-5144

"Henry Beetle Hough has been for more than twenty years editor of 'The Gazette,' published on Martha's Vineyard. . . The present [volume is] composed of brief nature essays which must have appeared originally in the 'Gazette.' Most

HOUGH, H. B.—Continued
run to only about four hundred words each; they follow the island seasons; and though they reflect a definite, flavorsome personality the author assumes none of the pose of 'the character' and writes without any suggestion of that artificial folksiness which has been the curse of small town journalism." N Y Herald Tribune Bk R

Booklist 48:8 S 1 '51

"To call these pleasant pieces 'essays' is to lay an unjust burden upon them. They are mood pieces, seasonal rhapsodies, culled from Mr. Hough's editorial columns. Lovers of the Vineyard may respond to them passionately. Many others will find them pleasant browsing, in a book of distinctive beauty, with illustrations by Will Huntington that are among its chief charms." Edmund Fuller
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 Jl 22 '51 270w

"The book is constantly refreshing. Mr. Hough has the seeing eye, the hearing ear, the smelling nose, the sensitive response to 'the infinite suggestiveness of common things.' Reflection adds its glint of insight to the better pieces. The gentleness is perhaps too consistent." T. M. L.
+ Christian Science Monitor p7 Jl 19 '51 500w
Kirkus 19:224 Ap 15 130w

"'Singing in the Morning' has some very attractive illustrations which help make it an indispensible vade mecum for Vineyarders. It will also work very well wherever the natural world still flourishes and people have time or inclination to make themselves aware of it." G. W. Krutch
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 Jl 29 '51 800w

"The pieces in the collection are unequal. Even the essay writer in the country has glum moments, and now and then he faces a deadline with little to say and dull words at hand to say it. Yet for the most part Mr. Hough is like 'the birds that make pleasant noises in the June morning,' and his pleasant noises have purpose and meaning." Hal Borland
+ — N Y Times p13 Jl 8 '51 360w
Springf'd Republican p4C Ag 5 '51 120w
Wis Lib Bul 47:184 Jl '51

HOUSE, BRANT, ed. Book of cats. [81p] il $2 Wyn 636.87 Cats—Pictures, illustrations, etc.
50-9910

A photographic album of cats, chiefly of the pet variety, in a variety of moods, activities, poses. Captions are sometimes appropriate, sometimes humorous.

Booklist 47:90 N 1 '50
Reviewed by Robert Cromie
Chicago Sunday Tribune p22 N 12 '50 60w
Kirkus 18:622 O 1 '50 50w

"If your living arrangements allow for no cat in your life, you would do well to keep far away from this book. When you have examined just a few of the 100 photographs by various camera artists you will be sold on the most photogenic of animals. By the time you have looked at the last shot you might be foolish enough to defy your landlords and get a cat of your own." E. J.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p31 D 10 '50 100w

HOUSEHOLD, GEOFFREY. Rough shoot. (Atlantic monthly press bk) 156p $2.50 Little 51-11032

"England, it seems, more than any other country in the world is the victim of interior traitors, usually, for some reason, members of the upper-middle class. In this case, the villains are the most respectable members of the small Dorset village in which the hero lives with his wife and two small sons. Mr. Household's story is a spy-and-chase piece of work, including such characters as an ex-general in the Polish Army." New Yorker

Booklist 47:266; 362 Ap 1 '51; Je 15 '51
Bookmark 10:232 Jl '51 40w
Reviewed by Milton Crane
Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 Ag 12 '51 220w
Reviewed by M. C. Scoggin
Horn Bk 27:241 Jl '51 50w
Kirkus 19:133 Mr 1 '51 130w

"Mr. Household fails to convey either the menace of his villains or the sympathetic qualities of his heroes."
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 Je 10 '51 140w

"Mr. Household is at the top of his form in this one, and his pace never slackens." William Du Bois
+ N Y Times p8 Je 10 '51 450w
New Yorker 27:120 Je 9 '51 80w

"This adventure is full of suspense without exclamation points, and is notably free from idiotic blunders on the hero's part and from cliches in general. B plus." L. G. Offord
+ San Francisco Chronicle p21 Je 17 '51 80w
Reviewed by Harrison Smith
Sat R of Lit 34:10 Je 30 '51 550w
Reviewed by Esther Howard
Spec 187:684 N 16 '51 100w

"A Rough Shoot is entertaining enough; and yet in spite of the effort Mr. Household has made to give his characters a tone of reality, the story's effect is wholly artificial. The Fascist movement appears ludicrous rather than sinister, and the car chase has more the air of a Keystone cops comedy than a serious pursuit."
Times [London] Lit Sup p697 N 2 '51 500w
Wis Lib Bul 47:166 Je '51

HOUSEHOLD, GEOFFREY. Time to kill. (Atlantic monthly press bk) 154p $2.50 Little 51-11781

Further adventures of Colonel Roger Taine, hero of the author's earlier novel, A Rough Shoot. This time the story concerns Taine's pursuit of the enemies of his country who are planning to spread disease among England's cattle.

Booklist 48:11 S 1 '51
Reviewed by Milton Crane
Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 Ag 12 '51 220w
Kirkus 19:300 Je 15 '51 120w
Reviewed by E. F. Walbridge
Library J 76:1221 Ag '51 60w
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 S 2 '51 120w
Reviewed by Roger Pippett
N Y Times p5 Ag 5 '51 250w

"Mr. Household is a good man at this kind of primitive foolishness, and the book, while not quite as satisfactory as his recent one, called 'A Rough Shoot,' is still reasonably satisfying."
+ New Yorker 27:97 Ag 18 '51 90w
Reviewed by L. G. Offord
San Francisco Chronicle p18 Ag 12 '51 90w

"Mr. Household is not at his top form here. In fact, for this reader he has never regained the levels he reached with 'Rogue Male.' His characterization, always brisk, is here almost as slapdash as to amount to caricature. His plot jumps a number of obvious lacunae. His political attitudes are becoming increasingly insular and stuffy. Too, I found his attitude toward the character Pink unpleasantly compromising. But these are all secondary elements in a Household tale. The chase is the thing and Mr. Household's wind continues good." E. J. Fitzgerald
+ — Sat R of Lit 34:20 Ag 18 '51 320w
Springf'd Republican p22A S 9 '51 110w
Wis Lib Bul 47:189 Jl '51

HOUSTON, JACK. Waiting for Willy. 220p $2.50 Rinehart

51-9591

A story of one night in the life of a small Oklahoma town. The scene of the story is the home of Tennessee White and its immediate surroundings. The characters are Tennessee and her daughter, Willy, who has left her husband and come home, and, outside the house in the darkness, most of the male inhabitants of the village who are "waiting for Willy" to come out.

"Houston writes well and easily. We look forward to future novels. This one will have limited appeal." E. P. Nichols

+ — Library J 76:180 F 1 '51 130w

"Mr. Houston has unfortunately stuck a conventionally pathetic ending onto this strange story, and labored similes occasionally intrude on the reader, but, for the most part, the dream quality of his novel is complete... Altogether, the author has written a fascinating and bawdy variation on the theme of man's pursuit of happiness." Joanna Spencer

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p17 Mr 11 '51 400w

"Jack Houston's first novel barely misses being as memorable a piece of rural roughhouse as 'God's Little Acre.' " Vance Bourjaily

+ — Sat R of Lit 34:35 Mr 31 '51 360w

HOVEY, HELEN STONE, and REYNOLDS, KAY. Practical book of food shopping. 290p $3.45 Lippincott

641 Food. Marketing (domestic) 50-11720

"How to select and store foods and save while buying is told in a practical, informing guide to such topics as lower cost meat dishes, good fruits and vegetables and foods for flavor and fun." Bookmark

Bookmark 10:106 F '51 40w

"Chapter divisions, together with a splendid cross index, make the book very easy to use. Both for information concerning familiar foods and for ideas that help to satisfy the American's 'zest for the new,' the book should be welcomed by homemakers. It also adds a needed reference book for students of food in either high school or college." J. S. Wilmot

+ J Home Econ 43:655 O '51 370w

Kirkus 18:550 S 1 '50 150w

"No recipes are given in this book, but it is a foundation for all good housekeepers." K. T. Willis

+ Library J 75:2152 D 15 '50 50w

HOW, RUTH WINIFRED. Friendly Farm; with il. by John Moment. 212p $2.50 Coward-McCann

51-10273

An English farm is the scene of this story of Patsy and Brian from the city who spend a delightful summer, making friends with people and animals. For ages eight to eleven.

Christian Science Monitor p11 My 5 '51 120w

"This book is well named, for one feels the genuine friendliness all through the story—in the descriptions of people and animals that Patsy and Brian learn to know and love on their first holiday alone away from their parents." J. D. Lindquist and S. M. Andrews

+ Horn Bk 27:182 My '51 100w

Kirkus 19:153 Mr 15 '51 80w

"It is clear that every page of this story was written with a loving backward glance at the author's childhood. Unfortunately, genuine sentiment all too frequently peters out into sentimentality." L. R. Davis

N Y Times p24 Je 3 '51 140w

Springf'd Republican p8D Jl 1 '51 50w

HOWARD, ELIZABETH. Peddler's girl. 240p $2.50 Morrow

51-9350

A novel for teen-aged girls. The story concerns a city girl who falls in love with a traveling artist. The scene is Michigan in the 1840's.

Booklist 47:223 F 15 '51

Bookmark 10:185 My '51

"Here is a beautifully told period novel for teen agers, which they are sure to love both for its unusual setting, so freshly recreated, and for the charming romance of its sympathetic young heroine." Polly Goodwin

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p11 My 6 '51 180w

"It is a pleasant way of showing what life probably was in those days, its uncertainties, hardships, and limitations as well as the fundamental sameness of people everywhere and always. It is a well-written and colorful story, and girls will be glad to know that romance finds Lucy even in this wandering life of hers." S. M. A.

+ Horn Bk 27:188 My '51 100w

"A fast and free style, predictable plot, and likeable characters."

+ Kirkus 18:694 D 1 '50 160w

"Recommended." C. W. Field

+ Library J 76:416 Mr 1 '51 60w

"Refreshing, interesting, moving, this is a good novel for any girl over twelve." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 Mr 4 '51 200w

"This is a period story, set in Michigan of 1840, but the atmosphere is as fresh as the pine-scented wind that Lucy loved." N. B. Baker

+ N Y Times p18 Ap 15 '51 150w

"Older girls will find this a fresh and moving narrative of young love." K. T. Kinkead

+ New Yorker 27:180 D 1 '51 80w

"The background is convincing, and Lucy is a very sympathetic heroine. This should be even more popular than Miss Howard's earlier book, 'North Winds Blow Free.' "

+ Sat R of Lit 34:56 My 12 '51 220w

"Refreshing reading for junior high girls."

+ Wis Lib Bul 47:94 Ap '51

HOWARD, FREDERICK JAMES. No music for generals. 352p $3 Duell

51-10406

An unnamed sector of southeastern Asia during World war II is the scene of this novel. The actors are British, Americans and natives of the region, with the leading character the American General Bannery.

Kirkus 19:304 Je 15 '51 100w

"An interesting, and in many ways revealing, novel." Abner Gaines

+ Library J 76:1221 Ag '51 100w

"Like J. G. Cozzens, Mr. Howard dwells on the intricacies of Service and Governmental hierarchy but unlike him, he cannot keep his large canvas tightly stretched. All the same he catches a few remarkable likenesses and conveys particularly well the feel of Tobrapore (a fictional Singapore) on the eve of a Japanese invasion. . . The American showman, General Bannery, almost comes off; but one feels—probably wrongly—that Mr. Howard was aiming at General MacArthur and missed. The only real failure is Leigh Deventer, one of those female journalists of whose existence Rosalind Russell is forever trying to convince us. Most of the time Mr. Howard writes vividly." John Richardson

+ — New Statesman & Nation 42:107 Jl 28 '51 140w

"Mr. Howard has accomplished the unusual feat of writing an adult, witty and honest novel about war. By any modern definition it is not a war novel, since the author does not regard sex as a new invention, is not preoccupied with the fact that war deprives little boys of their mamas, and is more concerned with emotional conflict than with the trivia of violence. Had he written of fewer persons and fewer problems 'No Music for Generals' would have had much more unity of effect and been an even better story." E. L. Acken

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 Ag 26 '51 500w

HOWARD, F. J.—Continued

"This is an exceptionally exciting novel for two reasons: first, it is cleanly told and has the forward motion of a British suspense thriller and, second, the reader has the fun of guessing what real people its characters seem to resemble. . . Toward the end of the story—and this is a fault—the author tends to 'tidy up' so that all ends well. But then 'tidying up' is what General Bradley in his book finds General Montgomery did to a fault also. Perhaps it's an Empire characteristic, in war as in fiction." H. M.

+ — N Y Times p15 Ag 26 '51 420w

Reviewed by E. J. Fitzgerald
Sat R of Lit 34:29 S 15 '51 310w

"This, in spite of the war, is essentially a story of love and intrigue, of politics and journalism, all of it just a little too highly coloured and with no great weight or depth of experience anywhere. Mr. Howard has gone to work like a professional novelist and has fabricated an orderly structure for his novel, thus lending it a coherent and developing interest. Technically, No music for Generals is very sound. . . The characterisation is distinctly uneven." R. D. Charques

+ — Spec 187:74 Jl 13 '51 230w

"A readable if rather synthetic war adventure-story with some intelligent political background."

+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p513 Ag 17 '51 160w

HOWARD, JOAN, pseud. See Gordon, P.

HOWARD, LEON. Herman Melville; a biography [il. by Robert Else]. 354p $5 Univ. of Calif. press

B or 92 Melville, Herman 51-62667

A biography of Herman Melville in which the author "sets forth the almost daily course of Melville's life—what he read, whom he saw, where he went, even what he ate. His financial affairs—never so desperate as many have supposed—are detailed to the penny, and his brief career as a public lecturer is treated with a fullness wholly new." (Christian Science Monitor) Index.

Booklist 48:143 D 15 '51

"Except for Charles Anderson's fine book on 'Melville in the South Seas', Melville has waited just 60 years for what these men [the author and Gilman, W. H.] have done for him in the biografical field. . . Despite his admiration for Melville, Howard is not uncritical." Edward Wagenknecht

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p2 O 21 '51 180w

"It is perhaps Mr. Howard's best accomplishment that he admits one to a new understanding of the degree to which the books were shaped by Melville's reading, and that he relates so clearly the devious course of their composition. This is, in short, a book of 'sane' as well as sound scholarship." Denham Sutcliffe

+ Christian Science Monitor p9 O 12 '51 500w

Reviewed by Herbert Cahoon
Library J 76:1931 N 15 '51 130w

Reviewed by H. P. Vincent
N Y Times p1 N 11 '51 400w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson
San Francisco Chronicle p22 D 20 '51 380w

"It does not delve into the subliminal reaches of Melville's mind, but for those who want to know the man himself, to understand the circumstances under which he wrote, to see him against the background of the times, this is the book—factual, scholarly, and utterly absorbing." Arnold Whitridge

+ Sat R of Lit 35:13 Ja 5 '52 850w

HOWARD, ROBERT ERVIN. Conan the conqueror; the hyborean age. 285p $2.75 Gnome press

51-2043

"In this tale from the center of the 'Hyborean Age' series, which regaled the readers of Weird Tales for months and years, the mighty Conan begins as King of Aquilonia. He runs into a little trouble with a wizard and some villains and has to go through a long series of adventures and battles before confirming his title." N Y Times

Kirkus 18:526 S 1 '50 90w

"The names and appurtenances are raided from all times and all places to make up an adventure-fantasy that has no time and no place, and in its approach rather resembles a Superman comic strip. Strictly for the aficionados." Fletcher Pratt

N Y Times p12 Ja 7 '51 140w

"Good reading; good action, a little on the violent side." Don Fabun

+ San Francisco Chronicle p16 N 19 '50 150w

Reviewed by Fletcher Pratt
Sat R of Lit 33:17 D 30 '50 40w

HOWE, HENRY FORBUSH. Salt rivers of the Massachusetts shore; il. by John O'Hara Cosgrave, II. (Rivers of America) 370p $4 Rinehart

974.4 Rivers—Massachusetts. Massachusetts—History 51-14004

"The little rivers of which Henry Howe treats in this solid and readable book had much to do with the shaping of Massachusetts history and the formation of Massachusetts character. None of them is navigable for more than ten miles from its mouth, and the sea therefore became the great highway. For want of fertile river bottoms, the inhabitants applied such water power as the streams afforded to small industries. . . This book is a compact history of eastern Massachusetts, from the earliest times to the present day." N Y Times

Booklist 48:121 D 1 '51

"There is a great deal of sound social history in Mr. Howe's book. Unfortunately his record is sometimes burdened with heavy language. 'Not far away a commercial center affords the services of merchants appropriate to the economic needs of the community'—meaning: here is a district of small town stores and shops." Walter Havighurst

+ — Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 N 18 '51 470w

"Dr. Howe's book was achieved by careful research in many libraries, and this is its flaw. It fails to strike the nice balance between a sense of history and the immediacy of flowing water evident to sight and touch and even smell. . . I should like to suggest, with all respect to Dr. Howe as an amateur writer of history, that he leave his library for a while, reread 'A Week on the Concord and Merrimac'—skipping the quotations—and buy himself a canoe." Francis Russell

Christian Science Monitor p7 D 19 '51 330w

"Remarkable studies of some of the great Yankee personalities, notably John Adams and Daniel Webster, underscore prevalent regional attitudes for which Dr. Howe displays such an active sympathy and appreciation. Less history is floated on the waterways this time, but as a study of granite-ribbed inland Yankeedom, this is a scholarly and entertaining work."

+ Kirkus 19:555 S 15 '51 260w

Reviewed by H. A. Wooster
Library J 76:1560 O 1 '51 170w

"Throughout Dr. Howe writes with a deep sympathy for his native soil that still stays in national perspective. He modestly claims only to have attempted a readable text for the layman, but I wish that more professional historians would write as readable, stimulating and judicious summaries as 'Salt Rivers of the Massachusetts Shore.'" W. M. Whitehill

+ N Y Hearld Tribune Bk R p4 D 9 '51 900w

"Howe approaches his material with an enthusiasm that is all the more engaging for being unobtrusive. He does not declaim, but lets the facts speak for themselves, aware that they speak eloquently." W. A. Breyfogle

+ N Y Times p42 N 25 '51 330w

HOWE, IRVING. Sherwood Anderson. (American men of letters ser) 271p $3.50 Sloane

B or 92 Anderson, Sherwood 51-9927

In his Preface the author says: "In this book, I hope to achieve a synthesis of feeling and opinion toward Anderson's work. The original awe that I, like so many others, felt upon reading Winesburg it would be impossible to recapture. The later impatience with some of his books it would be erroneous to repudiate. But I have come to believe that while much of his work remains unacceptable there is nonetheless a precious remnant particularly valuable to our day and situation. . . Portions of this book have appeared in Commentary, Furioso, Kenyon Review, Partisan Review, and Tomorrow. These magazine versions were early drafts, and in several instances have been considerably rewritten for their final form in this book."

Booklist 47:309 My 1 '51

Bookmark 10:182 My '51 20w

Reviewed by R. L. Weaver
Canadian Forum 31:134 S '51 2150w

Reviewed by Edward Wagenknecht
Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 Ap 15 '51 500w

Reviewed by Horace Reynolds
Christian Science Monitor p9 Ap 18 '51 650w

"The book is satisfying as an interpretation of an influential though minor figure in twentieth century American letters." Scott Adams
+ Library J 76:511 Mr 15 '51 80w

Reviewed by H. N. Smith
Nation 172:472 My 19 '51 550w

"Howe thinks in terms of concepts; Anderson feels in terms of tangible things. They speak different languages and belong to different nations of the mind. The wonder is not that Howe's book is sometimes lacking in sympathy and gives Anderson credit for something less than his real achievement; the wonder is that the critic often comes so close to his subject. The chapter on 'Winesburg, Ohio,' is the most searching and the fairest discussion that the book has ever received." Malcolm Cowley
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p3 Ap 8 '51 1100w

"Mr. Howe may somewhat overstate the negative elements in the American scene as they bore upon Anderson, and somewhat underexpress what was fruitful for him in it. If so, this has not kept him, in his critical passages, from writing about Anderson's work with a quiet, patient, discerning, instructed power that makes his own book itself a literary event, and indicates the definite arrival upon the scene of a considerable critical talent." Newton Arvin
+ N Y Times p5 Ap 8 '51 1000w

New Yorker 27:141 Ap 14 '51 150w

"Anderson wrote considerable inferior work, especially in the last ten years of his life. But with his short stories he won an enduring place in the history of American literature. . . He merits extensive and affectionate study. A truly first-rate book about him has yet to be written. But till then Mr. Howe's will do, for at least a large part of it is very good indeed." Charles Angoff
Sat R of Lit 34:17 Ap 28 '51 800w

Time 57:116 Ap 16 '51 280w

Wis Lib Bul 47:120 My '51

Reviewed by J. W. Beach
Yale R n s 40:749 summer '51 240w

HOYLE, FRED. Nature of the universe. 142p $2.50 Harper

523 Astronomy 51-9852

Based on a series of lectures broadcast in England by the BBC. The author, an astrophysicist at Cambridge University, presents for the layman answers to such questions as Is there life on other planets? How was the universe created and is it running down? and What is the fate of the earth?

Booklist 47:305 My 1 '51

Reviewed by K. F. Mather
Christian Century 68:1407 D 5 '51 900w

"This cosmic panorama is set forth in a flowing style directed expressly toward the layman, since the book is a compilation of a series of popular radio talks sponsored by the British Broadcasting Corporation. Yet, in this very effort for simplicity, speculation and working hypothesis have been presented with almost the same finality as established fact, so that it is difficult to tell when Mr. Hoyle is speaking as Mr. Hoyle and when he is reporting observational data or ideas that have found general acceptance. It is sufficient to say that the broadcasts have touched off a heated controversy." R. C. Cowen
Christian Science Monitor p9 Ap 3 '51 750w

Cleveland Open Shelf p17 S '51

Reviewed by G. S. Spinks
Hibbert J 49:192 Ja '51 1100w

Kirkus 19:86 F 1 '51 180w

Reviewed by R. R. Hawkins
Library J 76:708 Ap 15 '51 110w

"Even the rankest amateur at cosmology will be annoyed at the oversimplifications running through this book. Actually these pages are quoted from lectures read over the B. B. C., and they have just that mixture of flat statement and chatty enthusiasm one would expect in a radio script. But what is said here in 'The Nature of the Universe' is too important and too challenging to be dismissed on literary grounds. If Hoyle and those modern astronomers who share his thinking are wrong, they have at least made a magnificent guess, and it is in human nature to welcome such a guess, and to believe that from it some measure of proved truth must one day derive." Charles Spielberger
Nation 172:570 Je 16 '51 800w

Reviewed by G. P. Thomson
New Repub 124:19 Ap 30 '51 1650w

"Mr. Hoyle has written a fascinating book, which will be, and deserves to be, widely read. In less than a hundred and fifty pages he spans the astronomical universe, and leads his readers outwards from the earth to the remotest galaxies. Rarely has so vast a panorama been presented in so small a compass." C. P. Gaposchkin
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p22 My 13 '51 800w

Reviewed by John Pfeiffer
N Y Times p23 Ap 22 '51 450w

"A worthy successor to, and to some extent an intentional revision of, Sir James Jeans' 'The Mysterious Universe' and Arthur Eddington's 'The Nature of the Physical World.'" R. H. Rovere
+ New Yorker 27:117 Ap 7 '51 400w

San Francisco Chronicle p25 Ap 22 '51 500w

"Hoyle's book is beautifully written; indeed, it is one of the finest pieces of scientific exposition for the layman which has appeared in recent years. The author develops his subject quickly and clearly. In but fifty pages he succeeds in presenting a vivid picture of the universe as seen by our modern telescopes. . . It will be many years before the considered judgment of science can state with fair certainty that Fred Hoyle is completely right, completely wrong, or even partly right and partly wrong. In my opinion much of what he says stands a good chance of surviving. On the other hand, other parts of what he says seem clearly to be nonsense." Harrison Brown
+ — Sat R of Lit 34:19 Ap 28 '51 600w

Wis Lib Bul 47:161 Je '51

HOYT, CHARLES SHERMAN. Memoirs [ed. and designed by Eugene Virginius Connett]. 348p il $6 Van Nostrand

797.14 Yachts and yachting 50-10884

"Recollections of more than sixty years of international yachting by one of the best-known gentleman sailors in the world. Many of the author's early memories center around the crusty figure of his Uncle Cump, who was General William Tecumseh Sherman. The yachting part of his story starts in the eighteen-eighties; he describes the revival of the races for the America's Cup, and tells of his experiences in them and of the people he has known and raced with on most of the seas and oceans of the world." (New Yorker) Index.

HOYT, C. S. —Continued

"Even if you don't know the bow from the stern, you'll thoroly enjoy this salty, lusty autobiography of an internationally famous sailor." Al Chase
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 D 10 '50 280w

"Unlimited yachting material to satisfy the most insatiable sailor."
+ Kirkus 18:547 S 1 '50 120w

Reviewed by R. W. Henderson
Library J 76:50 Ja 1 '51 40w

"Some of the book is pretty technical and pretty special; detailed descriptions of yacht races are notoriously uninteresting except to sailors. But there is plenty more to make this a stimulating autobiography."
+ New Yorker 26:74 D 23 '50 180w

"As for the yachting content, without writing down or translating his text into words of one syllable Mr. Hoyt expounds his art with an engaging lucidity that requires no special proficiency on the part of the reader. And if a wishbone rig appears baffling, there is a photograph, among many fine photographs, to tell all." J. T. Winterich
+ Sat R of Lit 34:37 Ag 11 '51 270w

HOYT, MRS HAYES BLAKE. Your poodle. 141p il $3.50 Putnam
636.76 Poodles Agr51-60

"A basic handbook for the growing number of poodle-owners by an outstanding breeder, exhibitor and judge of the breed. It contains a brief history of the poodle, directions on care, feeding and training of both standard and miniature types, the American Kennel Club standard and a number of entertaining anecdotes on these remarkable and amusing dogs. Illustrations include numerous photographs and several diagrams demonstrating the proper clips, conformations, etc." San Francisco Chronicle

"Here is a well illustrated book that should be in the hands of every one who owns or admires the intelligent poodle, which always attracts attention with its unusual haircut." Bob Becker
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 Ag 19 '51 120w

Cleveland Open Shelf p15 Jl '51

Reviewed by R. W. Henderson
+ Library J 76:1128 Jl '51 40w

San Francisco Chronicle p22 Je 17 '51 90w

HOYT, ROBERT STUART. Royal demesne in English constitutional history: 1066-1272; pub. for the American historical association. 253p $3.50 Cornell univ. press
336.1 Great Britain—Kings and rulers. Feudalism. Great Britain—History—Medieval period, 1066-1485. Great Britain—Constitutional history 51-9070

A scholarly study of the royal demesne in the early feudal period in England and its part in the growth of the realm. The book is based on examination of the Domesday Book. The author is associate professor of history at the State university of Iowa. Contains selected cases. Index.

"The way in which the author develops his thesis from the evidence will give medieval scholars that special pleasure such as might come from watching a skillful chess player. Interpreting medieval documents has some of the characteristics of a complicated game, a large puzzle with many missing pieces. When therefore an author undertakes to re-examine as well known a source as Domesday Book, and to advance new interpretations which sound convincing, and when this involves respectful but unhesitating challenge of the conclusions of such champions as Vinogradoff, Maitland, and particularly J. H. Round, the specialists may well pay attention." R. A. Newhall
+ Am Hist R 56:859 Jl '51 450w

"A distinguished contribution. . . Not the least valuable feature of this important book is the series of select cases transcribed from the Coram Rege and Assize Rolls of Henry III to illustrate the thirteenth-century treatment of the law of ancient demesne."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p451 Jl 20 '51 600w

"More than most, Professor Hoyt's highly specialized treatise achieves the laudable objective of contributing to knowledge. The author, through a work of painstaking scholarship, throws real light into the obscurity of medieval archives and makes some fresh and discerning assessments."
+ U S Quarterly Bk R 7:54 Mr '51 250w

HRONES, JOHN ANTHONY, and NELSON, GEORGE LARSEN. Analysis of the four-bar linkage; its application to the synthesis of mechanisms. 730p $15 Mass. inst. of technology
621.81 Links and link motion 51-11335

"The 730 large-scale charts comprising this volume, show the trajectories of various points on the connecting rod of a four-bar linkage as the driving crank of the linkage rotates through 360°. For each set of link ratios there are five charts from which the displacement and velocity of points on a given linkage may be read directly. Introductory pages explain how the charts were compiled and the manner of their use. The book is intended for mechanical engineers and designers who are concerned with selecting a mechanism which will produce a particular motion." N Y New Tech Bks

"The book is not for reading but for reference by machine designers who are faced with the necessity of designing a four-bar linkage with specific properties." R. R. Hawkins
Library J 76:1429 S 15 '51 90w

N Y New Tech Bks 36:57 Jl '51

"The present work is the most complete atlas of four-bar curves published."
+ U S Quarterly Bk R 7:323 S '51 170w

HUBBARD, FREEMAN H. Roundhouse cat, and other railroad animals; il. by Kurt Wiese. (Whittlesey house publication) 124p $2 McGraw 51-10523

Short stories, all about animals and railroads, and all based on actual incidents. For grades three to six.

Booklist 47:333 My 15 '51

Reviewed by Polly Goodwin
Chicago Sunday Tribune p7 Jl 15 '51 130w

Christian Science Monitor p11 Jl 28 '51 70w

Kirkus 19:152 Mr 15 '51 110w

"Plenty of action and simple vocabulary that will make it fun for young readers. Fourth grade up." Anne Izard
+ Library J 76:969 Je 1 '51 50w

"The animals are fine, and the railroad background full of excellent details, as well it might be, since the author is editor of 'The Railroad Magazine.' " L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 My 13 '51 130w

N Y Times p20 Je 24 '51 120w

HUBBARD, MARGARET ANN. Crosswind canyon. 195p $2.50 Macmillan
50-10366

Adventure and mystery story for grades five to eight. The scene is South Dakota.

Booklist 47:207 F 1 '51

Kirkus 18:356 Jl 1 '50 150w

"Good, if you can take it." Ruth McEvoy
Library J 76:122 Ja 15 '51 70w

Springf'd Republican p8D N 26 '50 110w

HUBBELL, CATHERINE. Glittering shores. 287p $3 Norton
51-11707

"The story of the marriage of Helen and Philip Miles, a young New York couple. . . Helen [is] a truly cold and flat-natured woman, and Philip, though a nice enough man, [is] weak because of what becomes an excess of bewilderment and good nature." New Yorker

Booklist 48:11 S 1 '51

"The sum total effect is a finely etched representation of the artificial highlights and the disheartening shadows of the sophisticated New York life dealt with. I only wish the author could have simplified her style to a less tedious effect." Henry Cavendish
+ — Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 Ag 19 '51 370w

Kirkus 19:356 Jl 15 '51 230w

"'The Glittering Shores' is a thoughtful, sound, sophisticated and damning novel. The total effect of its message is at once heightened and made more agreeable by Miss Hubbell's easy and pleasing narrative style." F. H. Bullock
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 Ag 19 '51 340w

"Miss Hubbell has attempted a capsule analysis of frustration and yearning among the upper and middle-middle classes in New York City during and prior to World War II. The problems of her characters, when down on paper, are dull, their aspirations drab. . . The situations are well grounded in basic human experience, but the vitality and skill necessary to bridge the gap between reality and literature is lacking." L. v. A.
— N Y Times p23 S 9 '51 80w

"Miss Hubbell writes with honesty and understanding, but the surface of her work is blurred, as though she feared that a clearer finish might oblige her to bring her characters into sharp focus, instead of keeping them, as she does now, a convenient, dreamy distance away from herself and from the reader."
New Yorker 27:132 S 15 '51 120w

Reviewed by Pamela Taylor
Sat R of Lit 34:19 Ag 18 '51 220w

HUBBELL, RICHARD WHITTAKER. Television programming and production. 2d ed rev & enl 240p il $4.50; college ed $3.25 Rinehart
621.388 Television broadcasting 50-11063

New edition of a work first published in 1945 (Book Review Digest 1945). "Certain technical chapters have been brought up-to-date and a small amount of new material added. The book still promises more than it gives in the text since it deals with the production of television shows and not types of programs. Some parts should be of interest to the layman, although others are clearly written for the studio technician." Booklist

Booklist 47:190 Ja 15 '51

Reviewed by Larry Wolters
Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 My 20 '51 150w

"Highly recommended for theatre and television collections regardless of size." George Freedley
+ Library J 76:520 Mr 15 '51 20w

Reviewed by C. W. Weinberger
San Francisco Chronicle p10 Mr 17 '51 40w

HUCKEL, WALTER. Structural chemistry of inorganic compounds; tr. by L. H. Long. 2v v 1 437p $9 Elsevier
546 Chemistry, Inorganic (51-3775)

"This volume serves as a comprehensive treatise on inorganic chemistry from [a] new point of view, an approach which takes into account the properties of compounds and the type of linkage between atoms, rather than the properties of the elements. The book is a translation of the author's Anorganische Strukturchemie (1947), and differs from the original edition only in its recognition of pertinent literature published since 1947. Chapters on crystal chemistry, glass and metallic substances, and extensive author, subject and compound indexes, are to be published in a second volume." N Y New Tech Bks

"This book is not recommended to any class of readers. The selection and ordering of topics is not appropriate for the stated aim of the author. The effort to give an encyclopedic account of fundamental material has failed; too many topics are considered and, in many cases, the presentations are too long and not very good. The prose style is complicated and it is almost invariably difficult to discern the author's meaning. The chapter on coördination compounds is exempted from these criticisms." Norman Davidson
— + Am Chem Soc J 73:2978 Je '51 470w

"The reviewer recommends this volume for use only by those rather well acquainted with the field—by the uninitiated it should be used only with considerable guidance and caution." A. B. Garrett
Chem & Eng N 29:703 F 19 '51 270w

"The present volume can only be recommended with considerable reservations to the mature chemist and certainly not to the student or the less enlightened worker who wishes to learn about systematization in inorganic chemistry." J. C. Nachod
Chem Eng 58:332 O '51 280w

N Y New Tech Bks 35:84 N '50

HUDDLESTON, EDWIN GLENN. The Claybrooks. 297p $3.50 Macmillan
51-11289

A Tennessee plantation in the early twentieth century is the scene of this family chronicle of Claybrooks. Tabby, returning to the plantation after may years abroad, brings her much-loved little son. The plot turns on the fact that the boy is illegitimate, and the proud family tries to cover up the fact.

Booklist 47:362 Je 15 '51

"Preposterous stuff." Riley Hughes
— Cath World 174:75 O '51 140w

Reviewed by Fanny Butcher
Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 Jl 8 '51 550w

Kirkus 19:165 Mr 15 '51 180w

"The plot remains slow-moving and static which, in this reader's opinion, holds slight interest." E. P. Nichols
— Library J 76:861 My 15 '51 60w

Reviewed by Mary Ross
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 Jl 1 '51 440w

"Mr. Huddleston has crowded his canvas with characters, but this is a fresh treatment of the Southern scene, no lynchings, race tensions, or madmen on the prowl. Still, it would be melodrama in any part of the country." Charlotte Capers
N Y Times p16 Je 24 '51 200w

"Huddleston knows his Tennessee town and every now and then brings his reader up sharp with a phrase that is alive, unexpected, and somehow just right for that place and person. . . If Mr. Huddleston would dig a little deeper into the innards of his people, if he would give his characters more space for living he might write a novel of more than superficial interest, for he has a real gift for the turn of phrase in dialogue." C. R. Sumner
+ — Sat R of Lit 34:13 Jl 14 '51 470w

HUDSON, WILLIAM HENRY. Letters on the ornithology of Buenos Ayres; ed. by David R. Dewar; with a foreword by Herbert F. West; pub. by permission of the Zoological society of London. 93p $2.75 Cornell univ. press
598.2 Birds—Argentina 51-10274

"In 1869 and 1870 W. H. Hudson wrote twelve letters about the birds of Buenos Aires for the Proceedings of the Zoological Society of London. David R. Dewar, a Scottish journalist, has recently discovered them in the sedate files of a sober scientific organization and edited them affectionately; and through the enterprise of Herbert F. West, Professor of Comparative Literature at Dartmouth, they are now published in a slender volume." (N Y Times) Index.

HUDSON, W. H.—Continued

"The letters are vigorous accounts of personal field observations in and near Buenos Ayres. Hudson wrote with gusto and authority, if not with conventional spelling. He emphasized accounts of behavior, rather than description. Tho the birds of which he wrote are in general not known in North America, his accounts have great interest because of his infectious curiosity and delight." A. C. Ames
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p10 Je 17 '51 110w

"To admirers of Hudson, one of the great literary naturalists, these are fascinating pieces of work. . . They reveal Hudson, an obscure young bird student in South America, attacking Darwin with perceptible ascerbity for an error in fact. . . In the second place, the letters are interesting because they disclose a reserved personality and an astonishing familiarity with birds." Brooks Atkinson
+ N Y Times p17 Jl 22 '51 600w

"It is pleasant to find an American university publishing a scholarly opusculum, such as this, edited by a Scottish journalist. Yet it has to be admitted that, had it not been for Hudson's subsequent career these letters would scarcely have been reissued."
Times [London] Lit Sup p729 N 16 '51 260w

HUFF, THEODORE. Charlie Chaplin. 354p pl $4.50 Schuman
B or 92 Chaplin, Charles Spencer 51-10104

Biography of Charlie Chaplin, which includes resumes of his motion pictures and many illustrations. A film index gives cast, date of release, and producer for each picture, and brief biographical sketches of persons professionally associated with Chaplin.

Booklist 47:265; 292 Ap 1 '51; Ap 15 '51
Bookmark 10:205 Je '51 30w

"Here is a book which may be guaranteed to give hours of delightful reading not only to Chaplin fans but to everybody who has ever derived a moment's pleasure from a motion picture." Edward Wagenknecht
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p8 Ap 8 '51 130w

"A thoughtful, rounded picture, this should have a serious place in moving picture history."
+ Kirkus 19:169 Mr 15 '51 160w

Reviewed by George Freedley
Library J 76:867 My 15 '51 70w

Reviewed by H. G. Weinberg
New Repub 125:20 Jl 23 '51 350w

"Theodore Huff's book is unique in that it is written without passion; without the idolatry of Chaplin-worshippers, or the rage of Chaplin-disapprovers-of. It is a splendid reporter's record, accurate, comprehensive, and impersonal, of Chaplin's work—of his life, loves and lawsuits. It has no opinion except the one it started with—and that is that Chaplin's importance makes such a permanent record necessary." Al Capp
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p3 Ap 15 '51 1050w

"There has long been a real need for a good comprehensive book on the life and art of Charlie Chaplin. Now it may well be that such a book cannot be written. If it could, Theodore Huff would seem to be the man. . . He is obviously an authority on the subject, and we can be grateful to him for his exhaustive study of the facts of Mr. Chaplin's career. . . Chaplin deserves a better book than this one, but as a reference, particularly of the movies, Mr. Huff's will be widely used. . . Of course, it is not Mr. Huff's fault. Any examination of Chaplin's impalpable, baffling, elusive art dispels the magic of that art. To define it is to turn it into words, words, words—and what artist needs words less than Charlie Chaplin?" Charles Jackson
N Y Times p3 Ap 8 '51 1000w

Reviewed by Luther Nichols
San Francisco Chronicle p20 My 13 '51 1200w

Reviewed by Arthur Knight
Sat R of Lit 34:10 Ap 7 '51 1500w

HUGHES, GLENN. History of the American theatre, 1700-1950. 562p il $5 French
792 Theater—U.S. 51-7975

A chronological review of the American theater from its beginnings 250 years ago to the present. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 48:119 D 1 '51

"This is a careful, methodical book—written authoritatively but not over-academically." John Beaufort
+ Christian Science Monitor p15 D 6 '51 180w

"Well illustrated, readable and sound history which will delight the casual reader as well as the student." George Freedley
+ Library J 76:2116 D 15 '51 30w

Reviewed by William Hogan
San Francisco Chronicle p6 N 25 '51 80w
School & Society 74:303 N 10 '51 20w

HUGHES, HAROLD DE MOTT, and others, eds. Forages; the science of grassland agriculture; under the editorial authorship of H. D. Hughes [and others] with 52 add. contributing authors. 724p il $6.75 Iowa state college press
633.2 Forage plants

"60 chapters written by 52 outstanding authorities. Such topics as 'Economic Aspects of Forage Production,' 'Legume and Grass Seed Production,' 'Ladino and Other White Clovers,' 'Hay and Pasture Seedings for the Northeast,' 'Mechanization of Haymaking and Storage,' 'Range Pasture' and 'Forage Utilization by Hogs' are covered." Library J

Booklist 47:397 Jl 15 '51

"Probably the book will find its main use as a text in agricultural colleges; but in addition, it will be valuable for reference use in not only agricultural libraries but also in public libraries where there is interest in agriculture and soil conservation. A helpful reference feature is the inclusion in the author index of brief notes indicating the content of each paper cited in the bibliographies." R. R. Hawkins
+ Library J 76:1429 S 15 '51 130w

HUGHES, LANGSTON. Montage of a dream deferred. 75p $2 Holt
811 51-9474

"The persistent beat and rhythm of jazz, boogie-woogie, and other forms of current popular music sound in these kaleidoscopic flashes that make a poem on contemporary Harlem. Sections have appeared in Holiday, The Crisis, and other periodicals." Booklist

Booklist 47:233 Mr 1 '51
Kirkus 18:271 D 1 '50 160w

Reviewed by G. D. McDonald
Library J 76:519 Mr 15 '51 80w

Reviewed by Rolfe Humphries
Nation 172:256 Mr 17 '51 90w

"In the interval between the publication of 'One-Way Ticket' (1949) and this new book, Langston Hughes seems to have made a spiritually rewarding return to the heritage that was distinctly his in the days of the Negro renaissance. His images are again quick, vibrant and probing, but they no longer educate. They probe into old emotions and experiences with fine sensitiveness." Saunders Redding
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 Mr 11 '51 500w

"Sometimes his verse invites approval, but again it lapses into a facile sentimentality that stifles real feeling as with cheap scent. As he bandies about the word 'dream,' he introduces a whiff of the nineteenth century that casts a slight mustiness on the liveliest context. Langston Hughes can write pages that throb with the abrupt rhythms of popular music. He can draw thumbnail sketches of Harlem lives and deaths that etch themselves harshly in the memory. Yet the book as a whole leaves one less responsive to the poet's achievement than conscious of the limitations of folk art." Babette Deutsch
+ — N Y Times p23 My 6 '51 280w
U S Quarterly Bk R 7:146 Je '51 240w

HUGHES, PHILIP. Reformation in England; 2v; v 1, The king's proceedings. 404p pl maps $6 Macmillan
942.052 Reformation—England. England—Social conditions [51-4964]

"The social and economic changes which were taking place on the eve of the Reformation, foreign policy, the condition of the monasteries, the parochial clergy, Catholic life and thought occupy a quarter of this first instalment of a new two-volume history of the English Reformation which carries the story of the 'King's Proceedings' down to 1540. But the burden of the book is the breach with Rome and the establishing of the Royal Supremacy over the Church in England." Manchester Guardian

"Many will be grateful for the author's brief, clear, well-documented comment on the clash between English Common Law and the Roman Law. . . . This first half of what is obviously an indispensable work makes one impatient for its sequel." Joseph McSorley
+ Cath World 173:476 S '51 240w

Reviewed by W. S. Hudson
Christian Century 68:465 Ap 11 '51 1050w

Reviewed by G. B. Harrison
Commonweal 54:19 Ap 13 '51 1100w
Manchester Guardian p2 D 29 '50 210w

"To the reader familiar with what Fr. Hughes has already written, and turning now to this leisurely and detailed survey of a much-trodden path, the first reaction is one of admiration for the patience, indefatigable industry, and omnivorous appetite for exploration which characterize his work."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p185 Mr 23 '51 1500w

HULBURD, DAVID. This happened in Pasadena. 166p $2.50 Macmillan
379.794 Pasadena, California—Public schools. Goslin, Willard Edward 51-10609

A case history of what happened in the public school system in Pasadena in 1950. In 1948 Willard Goslin was made superintendent of schools in Pasadena, coming from a similar position in Minneapolis. Things apparently went smoothly until the summer of 1950, when trouble came over an increased tax levy, and the superintendent was dismissed by telegram. The events making up the case are here presented.

Booklist 47:322 My 15 '51

Reviewed by Millicent Taylor
Christian Science Monitor p11 My 5 '51 1000w
Cleveland Open Shelf p11 My '51

"The form the report takes is journalistic; it has only the literary merit of clarity and sincerity; but the matter is of more moment than the manner. It should be read. A Life article and considerable publicity in Time at the time of the ousting should give momentum to interest among alert citizens."
+ Kirkus 19:218 Ap 15 '51 180w

Reviewed by John Pilley
Nation 173:135 Ag 18 '51 350w

"This slender book carries a heavy load of urgency. What happened in Pasadena could happen in any community in the United States. People everywhere who consider public school education the cornerstone of our democracy should know this story so that they can prevent tragedies like Pasadena's from recurring in other places." John Hersey
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p1 Ap 29 '51 1750w

"This book is highly revealing of the reactionary temper of our times. For this reason what happened in Pasadena should be of interest to every thoughtful citizen quite apart from his or her concern with the free schools of the nation. As I finished the final chapter I could not help comparing this narrative of the foolish action of a weak school board under heavy pressures with the action of the posse in 'The Ox-Bow Incident.'" J. B. Conant
N Y Times p1 Ap 29 '51 1550w

"A fair and able case history that documents an important subject."
+ New Yorker 27:119 My 3 '51 230w

Reviewed by Harold Gilliam
San Francisco Chronicle p25 Ap 29 '51 1550w

"Mr. Hulburd and the publishers deserve the thanks of the community-at-large for making this book possible." Norman Cousins
+ Sat R of Lit 34:12 My 19 '51 1000w
School & Society 73:255 Ap 21 '51 50w

Reviewed by W. W. Brickman
School & Society 74:264 O 27 '51 330w

Reviewed by Ethel Dexter
Springf'd Republican p5D Je 17 '51 400w

HULTGREN, KEN. Art of animal drawing; construction, action analysis, caricature. 134p il $4 McGraw 743.6 Animal painting and illustration 50-14794

Illustrations and very brief text provide instruction for the artist who wants to draw animals in action. The author was formerly associated with the Walt Disney studios.

Booklist 47:131 D 1 '50

"If your animal drawings are lacking in basic construction, grace, and action, and you find yourself lost and confused, this is the book that should take you out of the woods." Gary Sheahan
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p2 Ja 28 '51 90w

Reviewed by A. S. Plaut
Library J 76:1227 Ag '51 20w
School Arts 50:adv Mr '51 150w

HUME, HAROLD HARDRADA. Camellias; kinds and culture. 271p il $6 Macmillan 635.933166 Camellias Agr51-504

"'Camellias—Kinds and Culture' is a companion volume to 'Azaleas—Kinds and Culture,' the two covering in ampler measure the field dealt with in 'Azaleas and Camellias,' the small book published in 1931." Pref

Booklist 47:324 My 15 '51

"The clarity of his text and illustrations resolve all those doubts and misconceptions that have clouded camellias in the past and, by confusing the issue in the public mind, have retarded their popular progress."
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p18 Ap 22 '51 170w

HUME, ROBERT ARTHUR. Runaway star; an appreciation of Henry Adams. 270p $3.75 Cornell univ. press
B or 92 Adams, Henry 51-10524

By a combination of biography and extended commentary on Henry Adams' writings the author attempts to assess his position in American life and thought in the late nineteenth and early twentieth centuries. The author is Associate professor of English in the University of Nevada. Bibliography. Index.

HUME, R. A.—Continued

"If we can conceive of a reader coming to Adams without any previous knowledge, this is a useful guide-book. It will prevent a reader breaking his teeth on Gallatin or New England Federalism or taking The Education too seriously as an accurate prose narrative. There is a very full and useful bibliography and some useful criticism of previous workers in the field. It may be said, without offense, that this book is the work of a literary scholar rather than of an historian." D. W. Brogan

+ — New Eng Q 24:406 S '51 470w

New Statesman & Nation 42:474 O 27 '51 130w

"The larger part of this book is devoted to biographical data, summary and commentary. All this is done sympathetically, but somewhat ponderously. Adams is allusive, but not Mr. Hume; he is afraid to leave too much to our imagination. Sometimes, too, there seems to be real misunderstanding. . . When Mr. Hume turns away from commentary to the more rewarding task of interpretation he gives us something of value." H. S. Commager

+ — N Y Times p3 Ap 22 '51 1000w

"Perhaps the kindest thing one can say about 'Runaway Star' is that it is dedicated to the curious proposition that every line the master wrote was sublime. To be more truthful, it reads like nothing more than a collection of quotations from first-, second-, and third-rate authorities with the courage to set down their convictions on Adams, which is something Hume does his best to avoid." Wayne Andrews

— Sat R of Lit 34:13 S 22 '51 850w

"Mr. Hume's warm sympathy without uncritical bias has made him most successful, and one of the most complicated Americans of the past hundred years comes thoroughly alive in the general diversity of his interests."

+ U S Quarterly Bk R 7:226 S '51 200w

Reviewed by K. B. Murdock

Yale R n s 41:115 autumn '51 350w

HUMPHREY, RICHARD DALE. Georges Sorel, prophet without honor; a study in anti-intellectualism. 246p $4 Harvard univ. press

301 Sorel, Georges 51-11337

"This study assumes that the part of the work of Georges Sorel that has permanent value is his analysis of social dynamics and his development of a series of hypotheses leading to a greater understanding of behavior in modern politics. I have not been particularly concerned with his position in the factional struggles of sects and parties of the early twentieth century. . . My intention has been to present as clearly as may be such of his ideas and observations as should be taken into account in arriving at a judgment of his contribution to the study of social forces in the modern world. For this reason I have used his own words wherever possible." (Pref) Index.

Reviewed by F. N. House

Am J Soc 57:407 Ja '52 400w

"The reviewer wants to commend the author on the mastery of his subject matter and on his style of writing. It is a book worth reading." W. H. Cooke

+ Ann Am Acad 278:240 N '51 650w

"Mr. Humphrey writes well and gives a clear and thorough exposition of Sorel's ideas, but it must be said that he does not answer, or even seem to be aware of [certain] questions. He is properly concerned to show that Sorel was not the cynical amoralist, the diabolic dabbler in violence that a hasty reading of his best-known book, 'Reflections on Violence,' has led many to conclude, and he does a useful service by emphasizing Sorel's lifelong search for a higher and more humane social morality. But he often pushes this legitimate point so far that it tumbles over into apologetics, and his attitude toward his hero is often strangely uncritical." Dwight Macdonald

+ — N Y Times p10 Ag 12 '51 800w

"In writing this book Mr. Humphrey has not only made a contribution to the study of intellectual history but has also rendered a public service by acquainting Americans with the ideas of one of Europe's leading revolutionary philosophers." J. S. Schapiro

+ Sat R of Lit 35:18 Ja 5 '52 1150w

"Thorough and scholarly, the book casts illuminating highlights on this original social philosopher, who, like Nietzsche and Freud, was one of the great prophets of the modern age."

+ U S Quarterly Bk R 7:250 S '51 220w

HUNT, AURORA. Army of the Pacific; its operations in California, Texas, Arizona, New Mexico, Utah, Nevada, Oregon, Washington, Plains Region, Mexico, etc, 1860-1866. ltd ed 455p il $10 Clark, A.H.

973.7479 West—History—Civil war. U.S.—History—Civil war 51-406

"The large military operations in the Eastern Theater, the Mississippi Valley, and the deep South so far outshadowed Western operations during the Civil War as to make them virtually unknown. The Army of the Pacific undertakes to cover these minor operations in the regions mentioned in the subtitle. Much of the research is based on newspapers and other contemporary sources, and provides detailed accounts of local settings and personalities, as well as accounts of the comparatively small tactical operations." U S Quarterly Bk R

"This is chiefly a book for the student of California's history. Such a student will find it useful mostly for the clues it provides to further research, since the author does not pretend to make her book a straight line history but rather has chosen to examine certain colorful aspects of the story of the Army of the Pacific. But the careful documentation and the bibliography together with the reproductions of old prints and photographs make it a volume that will have a long life in reference libraries, and doubtless on the shelves of some enthusiastic amateurs of Western history as well." J. H. Jackson

+ San Francisco Chronicle p18 F 28 '51 700w

"Miss Hunt has drawn heavily on documentary sources and on local newspapers, visiting the areas concerned and 'tramping across the meadows where the volunteers drilled.' This arduous field-work has given her book a strong sense of locality, and access to some 150 letters written by the men themselves aided her in personalizing the recital."

+ Sat R of Lit 34:34 Ag 18 '51 270w

"A certain preciousness of vocabulary makes itself apparent in the text. Profanity is represented by dashes inside quotation marks, and common military phrases are also frequently set off in similar fashion. The work does, however, present in considerable detail an obscure phase of American history, and should be of interest to all concerned with the full history of the Civil War."

U S Quarterly Bk R 7:273 S '51 220w

HUNT, CLARENCE. Small town corpse. 224p $2 Phoenix

51-3128

Detective story.

"The native humor and general likability of Hart County's Sheriff McNarly is the saving grace in this too-tangled tale of abnormality and murder in a South Carolina cotton town." N. M.

N Y Times p12 Je 17 '51 100w

Reviewed by L. G. Offord

San Francisco Chronicle p21 My 20 '51 40w

"Subtle and exciting." Kathleen Sproul

Sat R of Lit 34:32 Jl 7 '51 60w

HUNT, DOROTHY ALICE BONAVIA-. Relentless tide. 320p $3 Dutton

51-9680

The scene is the Cornwall coast town of Trenmouth, dominated by the Faunce family. Canon Faunce, a gentle elderly rector, was ruled by a firm wife, a woman who did not suffer fools gladly. The marriage of their daughter Camilla, and the return of a wandering older son bringing a pretty but unacceptable wife, set off a train of events which ended in tragedy.

Booklist 47:253 Mr 15 '51

"Miss Bonavia-Hunt's new book lacks the charm of 'Pemberley Shades' [that delightful sequel to 'Pride and Prejudice'], but it has, perhaps, more strength." Edward Wagenknecht

+ — Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 Je 3 '51 500w

"'The Relentless Tide' has its faults: passages of verbosity, considerable coincidence and some facile tying-up of the plot, but it carries an air of integrity: the characters somehow matter more than the story that contains them." Ruth Chapin

+ — Christian Science Monitor p15 Mr 15 '51 600w

Kirkus 19:10 Ja 1 '51 160w

"This novelist uses flash-backs melodramatically, and tries to recall a little of Trollope and Thirkell as the established church set, in and about Trenmouth, is involved. She has lived among the people she portrays and knows them well. Construction of her stories will no doubt improve as she writes more. This is not a dull story, but sometimes it is almost confusing." K. T. Willis

Library J 76:179 F 1 '51 140w

"A highly readable novel in an excellent English tradition. The author's characterization is deft and intelligent. She writes smoothly and tells her story entertainingly and with suspense. Miss Bonavia-Hunt, who received warm praise for her first novel, 'Pemberly Shades,' a sequel to Jane Austin's 'Pride and Prejudice,' here gives further evidence of her gift for story telling in a wholly independent novel about her contemporaries." Mary Ross

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p13 Mr 18 '51 550w

Reviewed by Lily Van Ameringen

N Y Times p23 Je 10 '51 110w

"Miss Bonavia-Hunt writes with assurance, giving equal weight to humor, pathos, and the necessary self-protective selfishness of most human beings."

+ New Yorker 27:128 Mr 17 '51 90w

Reviewed by S. M. Neal

Springf'd Republican p10D Ap 15 '51 150w

HUNT, FRAZIER. Cap Mossman, last of the great cowmen; with sixteen illustrations by Ross Santee. 277p $3.75 Hastings house

B or 92 Mossman, Burton C. Frontier and pioneer life—Southwest 51-14166

The life story of Burton C. Mossman, later known as Cap, who worked with cattle on the Western ranches for 60 years. In the 1880's as a teen-ager he got his start as a cowhand in New Mexico; in 1944 when he retired he had handled more than a million cattle from Mexico to South Dakota.

Booklist 48:123 D 1 '51

Reviewed by Al Chase

Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 D 9 '51 230w

Kirkus 19:548 S 15 '51 120w

"Human episodes in Frazier Hunt's biography are as plentiful as details of range business. Ross Santee's illustrations add to the vitality of the book." J. F. Dobie

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 O 23 '51 300w

"Frazier Hunt has compiled a very readable biography from the verbal reminiscences of an old cowman. True, the book is largely episodic and Cap is the hero of every incident, but that's to be expected." Hoffman Birney

+ N Y Times p32 D 9 '51 270w

HUNT, MABEL LEIGH. The 69th grandchild; il. by Elinore Blaisdell. 68p $1.75 Lippincott 51-11168

The story of a charming family headed by Grandfather and Grandmother Bright. They had ten sons, ten daughters-in-law, and sixty-nine grandchildren, and its the sixty-ninth who is the central character in this book for ages seven to eleven.

Bookmark 11:61 D '51

"It is heart warming to read about such kind and charming people, and the 69th grandchild was lucky to be one of them. Their story, with its 10 attractive full page illustrations, is just right for children 7 to 11—and their parents and grandparents." Polly Goodwin

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 N 11 '51 140w

Cleveland Open Shelf p22 N '51

Kirkus 19:435 Ag 15 '51 120w

"All little girls of 9-11 will enjoy this charming story of family life today." D. M. Blasco

+ Library J 76:2013 D 1 '51 80w

Reviewed by L. S. Bechtel

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p20 O 14 '51 40w

N Y Times p39 N 11 '51 90w

HUNT, WALTER BERNARD, and BURSHEARS, J. F. American Indian beadwork. 63p il col pl $5 Bruce pub.

970.67465 Beadwork. Indians of North America—Costume and adornment 51-2514

"This instruction book devoted exclusively to the beadwork of the American Indian will be much in demand by teachers and other leaders, whose children are studying or 'playing' Indians. How-to-do-it diagrams for loomed and sewn beadwork are clearly illustrated, along with suggestions for developing appropriate designs. Fine examples of work, by Indian craftsmen, are shown in fifteen pages of black and white photographs and the collection of design details are reproduced in fourteen pages of full color and are classified according to tribes." (School Arts) No index.

Booklist 47:291 Ap 15 '51

Reviewed by A. S. Plaut

+ Library J 76:1227 Ag '51 40w

School Arts 50:9a My '51 90w

HUNTER, ARCHIBALD MACBRIDE. Work and words of Jesus. 196p $2.50 Westminster press

232.9 Jesus Christ—Biography. Jesus Christ—Teachings A51-4573

"Dr. Hunter is professor of New Testament at the University of Aberdeen, Scotland, and he has written this book to serve the practical purpose of putting into the hands of his students a short 'Life of Christ' embodying the fruits of modern scholarship. The book amounts to a miniature encyclopedia of answers to the questions commonly asked about Jesus' life and teaching." Churchman

"Those already familiar with the subject matter will agree with Dr. Hunter's own statement that he makes no claim to originality, and no one will be satisfied with all of his attempts to give reasonable explanations for the more startling aspects of Jesus' ministry. But his approach is both reverent and informed." R. M. Pearson

+ — Churchman 165:17 N 1 '51 170w

"Only in the fine literary analysis of the Sermon on the Mount and in the discussion on Jesus' teaching about the Kingdom will the advanced liberal scholar feel completely at home. True, the book is liberal with respect to the classically conservative treatment of the life in the work of Edersheim in the late nineteenth century. But definitely elsewhere will the student have to look for the modern interpretation of these documents whose text is so attractively printed here." J. H. Cobb

+ — J Religion 31:297 O '51 450w

HUNTER, A. M.—Continued
"The value of the book rests in its arrangement and that has much to commend it. Recommended for theological students and advanced Bible students."
+ Kirkus 19:181 Mr 15 '51 190w

HUNTER, EDWARD. Brain-washing in Red China; the calculated destruction of men's minds. 311p $3.50 Vanguard
951.042 Communism—China 51-7681

"One of the largest and most important jobs confronting the initial band of Chinese Communists was to subject their citizens to 'brain-washing' in order to rid them of 'imperialist poison' and to qualify them for their position in the 'new democracy.' . . The author interviewed at length returnees from the mainland to Hongkong, and his story is a horribly incredible one of exploitation of human nature, destruction of individualism, and intellectual conquest." Library J

Booklist 48:121 D 1 '51

Reviewed by Walter Simmons
Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 D 9 '51 350w

"To anyone interested in the study of Communism, and especially to anyone who believes that Communism may offer a solution to at least some of the problems of mankind, Mr. Hunter's book is highly recommended. Like Communist China, it 'leans to one side.' It is not the whole story, but it is an important part of the story." H. C. Hinton
+ Commonweal 55:259 D 14 '51 1000w

"The material here presented should be thoughtfully studied, the evidence weighed. There is no attempt at 'style'; in fact there is a kind of crudity in the writing, but the substance carries its own impact."
Kirkus 19:462 Ag 15 '51 240w

Reviewed by H. P. Linton
Library J 76:1417 S 15 '51 100w

"Edward Hunter's 'Brain-Washing in Red China' suggests seriously that China is in a trance, induced by mass hypnosis. . . This is a formidable statement, but Hunter goes a long way toward proving it. He quotes liberally from Red indoctrination material and the words of Chinese leaders; he cites the captured diaries of Communist fighters from Korea to Singapore; and he tells the story of a number of Chinese who have lived under Mao Tse-tung's 'New Democracy'—students, newspaper men, a Nationalist flier, a teacher and several business men. Taken all together, it makes an impressive case." Stuart Lillico
N Y Times p6 O 21 '51 600w

HUNTER, FREDERICK WILLIAM. Stiegel glass. 338p il $10 Dover
666.1 Glassware. Stiegel, Henry William 51-9160

"Published in a limited edition in 1914 [Book Review Digest 1915] and long out of print, this covers not only Stiegel's career and products but other glass industries of the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries. Excellent illustrations." Booklist

Booklist 47:190 Ja 15 '51

"Admirable illustrations; technical and biographical material. Recommended." A. S. Plaut
+ Library J 76:410 Mr 1 '51 140w

HUNTINGTON, MRS HARRIET E. Aircraft U. S. A. 52p il $2.50 Doubleday
623.746 Airplanes 51-14108

The planes are grouped as trainers, fighters, bombers, transports, and liaison plane. Each plane has a photograph, descriptive text, and a recognition silhouette. For ages 10 to 16.

Booklist 48:149 D 15 '51

Reviewed by Polly Goodwin
Chicago Sunday Tribune p10 Ja 6 '52 40w

Kirkus 19:662 N 15 '51 80w

"Data authentic, but facts are meager and descriptions not as complete as they could be. Good beginner's book but does not compare favorably with Our Fighting 'Jets.' . . Interest level about junior high." M. I. Ross
Library J 76:2016 D 1 '51 80w

"This book is wonderful for any age that cares about airplanes and for fathers to share with non-readers." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p28 N 11 '51 130w

Reviewed by Creighton Peet
N Y Times p42 D 9 '51 140w

HURD, CLEMENT. Run, run, run. [32p] il $1.25 Harper
51-11658

Picture book, with very brief text, tells how the little dog chased the cat down the street and the cat in turn chased the dog, until at last they both ran home. For very young readers.

"Into the pictures for this simple tale Mr. Hurd gets so much action and detail that small children will go through the book quickly the first time to learn how the race comes out; and then turn the pages over and over again to see all the things that are happening as the dog and cat race by. One of Mr. Hurd's best books." J. D. Lindquist and S. M. Andrews
+ Horn Bk 27:320 S '51 100w

Kirkus 19:345 Jl 15 '51 80w

"Not an important book, but some libraries may care to add it to their collections." D. M. Blasco
Library J 76:1232 Ag '51 50w

Reviewed by L. S. Bechtel
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 S 30 '51 80w

HURD, EDITH (THACHER) (MRS CLEMENT HURD). Old Silversides; il. by Clement Hurd. unp $1.50 Lothrop
51-8224

Old Silversides was a big inter-urban bus with a driver named Ben. One day when Ben and Silversides were taking a lot of people to the city, Old Silversides stalled on the last hill. All the passengers had to take another bus, and Silversides went into a garage where the mechanics made her over, so she was just like new.

Bookmark 11:35 N '51

Kirkus 19:529 S 15 '51 180w

"Recommended." Virginia Russell
+ Library J 76:1815 N 1 '51 40w

"Younger boys who travel by bus will find it rewarding as to facts, but it is oddly lacking in either humor or pointed story." L. S. Bechtel
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 N 11 '51 60w

HUREWITZ, JACOB COLEMAN. Struggle for Palestine. 404p maps $6 Norton
956.9 Palestine—Politics and government. Palestine—Jewish-Arab problem 50-9773

For descriptive note see Annual for 1950.

"A work of great and lasting merit. Written by one with an intimate first-hand knowledge of the Middle East and fully documented from official sources, the book deserves to be characterized as a definitive work within the field of its compass." H. L. Hoskins
+ Am Pol Sci R 45:258 Mr '51 500w

"This is a remarkable book. Amid the welter of literature on Palestine since 1917, The Struggle for Palestine stands out as a monument to intellectual honesty, fine scholarship, and objective presentation. During this dismal period of history when passion, prejudice, and propaganda make it difficult to ascertain the truth about recent and contemporary historical events, it is encouraging to read J. C. Hurewitz's account of the many faceted Palestine problem." William Yale
+ Ann Am Acad 273:299 Ja '51 390w

Bookmark 10:4 O '50 40w

Foreign Affairs 29:502 Ap '51 10w

"Dr. Hurewitz is thoroughly familiar with his material. From 1937 to 1940 he was a student in Palestine at the Hebrew University and came to know the country, the people, and the languages. During World War II he served as Palestine expert with the American Office of Strategic Services and later held a similar post with the State Department. . . The student of Zionism, of Palestine, or of the Arab East will find 'The Struggle for Palestine' a valuable addition to the literature of his field." P. L. Hanna

+ Sat R of Lit 34:19 Ja 6 '51 720w

Social Studies 41:379 D '50 20w

"Points of view will always vary on controversial questions. Mr. Hurewitz has his point of view, but he comes to his task well qualified, has made much use of original sources, and has attempted to provide his readers with the essentials of the Palestine situation. There are copious notes and an excellent bibliography."

+ U S Quarterly Bkl 6:450 D '50 240w

HURLIMANN, BETTINA. Children's portraits; the world of the child in European painting; introd. by Bettina Hürlimann; eighty pl. in photogravure; three pl. in colour. 39p $3 Thames

757.5 Children—Portraits. Paintings. Children in literature and art 51-10549

A collection of European paintings of children, selected from those painted since the 15th century. Short introductory essay. No index.

Booklist 47:306 My 1 '51

Reviewed by A. S. Plaut

Library J 76:964 Je 1 '51 60w

San Francisco Chronicle p24 My 13 '51 170w

Springf'd Republican p8C Ap 29 '51 70w

Times [London] Lit Sup p16 Ja 12 '51 110w

HURLIMANN, MARTIN. English cathedrals; with a foreword by Geoffrey Grigson; phot. and introd. by Martin Hürlimann, descriptive text by Peter Meyer. 47p 144pl $7.50 Houghton

726.6 Cathedrals 50-9818

"Seventeen of England's most important cathedrals are beautifully pictured in photographs with particular attention to details such as vaulting. Each plate is described in a short note. Only six floor plans. An attractive book for architectural or art collections although tourists may also appreciate it." Booklist

Booklist 47:170 Ja 1 '51

"Such a work could only justify itself by exhibiting the cathedrals in a new light, with a freshness of observation that had escaped us even on our best intentioned visits. This Mr. Hürlimann, with the novel perspective of a foreigner, has succeeded overwhelmingly in doing, without the use of trick photography or exaggeration, simply, in fact, reverently." Francis Russell

+ Christian Science Monitor p11 Ap 19 '51 270w

"Hürlimann has found the perfect quality of light to throw weather-beaten cut-stone into appealing relief. This book is admirably produced in Switzerland and England." Lincoln Kirstein

+ New Repub 123:25 D 11 '50 40w

Sat R of Lit 34:56 O 6 '51 290w

"It passes the great test of anthologies, which is that, although one may regret certain omissions—and I for one would have liked to see something of Chichester—nothing is included that one would wish away. With Mr. Hürlimann's perceptive introduction and the historical notes and commentary on the plates by Mr. Meyer, it provides the cultured foreign tourist with excellent reasons for coming to England, while for the Englishman the visual stimulus it affords is just what is needed to make him revisit his cathedrals and see them with new eyes." Marcus Whiffen

+ Spec 184:124 Jl 28 '50 650w

Times [London] Lit Sup p528 Ag 25 '50 450w

HUSSEY, CHRISTOPHER. English country houses open to the public. 176p il $7.50 Scribner

914.2 Country houses. Architecture—England 51-12216

"Chronological order and geographical distribution indicated. Noteworthy features also mentioned. Historical notes full and interesting. Photographs of keep and barbican, tower and chimney-piece, quadrangle, topiary, library, picture gallery are fascinatingly informative in their sharp detail. The work of famous architect, artist and cabinet-maker as well as charming effects by lesser craftsmen add up to a large and imposing whole." Library J

Booklist 48:45 O 1 '51

"Excellent gift-book for the Anglophile; a must for stage-designer or producer about to dazzle our eyes with quondam grandeur." A. S. Plaut

+ Library J 76:1424 S 15 '51 80w

Manchester Guardian p4 Jl 31 '51 40w

Reviewed by C. E. Vulliamy

+ Spec 187:70 Jl 13 '51 900w

"This record is so welcome and so well produced that it is perhaps a pity that it has been decided not to include such details as particulars of admission—even though these are contained in another book from the same publisher. . . The library at Holkham does not, as stated, form one side of the main block but runs the length of the southwest pavilion; and the Earls of Scarbrough use only one 'o' in their name. These are, however, only slight failings in a work otherwise full of distinction and for which both the publishers and Mr. Hussey, who has shown discrimination and skill in choosing and arranging the photographs, are greatly to be congratulated."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p466 Jl 27 '51 600w

HUTCHISON, MRS RUTH SHEPHERD, and ADAMS, RUTH CONSTANCE. Every day's a holiday. 304p $3.50 Harper

394 Holidays. Festivals 51-9099

Material on holiday and festival customs from all parts of the earth. Arrangement is chronological. The descriptions are brief, averaging about a half page in length, and usually there is one holiday per day. Bibliography. Index.

"Librarians, teachers, recreation leaders and party planners will welcome this as a supplement to Hazeltine as well as Spicer's Book of festivals."

+ Booklist 47:215 F 15 '51

"A pleasant and unusual book for armchair travelers, quite different from other holiday texts."

+ Kirkus 18:687 N 15 '50 170w

"Informative reading; interesting for a cursory glance, with a certain usefulness in school libraries. For reference purposes, it would seem wiser to have treated less widespread material more fully rather than giving superficial details on such a large scale." R. P. Tubby

Library J 76:112 Ja 15 '51 80w

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p18 S 16 '51 260w

"This book is similar to the librarian's old reference standby, 'The American Book of Days,' but is shorter than the older work and not nearly as ambitious a project. It is much less definitely a reference volume, though it is not so restricted to the American scene as is the other book, and its more popular format and style make it more readable and interesting." R. H. D.

HUTCHISON, R. S.—Continued

+ San Francisco Chronicle p12 Ap 8 '51 400w

Wis Lib Bul 47:57 Mr '51

HUTSCHNECKER, ARNOLD A. The will to live. 278p $3.50 Crowell

616.8 Medicine, Psychosomatic 51-13303

"A physician bases this discussion of the part emotions play in illness on the Freudian concept of the interplay of the creative and destructive drives in man. The destructive path is the line of least resistance, he says, but the creative is healthier. After describing a number of cases that illustrate his thesis, he discusses the warning signals that indicate the growth of the destructive force, explains how evation of a problem causes physical illness, prescribes a regimen for alleviating emotional stress so that the mind can deal with its problems, and states the principles according to which one can cultivate the will to live." Booklist

Booklist 48:95 N 15 '51

"One certainly cannot take this book seriously, from a scientific viewpoint. But as a stimullator of research, as a source of speculation into the causes of sickness and recovery, as a disturber of the peace of the biochemist, and above all, as a thrower of a long overdue monkey-wrench into traditional medicine and satisfied specialties, it is valuable." A. E. Streeseman

Survey 87:495 N '51 500w

HUZAR, ELIAS. Purse and the sword; control of the army by Congress through military appropriations, 1933-1950. 417p $4.50 Cornell univ. press

355 U.S. Congress. House. Committee on appropriations. U.S. Congress. Senate. Committee on appropriations. U.S. War department 50-9490

"Professor Huzar's theme is Congressional control rather than executive coordination, and he is concerned with the control of military rather than civilian agencies. . . His main object is to show how far military budgets influence military appropriations, how military appropriations influence military policy and administration, and how in recent years Congress has allowed the military increasing discretion in spending sums of increasing size." (Yale R) Index.

Reviewed by J. L. McCamy
Am Pol Sci R 45:564 Je '51 700w

"Outside of the final chapter the book consists largely of excerpts from appropriation committee hearings tied together under chapter headings such as, 'Military Budgets and Military Appropriations' . . . and 'Legislative Control and Administrative Discretion.' After wading through some three hundred pages of this the only big picture emerging is that Congress gives blank checks to the military in wartime and is watchful to penurious in peacetime. This most informed persons already know." E. M. Peixotto

— + Ann Am Acad 273:214 Ja '51 390w

"Mr. Huzar's book is really the story of how the separation of powers in our structure of government operates in providing the money necessary for our Army. From the wealth of detail provided, I conclude not that the Congressional appropriation process is either inadequate or unimportant. It seems to me surprisingly workable. The value lies in the constant possibility of legislative criticism of administrative action, with the threat of decreased funds as a sanction. The threat is only occasionally abused; it is undoubtedly a salutary influence upon administrators. Here it seems to me is the real importance of the 'power of the purse.' " J. D. Millett

Pol Sci Q 66:143 Mr '51 1000w

Reviewed by P. R. Levin
Sat R of Lit 34:36 F 24 '51 280w

"Mr. Huzar's study has a special interest in its bearing on the question of civilian control of the military."

+ U S Quarterly Bkl 6:463 D '50 260w

"There is ample evidence here of careful scholarship and of prodigious labors in sifting thousands of pages of Congressional hearings, debates, and reports. It is disappointing, therefore, to find how little all this detailed documentation adds to earlier judgments based on more limited investigation." H. C. Mansfield

+ — Yale R n s 40:365 winter '51 800w

HYDE, DOUGLAS. I believed. 312p $3.50 Putnam

B or 92 Communism 50-10575

For descriptive note see Annual for 1950.

Reviewed by Gerry Sherry
+ Cath World 172:396 F '51 420w

"Douglas Hyde's career, including an editorship of the Daily Worker and culminating in the shift of allegiance from the Kremlin to the Vatican, is reminiscent in its outlines of that of Louis Budenz. But judging from their respective books, one must conclude that Mr. Hyde—in sharp contrast to the impression Mr. Budenz leaves of himself—is a man of very real humility and charity of spirit, making honest effort to understand why he and so many others were implicated in the dreadful trap." Arthur Schlesinger, Jr.

+ Nation 172:91 Ja 27 '51 650w

"Thoughtful men and women who have standards of scientific truth, of personal loyalty or of journalistic honesty, find the British Communist Party increasingly impossible. Mr. Douglas Hyde is only one of many who have had to make the break. The distinction of his case is that he does not indulge in the usual recriminations and has avoided in his book any of that self-advertising and self-righteousness which has characterised so many converts from Communism." Kingsley Martin

New Statesman & Nation 41:76 Ja 20 '51 700w

"I have tried to indicate what makes 'I Believed' both like and unlike other books of its kind. I must add that the tale it tells is well told, after the only fashion befitting it—that of a newsman. It is full of incidents interesting in themselves, of life in war-time London, of life in rural Wales, and about Hyde's native Bristol." H. L. Binsse

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p17 Ja 14 '51 850w

San Francisco Chronicle p17 Ja 21 '51 180w

"This is an extremely important book. It is the best account yet published of how the Communist Party works in England; it describes twenty years of Communist history, with portraits of the British Communist leaders. . . Whether his readers are for or against Catholicism, if they approach his book with an open mind they must see, I think, that Catholicism is a freer, more human, more individualistic faith than Communism; and it is as important for non-Catholics as for Catholics to realise this." Stephen Spender

+ Spec 185:86 Ja 19 '51 750w

Times [London] Lit Sup p189 Mr 30 '51 2650w

HYLANDER, CLARENCE JOHN. Adventures with reptiles; the story of Ross Allen. 174p $2.75 Messner

598.1 Allen, Ross. Reptiles 51-13264

Ross Allen, who has liked snakes from his boyhood, has built up a profitable business from his hobby. This is an account of the Reptile Institute in Silver Springs, Florida, which he runs. In addition to telling Ross Allen's story the author describes the care of reptiles as pets.

Booklist 48:105 N 15 '51

"This is a fascinating glimpse of an unusual occupation."
+ Kirkus 19:486 S 1 '51 120w

"Vocabulary will be difficult for children under junior high age, and there are only a few photographs. However, this will be a fascinating addition to any biography collection for older children." N. S. Chasteen
+ Library J 76:2125 D 15 '51 90w

"Mr. Hylander's style is factual, terse and adult. The rather dry effect will not hinder reading by older boys or men who know the importance of the unique field discussed. The four pages of photographs are better than none." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p28 N 11 '51 180w

"A thrilling story and well worth reading." F. A. Wiley
+ N Y Times p14 N 11 '51 130w
Wis Lib Bul 47:252 N '51

I

IDELL, ALBERT EDWARD. Stephen Hayne. 422p $3.50 Sloane
51-7951

"At the close of the Civil War, Stephen Hayne fought Indians in the west for four years, then returned to his Pennsylvania Dutch farming family near Pine Grove, Schuylkill County. Farming being at a low ebb, he took a job in the near-by coal mine. This is the story, then, of his quick rise in the company, and his conflicts with big business, represented by the Philadelphia and Pottsville interests; the importation of the Irish to work in the mines, and their conflicts with the native Dutch and the mining interests." Library J

Booklist 48:125 D 1 '51
+ Bookmark 11:59 D '51 40w
Reviewed by Fanny Butcher
Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 D 23 '51 500w
Kirkus 19:587 O 1 '51 120w

"Written with real feeling and restraint, this is a novel which covers in a thorough and entertaining manner, an important period in the development of labor unions and the resultant conflicts with the bosses. Based on fact." L. R. Etzkorn
+ Library J 76:2006 D 1 '51 130w

"This novel is a spacious book as well as a long one, offering both romantic interest in the course of Stephen's and Terry's affairs and insight into conflicts and processes that have been a part of the making of our United States. Many readers, and among them probably an unusually high proportion of men, will find 'Stephen Hayne' of particular interest for the light it casts on many headlines of today as well as on the past." Mary Ross
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 N 25 '51 600w

"A peculiarly timely historical novel, with a heart, a conscience, and an obvious moral for 1951. Although the plotting and casting are mechanical, honest indignation lends vitality to this tale of a half-forgotten American smear campaign in which men with names like McCarthy and McCarran were catching, not pitching." Richard Match
+ — N Y Times p58 N 25 '51 400w

IKE, NOBUTAKA. Beginnings of political democracy in Japan. 246p $3.50 Johns Hopkins press 342.52 Japan—Politics and government
50-14240

For descriptive note see Annual for 1950.

Reviewed by E. S. Goldfrank
Am Anthropol 53:403 Jl '51 250w
Reviewed by H. S. Quigley
Am Hist R 56:662 Ap '51 400w
Foreign Affairs 29:332 Ja '51 30w
Reviewed by Guy Wint
Manchester Guardian p4 Je 26 '51 350w

"The movement for political democracy in Japan did not begin with the Allied Occupation. There were earlier homegrown efforts, and Nobutaka Ike's book is a historical analysis, splendidly done, of the origins, development and ultimate failure of the most important of these." T. C. Smith
+ New Repub 124:20 Ja 29 '51 230w
Sat R of Lit 34:53 Je 16 '51 170w

"The new material Mr. Ike has discovered on the leaders of the nineteenth-century movement is particularly valuable. Through his extensive use of basic Japanese source material, he has produced the most detailed and authoritative study of the early democratic movement yet to appear in a Western language. Many of the details will interest only specialists in the field, but the general reader will find adequate material to answer the question why the constitutional monarchists and advocates of an authoritarian government were able to overcome the early democratic movements in Japan."
+ U S Quarterly Bkl 6:451 D '50 290w
Reviewed by G. E. Taylor
Yale R n s 40:331 winter '51 750w

ILLINGWORTH, FRANK. Pete of Ice Bay; il. by R. M. Powers. 245p $2.75 Coward McCann 51-7746

Story of a boy's experiences when he is given permission by his father, a trading-post manager, to go with the Eskimos on the winter hunting trip. For boys ten to thirteen.

Reviewed by E. C. Ince
Christian Science Monitor p11 N 21 '51 120w

"A solid adventure story with an authentic Arctic background."
+ Kirkus 19:581 O 1 '51 120w

"Fascinating, although frequently harsh, details of Eskimo life are related by the author who spent several years in the Arctic. Bold drawings by R. M. Powers illustrate the well-written, exciting text effectively." Elizabeth Mitchell
+ Library J 76:2016 D 1 '51 80w

"There is plenty of queer, surprising, unpleasantly realistic information to prove that the writer knows this place and these very primitive people, and all of it should interest young would-be explorers. The details of hunting and fishing, of learning to bear cold and hunger, are most vivid." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p22 N 11 '51 90w
Springf'd Republican p8C D 16 '51 100w

ILYIN, OLGA. Dawn of the eighth day. 386p $3.75 Holt
51-10776

"This long autobiographical novel of Nita Ogarin unfolds a charming account of traditional Russia under the Czar as lived by large, wealthy, aristocratic family of Tamborsk. . . The 'Bloodless Revolution' brought terror, murder, homelessness. Nita and her nine-day-old son fled bloody Tamborsk. Eventually she was reunited with surviving members of her family; her father, beloved by the peasants, had been murdered 'in error.'" Library J

Booklist 47:381 Jl 1 '51
Reviewed by M. W. Stoer
Christian Science Monitor p7 Jl 26 '51 550w

"Recommended reading for him who has time." H. S. Taylor
+ Library J 76:514 Mr 15 '51 100w

"Though 'Dawn of the Eighth Day,' is probably a somewhat idealized picture of Russia's prerevolutionary gentry, it is patently sincere and doubtless could have been true of a family and place. It will help readers in other countries to realize what has been swept away, but not the destructive force nor the aftermath." Mary Ross

ILYIN, OLGA—Continued
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p13 Ag 26 '51 420w

"Miss Ilyin is clearly a skillful story-teller." Rene Fueloep-Miller
+ N Y Times p16 Je 17 '51 440w

"It is avowedly fiction, and the author wants it understood that this is so. Nevertheless few readers will be able to avoid the feeling that it is also profoundly autobiographical. If indeed it is—as I believe it must be—it is not surprising, for the picture of the Russia-that-used-to-be carries solid conviction. . . All in all, I should read 'Dawn of the Eighth Day' if I were you, if only to see this side of the Russia that was." J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p16 Je 20 '51 750w

"Olga Ilyin's narrative is rambling and verbose, though often exciting, and she tells it with deep emotion. But she presents a one-sided picture." Ray Pierre
+ — Sat R of Lit 34:29 Ag 25 '51 290w

IM, YONGSIN (LOUISE YIM). My forty year fight for Korea; with the editorial assistance of Emanuel H. Demby. 313p $3.50 Wyn

B or 92 Korea. Statesmen—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc. 51-14062

"South Korea's official delegate to the United Nations tells the moving, unaffected story of her persistent fight for an education and her country's independence." Bookmark

Booklist 48:123 D 1 '51

Bookmark 11:59 D '51 20w

"All Louise Yim, official delegate to the United Nations of the South Korean Government, needed to do to write her book, 'My Forty Year Fight for Korea,' was to look into her heart. Her story was all there—tender, terrifying, undeviating in its demand for freedom. . . All whose loved ones are in Korea will especially appreciate the rare insight into the heart of that 'Land of the morning calm' to be found in the pages of Louise Yim's inspiring biography."
+ Christian Science Monitor p13 N 21 '51 650w

"A rather plaintive, combative autobiography, in which Louise Yim, Korea's outstanding liberal patriot, portrays herself as a sadly unrewarded and unappreciated angel among thieves."
Kirkus 19:601 O 1 '51 210w

Reviewed by H. P. Linton
Library J 76:1928 N 15 '51 100w

"Miss Yim writes an effective book, also a frank one. She divides Americans into those, like Mrs. Roosevelt and General Marshall, for whose help she is grateful, and those whom she considers her country's betrayers. Suffering at further destruction of her ravaged country, she yet desires U. N. forces to drive on to complete victory. Whatever one feels about her uncritical endorsement of the Rhee regime, one recognizes a woman of devotion, resourcefulness and invincible courage." Frances Witherspoon
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p21 N 18 '51 650w

Reviewed by Charles Grutzner
N Y Times p3 D 30 '51 900w

IMPACT of America on European culture [by] Bertrand Russell [and others]. 100p $1.75 Beacon press

901 Europe—Civilization. U.S.—Civilization 51-9998

"A group of essays originally presented on the B.B.C. with five Islanders—Russell, John Lehmann, Sean O'Faolain, J. E. Morpurgo and Martin Cooper—and an American, Perry Miller, to discuss the matter at hand. In these brief essays the American will find a serious and rather nervous appraisal of America as a leader in guiding the destinies of Europe. Although praising our energy and optimism, material advances and resources, our British friends are leery about our 'materialism,' the effect of our movies and trashy popular literature, and the present witch hunting hysteria in Washington. Mr. Miller answers these objections explosively, but no less anxiously." Kirkus

Reviewed by D. W. Brogan
Ann Am Acad 278:233 N '51 600w

Reviewed by H. W. Foote
Crozer Q 28:284 Jl '51 200w

Foreign Affairs 30:160 O '51 20w

"Stimulating for us all."
Kirkus 19:93 F 1 '51 110w

"Next time the B. B. C. wants a series of lectures on the impact of America on Europe maybe they'd better let Mr. Miller give all of them. That way maybe we'd find out something about the subject instead of just learning that it's too bad about America. We hear plenty of that right here at home." H. S. Commager
N Y Times p6 Je 24 '51 1350w

INDEX to the Best plays series, 1899-1950. 147p $2.75 Dodd

808.82 Drama—Indexes. Mantle, Burns—Best plays. Chapman, John Arthur—Burns Mantle best plays 50-11032

"This index of 33 volumes of the Burns Mantle best plays series meets a long-felt need. The plays are indexed by title, author, adapters, composer and lyricists." Wis Lib Bul

Booklist 47:171 Ja 1 '51

"Highly recommended." George Freedley
+ Library J 76:114 Ja 15 '51 80w

Wis Lib Bul 47:84 Ap '51

INDUSTRIAL RELATIONS RESEARCH ASSOCIATION. Aged and society [a symposium on the problems of an aging population] editorial bd: J. Douglas Brown [and others] ed: Milton Derber. 237p pa $3 The association, office of sec-treas, Park & University, Temp. 3, room 5, Madison 5, Wis.

618.97 Old age

"A series of essays dealing with various aspects of the aged, presented by some fifteen specialists in various related fields. Part I is devoted to an analysis of the new age distribution in our present society, urban and rural. Part II deals with the problem of the older worker and the responsibilities of providing for him both economically and socially. Part III reports on various research projects that have begun and need to be carried on in this field." Library J

"Excellent symposium. . . This volume should be useful not only as a text and reference in the social sciences, but also as a handbook for management, union representatives, and administrative officials." J. K. Myers
+ Am Soc R 16:275 Ap '51 180w

Reviewed by D. K. Oko
Library J 76:184 F 1 '51 80w

"Like many symposiums this volume lacks synthesis. The reader must knit together for himself a variety of stimulating contributions. Many readers will be disappointed to find so little analysis of the much-talked-about private pensions. Yet for the employer, the Government official, the legislator, the union representative or the social worker who daily worries about or works with the aged, this volume offers the best balanced discussion that is in print." J. J. Corson
+ — N Y Times p47 O 21 '51 380w

INGENIOUS mechanisms for designers and inventors; il. descriptions of a large variety of standard and special mechanisms selected by experienced machine designers as outstanding examples of ingenious mechanical movements for use in designing automatic machines and other mechanical devices. 3v 536;538;536p il ea $6; set $15 Industrial press

621 Machinery. Machinery, Kinematics of. Inventions

Volumes 1-2 (1930) were edited by F. D. Jones; v3 (1951) by H. L. Horton. "Inventors and machine designers have cherished the first two volumes of this set ever since they were published. The present volume contains only mechanisms which were not described in the first two volumes. Otherwise, the format and organization of the material are similar. The mechanisms are not only described, but their chief elements are illustrated in drawings. Much of the material was first published in Machinery." Library J

Reviewed by R. R. Hawkins
Library J 76:523 Mr 15 '51 60w

N Y New Tech Bks 36:26 Mr '51

INGERSOLL, RALPH MCALLISTER. Wine of violence. 304p $3 Farrar, Straus 51-2016

A novel of love and war, the scene of which is Europe during World war II. The central characters are Rowell Reardon, an ex-staff officer turned combat soldier; Olivia, his mistress who overplayed her hand; and Isabel whom he really loved.

Reviewed by August Derleth
Chicago Sunday Tribune p8 Mr 18 '51 350w

"A book that would never have passed the Watch and Ward Society in its heyday; and that should be considered poison by most public libraries with any problems of censorship."
— Kirkus 19:72 F 1 '51 320w

Reviewed by Abner Gaines
Library J 76:514 Mr 15 '51 130w

Reviewed by Harvey Swados
New Repub 124:30 My 7 '51 180w

"I imagine that 'Wine of Violence' will prove to be one of the rare romances that appeals to men, partly because the relationships between men and women are described straightforwardly, from the male viewpoint, but also for its account of the frequently unromantic feelings of men in a war. With Reardon and the others, you share the gamut of emotions from fear through boredom and exasperation to splendor that were so fantastically compounded in life in the war-time capitals, on the Normandy coast, in the Ardennes forest. Whether or not you agree with what Reardon saw and felt and chose, you are not likely to lay the book down before its end." Mary Ross
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 Ap 1 '51 550w

"The story is told through a narrator whose omniscience would make Conrad's Marlowe turn pale with envy: in fact, everybody involved confides in the 'I' of this book with a frankness all but unimaginable outside an analyst's office. Yet 'Wine of Violence' is a lively, at times mildly moving and always readable book. . . As a novelist, Mr. Ingersoll is still a fine war correspondent." Robert Pick
+ — N Y Times p21 Mr 25 '51 360w

Reviewed by Don Fabun
San Francisco Chronicle p13 Ap 8 '51 700w

INGERSOLL, ROBERT GREEN. Letters; ed. with a biographical introd. by Eva Ingersoll Wakefield. 747p $7.50 Philosophical lib.

B or 92 51-335

A collection of the letters of Colonel Robert Ingersoll, edited with a biographical introduction and connecting text by his granddaughter. Index.

"Mrs. Wakefield truthfully asserts that she has kept herself within bounds and that she has not written a complete biography but has presented materials of use to the social and intellectual historian and to future biographers. In this she has succeeded admirably, for each of the seven sections of the book throws light on American social mores and institutions of the nineteenth century as well as upon Ingersoll." A. F. Tyler
+ Am Hist R 56:919 Jl '51 950w

Reviewed by Helmut Kuhn
Ann Am Acad 276:145 Jl '51 400w

Christian Century 68:466 Ap 11 '51 360w

"His outlook was sound and sane on most subjects, and many of his objections to the churches led to reforms approved by those in the churches today. This book is interesting reading." R. C. Miller + Churchman 165:18 Ap 1 '51 190w

Reviewed by T. V. Smith
Ethics 61:247 Ap '51 220w

"Recommended for large public and educational libraries." H. H. Bernt
+ Library J 76:515 Mr 15 '51 140w

Manchester Guardian p3 Mr 20 '51 240w

Reviewed by J. W. Krutch
Nation 172:207 Mr 3 '51 850w

"Most of the 'liberals' of his day thought of him as their ally. It is this which makes his letters good social history, excellent comment on the American mind as it moved toward a greater maturity." Avery Craven
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p14 Ap 22 '51 950w

"Readable and informative, this volume of letters offers a fair sampling of Ingersoll's views on many questions. The biographical sketch, written with candid admiration, and personal affection, reveals a man who was a famous orator, a fighter against religious orthodoxy, and also a warm and benevolent human being." N. G. Goodman
+ N Y Times p18 Mr 11 '51 290w

San Francisco Chronicle p22 F 11 '51 250w

School & Society 73:48 Ja 20 '51 40w

"The high-flown style and the gift for words and phrases that enabled him to hold crowds for hours at a time on the lecture platform are often indicated, with something of his personal magnetism. This book is no formal biography, but it will serve to acquaint this generation with a famous figure of another." D. B. B.
+ Springf'd Republican p8C F 4 '51 650w

U S Quarterly Bk R 7:127 Je '51 250w

INNES, HAMMOND, pseud. See Hammond-Innes, R.

INNES, MICHAEL, pseud. See Stewart, J. I. M.

INTERPRETER'S Bible; the Holy Scriptures in the King James and revised standard versions with general articles and introduction, exegesis, exposition for each book of the Bible [editorial board: George Arthur Buttrick, and others] 12v; v7, General articles on the New Testament; Matthew; Mark. 917p $8.75 Abingdon-Cokesbury

220.7 Bible. Whole—Commentaries. Bible. N.T.—St Matthew. Bible. N.T.—St Mark (51-12276)

"First published volume of twelve volume commentary on entire Bible, under general editorship of George Arthur Butterick, Minister, Madison Avenue Presbyterian Church, New York City. Aim of Commentary is to meet threefold need of preachers, teachers, and other biblical students: introduction to Scripture and individual books, exegesis of text, and relevant exposition. King James and Revised Standard Versions in parallel columns, followed by commentary by specialist and exposition by eminent preacher or professor of homiletics are features destined to make the work most useable." Library J

INTERPRETER'S Bible—Continued

"Here beginneth one of this generation's greatest enterprises in cooperative biblical scholarship and religious publication. . . Certainly one cannot call this less than a 'great' commentary." W. E. Garrison
+ Christian Century 68:1161 O 10 '51 800w

Reviewed by R. E. Donlon
Christian Science Monitor p5 D 27 '51 600w

"As a sample of the whole series, it is clear that every minister should subscribe now for all of them. For the first time, an exhaustive commentary makes use of all the recognized findings of Biblical scholarship and combines them with the implications for preaching to today's needs." R. C. Miller
+ Churchman 165:16 O 15 '51 330w

Cleveland Open Shelf p25 N '51

Reviewed by D. M. Beck
+ Crozer Q 29:53 Ja '52 3400w

"It is hard to conceive that any preacher or teacher making any pretense at having a good working library could do without this wholly admirable aid to the interpretation of the Bible. The Interpreter's Bible will no doubt be a standard reference book for years to come."
+ Kirkus 19:605 O 1 '51 400w

"Heartily recommended on condition that future volumes measure up to high standard set by this volume." O. G. Lawson
+ Library J 76:1705 O 15 '51 120w

"Certainly the infinite variety and rich possibilities of the Scriptures have seldom been so fully revealed as they are in 'The Interpreter's Bible.' " N. K. Burger
+ N Y Times p14 O 14 '51 390w

Time 58:75 O 22 '51 800w

IRISH, WILLIAM, pseud. See Woolrich, C.

IRWIN, MRS LAETITIA (McDONALD). See McDonald, L.

ISAACS, HAROLD ROBERT. Tragedy of the Chinese revolution. rev ed 382p $5 Stanford univ. press

951.042 China—History—Revolution, 1925-1928. Communism—China 51-12683

"The period of the Chinese revolution, as viewed by the author of this revision of a work originally published in 1938, [in England] extends from 1924 through 1927. The roots of the revolution he finds in the soil of the past and in the changes in the class pattern clearly perceptible after 1918. But the overthrow of the Manchus in 1911, and the struggle to maintain the Republic from 1912 to 1917, is not viewed as part of the revolutionary process." Sat R of Lit

Booklist 48:63 O 15 '51

"Although a reader might well exercise care in avoiding Mr. Isaacs' ultimate conclusions, it is indeed useful and enlightening to follow the course of Mr. Isaacs' research." Gordon Walker
Christian Science Monitor p9 O 15 '51 480w

Reviewed by Harry Schwartz
N Y Times p26 O 14 '51 650w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson
San Francisco Chronicle p16 S 13 '51 550w

"The greatest immediate value of the work is in the light which it sheds on Asian strategy and tactics. No one can read the book and support the view of the infallibility of Stalin's judgment, or conclude that Stalinism represents anything but a policy of promotion of Russian state interests under cover of the concept of world revolution." H. M. Vinacke
+ Sat R of Lit 34:11 S 1 '51 850w

ISELY, JETER ALLEN, and CROWL, PHILIP AXTELL. The U. S. Marines and amphibious war; its theory, and its practice in the Pacific. 636p il maps $7.50 Princeton univ. press

940.545 U.S. Marine corps. World war, 1939-1945—Amphibious operations. World war, 1939-1945—Pacific ocean 51-9463

Records and appraises the campaigns of the marines in World war II. Includes a study of the part of the marine corps in developing the doctrine of amphibious fighting.

"A very sound and useful production." C. P. Stacey
+ Am Hist R 56:927 Jl '51 700w

"This study is a must for all students of amphibious warfare and provides a suitable textbook or valuable collateral reading in officers advanced training courses for amphibious operations." L. P. Lovette
+ Ann Am Acad 275:184 My '51 450w

Reviewed by George Scharschug
Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 Mr 11 '51 480w

Reviewed by F. L. Oliver
Christian Science Monitor p11 Mr 3 '51 440w

Current Hist 20:229 Ap '51 110w

Reviewed by Walter Millis
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Ap 15 '51 800w

"A uniquely honest and yet fair and balanced example of military writing. . . That the book is as relentlessly accurate and impartial as it is says much about the Marine Corps and its confident pride in its own record." George McMillan
+ N Y Times p3 F 18 '51 1050w

"From the Marine Corps Historical Project at Princeton University has come what well may become the standard work on the doctrine and practice of amphibious war. Armchair admirals and generals will get a shock when they read this fine textbook and discover how much more there was to the Pacific war than firing a salvo and going over the beach. . . This is a scholarly, technical book, but at the same time it is manageable and absorbing." C. X. Larrabee
+ San Francisco Chronicle p19 F 18 '51 750w

"An honest and painstaking book that is far more reliable than most of the official histories, which all too often conceal the crucial mistakes made and constitute a whitewash for services, units, and commanders." P. H. Douglas
+ Sat R of Lit 34:20 Je 16 '51 650w

U S Quarterly Bk R 7:166 Je '51 230w

ISSLER, MRS ANNE (ROLLER). Our mountain hermitage; Silverado and Robert Louis Stevenson. 138p il $3.50 Stanford univ. press

B or 92 Stevenson, Robert Louis. Silverado, California 50-11016

"This volume, third in the series of three Stanford books treating Stevenson's stay in California, rounds out the period of Stevenson's greatest development. It blends firsthand interviews with material from historical research. It adds bit by bit to the understanding of this man of genius." (Publisher's note) This book is based on an earlier work by Mrs Issler, Stevenson at Silverado (Book Review Digest 1939) (cf Preface).

"Mrs. Issler's previous volume 'Happier for His Presence' was an important contribution to biography. . . This second volume is an altogether slighter affair. . . She is right in claiming that 'The Silverado Squatters,' as a piece of sincere reporting, was a great improvement over Stevenson's earlier travel books. But good as it was, 'The Squatters' is not good enough to merit a whole book as a footnote. Mrs. Issler would have done better had she added this material to 'Happier for His Presence.' " DeLancey Ferguson
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 D 24 '50 400w

Reviewed by Ralph Thompson
N Y Times p4 D 31 '50 240w

"Her book in its present state is one which any Stevenson fan should have alongside the author's earlier study on the same subject which it so ably expands and supplements." J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p20 N 21 '50 700w

"As a whole the study seems weighted down with menus and minutiae, but perhaps that is the most effective counter to the 'chocolate angel' or the 'barley-sugar effigy' legends woven by the Stevenson cult and the similarly inaccurate critical reaction. Miss Issler confirms the reticent, courteous and sympathetic aspects of Stevenson's personality and his perpetual observation of life." S. M.
+ — Sat R of Lit 34:61 Je 16 '51 350w

ITALIAN painting; the creators of the renaissance; critical studies by Lionello Venturi; historical surveys by Rosabianca Skira-Venturi; tr. by Stuart Gilbert. (Painting, colour, history, v4) 205p 105 col il $15 Skira
759.5 Painting, Italian 50-11049

"This work on the Renaissance painters, with 105 reproductions in full color, is the first of a group to be devoted to Italian painting. . . Uses the method of placing reproductions in the portions of the text concerning them, or at any rate the painters whose work they are selected to represent. Text and documentation, as is the Skira plan, are made to 'frame' the plates, a method not often worked out heretofore on the ground that it must be, and is, highly expensive. Throughout this volume the commentary is shared by Lionello Venturi and Rosabianca Skira-Venturi, the former supplying the critical studies, the latter furnishing the historical surveys." San Francisco Chronicle

"The reproductions, some 109 mounted plates, are all in color, and of highest technical excellence. Many of the subjects chosen for illustration are works not commonly reproduced, lending freshness and a sense of discovery. . . Most heartening is the emphasis in the critical text upon the religious and spiritual factors at play in the foundations and development of Renaissance achievement." M. P. Bourne
+ Cath World 172:395 F '51 350w

Reviewed by George Biddle
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 Ap 1 '51 330w

"All the pictures are in full color and reproduced with a loving fidelity." G. P. Du Bois
+ N Y Times p7 Ja 21 '51 180w

Reviewed by J. J. Sweeney
N Y Times p1 D 9 '51 400w

"Written, in collaboration with his daughter, by one of the foremost authorities on Italian art, who is an extremely sensitive critic as well, this book has a documentary soundness, coupled with philosophic understanding, that makes it invaluable to any student of the Renaissance."
+ New Yorker 27:103 F 24 '51 160w

"Reader or student will find that the planners of this volume have omitted few of the men of importance in the Italy of the period, the men who, inspired by the fervor of a high ideal, were the true harbingers of the Renaissance. It is because this was the purpose of the volume that the works of art chosen for reproduction are not wholly religious though in the nature of things these predominate, but were selected to represent all the varied aspects of the extraordinarily colorful life of the time, including portraits, landscapes, historical events, and the like." Macalister Jones
+ San Francisco Chronicle p29 D 10 '50 950w

"The publisher was not satisfied with producing a mere picture book or having a selection of ambitious reproductions accompanied by an inadequate text. The 'Studies' in which Lionello Venturi, one of the most acute and spirited art critics of today characterizes and rates the creators of the pictorial Renaissance attain the highest standard. It is less fortunate that Professor Venturi's text is divided into short paragraphs, each of which is devoted to a group of articles not always organically connected so that the author is never able to develop his ideas fully and has to confine himself to aphoristic remarks." Hans Tietze
+ — Sat R of Lit 34:38 My 5 '51 800w

"The survey of Italian painting from the thirteenth to the end of the fifteenth century produced by the firm of Albert Skira is an ambitious and remarkable attempt to use modern methods of colour reproduction so as to make a really valuable and accurate record, or at any rate reminder, of some of the greatest masterpieces of this school. It also has extremely helpful critical studies by Signor Lionello Venturi and brief historical surveys by Mme. Rosabianca Skira-Venturi but the use of colour is, of course, what distinguishes it from other short guides to the subject."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p288 My 11 '51 480w

IVENS, BRYNA, ed. See Seventeen (periodical). Seventeen reader

J

JACKSON, CAARY PAUL (COLIN LOCHLONS pseud). Three-and-two pitcher. 206p $2.50 Crowell 51-935

This baseball story for boys sets forth the experiences of Joe Wicklon during his first year on the Bedloe Post team of the American Legion junior baseball league.

"A lively, easy to read story." Polly Goodwin
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p10 My 27 '51 50w

Kirkus 19:2 Ja 1 '51 100w

"The coach here does a good deal of teaching of baseball and self-control, and Joe Wicklon has to learn a little of both before he can be a pitcher. Would suggest for ages 9-12, rather than the blurb's 10-14." Lillian Morrison
Library J 76:415 Mr 1 '51 40w

Reviewed by L. S. Bechtel
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 My 6 '51 30w

Reviewed by R. A. Brown
N Y Times p14 Ag 5 '51 20w

JACKSON, JOSEPH HENRY. Christmas flower; il. by Tom Lea. 31p $1 Harcourt
Christmas stories 51-13796

"Vignette, telling the Mexican legend of the miracle wrought by small Indian Pablo's lowly gift of poinsettia leaves to the Christmas manger in the village church." Bookmark

+ Bookmark 11:60 D '51 30w

Cath World 174:240 D '51 50w

"A short story, written with sensitive restraint, warm feeling, and genuine validity." Richard Sullivan
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p42 D 2 '51 180w

Kirkus 19:647 N 1 '51 100w

Reviewed by George Conrad
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p9 D 23 '51 90w

"Jackson has caught the wonder of myth with a magical touch of his own." Charles Lee
+ N Y Times p53 D 2 '51 230w

Reviewed by L. B. Vallely
San Francisco Chronicle p20 N 13 '51 600w

"The story is well told, and the drawings are unusual."
+ Sat R of Lit 34:47 D 15 '51 200w

Reviewed by S. M. Neal
Springf'd Republican p28A N 25 '51 110w

JACKSON, KENNETH, ed. & tr. Celtic miscellany; translations from the Celtic literatures. 359p $3.75 Harvard univ. press

891.6 Celtic literature [51-1521]

An anthology of Celtic prose and verse, translated from all the six Celtic languages. The selections are chosen from literature covering a period of about thirteen hundred years; and are arranged under the following headings: hero-tale and adventure; nature; love; epigram; 'Celtic magic'; description; humour and satire; bardic poetry; elegy; and religion. Includes pronunciation of some Celtic names.

"One of the liveliest collections of prose and verse in years." Vivian Mercier
+ Commonweal 54:364 Jl 20 '51 750w

Reviewed by B. I. Evans
+ Manchester Guardian p4 F 2 '51 300w

"Here, you could say with equal justice, are two books for the price of one, a primer of Irish and a primer of Welsh verse and prose, with a few delicate Breton, Cornish, Manx and Scottish Gaelic trouvailles into the bargain. . . On the Irish side of the matter, I am not competent to judge how representative Professor Jackson's selection is or what may be his notable omissions, though here is a good deal with which the poets of the Celtic twilight familiarised us, now looking rather more of the early morning and very much the better for it." Rayner Heppenstall
+ — New Statesman & Nation 41:198 F 17 '51 1200w

"The new beauties revealed in this generous selection of Celtic poetry and prose, covering about a thousand years and all newly translated, are exciting and important." Kenneth Young
+ Spec 185:872 Je 29 '51 750w

"The collection comes as a happy surprise, because literary interest in the Celtic 'fringe' has waned. Unlike the late Grace Rhys and other popular anthologists of the past, Professor Jackson has not had to depend on the work of other translators. He has made all his own translations and has ranged widely through the six Celtic literatures, bringing us much that is both attractive and unfamiliar."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p114 F 23 '51 700w

JACKSON, SHIRLEY (MRS STANLEY EDGAR HYMAN). Hangsaman. 280p $3 Farrar, Straus

51-10525

Character study of a shy, sensitive adolescent, whose domineering father tried to turn her into a writer. Natalie's answer was to retire into a dream world. At the progressive college which her father chose she retreated more definitely into her world of fantasy until near tragedy brought her to her senses.

Canadian Forum 31:144 S '51 240w

Reviewed by Riley Hughes
Cath World 173:473 S '51 160w

Reviewed by August Derleth
Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 Ap 29 '51 320w

Cleveland Open Shelf p12 My '51

Kirkus 19:159 Mr 15 '51 160w

"Miss Jackson's penetrating writing makes each character stand out vividly even though some only pass through briefly. Every event and relationship starts out in a normal healthy vein only to become twisted into an unhappy warped mold as in most of the author's writing. Recommended." C. J. Roth
+ Library J 76:704 Ap 15 '51 90w

Reviewed by Norman Shrapnel
+ Manchester Guardian p4 O 5 '51 130w

Reviewed by J. D. Scott
New Statesman & Nation 42:466 O 27 '51 310w

"Miss Jackson writes with grace and precision of this tenuous borderland country of the emotionally disturbed. 'Hangsaman' is good fiction and, psychologically speaking, good fact." F. H. Bullock
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p7 Ap 22 '51 480w

"The language of 'Hangsaman' is alive, complex and clear. Its perceptions are piercing beyond the ordinary. The characters are true to themselves (and to life) with every breath they draw; the situations are true to the characters and, in turn, subtly affect and alter them. One cannot doubt a word Miss Jackson writes." A. S. Morris
+ N Y Times p5 Ap 22 '51 800w

New Yorker 27:113 Je 9 '51 120w

"Perhaps as a novel 'Hangsaman' does not quite come off; it depends, I suppose, on how 'compressible' you want a novel to be, how much form you feel it should have. But no one can question the author's great ability to do the kind of thing she wants to do. This is as disturbing a story as the shorter 'Lottery' was, and in exactly the same way." J. H. Jackson
+ — San Francisco Chronicle p20 My 11 '51 950w

"In its final passages the novel certainly achieves an eerie quality; at any given point Miss Jackson's writing as such bears the distinction she has been so justly praised for. But the structure of the novel falls apart; it cannot contain both the satirical reporting of its first half and the nightmare fantasy of its second." W. T. Scott
Sat R of Lit 34:11 My 5 '51 600w

"Hangsaman does not reach the level of The Lottery, which had a murderous impact, but it confirms the belief that Miss Jackson is an exceptional writer. In the longer form, she loses tension, and her repeated glimpses into her heroine's mind, clear and sharp though they are, give somehow the effect of taking her eye off the ball." L. A. G. Strong
+ — Spec 187:452 O 5 '51 280w

Time 57:114 Ap 23 '51 350w

Times [London] Lit Sup p697 N 2 '51 460w

Reviewed by Paul Pickrel
Yale R n s 40:767 summer '51 70w

JACOBS, HERBERT AUSTIN. Practical guide for the beginning farmer. 237p $3 Harper

630.2 Agriculture—U.S. Country life
Agr51-516

Advice for the person planning to live on a farm. Considers the problems to be met, time saving methods, raising animals, truck farming, choosing the community, where to get the money, etc. Index.

Booklist 47:305 My 1 '51

Bookmark 10:181 My '51 20w

"This book is intended to be a simple, common sense handbook designed to guide the novice with a yen for the country. It succeeds admirably." Richard Orr
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p7 My 6 '51 320w

Wis Lib Bul 47:85 Ap '51

JACOBS, MORRIS BORIS. Chemical analysis of foods and food products. 2d ed 902p il $9 Van Nostrand

543.1 Food—Analysis. Chemistry, Analytic
51-3875

"The new edition, like the first edition [Book Review Digest 1938], is designed for food chemists, food technologists, public-health workers and others concerned with the purity, composition, processing, and dietary value of food products. It contains precise descriptions of commercial food products and provides detailed procedure for their analysis. The general arrangement of the earlier edition has been retained, but its scope has been broadened to cover problems in toxicology. Chapters have been added on chemical food poisoning, flavor and quality measurement, and filth and decomposition in food and the sections on coloring matter, milk products, and vitamins have been doubled in length. Chapter references have been brought up to date. These changes and revisions account for more than 350 additional pages." N Y New Tech Bks

Chem Eng 58:264 Ag '51 30w

N Y New Tech Bks 36:55 Jl '51

JACOBS, MORRIS BORIS, ed. Chemistry and technology of food and food products; prepared by a group of specialists. 2d ed rev & enl 3v v1 832p $12 Interscience

641.1 Food—Analysis (51-4274)

"The second edition of this book, which appeared first in 1944 [Book Review Digest 1944, 1945] has been revised and enlarged. There are to be three volumes, of which Volume I is now available. Volume I contains general statements about each of the many aspects of the broad subject of foods, their chemistry and technology. Each of the collaborating editors has outlined the scope of his particular field. In the limited space alloted to each subject, only fundamentals and general considerations could be given." Chem & Eng N

"A chapter on food coloring here seems out of place and the chapter on food spoilage and food poisoning is not too complete. . . Most of the information in the various chapters has been brought reasonably up to date with some exceptions. . . Dr. Jacobs has done a remarkable job attempting to compile in these volumes complete information concerning foods for use by commercial food processors, commercial laboratories, and officials of agriculture and public health departments. . . This book is recommended." F. A. Korff

+ — Am J Pub Health 41:1300 O '51 400w

Reviewed by H. S. Smith

Chem & Eng N 29:3190 Ag 6 '51 100w

JACOBS, WILBUR R. Diplomacy and Indian gifts; Anglo-French rivalry along the Ohio and Northwest frontiers, 1748-1763. 208p il $5 Stanford univ. press

973.26 America—Discovery and exploration —English. America—Discovery and exploration—French 51-2149

"This study is concerned with Anglo-French rivalry along the Ohio River and the Northwest frontier between 1748 and 1763. Clothing, firearms, food, toys, jewelry, and rum were the staples of the campaign to win the favor and support of the natives—or, sometimes, to insure their neutrality." (Sat R of Lit) Bibliography. Index.

"Here is a fascinating story of Anglo-French rivalry along the American frontier in that historic decade which saw the final expulsion of French power from Canada." J. A. Schutz

+ Am Hist R 56:986 Jl '51 320w

"This work is a real contribution to our knowledge of Anglo-French-Indian relations and will thus be welcomed by the specialists in this field. The general reader, however, will probably feel that it is overloaded with detail, in some places to the point of being tedious. The book would have been more readable and just as useful if the narrative had been more interpretative and less factual." O. P. Chitwood

+ — Ann Am Acad 273:219 Ja '51 360w

"Dr. Jacobs is to be highly commended for his painstaking research, as is Stanford University Press for so beautiful a book." M. G. Lawson

+ Canadian Hist R 31:427 D '50 260w

Reviewed by J. T. Winterich

Sat R of Lit 33:40 O 14 '50 140w

JAGENDORF, MORITZ ADOLF. Merry men of Gotham; il. by Shane Miller. 150p $2.50 Vanguard

398 Folklore—England 51-9500

Eighteen tales of the people of Gotham, England, who were often wise enough to gain their ends by playing the fool. The author ends by tracing the stories to an old English jest book which was in print for three centuries, and rediscovered and reprinted fifty years ago in England.

Booklist 47:225 F 15 '51

Reviewed by Polly Goodwin

Chicago Sunday Tribune p10 F 11 '51 220w

Reviewed by J. F. Davidson

Churchman 165:17 Ag '51 70w

Cleveland Open Shelf p8 Mr '51

"From the first story to the last, the tales all are good, all poetically told with a lilt, and will tickle the fancies of the many children who love nonsense." Phyllis Fenner

+ Library J 76:338 F 15 '51 80w

"This amusing book is for all who like boisterous folk tales, whether ten, twenty or eighty. . . The book is very well made and most cleverly illustrated." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 F 4 '51 260w

"This is an enjoyable collection that should add to Dr. Jagendorf's reputation as a skillful teller of folk stories and traditional tales." W. G. Tyrrell

+ N Y Times p26 Ja 28 '51 180w

"Here they are, gay and absurd and lovable, a perfect source for storytellers who want to give the children of our day something to laugh about. Old as they are, they have in them the humor that is latent in all of us and that is kindly rather than cynical. This is a collection that will have great value for many years to come."

+ Sat R of Lit 34:47 Mr 17 '51 280w

JAMES, DAVID HENRY. Rise and fall of the Japanese empire. 409p $5 Macmillan

952 Japan—History. World war, 1939-1945—Japan 51-5239

An account of the war against Japan as seen by the author from his post as a combat Intelligence officer with the British forces in Malaya, and later as a prisoner of war. The book begins with a brief synopsis of two thousand years of Japanese history. Index.

Current Hist 21:94 Ag '51 100w

Reviewed by Guy Wint

Manchester Guardian p4 Je 26 '51 50w

"Impressive book. . . The book attempts to cover so much ground that it is rather hard going in spots." O. D. Tolischus

+ — N Y Times p3 Je 3 '51 650w

"A most interesting account of the war against Japan. . . Unfortunately, it is not until page 191 of his book that Captain James starts this personal account. Up until that point he has burdened his pages with a rambling, badly organized, and at points wildly inaccurate account of Japanese history from its mythical beginnings to 1941." E. O. Reischauer

+ — Sat R of Lit 34:17 Je 2 '51 750w

"What his work chiefly lacks is balance. He was to a certain extent an eyewitness of the Russo-Japanese war, in which he met the great soldier, General Nogi. Yet he writes nothing about its conduct, except to suggest that Nogi sacrificed men to his impatience at Port Arthur. On the other hand, some of the detail about the Malayan campaign is too trivial for a book of this scope."

Times [London] Lit Sup p519 Ag 17 '51 450w

JAMES, HENRY. Portable Henry James; ed. with an introd. by Morton Dauwen Zabel. (Viking portable lib) 696p $2.50 Viking

51-12143

After a biographical interpretation and a chronology of Henry James, the book includes "five of James' best shorter tales; three 'nouvelles'; a selection of his critical writings; essays on Rome, Paris, London and New York; passages from his autobiographical memoirs and notebooks and a sampling of his brilliant letters to friends and relatives, covering, in all a period of 50 years of his life." (Springf'd Republican)

Booklist 48:33 S 15 '51

"Professor Zabel has done a much more scholarly job of editing on his edition of Henry James than many 'Portable' editors have seen fit to undertake. His introductory essay is top flight, and all his notes are excellent. His detailed chronology is the closest approach to a James biografy which we possess. His annotated bibliografy suffers only because of a lamentable tenderness toward a few freak items." Edward Wagenknecht

JAMES, HENRY—Continued
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 S 16 '51 220w

Kirkus 19:358 Jl 15 '51 160w

"Mr. Zabel's notes are succinct and informative, and his preface is an admirable summary of the scope and significance of a creative career too long underestimated and still not sufficiently appreciated." Leon Edel
+ Nation 173:406 N 10 '51 800w

"This epitome of a great author, boldly original in conception and masterly in execution, stands out as one of the most successful volumes in a series notable for expert editing." G. F. Whicher
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p16 S 30 '51 220w

"A first-rate anthology for the general reader. The expert will find the volume, with its powerful apparatus of notes and bibliographies, an indispensable work of reference. The introduction is the best brief account of James' life, mind and art that we have." F. W. Dupee
+ N Y Times p5 S 2 '51 700w

"The problem of presenting James in six or seven hundred pages would seem to be a staggering one, but Mr. Zabel has dealt with it brilliantly."
+ New Yorker 27:119 S 22 '51 120w

"It seems to me that Morton Dauwen Zabel's 'The Portable Henry James' is just about as good a piece of work as it could be, within the spatial limits by which the editor was confined. Obviously there was no room in such a book for even one of the novels; but there was room for excellent specimens of all the other kinds of writing—save for the ill-starred plays—that engaged James's pen for fifty years." B. R. Redman
+ Sat R of Lit 34:15 S 29 '51 480w

Springf'd Republican p6D Ag 19 '51 140w

JAMES, LESLIE, pseud. Americans in glasshouses. 152p $2 Schuman

917.3 Satire. National characteristics, American. U.S.—Civilization 51-9497

Humorous satire, touched at times with seriousness, in which the author "explains" America and Americans to Europeans, particularly the English.

Booklist 47:251 Mr 15 '51

Reviewed by Henry Sowerby
Christian Science Monitor p9 Mr 12 '51 500w

Kirkus 18:746 D 15 '50 150w

"At his best, Mr. James can be sarcastic in an amiable sort of way. . . At his worst, he can be pretty trying, as when he indulges in some awkward comedy over the 1937 Memorial Day massacre in Chicago. But he is an impartial sort of clown, sometimes making fun of America, sometimes of England, and sometimes of himself, by the simple expedient of falling flat on his face." Herbert Kupferberg
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p20 Mr 11 '51 500w

"The publishers do not say who Leslie James may be, but it is not to be lightly assumed that he is British even though he (or is it they?) has written primarily for a British audience—or, for that matter, that either S. J. Perelman or the editors of Punch, had they put their minds to it could not have done a better job. Yet in the long history of mutual Anglo-American explications there have been few wittier books than this one, and few that explicated less." Ralph Thompson
N Y Times p4 Mr 18 '51 450w

"Mr. (or Miss) Leslie James has written the book on America to end all books on America. There is no aspect of American life neglected in these hundred-and-fifty-odd pages. . . With a firm hand and a super-keen scalpel all American institutions are dissected and then thrown on a rubbish heap." D. W. Brogan
Sat R of Lit 34:17 Mr 3 '51 800w

School & Society 73:110 F 17 '51 20w

"It is doubtful whether the Europeans most prone to superficial generalizing about the American way of life will be amused. The sarcasm is sophisticated and streamlined. . . The more the European reader understands the 'snide' references in almost every sentence, the more wry will his laughter be; for Mr., Mrs., Miss, or Messrs. Leslie James conceal a deathly earnestness beneath the wisecracks. So the 'funny business' becomes less funny and more businesslike the more one studies it. The book is one to have, read, and re-read."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p591 S 22 '50 360w

JAMES, WILL. Book of cowboy stories; il. by [the author]. 242p $2.50 Scribner 51-10910

"A new collection of stories, taken from James' books, of cowboys and horses engaged through the seasons in such activities as riding herd, breaking, branding, roundups, rodeos, and rustling. Includes some stories from adult books now out of print. Grades 7-9." Booklist

Booklist 47:385 Jl 1 '51

Reviewed by J. D. Lindquist and S. M. Andrews
Horn Bk 27:252 Jl '51 60w

Kirkus 19:128 Mr 1 '51 80w

"The author's vivid drawings help to make this a provocative and thoroughly exciting book. Recommended for all children's rooms and young people's collections and for all would-be cowboys, young or old." M. D. Read
+ Library J 76:1035 Je 15 '51 70w

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 Jl 1 '51 80w

"It is the sort of book that boys in camp and on vacation will love to have and to share."
+ Sat R of Lit 34:48 Je 9 '51 40w

Wis Lib Bul 47:220 S '51

JAMES, SIR WILLIAM MILBURNE. Old Oak; the life of John Jervis, Earl of St Vincent. 230p $3.50 Longmans

B or 92 St Vincent, John Jervis, earl of 51-1712

"A biography of the famous British admiral who was responsible for building the navy into the most potent force to oppose Napoleon. Jervis was responsible for recognizing the ability of Nelson. He made him commander over the head of more senior officers and entrusted him with the most difficult and dangerous commands [and] was the author of many reforms." (Current Hist) Index.

Current Hist 20:105 F '51 100w

"Admiral James's new biography presents a fair picture of St. Vincent's professional achievements. There is almost nothing to report of his private life, and the reader does not succeed in getting on intimate terms with the stern old man, although Admiral James does his best to make him seem human by relating whatever anecdotes bear witness of a spark of warmth or humour." G. P. Griggs
+ Spec 185:56 Ja 12 '51 650w

JAMESON, MALCOLM. Bullard of the space patrol; ed. by Andre Norton. 255p $2.50 World pub.
51-12352

Science-fiction short stories, relating feats of a naval hero of the future, John Bullard, "born on Terra, in the ancient district of Ohio, in the year 3915."

Booklist 48:127 D 1 '51

Horn Bk 27:419 D '51 50w

Kirkus 19:369 Jl 15 '51 70w

"These are some of the better specimens of the best period of American science fiction; and it's a pleasure to welcome them at last to hard covers." H. H. Holmes
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p14 S 30 '51 180w

"Here, heroes are heroes and villains are of ebon hue. Yet the characterizations are appealing as well as naive; the story moves with smooth celerity. It can be enjoyed by all aficionados, but its greatest appeal will be to the science fiction fan, junior grade." Villiers Gerson

N Y Times p20 N 11 '51 110w

Reviewed by Don Fabun

San Francisco Chronicle p20 D 16 '51 60w

JAMIESON, JOHN. Books for the army; the Army library service in the second World war. 335p $4.50 Columbia univ. press

027.652 U.S. Army library service 50-8066

For descriptive note see Annual for 1950.

"This is the best and most complete history of the Army Library Service in World War II which has yet appeared, and it is likely to be the definitive one. . . All in all, it is a creditable piece of work and one which is valuable to the profession as it should be also to the Army in guiding the future development of its library program in peace or in war. . . As a technical report it could serve any country (and indeed the German Army Library Service was similar in many ways to our own). As an historical review it does not treat of the solutions which might have been used. But as far as it goes, Books for the Army does well a job that needed to be done." Herbert Goldhor

+ College and Research Libraries 12:90 Ja '51 650w

"The literature of librarianship in war is increasing; in 1918 Theodore Wesley Koch published his fascinating War Libraries and Allied Studies. . . Recently we have had Mr. Pafford's Books and Army Education, 1944-46. . . The present volume is as large as the other two put together, but there is no sign of inflation in this remarkably honest and human story of the American effort. It is interesting to see how Mr. Jamieson set about his task. . . The result has been to provide us with a picture whose authenticity few will doubt in the slightest degree." R. L. C.

+ Library Association Record 53:98 Mr '51 550w

"The book is a gratifying record of an important historical development in American library service. John Jamieson has brought into play events, activities, and professional personalities, so that the reader may place the Army Library Service in proper perspective and judge its true significance." Irving Lieberman

+ Library Q 21:147 Ap '51 800w

"The book is a major contribution to the professional literature since it covers an important and historical development in American library service and at the same time its style is extremely readable. Perhaps its findings and activities as a war effort may be inspirational for similar programs in the interest of peace." Irving Lieberman

+ Library Review 13:45 spring '51 600w

"The wide knowledge of the author, his realistic approach, and his forthright, readable style combine to make this a definitive guide to all librarians who must necessarily in these times be either directly or indirectly concerned with the reading of American soldiers."

+ Wilson Bul 25:265 N '50 310w

JANES, EDWARD C. Boy and his gun [introd. by H. P. Sheldon]. 206p il $3.50 Barnes, A.S.

799.2 Shotguns. Hunting 51-12506

Safe and sane instructions on hunting, and how to handle a gun. The author includes anecdotes of his own hunting experiences and those of his son.

"Should be a valuable addition to any sportsman's library." J. A. Menaugh

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p27 N 11 '51 120w

"An excellent book, written in good style, for the teen ager or novice, with a fine sporting approach and reliable information on guns, rifles, hunting duck, geese, deer, etc., and safety in handling guns." R. W. Henderson

+ Library J 76:1813 N 1 '51 30w

Reviewed by H. C. Rubicam

N Y Times p42 O 7 '51 150w

Reviewed by Jack Pegues

San Francisco Chronicle p4 N 25 '51 40w

JANET, LILLIAN, pseud. of JANET CICCHETTI and LILLIAN RESSLER. City beyond Devil's gate. 263p $2.75 Random house

50-10479

A novel of Virginia City, Nevada, in the 1860's, when the Comstock Lode was making fortunes for some people. The plot centers around Jason Feathers, banker and ruthless planner; Dan McGrath, ex-preacher and idealist; and Emily Fielding, daughter of a wealthy prospector.

Booklist 47:156 D 15 '50

"Period writing, this often appealing story successfully summons up an unvarnished portrait of the West's primitive days of settlement, but is mainly for women readers."

+ Kirkus 18:568 S 15 '50 140w

"A thoroughly entertaining novel." J. E. Brown

+ Library J 75:1661 O 1 '50 130w

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p15 Ja 21 '51 200w

Reviewed by Jane Voiles

San Francisco Chronicle p15 F 4 '51 200w

"The melodrama suffers as the novel comes near to literary fullness and good writing. Although it is always unsettling to see good and mediocre qualities in the same book the reader may be satisfied that an effort has been made to fill romantic character and historical incident with something better than straw." Jane Mayhall

+ — Sat R of Lit 33:32 D 23 '50 360w

JANEWAY, ELIOT. Struggle for survival; a chronicle of economic mobilization in World war II. (Chronicles of America ser, v53) 382p il $5; textbk ed $2.50; subs ed lea $6 Yale univ. press

330.973 Industrial moblization (for war). World war, 1939-1945—Economic aspects. U.S.—Economic policy 51-7683

"In this volume Eliot Janeway looks generally at the methods of getting manpower and resources into military use and he traces the succession of mobilization agencies from the aborted War Resources Board of 1939, through the National Defense Advisory Commission, the Office of Production Management, S. P. A. B., the War Production Board and on the Office of War Mobilization and Reconversion. His primary interest, however, is in Washington politics during and immediately before the war." (N Y Times) Index.

Booklist 48:98 N 15 '51

"We have here a remarkable achievement: an account of 'economic mobilization' which mentions industry or industrial production, the development of scientific techniques, labor, agriculture, finance, such domestic matters as rationing, only as purely administrative problems, or as problems in personality. The naive student who turns hopefully to this book for a few elementary facts about production will be baffled. . . Mr. Janeway's book is full of asides that command interest or challenge. It will not be denied that he writes brilliantly; sometimes, however, the brilliance seems to glitter for its own sake." H. S. Commager

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p3 D 16 '51 1300w

"His treatment of substantive economic issues is brief and on occasion somewhat inaccurate in detail—specifically in his discussion of the continuing effects of devaluation and the

JANEWAY, ELIOT—Continued
gold purchase policy, farm price minimums in the Emergency Price Control Act, the timing of conversion to jet aircraft and fuel. . . The reader, though impressed by Janeway's subtlety as a political historian, would be happier if the author weren't so certain. Good history consists partly in identifying what the historian cannot know for sure." J. K. Galbraith

N Y Times p3 N 11 '51 1100w

New Yorker 27:79 D 22 '51 150w

"This account is invaluable for an understanding of the present problems of industrial moblization. Moreover, it is a book about which students of politics will long debate. Some of them may disagree with Mr. Janeway's analysis, but none of them will find it dull." R. H. Connery

+ Sat R of Lit 34:13 N 24 '51 750w

JANEWAY, ELIZABETH (HALL) (MRS ELIOT JANEWAY). Vikings; il. by Henry C. Pitz. (Landmark bk.) 175p $1.50 Random house

Eric the Red—Juvenile literature. Leif Ericsson—Juvenile literature 51-13561

The story of Eric the Red and his son Leif the Lucky in Iceland, Greenland and Vinland. For ages 9 to 12.

Chicago Sunday Tribune p12 N 11 '51 50w

"As always a fascinating tale, but the characterization is slim indeed and the dialogue is hardly aided by the neutral, cinema speech of our own time."

Kirkus 19:439 Ag 15 '51 160w

"A readable book. . . Despite the many actual happenings and true details, it is regrettable to find at times some misconceptions not in accordance with known facts and the spirit of the times." Inger Boye

Library J 76:1713 O 15 '51 60w

Reviewed by L. E. Bechtel

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p7 N 11 '51 30w

"Mrs. Janeway has chosen the medium of fiction to tell her story, but in the interest of historical accuracy she has explained, in her foreword, which parts of her story are fact and which are fiction." R. A. Brown

N Y Times p36 N 11 '51 60w

Reviewed by M. P. Allen

+ Sat R of Lit 34:51 N 10 '51 120w

JAQUES, MRS FLORENCE (PAGE). As far as the Yukon; il. by Francis Lee Jaques. 243p $4 Harper

574.97 Alaska—Description and travel. Natural history—North America. North America—Description and travel 51-13298

Heading for Alaska this traveling pair of artist-naturalists, determined to take in New Orleans, the Southwest, and the Pacific coast enroute. The account of their trip features their hobbies, narrow-gauge railroads, birds, wild flowers and forests.

Booklist 47:373; 48:83 Jl 1 '51; N 1 '51

Bookmark 11:81 Ja '52 40w

"The harsh beauty of the north, the depth of its solitude, the variety of its plants, birds, and animals are communicated in these pages. . . Every mile of their long journey brought them discovery and delight, and their book offers it, vicariously, to any reader." Walter Havighurst

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 O 28 '51 320w

Reviewed by T. M. Longstreth

Christian Science Monitor p11 N 21 '51 320w

"A fascinating book for nature hobbyists and travelers in odd ways."

+ Kirkus 19:467 Ag 15 '51 240w

"A most attractive book." R. W. Henderson

+ Library J 76:1328 S 1 '51 90w

"There is hardly a page of 'As Far as the Yukon' which does not reveal its author as a thoughtful, highly literate person. Often she quotes from writers whose ideas have appealed to her. For all her obvious dislike of the pompous and pharisaical, for all her fairly hilarious gaiety, she can be sober, thoughtful, reverent." G. M. Sutton

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 N 11 '51 350w

"The authentic 'feel' and the very smell of the air come off many of the pages illustrated by Mr. Jaques. . . As an artist he is not, with wild flowers, among the great, but he is authentic and clear in his statements; he is the scientist, every moment, if nothing else, and sometimes in his animal pictures, where he is on ground he feels most sure, he captures the essence of gulls resting on the waves, of foxes sitting on their hunkers, of moose trotting, of ducks lifting off the water. . . We could wish that Mrs. Jaques, who goes to so many fascinating places, would promise herself never again to get her color adjectives for flowers off the dress-goods counter." D. C. Peattie

+ — N Y Times p28 O 28 '51 550w

Wis Lib Bul 47:252 N '51

JARRELL, RANDALL. Seven-league crutches. 94p $2.75 Harcourt

811 51-12684

The author's fourth volume of poetry contains poems first published in Poetry, The Kenyon Review, The Nation, etc. They are grouped under three main headings: Europe; Children; Once upon a time.

Reviewed by Peter Viereck

Atlantic 189:82 Ja '52 140w

Bookmark 11:81 Ja '52 20w

Kirkus 19:509 S 1 '51 100w

Reviewed by Gerald McDonald

Library J 76:2115 D 15 '51 90w

"As a critic of poetry, Mr. Jarrell is generally responsive, discriminating and witty. As a poet, he exhibits a profound sensitivity and some flashes of wit, but one misses that technical resourcefulness of which he is so keen a student in the work of his fellows. Too often in these pages the sensibility of the writer obtrudes itself at the expense of his subject. This fault is less serious than it would otherwise be, because the writer is a man of wakeful sympathies." Babette Deutsch

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 O 21 '51 360w

"Randall Jarrell is our most talented poet under 40, and one whose wit, pathos and grace remind us more of Pope or Matthew Arnold than of any of his contemporaries. I don't know whether Jarrell is unappreciated or not—it's hard to imagine anyone taking him lightly. He is almost brutally serious about literature and so bewilderingly gifted that it is impossible to comment on him without the humiliating thought that he himself could do it better." Robert Lowell

+ N Y Times p7 O 7 '51 800w

Reviewed by Lawrence Ferling

San Francisco Chronicle p19 N 18 '51 130w

JARRETT, MRS CORA (HARDY). Return in December. 279p $2.75 Rinehart

51-3562

"This is the story of a relentless campaign to get control of a man's fortune by destroying his self-esteem, no matter how many lives had to be ruined in the process. At the last possible moment, the scheme was defeated by the one person who could have interfered; only in the closing lines does the author reveal that this person was a ghost, concluding some unfinished business." Booklist

Booklist 47:337; 362 Je 1 '51; Je 15 '51

Bookmark 10:233 Jl '51

"'Return in December,' for all its sterling qualities, does not reach the level of either 'Night Over Fitch's Pond' or 'Strange Houses.' It stands ably by itself on its own merits, but there is a little too much contrived obscurity, a little less straightforward simplicity, something more of deliberate complexity instead of the easy naturalness of the earlier novels." August Derleth

+ — Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 Je 24 '51 270w

"There's a difficult-to-analyze fascination about this story and even the oddly introverted method of telling it enhances rather than detracts from its holding quality."
+ Kirkus 19:194 Ap 1 '51 210w

"An excellent psychological mystery story, [and] a very good love story to boot."
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p11 Je 17 '51 240w

"Mrs. Jarrett's penchant for the morbid oddly combined with her admiration for real goodness appears to advantage in the dénouement. The plot can't be given away, but it may be said that all is resolved by one of those interventions of the supernatural which the author has always handled convincingly." M. S. Hurst
+ N Y Times p16 Je 17 '51 230w

Reviewed by George Milburn
Sat R of Lit 34:16 Ag 11 '51 330w

JARRETT-KERR, WILLIAM ROBERT (WILLIAM TIVERTON, pseud). D. H. Lawrence and human existence; foreword by T. S. Eliot. 140p $3 Philosophical lib.

823 Lawrence, David Herbert [51-2434]

A study of D. H. Lawrence written "specifically from a Christian angle" by "an Anglican priest who writes under a pseudonym because his opinions are his own rather than those of his order." (N Y Times) Index.

Reviewed by W. P. Sears
Churchman 165:16 S '51 110w

Reviewed by H. M. Gehr
Crozer Q 28:374 O '51 100w

Reviewed by J. L. Lewis
Ethics 61:333 Jl '51 250w

Reviewed by Walter Allen
New Statesman & Nation 41:350 Mr 24 '51 550w

"This study of Lawrence is decidedly not for the novice. It can be of best use only to those quite familiar with Lawrence's works. The author assumes this prior familiarity." Chad Walsh
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 Jl 8 '51 500w

"Father Tiverton makes his judgments on the basis of careful reading and valid reasoning. His Lawrence is an important artist who needs no apology; the author stays far above the biographical battle, using background facts only in order to evaluate the work under consideration." H. T. Moore
N Y Times p12 My 20 '51 320w

JEFFERSON, THOMAS. Ideas on a university library; letters from the founder of the University of Virginia to a Boston bookseller; ed. by Elizabeth Cometti. 49p $2 Univ. of Va. Tracy W. McGregor lib, Alderman lib. bldg, Charlottesville, Va.

027.7 Libraries, University and college

"Thomas Jefferson, founder and first rector of the University of Virginia, was the prime mover in assembling the original collection of books for the university library. In this volume (issued in an edition of 1000 copies) 14 letters, written between September 1824 and May 1826, and addressed to the Boston firm of Cummings, Hillard and Co, are assembled, carefully edited, annotated, and prefaced by Elizabeth Cometti." Library J

"Jefferson wrote untold numbers of letters to booksellers throughout his learned life: taken together and studied carefully, they would certainly reveal a great deal about his reading, his tastes, his prejudices, and his ideas on education as well as on politics, history, and a host of other subjects. But to isolate this single and singularly limited correspondence without working over the implications of his choices of books and editions for the University of Virginia's library, is to present material raw at a time when the Jefferson papers are being amply and carefully presented in the inclusive edition of his writings now in progress at Princeton." Adrienne Koch
Am Hist R 56:210 O '50 170w

"This booklet presents a remarkable collection of letters, full of concern with the quality of books selected by Jefferson for the University of Virginia Library." Rudolf Hirsch
+ Library J 75:1616 O 1 '50 420w

Reviewed by W. G. Rice
Library Q 21:48 Ja '51 440w

"This fifty-page collection is an entertaining and charming footnote to the history of libraries in America and an illuminating portrait of a great American still actively serving his countrymen as he strides into the sunset." J. T. Winterich
+ Sat R of Lit 34:20 Mr 3 '51 230w

Times [London] Lit Sup p205 Ap 6 '51 2500w

+ U S Quarterly Bk R 7:5 Mr '51 280w

JEFFERSON, THOMAS. Papers; Julian P. Boyd, editor; Lyman H. Butterfield and Mina R. Bryan, associate editors. 52v v2-4 il ea $10 Princeton univ. press

308.1 U.S.—History (50-7486)

Volume 2, January 1777 to June 1779; v3, 18 June 1779 to September 1780; v4, October 1, 1780 to February 24, 1781.

"This volume fully sustains the high standard set in the former volume. As before, the chief distinction is to be found in the careful editing and in the wealth of scholarly annotation. There are interpretations on which there may be differing opinions. There are some points of erudition which the editors have not pretended to explore. As Dr. Boyd says: 'That kind of appraisal must await investigation and evaluation by the legal historian.' For the book as a product of the printer's art one can have only admiration. But this reviewer, at least, must continue to regret the absence of an index for each volume." St. G. L. Sioussat
+ Am Hist R 56:585 Ap '51 110w (Review of v2)

Am Pol Sci R 45:572 Je '51 40w (Review of v2-3)

Reviewed by Leslie Lipson
Ann Am Acad 275:190 My '51 650w

"For many readers, the real pleasure in these volumes will be found in the letters written to Jefferson." R. J. Graf
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 D 10 '50 410w

Reviewed by R. J. Graf
Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 Jl 15 '51 400w (Review of v3)

Reviewed by R. J. Graf
Chicago Sunday Tribune p2 Ag 12 '51 250w (Review of v4)

"None of the fifty volumes of the projected complete edition of the Jefferson papers is likely to contain materials of more present-day interest and importance than this second volume of the series, now at hand." W. E. Garrison
+ Christian Century 68:112 Ja 24 '51 900w

Christian Century 68:712 Je 13 '51 170w (Review of v3)

Christian Century 68:1018 S 5 '51 270w (Review of v4)

Reviewed by M. D. Howe
Harvard Law R 65:366 D '51 1900w

Reviewed by Adrienne Koch
+ New Repub 124:20 Mr 12 '51 550w

Reviewed by Adrienne Koch
New Repub 125:20 Jl 9 '51 650w (Review of v3)

"This volume, like the first, is a joy to read because of the excellent craftsmanship displayed in its making. In short, the great work goes forward admirably." G. W. Johnson
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 D 24 '50 1200w (Review of v2)

Reviewed by G. W. Johnson
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 Ap 22 '51 370w (Review of v3)

JEFFERSON, THOMAS—Continued

Reviewed of G. W. Johnson
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 Ag 19 '51 360w (Review of v4)

"Scholars may be disposed to argue with them here and there about certain matters of interpretation, but hardly anyone is likely to question their judgments about the documents. It is doubtful if ever, in the course of their future labors, the editors will run into problems more difficult than those presented by the materials in this volume, and no informed person can fail to be impressed with the magnitude of this achievement." Dumas Malone
+ N Y Times p5 N 19 '50 1000w (Review of v 2)

Reviewed by Dumas Malone
N Y Times p7 F 25 '51 1050w (Review of v3)

Reviewed by Dumas Malone
N Y Times p5 Jl 22 '51 850w (Review of v4)

"One can only report one's admiration of the spirit in which Professor Boyd and his associates have fulfilled their scholarly trust, and add to the chorus another note of gratitude and felicitation." Richard Hofstadter + Pol Sci Q 66:152 Mr '51 420w Review of v 2)

Reviewed by Carolyn Stull
San Francisco Chronicle p13 D 24 '50 750w

Reviewed by Carolyn Stull
San Francisco Chronicle p19 My 20 '51 360w (Review of v3)

Reviewed by Carolyn Stull
San Francisco Chronicle p21 O 28 '51 300w (Review of v4)

Reviewed by D. C. Mearns
Sat R of Lit 34:14 Ap 21 '51 700w (Review of v2)

Reviewed by D. C. Mearns
Sat R of Lit 34:16 O 20 '51 1000w (Review of v4)

Times [London] Lit Sup p447 Jl 20 '51 850w (Review of v3)

U S Quarterly Bk R 7:127 Je '51 270w (Review of v3)

Reviewed by L. B. Wright
Yale R ns 41:148 autumn '51 1200w (Review of v2-4)

JEFFRIES, GRAHAM MONTAGUE (PETER BOURNE, pseud). Golden road. 344p $3.50 Putnam

51-11423

An adventure story relating the experiences of a young Bostonian in Panama during the 1850s when the Panama Railroad was being built at enormous cost of lives and money.

"'The Golden Road' is great entertainment. The author's rare narrative skill imparts a feeling of authenticity about the events and characters. So, take 'The Golden Road' for a rare adventure in reading pleasure." Richard Blakesley
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 Jl 22 '51 270w

"The story is a good one, the romances seem unconvincing, but the book should provide good vacation reading for the not too thin skinned."
Kirkus 19:367 Jl 15 '51 240w

Reviewed by Arna Bontemps
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Jl 29 '51 360w

Reviewed by Richard Match
N Y Times p14 Jl 15 '51 450w

"Colorful, romantic tale." J. H. Jackson
San Francisco Chronicle p12 Jl 24 '51 550w

"Mr. Bourne writes a fast, painless prose, provides plenty of somewhat loosely motivated action, and is generous with the commodity known as color." E. J. Fitzgerald
+ Sat R of Lit 34:37 S 1 '51 300w

JEFFRIES, VIRGINIA-MURRILL. Calling for Isabel. 177p $2.25 Longmans

51-9355

A novel for teen-aged readers.

"Too much purple and fine linen, high powered male-female relationships and drum pounding for the general."
Kirkus 18:726 D 15 '50 240w

"Recommended for its value in human relationships." F. W. Butler
Library J 76:531 Mr 15 '51 80w

"The book is uneven in style, but so thoughtful and honest about its young people that it is well worth the attention of girls of about twelve to fourteen. The 'career' is only touched upon; it is the family and the beaux who count most." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 Mr 4 '51 170w

"Some general information on the library profession is presented, mixed with romance and preachy passages on faith. In spite of the author's mediocre style and not too astute handling of the career aspects, the romance will appeal to young girls." C. J. Roth
N Y Times p18 Ap 15 '51 180w

+ Sat R of Lit 34:56 My 12 '51 180w

"This is a book with real understanding of young people and their problems."
+ School & Society 73:110 F 17 '51 20w

Reviewed by S. M. Neal
Springf'd Republican p6D F 25 '51 190w

JELAGIN, JURI. Taming of the arts; tr. from the Russian by Nicholas Wreden. 333p $3.50 Dutton

B or 92 Musicians—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc. Music—Russia 51-9222

A Russian violinist recounts his experiences, briefly from the time of the 1917 revolution when he was a young boy, more fully during the decade of 1930 to 1940. After a time in a D.P. camp in Munich, the author arrived in the United States in 1947. He and his wife are now both members of the Houston Symphony, of Houston, Texas.

Booklist 47:235 Mr 1 '51

"I would not have missed this book, with its intimate detail, its ironical understatement. The American chapter doesn't fit, the title is inadequate, except in that it suggests the arts caged, hobbled and made to do tricks for purposes of the trainer. But if you care about music, theater, or people. it is worth reading." Claudia Cassidy
+ — Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 Ja 28 '51 600w

Reviewed by Ernest Pisko
Christian Science Monitor p11 Mr 1 '51 700w

Kirkus 18:689 N 15 '50 200w

Reviewed by C. K. Miller
Library J 75:2015 N 15 '50 90w

"Highly recommended." George Freedley
+ Library J 76:520 Mr 15 '51 70w

Reviewed by P. L. Horecky
Music Lib Assn Notes 8:703 S '51 470w

Reviewed by Hubert Creekmore
Nation 172:523 Je 2 '51 700w

"Jelagin knew many of the artists of the Moscow musical and theatrical world during the thirties and he has written a fascinating book of recollections, objective and humorous. . . . His style is vivid and his use of ridicule most effective. The translation is, on the whole, excellent." Harriet Borland
+ New Repub 124:20 Ap 30 '51 800w

"Mr. Jelagin . . . provides us with a book on the Soviet artistic world which is free from any official restraints, and the results are extremely interesting and quite important for both the general reader and the serious student of the Soviet Union. Much fresh light is thrown on such diverse subjects as the history and operations of the famous Vakhtangov

Theater; the mysterious later years in the career of the great theatrical director Meyerhold . . . and Stalin's interest in art and his behavior toward artists. Finally, there is much information, never found in official sources, on the personal lives and careers of a number of prominent figures in the Soviet art world." E. J. Simmons
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 F 4 '51 1800w

"A fascinating and chatty book. . . It is a well-informed and likable book. In the first place, it is written with good humor. Although Mr. Jelagin has ample reason to feel bitter about the things that happened to him and his country, he writes in a vein of amused recollection without bombast or sanctimoniousness." Brooks Atkinson
+ N Y Times p6 Ja 28 '51 1200w

New Yorker 27:130 Mr 17 '51 380w

Reviewed by J. M. Brown
Sat R of Lit 34:25 F 10 '51 3000w

JENKINS, ELIZABETH. Six criminal women. 224p $3 Duell
364 Crime and criminals—Great Britain
51-9608

"[Six] erring Englishwomen are the subjects of these studies. . . Two of the ladies—Frances Howard, Countess Somerset, and Florence Bravo, have been dealt with by a number of experts. . . The other recreant women are a nineteenth-century beauty specialist whose sideline was extortion; Edward III's remarkably acquisitive mistress, Alice Perrers; a seventeenth-century beauty who was one of the outstanding forgers of her day; and Jane Webb, a professional pickpocket whose career eventually led her, as was common in the eighteenth century, to the gallows." New Yorker

Reviewed by Milton Crane
Chicago Sunday Tribune p10 Jl 1 '51 420w

"There are, of course, lethal ladies in this collection, but the book's fascination, aside from that of its style, is that around each of its subjects rises the historic period that gave her a chance to exercise her particular talent. . . Six women and their world—it takes high biographical talent to put so much into pages that, coming to the end, seem all too few." M. L. Becker
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 Je 3 '51 600w

"Miss Jenkins has a fine sensitiveness to atmosphere, to the very dust and vision of the past. Give her only the touch of an old curtain, a glimpse of a dim stained-glass window, and into one sentence she can compress the truth of many books. . . And yet, strangely enough, the style of 'Six Criminal Women' is occasionally solid and heavy-footed. Sometimes the author stops to moralize, which is dangerous." J. D. Carr
N Y Times p5 Je 24 '51 1200w

"Miss Jenkins has done a first-rate job of reworking the familiar material. . . At times, Miss Jenkins presents rather too much of the background against which her subjects moved, but this is a minor flaw in an otherwise excellent piece of work."
+ — New Yorker 27:139 My 19 '51 240w

"A topnotch job." J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p18 Jl 16 '51 900w

JENKINS, SARA. Brand new parson. 246p $3 Crowell
51-763

Story of the first year in a young Methodist minister's career in a small southern town in the early 1900s.

Booklist 47:253 Mr 15 '51

Christian Science Monitor p9 Ap 9 '51 300w

"For a denominational and conservative audience."
Kirkus 18:732 D 15 '50 190w

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p14 Mr 4 '51 110w

JENKINS, WILLIAM FITZGERALD (MURRAY LEINSTER, pseud), ed. Great stories of science fiction; introd. by Clifton Fadiman. 321p $2.95 Random house
51-4033

Contents: The fascinating stranger, by Michael Fessier; Liquid life, by R. M. Farley; Symbiosis, by W. F. Jenkins; Number nine, by Cleve Cartmill; Blind alley, by Malcolm Jameson; In hiding, by W. H. Shiras; No woman born, by C. L. Moore; The strange case of John Kingman, by Murray Leinster; The impossible highway, by O. J. Friend; Open secret, by Lewis Padgett; The chronokinesis of Jonathan Hull, by Anthony Boucher; The chromium helmet, by Theodore Sturgeon.

Booklist 48:32 S 15 '51

Bookmark 10:233 Jl '51

Reviewed by Fritz Leiber
Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 Je 24 '51 230w

Kirkus 19:216 Ap 15 '51 90w

"An excellent if perhaps not 'great' collection of present-day short science-fiction stories, edited by a veteran writer of the genre." E. F. Walbridge
+ Library J 76:861 My 15 '51 100w

"One's only serious protest might be that too large a proportion of the collection is already available in volumes by other editors." H. H. Holmes
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Jl 29 '51 150w

Reviewed by Basil Davenport
N Y Times p19 Ag 19 '51 290w

"The dozen specimens Mr. Leinster has unearthed for his collection may well deserve the adjective great, but nearly all of them, unhappily, are embarrassingly familiar to such amateur archeologists of the future as dig through the strata at the corner newsstand. Typical of the collection are Wilmar Shiras' 'In Hiding' and C. L. Moore's incomparable 'No Woman Born'—both top-drawer stories and both worn down to the nubbin from being slid into anthologies." Don Fabun
San Francisco Chronicle p22 Jl 1 '51 320w

Time 57:116 Je 11 '51 420w

JENNEY, RAY FREEMAN. I am a Protestant. 239p $2.75 Bobbs
284 Protestantism 51-12229

"This book is primarily for the laymen of the Protestant faith. It is neither an attack on the Roman Catholic Church nor a defense of the Protestant Church. It is a pro-Protestant pronouncement. An attempt has been made to write this book in a plain, comprehensible way in order that the reader may understand the heritage, basic teachings and cardinal principles of Protestant Christianity." (Pref) Bibliography. Index.

"Because of the long pastorate of Dr. Jenney at the Bryn Mawr Community church, Chicago, there is bound to be considerable local interest in this book, an interest which will extend thruout the Protestant church. It represents the thinking of one who is the pastor of the ultimate outpost of Protestant Christianity: the community church. It also represents the general thinking of the main body of Protestantism about religion and churchmanship." C. Seidenspinner
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 S 2 '51 350w

Reviewed by W. E. Garrison
Christian Century 68:1311 N 14 '51 550w

Reviewed by R. R. Brunn
Christian Science Monitor p9 D 10 '51 280w

JENNEY, R. F.—Continued

"Dr. Jenney has written an excellent book. Directed primarily to 'the laymen of the Protestant faith,' equipped with notes, an index, and a list of additional reading, it is admirably adapted to the use of schools and study classes, to say nothing of pulpits." J. H. Holmes
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p15 S 16 '51 350w

Reviewed by G. R. Stephenson
N Y Times p34 N 25 '51 170w

JENNINGS, SIR IVOR. See Jennings, W. I.

JENNINGS, JOHN EDWARD. Pepper tree; a story of New England and the spice islands. 417p $3 Little

50-11659

Tale of adventure on the high seas and the spice islands in the days of the clipper ships. The hero is Jem Shaw, who signs on as second mate of the clipper Java, in order to forget the girl he loves. The sadistic captain of the Java arrives on board with his newly wedded wife, who turns out to be Jem's girl. The climax comes in the spice islands, where the captain is killed, and Jem sails the Java home as captain.

Booklist 47:137 D 1 '50

"As breath-taking a series of traps, ambuscades and ambushes as ever belabored heroes in all the pages of dime-novelry." Henry Cavendish
Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 Ja 7 '51 300w

"Straight melodrama with only a modicum of period atmosphere and nothing of the historical background for which Jennings has a reputation. But easy reading throughout its length."
Kirkus 18:569 S 15 '50 200w

"Mr. Jennings appears to know his ships, his history and his Oriental setting. It does not appear, however, that he knows any human beings."
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p25 N 26 '50 220w

"Never strong in the character department, Mr. Jennings' novels up to now have been bolstered by genuine episodes from history, which the present book lacks." R. M.
— N Y Times p11 D 24 '50 180w

"Fans of John Jennings's historical romances will undoubtedly find his eighth novel up to par but new readers are not likely to run out searching for the previous seven after reading 'The Pepper Tree.'" J. M. Grant
Sat R of Lit 34:33 Ja 27 '51 240w
Wis Lib Bul 47:88 Ap '51

JENNINGS, SIR WILLIAM IVOR. Commonwealth in Asia. 124p $2.50 Oxford

954 India—Politics and government. Great Britain—Colonies, dominions, etc.

[51-14261]

"A kind of post-mortem of British rule and an evaluation of the heritage which it has left in Asia. Originally developed as a series of lectures, the book is not a work of scholarship but a deceptively casual discussion of the political development of India, Pakistan, and Ceylon. Beginning with a rather loose summation of the early backgrounds, the author describes the social impact of British institutions and concludes with a number of speculations on the way that this divided past will merge in the future." Sat R of Lit

Am Pol Sci R 45:916 S '51 30w

"He treats the compromises effected in Ceylon's constitution more intimately and authoritatively than those of the Indian constitution, probably because of his more intensive experience with Ceylon. Unfortunately the book's title notwithstanding, he does not treat Malaya and Hongkong, which are also parts of the Commonwealth in Asia. The book should certainly be read by all students of South Asian Affairs." W. N. Brown
+ — Nation 173:528 D 15 '51 180w

"Even the most honest researcher is in an awkward position, the raw data of such an appraisal being biased at the sources. The most he can do is to deal dispassionately with statistics and evidence already charged with passion. Considering these limitations, Sir Ivor Jennings has done surprisingly well in 'The Commonwealth in Asia.'" J. F. Muehl
+ Sat R of Lit 34:44 Ag 4 '51 400w

"A very useful book."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p343 Je 1 '51 400w

JEPSON, SELWYN. Man dead. 188p $2.50 Doubleday

51-12475

Detective story.

"Topnotch suspense reading." Drexel Drake
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p13 S 23 '51 150w
Kirkus 19:368 Jl 15 '51 70w

Reviewed by Ralph Partridge
New Statesman & Nation 42:291 S 15 '51 130w

"This is a remarkably foolish book revolving dizzily about a heroine who, supposed to be as bright as she is attractive, manages to evade any decision that might make for sense and fixes steadily upon those which make for sensation." James Sandoe
— N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p22 S 23 '51 230w

Reviewed by Anthony Boucher
N Y Times p29 S 30 '51 10w

"Mr. Jepson has always been an adroit operator, and this sample of his work should disappoint none of his admirers."
+ New Yorker 27:120 S 22 '51 100w

"The cast of characters has been made small and vividly alive, and if you start this book prepare for a nonstop flight, jet-propelled." L. G. Offord
San Francisco Chronicle p24 S 30 '51 50w

Reviewed by Sergeant Cuff
Sat R of Lit 34:39 O 27 '51 30w

JERROLD, DOUGLAS. England: past, present, and future. 341p $4 Norton

942 Great Britain—History [51-2472]

The story of England's past, from prehistory to 1939. "This book attempts a brief survey of those historical forces which have chiefly determined our political and economic history in the past, and proceeds to examine in the light of the lessons of history the causes and the probable consequences of recent events." (Pref) Index.

Reviewed by C. B. Realey
Am Hist R 56:953 Jl '51 360w

"The book is written with vigor, but many of the author's facts are wrong and his judgments often appear to be ill-founded. . . Much of what the author says, such as his regret over the irresponsibility and disillusionment which followed World War I and his scornful references to many so-called intellectuals, needed to be said. But he lacks balance and temperance; he apparently is deficient in the analytical and judicial qualities of a truly historical mind." Paul Knaplund
— + Ann Am Acad 275:211 My '51 320w
Booklist 47:270 Ap 1 '51

"The author wrote primarily for his own countrymen, and some of the things he says will surprise American readers. Mr. Jerrold is not only a gifted historian, he is also an astute politician and in a lesser degree a prophet. The book covers (rather too quickly) the early history and concentrates more fully on the modern problems and England's chances in the future. Mr. Jerrold as the Catholic historian is superb and his use of the language is refreshing. However, as the Conservative politician, he tends to exaggerate and takes a lot for granted." G. E. Sherry
+ — Cath World 173:158 My '51 500w
Foreign Affairs 30:165 O '51 40w

"Mr. Jerrold advocates the new conservatism with passionate sincerity. Perhaps he is a little too sure that his verities are the eternal ones. But he fights a clean, hard-hitting fight that never descends to abuse or rancor. Intelligent people of all parties should read his book to learn which way the Conservative winds are blowing." Felix Grendon

+ Nation 173:156 Ag 25 '51 850w

"Mr. Jerrold is a younger adherent—he was born in 1893—of the school of English Catholic historians and publicists that formed around the arresting personalities of Belloc and Chesterton. He is less truculent than his masters, less fond of epigram—though just as pungent and pontifical—and in concrete problems often more reasonable and more willing to compromise." Crane Brinton

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p13 Mr 11 '51 800w

"This analysis of England's present situation is by an Englishman for Englishmen. Perhaps for this very reason Mr. Jerrold's book in its American edition may be of greater interest to American readers. Editor of The New English Review and author of 'Briton Over Europe,' he combines skillfully the gifts of a historian, of a political pamphleteer, and of a prophet." Hans Kohn

+ N Y Times p22 Mr 4 '51 450w

San Francisco Chronicle p12 My 27 '51 190w

Reviewed by Honor Croome

+ Spec 184:374 O 6 '50 950w

"When a writer has two books simmering in his head it is always a temptation to run them together and hope that something unusual will result. Mr. Jerrold has not resisted this temptation. . . Mr. Jerrold writes with verve, often with wit and sometimes with knowledge; but the two parts of this book do not join. Though the history is supposed to point to a moral it is difficult to grasp this moral clearly and still more difficult to see its application to immediate problems. The reader is irritated where he ought to be stimulated; and he is left at the end with a feeling that Mr. Jerrold is more set on being contrary than on clearing confusions."

Times [London] Lit Sup p623 O 6 '50 1050w

JOAD, CYRIL EDWIN MITCHINSON. Shaw. 240p $2.50 Macmillan

822 Shaw, George Bernard [50-813]

An account of the intellectual effect which Shaw had upon the author of the book.

"Mr. Joad has much to say that is wise and witty. It is marred only slightly by self-consciousness." Harold Hobson

+ — Christian Science Monitor p10 My 3 '51 70w

"Recommended for theatre and general literature collections." George Freedley

+ Library J 76:867 My 15 '51 20w

JOHN OF THE CROSS, SAINT (JUAN DE YEPES). Poems; the Spanish text with a tr. by Roy Campbell; pref. by M. C. D'Arcy. 90p $2.75 Pantheon bks.

861 51-12293

"Some of the most soaring religious poetry ever written was composed by a tiny 16th Century Spanish monk called Juan de la Cruz—John of the Cross. From his bald head to the soles of his sandals, John was a contemplative, shy, silent mystic. . . One evening, a voice singing a love song in the street outside inspired him to a love poem of his own—love for God. The poems he went on to write have become classics of mystical poetry. . . [This volume] includes the original Spanish, as well as [the English translation]." Time

"One is impressed at once by the variety of form used by the poet, especially the very brief line at the close of the stanza, snapping the sense shut like a lock. There are times when the translation makes the poem sound rather like a halting English religious hymn, but for the most part one gets an immediate grasp of the intensity of divine feeling which has made the poet so powerful an influence on many poets writing in English today." Paul Engle

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 S 30 '51 100w

"Mr. Roy Campbell has made a remarkable attempt at translating the burningly ardent lyrics of John of the Cross into their equivalent English metres. Complete success was from the first quite impossible." L. F. D.

+ Manchester Guardian p4 Je 15 '51 170w

"Mr. Campbell's translations are, on the whole, very good, though now and again his insistence on rhyme leads him into some padding and adjectiveness which soften the great direct force of the Spanish original. In general, however, the translations are of considerably more value than that of serving as a pony for the opposite page." Rolfe Humphries

+ Nation 173:312 O 13 '51 120w

"Roy Campbell's translations are virtually the first adequate English versions of these poems. . . Of all living English poets, Roy Campbell is the most masterly in his use of rhyme, and he is able to use metre so as to convey a sense of intense passion. He has reproduced the Spanish rhymes and metres as closely as possible, and yet his English versions have the freshness of original poems." Kathleen Raine

+ New Statesman & Nation 41:685 Je 16 '51 600w

"A distinctive find for one's library; it is a slender volume of excellence and it is excellently made." Harvey Breit

+ N Y Times p43 O 7 '51 120w

Reviewed by Lawrence Ferling

San Francisco Chronicle p18 S 23 '51 130w

Spec 187:169 Ag 3 '51 130w

"An exceptionally successful English translation by South African Poet Roy Campbell."

+ Time 58:60 S 10 '51 250w

"Not all the poems in this collection are ecstatic, some of the most beautiful are very controlled adumbrations of mystic experience, haunting with what they leave unsaid, or with meaning that imperceptibly accumulates in the tolling of their grave refrains. Some others, expressing Christian dogmas and precepts, are at a lower pitch of intensity altogether, though always poetry."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p371 Je 15 '51 850w

JOHN, EVAN, pseud. See Simpson, E. J.

JOHNSEN, JULIA EMILY, comp. Investigating powers of Congress. (Reference shelf) 281p $1.75 Wilson, H.W.

328.34 U.S. Congress. Commissions of inquiry 51-1918

"The Tydings inquiry and the hearings on the dismissal of General MacArthur have again made the question of the investigating powers of Congress one of the foremost political issues of the day. This compilation of articles and speeches by leading authorities presents the arguments for and against the investigating committee." (Current Hist) Bibliography. No index.

Booklist 47:295 Ap 15 '51

Current Hist 21:35 Jl '51 40w

JOHNSON, ALLEN JAQUITH, and AUTH, GEORGE HERBERT, eds. Fuels and combustion handbook. 915p il maps $12.50 McGraw

662.6 Fuel. Combustion 51-691

"Covers the entire field of fuel and combustion; that is, fuel types and resources, the theory and practice of burning fuels, coal preparation, fuel handling, and good methods of operating furnaces and boilers. Also there are short discussions of numerous allied subjects, such as thermal springs. Although a 'natural'

JOHNSON, A. J.—Continued
book for engineers in charge of large and medium-sized power plants, it should be as useful to managers and engineers associated with industrial establishments where as little as a ton of coal a month is burned." Library J

"The number of engineering handbooks has been increasing so rapidly in recent years that only exceptionally well financed libraries (are there any such?) can acquire all of them. However, this new one is of potentially wide interest. . . In libraries, it will supply the answers to most questions on fuels, even such ones as the fuel value of wet wood." R. R. Hawkins
+ Library J 76:523 Mr 15 '51 120w
N Y New Tech Bks 36:24 Mr '51

JOHNSON, GERALD WHITE. This American people. 205p $2.75 Harper
323.4 U.S.—Politics and government. Civil rights 51-6992

A popularly written treatise on the meaning of democracy as the fundamental philosophy of the "true" American. Contents: The founding fathers had the right idea; Free speech is for bold people; Freedom of conscience is for reasonable people; Free enterprise is for honest people; Freedom of inquiry is for hopeful people; Freedom of association is for steady people; States' rights are for energetic people; Freedom of opportunity is for great people. Postscript.

Atlantic 188:98 N '51 110w
Booklist 48:1; 63 S 1 '51; O 15 '51
Bookmark 11:31 N '51 20w
Reviewed by R. R. Bruun
Christian Science Monitor p15 N 29 '51 500w
Cleveland Open Shelf p24 N '51

"The essays are lucid, articulate, well-organized, with a decidedly positive and hopeful feeling about the future of the country."
+ Kirkus 19:476 Ag 15 '51 130w

"Gerald Johnson, author of several important American biographies is well qualified to write on this subject. To this theme he has brought many variations, richly illustrated with tones and phrases from the past, both American and European. . . The wealth of information sometimes strains the framework but any reader will find in this book much food for thought; after reading the last chapter he may even want to argue. Recommended for all public and all college libraries where Americana are in demand." D. K. Oko
+ Library J 76:1560 O 1 '51 180w
Reviewed by E. F. Nash
Manchester Guardian p4 O 5 '51 270w
Reviewed by Oscar Handlin
Nation 173:408 N 10 '51 700w

"There are plenty of good people striding through the murk in this country today, but it would be hard to find one with a clearer understanding of our national deficiencies as well as advantages, or a better ability to state them simply and sensibly, than Gerald W. Johnson. . . The mouthings of Joe McCarthy or the silences of Harry Gross may express some aspects of 'This American People,' but Gerald Johnson expresses the final, considered truth. I hope that many Americans will read this book. We need it." R. E. Sherwood
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p1 O 28 '51 1650w

"Unfortunately Johnson confines himself in the main to restatements of the main themes of the American past without going much beyond affirmation in showing how they will help us ward off the concrete dangers of the present. I happen to agree with Johnson's argument; but I doubt whether his generalities will convince those who disagree." A. M. Schlesinger, Jr.
+ — N Y Times p6 O 7 '51 550w
Reviewed by W. S. Lynch
Sat R of Lit 34:16 D 8 '51 400w

Springf'd Republican p14C O 14 '51 200w

"Provocative and challenging, it is therefore meant for the shelves of any public library."
+ Wis Lib Bul 47:247 N '51

JOHNSON, MRS GRACE CECELIA (TRACY), and JOHNSON, HAROLD NELS. Kay Ann. (Whittlesey house publication) 221p $2.50 McGraw 51-9928

Story of Kay Ann's sophomore year at High School when she had a crush on the new football coach—and got over it to return to her unexciting companionship with Jerry and their mutual love for horses.

Kirkus 19:64 F 1 '51 100w

"A wholesome and entertaining story for girls from 12-15." Evalyn Willey
+ Library J 76:606 Ap 1 '51 60w

"Kay Ann is a real girl, whose adventures in a single high school and its local surroundings have a wider application." M. L. B.
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 My 13 '51 290w

"The usual ingredients of the school story are all here, but the stilted writing, the two-dimensional characterization, and the succession of happy endings to all episodes put it decidedly below par. 'Kay Ann' may appeal to girls who particularly like to read about high school; others will find it flat." M. C. Scoggin
— + N Y Times p18 Jl 1 '51 140w

JOHNSON, HARRY WALDO (THOMAS FULLAM, pseud). Here's to sobriety; a plain approach to understanding the compulsive drinker and his problems. 208p $2.50 Abelard
178.6 Alcoholism 51-9810

"Discusses alcoholism for what it is—a disease—and what to do about it. The author is a member of Alcoholics Anonymous, to which he devotes a chapter. Thomas Fullam is a pseudonym. He does not moralize or preach, but states his case, defines the issues, and tells what to do about them. He is concerned solely with that portion of the population, estimated at 6 per cent, for whom liquor is poison and who must give up drinking if they want to arrest their affliction." Chicago Sunday Tribune

"An excellent fourteenth chapter on what 'AA' does not and what it does offer to the compulsive drinker who has hit bottom whether at 'low' or at 'high.' The final 'Nutshell' chapter where the anonymous author offers nineteen paraphrasings as substitutes for the terse and classical twelve of the original 'AA.' For the rest, the book follows the common line of pseudo-scientific chatter; the ordinary slang and wisecracks that imply acceptance without substance of the ascertained facts. . . Proofreading seems to have been hurried. There is no index." Haven Emerson
Am J Pub Health 41:735 Je '51 320w
Reviewed by William Yates
Chicago Sunday Tribune p11 Mr 4 '51 110w

JOHNSON, MRS MARGARET SWEET. Randy and the Queen of Sheba; il. by [the author]. 63p $2 Morrow
Dogs—Legends and stories 51-9358

Randy was a little Shetland sheepdog and the Queen of Sheba a much larger St Bernard. The two dogs met at obedience class, and altho the Queen liked Randy at once, the lively little sheepdog did not trust the big dog at first. It wasn't until Randy saved the Queen of Sheba's life that they became firm friends. For ages 4 to 8.

Kirkus 19:60 F 1 '51 90w

"The 24-point type and author's charming pencil drawings on each page will appeal to children in primary grades and many older slow readers who demand more and more dog stories." M. M. Gantt

+ Library J 76:415 Mr 1 '51 70w

Reviewed by L. S. Bechtel
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 Ap 1 '51 40w

"Like Mrs. Johnson's other dog stories this is based on a genuine understanding of canine nature. Simple words, big type and realistic pictures make this an easy book for young readers." E. L. B.
+ N Y Times p24 Je 3 '51 90w
Wis Lib Bul 47:91 Ap '51

JOHNSON, PAUL EMANUEL. Christian love. 240p $3 Abingdon-Cokesbury

241 Love. Love (theology) 50-11007

"The Professor of Psychology of Religion at the Boston University School of Religion has given us in this volume a psychological and sociological study of Christian love, what it means, what it requires of us and how to put it into practice. Professor Johnson's approach is that of interpersonal psychology, the study of persons interacting with other persons." Kirkus

"Only a brave man dares to write a book about love, and only a wise one ought to. Prof. Paul Johnson has enough of both qualities to permit and to justify the enterprise." W. E. Garrison
+ Christian Century 68:589 My 9 '51 1000w
Churchman 165:15 F 15 '51 120w

"Dr. Johnson gives an extensive and very careful survey of those characteristics of human nature which may be summed up under the terms aggression and hatred. He does not underestimate their force. For his questionable statement: 'Love is the sublimation of aggression' (p. 198) he might better say: 'Aggression may be sublimated by love.' . . Chapter IV, 'Education for Love,' merits the consideration of all concerned with religious education. Chapters V and VI, on 'The Christian Family' and 'Sex and Marriage,' reveal the author's mature experience and well-balanced judgments. They make the book of value to the general reader. A pastor who gave counsel along their lines might be more helpful than a psychiatrist." A. G. Widgery
+ Crozer Q 28:165 Ap '51 750w

"His study develops practical suggestions for home, school and church. Based on sound scholarship this is essentially a practical book valuable for pastors, parents and teachers."
+ Kirkus 19:49 F 1 '51 90w

JOHNSON, RYERSON. Gozo's wonderful kite; il. by Lois Lignell. 58p $2.50 Crowell

51-6446

"A Japanese boy pastes to his kite a valuable picture of five geese, which his father was about to sell to relieve the family's poverty, and sails it high into the sky. The strange things that happen to the geese, at first endangering the family and then rescuing it, are magic, but of the most convincing sort for seven- to nine-year-olds." New Yorker

Booklist 48:149 D 15 '51

Reviewed by J. D. Lindquist and S. M. Andrews
+ Horn Bk 27:407 D '51 80w
Kirkus 19:346 Jl 15 '51 150w

"This outstanding book is beautifully written, authentic in its description of a Japanese family, and catches the spirit of the people. Can be read by good readers in third grade and read to younger ones. Excellent illustrations." L. G. McCusker
+ Library J 76:2120 D 15 '51 80w

Reviewed by L. S. Bechtel
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p16 N 4 '51 80w

"In the course of this charming tale we learn something about Japanese houses, food, toys and family life. The story itself, an easy-going miracle, will delight adults as well as children. The illustrations are done with elegance and economy of line, and the make-up of the book adds to its pleasure." Marjorie Fischer
+ N Y Times p30 S 9 '51 140w

Reviewed by K. T. Kinkead
New Yorker 27:182 D 1 '51 60w

"The drawings, done in the Japanese manner, printed in soft gray and blue, are charming. It is an unusual book."
+ Sat R of Lit 34:71 N 10 '51 150w

JOHNSON, SAMUEL. Prose and poetry; selected by Mona Wilson. (Reynard lib. ser) 961p $4.25 Harvard univ. press

828

An anthology made up of selections from the prose and poetry of Samuel Johnson. Partial contents: Debates in the Senate of Lilliput (selections); London: a poem; The plan of a dictionary of the English language; The Rambler (selections); Preface to the English dictionary; Review of a Journal of Eight Days Journey from Portsmouth to Kingston-upon-Thomas; The Idler (selections); The History of Rasselas, Prince of Abissinia; Preface to Shakespeare; Lives of the Poets (selections).

"Though everyone will have two or three favorites which were omitted, few would insist that any of the pieces in the book should have been sacrificed to make room for them. Indeed, all that prevents the collection from being excellent is Wilson's unfortunate treatment of the periodical essays and the Lives of the Poets." G. J. Kolb
+ — Mod Philol 49:70 Ag '51 1050w

Reviewed by J. I. M. Stewart
+ New Statesman & Nation 40:520 N 25 '50 900w

Reviewed by S. C. Roberts
Spec 184:215 Ag 18 '50 1550w

"This collection is offered to lovers of Johnson, on whatever terms; but the editor despairs of pleasing such readers. . . Notwithstanding differences of opinion, Miss Wilson's book is one for which the lover of Johnson may be grateful; one, moreover, likely to make more lovers of Johnson."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p214 Ap 6 '51 1100w

JOHNSON, W. RYERSON. See Johnson, R.

JOHNSON, WALTER CURTIS. Transmission lines and networks. 361p $5 McGraw

621.319 Electric lines 50-12037

"An engineering textbook which has been developed from material used by the author in courses given to advanced electrical engineering students at Princeton University. It is designed to acquaint students who are majoring in either power or communications engineering with the basic principles of transmission lines and elementary methods of analyzing four-terminal networks. Most of the space is given over to mathematical analysis of specific phenomena and characteristics, but some qualitative or descriptive material is introduced into the discussions of such phenomena as the 'skin effect,' and such special engineering problems as those presented by telephone lines." N Y New Tech Bks

Reviewed by R. R. Hawkins
Library J 75:2010 N 15 '50 80w
N Y New Tech Bks 35:87 N '50

JOHNSON, WILLIAM. Natchez; the ante-bellum diary of a free Negro; ed. by William Ransom Hogan, and Edwin Adams Davis. (Source studies in southern history) 812p il $10 La. state univ. press

B or 92 Natchez, Mississippi

This volume contains the diary kept by William Johnson, a free Negro, barber, business man and slave owner, of Natchez, Mississippi, covering the years from 1835 to 1851.

JOHNSON, WILLIAM—Continued
A lengthy introduction tells the story of Johnson's life and gives a picture of Natchez in those years

"'William Johnson's Natchez' derives its principal importance from the fact that it is a full and intimate account of a free Negro, the most obscure quantity in antebellum society. Yet it is exceedingly valuable also for the unique view which it affords of life in a key community of the Old South—a life which apparently was simple but which actually was highly complex." B. I. Wiley
+ N Y Times p12 Je 10 '51 550w

Reviewed by C. V. Woodward
Social Forces 30:246 D '51 270w

"Johnson's diary is fragmentary and generally superficial. What makes it good skimming is its colloquial freshness and directness. Johnson never wrote like a man who expected that Louisiana State University would one day publish his literary remains."
+ Time 58:92 Ag 20 '51 600w

"There is hardly a trace of moonlight and magnolias in this sober record of enterprise and human selfishness. The work is splendidly edited, with a sixty-four-page introduction giving a realistic picture of ante bellum Natchez. The annotations, based on critical research, correct and illuminate the text."
+ U S Quarterly Bk R 7:273 S '51 200w

JOHNSTON, GEORGE HENRY. Death takes small bites. 240p $2.50 Dodd 51-517

Mystery story.

"In spite of its unprepossessing title, this is a highly readable mystery. . . . A lively book with vivid descriptions of an unfamiliar locale."
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p17 Mr 18 '51 180w

"A good plot is marred by clumsy dialogue, a surfeit of contrived melodrama and an overweening sense of the superiority of the white man." Nancie Matthews
N Y Times p25 Mr 18 '51 140w

"Good start, bad detour."
Sat R of Lit 34:40 Mr 10 '51 50w

JOHNSTON, WILLIAM CAMERON. Bathroom's down the hall. 178p $2.50 Exposition
818 South Dakota—Social life and customs

Anecdotes about the rooming house kept by the author's enterprising mother some twenty years ago in South Dakota.

Booklist 47:307 My 1 '51

"Mr. Johnston merits two bronze stars and a purple heart for having combined both mother and rooming house in one book. And for having done the job nicely." S. T. Williamson
+ N Y Times p18 Je 10 '51 450w

JONES, ALLETTA. Westford juniors, inc; il. by Gertrude Howe. 191p $2.50 Abingdon-Cokesbury
51-12138

The five Westford children, two sets of twins, and Karen the "only," spend a summer earning money to buy pasture lands for their pets: a donkey and a pony. For grades four to six.

Booklist 48:53 O 1 '51
Bookmark 11:35 N '51

"A happy family story of interest to both boys and girls." J. D. Lindquist and S. M. Andrews
+ Horn Bk 27:328 S '51 60w
Kirkus 19:434 Ag 15 '51 150w

"Realistic characters, wholesome family life, mystery, and true-to-life experiences are combined to make an unaffected story that the middle group and younger teens will find well worth reading." Averil Randall
+ Library J 76:1573 O 1 '51 50w

"Alletta Jones reveals in this pleasant story of a closely bound family how the two little girls learned to understand each other. Latest entry in the tradition of the Melendy and Moffatt family chronicles, this will appeal to an only child as well as to large broods." S. C. Gross
+ N Y Times p13 D 30 '51 130w

"The story is rich with the kind of fun that a family living in the country can have. It is a lively, humorous story with a very happy ending. The drawings that illustrate it are just exactly right."
+ Sat R of Lit 34:60 N 10 '51 190w
Wis Lib Bul 47:259 N '51

JONES, DICK. See Jones, R. C.

JONES, EDGAR DE WITT. Royalty of the pulpit. 447p $5 Harper
251.09 Yale university Lyman Beecher lectures on preaching. Preaching 51-9797

"'A survey and appreciation of the Lyman Beecher Lectures on Preaching founded at Yale Divinity School 1871, and given annually (with four exceptions) since 1872.'—Subtitle. Each of the men who has contributed to the lecture series, beginning with Henry Ward Beecher, is presented in a lively sketch that describes his personal qualities and evaluates his contribution to the ministry and to the Lyman Beecher lectures. The studies give a panorama of U.S. ministerial thought and style during the past 75 years." (Booklist) Bibliography.

Booklist 47:321 My 15 '51

"This book is no hasty improvisation, nor even the product of a sudden concentration of energy for research in an unfamiliar field. For many years, Dr. Jones' two great intellectual passions have been Lincoln research and the Yale Lectures on Preaching. His Lincoln library has more volumes and has cost him more money, but his Lyman Beecher Lectureship collection is more nearly complete. . . With that long acquaintance as a starter, he settled down to more intensive study. The result is a very sound historical record, both factual and interpretative, of a great lectureship which has occupied a unique place in the story of American Christianity, and also a delightful introduction to some of the leaders in religious thought and life in the past three-quarters of a century." W. E. Garrison
+ Christian Century 68:336 Mr 14 '51 1450w

"A Must book for Protestant ministers and students of the art of preaching."
+ Kirkus 19:179 Mr '51 170w

JONES, FREDERICK LAFAYETTE, ed. Maria Gisborne and Edward E. Williams, Shelley's friends, their journals and letters. 189p il $3.75 Univ. of Okla. press
B or 92 Shelley, Percy Bysshe. Gisborne, Maria (James). Williams, Edward Ellerker 51-12129

The Gisbornes were intimate friends of Shelley; Edward Williams died with Shelley when the Don Juan sank on July 8, 1822. The letters and journals here assembled are from collections in the British Museum. Index.

"Professor Jones has already edited Mary Shelley's journal and letters, and his scholarship is unquestioned, but the mingled human dramas revealed in these writings make the book of value, not only to Shelley scholars but to more general readers as well. Recommended for large libraries and literature collections." Shirley Barker
+ Library J 76:1422 S 15 '51 130w

"Since these documents have been available to recent biographers, they contain no strikingly fresh facts about Shelley's intimates; but their appearance in a readily accessible book, with authoritative notes and introductory biographical sketches, is most welcome." F. H. Lyell
+ N Y Times p45 D 9 '51 360w

JONES, IDWAL. Ark of empire, San Francisco's Montgomery Block; il. by A. J. Camille. 253p $3.50 Doubleday

979.461 San Francisco—History. Montgomery block, San Francisco 51-10942

"San Francisco's Montgomery Block was opened just two days before Christmas, 1853. . . It [was] the West's tallest building at the time, and its creator, Capt. Henry Wager Halleck, later to be Lincoln's Chief of Staff, had spared no touch of luxury. Nor had he neglected practicalities. . . His edifice rested, and still rests, upon an enormous raft of logs floated into place and anchored as a foundation. . . It was this 'floating' foundation, and the massive fire-wall on which Halleck insisted, that brought the building through the earthquake and fire of 1906." (N Y Times) The story of the Block and the people who passed thru it is told, as well as a brief history of the city itself. Index.

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson
Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 Je 10 '51 500w

Kirkus 19:177 Mr 15 '51 130w

"A building that has been so closely identified with so many phases of San Francisco life, and over so long a period, offers a tempting subject, and Mr. Jones has given it exactly the treatment it calls for; that is, an easy, informal blend of solid history, tradition and folklore (some of it considerably less solid), plus a leavening of personal reminiscence." Oscar Lewis
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 Je 3 '51 750w

"Mr. Jones, writing in his most romantically exuberant manner, finds here a subject excellently suited to that style." J. H. Jackson
+ N Y Times p10 My 27 '51 550w

"Written with that special romantic touch with which Jones infuses the materials of history, it is a pleasantly rambling, always vivid, highly charged conversation piece—the kind of book that might be the result of a good shorthand expert taking down the table-talk of half a hundred evenings in which Mr. Jones reminisced while people listened. . . As it stands, it is a fine and warm potpourri of San Franciscana, in which you will learn something of the building itself, a good deal of Halleck and his talents, and a whole lot about a great city in which colorful personalities seem always to have thrived." J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p18 My 20 '51 1200w

"Idwal Jones has furnished a pleasant evening for those who like to read about San Francisco, as so many do, and without the intensity of romanticism which overcomes too many writers on the city." James Benet
+ Sat R of Lit 34:33 Ag 18 '51 550w

U S Quarterly Bk R 7:296 S '51 250w

JONES, JAMES. From here to eternity. 861p $4.50 Scribner

51-9228

A story of Army life in Hawaii in the last months before Pearl Harbor. The chief characters are two soldiers—Pfc Robert Prewitt and First Sergeant Milton Warden—and the women they loved.

"Mr. Jones has grappled with a variety of materials and he handles some of them less successfully than others. There is a good deal of weak stuff in the two love affairs and the characterizations of the women, and the sorties into the field of general ideas are unimpressive. The book as a whole, however, is a spectacular achievement: it has tremendous vitality and driving power and graphic authenticity." C. J. Rolo
+ — Atlantic 187:83 Mr '51 900w

Reviewed by H. S. Canby
Atlantic 187:78 Je '51 300w

Booklist 47:237 Mr 1 '51

"Even though every incident in the book can be documented—one need not doubt it—the total effect, flat and without nuance or value, is not 'real.' Here, without benefit of formal ideology, is the humorless polemic of a mind embittered. The result is not art or even reportage; it is an inhuman cry, anarchic and paranoiac." Riley Hughes
Cath World 173:232 Je '51 390w

Reviewed by Paul Engle
Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 F 25 '51 600w

"One may grant Mr. Jones his honesty and the brute impact of his story. But certainly America has something better to offer the world, along with its arms and its armies, than such a confession of spiritual vacuum as this." Brian Roberts
Christian Science Monitor p9 Mr 19 '51 650w

Kirkus 19:4 Ja 1 '51 320w

"Local decision after reading indicated against the probability of wide interest, substantial demand, and the probability that this is an outstanding novel of enduring worth." R. E. Kingery
Library J 76:409 Mr 1 '51 150w

"It is not clear to me how anyone seriously concerned with fiction could praise this novel as extravagantly as it has been praised. The prose alone should make it impossible to take very seriously. In their irresponsible eagerness to elevate inconspicuous merit to genius our critics are willing to mislead the public and, for that matter, the author." Ernest Jones
— Nation 172:254 Mr 17 '51 1200w

Reviewed by Louis Falstein
New Repub 124:20 Mr 5 '51 1200w

"'From Here to Eternity' is in some ways a difficult book for it faces squarely the agonies of our time. It has a directness, a force, a vigor that cannot be described. Many will think it too brutal. It has no more brutality than a daily newspaper. It is a work appropriate to our age, a novel in the tradition of free inquiry." Gene Baro
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p7 F 25 '51 1200w

"'From Here to Eternity' is the work of a major new American novelist. To anyone who reads this immensely long and deeply convincing story of life in the peacetime army, it will be apparent that in James Jones an original and utterly honest talent has restored American realism to a pre-eminent place in world literature." David Dempsey
+ N Y Times p5 F 25 '51 1200w

"It is a slovenly, ferocious book. If it is also the most realistic and forceful novel I've read about life in the Army . . . it's because the English language is capable of absorbing, and condoning, a good deal of abuse from a man who has something to say and wants very desperately to say it." John Lardner
New Yorker 27:117 Mr 10 '51 1200w

Reviewed by William Rose
San Francisco Chronicle p14 Mr 4 '51 850w

"Mr. Jones's publishers declare the appearance of his novel can be compared with the first books of Thomas Wolfe and F. Scott Fitzgerald. That's an introduction that takes a good deal of living up to, but one reaction is already indicated: whatever its critical acclaim on purely literary merit, 'From Here to Eternity' is likely to become the most talked-about novel of 1951. . . For the non-squeamish adult this is the best picture of Army life ever written by an American, a book of beauty and power despite its unevenness, a book full of the promise of great things to come." Ned Calmer
+ Sat R of Lit 34:11 F 24 '51 1000w

Time 57:104 F 26 '51 700w

U S Quarterly Bk R 7:145 Je '51 270w

"This is a book that will offend many readers; it contains several sensational situations and enough impolite language to make it unpublishable by the standards of even a decade ago. And as if these offenses (if such they are) were not enough, Mr. Jones employs certain stylistic devices that become very wearing in a book of 860 pages. Yet I believe that the serious observer of American life whose sensibilities are tough enough for the task will find that reading this book has its own very considerable rewards." Paul Pickrel
Yale R n s 40:573 spring '51 550w

JONES, JESSE HOLMAN. Fifty billion dollars; my thirteen years with the RFC (1932-1945) [prepared] with Edward Angly. 631p il $6 Macmillan

332.31 Reconstruction finance corporation 51-12815

"History of business and industrial financing in the United States during the war years, through operation of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and its family of financing organizations. Truly a reference work covering details of the very intricate and inter-related transactions underlying the full development of our basic industries and small business As director and chairman, the author has been able to put down the complete record." Library J

Booklist 48:60 O 15 '51

"Mr. Jones, with Mr. Angly, has written financial history something after the exciting fashion of Carlyle's 'French Revolution.' Carlyle introduced syncopation to the somber overture of history. Mr. Jones and Mr. Angly have made finance as exciting and entertaining as their state song, 'The Eyes of Texas Are Upon You.' This is must reading in capitals and with exclamation points." Walter Trohan

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 O 28 '51 750w

Reviewed by Roland Sawyer

Christian Science Monitor p9 N 5 '51 950w

Cleveland Open Shelf p25 N '51

Kirkus 19:467 Ag 15 '51 210w

Reviewed by A. B. Lindsay

Library J 76:1701 O 15 '51 190w

"'Fifty Billion Dollars,' unfortunately, is a dull book. Jones's collaborator, Angly, is an experienced newspaperman, but the evidence is that he served as an amanuensis rather than as co-author in writing critical passages." Willard Shelton

Nation 173:506 D 8 '51 300w

Reviewed by C. J. Durr

New Repub 125:17 N 12 '51 1700w

"The reader can appreciate the excellence of the work without necessarily sharing the faith that inspired it. . . Jesse Jones fell down on that stock-piling job, but he never fell down on the job of holding off the would-be looters of the till. The American taxpayer owes him a great deal, for a less competent man in his job could have increased the cost of the war astronomically. So if his admiration of the record is unbounded it is not unfounded. . . Mr. Jones' social and political ideas are definitely less sound then his finance; but who is omnicompetent? The man handled a huge and tremendously important job with profit to the country and credit to himself." G. W. Johnson

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p7 N 11 '51 500w

"The lasting value of Jones' narrative rests mainly in its 'showing what was done and could be done again by government in overcoming economic adversities in a businesslike way.' This, the stated objective of the book, Jones and his collaborator, Edward Angly, have done admirably. They have livened their story, which is somewhat heavy on statistics, with anecdotes and vivid behind-the-scenes glimpses of how the banking and financial crisis was overcome." Samuel Lubell

+ — N Y Times p5 O 21 '51 850w

New Yorker 27:65 D 29 '51 200w

San Francisco Chronicle p21 D 2 '51 500w

Reviewed by C. E. Ayres

Sat R of Lit 34:15 N 17 '51 550w

JONES, MRS JESSIE MAE (ORTON) comp. This is the way; prayers and precepts from world religions; il. by Elizabeth Orton Jones. 62p $3 Viking

290 Children's prayers. Religions—Juvenile literature 51-13305

A collection of prayers and precepts selected from the great religions of the world and illustrated with many large pictures in soft gray and yellow tones.

Booklist 48:108 N 15 '51

"Small readers will love the little children of all races and faiths found on each page. They will need their parents' aid in gaining from the text its full meaning."

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 N 11 '51 150w

Horn Bk 27:404 D '51 150w

"With the lovely full-page illustrations by Elizabeth Orton Jones, pictures shining with flowers, birds and happy children playing together, this is a gentle and serene concept of religious faiths, but attuned rather to adult concepts than to the more specific interests of children."

Kirkus 19:615 O 15 '51 160w

"Recommended for ages 6-12." H. M. Brogan

+ Library J 76:1946 N 15 '51 80w

+ Wis Lib Bul 47:257 N '51

JONES, MARGO. Theatre-in-the-round. 244p il $3 Rinehart

792 Theater—U.S. Dallas. Theatre '50 51-10785

Traces briefly the history of the theater-in-the-round from the days of the Greeks to the present. Then the director of the Dallas theater-in-the-round discusses the possibilities of such theaters in other cities, and describes her own experiences. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 47:341 Je 1 '51

Bookmark 10:205 Je '51 30w

Reviewed by Vincent Tovell

Canadian Forum 31:239 Ja '52 280w

Reviewed by Fitzroy Davis

Chicago Sunday Tribune p11 Je 24 '51 250w

"A book of immediate interest to all drama and play production courses and students."

+ Kirkus 19:177 Mr 15 '51 180w

"This well-illustrated, practical, and carefully documented handbook is highly recommended to all theatre collections. It will also be read by at least a portion of the general public." George Freedley

+ Library J 76:1030 Je 15 '51 50w

"If the book lacks discriminating advice on the choice of plays, it more than compensates in enthusiasm. It ought to be read by all the young theater aspirants across the land, and especially it should be read by all the professional actors out of work who think work can only be found by tramping Broadway." W. P. Eaton

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Ag 19 '51 400w

"Much of this book appears to have been assembled hastily, for release while public interest in 'round' stages is high. . . Miss Jones has written a fine success story—her own: yet if the complete account of central staging is to be recorded, one must learn why the arena no longer operates in Manhattan, and what befell the penthouses of Atlanta and Jacksonville. . . The author honestly reports that bringing theatre to a wider public is the chief mission of the circles. It would be wise to add that even in the best arenas, something of illusion and grandeur goes out of a play." Robert Downing

+ — N Y Times p12 My 27 '51 400w

San Francisco Chronicle p18 Jl 22 '51 120w

U S Quarterly Bk R 7:235 S '51 270w

JONES, RAYMOND F. Renaissance; a science fiction novel of two human worlds. 255p $2.75 Gnome press

"Set in the far-distant future, 'Renaissance' tells of two worlds which exist in two different dimensions. One, the world of Ketan (the adventurous operator of the 'Karildex,' that strange machine which answers all sociological and scientific questions), is a radioactive dimension in which there is no birth. The other, into which Ketan passes in an attempt to work out his destiny is inhabited by the ragged Illegitimates, who are ruled by the dictatorial Statists. Ketan frees the Illegitimates, and removes his own race from their terrifying radioactive surroundings." N Y Times

Kirkus 19:80 F 1 '51 80w

"A superficially characterized novel, written in fairly crude prose. Its thesis is an all but obscene worship of the Machine. Implausibilities are rife, starting with the basic concept that an especially segregated group of human beings can fail to discover sex simply because they are never taught about it in school or home. But at the same time I'm forced to confess that 'Renaissance' is, in its way, a masterpiece of imaginative fiction." H. H. Holmes

— + N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 Ag 19 '51 170w

N Y Times p19 Jl 22 '51 90w

"It all ends in a mighty battle with component atoms vibrating all over the place, and in order to follow the battle, you have to be adept at three-dimensional chess, which this reviewer is not. Just the same, it's an exciting story, which is all that it was intended to be." Don Fabun

San Francisco Chronicle p23 Ap 22 '51 150w

JONES, RICHARD C. Plantonio; the pride of the plain; a ballad of the old West retold and illustrated. [32p] $1.50 Harcourt

51-10555

"In the meter of 'The Night before Christmas,' this tells the story of a western pony and how he and his master saved the fort from an attack by 'Injuns.'" Library J

Booklist 47:316 My 1 '51

Reviewed by J. D. Lindquist and S. M. Andrews

Horn Bk 27:247 Jl '51 80w

Reviewed by E. T. Dobbins

Library J 76:528 Mr 15 '51 50w

"It is much slighter than Virginia Burton's classic cowboy take-off, but could go beside it on the shelf." L. S. Bechtel

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 Ap 1 '51 80w

"It's a nice bit of nonsense, easy to memorize and fun to sing." Phyllis Fenner

+ N Y Times p24 Ap 8 '51 100w

"Will undoubtedly be very popular with little boys. Their elders will be interested in the drawings, which have both humor and beauty of design."

+ Sat R of Lit 34:41 Ap 21 '51 150w

Wis Lib Bul 47:192 Jl '51

JONES, RUFUS MATTHEW. Rufus Jones speaks to our time; an anthology; ed. by Harry Emerson Fosdick. 289p $4 Macmillan

208.1 Friends, Society of. Spiritual life

51-13983

An anthology of excerpts from the writings of the late Rufus Jones, Quaker leader. List of books by Rufus Jones.

Bookmark 11:30 N '51 20w

Reviewed by A. C. Ames

Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 N 25 '51 240w

"Friends of Rufus Jones will be grateful to Fosdick both for this true estimate of the man and for the adequate and timely anthology which opens the door into the realm of the Spirit where Jones was so manifestly at home, and the rest of us are at best casual visitors. This is a rich book, and will surely make wealthy towards God the souls of many readers." H. S. Coffin

+ Crozer Q 29:68 Ja '52 500w

Kirkus 19:610 O 1 '51 240w

"Recommended." G. D. McDonald

+ Library J 76:1327 S 1 '51 110w

"There are those who may wish, as I do, that Mr. Fosdick's introduction had been longer But this is scarcely a complaint. The few pages of introduction do supply the most essential biographical data. As for the anthology itself, it will be loved and esteemed for a long time to come as a book of inspiration and devotion, not only by Quakers but by those of every faith—and of none." A. P. Davies

+ N Y Times p12 N 25 '51 470w

Springf'd Republican p28A N 25 '51 360w

JONES, STACY V. How to get it from the government. 104p pa $1.50 Dutton

353 U.S.—Politics and government

(51-2204)

"Needed handbook and guide to the benefits, service, etc., offered by the federal government to the citizen—things for which the citizen pays through taxes but doesn't get unless he asks for them. This tells what can be obtained and where to ask for it. Covers social security, veterans' benefits, vocational rehabilitation, public health and childrens' services, federal civil service, federal loans, public lands, information services, federal playgrounds and recreation aids, etc., etc. Has useful appendices, largely of a directory nature." Library J

Booklist 47:375 Jl 1 '51

Cleveland Open Shelf p10 My '51

"This should prove to be a much-used, valuable reference book."

+ Kirkus 19:41 Ja 15 '51 150w

"Contains information previously available only in a variety of sources, some hard to discover and even harder to locate. Essential tool for information and advisory services, and an informative book for any librarian. Highly recommended." R. E. Kingery

+ Library J 76:598 Ap 1 '51 140w

Reviewed by Marc Rivette

San Francisco Chronicle p20 Mr 21 '51 40w

JONES, THOMAS. Lloyd George. (Makers of modern Europe) 330p il $5 Harvard univ. press

B or 92 Lloyd George of Dwyfor, David Lloyd George, 1st earl 51-12384

This biography of David Lloyd George is chiefly about his political career. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 48:48 O 1 '51

Bookmark 11:57 D '51 30w

Reviewed by G. J. Scharschug

Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 O 7 '51 480w

Current Hist 21:228 O '51 70w

"This is a remarkably objective study of Britain's one-time Prime Minister. The author, a fellow-Welshman and secretary of the Cabinet for many years, has succeeded in writing a book that should be on the shelves of every library in the country." W. B. Ready

+ Library J 76:1560 O 1 '51 90w

"This compact and more than competent biography is written by a friend and associate who views the Welsh Wizard kindly but without illusions."

+ Nation 173:286 O 6 '51 100w

"The most useful part of the book is the excellent picture it gives of the best and most real of the many L.G.'s—the unique champion of the little man against the old ruling class, the founder of Britain's New Deal, the originator of the Welfare State in the Liberal Cabinet before the first World War." Kingsley Martin

+ New Statesman & Nation 42:470 O 27 '51 900w

"Thomas Jones is a civil servant and scholar. . . He is admirably fitted to write Lloyd George's life. He knew the older man through close association. He, like his subject, is a Welshman, able to take certain 'Celtic' qualities in stride, as they should be taken. He writes, as the most effective biographers

JONES, THOMAS—Continued
do, with genuine sympathy for his subject. But he is no blind partisan, no idolater." Crane Brinton
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p3 O 14 '51 650w

"Jones not only draws upon his own diary but also had the evidently valuable privilege of consulting Lord Hankey's still unpublished work on the Supreme Command in World War I. Having paid Jones these well-deserved compliments, one has to add that his book will make hard reading for any but the serious student or historian. It is clumsily and heavily done—much lean meat and no trimmings." H. L. Matthews
N Y Times p16 O 14 '51 500w

"Tom Jones has written a model biography. As he says, a great documentary life will come in due course; but he is too modest in terming this merely an 'interim contribution'—it has qualities that will make it endure. It has the merit of economy. . . It has impartiality, for though pervaded by a warm appreciation of the statesman's gifts, it never shirks blame for his shortcomings or censure for his errors. It has a fine analytical power, going to the heart of situation after situation with crisp persuasiveness. Its chief shortcoming, a failure to present Lloyd George often enough in his own nimble words, is but one facet of its virtue of compression." Allan Nevins
+ — Sat R of Lit 34:33 O 13 '51 1100w

Reviewed by W. J. Gruffydd
Spec 187:480 O 12 '51 700w

Reviewed by G. A. Panichas
Springf'd Republican p10D O 7 '51 700w

"Building on his own experience and on such written sources as he could reach, Dr. Jones has presented a masterly summary of a life that stretched from 1863 until 1945, and of a public career that began in 1890 and, in one sense, abruptly closed in 1922, when Lloyd George was still under 60."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p621 O 5 '51 1950w

JORDAN, EDWARD CONRAD. Electromagnetic waves and radiating systems. 710p $10.50; to schools $7.75 Prentice-Hall
621.3 Electric engineering 50-12009

"Textbook on electromagnetic radiation and on the characteristics of antennas and other mediums for wave propagation. It is designed for graduate students enrolled in communications courses in engineering colleges. . . Contains clear summaries of the various current methods of attacking difficult problems, such as the cylindrical antenna problem, and contains also numerous worked examples and references to source articles." Library J

"A high-level textbook. . . It should be a useful tool for young engineers beginning design work in the communications industries." R. R. Hawkins
+ Library J 76:118 Ja 15 '51 110w
N Y New Tech Bks 36:7 Ja '51
School & Society 72:319 N 11 '50 10w

JORDAN, SARA (MURRAY), and HIBBEN, MRS SHEILA. Good food for bad stomachs; with an introd. by Harold W. Ross. 255p $2.95 Doubleday
641.563 Cookery for the sick 51-11597

"500 delicious and nutritious recipes for sufferers from ulcers and other digestive disturbances." Subtitle

Booklist 48:5 S 1 '51
Bookmark 11:31 N '51 20w

Reviewed by Morrison Wood
Chicago Sunday Tribune p12 N 4 '51 120w
Kirkus 19:254 My 15 '51 80w

"In a world more calculated than ever before in its history to bring on ulcers and nervous indigestion, it is difficult to imagine a book that is more timely." E. L. Tinker
+ N Y Times p13 Ag 26 '51 40w

"In planning this cookbook, Dr. Jordan, a leading gastroenterologist, and Mrs. Hibben, a stickler for the tenets of good cooking, have given imaginative as well as scientific consideration to the needs of the ulcer patient and the sufferer from chronic queasiness, and have succeeded, by various feats of culinary legerdemain, in devising dishes that will be thoroughly acceptable to the unafflicted members of their families as well. This book quite obviously will be a landmark in the life of any hard-pressed individual who has to cook for both contingents."
+ New Yorker 27:87 Ag 18 '51 130w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson
San Francisco Chronicle p14 Ag 17 '51 450w
Time 58:74 Ag 13 '51 170w

JOSEPH, B. L. Elizabethan acting. 157p il $3.50 Oxford
792 English drama. Theater—Great Britain. Acting [A51-5130]

"What makes Professor Joseph's 'Elizabethan Acting' a useful addition to studies of the acting of Shakespeare's day is that it concentrates on a relatively unexplored body of evidence—contemporary writings on rhetoric, which frequently make comparisons between the actor and orator. On the basis of this illuminating material, Professor Joseph visualizes Elizabethan acting as essentially non-realistic and rhetorical, and conceives of the art of the Elizabethan actor as one of giving vividness and thus popular appeal to poetry. These conclusions provide support for discussions of Elizabethan dramatic conventions and methods of characterization, for occasional comments on modern acting of Shakespeare, and for reflections on the grounds of criticism in Elizabethan drama." Sat R of Lit

"This scholarly little volume, based upon contemporary sources, brings Shakespeare closer to us." John Randolph
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 Ag 5 '51 140w

"Highly recommended for Shakespeare and theatre collections." George Freedley
+ Library J 76:1030 Je 15 '51 30w

"Altogether this is a valuable book. If it fails to re-create the very form and pressure of a Shakespearean performance, that is in part because it concentrates on only one type of evidence and is therefore one-sided, but also because even the most comprehensive and imaginative use of all the data must necessarily fall short of that ideal." M. E. Prior
+ Sat R of Lit 34:30 S 29 '51 240w

JOWITT, ROBERT LIONEL PALGRAVE, and JOWITT, DOROTHY MARION. Isle of Wight. 86p il $2.50 Batsford
914.228 Wight, Isle of 51-12749

"Scenic and historic guide to the English island that was a favored Victorian resort and yachting center. A small book illustrated with many photographs." Booklist

Booklist 48:29 S 15 '51

Reviewed by Stephen Bone
New Statesman & Nation 41:459 Ap 21 '51 80w

"The map of the region [has] atrophied into an almost featureless flat object innocent of rivers, railways, or belief, such as no schoolchild would be allowed to get away with. . . Apart from this serious omission the authors have performed adequately, if never brilliantly, the task they set themselves."
Times [London] Lit Sup p200 Mr 30 '51 600w

JOY, CHARLES RHIND. Music in the life of Albert Schweitzer. See Schweitzer, A.

JUAN DE LA CRUZ, SAINT. See John of the Cross, Saint

JUDSON, MRS CLARA (INGRAM). City neighbor; the story of Jane Addams; il. by Ralph Ray. 130p $2.50 Scribner

B or 92 Addams, Jane—Juvenile literature
51-10673

A biography of Jane Addams for grades six to eight. It is based on Miss Addams' own writings, other articles and documents, and the author's acquaintance with Miss Addams.

Booklist 47:348 Je 1 '51

"Told in simple, yet vivid terms by one who knew Jane Addams personally and has thoroly familiarized herself with her background." Polly Goodwin

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p10 My 20 '51 220w

"Younger girls who want stories about other girls will be caught by the first chapters of this simply written biography and will so receive a gentle introduction to the ideas of social service at an age when they must still be fresh and new to them." S. M. A.

+ Horn Bk 27:254 Jl '51 80w

"An inspiring biography of a great American, which should be in every school library."

+ Kirkus 19:128 Mr 1 '51 120w

"A well-written, very human and interesting biography." L. E. Cathon

+ Library J 76:971 Je 1 '51 60w

"Young people of today, anywhere in the world, who read a life of this great American, will have a deepened sense of American ideals and of our progress in democratic living. Miss Judson's brief biography, with easily read type, will appeal mostly to those of junior high age. It might also be useful in adult Americanization classes. It is in fictionized form, but the author says no incident is imagined, the wealth of material was so great." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p9 Je 3 '51 160w

Reviewed by E. L. Buell

N Y Times p26 My 13 '51 60w

"One finishes this attractive looking book with the feeling that it is probably a mistake to try to tell the story of Jane Addams for younger boys and girls. The understanding and tolerance, the strength of mind and will that made her one of America's truly great women are hardly indicated in this pleasant word picture of the child, the young girl, and the woman who became the founder of Hull House."

Sat R of Lit 34:47 N 10 '51 150w

U S Quarterly Bk R 7:247 S '51 70w

Wis Lib Bul 47:125 My '51

JUDSON, LYMAN SPICER, and JUDSON, ELLEN. Let's go to Peru; il. with 52 original phot. and 24 maps and sketches by the authors. (Judson guides to Latin America) 273p $4 Harper

918.5 Peru—Description and travel 51-9811

Travel guide to all sections of Peru, which might attract North American tourists. Illustrated with photographs, maps, and sketches by the authors. Index.

Booklist 47:292 Ap 15 '51

Bookmark 10:205 Je '51 30w

Cleveland Open Shelf p10 My '51

Foreign Affairs 30:169 O '51

"If there is anyone around who can squeeze more information out of a country than the Judsons I, for one, would like to meet him. . . The Judsons take their own photographs—which are more National Geographic than artistic. They also draw their own city maps and illustrate certain points with their own sketches."

+ Sat R of Lit 34:38 Mr 24 '51 180w

Wis Lib Bul 47:86 Ap '51

JULINE, RUTH BISHOP. Chewing gum trees; il. by Harlyn Dickinson. 122p $2.50 Lothrop
50-11132

Story of the life of two children in a village in Yucatan. The big event of this particular year comes when they are allowed to go into the jungles with their parents to help with the gathering of chicle.

Bookmark 10:87 Ja '51

"Children will enjoy the story of Carlos and Carmita's adventures and will close the book with a new conception of how much work must be done and how many people in far off lands contribute to their own happiness, even in such an every day treat as a stick of gum. Pictures are as interesting as the story." A. L. Shea

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p14 Ap 1 '51 190w

Kirkus 18:725 D 15 '50 130w

Reviewed by A. B. McCreary

Library J 76:338 F 15 '51 60w

JUNOD, MARCEL. Warrior without weapons; with a pref. by Max Huber; tr. by Edward Fitzgerald. 283p $4 Macmillan

361.53 Red cross. International committee, Geneva. World war, 1939-1945—War work—Red cross 51-9885

An account of the author's ten years' service with the International Red Cross, from 1935 to 1945.

Booklist 47:288 Ap 15 '51

Bookmark 10:155 Ap '51 40w

"For a story of war as seen by one who was in the thick of things for ten years yet above the battle, this personal narrative by a Swiss Red Cross physician is tremendous." W. E. G.

+ Christian Century 68:338 Mr 14 '51 280w

Reviewed by E. S. Pisko

Christian Science Monitor p9 Ap 14 '51 650w

"A worthwhile account, not only in its field, but in contrast to other war chronicles, and a touching presentation of attempts at effective aid."

+ Kirkus 18:718 D 1 '50 190w

Reviewed by E. P. Nichols

Library J 76:110 Ja 15 '51 130w

"This book should be compulsory reading for all Foreign Ministers of all nations. It is a horrifying book but not exclusively horrifying, because it tells the gallant, the heroic story of men who in time of war, when hate is regarded as a duty, risk their lives in trying to abate, if only by a little, twentieth-century man's inhumanity to twentieth-century man." Arthur Ransome

Manchester Guardian p4 Ap 20 '51 500w

"An honest, run-of-the-mill account that is in equal measure inspiring for what the author did and depressing for what he saw."

+ Nation 172:305 Mr 31 '51 60w

Reviewed by R. E. Bondy

+ N Y Times p10 Ap 1 '51 230w

San Francisco Chronicle p26 My 6 '51 490w

"Dr. Junod makes no attempt to tell the whole wartime story of the International Red Cross. These are his personal experiences, at times vivid and exciting, always terribly moving. He has written a war book but not a book of campaigns and battles, of victories and defeats. . . This is a fascinating, well-written book." F. H. Dulles

+ Sat R of Lit 34:41 Ap 14 '51 850w

Reviewed by C. M. Woodhouse

Spec 185:388 Mr 23 '51 1000w

Springf'd Republican p20A My 13 '51 280w

"From his extensive experiences Dr. Junod sees the horrors of war, the famines, the bombings, arrests, and despair—ravages affecting all mankind. By implication this book is as much an indictment of peoples and nations that resort to warfare, as it is a tribute to the International Committee of the Red Cross." M. A. Glasser

JUNOD, MARCEL—Continued
Survey 87:240 My '51 650w
Times [London] Lit Sup p210 Ap 6 '51 500w

JURAN, JOSEPH M., ed. Quality-control handbook. 800p il $10 McGraw 658.562 Sampling (statistics) 51-7119

"A comprehensive reference handbook in fifteen sections, six by the editor, the others by specialists, providing a mass of information, illustrative examples from systems in operation, reference tables, and many forms, charts and tables. Contents: Economics of Quality; Specifications; Organizing and Introducing Statistical Control; Acceptance, Control, Assurance of Quality; Statistical Methods; Paper Work; Applications of Electrical Accounting Machines; Quality Control in Textile Production, Chemical Process Industries, Aircraft Manufacture, Electron Tube Production, Screw-Machine Operations; Vendor Inspection. Bibliographical footnotes. Glossary of symbols." Library J

Booklist 48:118 D 1 '51

"A basically useful work." J. E. Cross
+ Library J 76:1934 N 15 '51 130w

JUSTUS, MAY. Lucky penny; il. by Frederick T. Chapman. 80p $1.75 Aladdin

The story of two boys, their mules, and their dog, living in the Tennessee mountains.

Bookmark 10:208 Je '51

"The Tennessee mountain folk really come alive in this vigorous story. . . But [the] illustrations are mediocre. For grades 3-4. Recommended." A. B. McCreary
+ Library J 76:1235 Ag '51 40w

Reviewed by L. S. Bechtel
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p7 Jl 29 '51 30w

K

KADISH, M. R. Point of honor. 311p $3 Random house
51-9223

A realistic novel about United States artillerymen in the Italian campaign.

Booklist 47:205 F 1 '51
Cleveland Open Shelf p8 Mr '51

"Grimly realistic account . . . written in the same hardbitten vein of most of the contemporary war novels. The sameness even extends to the characters. These men are pathetic, purposeless creatures, whose vapid thoughts are mouthed in platitudes and obscenities. . . Recommended." A. J. Gaines
Library J 76:39 Ja 1 '51 120w

"'Point of Honor' is a bitter and powerful book. The writing is as clean and graceful and authoritative as the muzzle of a German eighty-eight cannon. . . The character delineation is sharp and subtle, though one wishes the author had given us more of the men's background. But you will have no trouble recognizing them." Louis Falstein
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 Ja 28 '51 1050w

"Mr. Kadish writes hard dialogue most capably and there is an implied morality in his words which, nevertheless, are frustrated by occasional overplotting. The theme seems to be that honor and responsibility can emerge from many battle lessons. Yet the focus isn't always clearly fixed. The novelist's battalion is overstaffed with too many characters who block the long view." Herbert Mitgang
N Y Times p21 Ja 21 '51 210w

"The great fault of 'Point of Honor,' despite its rather good action and technical description, is its similarity to all those World War II novels which have gone before. It contributes to the lying legend that American soldiers were degenerates or village idiots, led by incompetents, neo-Fascists, grafters and martinets." R. H. Dillon
— San Francisco Chronicle p18 F 18 '51 950w

"Judged as an exercise 'Point of Honor' shows a good talent for narrative, a certain confusion in the delineation of character, and best of all an occasional gentle impressionistic bit of description that reminded this reader of a war novel over fifty years old, 'The Red Badge of Courage.'" John Brooks
+ Sat R of Lit 34:15 Ja 27 '51 700w

KAHM, HAROLD S., and WAGNER, MELVIN E. Basic principles of American business. 344p il $2.70; to schools $2.16 Prentice-Hall
650 Business 50-14462

"An elementary text presenting a picture of business as it functions in a competitive and free-society. Each chapter is followed by questions, topics for discussions, recommended readings, and a vocabulary. Indexed; glossary." School & Society

School & Society 72:270 O 21 '50 30w

"The style of writing will appeal to adult classes. It is simple, nontechnical, with a conversational tone or slant. The illustrations are humorous and usually point up a concept well. The format is functional and attractive." Ann Brewington
+ School R 59:245 Ap '51 420w

KAIGHN, RAYMOND P. How to retire and like it; foreword by Reginald M. Atwater. 2d ed rev 149p $2.50 Assn. press
179 Retirement (from work) 51-13331

New edition of a book first published in 1942 (Book Review Digest 1942). The book [is] addressed to men covering the problems and adjustments of retirement. A chapter on the question of remarriage is added." (Booklist)

"Here is a good Christmas or birthday present for a friend who is nearing retirement age. He will find many useful suggestions in it, and a warm, friendly introduction to the problems that will confront him." Homer Wickenden
+ Am J Pub Health 41:1536 D '51 350w
Booklist 48:104 N 15 '51

"Most of the questions likely to arise upon retirement are considered by the author from his wide experience. . . He discusses the entire proposition of a happy retirement in a way likely to be of great help to countless readers." J. W. C.
+ Springf'd Republican p14C O 14 '51 250w

KALASHNIKOFF, NICHOLAS. The defender; il. by Claire and George Louden, jr. 136p $2 Scribner
51-12840

"It is difficult to classify this new story by the author of 'Toyon' and 'Jumper.' Like the others, it is laid in Siberia. The hero, Turgen, is a Lamut who lived in the hills in the northeastern part of that strange and remote land. Turgen is persuaded in a dream to become the defender of the mountain rams who are sought by hunters on the crest of the hills. He lives alone, but he becomes involved with the woman Marfa and her two children and finds happiness in protecting and caring for them." Sat R of Lit

Booklist 48:130 D 1 '51

Reviewed by Helen Boyd
Chicago Sunday Tribune p14 D 9 '51 160w

"Children will enjoy it because it has many things in it to interest them . . . and as they read it they will get also a feeling of Turgen's great kindness and gentleness, which runs like a thread through the whole story and stays with the reader long after the book is done. Reading it aloud to boys and girls will be a joy." J. D. Lindquist and S. M. Andrews

+ Horn Bk 27:411 D '51 140w

"An unusual and appealing story, touched with the beauty of the pristine, remote mountain country of northern Siberia and the dignity of man receiving his strength from nature and a belief in God."

+ Kirkus 19:437 Ag 15 '51 190w

"Serious and rather slow-moving book that will probably not have as wide an appeal as the quality of writing and characterization merit. . . Recommended for ages 12-14." Elizabeth Hodges

+ Library J 76:2126 D 15 '51 140w

"In style and content, in its fine, real, non-pretty drawings, the book should have a wide range of age appeal, to any over ten. Its combination of feeling for poverty, beauty of nature, nobility of spirit, lift it far above being either an animal story or one to be classed as an introduction to Yakuts and Lamuts in Siberia. The author wrote that distinguished adult dog story 'Toyon.'" L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p14 O 21 '51 240w

"It is difficult to put the book down when you have once begun to read Turgen's story; but it is definitely not a book for younger boys and girls. It has strength and maturity and the power to evoke a background and atmosphere. It is illustrated with fine black-and-white drawings."

+ Sat R of Lit 34:64 N 10 '51 250w

KALISH, STANLEY E., and EDOM, CLIFTON C. Picture editing. 207p il $4.50 Rinehart

070.4 Photography, Journalistic 51-13237

"The first part of the book analyzes such intangibles as the 'feeling' for pictures, judgment, developing picture ideas, handling photographers, and dealing with the public. The second section contains suggestions on cropping, layout, captions, retouching, use of color, and filing for future use. Both amateur photographers and journalism students will profit from this concise guide to the work of newspaper and magazine picture editors." Booklist

Booklist 48:59 O 15 '51

"It tries to cover, in 200-odd and well illustrated pages, every complexity of a complex business. It tries hard, and does well in many spots. However, any picture editor who has to be told how to get along with his photografers, how to get along with his public, how to cooperate with other editors on the paper, how to crop pictures, how to scale pictures, how to lay out a picture page, how to write captions, and how to make them fit—well, he should go back to the copy desk." Steve Harrison

Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 N 25 '51 170w

San Francisco Chronicle p22 N 18 '51 50w

KALME, ALBERT. Total terror; an exposé of genocide in the Baltics; ed. by Walter Arm. 310p il $3.50 Appleton

947.4 Baltic states. Communism 51-3639

An account of the fate of the three Baltic countries—Estonia, Latvia, and Lithuania—under the Nazis and the Russian Communist regime. Author is a native of Latvia, a leader of the underground resistance, who suffered under both rules, escaping in 1944 with documents to prove his story.

Booklist 47:360 Je 15 '51

Kirkus 19:177 Mr 15 '51 130w

Reviewed by J. E. Brown

Library J 76:1027 Je 15 '51 130w

"Not a pleasant book to read, but all too grimly convincing." Marcus Duffield

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 Je 17 '51 650w

"Mr. Kalme's statistical data, and his unwarranted assertion that there was no difference between the German and Russian occupation regimes, should be taken with more caution. . . In his conclusion, likewise, Mr. Kalme may be overly pessimistic. He acknowledges the 'courage of despair' in the Baltic nations, but apprehends that in another ten years, Latvia, Lithuania and Estonia may be the names of non-existent countries with non-existent native populations." K. R. Pusta

N Y Times p6 Jl 8 '51 600w

New Yorker 27:86 Je 23 '51 240w

Reviewed by Jack Aldridge

San Francisco Chronicle p18 Jl 8 '51 500w

KAMB, ELEANOR WILLIAMS. We kept mother single. 245p $2.75 Dodd

818 51-10278

Chronicles a few years in the lives of three children: Barclay and Peter, the twins, and Babo, their younger sister, and their resourceful, attractive mother. The father had departed from their midst because the children made it too difficult for him in his chosen avocation—writing. In order to "keep mother single" the children saw to it that they made life too difficult for mother's later suitors, and evidently, they won.

"It is a gay and gallant book but beneath the gayety and gallantry lies a disturbing note of frustration. Keeping Mother single was fun for the children, especially for the boys, a couple of high-powered dynamos, who wanted no masculine authority to curb their activities. But there are times, reading the book, when one wishes that Mother had got a break. . . It is clear, as the story is told, that Mrs. Kamb fulfilled herself as a mother. It is also clear that the boys, however brilliant, were selfish little devils who lived their lives at her expense. Mrs. Kamb will probably disagree with this." R. C. Feld

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p11 Ap 15 '51 320w

San Francisco Chronicle p29 Ap 29 '51 350w

KANE, FRANK. Dead weight. 210p $2.50 Washburn

51-9553

Detective story.

Kirkus 19:36 Ja 15 '51 120w

"The story follows a routine pattern, avoiding either offensiveness or any kind of distinction."

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p15 Ap 15 '51 110w

"It's all, as one expects of Kane, smooth and fast and readable, despite a crudely glaring Least Suspected Person; and Liddell is much more bearable than many of his self-consciously tough colleagues." Anthony Boucher

+ N Y Times p20 Mr 11 '51 100w

Reviewed by L. G. Offord

San Francisco Chronicle p17 Mr 4 '51 100w

"A little too much of detective missing death miraculously too many times—but good fun and good picture of Manhattan; surprise ending well contrived."

+ — Sat R of Lit 34:42 Ap 7 '51 50w

KANE, HARNETT THOMAS. Gentlemen, swords and pistols [il. by Ralph Ray]. 306p $4 Morrow

394.8 Dueling 51-12882

A score of true stories of duels fought in the South during the nineteenth century.

Booklist 48:61 O 15 '51

Reviewed by Russell MacFall

Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 O 28 '51 170w

Kirkus 19:462 Ag 15 '51 160w

KANE, H. T.—Continued

"An entertaining volume. . . The author succeeds in bringing his combatants to life, and in depicting conditions which encouraged and sanctioned duelling in days when a man's honor was a touchy subject." J. E. Brown

+ Library J 76:1560 O 1 '51 100w

"With his good humor, perspective, and opulent detail Mr. Kane tells as usual an extremely good story." E. H. Smith

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p14 N 11 '51 500w

"'Gentlemen, Swords and Pistols' is not a history of Southern dueling. It is, however, a collection of very readable biographical sketches of interesting—if not particularly admirable—individuals who made history with hair triggers and honed blades." Hoffman Birney

+ N Y Times p32 O 21 '51 280w

San Francisco Chronicle p22 N 25 '51 290w

"Mr. Kane has written a book which can be read either for entertainment or as a study in regional psychopathy." T. D. Clark

Sat R of Lit 34:18 D 8 '51 800w

"Author Kane has done a fine bit of compiling, and he has also assayed and analyzed, casually yet searchingly, the strange emotional causes for the prevalence of dueling in the South and near West." L. S. Munn

+ Springf'd Republican p30A N 11 '51 330w

KANE, HARNETT THOMAS, and PARRY, ALBERT (VICTOR LECLERC, pseud). Scandalous Mrs Blackford. 304p $3 Messner

Blackford, Harriet (Ely)—Fiction 51-10943

A biographical novel based on the life of an American minister's daughter, Harriet Ely Blackford, whose love affair with the Grand Duke Nicholas of Russia caused much scandal in the 1870's and 80's.

Booklist 47:362 Je 15 '51

Reviewed by Riley Hughes

Cath World 174:75 O '51 190w

"A mildly detracting factor in the narrative is that it gets off to a rather lumbering start. It is only after the focus has reached the finely etched Russian scenes that the story becomes deeply convincing." Henry Cavendish

+ — Chicago Sunday Tribune p8 My 27 '51 550w

"A skillful rendering of history into fiction."

+ Kirkus 19:214 Ap 15 '51 230w

"The facts are based upon information discovered by Victor Leclerc, Russian scholar and lecturer, and although Hattie is not quite real the story is convincing. Recommended." Katherine Shorey

+ Library J 76:963 Je 1 '51 100w

"The authors do their best, but 'The Scandalous Mrs. Blackford' is never flesh and blood, not even when she poses—in the flesh exclusively—for a famed Italian sculptor."

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p9 Jl 1 '51 260w

"While informative and readable, it falls short of being good fiction." John Cournos

+ — N Y Times p15 Jl 15 '51 120w

"Russian historian Victor Leclerc [Albert Parry] did the preliminary research on Harriet's hectic life, and Harnett T. Kane, an old hand at biographical fiction, supplied 'the treatment.' The result is a long, throbbing glitter. Mr. Kane provides period detail with the lavish touch of a Cecil B. De Mille. He makes the bohemian and royal elegances of Paris and St. Petersburg sparkle again in all their decadent glamor. He deals effectively with the siege of Paris during the Franco-Prussian War and contrives the right note of suspense during Harriet's detention by the Russian police." Charles Lee

Sat R of Lit 34:19 Je 23 '51 650w

Reviewed by L. S. Munn

Springf'd Republican p12C Ag 26 '51 330w

Wis Lib Bul 47:190 Jl '51

KANE, HENRY. Until you are dead. 205p $2.50 Simon & Schuster

50-11040

Detective story.

Kirkus 19:79 F 1 '51 60w

"There's nothing outstanding or distinctive here."

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p17 Mr 18 '51 150w

"There's a rather engaging racketeer in this, to give the hardboiled pattern a little variety, but our detective is strictly formula in his brash manner, his way with ladies and his drinking habits—which are defended in an entire page of defiance to the critics." L. G. Offord

San Francisco Chronicle p25 F 25 '51 90w

Springf'd Republican p8C Mr 4 '51 120w

KANN, ROBERT A. Multinational empire; nationalism and national reform in the Habsburg monarchy, 1848-1918. 2v 444;423p maps $12.50 Columbia univ. press

943.6 Austria—Politics and government. Austria—Nationality 50-9710

"This work studies the development of the national problem within the polyglot Austrian Empire during the last century of its existence. The author is concerned both with the attempts to balance the national demands and with the proposals for reform of the Empire on a supranational basis." (Publisher's note) The author is Assistant Professor of History at Rutgers University. Bibliography. Index.

"The student of Austrian and Central European history will welcome the two volumes by Professor Kann on The Multinational Empire as one of the most noteworthy among the remarkably numerous contributions made in America during the last decade to the recent history of the Danubian empire. . . To the reviewer, however, the work of Professor Kahn is marred by a number of deficiencies of which one of the most surprising is his neglect of almost every publication on Austrian and Austro-German history since 1926, the year of the second volume of Joseph Redlich's Reichsproblem." Friedrich Engel-Janosi

+ — Am Hist R 56:568 Ap '51 3650w

Am Pol Sci R 45:415 S '51 60w

Reviewed by J. E. Gillespie

Ann Am Acad 273:286 Ja '51 550w

"Not a book for the casual reader, but valuable to students of European nationalism. Notes and appendices contain wealth of bibliographical and statistical information. Recommended for research and very large public libraries." F. E. Hirsch

+ Library J 75:1663 O 1 '50 140w

"Robert A. Kann in this volume has undoubtedly written the outstanding work on this complicated subject. The questions that have been asked come up again and again and receive rational and judicious answers." R. J. Kerner

+ Sat R of Lit 34:13 Mr 17 '51 600w

Times [London] Lit Sup p265 Ap 27 '51 2200w

"Comprehensive and well-documented study."

+ U S Quarterly Bk R 7:55 Mr '51 240w

KANTOR, MACKINLAY. Don't touch me. 243p $3 Random house

51-12521

The hero is an American Major in the air force in the Korean war. When he discovers the woman he loves married to another air force man he is desperate. The working out of this situation makes the story.

"The few war scenes it contains are magnificent and some of the coarse repartee between the officers is very, very good. Along with this you get the appallingly passionate story of Wolford and Tony and of how they met after 10 years. . . Unless you just loved 'From Here to Eternity' my advice with regard to 'Don't Touch Me' is: 'Don't Touch It.'" V. P. Hass

— + Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 S 23 '51 320w

"A seamy bit of army life, which contributes nothing to Kantor's hitherto estimable career. Public Libraries—have a care."
— Kirkus 19:405 Ag 1 '51 180w

"In contrast with most of MacKinlay Kantor's fiction, slick or serious, 'Don't Touch Me' adds up to a pretty ragged performance. It leaves the impression of having been whipped up in a hurry."
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p19 S 23 '51 190w

"Kantor tells his story vividly of course—but what a story!" Harry Gilroy
N Y Times p26 S 23 '51 290w

"Mr. Kantor's writing shows occasional traces of his narrative ability, particularly in an excellent account of a bombing mission. But most of 'Don't Touch Me' is written in an argot reminiscent of the comic strips." Martin Levin
— + Sat R of Lit 34:37 D 22 '51 320w

KAPLAN, HAROLD J. The spirit and the bride. 245p $3 Harper
51-6201

"The hero of Mr. Kaplan's intellectual odyssey is Philip Clifford, a middle-aged American professor abroad on a government mission. Spurred by a sudden flash of insight, he embarks on a physical and spiritual tour to discover whether a plane of reality exists other than that which constitutes his own particular world. . . Finally he winds up in the ramshackle boudoir of an Oriental harlot, faced with what seems to be imminent destruction. And here Mr. Kaplan's seeker finds another level of reality: the reality of death." Sat R of Lit

Booklist 48:171 Ja 15 '52
Kirkus 19:362 Jl 15 '51 180w

"Mr. Kaplan's skill as a writer—as you probably know—matches up with that of the best of the younger group. In 'The Spirit and the Bride' from the title to the finale he adds to his more usual devices a frequent happy dipping into the scriptures from Revelation back to Genesis. 'Had he not a scriptural tag for every occasion?' the hero asks. And the answer is, he had. And whereas these biblical phrases seem further to clutter up the slow-going first chapters, they achieve a sumptuous fitness which adds much to the delicious and joyously irreverent finale." F. H. Bullock
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p18 S 23 '51 600w

"It is Kaplan's troubled distinction to write so well that his publishers seem to feel that he has carried this one off. Yet whatever he has carried off here, he will have to carry back. The real puzzle in this thriller is why a writer of his equipment took the trouble to give us such a book." Wright Morris
N Y Times p28 D 9 '51 500w
New Yorker 27:152 N 3 '51 140w

"It is unfortunate that Mr. Kaplan's speculations do not form the basis of a good novel. Spread thinly over 245 pages, his ruminations become increasingly tiresome, until one finally loses interest in the problem of his hero and in his spiritual meandering. . . In spite of its shortcomings 'The Spirit and the Bride' cannot completely conceal Mr. Kaplan's genuine talent as a writer. But one must look to his next novel to fulfil the promise of his first." Martin Levin
Sat R of Lit 34:34 O 6 '51 440w

"Mr. Kaplan has produced an intellectual thriller which will hold the reader's interest—for Clifford's quest is everyone's quest." J. F. S.
+ Springf'd Republican p5C S 23 '51 90w

KAPLAN, MORDECAI MENAHEM, and others. Faith of America; prayers, readings, and songs for the celebration of American holidays. 328p $4.50 Schuman
394.268 Holidays 51-14109

"Planned programs, including readings, songs, and prayers for observance of our national holidays, each designed to convey the religious idea of the day. Useful for schools, churches, and patriotic groups." Booklist

Booklist 48:115 D 1 '51
Kirkus 19:546 S 15 '51 120w

"Highly recommended." L. R. Miller
+ Library J 76:1931 N 15 '51 200w
School & Society 74:287 N 3 '51 10w

KARDINER, ABRAM, and OVESEY, LIONEL. Mark of oppression; a psychosocial study of the American Negro. 396p $5 Norton 325.26 Negroes—Moral and social conditions
51-10966

After two chapters comprising a "comparative survey of white and Negro social organization," the main part of the book consists of psychodynamic analyses of the life history and personality structure of twenty-five Negro men and women from differing classes of society. Dr Kardiner is clinical professor of psychology at Columbia; Dr Ovesey is an instructor in psychiatry, also at Columbia. Index.

"When the history of social psychology in our time is written the work of Kardiner and his associates will be recorded as an imaginative attempt to deal with the classical riddles, but as a failure in terms of adding to a body of reliable knowledge concerning the interrelationships of individual and society and personality and culture." H. W. Dunham
Am Soc R 16:730 O '51 4000w
Booklist 47:376 Jl 1 '51

Reviewed by Roi Ottley
Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 Je 17 '51 500w

"Sociologists, psychologists and social historians will profit from reading 'The Mark of Oppression'. Certainly the book will be used chiefly by scientific scholars and social engineers for they are the experts for whom it is primarily intended. What will interest the layman are the case studies themselves. They reveal a burden of anxiety, self-hatred, sex maladjustment, aggression, frustration, docility and fear that is as fearsome and as cathartic to read as great Greek tragedy." J. S. Redding
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p7 Je 10 '51 1050w

"A document that can be ignored by no one seriously concerned with that most un-American of American institutions: race discrimination. . . This book deserves the double audience it will probably have. Although the authors make no dubious concessions to popularization, the general reader should have no difficulty in following the often intricate and always informative analyses of what the caste system does to personality." R. K. Merton
+ N Y Times p25 My 20 '51 750w
San Francisco Chronicle p15 S 16 '51 300w

"The scope of their studies both quantitatively and qualitatively is so limited that the validity of their conclusions may well be questioned. There is, of course, no denying the searing effect of discrimination. . . It is significant that not one of the twenty-five subjects studied by Doctors Kardiner and Ovesey actively participated in any organized effort to modify the social environment through political action, legal action, economic pressures, or propaganda. Nor had any of the subjects been successful in competition with whites in any particular field. The omission of such subjects seriously impairs the representativeness of the sample." H. L. Moon
Sat R of Lit 34:17 Jl 14 '51 850w

"This signicant analysis probes in a pioneer way into the innermost core of race and group relations. It gives us at long last illuminating insight into the typical psychological effects of social discrimination on the minority personality." Alain Locke
Survey 87:446 O '51 500w

Reviewed by J. H. Franklin
Yale R n s 41:132 autumn '51 390w

KARIG, WALTER. Caroline Hicks. 438p $3.50 Rinehart
51-427

Caroline Hicks, an unsophisticated girl from Pennsylvania, who went to Washington to take a civil service job in the department of interior, is the heroine. The novel is a record of her experiences in shedding her country outlook, and learning to conform to Washington social standards.

"It's dizzy, daffy and gamey but it does provide a picture of part of what goes on behind the capital's imposing facade." V. P. Hass
Chicago Sunday Tribune p8 Mr 11 '51 400w

Kirkus 18:735 D 15 '50 150w

"There is a too great tendency to spice the remarks with apt aphorisms which at times make the reader wince, but the language as a whole seems to fit in well. Fast paced, best in pay collection." H. L. Roth
Library J 76:110 Ja 15 '51 90w

Reviewed by Mary Ross
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 F 25 '51 450w

"Captain Karig, a writer with long Washington experience, has produced a graphic and, at many points, interesting Government Girl report. Even when he is depicting her life in a female rooming house, one is convinced he knows what he is writing about." Jay Walz
+ N Y Times p20 Mr 4 '51 450w

"Mr. Karig is evidently a versatile writer. . . In 'Caroline Hicks' he displays a flair for realistic reportage. But his pages of girl-chatter and smart-alecky boy-girl banter are monotonous. Long before the end one begins to wish that Caroline would decide on her young man and settle down to domesticity." Ray Pierre
Sat R of Lit 34:30 Mr 3 '51 280w

KARNEY, JACK. Cop. 252p $3 Holt
51-12788

"The grim story of a young Jewish policeman in New York, where his lot was distinctly not a happy one. Starting with the best of earnest good intentions, his career is wrecked by the graft, corruption, and intolerance he encounters among his fellow-officers and superiors." Library J

"A novel, sordid, brutal, and extremely frank. . . In light of the revelations of the Kefauver committee, 'Cop' reads like testimony wrung from a recalcitrant witness. The author has thrown a glaring, fascinating light on the inner workings of the police-crime alliance that infests all large cities. It should be read by every policeman for the moral it teaches, and by every unsofisticate for its eye opening revelations of what goes on around him." Richard Blakesley
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 O 7 '51 280w

"A graphic, hard-bitten portrayal which shows up a system in a direct object lesson."
Kirkus 19:410 Ag 1 '51 140w

Reviewed by E. F. Walbridge
Library J 76:1333 S 1 '51 90w

"Jack Karney, who is an alumnus of the East Side himself, and associated with the District Attorney's office, knows whereof he writes, and writes about it realistically, even though he overdramatizes a bit."
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p21 O 28 '51 220w

"This made-to-order novel about the rise and fall of a New York City policeman is not likely to win prizes for originality or fine writing, but many of its scenes of life on the force have enough excitment and authenticity to hold your interest." Emanuel Perlmutter
N Y Times p38 O 7 '51 360w

"As a novel 'Cop' suffers from too facile an author's hand with melodramatic contrivance though there are many warm touches about life among New York's slum dwellers. As document it is a straightforward, believable, and disheartening picture." E. J. Fitzgerald
+ — Sat R of Lit 34:34 N 24 '51 380w

KARRER, PAUL, and JUCKER, ERNST. Carotenoids; tr. and rev. by E. A. Braude. 383p il $8.50 Elsevier
612.0154 Carotenoid A51-7354

"A comprehensive monograph of the current knowledge of a family of yellow to red pigments that is widespread among plants and animals. The senior author has himself made numerous contributions to the knowledge of the subject, and the book contains the results of his researches as well as the published results of other workers." N Y New Tech Bks

Reviewed by H. H. Strain
Am Chem Soc J 73:2979 Je '51 500w

"The translation is good with few errors of significance, though astacene for tetraketo compound is deplorable. The book will long remain a standard for the known chemical structures of carotenoids." G. Mackinney
+ Chem & Eng N 29:954 Mr 5 '51 350w

"For any who desire a handbook on the carotenoid pigments, the present volume will serve most admirably. . . The translator has accomplished his task with the skill of blending and savoring a tasty dish." E. A. Steck
+ Chem Eng 58:266 Mr '51 320w

N Y New Tech Bks 36:3 Ja '51

KASTNER, ERICH. Lisa and Lottie; tr. from the German by Cyrus Brooks; il. by Walter Trier [Eng title: Lottie and Lisa]. 136p $2.50 Little 51-11635

Two little girls, Lisa from Vienna, and Lottie from Munich, meet at a summer camp. They are almost identical in looks, except that one has braids, the other has curls. Before long they discover they are twins, separated because of the divorce of their father and mother. The story is of what they did about it. For ages eight to ten.

"It has originality of idea and piquancy of style. Gay, but without even a dash of anything saccharine, it made me feel very happy—something Pollyanna never did." M. F. Kieran
+ Atlantic 188:104 D '51 120w

Booklist 47:405 Jl 15 '51

Reviewed by Polly Goodwin
Chicago Sunday Tribune p12 S 16 '51 220w

"If what the little girls accomplish is not quite credible, their feelings about the need for both parents are entirely so." J. D. Lindquist and S. M. Andrews
Horn Bk 27:328 S '51 150w

Kirkus 19:294 Je 15 '51 180w

"Girls will enjoy the book not only for the story but because it shows how important twins are to each other and members of a family are to one another. . . Recommended." Virginia Russell
+ Library J 76:1343 S 1 '51 110w

"Delightfully warm and fresh. This is not a book for divorce cases where there is no hope of reconciliation." Alice Fedder
+ Library J 76:1640 O 15 '51 60w

"The plot is amusing in essence. . . But we do not recommend the book for average nine-year-old American girls. Even if they happen to be the children of a divorce, such a story would not be good for them. . . The feelings of the little girls are so well done that we do recommend the book to any parents considering divorce." L. S. Bechtel
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 Ag 19 '51 160w

"Artificial as the situation sounds, the author of 'Emil and the Detectives' has made a very good thing out of it. It is impossible, but one doesn't care. It is complicated, funny, frankly sentimental—and where is the little girl who doesn't like sentiment? Mr. Kästner's good-humored, old-fashioned asides are also quite wise. Walter Trier has added to the general gaiety with his fine drawings." E. L. B.
+ N Y Times p18 Ag 12 '51 150w

"Excellent, and sometimes ironic, children's story."
+ Spec 184:744 D 22 '50 150w

KATZ, JOSEPH. Plotinus' search for the good. 106p $2.50 King's Crown press

186.4 Plotinus 50-11020

"The purpose of this book is to penetrate behind Plotinus' statements to the problems that faced his philosophy. This is no simple task because in Plotinus, as in much of Platonism, dialectic and an unavowed symbolism prevent much of the real problems from being directly stated. . . This book then deviates from the usual approach to Plotinus in that it is less concerned with the interrelation of his ideas and the architecture of his system than with the experimental reference of his ideas. It treats Plotinus' dialectic less for its own sake than to show its function in bridging the inevitable inconsistencies that arise when valuational and existential considerations are not clearly distinguished." (Pref) Index.

"Even if 'moral implications' can be found in Plotinus, one still wonders why the specifically intellectual bases and implications of his metaphysics should not themselves receive the far greater weight which the philosopher explicitly attached to them. When, on the other hand, the author drops this method of interpretation and discusses the concepts and doctrines of Plotinus in their own terms, his analysis is frequently shrewd and helpful. Likewise valuable are his efforts to differentiate Plotinian doctrines from those of earlier and later writers to which they are sometimes assimilated." Alan Gewirth

+ — Ethics 61:243 Ap '51 320w

"Contains a sober and well argued assessment of Plotinus' place and importance in the Hellenic tradition, including the 'intellectualist trend' that led him to conceive of a transcendent existence of the One, and the alleged 'mysticism' in his conception of the One or the Good, which Dr. Katz suspects to be rather an outcome of the prevailing Greek rationalism." D. S. M.

+ J Philos 48:422 Je 21 '51 250w

KATZ, JOSEPH JACOB, and RABINOWITCH, EUGENE I. Chemistry of uranium; pt. 1, The element, its binary and related compounds. 609p $7.25 McGraw

546.79 Uranium (51-3935)

"First half of a comprehensive treatise on uranium chemistry. Covers: occurrence, extraction, physical and chemical properties of the metal. Preparation and properties of compounds with hydrogen, oxygen, nitrogen and halogens." Chem Eng

"It should be an invaluable aid to anyone interested in uranium chemistry and useful to all inorganic chemists." C. E. Bricker

+ Chem & Eng N 29:3892 S 17 '51 290w

"Probably one of the most exhaustive critical surveys on any single element."

+ Chem Eng 58:264 Ag '51 40w

KATZENBACH, MRS LOIS, and KATZENBACH, WILLIAM EMERY. Practical book of American wallpaper; with an introd. by Nancy V. McClelland. 142p il $10 Lippincott

745.54 Wall paper 51-10280

"The development, in the past 30 years, of non-fading colors, washable surfaces, and silk screen printing have given enormous impetus to the use of wallpaper in decoration. Two owners of a leading wall-paper firm have planned this book to show, in quick glimpses, what can be done with wallpaper. They have covered every aspect of their subject, from how to make a narrow room look wider to how to design and print a paper. A careful selection of material has illustrated the fact that wall-paper can almost be called a separate art form, and within that form there is something for every room and every taste." (San Francisco Chronicle) Index.

Booklist 47:325 My 15 '51

"The sections on the techniques of designing, making, and selling wallpaper are written in a simple enough style to interest the customer. Like the patterns shown, the book emerges with one strong over-all effect—it makes the reader want to run right out and paper a wall." Ruth Newhall

+ San Francisco Chronicle p10 My 27 '51 480w

"There are fine plates of vines, flowers, and geometric patterns. . . It is regrettable that no illustrations of the scenic papers of England and France are included or added material about some early craftsmen like Le François and Jean Papillon to show the reader something more of the development of wallpaper from its late sixteenth century beginnings. However, this book is primarily for the interior decorator and the lack of such material will not distress him and the housewife who will find the book highly practical for decorating or redecorating in the latest mode." R. L. H.

+ — Sat R of Lit 34:33 S 1 '51 140w

KAUFMAN, WILLIAM IRVING, ed. Best television plays of the year. (V 1) 317p il $4.50 Merlin

792 Television plays (51-9896)

Contents: The Nantucket legend, by George Lefferts; No shoes, by Lawrence Du Pont; Zone of quiet, by Ring Lardner; The door, by Jeb Stuart; Operation coral, by Stewart Pierce Brown; The Goldbergs, by Gertrude Berg; Something in the wind, by Fred Coe; The Julian Houseman story, by Julian Houseman; Battleship Bismarck, by Maurice Valency.

Booklist 47:249 Mr 15 '51

"I don't believe Kaufman got all the best ones; however, some are excellent. Just reading two, 'The Nantucket Legend' and 'Battleship Bismarck,' convinced me that the best way to take a television play is to see it." Larry Wolters

Chicago Sunday Tribune p14 Mr 18 '51 120w

"This book will be helpful to new writers for television and of interest to all who are involved in theatre or TV production." V. J. Donehue

+ Theatre Arts 35:9 Ap '51 280w

KAUFMAN, WILLIAM IRVING, and COLODZIN, ROBERT SAMUEL. Your career in television. 206p il $3.50 Merlin

791.4 Television as a profession 50-58236

The authors' purpose is to cover all the non-technical aspects of television for the reader interested in finding out how to plan, finance, organize and run a television program as an actor, director, light man, designer, etc.

"The book is valuable to anyone thinking about trying for a niche in this new medium." Larry Wolters

Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 Ja 14 '51 190w

"This is a thoroughly popular treatment of the subject. Recommended only for large television collections." George Freedley

Library J 76:329 F 15 '51 20w

KAUFMAN, WOLFE. Call me Nate; introd. by Elliot Paul; il. by Irma Selz. 143p $2.50 Exposition

"Here are eleven quick pieces, all of which have been previously published here or abroad, about Nate O'Neill, a theatrical agent who can't escape the 8-ball, despite the fact that he is a practising high priest of P. T. Barnum's philosophy. To Nate, a brash, hustling, percentage-happy operator, there isn't an actor, producer, angel, or writer along Broadway or in Hollywood that can't be fleeced; yet, though they are all subjected to the Treatment, it is Nate himself who is invariably the Ultimate Sucker." Sat R of Lit

"Lively, brash and amusing." Lisle Bell

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 Je 24 '51 250w

KAUFMAN, WOLFE—Continued

"One can agree in part, with Elliot Paul's introduction to the volume that the stories are amusing and can concur wholly that they needn't be compared with Chekhov, de Maupassant, et al. They are simply proof that there is no business like show business. And, judging by Nate O'Neill, it's a good thing too." A. H. Weiler

N Y Times p14 Jl 22 '51 350w

"One at a time, in a magazine with other stories to their right and left, perhaps these pieces were diverting. A few, in fact are still. Stacked eleven in a row, though, they provide only a showcase for the deftness with which Mr. Kaufman manipulates caricature, repetition, and the last-sentence switch to extract what is limp humor at best." Bernard Kalb

Sat R of Lit 34:31 Jl 7 '51 310w

KAUFMANN, WALTER ARNOLD. Nietzsche: philosopher, psychologist, antichrist. 409p $6 Princeton univ. press

193.9 Nietzsche, Friedrich Wilhelm

"In a reappraisal of Nietzsche, a scholar studies the German writer's works and corrects the misinterpretations of his ideas that have stigmatized him as a Nazi forerunner. The present interpretation credits Nietzsche with philosophic creativity and a genuine concern in the intellectual power of the individual." Booklist

Booklist 47:182 Ja 15 '51

"This book offers a masterly interpretation of a weird genius among the philosophers. For those who would know Nietzsche it is indispensable." Francis Strickland

+ Christian Century 68:561 My 2 '51 850w

Reviewed by Max Fischer

Commonweal 54:363 Jl 20 '51 1100w

"Here is a book not to be ignored by the student of Nietzsche, not because the author has reduced the thought to a system nor because he has cleared Nietzsche of all racism. Its strength and importance lie in the searching analysis of single facets of the philosopher's thought and in such original contributions as the long but cogent discussion of his relation and parallel to Hegel. These contributions assure the book a high rank in Nietzsche literature." P. S. Miller

+ Crozer Q 28:161 Ap '51 900w

"Of the thousand or so books on Nietzsche, this is among the most important, for it works out with considerable thoroughness an interpretation of Nietzsche's philosophy sharply at variance with the usual ones." Walter Watson

+ Ethics 61:231 Ap '51 850w

"Professor Kaufmann's study is an admirable addition to the ever growing volume of Nietzsche literature. It is worthy, I think, of being placed alongside Jaspers' Einführung and George Morgan's What Nietzsche Means." James Gutmann

+ J Philos 48:644 O 11 '51 1550w

Reviewed by A. J. P. Taylor

New Statesman & Nation 41:749 Je 30 '51 1500w

"Despite minor reservations, Mr. Kaufmann's study is illuminating. . . Certain ambiguities and indecisiveness are perhaps inevitable in writing on Nietzsche, but Mr. Kaufmann has provided us with a useful study of what Nietzsche said and what apparently he meant rather than what detractors and special-pleading exploiters have said about him." Irwin Edman

N Y Times p3 Jl 29 '51 650w

"Mr. Kaufmann has produced what may be the definitive study of Nietzsche's life and thought—an informed, scholarly, and lustrous work."

+ New Yorker 26:107 F 10 '51 170w

"One of the very best books on Nietzsche I have seen. I should not dare to say that this is the final interpretation of a thinker whose interpreters have already boxed the compass of human horizons." Crane Brinton

+ Sat R of Lit 34:32 Ja 13 '51 1150w

Times [London] Lit Sup p505 Ag 10 '51 450w

"Since neither Nietzsche's admirers nor his detractors are in total agreement about what he stood for, Mr. Kaufmann's painstaking study will be a provocative as well as a welcome addition to the analyses of the thinking of this great challenger of traditional values."

+ U S Quarterly Bk R 7:35 Mr '51 290w

KAVANAUGH, MRS ETHEL. Wilderness homesteaders. 303p il $5 Caxton ptrs.

917.98 Frontier and pioneer life—Alaska
51-9026

An account of present day homesteaders in Alaska. A mother and daughter started their wilderness life in a tent; made a success of their garden; and later built their own log cabin.

Booklist 47:235 Mr 1 '51

"A unique account of what the 'weaker sex' can accomplish."

+ Kirkus 18:502 Ag 15 '50 140w

"Neither scientist nor artist, Mrs. Kavanaugh is yet a first rate reporter, and her document is a whole picture, of salmon-canning dingy towns, of birds noted, of mishaps, even miseries, the swift seasons, and the curious co-operative relations among pioneers, all on the nature front together. She gives a picture of how time itself is relished in the woods, and the stars are company." Ernestine Evans

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Ja 21 '51 350w

KAYE-SMITH, SHEILA (MRS THEODORE PENROSE FRY). Mrs Gailey. 310p $3 Harper 51-9476

Mrs Gailey was a widow with a mentally defective son. Her conscience bothered her about her son, but first of all she wanted a good time. The story describes her attempt to gain her ends as secretary to a bewildered idealist, much above her in social caste. Her attempts brought tragedy to some, but not to herself. The scene is Sussex, England, just after World war II.

Booklist 47:125; 237 D 1 '50; Mr 1 '51

Bookmark 10:133 Mr '51 50w

Reviewed by Riley Hughes

Cath World 173:73 Ap '51 250w

"Not for pleasure reading, the book is a powerful novel." Olive Carruthers

Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 Je 3 '51 500w

Christian Science Monitor p11 Ap 5 '51 250w

Cleveland Open Shelf p8 Mr '51

Kirkus 18:707 D 1 '50 180w

"A spirit of mischief and new vivacity astir in Sheila Kaye-Smith make her 'Mrs. Gailey' a special delight. . . In 'Mrs. Gailey,' as always, Miss Kaye-Smith writes a well plotted, thoroughly credible novel of manners which has both the authority of her sound, humane interest in life and of her delightfully mature and full-flavored art of recreating it upon the printed page." Margaret Evans

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 F 18 '51 850w

"While Miss Kaye-Smith is explaining how so little can do so much she assembles, skillfully and quietly, all the important factors in the struggle. Presently the deep-sounding values emerge from behind the airs and manners, pride and prejudice, pose and pretense. Each actor in the drama carries his load of social significance gracefully and believably." Jane Martin

+ N Y Times p20 F 25 '51 400w

"A painstaking novel, filled with emotional passages that never quite catch fire."

New Yorker 27:110 Mr 3 '51 70w

San Francisco Chronicle p20 Ap 1 '51 130w

"It is a glibly clever, but trivial social commentary Sheila Kaye-Smith has written with her usual ease of craftsmanship, and through its adept technical perfections shine the affection and understanding for the land, and the people who live by the land. . . Nonetheless, it lacks the strength and primitive beauty which Miss Kaye-Smith lavished on such memorable stories as 'Joanna Godden' and 'Sussex Gorse.'" L. S. Munn

+ — Springf'd Republican p8D Mr 11 '51 420w

Wis Lib Bul 47:89 Ap '51

"A very solid and interesting piece of work." Paul Pickrel
+ Yale R n s 40:575 spring '51 240w

KAZIN, ALFRED, ed. F. Scott Fitzgerald; the man and his work. 219p $3 World pub.

B or 92 Fitzgerald, Francis Scott Key 51-10640

"This book is a sort of symposium of what has been written about Fitzgerald during the past thirty years. It ranges from brief memoirs concerning his days at Princeton to full-scale reviews of his novels, and contains a variety of judgments—some snap, some measured—of his place in our literary history. Arthur Mizener and Budd Schulberg are represented by the pieces that were the cornerstones for their currently successful books about Fitzgerald. The other contributors include Edmund Wilson, Heywood Broun, John Mosher, H. L. Mencken, T. S. Eliot, Glenway Wescott, and Lionel Trilling." New Yorker

Booklist 47:361 Je 15 '51

Bookmark 10:205 Je '51 20w

Reviewed by J. A. Clark
Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 My 27 '51 130w

Reviewed by Perry Miller
Nation 173:356 O 27 '51 480w

"A dozen out of the thirty-five pieces in this volume make excellent reading—but there is no joining to form an integrated view, no consensus, and a meeting of minds occurs only at the most obvious points. There is indeed a danger that the reader will be confused by the diversity, dizzled by so many confident voices each pressing a different view." Milton Rugoff
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 My 27 '51 1350w

"Taken separately, these pieces make fascinating reading, even when we don't agree with them. Taken one after the other in immediate succession, they are bewildering, inevitably." Charles Jackson
N Y Times p5 Ap 29 '51 1800w

"All in all, a highly competent survey."
+ New Yorker 27:118 My 3 '51 200w

"In this book it is depressing to notice how often the critics repeat the same ideas, the same observations, the same conclusions, as though their minds, their phrases were cut by machine from the same alphabet. The exceptions are few and extremely enlightening. One may not see eye to eye with H. L. Mencken, but in this company his review of Fitzgerald's 'The Great Gatsby' shines like a naughty light in a gray world; it is well above the patronage of praise and blame." Horace Gregory
Sat R of Lit 34:15 My 19 '51 850w

KAZIN, ALFRED. Walker in the city; drawings by Marvin Bileck. 176p $3 Harcourt

818 Authors—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc. Brooklyn 51-13797

Reminiscences of a boy's life in New York, branching out in walks and excursions from the center, the kitchen of the home of poor Jewish immigrants in Brownsville. Some of the material has been previously published in Commentary and The New Yorker.

Reviewed by C. J. Rolo
Atlantic 189:88 Ja '52 550w

Booklist 48:121 D 1 '51

Bookmark 11:57 D '51 20w

"A book of rare beauty and distinction." Edmund Fuller
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 N 18 '51 440w

Cleveland Open Shelf p27 N '51

+ Kirkus 19:594 O 1 '51 170w

"These reminiscences capture all too completely the smell, sound and sight of Brooklyn as it was for one moment in time. A work of tremendous power written so quietly that every New Yorker will take to his bosom with love." M. S. Byam
+ Library J 76:1560 O 1 '51 100w

"For any who were born in New York, for any who live within its limits, or better still, for all who love it, this is a book which can be read as a melancholy hymn can be sung, softly and with gladness that all things of pleasure are not triumphant, noisy, and covered with waving corn and fields of wheat." Thomas Sugrue
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 N 4 '51 800w

"There is certainly no recent autobiographer with so exact and lyric a memory. Kazin does not sentimentalize. . . Yet before the reader has finished these 176 pages, he has come to see with sympathetic vision the whole texture, color and sound of life in this tenement realm which is revealed as tapestried, as dazzling, as full of lush and varied richness as an Arabian bazaar. . . There is a good deal that Kazin leaves half implicit, reflections which the reader may make for himself. Indeed, the best in this book (and a large part of it is the best) is the evocation itself and the intimations suggested. The fact is that Kazin's prose becomes a little too glibly generalized and over-blown when he makes moral points too expressly." Irwin Edman
+ N Y Times p1 O 28 '51 900w

"This singular and beautiful work is a sort of perambulating memoir in lyric form. By turns mournful, violent, and tender, its theme is the immemorial one of the boy in search of the man he must become. . . It is a small book, and an immense achievement." Brendan Gill
+ New Yorker 27:180 N 17 '51 250w

"The book is composed with charm and sensitivity. Writing about the life of the public school, about the fierce combativeness of the handball game, about the exciting discovery of the treasures behind the library door, Kazin manages to evoke and to communicate a sense of the meaningfulness of these specific experiences. But such passages remain isolated; the volume as a whole fails of its main intention through serious deficiencies of structure and substance." Oscar Handlin
Sat R of Lit 34:14 N 17 '51 700w

Reviewed by Dorothy Norman
Survey 87:544 D '51 500w

KEATS, JOHN. Selected letters; ed. with an introd. by Lionel Trilling. (Great letters ser) 282p $3.50 Farrar, Straus

B or 92 Authors—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc. 51-10786

For this volume in the Great Letters Series, Lionel Trilling has made a selection from Keats' letters, using the text of Maurice Buxton Forman's Third edition (1947), and also making use of Forman's notes. The editor has written a forty-page critical and biographical introduction, and has compiled a brief who's who of Keats' friends and correspondents.

Booklist 47:344 Je 1 '51

Reviewed by Paul Engle
Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 Je 17 '51 300w

Reviewed by Ruth Chapin
Christian Science Monitor p13 S 27 '51 550w

"This will be extremely useful in any book collection that seeks to include the most basic items of literature." Shirley Barker
+ Library J 76:596 Ap 1 '51 90w

"The temptation is simply to quote, for there are astonishing beauties in these letters, sentence perfect and complete. . . In his fine introduction Mr. Trilling speaks of Keats's geniality. I found myself thinking that Keats was that rarity among writers, a truly pleasing man—but we probably mean the same thing." Irving Howe

KEATS, JOHN—Continued

+ Nation 172:543 Je 9 '51 550w

"The Keats of the poems sometimes slips into sentimentality, the Keats of the letters, never. The young man we encounter in these pages, aged twenty-one to twenty-five, strikes us as uncommonly manly, and indeed masculine, in the bent of his nature. He was in fact a good companion, tolerant on occasion of rowdy manners and bawdy jokes, vigorous in his participation in games. . . An excellent boxer not afraid to take on a heavier opponent in a fist fight, and a walker happy to tramp with a knapsack for days at a time. . . 'The spiritual and moral health of which he seems the image we cannot now attain by wishing for it,' writes Mr. Trilling. 'But we cannot attain it without wishing for it, and clearly imagining it.' For this purpose Keats's letters are more serviceable than his poems." G. F. Whicher

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p3 Je 3 '51 800w

Reviewed by Peter Quennell
N Y Times p4 My 27 '51 1250w
New Yorker 27:159 D 15 '51 90w

"One of the main treats of the volume is Professor Trilling's long introduction, a brilliant analysis of Keats's mind, personality, and stature."

+ Sat R of Lit 34:47 Jl 14 '51 280w
Time 58:94 Jl 16 '51 550w

KEENAN, ALAN. Neuroses and sacraments. 163p $2.50 Sheed

265 Sacraments. Neuroses. Psychology, Pastoral 50-9858

"Discusses . . . the nature of the sacraments and the role they play in the life of a Christian. Though concerned mainly with 'neurotics,' the comments by Father Keenan are, perhaps, even more valuable for 'normal' people. It is not only the neurotic who has an insufficient comprehension of the sacraments and their efficacy." Commonweal

+ Cath World 172:400 F '51 60w

"There is no doubt that Father Keenan's book will do much good and will be read with great profit by all sorts of people, whether neurotics or not, psychologists or educators, priests or laymen." Rudolf Allers

+ Commonweal 53:181 N 24 '50 350w

KEFAUVER, ESTES. Crime in America; ed. and with an introd. by Sidney Shalett. 333p il $3.50; pa $1 Doubleday

364 U.S. Congress. Senate. Special committee to investigate crime in interstate commerce. Crime and criminals—U.S. 51-11582

"[This] is Senator Kefauver's personal report on what was learned in a year-long investigation of criminals and politicians. The Senator is his own historian; he writes and judges from first-hand knowledge. The facts are naturally the same as already presented by newspapers, radio and television, but the arrangement and analysis are new." N Y Herald Tribune Bk R

Booklist 47:373; 48:5 Jl 1 '51; S 1 '51

Reviewed by William Moore
Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 Jl 15 '51 550w

"The Senator has written as he performed as chairman: calmly and judicially, and his witnesses, in every case, indict themselves." Roland Sawyer

+ Christian Science Monitor p7 Jl 12 '51 1350w
Churchman 165:17 N 1 '51 30w
Cleveland Open Shelf p17 S '51

Reviewed by Joe Dever
Commonweal 54:434 Ag 10 '51 850w
Current Hist 21:229 O '51 90w

Reviewed by H. H. Wilson
Nation 173:45 Jl 21 '51 800w

"But what to do?. . A host of the committee's legislative recommendations are before Congress. But in the end the solution depends on every city and state. No community need endure its Costello any longer than the voters desire. The Kefauvers start the ferment by telling the neglected truth. The rest is up to the people. They are unmistakably angry about crime and politics, and in the mood to clean house. Senator Kefauver's book will help maintain the American indignation." L. L. Engelking

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p1 Jl 15 '51 850w

"If the reader missed the TV whoop-de-doo and had never read a newspaper or magazine story about the country's biggest gamblers and mob leaders, this plodding document might bring him more or less up to date, but the characters who were put on show before the cameras lie dismally flat in the pages of 'Crime in America,' more dry and dead than old pressed leaves." Meyer Berger

N Y Times p3 Jl 15 '51 1200w

"A persuasive piece of collaboration, illustrated with equally persuasive photographs of a number of the strangely laconic individuals the Senator ran into during his peregrinations."

+ New Yorker 27:78 Jl 21 '51 260w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson
San Francisco Chronicle p14 Jl 13 '51 600w

Reviewed by H. B. Hinton
Sat R of Lit 34:16 Jl 14 '51 1000w

Reviewed by A. N. Romm
Springf'd Republican p5D Jl 29 '51 440w

Reviewed by Hillier Krieghbaum
Survey 87:490 N '51 360w

KEILER, MANFRED. Art in the schoolroom. 214p il $4 Univ. of Neb. press

372.5 Art—Study and teaching 51-12230

"Presents 120 tested art assignments for year-round use with 50 actual drawings by children as illustrations. . . Mr Keiler has put the philosophy of modern art education into practical terms in this book which aims at developing the entire personality of the pupil. The author is Assistant Professor of Art Education at the University of Nebraska, and was for many years a classroom teacher and supervisor of art in public schools." School Arts

School & Society 74:143 S 1 '51 50w

"This new book is designed to help schoolteachers who conduct art classes with little or no formal training in the field of art. . . Directions for all types of materials best to use are given, and most important of all, a guide to interpreting the children's work is included. This will prove an invaluable aid to the teacher in gaining a better understanding of her pupils."

+ School Arts 51:10a O '51 210w

KEITH, MRS AGNES (NEWTON). White man returns; sketches by the author. (Atlantic monthly press bk) 310p $4 Little

919.11 British North Borneo 51-5291

Continues the life story of the Keith family begun in Land Below the Wind, and Three Came Back (Book Review Digest 1939, 1947). In 1946 Mr Keith returned to North Borneo as a civil administrator for the British Crown. Later he was joined by his wife and their young son, George. This book describes their part in the reconstruction of that section of Borneo.

"What gives to Mrs. Keith's narrative its high caliber and its depth of interest is her candor and warmth, her unforced humor and her impressive intelligence."
+ Atlantic 188:86 O '51 150w

Booklist 47:353; 48:9 Je 15 '51; S 1 '51

"This is a personal story but Mrs. Keith's experience of the East in fifteen years of peace and war, her breadth of sympathy and forthright intelligence give this book a broader value than its obvious attractions of humorous anecdote and armchair travelogue." Hilda Kirkwood
+ Canadian Forum 31:164 O '51 430w

" 'White Man Returns' has an undercurrent of seriousness, of longing for human tolerance and understanding, and it is less gay, less colorful than 'Land Below the Wind.'. . Some readers will be most fascinated by the tales of native beliefs; others by the economic picture of a country rebuilding, or by the human portrait gallery, or by the way in which the author tells those tales and paints those pictures. Incidentally, she actually chronicles with both words and pictures, for the many revealing illustrations in the book were all done by her." Fanny Butcher
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 Ag 19 '51 460w

" 'White Man Returns' is less unified, more diffuse, than either 'Land Below the Wind' or 'Three Came home,' because it is more than a personal narrative. Mrs. Keith wishes to make her readers aware of Asia's changed and changing climate and of its effect on Borneo, but she is not always as successful as before in integrating her family story and her larger theme of the oneness of all peoples." Takashi Oka
Christian Science Monitor p7 Ag 9 '51 800w

Reviewed by E. S. Skillin
Commonweal 54:435 Ag 10 '51 550w

Kirkus 19:284 Je 1 '51 200w

"These personal reminiscences shot with humor and mature judgement make this the best of three excellent books whose value is lasting. Highly recommended." H. R. Forbes
+ Library J 76:1215 Ag '51 110w

Nation 173:216 S 15 '51 90w

"Mrs. Keith writes with a novelist's technique. We are beside her to see and listen as scene after scene is presented in dramatic dialogue. . . There is an enchantment in her tale of manners, and good theater in all the ongoings." Ernestine Evans
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p1 Ag 5 '51 1050w

"Mrs. Keith is a courageous, compassionate, intelligent woman, who knows exactly what she is writing about, firsthand. . . Such a piece of writing as the description of the assassination of Duncan George Stewart matters enormously. So does the whole sunny, satisfactory book." Evelyn Eaton
+ N Y Times p3 Ag 5 '51 550w

"Doesn't have the sustained interest of Mrs. Keith's previous book. Actually, it is a running commentary, rather too jauntily written at times, on the ambiguous position in the East of a well-intentioned and conscientious Westerner. . . The author's portraits of her servants and acquaintances in Sandakan are nicely and sympathetically done, but in the long run it's young George, one of the most adjustable children on record, who comes through best."
+ — New Yorker 27:66 Ag 4 '51 200w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p14 Ag 8 '51 800w

"Mrs. Keith's book is distinguished for her deep awareness of the problem of East versus West, her love for the East's people, and the sense of humor which carries her over the toughest spots. If the 'Revolution' is to be avoided, if the white man is to be permitted to remain in the East, if the healing and strengthening aspects of Western science and politics are to be accepted there, people like the Keiths will be largely responsible." Dorothy Van Doren
+ Sat R of Lit 34:17 Ag 25 '51 500w

Reviewed by M. L. Harthan
Springf'd Republican p6D Ag 19 '51 200w

Time 58:86 Ag 6 '51 550w

KEITH, SIR ARTHUR. Autobiography. 721p il $4.75 Philosophical lib.
B or 92 50-10836

Autobiography of a famous Scottish doctor and anthropologist, based on his diaries. Sir Arthur Keith was born near Aberdeen in 1866, and his book is especially detailed about his first ten years spent on his father's farm. There follows the story of his struggle to gain an education, his early years as a doctor, his marriage, his travels in Siam, Palestine, Egypt, and his rise to fame, culminating in his later years on his own farm, and with the writing of his memoirs in his eighties. Index.

Reviewed by W. M. Krogman
Am J Soc 57:406 Ja '52 700w

"The publication of Sir Arthur Keith's Autobiography is an event of some importance in the literary world. For here is no mere 'success story' (though it is that, as well): here is the story of the way in which a young Scottish doctor made himself into one of the leading authorities on the evolution of man, and became the person to whom most prehistoric relics were immediately taken on discovery, since he, more than anyone else, would know what information might be derived from anatomical and physical examination. Because of his very eminence, however, it seems to some degree unfortunate that Sir Arthur has put so much of his own personal theories into the book." John Rowland
+ — Hibbert J 48:313 Ap '50 1000w

"No man's story of his own life can fail to be of interest to others if it be written in sincerity. . . That his autobiography has been written in sincerity is manifest; for were this not to be the case some passages in the book would possibly have failed to gain the permanence of print." F. W. Jones
+ Manchester Guardian p4 Mr 14 '50 750w

Reviewed by Jacquetta Hawkes
New Statesman & Nation 39:312 Mr 18 '50 850w

San Francisco Chronicle p18 Ja 7 '51 60w

Social Studies 42:232 My '51 10w

"Sir Arthur Keith's autobiography is less a reflection of passing events and personalities as seen through the eyes of the author than reflections on his own moods and aspirations as he looks back on a long and active life of academic work. It is essentially a story of personal reminiscences compiled by a man who, in the peace of retirement and with the aid of a carefully kept diary, summarises the development of his career as anatomist and anthropologist. It is an intimate record, sometimes a little uncomfortably so; but it is an honest record, for it dwells on disappointments and estrangements as well as successes and friendships, and on mistakes in the course of scientific investigations as well as on the solid achievements to which the latter also led." W. E. L. Clark
+ Spec 184:314 Mr 10 '50 1200w

"Sir Arthur Keith's record of his long life is helped by a retentive memory and a full diary, but above all by his frankness. Firmly respecting the confidences of the many others mentioned in the work, he has no secrets from the reader on his own side."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p150 Mr 10 '50 1100w

KEITH, ELMER. Shotguns. 307p il $5 Stackpole & Heck
683 Shotguns 50-10666

A brief history of shotguns is followed by descriptions of the parts, action, and uses of double guns, repeating shotguns, and single loaders. In the main the book considers American makes, but a few British and European guns are included. No index.

KEITH, ELMER—Continued
Booklist 47:129 D 1 '50

Reviewed by J. A. Menaugh
Chicago Sunday Tribune p10 My 20 '51 90w

"An exhaustive, highly technical handbook." R. W. Henderson
+ Library J 76:50 Ja 1 '51 30w

KELEMEN, PAL. Baroque and rococo in Latin America. 302p 192pl $16.50 Macmillan

709.8 Art, Spanish. Art—Latin America. Art, Baroque 51-4124

"The author has looked for the original and distinctively Latin American expressions of the baroque and rococo in seventeenth and eighteenth century architecture, painting, and sculpture. Most of the material is on ecclesiastical work. The text describes the objects in detail, traces sources of particular subjects or treatment, and compares European examples of similar work. Hundreds of excellent photographs, although some are small." Booklist

Booklist 47:378 Jl 1 '51

"This volume should be welcomed not only by students, but by enlightened visitors to Latin America. A reader can make a pilgrimage while at home by following the text which expands a fascinating subject in an illuminating way." Dorothy Adlow
+ Christian Science Monitor p13 S 27 '51 450w

Reviewed by Serge Hughes
— Commonweal 54:531 S 7 '51 500w

"Expensive but most worthwhile for reference collections." A. S. Plaut
+ Library J 76:1425 S 15 '51 110w

"In his book Mr. Kelemen has provided a sensitive introduction to the human values in an art which has been nearly completely neglected. Here at last is struck a balance between research and broad interpretation. Here is effective communication with the world outside scholarship. Here is a worthy presentation of the fabulous wealth of our neighbors' colonial heritage in art." M. S. Soria
+ Nation 173:75 Jl 28 '51 900w

"I have no hesitation in saying this is far and away the best, the most informative—and the most readable book in any language on the architecture, sculpture and painting of Latin America and the unique conditions under which these flourished. Pál Kelemen—remembered for the profound 'Medieval American Art'—is one of those rare and fortunate scholars who are able to inspire real enthusiasm and interest in the general reader." Bernard Bevan
+ N Y Times p12 Jl 1 '51 700w

"Splendidly printed and magnificently illustrated volume, a work which will appeal equally to the layman and to the historian." H. E. Wethey
+ Sat R of Lit 34:38 Jl 7 '51 550w

"The selection of photographs, most of them ecclesiastical in subject, is both admirable and generous, and contributes greatly to the success of this handsome volume. Useful to all students of Latin American culture, it will be of particular value as an enthusiastic interpretation for the general reader of the highest achievements of Spanish Colonial art in Latin America."
+ U S Quarterly Bk R 7:232 S '51 270w

KELLAND, CLARENCE BUDINGTON. Great mail robbery. 247p $2.75 Harper 51-11463

Detective story.

Booklist 48:12 S 1 '51

Kirkus 19:248 My 15 '51 100w

Reviewed by Anthony Boucher
— N Y Times p17 Ag 5 '51 50w

"When Mr. Kelland uses a specialized background he does it up thoroughly. You'll learn all about the New York General Post Office in this account of a gang of crooks, who tried to 'use jujitsu' on the U.S. Mails. Postal Inspector Will Scarlet is smart and diligent on their trail, and some stylized but amusing characters provide assisant detection, love and comedy. If the action follows conventional lines, at least there's lots of it." L. G. Offord
San Francisco Chronicle p18 Jl 15 '51 60w

Wis Lib Bul 47:215 S '51

KELLER, JAMES GREGORY. Careers that change your world; Christopher guides for jobs that make the future. 302p $2 Doubleday

371.425 The Christophers, incorporated. Profession, Choice of. Occupations 50-11008

"A little guide for finding a purposeful and satisfying job, Father James Keller's book deals with applying Christianity to everyday business and living. Careers which he lists as being important in influencing the course of the world include Government work, television, writing, teaching, work in the field of atomic energy and secretarial work in all these fields." (San Francisco Chronicle) No index.

Cath World 173:80 Ap '51 110w

"An inspirational book in the employment field, this is not necessarily for the Catholic market but which should be of interest to all those concerned with the revitalizing of religion."
+ Kirkus 18:624 O 1 '50 150w

Reviewed by J. W. Chase
N Y Times p19 Ja 21 '51 180w

San Francisco Chronicle p22 F 25 '51 60w

KELLER, JAMES GREGORY. Government is your business. 362p $2 Doubleday

342.73 U.S.—Politics and government—Handbooks, manuals, etc. 51-13656

"[This work] specifies that, with purpose and a modicum of outgoing effort, you can change politics. The author covers this normally exasperating and controversial territory without debating any political or economic issue, or any moral, philosophical or religious question. It's a volume written to reduce barriers and to hearten the frustrated and reluctant citizen." N Y Times

Booklist 48:116 D 1 '51

"Father Keller's continuous writing and lecturing have won him a wide audience for his beliefs in individual and co-operative self-help. This is for that audience."
Kirkus 19:516 S 1 '51 170w

"While Father Keller hammers his argument at length and with perhaps undue confidence in what one person can do, the book is usefully informative. Condensed, it would make an excellent text for civics courses in high schools and colleges." Frances Witherspoon
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p16 N 18 '51 350w

"Father Keller's method is conversational and anecdotal. It's getting to be an obscure postman or stenographer, indeed, who has not by now had a recorded chat with the Christopher priest and few offices seem too exalted for him to penetrate for an exchange of views on the part of faith and purpose in success. The popularity of Father Keller's work comes principally, one should think, from that open and optimistic friendliness of his approach; and its success comes from what almost seems, in a naughty and complicated world, to be its paradoxical truth." Philip Burnham
+ N Y Times p39 N 4 '51 400w

Springf'd Republican p5D Jl 15 '51 170w

KELLEY, CARL FRANKLIN. Spirit of love: based on the teachings of St François de Sales. 287p $3.50 Harper

241 Francis de Sales, Saint, bp. Love (theology) 51-9229

A book on St François de Sales emphasising his teachings on the necessity of the Christian's love of God.

Commonweal 53:430 F 2 '51 70w

"This is an attractive book. The forty-two pages of notes in fine print reveal a careful scholar and contain a wealth of Catholic devotional wisdom. A blemish in the volume is the frequency of misspelled words. Jacques Maritain writes an appreciative foreword, although as a Thomist he fears a degree of heretical quietism in Francis' thought." J. W. Brush
+ Crozer Q 28:258 Jl '51 440w

"Kelley's style is attractive, and he succeeds in presenting a balanced analysis of his subject which preserves the practical wisdom of his master in a framework of theological meaning. . . The author has performed an admirable task of capturing the practical teachings of François. Most valuable is the recovery of the meaning of the vocation of prayer in the common life." T. J. Altizer
+ J Religion 31:306 O '51 500w

"The author makes no pretense of writing for theologians nor for historians. It is a book for the laity, primarily Catholics, although other devotees of the mystic way would find it helpful. It is not 'easy reading' but neither is it too difficult for thoughtful readers."
Kirkus 19:53 F 1 '51 200w

KELLEY, EARL CLARENCE. Workshop way of learning. 169p $2.75 Harper
370.72 Wayne university. Education workshop. Teachers—Training 51-3108

"The director of the Wayne University Education Workshop defines its principles and purposes and describes the techniques and practices used in attaining a more significant way of teaching and learning. Index." Bookmark

Reviewed by H. R. Douglass
Ann Am Acad 278:224 N '51 420w
Booklist 47:396 Jl 15 '51
Bookmark 10:229 Jl '51 30w
Management R 40:516 Ag '51 60w

"Detailed procedures for organizing a workshop, for reducing barriers between learners and for evaluation of outcomes are described in this useful book which can also serve as a handbook. Not only schools and colleges but social agencies, Government agencies, business firms and organizations interested in training programs can benefit by this book." I. B.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p19 Ag 5 '51 190w
School & Society 73:255 Ap 21 '51 50w
Reviewed by Ethel Dexter
Springf'd Republican p11D Je 24 '51 270w
Wis Lib Bul 47:117 My '51

KELLY, BURNHAM. Prefabrication of houses; a study by the Albert Farwell Bemis foundation of the prefabrication industry in the United States. 466p il $7.50 Mass. inst. of technology; Wiley
691 Buildings, Prefabricated 51-10730

"An authoritative study sponsored by the Albert Farwell Bemis Foundation. The main viewpoint is economic and managerial. In the first part of the book, the history of the industry, its current state and its probable future are outlined. In the second part, design, production, marketing and related business aspects are covered. In appendices there is such useful material as lists of manufacturers of prefabricated houses and a bibliography of books, pamphlets, periodicals and trade association material." Library J

Booklist 47:359 Je 15 '51
Reviewed by R. R. Hawkins
+ Library J 76:1032 Je 15 '51 110w

"An authoritative and detailed analysis."
+ N Y New Tech Bks 36:56 Jl '51

"A thorough discussion of prefabrication, mainly in America, this study puts together concisely and simply a vast amount of research information on its subject."
+ U S Quarterly Bk R 7:323 S '51 240w

KELLY, MRS ELEANOR (MERCEIN). Proud castle. 340p $3 Bobbs
51-1166

Romantic novel about an American youth and a descendent of a long line of Hungarian aristocrats.

Booklist 47:254 Mr 15 '51
Cleveland Open Shelf p8 Mr '51

"Readers of the author's Basque stories will find the same warmth and zest in this romantic narrative."
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p21 Ap 22 '51 90w

"'Proud Castle' will indubitably please a large audience, but this mawkish tale is not the answer to the reading public's discontent with the morbid or sordid novel." C. N. Govan
Sat R of Lit 34:31 Mr 3 '51 260w

KELLY, FRED CHARTERS, ed. Miracle at Kitty Hawk. See Wright, W.

KELLY, FRED CHARTERS. The Wright brothers; a biography authorized by Orville Wright. rev ed 340p il $5 Farrar, Straus
B or 92 Wright, Orville. Wright, Wilbur
51-11660

"A revision of the authorized biography which has been out of print. The changes seem slight; earlier edition is not available for comparison." (Booklist) For first edition see Book Review Digest 1943.

Booklist 48:33 S 15 '51
Reviewed by Godfrey Sperling
Christian Science Monitor p9 Ag 1 '51 300w

"To the average reader the recently published volume of the Wright brothers' letters will be more interesting and illuminating than this reissue of the authorized biography."
Nation 173:177 S 1 '51 180w
Reviewed by G. F. Whicher
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p25 N 25 '51 60w

KELLY, HENRY WARREN, and KELLY, DOROTHY TURNER SMITH. Dancing diplomats; il. by Gustave Baumann. 254p $4 Univ. of N.Mex. press
918.5 Peru—Description and travel 50-58322

An informal journal describing the adventures of a young American vice consul and his wife in Iquitos, Peru. The author lost his life three years ago shooting the Rio Grande rapids, near Taos.

Booklist 47:186 Ja 15 '51
Reviewed by B. J. Thompson
+ Cath World 172:479 Mr '51 270w

"This is a heart-warming book. . . [Kelly's] story could no doubt be echoed by hundreds of devoted young men in the foreign service who guard the reputation and prestige of our country in the outposts of civilization. It is well that one of their number should have spoken so clearly (and so entertainingly) for them all." Alban Baer
+ Commonweal 53:406 Ja 26 '51 650w
Foreign Affairs 29:681 Jl '51 10w

"Maybe it is because of the softening effects of safe distance and retrospect, or because he shared these epic battles with a stouthearted and understanding female warrior, maybe it is youth and love and the love of life's adventures—whatever the cause, these struggles are reported with warm and infectious gayety. . . This gay, warmhearted, life-loving and folk-loving young couple must have made admirable representatives of Tio Sam (uncle to you) in wartime Peru." B. D. Wolfe
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 Ja 7 '51 450w

"All those alarmed or pleased over the increasing tendency of the United States to police, order, improve, enlighten or feed various backward parts of the world will find

KELLY, H. W.—Continued
further ground for their emotions in the Kellys' book. The account of how the United States Air Forces mapped the disputed Ecuador-Peru boundary, and of how American agencies insisted that certain minimum standards of health and treatment prevail among the rubber gatherers, is here in sufficient detail to remind anyone who needs reminding that we have a world mission likely to last a long time." Harry Sylvester

N Y Times p14 F 11 '51 470w

San Francisco Chronicle p16 Ja 21 '51 260w

KELSEN, HANS. Law of the United nations; a critical analysis of its fundamental problems; pub. under the auspices of the London institute of world affairs. (Library of world affairs) 903p $18.75 Praeger

341.13 United nations (organization) 51-3650

"Professor Kelsen has compiled a detailed juristic analysis of the United Nations Organization under three heads: the purposes of the organization, its organs and its functions. His starting-point is the letter of the Charter. Eschewing political problems, he is not concerned to argue what the organization could or should have been; his purpose is to demonstrate, by means of the lawyer's technique of textual interpretation, what the organization is and so to uncover its fundamental problems." Times [London] Lit Sup

"Kelsen's book is a rich mine of legal argumentation. It will be constantly cited in legal debates in and out of the United Nations, and on both sides of the argument. It is a tribute to the extraordinary capacity of its author for refined logical analysis. It does not throw too much light on the actual functioning of the United Nations in a world of power politics—that is not the author's purpose—but within the limits which the author rigorously sets for himself, it is a highly useful contribution to the legal analysis of the Charter, and an important aid to the legal experts whether they are engaged in making law out of an essentially political document or defending political positions with legal arguments." L. M. Goodrich

+ Am Pol Sci R 45:549 Je '51 1800w

Reviewed by Gerhart Niemeyer

Ann Am Acad 274:213 Mr '51 700w

Christian Century 68:1379 N 28 '51 90w

Foreign Affairs 29:489 Ap '51 30w

"In so far as these considerations are felt to be relevant, Professor Kelsen's new book will be a great disappointment to his many admirers. He has chosen the path of irony and criticism rather than the road of helpful assistance. . . Whatever one might think about the spirit of this book, one has to remember that a work of this magnitude, coming from such a well-known author, cannot be disregarded by anyone interested in the United Nations." L. B. Sohn

Harvard Law R 64:517 Ja '51 900w

"Written by one of the outstanding authorities on international law, this is recommended for all large research libraries." Donald Wasson

+ Library J 76:327 F 15 '51 120w

Times [London] Lit Sup p462 Jl 28 '50 550w

KELSEY, VERA. Red River runs north! 297p maps $3.75 Harper

971.27 Red river of the North 51-9798

History of the Red River, which rises in the United States and flows north into central Canada, and of the fertile lands which it drains. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 47:270 Ap 1 '51

"Thruout the 19th century the Red river valley had an identity of its own, and it is of that period that Vera Kelsey tells her story. With the 20th century the region has lost much of its identity. But its people, we are assured, still possess a deep vitality and a spaciousness of mind and feelings. If they have little sense of roots, this book should help to make them aware of their own background and its stirring past." Walter Havighurst

Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 Mr 18 '51 360w

"'Red River Runs North' somewhat resembles a documentary film slowed just sufficiently so that no action or actor will be slighted. It is a stiff dose of violence and treachery, somewhat offset by courage, hope, invincible enterprise, and the determination to be free. Anyone discouraged by today should read it to get a clear view of yesterday and be cheered." T. M. Longstreth

+ Christian Science Monitor p9 Ap 7 '51 380w

"This might well serve as a model for regional books, and it makes absorbing reading whether or not the reader has any association with or affection for the area included under the Red River cognomen."

+ Kirkus 19:86 F 1 '51 180w

"Miss Kelsey has adorned her narrative with a kind of Red River jig of rhetorical capers, but she has good material and a lot of it. She demonstrates that the Valley deserves a book." H. N. Smith

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 Je 3 '51 950w

"Miss Kelsey's research is painstaking and her writing vivid. Railroad fans will find the chapters about the builders of empire well worth the price of the book." R. L. Neuberger

+ N Y Times p6 Jl 29 '51 350w

San Francisco Chronicle p22 My 20 '51 250w

"This is racy popular history, good entertainment for uncritical readers. Sometimes Miss Kelsey is more credulous than credible." A. L. Burt

+ — Sat R of Lit 34:15 My 5 '51 650w

Reviewed by Donald Derby

Springf'd Republican p9B My 20 '51 400w

Wis Lib Bul 47:119 My '51

KEMP, DAVID, comp. Skiers' song book; music ed. by Norman Mealy. 80p $2.50 Pacific bks.

784.8 Songs

Seventy-five songs with music for skiers. Includes well-known tunes, as well as new ones, and American and European songs.

Reviewed by C. K. Miller

Library J 76:328 F 15 '51 90w

"Every ski lodge should have a number of these gay books handy to the fireplace. Like the 19th hole in golf, singing around a fire is an integral part of skiing and adds greatly to the fun. . . The words are mostly humorous in character, and people are apt to find themselves making up more verses, which seems to be just what the compilers want." Virginia Cunningham

Music Lib Assn Notes 8:390 Mr '51 180w

KENDALL, HENRY MADISON, and GLENDINNING, ROBERT MORTON. Introduction to geography; maps and diagrams under the direction of Clifford H. McFadden; under the editorship of J. Russell Whitaker. 752p $8.50; text ed $6.25 Harcourt

910 Geography

A college textbook furnished with study helps but suitable for lay reading and reference as well. "The objectives may be summarized under five main headings: (1) to present an orderly treatment of the major physical elements with which man contends and co-operates; (2) to outline the principal ways man makes use of the physical setting in which he lives; (3) to present the distribution over the earth of both the physical and cultural elements of the human habitat; (4) to interpret the variety which exists; and (5) to offer a standard against which change may be measured." (p.8)

Reviewed by A. C. Ames
Chicago Sunday Tribune p11 S 16 '51 110w

"Clarity and condensation mark this tome of information. In a cosmos of declarative sentences there is enough variety to avoid dullness, and occasionally one finds subjects for debate, such as 'Only with a decrease in the level of living can the dependencies of one area upon another be overcome.'" T. M. Longstreth
+ Christian Science Monitor p11 Ag 16 '51 500w

"This handsome, comprehensive survey of the subject is intended primarily as a college text, but all armchair dabblers in the study of man's habitat will be interested in having this basic text on their shelves."
+ Kirkus 19:370 Jl 15 '51 150w

"Working in the very latest techniques of combining text and pictures, and explanation with visual charts and diagrams, the authors have made their book a fine example of what can be done by the adroit supplementing of text with illustrations." J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p14 Ag 26 '51 1050w

KENNAN, GEORGE FROST. American diplomacy, 1900-1950. (Charles R. Walgreen foundation lectures) 146p $2.75 Univ. of Chicago press

327.73 U.S.—Foreign policy 51-12883

A group of essays by a former counselor of the State Department, on the various types of diplomacy used by the United States in the last fifty years. Contents: The war with Spain; Mr. Hippisley and the open door; America and the Orient; World war I; World war II; Diplomacy in the modern world; The sources of Soviet conduct; America and the Russian future.

"This small book is reasonable rather than dogmatic; it suggests and stimulates rather than demands. We need just such edification as this, as we shall always need men of Mr. Kennan's caliber in our Foreign Service." Edward Weeks
+ Atlantic 188:82 N '51 1200w

Bookmark 11:56 D '51 30w

Reviewed by J. M. Gillis
Cath World 174:155 N '51 310w

Reviewed by W. H. Chamberlin
Chicago Sunday Tribune p15 O 21 '51 500w

"To read Mr. Kennan's wonderfully lucid and scholarly 'American Diplomacy, 1900-1950' is to understand what our leading diplomatic expert on Russia believes we ourselves must do to make that containment policy succeed. It is redundant to say that this book is required reading for everyone seriously studying the problems of our foreign policy at this more-than-critical stage of history." J. C. Harsch
+ Christian Science Monitor p9 S 28 '51 850w

Reviewed by H. C. Hinton
Commonweal 55:40 O 19 '51 1500w

Current Hist 21:293 N '51 420w

"Not easy reading, but provocative and challenging."
Kirkus 19:508 S 1 '51 280w

"It is a rare event when a book appears that exactly fills a long-recognized need—a book dealing with a subject of critical importance and written by a man uniquely qualified to speak with authority. It is even more remarkable when the book in question proves to be brief, well-written, and so simple and direct in presentation that it can be read with ease by any reasonably informed citizen. Such is [this] little book on American diplomacy." H. S. Hughes
+ Nation 173:282 O 6 '51 1400w

Reviewed by H. J. Morgenthau
New Repub 125:17 O 22 '51 2550w

"This, one suspects, is a considerably more pregnant contribution to the dilemma of our times than the slimness of its form and the modesty of its manner would suggest. . . It is difficult to summarize all the shrewd insights [the author] achieved in the process, but I think the underlying argument is plain. It is an argument for a return to a concept of international relations as neither a legal nor moral problem nor one limited to the negative goals of 'defense,' but as frankly a problem in positive power relationships, with a workable and tolerable balance of power as its objective." Walter Millis
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 S 30 '51 900w

"A book by George Kennan is an event in Washington for various reasons. It is a book on foreign policy by a man who really knows something about foreign policy. It is a book actually written—and well-written—by the man whose name is on the cover. And, finally, it is a book by an official who isn't trying to commercialize his experience or defend his particular policy." James Reston
+ N Y Times p3 S 30 '51 1500w

Reviewed by R. H. Rovere
New Yorker 27:113 S 29 '51 2300w

"This is a book to read thoughtfully. Mr. Kennan writes simply and well; he thinks clearly and precisely, and clear thinking makes for clear writing. Americans owe it to themselves to study his book for his points concern every American." J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p18 O 8 '51 950w

"As might be expected, Mr. Kennan is brilliant, charming, intellectual, and highly literate. . . Here surely is an 'authority' on U. S. foreign policy." E. A. Mowrer
+ Sat R of Lit 34:6 S 29 '51 450w

"This book is a valuable addition to the literature of foreign relations. It will be invaluable for young men training for diplomacy. How helpful it will be to a policy planning staff one can not easily say." A. A. Berle
Survey 87:491 N '51 1100w

Time 58:20 D 3 '51 480w

KENNEDY, LUDOVIC HENRY COVERLEY. Nelson's captains [Eng title: Nelson's band of brothers]. 386p il $5 Norton

942.07 Nelson, Horatio Nelson, viscount. Great Britain—History, Naval 51-13562

A composite, narrative account of the personalities and achievements of the so-called "band of brothers," fourteen of the captains who served under Nelson during the ten years from 1795 to 1805.

"In this book Mr. Kennedy has made good use of much new material that was secured from descendants of the officers he selected for appraisal. He was thus able to provide intimate studies of their characters, home life, loves, reactions to emergencies, and attitudes toward Nelson." F. L. Oliver
+ Christian Science Monitor p9 N 30 '51 480w

+ Kirkus 19:466 Ag 15 '51 180w

"Based on family letters and records, this volume is too detailed for the general reader without a special interest in the subject. The details of ship life, discipline, combat, are harsh and cruel—as they were. For large and special libraries, supplements Nelson biographies and English maritime history." H. A. Wooster
Library J 76:1328 S 1 '51 60w

Manchester Guardian p4 D 11 '51 220w

"It is an interesting group which Mr. Kennedy studies in 'Nelson's Captains.' He has wisely chosen to weave their stories into that of Nelson himself, rather than to take them up in separate chapters, so the interplay of their personalities with that of their chief can be seen in all its complexity." H. W. Baehr
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p20 N 18 '51 650w

"[The book] suffers somewhat from the fact that it is hard to write a book about Nelson's captains without devoting the greater part of it to Nelson himself. Except perhaps Troubridge, the captains were not an articulate group, and though the first part of the book is illuminated by some particularly fine

KENNEDY, L. H. C.—Continued
observation on the part of the lady who became Betsey Freemantle, the author is reduced to telling much of the story in terms of Nelson's connection with the captains. They move out of and into the wings and only the central figure is permanent." Fletcher Pratt
N Y Times p14 N 25 '51 320w

"Mr. Kennedy, who has served with the Royal Navy himself, writes good, clear English and handles a difficult assignment well, the proof being that his retelling of a familiar story is fresh and stimulating."
+ New Yorker 27:187 N 17 '51 100w
Spec 187:868 D 21 '51 150w
Springf'd Republican p30A D 2 '51 600w

"Mr. Kennedy is a new recruit to the crowded ranks of writers on Nelson, but on the whole he is one to be welcomed, if only for the manifest enthusiasm which inspired his researches and the thoroughness with which—within his selected period of the last 12 years of Nelson's life—he has pursued them."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p778 D 7 '51 650w

KENNEDY, MARGARET (MRS DAVID DAVIES). Lucy Carmichael. 344p $3 Rinehart 51-5189

Character study of Lucy Carmichael, describing her gradual rebuilding of her life after she had been deserted at the altar. The scene is present day England.

Reviewed by Edward Weeks
Atlantic 188:78 S '51 320w
Booklist 48:12 S 1 '51
Reviewed by Fanny Butcher
Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 Ag 12 '51 460w

"'Lucy Carmichael,' while lacking the final touch of distinction, is entertaining reading on its own competent level." Ruth Chapin
+ Christian Science Monitor p7 Ag 2 '51 240w
Kirkus 19:277 Je 1 '51 130w
Reviewed by K. T. Willis
Library J 76:1125 Jl '51 80w
Reviewed by Paul Bloomfield
Manchester Guardian p4 D 14 '51 60w

"I can honestly say (blinking the smoke out of my eyes) that Lucy Carmichael is good, competent entertainment, and that Miss Kennedy has, at times, a very pretty wit." Jocelyn Brooke
+ New Statesman & Nation 42:739 D 22 '51 300w

"The novel's warmth and wit and space for human values should endear it to Miss Kennedy's earlier readers and bring her new admirers." Mary Ross
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 Ag 5 '51 470w

"Margaret Kennedy's new book is just the story for a lazy, hot day." Nancie Matthews
+ N Y Times p5 Ag 5 '51 650w

"Dull girls don't make very good reading, even when they have been jilted. This is certainly so in the case of Lucy Carmichael, although Miss Kennedy puts enormous enthusiasm and effort into the task of reviving her after she has been left flat at the altar by an explorer named Patrick Reilly."
New Yorker 27:66 Ag 4 '51 100w

"Lucy and Melissa, who pool their experiences so expertly, will brighten the summer for many readers and prove that the popular novel in the hands of an expert can continue to thrive and flourish, dismal threats to the contrary." Jane Voiles
+ San Francisco Chronicle p17 Ag 5 '51 600w

"Miss Kennedy has drawn a well-rounded and living portrait; in contrast most of the other characters in the book tend to be rather amorphous. There is a deft lightness of touch throughout, and although it is distinctly a woman's book the sweetness and light are seasoned with tart common sense, the leisurely pace is never unwieldy. All in all one can lose oneself in these pages with the sure certainty that the extremely competent Miss Kennedy always knows what she's doing." Sigrid de Lima
+ Sat R of Lit 34:15 Ag 11 '51 460w

"It is a great relief as well as a great pleasure to read and praise Margaret Kennedy's new novel, Lucy Carmichael. The writing is good, quietly witty, delicately perceptive, subtly observant of various brands of snobbery. The setting is entirely original." Marghanita Laski
+ Spec 187:866 D 21 '51 260w
Times [London] Lit Sup p817 D 21 '51 150w

KENNEDY, MRS MARGUERITE (WALLACE). My home on the range; drawings by Lorence F. Bjorklund. 341p $3.50 Little
B or 92 Ranch life. Arizona—Social life and customs 51-12103

An account, in brief, of the author's childhood in the west, and, more fully, of her first years of married life on a 120,000-acre ranch in Arizona.

Booklist 47:353; 48:9 Je 15 '51; S 1 '51
Bookmark 11:31 N '51 20w
Reviewed by Mildred Walker
Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 S 16 '51 370w

"The author reveals herself as an admirable, thoroughly likeable person with an imagination and a witty tongue. And her book leaves one asking for more." N. N. Lamar
+ Christian Science Monitor p13 S 27 '51 350w
Kirkus 19:342 Jl 1 '51 180w

"Although the style is occasionally girlish, sincerity and vigorous reporting make this autobiography interesting to lovers of exciting personal adventure and life in the Old West." H. S. Taylor
+ — Library J 76:1215 Ag '51 90w

"Mrs. Kennedy isn't serving forth the old romantic Western stuff. She goes in for documentary material and dresses it up with a natural born tartness of tongue and an ounce of disillusion. . . You cannot find her old West on the open range. Mother K's funeral, the casket borne by eight cowboys, was the end of an era. The rolling hills and sacaton flats remain, the deep-gutted canyons and sharply rising buttes, the dry, rocky washes and plains. The cattle trade is run differently. But a witty woman, a good cook and a good sport has rounded up a story that keeps the MK Ranch on the map." Ernestine Evans
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 S 16 '51 850w

"Mrs. Kennedy gets the feel of the open range, of rough canyons and high mountains. Her book brings you the bracing quality of the country about which she writes." J. V.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p28 N 4 '51 280w
Springf'd Republican p5C S 23 '51 90w
Wis Lib Bul 47:212 S '51

KENNEDY, MARY. Violets are blue; il. by Helen Stone. 154p $2 Lothrop
51-9930

The important doings in a little girl's life from her sixth to her seventh birthdays.

Reviewed by A. C. Moore
Horn Bk 27:237 Jl '51 80w
Reviewed by J. D. Lindquist and S. M. Andrews
+ Horn Bk 27:323 S '51 120w
Kirkus 19:125 Mr 1 '51 120w

"Tenderly, and a bit sentimentally, related. Not up to the Haywood standard but quite acceptable." Claire Nolte
Library J 76:713 Ap 15 '51 70w

"Helen Stone's clever, sketchy, atmospheric pictures are remarkably full of both exact detail and lively imagination. This is an unusually charming, 'might-be-about-you' book for reading aloud to five to seven year olds." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 Mr 25 '51 230w

"Susan's fun and troubles are all size 6, most simply and skillfully told. . . 'Violets Are Blue' is written with a wise selection of detail, amusing talk, and plenty of action. The illustrations are as charming." Marjorie Fischer
+ N Y Times p36 Ap 1 '51 160w

Reviewed by K. T. Kinkead
New Yorker 27:172 D 1 '51 70w

Wis Lib Bul 47:123 My '51

KENNELLY, ARDYTH (MRS EGON V. ULLMAN). Spur. 304p $3 Messner

Booth, John Wilkes—Fiction 51-2015

Novel based on the last six days of John Wilkes Booth's life, the days when he was dying after his assassination of Lincoln. During those harrowing days Booth reviews his twenty-six years of life, showing how he arrived at his terrible decision to kill the president.

Booklist 47:266; 294 Ap 1 '51; Ap 15 '51

"The story which the author makes of this pathetic life is a fascinating one. Here is a human personality toward whom the reader feels both sympathy and outrage. The author has done an excellent job of presenting the facts and inventing dialog." Paul Engle
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 Ap 8 '51 550w

Reviewed by W. K. Rugg
Christian Science Monitor p9 Je 5 '51 450w

"She uses her imagination freely, and the embellished story is readable enough; but her style is undisciplined and frequently a trial to the instructed reader."
+ Churchman 165:17 N 1 '51 80w

"Miss Kennelly has done a challenging piece of research, not always wholly convincing, but always interesting. The writing is overlush at times, but perhaps the subject demands it."
+ — Kirkus 19:78 F 1 '51 270w

"Author's spirited use of familiar material makes this a good novel, worth purchasing and replacing by small public libraries." F. A. Boyle
+ Library J 76:514 Mr 15 '51 70w

"Miss Kennelly, as fictionist, offers a vivid, sympathetic understanding of the mind and heart of the man who took the President's life, especially in the book's last pages. . . Even in this most successful part of the book, however, the author mars her effects with amateurish indulgences. She thinks nothing of interrupting often fine fictional drama for bare factual biography." Jay Walz
+ — N Y Times p17 Ap 15 '51 240w

San Francisco Chronicle p21 Jl 8 '51 260w

"Miss Kennelly has a persuasive way with period and place . . . and she has reconstructed the tragic tale ably, if at a pace that is aggravatingly slow. Unfortunately she has little to add—in terms of new information or of depth of perception—to our understanding of a story that has been well and frequently told before." E. J. Fitzgerald
Sat R of Lit 34:30 My 5 '51 250w

Reviewed by L. S. Munn
Springf'd Republican p12C Ap 22 '51 550w

Wis Lib Bul 47:121 My '51

KENNER, HUGH. Poetry of Ezra Pound. 342p $4 New directions

811 Pound, Ezra Loomis 51-12356

In his Introduction the author says: "This book is intended for the reader who does not need to be persuaded about contemporary writing in general—who knows, for instance, his Eliot and his Joyce—but whom thickets of misunderstanding have hitherto kept at a distance from the poetry of Ezra Pound. Since my object is simply to help as many people as possible to read Pound for themselves, I have attempted a consecutive attack on the more obvious misunderstandings, limiting myself to those specifically related to the reading of a specific body of poetry. Because it is about Pound's poetry, this book eschews both his personality and the externals of his biography." Bibliography. Index.

"The book contains numerous quotations from Ezra Pound's works and gives some excellent examples of the gusto and vitality of Pound's dealing with ideas. It is good to read such passages. As a political thinker, Pound is of questionable value but as an unpedantic, unpretentious artist with a naturally cosmopolitan outlook, he can be superb." Serge Hughes
Commonweal 55:42 O 19 '51 360w

"In many ways this is an extremely valuable book. In the first place, it is an act of highly accomplished literary pioneering. . . In the second place, [the author] provides us with as serviceable a guidebook to the Cantos as we are likely to get for a long time. . . For all this, serious students of poetry are indebted to him, and the debt should be gratefully acknowledged. Having said which, I must go on to record my distaste for almost everything else the book is and stands for." Dudley Fitts
— + New Repub 125:30 D 10 '51 350w

"It is unfortunate that the first ambitious study of the poetry of Ezra Pound should come from a disciple who can see no faults in the Master, who shares his pedantry and snobbism, and whose tone of voice approximates that of Pound himself. . . The study, however, is deficient on two counts. Except to the specialist in modern poetry, it adds confusion rather than clarification to the subject. . . More fundamental and more symptomatic of the current revival of the doctrine of art for art's sake is Kenner's moral myopia." Selden Rodman
— + N Y Times p5 S 30 '51 500w

"An indispensable text for the student of modern literature in any of its manifestations."
+ New Yorker 27:68 D 29 '51 160w

"In this day of multiple confusion we can perhaps ill afford to dismiss as willingly as we have done the inquiring intelligence of Ezra Pound. Kenner's work of gathering the essential statement of this intelligence merits the serious attention of those still supple enough to accept the demands of a difficult beauty." J. H. Edwards
San Francisco Chronicle p18 O 14 '51 700w

"Mr. Kenner has gone far to achieve what he set out to do, make the reader see Mr. Pound as a poet possibly great, and certainly important to our time. It is to be hoped that he will write more on this subject—but also that he will have his next book translated into English." Bonamy Dobrée
Spec 187:662 N 16 '51 800w

KENNEY, GEORGE CHURCHILL. The MacArthur I know. 264p il $2.75 Duell

B or 92 MacArthur, Douglas 51-10404

A personal appraisal of General MacArthur by the air force general who worked with him in the Pacific in World war II. No index.

"A timely, friendly, and candid appreciation of that great soldier and proconsul." R. E. Danielson
+ Atlantic 188:80 Jl '51 650w

Booklist 47:361 Je 15 '51

Bookmark 10:229 Jl '51 20w

Reviewed by Robert Cromie
Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 Jl 22 '51 550w

"General Kenney's words are most timely, coming as they do when storms of controversy rage over the MacArthur ouster. His book will not quiet the storms, but it should help in a measure to clear up several controversial points about this distinguished soldier who has fired a desire in millions to know the facts. And whether the reader is for General MacArthur or against General MacArthur, here is interesting reading." Godfrey Sperling

KENNEY, G. C.—Continued
+ Christian Science Monitor p9 Jl 14 '51 650w

"It is by no means the last word on MacArthur, but it is certainly among the many words that will have to be read before the last one is written." H. W. Baehr
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 Je 17 '51 1000w

"The book is not a personality and character study of the man; nor is it in any sense an objective study of his command system and his genius as a soldier. Essentially, it is a random collection of MacArthur anecdotes, not too well organized, with a few biographical touches added here and there in an effort to provide a semblance of continuity." S. L. A. Marshall
— N Y Times p25 Je 17 '51 600w

San Francisco Chronicle p18 Ag 26 '51 400w

KENNINGTON, ALAN. Young man with a scythe [Eng title: All fall down]. 181p $2.50 Macmillan 51-10346

Mystery story.

Kirkus 19:81 F 1 '51 70w

"A pleasant English mystery, notable more for its portrait of a professional writer, than for the rather slim plot which he uncovers."
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p15 Ap 29 '51 110w

"Kennington does manage to sketch an unusually vivid picture of the frantic life of a hard-working and all-but-successful writer and adds an attractive smaller sketch of a young actor. Yet these professional glimpses and the well-drawn landscapes of Sussex and Wales can't quite conceal the fact that the plot is slight and heavily padded to sustain a long book." Anthony Boucher
— + N Y Times p16 Jl 1 '51 90w

Reviewed by L. G. Offord
San Francisco Chronicle p26 Ap 29 '51 50w

"Likable and credible characters go through believable crises—with wit always at hand; mystery not intense but outcome still full of brave suspense. Very worth attention." Kathleen Sproul
+ Sat R of Lit 34:32 Je 30 '51 50w

KENT, WILLIAM, ed. Encyclopaedia of London. new rev ed 674p $3.50 Macmillan
914.21 London

Revised edition of a compendium on London first published in 1937 (Book Review Digest 1937). "There had to be the application of a pruning knife for this second edition. . . The biographies that first appeared in the Encyclopaedia have now been omitted. . . Another of my works, Mine Host London deals with foreigners who visited the Metropolis, so the article on this subject has not been repeated. As the matter included in 'Americans in London' and 'American Memorials in London' is in my London for Americans, those two articles are omitted. On the other hand, there are some new articles: 'Banks,' 'Belgravia,' 'Blitz,' 'Institutes,' 'South Bank.' " (Pref) Index.

Booklist 48:68 O 15 '51

"A delightful and indispensable source of information." Margaret Williamson
+ Christian Science Monitor p7 Je 28 '51 80w

"A masterpiece of its kind." Michael Swan
+ New Statesman & Nation 41:722 Je 23 '51 120w

"His style is literary and the writing discursive and full of amiable irrelevancies, so the book can be read for enjoyment as well as for instruction."
+ New Yorker 27:158 D 15 '51 90w

KENYON REVIEW (periodical). Kenyon critics; studies in modern literature; ed. by John Crowe Ransom. 342p $4 World pub.
809 Literature—History and criticism
51-4381

"Here are thirty-three essays by thirty-three critics, each discussing a different aspect of modern culture: Mann, Joyce, Yeats, Charlie Chaplin, Aldous Huxley, Oscar Wilde, Satan, existentialism, and Robinson Jeffers. . . We find here a shrewd choice of essays by lesser-known critics whose varied skills command attention: Robie Macauley's brilliant reclamation of the novels of Ford Madox Ford; Donat O'Donnell's witty and withering appraisal of the brand of 'piety' embalmed in the novels of Evelyn Waugh; Vivienne Koch's perceptive essay on the poetry of Allen Tate; and half a dozen others." Sat R of Lit

"There is not one useless essay here. Some are of less value than others, but all provide exceptional aids to a grasp of the symbolic and complicated methods of recent writing." Paul Engle
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p15 Mr 18 '51 370w

"The appeal here will be definitely restricted to the unusual reader and follower of literary trends and to college students and classes, though the level of content is high."
Kirkus 19:47 Ja 15 '51 190w

"Some of the Kenyon critics write excellently, John Peale Bishop, for instance, and Austin Warren and Dudley Fitts and Auden. Most of the others seem little concerned with the texture or cadences of their language. And how seldom do they betray an eagerness either to receive or to communicate pleasure!" Raymond Mortimer
New Repub 124:18 Je 18 '51 1150w

"Here is what is usually called highbrow criticism at pretty much its best, which means that there is something for any one interested in literature." Granville Hicks
+ N Y Times p9 Ag 5 '51 470w

"Here is a rich collection of essays which ought to reassure those who have been worrying about that 'composite monster,' the New Criticism. For the volume is robust, sane, and various; it proves the truth of what Allen Tate has recently said of this criticism: 'It began as explication du texte, and from there people went in many different directions.' " L. L. Martz
+ Sat R of Lit 34:15 Je 9 '51 600w

KEOGH, MRS THEODORA. Street music. (Creative age Press bk) 287p $3 Farrar, Straus 51-6886

After some years in the United States Claude Mitan, a French music critic, takes his young American wife back to Paris hoping to find a more satisfying life there. They become involved in the doings of a gang of child criminals, one of whom, the girl Felice, attracts Claude, antagonizes Linnet, and finally drives them away from Paris.

Booklist 48:144 D 15 '51
Kirkus 19:454 Ag 15 '51 160w

"Although Mrs Keogh has created the dream-world of the eleven-year-old Félice, she has not succeeded in making Claude or Linnet penetrate it, any more than she has penetrated their own adult dreams. She has lost the important link between Claude and the Paris street gamin even though she has stated that it is there. And by doing so, she has lost the reality of her story." Anne Brooks
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p19 O 28 '51 550w

"It takes art to raise a soufflé, and bewildered principals in Theodora Keogh's improbable third novel do not seem up to it." James Kelly
— N Y Times p34 O 21 '51 370w

"Mrs. Keogh, whose book has the virtue of being short and unwordy, has produced a bright impression rather than a novel. She writes freely and very seriously, with an air of false candor that sometimes makes her sound like a little girl who has appropriated the conversation and opinions of her elders."

New Yorker 27:148 O 20 '51 130w

"Mrs. Keogh's prose has haunting beauty, and those most important characters in her novel, the children, possess that awful combination of evil and innocence which only Colette has captured with equal success. She has created almost a dozen here, real, loveable, and frightening. You will not soon forget Felice, that doomed but indestructible child of the Paris streets who becomes the focus for the major conflict in Mrs. Keogh's disturbing drama." E. J. Fitzgerald
Sat R of Lit 34:37 D 22 '51 160w

KEPLER, JOHANNES. Life and letters; by Carola Baumgardt; with an introd. by Albert Einstein. 209p $3.75 Philosophical lib.
B or 92 51-3157

A biography of the seventeenth century German scientist and astronomer, which includes translations from many of his letters. In his introduction Albert Einstein explains that the selection from Kepler's letters "is governed, primarily, by the necessity of communicating to the reader a picture of Kepler the man as a personality; no attempt is made to bring to the foreground his scientific achievements and their unique consequence." Index.

Christian Century 68:1018 S 5 '51 190w

"While Mrs. Baumgardt's translations are readable enough, her comments interspersed throughout the quotations often seem pointless and indicate that her principles of selection were mainly impressionistic." M. H. Thompson
Ethics 61:334 Jl '51 130w

"In offering what she believes to be 'the most detailed' biography of Kepler as yet presented in English, Mrs Baumgardt has been more concerned with Kepler as a man and a personality than with Kepler the scientist—astronomer, astrologist and mathematician. These two Keplers are inseparable; there is hardly a letter of his without some reference to the stars in their courses. The task of explaining Kepler's work as a scientist, however, is performed lucidly and effectively by Albert Einstein in a brief, warm, reverent introduction. . . The translation of Mrs. Baumgardt's text, adequate on the whole, is marked by such occasional crudities as 'Kepler contacted many princes and noblemen.' It is not likely that he ever used the sixteenth-century American newspaper equivalent of 'deadliness.'" Waldemar Kaempffert
N Y Times p6 S 9 '51 700w
School & Society 74:303 N 10 '51 30w

"Scholarly-written and meaningful book." G. A. Panichas
+ Springf'd Republican p5D Je 3 '51 350w

KEPLER, THOMAS SAMUEL. Journey with the saints. 150p $2 World pub.
922 Christian biography 51-11265

"Forty short essays (three pages each) on 40 great Christians who measure up to Kepler's definition of saints as men who are 'known by acts of redemptive love among their fellow men.'. . About half a dozen of the 40 do happen to be canonized saints with days on the calendar but the others include such varied and widely spaced characters as Ruysbroeck, Luther, Boehme, Pascal, Fox, William Law, Woolman, Oberlin, Wesley, Channing, Rufus Jones, and four living men—Schweitzer, Laubach, Stanley Jones and Kagawa." Christian Century

Reviewed by Edward Barry
Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 Je 24 '51 250w

"These sketches exhibit the working of a healthy mind as well as a devout spirit, dealing with different types of piety and speaking with understanding, insight and simplicity of deep things of the spirit." W. E. G.
+ Christian Century 68:768 Je 27 '51 150w

"In a world groping for security and order and to human beings frantic in their own search for personal integrity and spiritual peace this book could be as balm of Gilead."
+ Kirkus 19:275 Je 1 '51 240w

KEREKES, FRANK, and WINFREY, ROBLEY. Report preparation; including correspondence and technical writing. 2d ed 448p il $6.90 Iowa state college press
651.78 Reports—Preparation 51-9903

"A revised edition of a 1948 volume originally printed by photo-offset and planned as a text for use at Iowa State College. A comprehensive graphic work covering every aspect of the preparation of a report, from the original planning and collecting of information, to the final editing, copy-reading and proofreading. An intelligent much-needed presentation of scattered, hard-to-locate information." Booklist

Booklist 47:257 Mr 15 '51

"More practical text for the technical report writer cannot be imagined. The Iowa State College Press should also be complimented for the attractive format, excellent typography, and quality workmanship." F. G. Sawyer
+ Chem & Eng N 29:3486 Ag 20 '51 180w

"An excellent reference for both you and your company."
+ Chem Eng 58:264 Ag '51 30w
Eng N 146:41 Je 14 '51 240w

"There is certainly no shortage of textbooks on the writing of business and engineering reports, but few of the books treat the subject so thoroughly as this one." R. R. Hawkins
+ Library J 76:708 Ap 15 '51 140w

KERN, DONALD QUENTIN. Process heat transfer. 871p il $8 McGraw 536.2 Heat—Transmission 50-9757

"An advanced engineering college textbook in which practical problems in heat transfer are directly related to industrial processes and industrial heat transfer apparatus. Though the fundamentals of thermodynamics are never lost sight of, the valuable and unique parts of the book are those which are devoted to discussions and calculations pertaining to such apparatus as shell-and-tube heat exchangers and to such processes as the heating or cooling of batches of materials." (N Y New Tech Bks) Index.

"Since its publication, this book has gained wide acceptance in the process industries as a comprehensive, practical work for the chemical engineer whose duties require him to solve heat transfer problems as a part of but not as his sole function. The division of subject matter has been well chosen and each chapter is developed in consistent fashion. . . The employment of a decimal system for formulas, tables, and figures leads to some confusion. . . As to the appendix, it would have been desirable to have put all the tabulations together, followed by all the charts, especially since this is reference material and the sequence is of less importance. W. W. Kraft
+ — Chem & Eng N 29:5076 N 26 '51 260w

"On rare occasions a book appears with sufficient merit to assure its future as a technical bible. In its 871 pages Kern's 'Process Heat Transfer' assumes a conspicuous position for chemical engineers alongside such enduring predecessors as the treatise by Walker Lewis, McAdams and Gilliland; the text by Badger and McCabe; and the handbook by Perry." D. F. Othmer and J. C. Chu
+ Chem Eng 57:303 N '50 1750w
N Y New Tech Bks 36:25 Mr '51

KERN, ERICH. Dance of death; tr. by Paul Findlay. 255p $3 Scribner
940.542 World war, 1939-1945—Personal narratives, German. World war, 1939-1945—Russia 51-13482

Chronicles four years of fighting against the Russians. The author was an Austrian officer of the Waffen S.S. who is now living in Germany.

KERN, ERICH—Continued
Kirkus 19:547 S 15 '51 180w

Reviewed by Peter de Mendelssohn
New Statesman & Nation 42:185 Ag 18 '51 700w

"Herr Kern writes extremely well when he describes places and men and moods, but in argument he is a fast man with a syllogism and a master of the nonsequitur. He liked Russia, even under the circumstances of his presence there, and he writes warmly of the people, but he can also report a reprisal shooting of four thousand Red Army men with an objective calm that beggars understanding. Recommended to those with a passion for seeing both sides of a question."
New Yorker 27:186 N 17 '51 200w

"If this book is invaluable for its unconscious revelation of certain aspects of the German mentality, it will be read mainly as a first-hand account of the fighting on the Eastern front as seen from the German side, and for what it has to tell about the Russian people and their army under stress of war. The swift narrative of the apocalyptic struggle against the background of forest and steppe is moving and enthralling." Edward Crankshaw
Spec 185:867 Je 29 '51 1050w

KERR, ELIZABETH MARGARET. Bibliography of the sequence novel [proc]. 126p $10 Univ. of Minn. press

016.8 Fiction—Bibliography 50-9957

"The compiler differentiates between sequence novels and mere sequel stories, holding up Mazo de la Roche's Jalna novels at length as horrible examples of the latter. E. F. Benson's Lucia novels get no entrée—nothing new for Lucia—but neither does Angela Thirkell. It seems even less clear why Feike Feikema—a Minnesota boy at that—should be excluded. For Balzac, the reader is referred to other books." Library J

"A useful supplement to Thomas Aldred's Sequel Stories, especially valuable for the lists of Romance, Teutonic, Slavic and Ugric novels supplied by specialists." E. F. Walbridge
+ Library J 75:1905 N 1 '50 80w

"For the more serious-minded reader or the student of literature, Miss Kerr's bibliography presents a competent guide to a comparatively new literary form. This form will perhaps gain increased critical recognition with passage of time, in view of its tremendous development during the first half of the present century. Such a gain in critical prestige will, of course, enhance the value of the bibliography." P. J. Laux
+ Library Q 21:302 O '51 550w

KERR, HUGH THOMSON. Positive protestantism; an interpretation of the gospel. 147p $2.50 Westminster press

284 Protestantism. Christianity 50-10304

"The thesis of the book is that the essence of Christianity is to be found in the gospel—the good news that God was in Christ for man's redemption. It was the rediscovery of this gospel that provided the religious and spiritual dynamic of the Reformation in the sixteenth century. Protestantism, therefore, if it is to speak in our day with prophetic authority, must maintain, by reaffirming the gospel, that it is essential Christianity." Foreword

Reviewed by A. W. Taylor
Churchman 165:17 Ja 1 '51 300w

"I found myself in warm accord with the author at the beginning of the book. But it must be confessed that this feeling ebbed somewhat as the book progressed. It is of course to be kept in mind, as the author asserts, that it is more in the nature of a manifesto, or 'tract for the times.' Nevertheless, one is less convinced that this is rediscovering the true genius of Protestantism, than that it is an attempt to restate the gospel message. . . Something of the enthusiasm for the author's achievement remains. Certainly, if the Protestant movement is to recover its genius, it must begin where the author begins. It is an excellent statement of where Protestantism stands today." Andrew Banning
+ — Crozer Q 28:173 Ap '51 850w

Reviewed by R. W. Schloerb
J Religion 31:308 O '51 200w

"This book is one in which a scholar addresses himself to practical problems and makes clear the bearing of Theology, New Testament exegesis and Church History upon the issues which the Church faces. Will be primarily of interest to Protestant ministers."
+ Kirkus 18:603 O 1 '50 170w

KERR, MRS LAURA (NOWAK). Lady in the pulpit. 239p $3.50 Womans press

Blackwell, Antoinette Brown—Fiction 51-10610

A novelized version of the story of the early years of Antoinette Brown Blackwell, the first woman ordained minister in the United States.

Reviewed by Olive Carruthers
Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 Ap 22 '51 390w

Reviewed by W. K. Rugg
Christian Science Monitor p9 Ag 27 '51 420w

KERR, SOPHIE. Man who knew the date. 248p $2.50 Rinehart

51-832

An eligible New York bachelor finds himself with a strange acquired habit: he can foretell the date on which some of his friends will die. He is in the midst of an evanescent affair with a charming married woman but when he tells her the story the affair is ended, driving him into the arms of a much more sensible love.

Booklist 47:254 Mr 15 '51

"Definitely dressy, this moves through circles which are very upper class, cuisine which is haute and fondly detailed, but is eligible chiefly for rent."
Kirkus 19:10 Ja 1 '51 110w

"Sophie Kerr rates an 'A' for suspense."
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 Ap 1 '51 140w

"All in all, a marshmallow mulligan such as (in the inevitable words of the dust jacket) 'only the inimitable Sophie Kerr could have written.' Valiant Kerr fans will doubtless find distraction in it." Robert Hagy
N Y Times p19 My 20 '51 110w

KESSLER, LEONARD P. What's in a line? unp $1.50 Scott, W.R.

741 Drawing—Instruction 51-11802

"An introduction to graphic art is made by taking a trip with a line and seeing the unlimited possibilities of expression in its curves and twists, as ideas develop into humorous and fanciful black-and-white sketches. Very cleverly the young reader is encouraged to use lines to illustrate his stories or just for fun." Library J

Booklist 48:53 O 1 '51

"An original book that will be fun to use with young children." J. D. Lindquist and S. M. Andrews
+ Horn Bk 27:336 S '51 70w
+ Kirkus 19:390 Ag 1 '51 110w

"A well-planned and uniquely designed book. . . Recommended for ages 6-10." M. M. Gantt
+ Library J 76:1341 S 1 '51 60w

Reviewed by L. S. Bechtel
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 D 16 '51 150w

"An original, stimulating book it will give pleasure to the imaginative child and set him to thinking." E. L. Buell
+ N Y Times p22 Ag 19 '51 110w

KEYES, KENNETH S. How to develop your thinking ability; drawings by Ted Key. 246p $3.50 McGraw

153.6 Reasoning. Thought and thinking 50-10667

Guide to the development of improved habits of thinking. The emphasis is on the importance of recognizing the limitations of what we already know. Illustrated with anecdotes and cartoons. Index.

Booklist 47:198 F 1 '51

Kirkus 18:505 Ag 15 '50 100w

"Not a formal logic or treatment of semantics, but a successful popularization of the basic elements of both, and a good 'first book.' Recommended for most collections." R. E. Kingery

+ Library J 75:1655 O 1 '50 70w

KEYS, ANCEL BENJAMIN, and others. Biology of human starvation. 2v 764;765-1385p 158pl $24 Univ. of Minn. press

612.391 Nutrition. Starvation 50-10263

"The two volumes describe primarily a single experiment in which the effects of semistarvation, on a specific known ration for a six-month period, was studied in thirty-two healthy young men with an average age of twenty-five years. The report presents a large mass of data describing the effects of undernutrition in man as determined by the coordinated efforts of a group of biochemists, physiologists, psychiatrists, psychologists, internists, dietitians and statisticians, and anthropometricians." U S Quarterly Bk R

"The book will be indispensable to anyone concerned with human nutrition and should be of interest and value to physicians, health officers, authorities on military medicine, and social workers. It is a landmark in its field." J. A. Tobey

+ Am J Pub Health 41:236 F '51 700w

"The University of Minnesota has a laboratory for experimental study on human beings instead of the usual laboratory animals. From this laboratory has come a major study, the result of many years' work on human beings, in which the effects of a semistarvation diet were comprehensively measured. Hitherto, scientists had been dependent a good deal on remarks and the reports of casual observers. . . The reviewer would like to speak a word in praise of the great effort made by Keys and his associates to make this study as rigorously scientific as possible, and on this ground it is commended to the readers of the Journal." W. F. Ogburn

+ Am J Soc 57:294 N '51 900w

"A landmark in medical research and literature. The experiments have been well conceived and controlled, and these volumes are admirably written and documented. The University of Minnesota Press has published them in superb binding and paper, with a format of text and illustration that is a positive invitation to study." T. H. Maren

+ N Y Times p49 N 12 '50 480w

"As a whole, the two volumes will stand as a monument in its account of one of the largest and best designed experiments in human biology."

+ U S Quarterly Bk R 7:97 Mr '51 400w

KHAN, LIAQUAT ALI. Pakistan; the heart of Asia; [with pref. by Walter Lippmann and epilogue by George Kennan]. 151p $3 Harvard univ. press

954 Pakistan 50-10278

"Speeches delivered by Liaquat Ali Khan, prime minister of Pakistan, on his tour of America in May and June, 1950, have been gathered into book form and taken together emphasize his earnest effort to make his country, a new nation which he calls the heart of Asia, known to the people of the United States and Canada." Chicago Sunday Tribune

Am Pol Sci R 45:270 Mr '51 20w

Reviewed by A. E. Kane

Ann Am Acad 273:277 Ja '51 500w

Booklist 47:85; 113 N 1 '50; N 15 '50

"This collected work will give readers an excellent picture of Pakistan from the man best qualified to give it." Gilbert Twiss

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 D 10 '50 360w

Foreign Affairs 29:503 Ap '51 30w

"As a means of acquainting the American public with a still virtually unknown but highly significant part of the world, these talks are valuable and rewarding reading. They also serve to introduce a man of considerable culture who is at present an important world leader."

+ Kirkus 18:553 S 1 '50 150w

"Highly recommended." R. P. Breaden

+ Library J 75:1656 O 1 '50 120w

Manchester Guardian p4 My 11 '51 240w

Reviewed by W. C. Smith

Pacific Affairs 24:216 Je '51 360w

"An important book." R. D. Lambert

+ Sat R of Lit 34:11 Jl 21 '51 900w

Springf'd Republican p10C D 10 '50 50w

KIDDER SMITH, GEORGE EVERARD. See Smith, G. E. K.

KIEFER, ADOLPH, and others. Learning to swim in 12 easy steps; il. by Hossein Banai. 117p il $3 Prentice-Hall

797.2 Swimming 51-11782

A handbook on learning to swim which attempts to "present to parents and inexperienced swimming instructors a simple step procedure for teaching others to swim. Most of the techniques are not new; however, those that are new have resulted from years of study by the authors." (Prefatory note)

Booklist 48:81 N 1 '51

"An excellent handbook." R. W. Henderson

+ Library J 76:1813 N 1 '51 20w

"Three expert swimmers and teachers of swimming have collaborated to produce [this] book." J. F. S.

Springf'd Republican p12C Ag 26 '51 170w

KIELY, BENEDICT. Call for a miracle. 252p $3 Dutton

51-11542

Dublin is the background for this novel about lonely people seeking love and contentment. The central figure is Mary Fergus, driven by her memories of a cruel father to revenge herself on many men. When she falls in love with a cripple whose mother is the same type as her father, Mary's regeneration begins, but ends in tragedy.

Booklist 48:12 S 1 '51

"Some vivid touches, but nevertheless the huge, dim canvas does not take on form or life." Riley Hughes

Cath World 174:71 O '51 330w

Reviewed by J. M. Flynn

Chicago Sunday Tribune p9 Ag 19 '51 350w

"A dispersive dissertation on good and evil, this is not without a certain Irish come-hither in its style."

Kirkus 19:250 My 15 '51 160w

"A complicated but compelling study of bitter loneliness, and Benedict Kiely has set it down with tender insight and the touch of a poet." Richard Harrity

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 Jl 22 '51 650w

"Here is a quietly wise book about a number of quietly sad Irishmen, each with his dreams and regrets. Here is an ironical study of entwined lives, loaded with the mood, mysticism, and off-hand fatalism of Eire itself. In

KIELY, BENEDICT—Continued
short, what you might expect from that fine broth of a Dublin writing man who last sent us 'In a Harbour Green.'" James Kelly
+ N Y Times p4 Jl 22 '51 440w

"Complaining, puritanical, overwritten novel."
— New Yorker 27:84 Ag 25 '51 110w

"'Call for a Miracle' does for the storied old city on the Liffey what 'In a Harbour Green' does for the tiny Ulster port; it presents a picture of contemporary Irish life that is timely and timeless. . . As he unfolds his haunting and suspenseful story Mr. Kiely has an Irishman's way with the English language. His cadenced and evocative prose often soars on the shining wings of poetry." A. F. Wolfe
+ Sat R of Lit 34:15 Jl 28 '51 440w

"Absorbing and brilliant writing marks 'Call for a Miracle,' as an outstanding novel of the year." L. S. Munn
+ Springf'd Republican p6D Ag 19 '51 500w

KILBRACKEN, JOHN RAYMOND GODLEY, 3d baron. Master forger; the story of Han van Meegeren. 223p pl $3 Funk, W.

B or 92 Meegeren, Han van. Forgery of works of art 51-7661

A study of the life of the Dutch art swindler who forged and sold two so-called de Hoochs and six so-called Vermeers before he was unmasked.

Reviewed by F. A. Sweet
Chicago Sunday Tribune p14 O 14 '51 280w

Reviewed by A. S. Plaut
Library J 76:1807 N 1 '51 130w

"Much of the information here, some of it new and conceivably not without value, appears to come from Van Meegeren's family. Unfortunately it contains a number of inaccuracies."
— New Statesman & Nation 41:662 Je 9 '51 140w

"Here is a book that goes beyond the sensational machinations of a prodigious scoundrel and into the dreadful, gasping existence of the art of painting in a world of wars and crime. Mr. Godley's excellent case history raises in all its conclusions the old familiar questions. . . This book is, among other things, a fascinating study in criminal psychology. Under the pressure of a revenge complex, a mediocre artist evolved a technique capable of simulating the surfaces of one of the greatest craftsmen of all time. This may strike the layman as nothing less than miraculous, but a little investigation of the art business tends to reduce the miracle to a snide reality." Thomas Craven
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p1 Ag 19 '51 1500w

"The story, which could have been written better, has elements of high farce as well as of tragedy, and it also puts the whole concept of the value of great paintings in a terribly embarrassing light."
New Yorker 27:69 S 1 '51 180w

"A book written with the full support of the van Meegeren family. It's as fascinating as a topnotch detective story and at the same time a character study with something of the stature of a Greek tragedy about it." J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p20 Ag 15 '51 700w

Reviewed by Gerald Kelly
Spec 187:32 Jl 6 '51 360w

KILPATRICK, WILLIAM HEARD. Philosophy of education. 465p $4.75 Macmillan

370.1 Education—Philosophy 51-11034

"This book is designed to consider critically and constructively the principal problems of general educational theory now confronting modern civilization. It is for all who are consciously concerned with the intelligent and effective direction of education." (School & Society) Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 48:61 O 15 '51
School & Society 73:335 My 26 '51 30w

KINDLEBERGER, CHARLES POOR. Dollar shortage. 276p $4 Mass. inst. of technology

332.45 Balance of trade. Foreign exchange. U.S.—Commerce 50-58282

"This is an analysis of the characteristics and causes of the dollar shortage. Dr. Kindleberger, who has served with national and international monetary organizations, states in his preface that a great deal of the basis for his thinking was formed during the period when he acted as consultant to the E.C.A. on trade discrimination policies. He stresses the difficulty of restoring multilateralism and convertibility of currencies. He points out that before a nation can open its doors to all causes and currencies its trade must be close to a balance and it must have large reserves." (Current Hist) Index.

"Professor Kindleberger states in the preface that 'the events of June 1950 in Korea have made even the title outdated.' Fortunately, however, this harsh judgment does not apply to the main content of the book. The discussion of the concept of 'dollar shortage,' of American foreign trade and foreign investment, and of anti-shortage policies may indeed be of fleeting interest only. However, interwoven with that discussion emerges the outline of a highly original and important theory sketching the international aspects of economic development." J. H. Furth
+ — Am Econ R 41:725 S '51 1750w

Am Pol Sci R 45:598 Je '51 20w

"In substance and style alike, this work is strikingly uneven." R. O. Hall
Ann Am Acad 276:153 Jl '51 320w

Current Hist 20:292 My '51 100w

Foreign Affairs 30:154 O '51 60w

"The Dollar Shortage is, in my opinion, the best treatment of the economics of international disequilibrium which has appeared thus far. Unfortunately, Dr. Kindleberger chose as his title and principal subject of investigation a highly controversial concept, the analysis of which involves him in a rather tiresome terminological debate." R. F. Mikesell
+ — J Pol Econ 59:542 D '51 850w

"The book does not claim to settle controversial issues, but rather to find common ground in opposing views, giving due weight to foreign viewpoints. Not easy reading but rewards thoughtful reading." J. E. Cross
Library J 76:183 F 1 '51 70w

KING, FRANCIS. Dividing stream. 312p $3 Morrow

51-10967

A story of a post-war summer in Florence, Italy. The characters include a wealthy American business man, his restless, unhappy English wife, the American's children and the wife's son by former marriages, the wife's mother, and a number of others, Italians, English ex-patriates, etc.

Booklist 47:337; 363 Je 1 '51; Je 15 '51

"A new talent with a book that holds attention though in final analysis it leaves an unpleasant sense of defeatism. . . One could wish for some relief, some ray of hope, but perhaps the author will work through the fog and do a better book at some future time."
+ — Kirkus 19:194 Ap 1 '51 160w

Reviewed by H. I'A. Fausset
Manchester Guardian p4 Je 15 '51 90w

"Mr. King's unobtrusive prose does not pall, and his narrative seldom flags. But it is a pity that one feels ever more strongly, from chapter to chapter, that he has read this before, that the author's attitude, while civilized and strongly defensible, is neither original nor uniquely presented, and that his people, although they are neither dull nor contrived, are but the replicas of figures in earlier novels which have traversed much the same ground." Harvey Swados
Nation 173:97 Ag 4 '51 340w

Reviewed by J. D. Scott
New Statesman & Nation 41:722 Je 23 '51 550w

"It is true that Mr. King disregards technical niceties, makes lavish use of acrid detail, and draws pessimistic conclusions about love, and his story occasionally seems as implausible as real life so often does; but if these are flaws, they are outweighed by the exuberance with which he writes. Nor does it greatly matter that many of his people appear unsympathetic and a few of them abhorrent, for they are interesting, individual, and sharply alive; and Mr. King himself has perceived them with an understanding that amounts to compassion." Dan Wickenden

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 Je 17 '51 390w

"Readers who prefer the edges tucked in may find this an exasperating and inconclusive tale for all its flashes of perception and character insight. Action flutters—and depends too often upon a mannered style which forces characters to express emotions and moods through disruptive physical action. Yet Mr. King proves his craftsmanship in the illuminated scene, the feel of place, the interaction of tourist and native worlds. One hopes that his next novel will cut the Gordian knot." James Kelly

+ — N Y Times p16 Je 17 '51 360w

New Yorker 27:85 Je 23 '51 230w

"Although 'The Dividing Stream' can be appropriately classed as 'summer fiction,' Mr. King is certainly a better-than-average writer, and his gift is apparent in his use of fresh, new similes and expressive verbs. It is unfortunate that his material does not approach the high level of his ability." J. A.

+ — San Francisco Chronicle p12 S 16 '51 280w

Reviewed by Tangye Lean

Spec 185:792 Je 15 '51 160w

"Francis King is an English writer still in his 20's. . . Although he has fashionably chosen to write about sorry specimens of the human race, he has done it with incisive skill; it is clever writing, but it is also bloodless writing." L. S. Munn

+ — Springf'd Republican p8D Jl 1 '51 260w

Time 58:86 Jl 23 '51 300w

Times [London] Lit Sup p385 Je 22 '51 550w

KING, JERE CLEMENS. Generals and politicians; conflict between France's high command, Parliament and government, 1914-1918. 294p $3.50 Univ. of Calif. press

944.08 European war, 1914-1918—France. France—History 51-799

A history of the struggle between the politicians and the military over the strategy of warfare in France during World war I. Includes a study of the clash of both ideas and personalities. Bibliography. Index.

"Only a scholar with an exceptionally clear mind, cool judgment, and unlimited patience could have dissected this four-year drama so lucidly. Mr. King's analysis of men, motives, and controversies is sane, succinct, and well documented, and his conclusions command respect." Geoffrey Bruun

+ Am Hist R 56:884 Jl '51 600w

Am Pol Sci R 45:583 Je '51 20w

"Professor King's account is intelligent, well-informed, and notably well-written." Gordon Wright

+ Ann Am Acad 277:271 S '51 330w

Foreign Affairs 30:161 O '51 20w

Reviewed by J. J. Espey

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 Ag 5 '51 700w

"Dr. King's book recounts a tale never fully told in English. His sources are almost entirely foreign papers and documents. His is a well-grounded history, interpreted with keen insight in the light of his material." C. E. M.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p20 Mr 25 '51 360w

"Admirable book. The sources on which Professor King draws are all well known; and it cannot be said that he brings to his study any fresh vision or striking penetration. Indeed, his background of French history is so thin that occasionally the light shows through the holes. But he writes with restraint in an easy, effective style, and there is pleasure as well as instruction to be gained from his excellent narrative."

+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p322 My 25 '51 1750w

U S Quarterly Bk R 7:167 Je '51 300w

KING, RUFUS. Duenna to a murder; pub. for the Crime club. 219p $2.50 Doubleday 51-9224

Detective story.

"Mr. King's prose is turgid, but he can usually be counted on for a good story and this case is no exception."

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p14 F 11 '51 150w

"It's all really quite good of its kind, and refreshingly more succinct than most. Still, despite an ingenious solution-gimmick and a few glints of an individual and civilized wit, it isn't what old-line King fans know that the author is capable of." A. B.

+ — N Y Times p15 F 11 '51 140w

"Overfancy but ingenious."

New Yorker 26:92 Ja 27 '51 100w

Reviewed by L. G. Offord

San Francisco Chronicle p16 F 4 '51 90w

Reviewed by Esther Howard

Spec 187:168 Ag 3 '51 30w

KING, MRS VERNA (FOLEY). Mrs Foley, God bless her! 265p $2.75 Bobbs

818 Roman Catholic church—Converts 51-2343

Reminiscences of the author's mother, who spent ten years in deciding to become a Catholic and then became very firm about it. The scene is a Wisconsin town. Part of Mrs Foley's ability to run the church was due to the fact that she lived across the street from the church, and very little escaped her notice.

Booklist 47:307 My 1 '51

"Many daughters have written of their mothers in this era of family tale telling, but none has done it more charmingly than Mrs. Foley's little girl, Verna. While this book lacks the rib-splitting humor of many family chronicles, it is far richer in detail, character delineation, and spirituality than most of the crop." Marge Lyon

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 My 6 '51 450w

"Mrs. Foley's relations with the church occupy her daughter's book to the exclusion of other preoccupations, and she writes somewhat prolixly from this single point of reference."

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p16 Mr 18 '51 320w

"Unfortunately, the wooden dialogue does not bear out the author's repeated claim that Mrs. Foley's wit dismayed 'commonplace priests' and delighted bright ones. The reader has to suspect that a woman of fine candor and humility deserved something better than this wordy and inconsequential memoir."

— N Y Times p31 Ap 1 '51 270w

KINGERY, ROBERT ERNEST. How-to-do-it books: a selected guide. 293p $3.50 Bowker

016 Hobbies—Bibliography. Arts and crafts—Bibliography. Recreation—Bibliography 51-9135

"This guide is planned as a supplement to The Bookman's Manual and lists the 'know-how' books, pamphlets, government documents and other printed materials relating to the non-vocational, spare-time, recreational and home-making activities of men and women. . . This guide emphasizes publications in print and available in the United States. Where prices are not given, the material is presumed 'out-of-print.' These out-of-print items have been included because they are still useful. The guide contains 2350 entries arranged alphabetically under 346 headings, with necessary subdivisions." (Introd) Index.

KINGERY, R. E.—Continued

Booklist 47:198 F 1 '51

"A few inaccuracies in a book of this kind are inevitable (books assigned to wrong publishers) . . . but by and large it should prove a lifesaver for those in search of a quick answer."
+ — Kirkus 18:741 D 15 '50 150w

"For constant use, a time saver for staff and public which will pay for itself many times over. A first class investment, recommended for general reference use." H. A. Wooster
+ Library J 76:42 Ja 1 '51 80w

"Everyone with a hobby will want this book. . . The book is truly a wonderful idea. . . As every household has hobbyists every family will want this book. It is a basic for libraries in schools, communities, and homes."
+ Sat R of Lit 34:37 F 3 '51 180w
U S Quarterly Bk R 7:212 Je '51 180w
Wis Lib Bul 47:84 Ap '51

KINGMAN, LEE (MRS ROBERT H. NATTI). Quarry adventure; il. by Barbara Cooney. 209p $2.50 Doubleday
51-13670

Story of a family of Finnish descent, living in a cottage on Cape Ann near a stone quarry. Twelve-year old Lauri, one of the middle ones, goes to work for the summer for the neighbor Miss Pinckney, and as one of his duties, is given charge of her eleven-year old niece, Garnet. The story tells how Lauri and Garnet solve the mystery of the quarry accident and get Mr Siron's job back for him.

Booklist 48:130 D 1 '51
Horn Bk 27:411 D '51 110w

"A joyous, appealing story, with delightful, imaginative illustrations."
+ Kirkus 19:635 N 1 '51 150w

Reviewed by Alice Fedder
Library J 76:1640 O 15 '51 40w

"Recommended." Elizabeth Johnson
+ Library J 76:2013 D 1 '51 70w

"Boys and girls both will like Lauri and Garnet, at about nine to twelve. We have had plenty of happy though poor families in children's fiction, and too many horrid little rich girls who are always reformed by meeting them. But the way this writer makes clear the details of living on very little money will be interesting to children." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 N 11 '51 230w

"Suspense is added to a naturally lively tale by the mystery surrounding father's accident at the stone quarry. Barbara Cooney's black-and-white illustrations convey the spirit and humor of the text." E. S.
+ N Y Times p30 N 11 '51 130w

Reviewed by L. G. Offord
San Francisco Chronicle p4 N 11 '51 80w

KINGSLAKE, RUDOLF. Lenses in photography; the practical guide to optics for photographers. 246p $2.95 Garden City bks.
771.352 Lenses, Photographic 51-6158

"The Director of Optical Design at the Eastman Kodak Company has written this book to help the serious photographer 'understand the working of lenses, cameras, enlargers, and projectors, so that he can choose intelligently from the available apparatus, and make the best use of his own equipment.'" Cleveland Open Shelf

Booklist 48:81 N 1 '51
Cleveland Open Shelf p18 S '51

KINGSLEY, MYRA. Outrageous fortune; how I practice astrology. 240p $3 Duell
133.5 Astrology 51-10416

"Myra Kingsley is a well-known astrologer with headquarters in New York city. . . Mrs. Kingsley explains just what astrology means to her and the uses to which she has put her study of the effect of stellar influence upon human life." San Francisco Chronicle

Kirkus 19:373 Jl 15 '51 100w
San Francisco Chronicle p21 N 11 '51 260w

Reviewed by U. K. Alpert
Springf'd Republican p10B S 30 '51 290w

KINGSTON, WALTER E. Physics of powder metallurgy; a symposium. 404p il $8.50 McGraw 669 Metals, Powdered 51-1607

"This book contains the papers presented at a symposium sponsored by the metallurgical laboratories of Sylvania Electric Products, Inc., and held at Bayside, N.Y., in 1949. It is devoted, as the title indicates, to the scientific aspects of the technique. Typical papers deal with the mechanism of crystal growth, self diffusion in iron and the theoretical aspects of sintering of carbides. Authors are associated with colleges or industrial corporations, and the papers are addressed to scientists and metallurgists concerned with research in the field." Library J

Reviewed by R. R. Hawkins
Library J 76:708 Ap 15 '51 110w

"A valuable contribution to the literature of this subject. Although there is much in it that is of interest to men directly in charge of the production of metal parts from metal powders, fundamental aspects rather than details of techniques are stressed. The book is most suitable for professional metallurgists."
+ N Y New Tech Bks 36:29 Mr '51

"Taken together, the articles, and the discussions following them, provide a very good cross section of the best thinking in the field, and should be of particular interest to those engaged in similar lines of basic research."
+ U S Quarterly Bk R 7:210 Je '51 200w

KINZER, ROBERT H., and SAGARIN, EDWARD. Negro in American business; the conflict between separatism and integration. 220p $2.50 Greenberg
325.26 Negroes—Economic conditions. U.S.—Race question 50-10482

"Relying upon the history of Negro business as told by others and the current facts as reported by previous investigators, Robert Kinzer and Edward Sagarin seek to appraise the 'anomalous' position of the Negro business man in our economic system. They also analyze the future of business enterprise as a factor in the race's progress." N Y Times

Booklist 47:168 Ja 1 '51

Reviewed by J. E. Cross
Library J 75:2005 N 15 '50 70w

Reviewed by Ernest Kaiser
Management R 40:160 Mr '51 950w

"A sober, factual inquiry into the past, present, and probable future of the Negro business man that illuminates an important phase of race relations."
+ Nation 172:43 Ja 13 '51 100w

Reviewed by A. L. Harris
N Y Times p16 D 31 '50 600w

KIRBY, STELLA, pseud. Celestial escapade. 214p $2.75 Viking
50-11089

A first novel, the scene of which is Hong Kong and Shanghai just before Mao Tse-tung's entry into the latter. The chief characters are an aging wealthy British gentleman, and his pretty Eurasian mistress.

Kirkus 18:663 N 1 '50 150w

Reviewed by Donald Wasson
Library J 76:40 Ja 1 '51 70w

"One has only to look at the Europeans in this remarkable first novel for an exhibition that is positively infantile. The story is witty as well as effective, and it would be funny if the world were not at stake." Mary Ross
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Ja 14 '51 1250w

"If there is nothing creative here, there is also very little that is gauche. Miss Kirby is professional, and lending-library readers may withdraw her book with perfect security." Robert Phelps
+ N Y Times p26 Ja 14 '51 180w

"Miss Kirby employs an irreverent humor to salt her shrewd observations of off-center people and places. But one hopes that her next novel will provide a steadier vehicle for an undeniable writing talent." James Kelly
Sat R of Lit 34:40 Ap 28 '51 290w

KIRCHWEY, FREDA (MRS EVANS CLARK), ed. Atomic era—can it bring peace and abundance? 176p $2.75 McBride 940.55 World politics. Atomic energy
50-11134

"Symposium, edited by the editor of the Nation, [which] brings together some of the more important of the papers presented at a conference held in New York last year under the sponsorship of that journal. . . The discussions, as here reported, deal chiefly with the long-range and large-scale problems rather than with an immediate emergency situation." (Christian Century) No index.

Booklist 47:203 F 1 '51

"This book contains much solid substance and bristles with controversial points." W. E. Garrison
Christian Century 68:210 F 14 '51 300w
Cleveland Open Shelf p9 My '51

Reviewed by R. E. Lapp
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p21 Ap 22 '51 370w

"In this book are gathered the carefully considered thoughts of some of the most mature minds of this country, each addressing himself to the problem of finding a way to peace through the United Nations. And while the entry of the Chinese into Korea, and the approach to mobilization in this country, have occurred since these papers were written, nearly all the arguments in the book are still valid. What is more important, they may be made to prevail." Don Fabun
+ San Francisco Chronicle p14 Ja 21 '51 550w

KIRK, JEREMY, pseud. Build-up boys. 242p $3 Scribner 51-246

"Here you will meet Clint Lorimer, long on ideas; Anne, who headed a dying advertising agency until Clint showed her how to operate; Ames, president of the Cloverleaf Milk Company whom Clint lifted off a milk route and who believed the build-up which made him the biggest man in the business; Peggy, who loved Clint, and who had to do a knife-job on him to show him what he was; these and others circulate through some fast plays, most of them squeeze." Kirkus

"It's as breezy and brassy a story as ever has been written on such a theme." Kelsey Guilfoil
Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 F 4 '51 550w

Reviewed by James Rorty
— Commonweal 54:70 Ap 27 '51 550w
Kirkus 19:5 Ja 1 '51 130w

Reviewed by Paul Bloomfield
Manchester Guardian p4 S 21 '51 70w
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p14 Ap 1 '51 260w

"Jeremy Kirk, a pen name, has the knack of making public relations work read like the adventures of Sam Spade, private eye. Character goes only skin-deep, the better to be skinned alive apparently. The author, in explaining why he chose to use a pseudonym states, 'I don't suppose anybody will believe this.' He's right. The honest truth about the profession he excoriates would have had less verbal and technical fireworks, but it would have made a more effective noise." Richard Mealand
— N Y Times p24 F 4 '51 270w

"The effect of The Build-up Boys is vitiated by the fact that Mr. Kirk comes less to satirize than to worship: the book's substantial merits lie in the liveliness and accuracy with which the progress of a build-up is described."
Times [London] Lit Sup p648 O 12 '51 200w

KIRST, HANS HELLMUT. Lieutenant must be mad; tr. from the German by Richard and Clara Winston. 288p $3 Harcourt
51-2356

"First Lieutenant Strick returns from the Russian front, uncovers skulduggery on the home front and by a chain of circumstances becomes National Socialist Guidance Officer for the German garrison at Rehhausen. In this 'position of trust', he thoroughly sabotages the local garrison, always in the name of true National Socialism, joins by a further chain of circumstances the resistance movement, and on the signal for the attempted assassination of Hitler takes over the garrison. When the revolt fails, Strick escapes to Switzerland." Library J

Reviewed by Richard Blakesley
Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 My 27 '51 300w
Kirkus 19:194 Ap 1 '51 200w

"Better than average fiction. Recommended." R. E. Kingery
+ Library J 76:597 Ap 1 '51 130w

"Kirst writes honestly and well, and it will be interesting to see him bring his mordant humor to play on more tractable subjects." Harvey Swados
+ — Nation 172:476 My 19 '51 280w

"Here is a first novel by a German, a book about Nazi Germany in wartime which, in its sardonic blend of farce and tragedy, is a complete departure from what we commonly recognize as the German literary tradition. None of the self-pity of Remarque's famous novel creeps into these dry pages." Virgilia Peterson
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 Ap 15 '51 850w

"The characters are never out of focus—from the undaunted old Laborite Tannert and his prim daughter Magda to the Gestapo turncoat Gareis, an obese man who seems almost too sympathetic for all the double-crossing he does. And the book is never dull. Its flashes of roguish humor extend even into the last chapters. This reader, however, wishes the author had been content to tell us some more merry Till Eulenspiegel pranks of Lieutenant Strick and Corporal Vogel, whose 'madness' is of the kind that entertains." Richard Plant
+ N Y Times p4 Ap 8 '51 360w

"Told with a great sense of narrative, with pathos and with robust humor, this novel of Kirst places him in the first rank of contemporary German writers." R. G. Colodny
+ San Francisco Chronicle p18 My 20 '51 490w

"In itself a curious mélange of literary purposes, 'The Lieutenant Must Be Mad' gives us some very skilful reportage at the same time that it leans rather too heavily on flashy plot devices, making ideas and even characterizations compete too heavily with adventures rather like those of 'The Green Hornet' of radio fame. Though the book is at all times interesting and often moving, we still must wait for the German novelist who will tell us about his time in the way that the new Italians have told us about theirs." David Davidson
Sat R of Lit 34:25 Ap 7 '51 700w

"Mr. Kirst's book is interesting because of its setting in war-time Germany and its characterization of Germans by a German; but his satire is heavy-handed and the parts are overplayed."

KIRST, H. H.—Continued
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p801 D 14 '51 150w

KIRSTEIN, GEORGE G. Stores and unions; a study of the growth of unionism in dry goods and department stores. 246p il $7 Fairchild
331.88 Trade unions. Department stores 50-10906

A history of the development of unions in the department store field in the United States, and a study of the ways in which employers react to them. Index.

Booklist 47:168 Ja 1 '51

"A well documented and informative study." D. K. Oko
+ Library J 76:47 Ja 1 '51 120w
Management R 40:165 Mr '51 60w

"The book clarifies many of the struggles within and between unions, some of which tend to mystify the shopping public when labor disputes are brought to their attention by pickets. The book seems to have been designed in part as a text or supplementary reading for specialized courses in retail merchandising. Its wider usefulness to scholars for the study of industrial relations may be somewhat limited by its price."
+ U S Quarterly Bk R 7:78 Mr '51 200w

KIRWAN, ALBERT DENNIS. Revolt of the Rednecks. 328p il maps $4.50 Univ. of Ky.
976.2 Mississippi—Politics and government 51-62000

A study of Mississippi politics from 1876 to 1925. "A detailed account of the struggle of the poor hill farmers to gain control of the state Democratic party, and of their two decades in power. Interesting studies of Vardaman and Bilbo. The author is a University of Kentucky historian." (Am Pol Sci R) Bibliography. Index.

"The half century studied by Mr. Kirwan represents the most neglected cycle of Southern history. It is therefore a compliment of a dubious sort to say that he has written the best political history of the period covered so far available for any state of the region. The fact is he did not have a lot of competition. But one can go further than this and say that for realism, penetration, and dispassionate analysis the book is an outstanding contribution to the monographic literature on recent American political history." C. V. Woodward
+ Am Hist R 56:918 Jl '51 650w
Am Pol Sci R 45:572 Je '51 30w
Current Hist 20:346 Je '51 140w
U S Quarterly Bk R 7:167 Je '51 270w

KISKER, GEORGE W., ed. World tension; the psychopathology of international relations. 324p $5 Prentice-Hall
301 International relations 51-2125

"This pioneering study, representing the considered judgment of 22 psychiatrists of 20 nations, is a contribution towards the solution of international discord. Each of the contributors has presented a sober analysis of the sociological and ideological conflicts in each nation-state which feed the war drive. Many varied psychiatric and sociological theories are here represented. The symposium attempts no synthesis of the divergent points of view." San Francisco Chronicle

Reviewed by R. H. Heindel
Ann Am Acad 276:136 Jl '51 290w
Reviewed by J. R. Seeley
Canadian Forum 31:237 Ja '52 460w

"Psychiatry has begun to be considered a discipline that could ultimately cure groups, nations and the human race as a whole from such 'illnesses' as wars, revolutions, interracial tensions and conflicts. This book on world tension is the product of this trend in psychopathology. Therefore it reflects the best aspirations as well as the salient weaknesses of this trend." Gregory Zilboorg
N Y Times p7 My 6 '51 900w
San Francisco Chronicle p19 Je 24 '51 90w

KITSON, HARRY DEXTER, and NEWTON, JUNA BARNES. Helping people find jobs; how to operate a placement office. 265p $3.50 Harper
331.1151 Employment agencies 50-14364

A textbook designed for those establishing or working in a placement agency. Partial contents: Registering the applicant; Preparing the applicant; Making the placement: selection, referral, verification; Follow-up after placement; Recruiting applicants; Records, reports, evaluations; The placement officer must master the art of interviewing; Organization of the placement office; Placement in a school system; The college placement office; Operating a fee-charging agency; Public employment services. Glossary. Index.

Booklist 47:168 Ja 1 '51
Bookmark 10:111 F '51 30w
Reviewed by Winifred Baum
Chicago Sunday Tribune p13 My 6 '51 60w
Kirkus 18:381 Jl 1 '50 130w

KJELGAARD, JAMES ARTHUR. Explorations of Pere Marquette; il. by Stephen J. Voorhies. (Landmark bk.) 181p $1.50 Random house
Marquette, Jacques—Juvenile literature 51-13563

"The story of the Jesuit priest and his adventurer-companion who opened for the European world the Mississippi and the Great Lakes basin. . . Based on the journals of Pere Marquette, except for two minor incidents." Kirkus

Booklist 48:149 D 15 '51

"Good information about the fur trading voyaguers brightens the tale." M. B. King
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p12 N 11 '51 30w

"The story is a thrilling one, and Jim Kjelgaard, who may always be counted upon to direct the freshness, and beauty of the natural world into his stories, has written a breathtaking story."
+ Kirkus 19:439 Ag 15 '51 70w

"In addition to being a good story of a real hero, this addition to the 'Landmark' series will be useful for supplementary reading on exploration. . . Ages 10-13. Recommended." L. E. Cathon
+ Library J 76:1574 O 1 '51 70w
Reviewed by L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p7 N 11 '51 50w

"Accurate, exciting and important volume." R. A. Brown
+ N Y Times p36 N 11 '51 40w
Reviewed by M. P. Allen
Sat R of Lit 34:51 N 10 '51 140w

KJELGAARD, JAMES ARTHUR. Fire-hunter; il. by Ralph Ray. 217p $2.50 Holiday 51-12734

"Hawk, a young spearmaker of prehistoric times, displeased his tribe and was abandoned in the wilderness. Willow, an injured girl, was also left behind. Staying alive became a desperate business. With fire and the magic throwing stick that Hawk devised, they successfully combatted saber-tooth tigers, mammoths and hostile tribesmen." N Y Times

Booklist 48:130 D 1 '51
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p18 N 11 '51 140w

"Boys who like stories of prehistoric times will welcome this tale by one of their favorite authors." S. M. A.
Horn Bk 27:334 S '51 60w

"A splendid adventure story."
+ Kirkus 19:351 Jl 15 '51 150w

"Recommended, especially to junior high school boys." Elizabeth Hodges
+ Library J 76:2126 D 15 '51 100w

"It is well written and well illustrated." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p22 N 11 '51 60w

"This well-written, imaginative tale makes absorbing reading, and will give young people an understanding of prehistoric man." Howard Boston
+ N Y Times p20 N 11 '51 140w
Wis Lib Bul 47:261 N '51

KJELGAARD, JAMES ARTHUR. Irish Red, son of Big Red. 224p $2.50 Holiday
Dogs—Legends and stories 51-3090

An Irish setter, son of Big Red (Book Review Digest 1945) is the hero of this story for grades six to nine. The setter, called Mike, is the runt of the litter, and at first seemed untrainable besides. But young Danny Pickett believed in Mike, and he was justified.

Booklist 47:333 My 15 '51

"Mr. Kjelgaard gives his large and loyal following another great dog personality." Polly Goodwin
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 Je 24 '51 130w
Cleveland Open Shelf p23 N '51

"Mr. Kjelgaard spent his boyhood on a mountain farm and with his four brothers learned to know the out of doors. That knowledge and his love for animals, as well as ability to write well, characterize all his books and make the publication of each new one a happy event for his many young admirers." J. D. Lindquist and S. M. Andrews
+ Horn Bk 27:252 Jl '51 120w

"First rate."
+ Kirkus 19:209 Ap 15 '51 110w

"This is a worthy sequel to Big Red and older boys and girls will not be disappointed with the adventures of Big Red's son, Mike." Augusta Baker
+ Library J 76:1035 Je 15 '51 130w

Reviewed by L. S. Bechtel
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 My 13 '51 140w

"Readers who warmed to the story of Big Red will find equally delightful this account of the champion's son, Mike. Once again Mr. Kjelgaard, with his deep understanding of animals, wilderness life, and boys, has rewarded his followers with a most engaging account of the breed of dogs he himself loves." H. B. Lent
+ N Y Times p24 Je 3 '51 160w

"Absorbing story of a boy, a dog, and a wise man." M. G. Davis
+ Sat R of Lit 34:38 O 20 '51 140w
Wis Lib Bul 47:154 Je '51

KLEES, FREDRIC. Pennsylvania Dutch [il. by the author]. 451p $5 Macmillan 325.243 Germans in Pennsylvania 50-11837

The story of the Pennsylvania Dutch, their religions, their history, their folk arts, and their contributions to American culture. Selected bibliography. No index.

"The author has gleaned lightly from an immense territory, handling all manner of topics, past and present, from religion and Hexerei to fraktur and kitchen recipes. By and large, it is the best introduction for the general reader to this whole field. Others have written more fully and profoundly about individual parts of it, such as Pennsylvania Dutch education, art, antiques, literature, and folklore. But no one else has sung so well the all-round Pennsylvania Dutchman." P. A. W. Wallace
+ Am Hist R 56:676 Ap '51 500w

"There are good stories galore scattered through the pages, but it is the solid factual information he has garnered that makes his book valuable. Who will may find in it all that is known of us, from hexerei to our distinction in medicine and music, but he will have to hunt it out without the help of an index. That omission materially lessens the value of The Pennsylvania Dutch as a book of reference, which is destined to be its greatest value." Cornelius Weygandt
+ — Ann Am Acad 274:250 Mr '51 450w
Booklist 47:183 Ja 15 '51
Bookmark 10:131 Mr '51 60w

"This is a worthwhile book. It is good American history. It is good sociology and anthropology. It is good reading by a good writer." W. M. Krogman
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 D 10 '50 450w

"This is a valuable reference book on an area which is distinguished by its extreme individuality."
+ Kirkus 18:627 O 1 '50 100w

"I have a few quarrels with Professor Klees. I am reluctant to believe that the Pennsylvania Dutch won the War of the Revolution practically unaided, although they were some of Washington's doughtiest troops (also a good many of them were in the mutiny of the Pennsylvania Line); and Philadelphia wasn't half as traitorous and Tory as he implies. . . But these are minor matters. I like enthusiasm. Besides, I have a Pennsylvania Dutch Lutheran great-grandmother." Struthers Burt
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p7 Ja 14 '51 1400w

"After the fashion of his people, Mr. Klees is a generous provider. His book is as fragrant with goodness as a country oven." Charles Lee
+ N Y Times p6 Ja 21 '51 440w

"Happily, the author has held to the light touch in his book, pointing the perfectionist to authoritative books, from many of which he has 'stolen the honey—only the hive in which I have stowed it is my own.' " Don Pitt
+ San Francisco Chronicle p15 Ja 21 '51 650w

"The author's desire to touch upon everything and to ignore nothing is at once the best and the worst feature of his work. For those who know little of the subject this book can be recommended as the best they will find under one cover; for those who are acquainted with the Dutch country the volume has little new to offer except convenience." P. S. Klein
+ — Sat R of Lit 34:19 Mr 3 '51 700w
School & Society 72:351 N 25 '50 30w

"There is, in this book, more tightly packed, solid information about the Pennsylvania Dutch, as the author prefers to call them, than can be found in any other single, comparable volume."
+ U S Quarterly Bk R 7:74 Mr '51 280w
Wis Lib Bul 47:60 Mr '51

KLEIN, ABRAHAM MOSES. Second scroll. 198p $2.75 Knopf
51-11078

"This scholar, lawyer, and well-known Canadian poet seems as versed as Zangwill in the tenets of orthodox Judaism. Main theme [of this novel is the narrator's] travels across continents to Israel in search of a heroic kinsman. Includes dramatic descriptions of atrocities against Russian, Polish, and Oriental Jews; poems, plays, and prayers in appendix." Library J

"The book has faults. For one thing, it is over-compressed. . . And there is a defect of the opposite kind. Sometimes the purple passage rises with disconcerting abruptness out of the hardest cerebral rock. One might say that while the skeletal structure of the book is sound and strong the flesh is unevenly distributed. But this [is] a compelling book and one which gives Canadians some right to feel adult. The author's Canadianism is a nodal point in the treatment of his theme." Malcolm Ross
+ — Canadian Forum 31:234 Ja '52 750w

"The search of a man for coherence within a many dimensioned reality; the yearning of a people for freedom from fear and a chance for the good life, is richly, touchingly set forth in this story of a Jewish-Canadian journalist and his efforts to locate a lost relative."

KLEIN, A. M.—Continued
+ Kirkus 19:365 Jl 15 '51 240w

"There is no question that book has great literary power, but its Biblical learning, old-world nostalgia, and deep tradition will be grasped best by a selective minority." J. M. Scherr
Library J 76:1420 S 15 '51 70w

"If John Hersey's 'The Wall' can be regarded as the outstanding fictional tribute by a non-Jew to the annihilated Jewry of Europe, this apocalyptic volume by A. M. Klein, the Canadian poet, Joyce scholar, and lawyer, can with greater justification be described as the most profoundly creative summation of the Jewish condition by a Jewish man of letters since the European catastrophe." Harvey Swados
+ Nation 173:379 N 3 '51 1000w

"[The book has] a sound basis for a novel, and Mr. Klein has the intellectual and stylistic talents necessary for its proper development, but he seems to have tired of it too soon." Thomas Sugrue
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p42 D 2 '51 450w

"It is, all in all, a provocative and worthwhile book—but it is not a novel." Harry Sylvester
N Y Times p58 N 25 '51 400w

KLEIN, LAWRENCE ROBERT. Economic fluctuations in the United States, 1921-1941. 174p $4 Wiley

330.182 Business cycles. Economics, Mathematical 50-9373

"The present monograph constitutes an extension of Jan Tinbergen's earlier League of Nations investigations on the statistical testing and measurement of business cycles in the United States. . . Three econometric models of the American economy of varying complexity are investigated in the major portion of the work, in which consistent statistical estimates of the parameters are quantitatively determined and their use sketched for predictive and policy purposes." (U S Quarterly Bkl) Index.

"Brief as this sketch is, it is clear that Klein addresses himself squarely to the important task of bridging the gap between the neoclassical theory of economic units and Keynesian-type theories of total economies. No one before him has carried the task so far or said so much that is original and illuminating." Millard Hastay
+ Am Econ R 41:446 Je '51 950w

"Dr. Klein warns us at the outset of his preface that 'this book contains only tentative and preliminary steps in econometric model building.' It nevertheless represents the most ambitious undertaking of its kind since the pioneer work of Tinbergen himself." M. Bronfenbrenner
+ Ann Am Acad 273:235 Ja '51 800w

Reviewed by C. D. Jackson
J Pol Econ 59:178 Ap '51 550w

"Dr. Klein's treatment of statistical time series for the period 1921-41 within the structure of linear simultaneous equation econometric models should command the attention of economists and economic statisticians engaged in work in this field. Critical reading of the monograph requires a fairly rigorous foundation in mathematical economics, mathematical statistics, and probability theory."
U S Quarterly Bkl 6:433 D '50 220w

KLEINLOGEL, ADOLF. Influences on concrete; tr. from the German (Einflüsse auf Beton) by F. S. Morgenroth. 281p $7.50 Ungar

666.8 Concrete

"A translation of a German work which was published in 1941. The title is somewhat inappropriate, for the book is a concise cyclopedia of information about mortar and concrete. The following sequence of terms illustrates the miscellaneous nature of the topics: 'Coal particles in concrete'; 'Coal-tar oils'; 'Coating of concrete roads'; 'Coating with lime'; 'Coatings and pastes to reduce permeability.' In most instances, only a few lines of information follow a term, but in some cases, the discussion runs to several pages." Library J

"The English translation is a useful compendium of information concerning concrete as a material of construction. . . The translation of the 4th German edition appears to follow the original quite faithfully. There are several deficiencies in the translation which impair to some extent the usefulness of this work."
+ — Eng N 145:44 D 14 '50 280w

"The book should be useful to civil engineers, contractors, and other persons who use concrete on a large scale or who are interested in uncommon varieties of it or unusual information about it." R. R. Hawkins
Library J 75:1050 Je 15 '50 140w

KLINGEL, GILBERT C. The bay; a naturalist discovers a universe of life above and below the Chesapeake; il. by Natalie Harland Davis. 278p $4 Dodd

574.975 Natural history. Chesapeake bay 51-13024

A naturalist describes the life in, around, and under Chesapeake Bay, and his observations on it. "From small sailboats he has come to know the surface waters in all their moods. . . He has observed events beneath the dark green waters of the bay, through the glass face-plate of a helmet and through the windows of a diving device called a bentharium. With the endless patience of a true naturalist he has recorded the details of the pageant of life enacted by jelly-fish and fiddler crabs and barnacles and all the rest of the bay's creatures." (N Y Times)

Booklist 48:95 N 15 '51

Reviewed by John Bayless
Chicago Sunday Tribune p16 O 28 '51 190w

"The charm of this very pleasant book lies largely in Mr. Klingel's own excitement and pleasure at each new sight; in his sensitivity to color, to the feel of the wind, the smell of the air, the ghostlike slithering touch of some marine creature as it floats past him. He does not claim to be a scientist. He is an enthusiastic, uncritical and delighted observer. He is also a man who has arranged for himself time and a clear space for meditation." Francesca La Monte
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 O 21 '51 340w

"Readers with varied interests should like this book. Merely for its tales of exciting adventure it is first-rate reading. . . Certain passages stand out as charming examples of good nature writing. Klingel is at his best when he is describing what he himself has seen and heard and smelled and touched, for he is acutely aware of senses other than sight. Such writing, rich in imagery and evocative quality, is contained in his description of events in a 24-hour period in the Patuxent marshes, beginning with the first voice heard in the utter darkness and stillness of the night's end, and continuing through the day and the following night, until the songs of the whippoorwills and frogs and mockingbirds finally die away." R. L. Carson
+ N Y Times p4 O 14 '51 450w

KLOTS, ALEXANDER BARRETT. Field guide to the butterflies of North America, east of the Great Plains; il. with color paintings of 247 species by Marjorie Statham; and 232 phot. by Florence Longworth. (Peterson field guide ser) 349p $3.75 Houghton

595.789 Butterflies 51-10190

"Essential data about our butterflies 'in the light of modern knowledge and approach.' Many plates, some in color, line drawings. Appendixes, indexes of technical terms, food plants and butterflies." (Bookmark)

Booklist 47:324 My 15 '51

Bookmark 10:181 My '51 30w
Reviewed by H. B. Ellis
Christian Science Monitor p11 Ag 16 '51 130w
+ Kirkus 19:142 Mr 1 '51 150w

"Not an introductory study for beginners but a fine reference. . . Will be very useful for reference in any library." N. S. Chasteen
+ Library J 76:782 My 1 '51 70w

"This book goes beyond classification with information on collecting and preserving specimens, and on the important relationships of the butterfly to its environment. It also includes instructions to teachers and nature leaders. As in the case of the other field guides this one is just the right size for slipping into a coat pocket. It will join the other field guides which nature students have come to regard as standard equipment." John O'Reilly
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p11 S 9 '51 200w

"Unquestionably this is the finest book on American butterflies to be published since 1889 when Samuel Scudder's great work, 'The Butterflies of the Eastern United States and Canada,' inaugurated a new era in lepidopterology. It is scientific without being pedantic and up-to-date without being esoteric." Vladimir Nabokov
+ N Y Times p21 Je 3 '51 430w

"A compact and full little handbook, which is said by authorities in this field to be not merely a sound popular guide but a genuine contribution to its subject." Edmund Wilson
+ New Yorker 27:76 Jl 14 '51 60w
San Francisco Chronicle p21 Je 17 '51 70w
Wis Lib Bul 47:161 Je '51

KLOTZ, IRVING MYRON. Chemical thermodynamics; basic theory and methods; with advice and suggestions from Thomas Fraser Young. 369p $6 Prentice-Hall
541.36 Thermochemistry 50-12353

"This book is a text on thermodynamics designed primarily for chemists. It is, furthermore, an introductory volume on this subject. As such, it has two prime objectives: first, to present to the student the logical foundations and inter-relationships of the theory of thermodynamics; second, to teach the student the methods by which the theoretical principles may be applied to practical problems." (Pref) Index.

"The book is recommended for serious study for itself and to supplement other texts lacking this fundamental approach." K. A. Kobe
+ Chem Eng 58:267 Mr '51 600w
Reviewed by R. R. Hawkins
Library J 76:118 Ja 15 '51 80w

KNEE, ERNEST. Mexico: Laredo to Guadalajara. 96p $3 Hastings house
917.2 Mexico—Pictorial works 51-5662

Photographs of architecture and scenery along the Pan-American and Mexico City-Guadalajara highways.

Booklist 48:9 S 1 '51
Reviewed by P. J. C. Friedlander
N Y Times p23 S 16 '51 70w

"The temptation, in photographing Mexico, is always to point your camera at churches, cactus, and characters. Mr. Knee gives you some of each, to be sure, but because he is a photographer of good judgment, he supplies other keys to the country as well." J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p14 Ag 2 '51 220w

KNELLER, GEORGE FREDERICK. Education of the Mexican nation. 258p $3.50 Columbia univ. press
370.972 Education—Mexico 51-9931

"Professor Kneller of Yale University gives us the first comprehensive work in English on education in Mexico. . . After some historical background he treats the subject from the colonial period to the present day dwelling, of course, on the progress made since the days of Diaz in kindergarten and elementary education, in secondary education—liberal, vocational and technical—and in higher education. A particularly informative chapter is devoted to the lot of the teacher today." (Library J) Bibliography. Index.

"The work provides a great deal of useful information for students of Latin America but there are a few noticeable gaps. For instance, the author devotes only slightly more than one page to Mexico's Cultural Missions, although these have received international attention and have been considered important enough to warrant special study by UNESCO as an example of what might be tried in other underdeveloped countries." N. L. Whetten
+ — Am Soc R 16:588 Ag '51 190w
Booklist 47:396 Jl 15 '51
Foreign Affairs 29:681 Jl '51 10w

"A well-written and interesting work." Joseph Borome
+ Library J 76:775 My 1 '51 110w
School & Society 73:158 Mr 10 '51 50w

"The study is an important and timely contribution to comparative education because it presents the educational achievements of a people influenced by two distinctly different cultures—European and Mexican—and points out the possibilities of developing a system of education in which divergent civilizations may come to terms."
+ U S Quarterly Bk R 7:157 Je '51 200w

KNICKERBOCKER, CHARLES HERRICK. Boy came back. 249p $2.75 Wyn
51-13483

A small Maine town is the scene of this first novel. The Boy is a town character who sets off a train of violent action after his return from World war II. After the murder of his wife the Boy makes a fitting end.

Kirkus 19:539 S 15 '51 180w

"Not a pretty story, and not meant to be. But absorbing. Recommended for adult collections." R. E. Kingery
+ Library J 76:1806 N 1 '51 140w

"There are frigid women, town drunks, a cowardly newspaper editor, all of them adding up to a cast that is mean and unsavory beyond belief. Mr. Knickerbocker writes with professional smoothness, but his story is not made credible."
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p19 N 11 '51 240w

"Unfortunately, this novel seems no more tragic than the average detective story. The principal characters are case histories rather than human beings—each with his unmistakable complex or obvious perversion. . . In spite of these stereotypes, the fast action, lively dialogue and homespun setting make 'The Boy Came Back' very entertaining reading." F. G. Fellowes
N Y Times p35 O 21 '51 230w

"Mr. Kinckerbocker obviously has a message, but he has successfully hidden it in murky melodramatics and improbable characterization. Settle for this as a thriller and you wont be too disappointed." E. J. Fitzgerald
Sat R of Lit 34:46 D 1 '51 150w

KNIGHT, CLIFFORD. Dark road. 218p $2.50 Dutton
51-12231

Psychological novel about the progress of a paranoid murderer.

"Penetrating and stirrring genesis of murder deliberately premeditated by pathetically disarranged emotional personality, in tale of rare originality and quality." Drexel Drake
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p11 S 16 '51 160w
Kirkus 19:336 Jl 1 '51 70w
Reviewed by James Sandoe
— N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p14 S 30 '51 130w

KNIGHT, CLIFFORD—Continued

"Very nearly a distinguished novel. The opening is a little slow and hard to get into, and some of the prose is still heavy and awkward. However, the detailed cumulative study of a paranoid murderer in the period during which he makes the final transition from sanity is powerfully chilling and convincing—on a lower literary level, perhaps, but still reminiscent of the clinical terror of Robert Coates' memorable 'Wisteria Cottage.'" Anthony Boucher

+ N Y Times p30 S 16 '51 160w

"Mr. Knight's study of a mind for which reality has long since ceased to exist is a nice, chilly piece of work, and his plotting is orderly and well sustained. A commendable entry in the psychopathic division."

+ New Yorker 27:119 S 8 '51 100w

"Quite possibly this is an honest attempt at a case-history. Unluckily it comes out sounding awfully phony." L. G. Offord

— San Francisco Chronicle p12 S 16 '51 70w

KNIGHT, CLIFFORD. Death of a big shot. 221p $2.50 Dutton

51-9034

Mystery story.

"Superb job of stirring sympathetic pulsations for sharp-witted gang hireling, in thrill packed yarn." Drexel Drake

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p8 F 18 '51 90w

Kirkus 18:666 N 1 '50 80w

"An almost credible situation and an interesting one, fails to come alive because of the exaggerations in what should have been a more subtle portrait."

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p14 Ja 28 '51 230w

"All this amounts to a horse opera-cum-gangster story, with oranges taking the place of horses. A lemon grove would have been more appropriate." Elizabeth Bullock

— N Y Times p15 F 11 '51 140w

"The mystery is all right, and there's plenty of action, maybe you won't mind Junior's heart of gold. It's good for laughs at least." L. G. Offord

+ San Francisco Chronicle p11 Ja 14 '51 100w

Reviewed by Sergeant Cuff

Sat R of Lit 34:24 N 10 '51 50w

KNIGHT, GRANT COCHRAN. Critical period in American literature. 208p $3.50 Univ. of N.C. press

810.9 American literature—History and criticism. Realism in literature 51-13564

A detailed study of the battle between the romanticists and the realists in fiction, waged during the last decade of the nineteenth century. The works of Crane, Howells, and Garland, and, on the other side, Crawford, Paul Leicester, and others, are examined against a background of the political and social life of the day. Bibliography. Index.

"An informed and stimulating work."

+ New Yorker 27:162 N 10 '51 200w

"With all due respect to an excellent volume, it would appear that Professor Knight is confusing Appomattox with Gettysburg." W. H. B.

San Francisco Chronicle p23 N 18 '51 190w

KNIGHT, KATHLEEN MOORE. Panic in paradise [by] Alan Amos [pseud]. 189p $2.50 Doubleday

51-13657

"Narratives from three members of the Cornish family and two guests—possible suspects—make up this yarn about buried treasure on an estate in Panama." San Francisco Chronicle

Kirkus 19:501 S 1 '51 70w

Reviewed by James Sandoe

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p24 N 18 '51 90w

"The book, despite a badly drawn murderer and a pretty lurid business of accursed treasure and an escaped madman, is short, fast, and easily absorbed." Anthony Boucher

+ — N Y Times p32 N 4 '51 50w

"This one starts well and has a picturesque background, but ends in a blaze of the implausible." L. G. Offord

San Francisco Chronicle p20 N 18 '51 50w

Reviewed by Sergeant Cuff

Sat R of Lit 34:76 N 17 '51 30w

KNIGHT, KATHLEEN MOORE. Silent partner. 220p $2.50 Doubleday

50-11090

Detective story.

Booklist 47:255 Mr 15 '51

Kirkus 18:665 N 1 '50 90w

"Conventional characters in a completely conventional story."

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p19 Ja 14 '51 140w

"Much of the writing verges on the Had-I-But-Known school, and the frequently clumsy plotting culminates in a chaotic accidental 'solution.' Yet, as is usually the case even in her poorer novels, there's no denying the agreeable readability of Mrs. Knight's skilled story-telling." Anthony Boucher

+ — N Y Times p17 D 31 '50 140w

"Plenty of atmosphere, but still not one of Miss Knight's best."

New Yorker 26:88 Ja 6 '51 100w

"The solution is fairly surprising but the rest is pretty tough going." L. G. Offord

San Francisco Chronicle p18 Ja 7 '51 100w

"Good average job."

+ Sat R of Lit 33:35 D 23 '50 50w

KNIGHT, RUTH ADAMS (YINGLING) (MRS DICKSON JAY HARTWELL). Luck of the Irish. 242p $2.50 Doubleday

Dogs—Legends and stories 51-12476

"Between the time when Steve Sullivan's father is lost in the Venezuelan jungle and later is found by Steve's obedience-trained Irish setter, Steve is forced to forego college and with the responsibility of helping to run the family farm, achieves maturity. Aided by a mysterious handyman extraordinary, he opens boarding kennels for dogs. Humor, fine human relations, and good pointers on dog obedience and show training." Library J

Reviewed by M. F. Kieran

Atlantic 188:102 D '51 140w

Booklist 48:71 O 15 '51

Bookmark 11:85 Ja '52

"The Venezuela episode is not too convincing, but the kennel goings-on are absorbing."

Kirkus 19:395 Ag 1 '51 150w

"Two plots are distracting but not harmful. Recommended for ages 12-15." L. T. Bulman

Library J 76:1716 O 15 '51 70w

Reviewed by L. S. Bechtel

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p30 N 11 '51 50w

"A well-knit, sensitive story." F. C. Smith

+ N Y Times p32 S 30 '51 160w

"In some ways a conventional story, this is so well told that its action and characters are constantly interesting."

+ Sat R of Lit 34:62 N 10 '51 160w

Reviewed by S. M. Neal

Springf'd Republican p30A N 11 '51 180w

KNIPSCHEER, JAMES M. W. (JAMES M. FOX, pseud). Aleutian blue mink. 215p $2.50 Little 51-3968

Detective story.

Booklist 47:382 Jl 1 '51

"Exaggerated jargon and synthetic characters in pseudo hard boiled divertissement." Drexel Drake
Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 Je 17 '51 40w

Kirkus 19:196 Ap 1 '51 60w

"A rather standard adventure."
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p9 Jl 22 '51 90w

Reviewed by Anthony Boucher
N Y Times p16 Jl 15 '51 120w

"The plot is sound if a bit overcomplicated, and there's action all the way through." L. G. Offord
San Francisco Chronicle p21 Je 17 '51 90w

Reviewed by Kathleen Sproul
Sat R of Lit 34:36 Ag 11 '51 60w

KNOX, RONALD ARBUTHNOTT. Enthusiasm; a chapter in the history of religion; with special reference to the 17th and 18th centuries. 622p $6 Oxford

270.6 Protestantism. Church history 50-10375

For descriptive note see Annual for 1950.

"Somehow, in the writing the author found himself more concerned to discover why the 'enthusiasts' came to think as they did, than to prove that they were wrong; and this change of interest on the author's part gives his book its unique value. Few will fail to learn something new in this long series of analytical studies on Montanists, Donatists, Albigenses, Anabaptists, Quakers, Jansenists, Quietists, Moravians, Wesleyans and others." Joseph McSorley
+ Cath World 172:478 Mr '51 300w

"It would perhaps be difficult for Fr. Knox to write a dull book, and those who are interested in the long and somewhat tortuous road that Christianity has traveled will not find this one so. . . If there are no new facts brought out, there are interpretations which will attract the most sophisticated scholar as well as the less learned reader." Umphrey Lee
+ Christian Century 68:304 Mr 7 '51 800w

"Whoever likes his church history strongly seasoned and spiced will find Msgr. Knox's book entertaining reading. And even the reader who does not would have to admit that none of its chapters is dull." Joachim Wach
J Religion 31:308 O '51 240w

Reviewed by John Raymond
New Statesman & Nation 41:452 Ap 21 '51 2000w

"This is a highly individualistic study of various Christian movements, with particular emphasis on those of the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries, which claim in the author's words, 'to be preserving, or to be restoring, the primitive discipline of the church.' Less formidably, Monsignor Knox refers to his work as a 'hotch-potch.' And it is as a 'hotchpotch' that 'Enthusiasm' offers extraordinary excitement, even to those who might have thought the subject matter dreary. 'Enthusiasm' is erratic—and splendid—in the grand tradition of 'The Anatomy of Melancholy'—an irreverent comparison." J. W. Chase
+ N Y Times p23 Ja 7 '51 440w

"The book . . . will surely rank for at least a generation as a definitive study of its subject." Norman Sykes
+ Spec 184:736 D 22 '50 1000w

Times [London] Lit Sup p784 D 8 '50 2150w

KNOX, RONALD ARBUTHNOTT. Gospel in slow motion. 182p $2.50 Sheed

252 Sermons 50-10287

A group of sermons by the English Catholic priest, similar in tone to his Mass in Slow Motion, and Creed in Slow Motion, originally delivered as sermons when the author was chaplain at a girls' school.

+ Cath World 173:479 S '51 120w

"Aside from [certain small points], the sermons offer many fresh and original perspectives. There are jewels among them. They stimulate and delight." J. M. Oesterreicher
+ — Commonweal 53:262 D 15 '50 850w

San Francisco Chronicle p34 D 10 '50 240w

KNOX, RONALD ARBUTHNOTT. St. Paul's gospel. 72p $1.75 Sheed

227 Bible. N.T.—Epistles 51-1983

"The current publication of this famous Roman Catholic translator of the Bible is a series of six talks delivered in Westminster Cathedral during the Lenten season of 1950. With the intimate knowledge derived from years of work with the text itself, the author elaborates . . . the Christian world picture as it is sketched in the letters of St. Paul, apart from the Gospel narratives and Christian tradition." N Y Times

Cath World 173:479 S '51 120w

"Very brief and eminently readable." F. T. Schumacher
+ N Y Times p4 Je 3 '51 320w

Springf'd Republican p5D My 25 '51 170w

KNOX, RONALD ARBUTHNOTT. Stimuli. 214p $2.25 Sheed

252 Sermons 51-7176

A collection of 147 brief sermons reprinted from the Sunday Times of London.

Kirkus 19:612 O 1 '51 80w

"To have kept them so brief and yet made them so interesting, so various, and so pointed is a real triumph of skill."
+ Manchester Guardian p3 My 21 '51 40w

"When Monsignor Knox says something, we may be sure he has something to say. Even when the thought is as compressed as in these 'stimuli' that sting the conscience and comfort the soul." G. R. Stephenson
+ N Y Times p14 S 30 '51 170w

Time 58:59 S 10 '51 170w

KOBER, ARTHUR. Bella, Bella kissed a fella. 206p $2.75 Random house

51-13316

Collection of fifteen short stories about Bella Gross, Bronx heroine, whose whole life is concerned with meeting the right marriageable man.

Booklist 48:144 D 15 '51

Kirkus 19:364 Jl 15 '51 150w

"Mr. Kober, master of the Bronx idiom, does handsomely by Bella, her rival suitors and her girl friends, to say nothing of voluble, vinegary Ma Gross. For most readers, however, it is Pa Gross who steals the show." Lisle Bell
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p21 O 28 '51 360w

Reviewed by Gilbert Millstein
+ N Y Times p4 O 7 '51 650w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson
San Francisco Chronicle N 7 '51 600w

KOCH, CLAUDE F. Island interlude. 260p $3 Dodd

51-2724

A group of marines stationed on an isolated island in the Pacific and the effects upon each of them of the war and the heat makes up this novel.

"At times the fragmentary fashioning of Mr. Koch's structure slows down both the doing and the feeling to an irritating largo. At times too he is content with telling rather than showing. But Island Interlude, in performance as well as intent, is a thoughtful, intensely Catholic novel, absorbing in its probing of a man's involvement with mankind." Riley Hughes
+ — Cath World 173:472 S '51 200w

KOCH, C. F.—Continued

"Here is a rare thing, a war novel that can give a hint of meaning to war. . . It is an impressionistic novel and the impressions are a bit too diffuse, the characters a bit too blurred. The meaning doesn't come through with the clarity and power that distinguish the really big ones. But the attempt is made, and with a clarity of concept that is rare and rewarding. . . The book has faults. The writer tried to be too extensive; he tried to develop several characters to say what could have been better said with one. But in a first novel a writer is feeling his way and is entitled to certain allowances." Edmund Naughton

+ — Commonweal 54:315 Jl 6 '51 170w

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p11 My 20 '51 140w

KOCH, HARRIETT ROSE (BERGER). Militant angel. 167p il $3 Macmillan

B or 92 Goodrich, Annie Warburton

51-9863

"Detailed biographical account of the work of Annie Warburton Goodrich, a pioneer of modern nurse's training in this country. In 1890, she began her training in New York Hospital, then took various administrative and organizational positions in the field, and finally became dean of the Yale School of Nursing in 1927. She has devoted her life to 'building and maintaining high education standards for nurses.' " Library J

"The 'Yale era,' Part V of the book, is by far the best writing. Here, and in the last chapter, Miss Goodrich becomes a warm human being with failings like the rest of us mortals. In all the preceding chapters she is a paragon of energy, wisdom, and driving purpose, but not an 'angel'—not even a militant angel, surely not, and I do not believe Miss Goodrich thinks so either!" Dorothy Deming

+ — Am J Pub Health 41:731 Je '51 220w

Booklist 47:327 My 15 '51

"Possibly of professional or vocational interest, this is not for the general market."

Kirkus 18:747 D 15 '50 130w

"Material included is so carefully documented and passages quoted from different sources so technical that they fail to arouse the interest of the lay reader. Recommended as professional reading for nurses." R. P. Tubby

+ Library J 75:2073 D 1 '50 100w

Reviewed by Lucy Freeman

N Y Times p15 Jl 8 '51 120w

"In the pages of Mrs. Koch's book, Annie's work, the woman herself and nursing in America are rendered with a sense of proportion that, taken together, illumine the stature of a nurse whose unflagging battle for her kind, and ultimately her patients, has already placed her name alongside those of Clara Barton and Florence Nightingale." C. E. M.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p20 Je 17 '51 320w

"In her biography of Annie W. Goodrich, the author has not only written well about her remarkable subject, but she also has contributed an exciting chronicle of part of the nursing history of our time." Naomi Deutsch

+ Survey 87:333 Jl '51 280w

KOESTLER, ARTHUR. Age of longing. 362p $3.50 Macmillan

51-9546

"Koestler's latest novel explores—with the immediacy of today's newspaper—the moral temper of Western Europe: the situation which Koestler has elsewhere described as 'a picnic in no-man's land.' Set in Paris, the story opens on Bastille Day 195 . . . and closes the following February, with the air raid sirens announcing the Last Judgment—or maybe just another air raid exercise. [It] assembles a group of characters who exemplify a variety of viewpoints, and whose talk and conduct dramatize the author's ideas." Atlantic

"Notwithstanding the too theatrical dialogue, The Age of Longing remains a novel of outstanding interest. Koestler's documentary talent is at its best in his picture of the Paris international intelligentsia, and the action is stage-managed with a keen sense of drama. While its 'truth' may be less than the whole truth, there is much in it that hits the center of the target." C. J. Rolo

+ Atlantic 187:82 Mr '51 950w

Booklist 47:213; 237 F 15 '51; Mr 1 '51

Bookmark 10:133 Mr '51 40w

"This is not Mr. Koestler at his best but it is still worth reading. . . It is a tragic sort of book, full of the hopelessness of a Europe which sees the shadow of impending doom and has neither the means nor the will for effective resistance. Perhaps it isn't a novel after all. Maybe it's actually a preview of what is to come." A. Andras

Canadian Forum 31:142 S '51 180w

"The evidence from the past few years of the increasing strength of the Faith in Europe, particularly in France and Italy, is alone sufficient refutation of Mr. Koestler's polemic. It cannot be denied, however, that despair has been given a powerful voice in these pages; they are shot through with dialogue of the greatest brilliance, but it is a brittle brilliance. The story line of The Age of Longing is also unfortunate and unconvincing." Riley Hughes

Cath World 173:72 Ap '51 450w

"What Koestler has to say is for the most part unpleasant and grim to hear, and the better he writes the more unpleasant and grim it is. He writes well. And he deserves a wide hearing, for both the manner and the matter have a claim on the attention of all serious citizens of the world. . . Koestler's latest, however, is a notable novel, even if it does not recapture perfection." A. C. Ames

Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 F 25 '51 500w

Reviewed by Robert Peel

Christian Science Monitor p11 Mr 1 '51 1200w

Cleveland Open Shelf p16 Jl '51

"I presume that Koestler's novel is destined to be a best seller. The book is full of actuality, current problems, clever irony; it makes easy reading. It will be discussed in forums and women's clubs. It will even help to clarify many illusions about Soviet conditions and Soviet politics. But it is neither the definitive novel of the two worlds the author intended to write nor a light of guidance to the Western world showing us how to stop Moscow's expansion. It may survive as an interesting document of a changing time but certainly not as a milestone of twentieth-century literature." Max Fischer

Commonweal 53:546 Mr 9 '51 2250w

Kirkus 19:6 Ja 1 '51 260w

"Highly recommended." J. H. Berthel

+ Library J 76:326 F 15 '51 130w

Reviewed by Paul Bloomfield

Manchester Guardian p3 Ap 27 '51 400w

Reviewed by Perry Miller

Nation 172:207 Mr 3 '51 1100w

Reviewed by Percy Winner

New Repub 124:19 Mr 19 '51 2450w

"Diabolism of this sort—and the boastful self-pity and self-contempt which nearly always accompany it—are frequent features in first novels. The young writer 'sees through Communism' and yet hankers for the Utopia he has intellectually rejected. What is unusual is that a writer of Mr. Koestler's vitality and imagination should linger in this age of longing, and present a grimace in the looking-glass as the truth about contemporary France. . . If he is to fulfil his superb talents as a novelist, Mr. Koestler should take a holiday from the politics of the intelligentsia, and learn, like Balzac, to enjoy La Comédie Humaine. Ex-communism is a sterile state of mind." R. H. S. Crossman

New Statesman & Nation 41:482 Ap 28 '51 900w

"This is a book so intense and so incisive, so disturbing and heavy with imminence, that one discovers only belatedly that it makes a far from perfect novel. Only in some scenes does it succeed as fiction. . . 'The Age of Longing' is not as good a novel as 'Darkness at Noon,' but it is a formidable polemic. Koestler's present approach appears comparable both in its erudition and acidity to Aldous Huxley's in the early thirties." Frederic Morton

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 F 25 '51 1550w

"If this book often reveals Koestler at the height of his dazzling powers it also has in it passages that are appallingly maladroit. But we go to a writer for what is best in him, and 'The Age of Longing' has a good deal of the best of Arthur Koestler." R. H. Rovere

+ N Y Times p1 F 25 '51 1650w

Reviewed by Anthony West

New Yorker 27:121 Mr 17 '51 1200w

Reviewed by W. B. Ready

San Francisco Chronicle p26 Mr 12 '51 700w

Reviewed by Harrison Smith

Sat R of Lit 34:12 F 24 '51 850w

"Here is a superb study in the psychology of the founding fathers of the new humanism. . . It is quite impossible to indicate the depth or variousness of implication, moral, philosophic and the rest, of this group portraiture; the penetration of Mr. Koestler's mockery, even perhaps of his self-mockery, is marvellously catholic." R. D. Charques

+ Spec 185:534 Ap 20 '51 650w

"As fiction, The Age of Longing is as unsuccessful as any tract whose characters are drawn from an ideological casting bureau. As reporting, it is generally stimulating and occasionally brilliant. The gallery of French intellectuals is particularly well drawn, the futility of their bickering sharply exposed. And no one now writing can get inside the Communist mind with Koestler's sureness. Inside that mind are all the answers."

Time 57:108 F 26 '51 750w

Times [London] Lit Sup p244 Ap 20 '51 2650w

Wis Lib Bul 47:62 Mr '51

Reviewed by Paul Pickrel

Yale R n s 40:765 summer '51 270w

KOFFLER, CAMILLA (YLLA, pseud). Dogs. [7p] 88il $3.50 Creative age

636.77 Dogs—Pictures, illustrations, etc. 50-10377

"Eighty-nine photographs of dogs of a variety of species, from Saint Bernards and Afghan hounds to Chihuahuas and Lhaso Apsos. . . Ylla is a photographer who specializes in dog society. These portraits are all posed, and they suffer from the same sort of self-consciousness—on the part of both photographer and subjects—that similar portraits of people do. Ylla understands this. Some dogs, according to the foreword, stand on their dignity and refuse to relax for a stranger; others play up to their masters and will not behave naturally till they leave the room." New Yorker

Booklist 47:201 F 1 '51

N Y Times p38 N 19 '50 100w

New Yorker 26:192 N 18 '50 200w

KOGON, EUGEN. Theory and practice of hell; the German concentration camps and the system behind them; tr. by Heinz Norden. 307p $3.75 Farrar, Straus

943.086 Concentration camps. World war, 1939-1945—Atrocities 50-10716

For descriptive note see Annual for 1950.

Reviewed by Seymour Fiddle

Am Soc R 16:734 O '51 700w

Booklist 47:203 F 1 '51

"For a sophisticated people, to whom Hell itself is an ancient myth, Dr. Kogon's documentation should be required reading." W. B. Spofford

Churchman 165:16 Mr 15 '51 90w

Foreign Affairs 29:674 Jl '51 10w

"What distinguishes the Kogon book from most of the vast literature on this theme is that the author was not tempted to exploit the macabre and the abnormal. With exquisite precision he documents both the so-called 'normal' routine of daily life in the concentration camps and its ever-present horrors. He re-creates from an enormous accumulation of always pertinent details a rounded story of the European tragedy. His account, magnificently controlled and dispassionate in the presentation of fact, achieves a devastating impact." Eliezer Greenberg

+ Nation 172:63 Ja 20 '51 950w

New Repub 124:21 Ja 1 '51 30w

San Francisco Chronicle p13 Ja 14 '51 130w

"Kogon was admirably suited to the task of giving the world the best single study on the subject. 'The Theory and Practice of Hell' is very much the 'Middletown' of the concentration camps. It is not the best book that could have been written—for one thing it is primarily about Buchenwald—but it is without doubt the clearest and most important account so far." Julian Bach

+ Sat R of Lit 34:31 Ja 13 '51 800w

Spec 185:221 F 16 '51 230w

KOHLER, JULILLY H. Daniel in the Cub Scout den; il. by R. M. Powers. 192p $2.50 Aladdin

Daniel and his family live on a Wisconsin farm. The story is about Daniel's first year as a cub scout. For ages eight to eleven.

Booklist 47:369 Je 15 '51

"An entertaining story and an informative picture of scouting activities." Polly Goodwin

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p10 My 13 '51 170w

Cleveland Open Shelf p22 N '51

Reviewed by J. D. Lindquist and S. M. Andrews

Horn Bk 27:248 Jl '51 80w

"Good humor, delightful home relations, and excellent characterization of young boys gives the book unlimited recommendation for all libraries. It is the only cub scout story available." D. M. Blasco

+ Library J 76:1235 Ag '51 70w

"The state of excitement normal to a healthy, impetuous boy of nine pervades this amusing story." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 Je 10 '51 140w

"A lively story." Lavinia Davis

+ N Y Times p22 My 27 '51 120w

Wis Lib Bul 47:152 Je '51

KOMOROWSKI, TADEUSZ known as GENERAL BOR. Secret army. 407p maps $4 Macmillan

940.53438 World war, 1939-1945—Poland 51-5124

Quoting from the author's Preface, "This is the story of the Polish Underground Movement as it developed from 1939 to the end of 1944. As I was one of its organisers and later, from 1943 onwards, Commander of the Home Army, I recount it from my own memories and with the help of documents preserved in our archives abroad." (Pref) Index.

Reviewed by G. J. Scharschug

Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 Ag 12 '51 400w

Reviewed by Ernest Pisko

Christian Science Monitor p7 Jl 16 '51 650w

Current Hist 21:166 S '51 130w

Manchester Guardian p4 S 12 '50 300w

KOMOROWSKI, TADEUSZ—Continued
Reviewed by Aylmer Vallance
New Statesman & Nation 40:282 S 16 '50 1400w

"Bor's explicit narrative, which Americans can now read in full, must win the admiration of free nations everywhere. It is a flaming reminder in these days of doubt that brave men and women cannot be enslaved against their will." Geoffrey Bruun
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 Je 24 '51 950w

Reviewed by Quentin Reynolds
N Y Times p6 Je 17 '51 1000w

New Yorker 27:65 Jl 7 '51 170w

Reviewed by Geoffrey Brunn
Sat R of Lit 35:32 Ja 12 '52 180w

"As a chronicler of this strange, violent and tragic interlude in his country's history, General Bor has the great virtue of being a trained soldier, and seeing what was after all a military problem from a soldier's point of view. His style is terse and matter-of-fact, his character gives an impression of simple integrity, and the agonies and achievements of which he writes compel our interest the more surely for being described and assessed so objectively. He has written a book which I think almost everyone would be the better for reading." Peter Fleming
+ Spec 184:436 N 3 '50 750w

"As might be expected, the General is a highly partisan witness; his attitude to the Russians is one of unrelieved hostility, so that he has no difficulty in accepting the German account of the Katyn murders, and he dismisses the Communist-inspired resistance with a few sentences of contempt. But his account of the Warsaw rising is of the highest interest."
Times [London] Lit Sup p616 S 29 '50 900w

KOMROFF, MANUEL. How to write a novel. 296p $3.50 Simon & Schuster
808.3 Fiction—Technique. Authorship
50-12271

A guide for the beginner in novel writing. Gives specific suggestions on work methods. No index.

Booklist 47:186 Ja 15 '51

Cleveland Open Shelf p10 My '51

"Komroff illustrates his points with some choice excerpts from the world's great fiction (which just might shatter the courage of any young author), but he does present some helpful suggestions for beginning and working writers who want to proceed systematically rather than impulsively. Possible also for college courses in novel writing."
Kirkus 18:410 Jl 15 '50 100w

"'How to Write a Novel' is both simple and sound—but sometimes too simple and sometimes too elementary. . . Yet, on the whole, Mr. Komroff writes refreshingly. He has a friendly teaching personality, and he looks on the brighter side of the writing business." Gorham Munson
+ N Y Times p29 O 22 '50 460w

KORBEL, JOSEF. Tito's communism. 368p $4 Univ. of Denver press
949.7 Communism—Yugoslavia. Yugoslavia—Politics and government. Yugoslavia—Economic conditions. Tito, Josip Broz, known as 51-3536

"Another study of present-day Yugoslavia, this one by a man who was the Czech ambassador to that country in the days when Czechoslovakia still had a democratic regime. The author was also press attaché in Belgrade before the war, and is thus acquainted at first hand with life in Yugoslavia under both the dictatorship of Prince Paul and that of Marshal Tito. He is even more outspoken than Leigh White ('Balkan Caesar') in denying any democratic virtues to Tito or his government." New Yorker

---

Reviewed by D. R. Perry
Ann Am Acad 278:238 N '51 500w

Booklist 47:379 Jl 1 '51

Reviewed by A. A. Shea
Canadian Forum 31:162 O '51 500w

"As Czechoslavakia's Ambassador to Yugoslavia from September, 1945, until May, 1948, Josef Korbel had a unique opportunity to watch the turbulent beginnings of the new regime, and he has prepared an honest and enlightening record of what he saw. It is one of the best case-studies of the steps by which a Communist party establishes its power and of what happens in each sphere of life under that absolute power." P. E. Mosely
+ N Y Times p6 My 27 '51 600w

New Yorker 27:119 My 26 '51 180w

"Josef Korbel, who now teaches international relations at the University of Denver, was the Czechoslovakian Ambassador to Yugoslavia from 1945 to 1948. He knew the country well, having served in Yugoslavia before the war, and since he also knew its languages he was far better prepared than most foreigners to grasp the realities of Tito's brand of 'popular democracy.' His book, though poorly written, is a convincing demonstration of the fact that there is no essential difference so far as the Yugoslav people are concerned between Titoism and Stalinism." Leigh White
Sat R of Lit 34:29 Je 23 '51 600w

"In general, Mr. Korbel's report will not be wholly pleasing to the western world, which has been looking toward Tito as a possible ally in case of war with Russia, because he finds that Yugoslavia's national communism is not much different, in essentials, from the Soviet international model. His estimate of Belgrade's position in the East-West struggle is a sobering one, and seems to merit serious consideration." H. H.
Springf'd Republican p5D Je 3 '51 110w

U S Quarterly Bk R 7:288 S '51 210w

KORMENDI, FERENC. Years of the eclipse [tr. by Lawrence Wolfe]. 352p $3.50 Bobbs 51-5969

"Five Hungarian émigrés assembled in London during wartime are the central figures in this narrative. . . These characters, along with the colorful assortment of masculine and feminine figures associated with them, get together for Wednesday night goulash dinners, engage in various shadings of erotic, fraternal and pure love, become suspect to the British authorities, and project political philosophies ranging from the democratic to the communistic. At the end, they go their various ways as the émigré group becomes dispersed after the war." N Y Times

---

Reviewed by Edward Wagenknecht
Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 S 30 '51 320w

"Despite this novel about a group of Hungarian refugees in wartime London, the definitive refugee story still remains to be written. . . There is nothing of that mysterious interaction between personality and experience that is the essence of a great work of fiction. Nor is there much in Mr. Körmendi's novel to make the reader see wartime London. Local color is supplied almost exclusively by the mentioning of some well-known street names." Ernest Pisko
Christian Science Monitor p9 S 1 '51 250w

"The real plot of 'Years of the Eclipse' does not lie in Mr. Körmendi's over-simplification of Communism's spread and his caricature of its adherents, nor in his pictures of business piracy in war time, his peeks into upper and middle-class English minds, his curiously unnatural climates of passion: the real plot of this novel—and its strongest appeal—lies in the challenge of exile to man's character." Virgilia Peterson
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 S 9 '51 400w

"The book pictures life against a varied setting. Though it may seem melodramatic, even artificial at times, it is none the less an almost always interesting—and occasionally absorbing—portrayal of life in these 'Years of the Eclipse.'" Henry Cavendish

+ — N Y Times p20 S 16 '51 160w

"Mr. Körmendi is a lively narrator. His book tumbles with incidents, his skill in dialogue is notable, his political awareness illuminating. He has a fine eye for the dramatic; he tethers life and death, comedy and tragedy, and history and prophecy with facility and flash." Charles Lee
+ Sat R of Lit 34:15 S 22 '51 700w

KORZYBSKI, ALFRED. Manhood of humanity; 2d ed. with additional materials. 326p $4.50 Int. non-aristotelian lib. pub. co, Lakeville, Conn; for sale by Inst. of general semantics, Lakeville, Conn.

301 Man. Progress 50-13993

"Additional material includes two appendixes: Some Non-Aristotelian data on efficiency for human adjustment and Author's note from Selections from science and sanity, and a 1948 essay, What I believe." (Booklist) For first edition see Book Review Digest 1921.

Booklist 47:157 D 15 '50
School & Society 72:159 S 2 '50 70w
Reviewed by John Magee
Springf'd Republican p19A Ja 14 '51 900w

KOSLOW, JULES. Green and the red; Sean O'Casey, the man and his plays. 119p il $3.90 Arts, inc.

822 O'Casey, Sean

"The only single work yet published which deals with O'Casey as a man and as a writer." Library J

"O'Casey was a practicing artist of the first rank, and his transition from the 'green' to the 'red' had an effect on his work other than a simple expansion of vision. A realistic study of this effect remains to be made." Walter Kerr
Commonweal 53:429 F 2 '51 850w

"Somewhat eccentric in approach, Mr. Koslow's book will serve very well for a time for drama and theatre collections as well as for Irish collections. Recommended." George Freedley
+ Library J 76:329 F 15 '51 60w
Manchester Guardian p4 F 16 '51 120w

"Koslow hardly does more with his material than state what ought to be obvious to anybody who reads the O'Casey plays chronologically and sets them against the background of the autobiographical works. Nevertheless, because Koslow stresses the political and social aspect of O'Casey's work, a more arresting impression is made by his factual book than by many articles that speak impressionistically of O'Casey's literary attributes with vague references to his power, imagination, humor and eloquence." Harold Clurman
+ N Y Times p5 D 10 '50 460w
Reviewed by Frank Jones
San Francisco Chronicle p13 Ap 8 '51 120w
Sat R of Lit 34:31 Ag 18 '51 360w

KOSOLAPOFF, GENNADY MICHAEL. Organophosphorus compounds. 376p $7.50 Wiley

547.9 Phosphorus compounds. Chemistry, Organic 50-10523

"A comprehensive summary of the current knowledge of an important group of organic compounds. Particular attention is paid to the properties, methods of preparation, chief reactions, and uses, especially uses in the chemical laboratory. Literature references are given generously." (N Y New Tech Bks) Index

"The faults of the book are few, and perhaps matters of individual opinion. For example, the author's use of 'dialkyl phosphonic acid' for a phosphinic acid (pages 4 to 6) seems confusing. . . But such criticisms are trivial in comparison to the merits of the book. It is a necessary addition to the library of every worker in this field." T. M. Beck
+ — Chem & Eng N 29:706 F 19 '51 250w

"For any person interested in the chemistry of organophosphorus compounds, the book is indispensable as a reference work. There is nothing comparable with it in English." J. S. Buck
+ Chem Eng 58:299 My '51 270w

"An important, new addition to chemical reference books. . . Because of the reference nature of the book, it is unfortunate that no method was worked out for indexing the hundreds of compounds described in it." R. R. Hawkins
+ — Library J 75:2010 N 15 '50 90w

"The work will be indispensable to any chemist needing information on compounds in this class or doing research in the field. It is essentially a reference book."
+ N Y New Tech Bks 35:85 N '50

"The present text, written to fill a significant gap in chemical literature, is the first of its kind for English-speaking chemists."
U S Quarterly Bk R 7:101 Mr '51 200w

KOSSAK-SZCZUCKA, ZOFIA. The covenant; a novel of the life of Abraham, the prophet; tr. by H. C. Stevens. 375p $3.50 Roy pubs.

Abraham, the patriarch—Fiction 51-11355

A historical novel based on the story of Abraham as told in Genesis, set against a detailed picture of life as it was lived in the Euphrates valley, in the desert and in Egypt in ancient times.

Booklist 47:401 Jl 15 '51
Reviewed by Edward Wagenknecht
Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 Jl 1 '51 450w
Kirkus 19:308 Je 15 '51 170w

"The problem of blending a mystic and a tribal chief is not an easy one. Miss Kossak accomplishes it with such skill that Abraham is entirely acceptable in her interpretation. . . Abraham, as he towers over and at the same time permeates the entire narrative, is a believable man, a man touched by God, tried and tempted by Him, and taken at last into His arms." Thomas Sugrue
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p3 Jl 8 '51 450w

"A sincere, scholarly, and thought-provoking book." F. G. Slaughter
+ N Y Times p10 Jl 8 '51 440w
San Francisco Chronicle p16 S 2 '51 330w

"She is a storyteller of uncommon imagination and an indefatigable researcher. Judging by the translation of her work, she is no great stylist." Robert Pick
+ — Sat R of Lit 34:15 Jl 21 '51 450w
Times [London] Lit Sup p289 My 11 '51 210w

KRAEHENBUEHL, JOHN OTTO. Electric illumination. 2d ed 446p il $8 Wiley

621.32 Electric lighting 51-1152

"A college textbook that is useful also to architects and other non-specialists in illumination whose work requires the understanding of the principles of illumination and the specifications of lighting systems. Commercial, industrial, and theatrical, rather than residential lighting, are dealt with. In addition to discussions of the general principles of the subject, there is a wide variety of tabulated engineering data that is useful in design and specification work. Also there are generous lists of references to other literature." (N Y New Tech Bks) For first edition see Book Review Digest 1942.

Eng N 146:42 Je 14 '51 100w
Reviewed by R. R. Hawkins
Library J 76:524 Mr 15 '51 100w
N Y New Tech Bks 36:23 Mr '51

KRAMER, DALE. Ross and the New Yorker. 306p il $3.75 Doubleday

B or 92 New Yorker (periodical). Ross, Harold Wallace 51-14118

"The sophisticated magazine of humor and its irascible editor are described in a detailed narrative that follows the fortunes of the New Yorker, its policies, and its contributors. Ross began as a tramp newspaper man and, during the war, edited the Stars and Stripes. In 1925 he was ready to stake everything on a new style periodical, designed for the metropolitan area, and drawing expensive advertising. For 25 years he guided it, established its style, harrassed employees, developed a unique type of humor and made himself a legend." Booklist

"Mr. Kramer's profile of Ross and his magazine is, unfortunately, the work of an outside operator; it does not match up to the deadpan brilliance and devastating finality of the profiles in the New Yorker. But the subject contains a prodigiously rich lode of choice anecdote and intriguing fact, and Mr. Kramer has competently shaped it into an extremely entertaining book." C. J. Rolo

+ — Atlantic 188:95 N '51 600w

Booklist 48:1; 123 S 1 '51; D 1 '51

Bookmark 11:81 Ja '52 30w

Reviewed by David Marshall

Cath World 174:320 Ja '52 240w

Reviewed by John Beaufort

Christian Science Monitor p15 D 13 '51 500w

"The story of Ross and The New Yorker is of special interest to professional journalists, but I suspect lay readers will find it rewarding, too." John Cogley

Commonweal 55:260 D 14 '51 850w

"Here are names and names, amusing anecdotes and intermural incidents in sparkling array which should be a natural for The New Yorker's readers and not limited by only local interest. The fascination of the material carries one over some writing that perhaps falls below The New Yorker's own high level."

+ Kirkus 19:522 S 1 '51 200w

"The book measures up to Ross's fanatical standard of factual accuracy with one exception noted. Edmund Pearson's 'studies of murder were immensely popular' all right, but most of them appeared in Vanity Fair, not the New Yorker. Recommended." E. F. Walbridge

+ — Library J 76:1561 O 1 '51 60w

Reviewed by Marc Connelly

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 N 25 '51 900w

Reviewed by Charles Poore

N Y Times p4 N 11 '51 700w

"Whatever the cause, it is a conspicuously uninformed work, though a kindly intentioned one, and it makes most of the editors and contributors around the place seem as cute as performing fox terriers."

New Yorker 27:190 N 17 '51 120w

"Though the stuff of the book is magnificent of its kind, its organization could be better. Shaping a narrative of this kind is a hard job, to be sure; it takes sweat and more sweat to do the thing smoothly. In this respect, 'Ross and The New Yorker' might have been improved, and by a good deal. The sheer quality of the material Mr. Kramer has accumulated was worth any amount of hard work, and the critical reader is likely to feel that it didn't get that much." J. H. Jackson

San Francisco Chronicle p1 N 14 '51 850w

Reviewed by G. Y. Wells

Sat R of Lit 34:18 D 22 '51 1300w

Reviewed by U. K. Alpert

Springf'd Republican p8C D 16 '51 300w

KRAMER, EDNA ERNESTINE (MRS BENEDICT TAXIER LASSAR). Mainstream of mathematics. 321p il $5 Oxford

510.9 Mathematics—History 51-2067

A history of the origins and development of mathematics and its applications, enlivened by many anecdotes about great mathematicians from the ancient Hindu Bhaskara to Einstein.

Booklist 47:305 My 1 '51

"Many readers automatically avoid books on mathematics, but here is a book that deserves better treatment. It is not the usual arid treatment of mathematical history, but rather a fascinatingly told story of the development of mathematics from the earliest beginnings of arithmetic to the sophisticated concepts of present-day mathematicians." Karl Willenbrock

+ Christian Science Monitor p9 Je 19 '51 490w

Reviewed by J. E. Brown

Library J 76:596 Ap 1 '51 140w

N Y New Tech Bks 36:73 S '51

Springf'd Republican p12C Ap 22 '51 170w

KRAUS, JOHN DANIEL. Antennas. 553p il $8 McGraw

621.38 Radio antennas 50-10264

"A treatise on the theory of antennas and those aspects of application which are of interest to communications engineers. It is designed primarily for upper-class and graduate engineering students, and therefore it is beyond the grasp of such readers as radio and television servicemen." (Library J) Index.

"The comprehensiveness of the book and its unified approach make it of potential interest to young engineers in the communications industries who want a review of the latest theory. There are fairly frequent references to the literature of the field and a final list of books for reference." R. R. Hawkins

+ Library J 75:2010 N 15 '50 100w

N Y New Tech Bks 36:2 Ja '51

"A large number of appendixes is included to make the book more self-contained. Unusual among these are a series of universal pattern charts and tables of trigonometric functions given for turns rather than degrees or radians. The book should be especially valuable for all high frequency applications such as television and military and aircraft antennas."

+ U S Quarterly Bk R 7:106 Mr '51 260w

KRAUSS, RUTH (MRS DAVID JOHNSON LEISK). Bundle book; pictures by Helen Stone. unp $2.25; bds $1.75 Harper 51-12885

Picture book with very brief text about the blanket-wrapped bundle the mother found in her bed, and what it turned out to be. For ages 3 to 5.

"Children will like it for its humor and because they can try the same things themselves. The illustrations are lovely and delicate."

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 N 11 '51 40w

Cleveland Open Shelf p21 N '51

Reviewed by J. D. Lindquist and S. M. Andrews

Horn Bk 27:403 D '51 90w

Kirkus 19:575 O 1 '51 100w

"Most small children will find this a most satisfactory story, for it is about a game they often play. Helen Stone's softly blurred illustrations do not seem suitable for the young children for whom book is intended. Examine before purchasing in any quantity." D. M. Blasco

Library J 76:1815 N 1 '51 90w

"Miss Stone's pictures have charm, a bit on the Laurencin order, but we do not think they would carry the idea with enough amusement to the very small child. However, the game is worth the attention of mothers." L. S. Bechtel

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 N 11 '51 80w

"All who enjoyed 'The Carrot Seed' and other books by Miss Krauss will respond to the excitement of the author's latest story." L. P.

+ N Y Times p42 N 11 '51 130w

"The idea is so well carried out in the pictures that the children will hardly need the text."

+ Sat R of Lit 34:56 N 10 '51 90w

Wis Lib Bul 47:257 N '51

KUENEN, PHILIP HENRY. Marine geology. 568p maps $7.50 Wiley

551.46 Ocean bottom. Geology, Submarine 50-12748

Although the present book is by no means a comprehensive survey of marine geology, it is an important and welcome addition to the book literature already published. The author's discussions of marine sediments and of coral reefs are especially detailed and informative. Mr. Kuenen is also recognized as an authority on the Moluccan deep-sea troughs. Very good bibliographies accompany the chapters. The book is designed for use as a textbook, but it reads easily enough to be of interest to anyone who has curiosity about the subject. The author is Director of the Foundation for Marine Geology at Gronigen." N Y New Tech Bks

---

"This new addition to the literature [on marine geology] is not a comprehensive treatise, but it contains excellent discussions of several topics. . . Probably it will find considerable use as a college text for advanced students, but professional geologists who have recently become interested in marine geology should find it stimulating and useful." R. R. Hawkins

+ Library J 76:118 Ja 15 '51 100w

N Y New Tech Bks 35:90 N '50

KUETHE, ARNOLD MARTIN, and SCHETZER, JULIUS DAVID. Foundations of aerodynamics. 374p $5.75 Wiley

629.1323 Aerodynamics 50-12518

"A college textbook in which the fundamental theory and concepts of aerodynamics are compactly outlined. As the chapter titles indicate, perfect, viscous, and compressible fluids are all covered. The treatment assumes no previous acquaintance with aerodynamic concepts or terminology but the reader will need a sound knowledge of calculus. The authors are members of the faculty of the Department of Aeronautical Engineering of the University of Michigan." (N Y New Tech Bks) Index.

"The book is not for general readers, but it is quite suitable for engineers working in related fields, such as hydraulics, who want a concise yet comprehensive introduction to current aerodynamic theory and computation." R. R. Hawkins

Library J 75:2010 N 15 '50 80w

N Y New Tech Bks 35:81 N '50

KUGELMASS, J. ALVIN. Louis Braille; windows for the blind; decorations by Edgard Cirlin. 160p $2.75 Messner

B or 92 Braille, Louis—Juvenile literature. Blind—Printing and writing system—Juvenile literature 51-9808

The first complete story of the life of Louis Braille, the blind French inventor and organist, who originated the Braille system for the blind. For grade and high school collections. Index.

Booklist 47:259 Mr 15 '51

Reviewed by J. A. Clark

Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 My 13 '51 400w

Reviewed by Elizabeth Yates

Christian Science Monitor p15 Je 14 '51 250w

"The events in the life of this bitter high-strung genius . . . are exuberantly reconstructed, with plenty of verbose dialogue. All in all, however, a fascinating story and an untrammeled market. Excellent chance to double with Braille exhibits."

+ Kirkus 19:67 F 1 '51 190w

"While the little known story of Braille's life makes interesting reading, the style of the book is more suited to high school than adult collections. Recommended especially for Young Peoples' Collection." C. J. Roth

+ Library J 76:511 Mr 15 '51 90w

Reviewed by M. D. Read

+ Library J 76:606 Ap 1 '51 80w

"The author's interpretations of the feelings of the blind are very moving; the relation to history and social progress is ably handled. So one regrets to report that the style is not always very good. However, it is recommended to any over twelve, including adults." L. S. Bechtel

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p9 Je 3 '51 210w

"His story, as told here, is a sketchy one, disappointingly thin. Faced by an admitted scarcity of biographical facts, the author might profitably have enriched his slim tale with fuller characterization and background material." N. B. Baker

N Y Times p24 Ap 8 '51 180w

San Francisco Chronicle p11 My 27 '51 350w

Reviewed by S. M. Neal

Springf'd Republican p6D Ap 8 '51 270w

"Mr. Kugelmass has here written a brief but fascinating biography." H. W. Hintz

+ Survey 87:232 My '51 160w

Wis Lib Bul 47:87 Ap '51

KUH, MRS KATHARINE (WOOLF). Art has many faces; the nature of art presented visually. 185p il col pl $6.50 Harper

701 Art. Art, Modern 51-13484

"[This] pictorial guide to understanding and appreciating art uses many photographs of paintings sculpture, drawings, prints, and other photographs, and a minimum of text. It does not interpret famous works of art but demonstrates the possibility of variations resulting from the artist's individuality, his environment, and his materials." Booklist

---

Booklist 48:96 N 15 '51

Reviewed by Edward Barry

Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 N 11 '51 300w

Reviewed by Dorothy Adlow

Christian Science Monitor p14 D 6 '51 350w

"Essential; heartily recommended." A. S. Plaut

+ Library J 76:2007 D 1 '51 130w

"A persuasive introduction for those who resist art because of the seeming confusion of styles and the baffling complexity in the chronological sequences of most big museums."

+ New Repub 125:20 D 10 '51 60w

"Mrs. Kuh achieves an astonishing success. Hers is, in the main, a picture book, with text kept to a minimum, and that minimum clear, perceptive and intelligent." Stuart Preston

+ N Y Times p26 D 2 '51 100w

"Throughout the book, even when dealing with embarrassingly complex subject matter, Mrs. Kuh has scrupulously thrust behind her the temptation to relax on clichés and esoteric phrases, and she deserves as reward an enormous reading public. She has achieved an astonishing clarity and conciseness in explaining complicated things." Margaretta Salinger

+ Sat R of Lit 34:44 N 3 '51 650w

Wis Lib Bul 47:249 N '51

KULMANN, C. ALBERT. Nomographic charts. 244p $6.50 McGraw

510.84 Nomography (mathematics) 51-12104

"Nomographic charts (also called nomographs, alignment charts, etc) are ingenious devices

KULMANN, C. A.—Continued
for avoiding lengthy mathematical computations. The disadvantage of such charts is that a particular one is applicable only to a particular type of problem. In this book are ninety-two charts that the author has found to be outstanding in usefulness in the course of twenty years work in engineering." Library J

Reviewed by D. S. Davis
Chem & Eng N 29:4987 N 19 '51 220w

"The collection should be rather useful in libraries used by engineers." R. R. Hawkins
Library J 76:1708 O 15 '51 70w

N Y New Tech Bks 36:73 S '51

"An important addition to the literature on nomography." J. H. Jackson
San Francisco Chronicle p18 S 2 '51 170w

KUNIN, ROBERT, and MYERS, ROBERT JAMES. Ion exchange resins. 212p il $4.75 Wiley

660.284 Ions 50-11065

"Ion exchange resins have found application in such varied fields as water-softening, the desalting of sea water, sugar refining, chemical analysis, and the recovery of valuable acids and vitamins from food processing wastes. The range of applications is being constantly extended. Here is a monograph which reviews the current state of the field, including the theory and applications, and provides a key to the literature." Library J

"In this book the authors have attempted a compilation rather than an evaluation of the field. As such, the book is extremely useful, and will certainly serve to stimulate further research in this field." H. P. Gregor
+ Am Chem Soc J 73:3550 Jl '51 240w

"The book should be useful to those desiring some general knowledge of ion exchange resins as well as those already in the field." R. M. Wheaton
Chem & Eng N 29:1055 Mr 12 '51 200w

"The subject matter is treated lucidly, in somewhat essay-style, and as thoroughly as space limitations permit. . . The text has been subjected to careful proofreading, and seems well adapted as a reference volume for research workers, particularly those interested in applying ion exchange resins in new areas, for those not acquainted with the ion exchange field, and as a guide for the engineer." E. W. McChesney
+ Chem Eng 58:288 F '51 240w

"The book is addressed to graduate chemists, especially those in industry who have need of a technical introduction and survey of the subject." R. R. Hawkins
Library J 76:332 F 15 '51 100w

N Y New Tech Bks 36:9 Ja '51

"The rapid development of applications is a direct result of the development of the synthetic, organic, exchange resins. This book endeavors to assemble and summarize, in so far as is now possible, the voluminous literature on the subject."
+ U S Quarterly Bk R 7:107 Mr '51 180w

KUNITZ, STANLEY JASSPON, and HAYCRAFT, HOWARD, eds. Junior book of authors; il. with 232 photographs and drawings. (Authors ser) 2d ed rev 309p $3.50 Wilson, H.W.

928 Authors 51-13057

The second revised edition of a reference book which was first published in 1934 (Book Review Digest 1934). "The former edition included biographical or autobiographical sketches of some 268 individuals, chosen by a poll of representative librarians and specialists in juvenile literature. The new edition contains 289 sketches. Of these, 160 are repeated, with appropriate revisions, from the previous edition. The remaining 129 are brand new names: authors and illustrators who have come into prominence since 1934—also selected for us by specialists in the field." (Pref)

"In this welcome new edition 129 new authors have been added and 160 repeated from the first edition. In order to keep the price within reach of the smallest library, authors of the classics and authors who are 'borderliners' between adult and children's literature have been omitted, the autobiographical sketches are somewhat shorter, and a number of out-of-date portraits which could not be replaced have been eliminated. Libraries having the earlier edition may want to use it for collateral reference."
+ Booklist 48:132 D 1 '51

"A most welcome volume this. . . Of its 289 sketches (largely autobiographical), 129 are new. They make fascinating reading. By the exclusion of material easily found elsewhere, the publishers have made it possible to ask a price for the book, that is close to miraculous in this our day."
+ Cath World 174:321 Ja '52 50w

"The first edition of this volume appeared in 1934, and everyone who has depended on it for constant reference will welcome news that the new one is ready. . . Everyone will miss writers, some of them are probably omitted from the standpoint of critical level. . . All in all we think this an essential tool for every library children's room, and every school library. Typographically and in other ways the new edition is a great step forward."
Kirkus 19:604 O 1 '51 240w

"It's a valuable reference work, aimed, I suppose, at libraries and school libraries, where it will be extremely useful." J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p10 O 6 '51 130w

School & Society 74:238 O 13 '51 20w

"A great many American children will burrow through its pages for what they want, with a pleasure not always connected with 'looking things up.' . . An older person may get, even by glancing through it, an idea not only of the number of men and women now actually engaged in writing or illustrating the books children in the United States like to read but of the tremendous range of material from which these authors draw, whether for fiction or non-fiction."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p9 N 23 '51 750w

KUTTNER, HENRY (LEWIS PADGETT, pseud). Gnome there was, and other tales of science fiction and fantasy. 276p $2.50 Simon & Schuster

50-11220

"The stories tell of a labor organizer who suddenly becomes a gnome, of two children who played with toys of a million years in the future, of a radio that washed dishes, and a very peculiar family of hillbillies." Library J

Booklist 47:188 Ja 15 '51

Kirkus 18:619 O 1 '50 110w

"Will certainly please all science fiction fans and should recruit some new ones." M. D. Read
+ Library J 76:342 F 15 '51 70w

"So many of Lewis Padgett's fine stories have been anthologized that this collection will hold few surprises for the persistent reader of science fiction and fantasy. However, for those who have not devoted much time to this form of literature, there could be few better introductions to what one of the better practitioners can do." Fletcher Pratt
+ N Y Times p18 D 17 '50 140w

Reviewed by Don Fabun
San Francisco Chronicle p17 F 4 '51 30w

KYRLE, ROGER ERNLE MONEY-. See Money-Kyrle, R. E.

L

LABANDE, EDMOND RENE. Florence; tr. and adapted by Janet Hamilton. 208p il $5 McGraw

914.55 Florence, Italy—Description 51-10763

"A beautiful collection of pictures and text that tell the story of Italy's great museum-city. . . It offers such fact as climate and location and a bit about Florentines themselves, but purposely it steers a course through the maze of the city's art treasures." Sat R of Lit

Reviewed by C. J. Rolo
Atlantic 188:85 Jl '51 20w

Cleveland Open Shelf p26 N '51

"This is just about as fine an introduction to Florentine treasures, and the cultural life of that city as one can imagine." W. K. Harrison
+ Library J 76:967 Je 1 '51 40w

"Its tone is leisurely as it presents a series of descriptive rambles about the city, in the course of which the author comments knowingly not only on the works of art encountered but also on such aspects of contemporary life as might prove interesting to the tourist. Unfortunately, the volume is limited in its guidebook capacity by its failure to include some bits of practical, if humdrum, information like museum hours."
+ — New Yorker 27:119 Je 9 '51 160w

"The illustrations, photographs of the city and of paintings in its notable galleries, sculpture and the like, are beautifully reproduced by the gravure process, and the entire volume is a handsomely designed and well-made book." J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p16 Ap 30 '51 160w

"The text is pleasant and unadorned and suffers not at all from translation." H. S.
+ Sat R of Lit 34:36 Je 9 '51 120w

LABOR RESEARCH ASSOCIATION. Monopoly today. 128p $1.50 Int. pubs.

332.0973 Capitalists and financiers. U.S.—Industries and resources. Capitalism

"A statistical indictment of 'the top four hundred' and the giant financial groups in control of American industry today, as seen from the left. Contents: 'What Price Monopoly?' 'Financial Interest Groups,' 'Big Business in Mass Communication,' 'Foreign Investments and the Monopolies.' An attempt to bring up to date the facts and figures in Anna Rochester's Rulers of America [Book Review Digest 1936]. Reference notes (106 items) keyed to the text. Appendix: Largest 250 corporations—industrials, railroads, utilities, banks and other financial—with assets indicated in the millions." Library J

"The study is based on the latest and most authoritative source material. The authors demonstrate conclusively that a high degree of concentration obtains in the American economy. Their efforts, however, to identify and delineate interest groups are less successful, owing to imperfections in the data and the elusive nature of corporate and financial affiliations. Even so, they have done as well as others who have pioneered in this difficult area." H. M. Gray
Ann Am Acad 276:154 Jl '51 450w

Reviewed by J. E. Cross
Library J 76:707 Ap 15 '51 70w

LACEY, JOHN L. Audubon book of bird carving; as told to Tom Moore McBride [foreword by Kenneth D. Morrison]. 124p il pl $3.50 McGraw

736.4 Birds—North America. Wood carving 51-10468

Instructions for hobbyists on the carving and painting of models of birds. Photographs and drawings. Some of the birds chosen are: mallard duck; Canada goose; pintail; greenwing teal; wood duck; great blue heron; quail; grouse; pheasant; woodcock; robin; bluebird; cardinal; chickadee; and goldfinch. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 47:307 My 1 '51
Bookmark 10:181 My '51 20w

LACK, DAVID LAMBERT. Robin redbreast. 235p pl col pl $4 Oxford

598.2 Robins

"Commentary and anthology of robin lore. . . Dr. Lack arranges his material according to subject, and introduces his quotations into chapters each of which deals with some particular aspects of popular legend." Times [London] Lit Sup

"Its author cautions us that its aim is entertainment, not the advancement of learning, but a most refreshing enlightenment pours from every page." T. M. Longstreth
+ Christian Science Monitor p9 D 23 '50 550w

"This is a charming and most opportune book for the time of year. Robins are inseparable from Christmas, and Mr. Lack, who is here concerned 'with unnatural, not natural, history,' is able, after a very pretty piece of research, to tell us how and why." Geoffrey Taylor
+ New Statesman & Nation 40:656 D 23 '50 900w

"It is a pleasant book, beautifully illustrated, and despite its limited subject, rather fun." W. R. H.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p31 D 10 '50 110w

"I feel kindly towards it—as one must towards robins. I admire the single-minded enthusiasm and the good taste of the compiler, Mr. Lack, and I appreciate the publishing skill that has produced such a pretty book. At the same time, I reserve the right to suggest, in a very mild whisper, that perhaps Mr. Lack has made a little too much of his subject." Derek Hudson
+ — Spec 184:672 D 8 '50 100w

"Altogether this is a delightful miscellany of curious facts and beliefs, to which an excellent selection of illustrations gives an added attraction."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p745 N 24 '50 480w

LADIES HOME JOURNAL. See Daly, M., ed. Profile of youth

LADOO, RAYMOND BARDEEN, and MYERS, WILLIAM MARSH. Nonmetallic minerals. 2d ed 605p $10 McGraw

553 Mines and mineral resources 51-2176

"The nonmetallic minerals include such materials as asbestos, asphalt, borax, clay, diamonds, Fuller's earth, gypsum, limestone, mica, phosphate rock, salt, slate, sulfur, vermiculite, and zircon. This is a reference book on sources, resources, characteristics, uses, production, etc. Each of the compact articles on a mineral or group of related minerals is concluded with a bibliography. The first edition was published in 1925 [Book Review Digest 1925]. The changes of a quarter century made complete revision necessary, and little material has been carried over." Library J

Booklist 47:330 My 15 '51

Reviewed by R. R. Hawkins
Library J 76:876 My 15 '51 80w
N Y New Tech Bks 36:40 My '51

LAFRANCE, MARSTON. Miami murder-go-round. 256p $2.50 World pub.

51-12886

Detective story.

Kirkus 19:368 Jl 15 '51 60w

"Here is still another effort to be hard-boiled that falls on its face." James Sandoe
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p31 O 7 '51 150w

LAFRANCE, MARSTON—Continued

"The latest entry among private eyes is Rick Larkan. He is chiefly distinguished from his colleagues by the fact that he tells his narrative in sharper, more vivid prose than many and that he is even more implausible. . . The plot is an absurd one." Anthony Boucher

— N Y Times p32 O 14 '51 90w

Reviewed by L. G. Offord

San Francisco Chronicle p22 O 7 '51 50w

Reviewed by Sergeant Cuff

Sat R of Lit 34:24 N 10 '51 40w

LAGERKVIST, PAR FABIAN. Barabbas; tr. by Alan Blair; with a pref. by Lucien Maury, and a letter by André Gide. 180p $3 Random house

Barabbas—Fiction 51-13110

This philosophical novel is a character study of the man, thief and murderer, who was released to the mob instead of Christ. It follows the story of his life from the Crucifixion on Calvary, thru the years of groping for the truth, to his own death in Rome with the Christian martyrs.

"In a prose style that is swift, sparing, limpid, and hauntingly intense in its effects—a style whose energy and beauty the translator, Alan Blair, has magnificently preserved—Lagerkvist evokes the early Christian era with a selective realism more telling than any ponderously detailed reconstruction of the past." C. J. Rolo

+ Atlantic 188:96 D '51 450w

Booklist 48:86 N 1 '51

Bookmark 11:60 D '51 30w

Reviewed by Richard Sullivan

Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 O 14 '51 220w

"Not a religious recapitulation at the popular level, this is a work of deep respect and controlled artistry, in a fine translation by Alan Blair."

+ Kirkus 19:409 Ag 1 '51 140w

"Barabbas' whole story is ambiguous, and the ambiguity is ours and our century's. For today we have almost circled back to the days of this book, to political murders, to forced labor camps, to the cruelties of the Romans with refinements they did not know. And even our Christian professions can be as spasmodic, as sentimental, as ill-directed as those of Barabbas. That is why Lagerkvist has been able to tell so complex a story in such short compass. He has only to indicate, to draw a sharp and poignant line, and his collaborator the twentieth-century reader can fill in his own background." Llewellyn Jones

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p7 O 14 '51 700w

"In an introductory note the late André Gide calls this 'a remarkable novel,' and his admiration comes as no surprise. Lagerkvist's dry-point style, sacrificing sensual coloring so that the lines of a spiritual dilemma stand out more clearly, suggests the prose in which Gide wrote his own early philosophical novels. 'Barabbas' never quite involves a reader in the day-to-day realities of its hero's gaudy, gory times. Its power is the power of a parable, with the same timeless echo." Robert Lowry

+ N Y Times p4 O 7 '51 400w

Reviewed by Harvey Breit

N Y Times p4 N 25 '51 700w

New Yorker 27:180 N 17 '51 100w

San Francisco Chronicle p22 N 11 '51 390w

"Pär Lagerkvist has not been well known in America although he has received full acclaim and many honors in Europe, but with this book in which ideas and events clash vigorously, in which both the story and the argument run to climactic completion, he should take his place on this side of the Atlantic." Graham Bates

+ Sat R of Lit 34:12 O 27 '51 700w

"As a parable, Barabbas is open to many interpretations. As a picture of a human soul, with or without parable, it is moving and convincing."

+ Time 58:110 D 3 '51 500w

LAIDLER, KEITH JAMES. Chemical kinetics. 408p $6.50 McGraw

541.39 Chemical reactions 50-14496

"The object of this book is the presentation, within a reasonably small compass, of the more important facts and theories relating to the rates with which chemical reactions occur. The book is primarily intended as an introductory text for university students, but it is hoped that it may prove useful to those already acquainted with the field." (Pref) The author is Associate professor of Chemistry at the Catholic university of America.

"While the book possesses some defects, these are thoroughly outweighed by its good points. It represents a very successful attempt to bring together diverse fields, and it gives an admirably lucid description of the application of complex theoretical ideas. The reviewer recommends the book most strongly to all students of chemical kinetics and to all workers in the field." E. W. R. Steacie

+ — Am Chem Soc J 73:1900 Ap '51 420w

"Considered as a test, the material provides an adequate background for reading the current literature, and also includes numerical problems that illustrate the principles. As a reference, it provides the practicing chemical engineer or chemist a comprehensive, unified review of this important field." J. F. Kinney

+ Chem Eng 58:269 Ag '51 360w

"The theoretical treatment is based entirely on the 'absolute reaction rate theory.' On pages 59-62 the author presents the 'collision theory,' which he declares is unsatisfactory and proceeds to denounce frequently throughout the rest of the book. This strong preference for one point of view has led him to make some statements which do not stand up well under close scrutiny. . . It has already been mentioned that the examples of reactions discussed have been chosen largely from gaseous systems. Since the book does not claim to cover everything in the field of kinetics, the author should be allowed such a choice. It is unfortunate that he has not always covered the literature on those reactions which he does discuss. . . In spite of the faults which have been mentioned, the book has its good points. It is written in a style which should not be too difficult for the average student to understand. There are 44 figures and 51 tables to illustrate the discussion. The reactions which are discussed are grouped in a logical manner." G. K. Rollefson

+ — J Phys & Colloid Chem 55:759 My '51 1100w

Reviewed by R. R. Hawkins

Library J 76:333 F 15 '51 100w

N Y New Tech Bks 35:84 N '50

LAING, JAN. Priscilla. 244p $3 Putnam

51-10282

The background of this historical novel is eighteenth-century England. It is the story of the girl Priscilla left in the London Foundling hospital in 1758, and of Priscilla's vicissitudes up to the time of her discovery of her parentage.

Booklist 47:329 My 15 '51

Reviewed by Elydia Shipman

Christian Science Monitor p13 Ja 3 '52 270w

"This is a tender, sentimental tale, somewhat old-fashioned in the telling, but interesting and dramatic. . . Here are romance and adventure that will appeal to women. Recommended." Anne Whitmore

+ Library J 76:704 Ap 15 '51 80w

"Miss Laing here brings together a wealth of vivid particulars about an institution that Hogarth and Handel befriended and about both the glitter and the squalor of eighteenth-century life outside its gates. 'Priscilla' is really interesting as a period piece, though it hardly achieves the vitality required of a novel." Mary Ross

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Ap 29 '51 370w

"It cries out to be the substance of a good novel. Unfortunately this first novel by Jan Laing is written in sentimental clichés, about unreal puppet-like characters." Evelyn Eaton

N Y Times p11 Jl 29 '51 200w

Reviewed by Don Pitt

San Francisco Chronicle p21 Je 10 '51 90w

"The story never becomes oversentimental, maintains its suspense to the end and springs many surprises." S. M. Neal

+ Springf'd Republican p8C My 27 '51 300w

LAIRD, DONALD ANDERSON, and LAIRD, MRS ELEANOR CHILDS (LEONARD). Sizing up people. 270p $3.75 McGraw

150.13 Psychology, Applied. Personality 51-6157

"Intended especially for business executives, personnel workers and employment counsellors, this book by the authors of many books on applied psychology describes in nontechnical style and with illustrative anecdotes 'how to judge and analyze personality, intelligence and abilities in others for greater personal happiness and business success. . .' " San Francisco Chronicle

Booklist 48:114 D 1 '51

"This volume, which may aid someone to understand human beings a little better, particularly those with whom he works, follows the usual Laird pattern: anecdotal style, trite-but-true generalizations, bits from scientific investigations bearing on the subject, self tests and exercises, and paternalistic advice. Recommended, but only for general public library collections." Phyllis Osteen

Library J 76:1215 Ag '51 140w

San Francisco Chronicle p24 O 7 '51 110w

LAIRD, MRS HELENE. Nancy gets a job. 224p $2 World pub.

51-10160

Sequel to Nancy Keeps House, and Nancy Goes to College (Book Review Digest 1947 and 1950). In this vocational novel for older girls Nancy learns about business office etiquet and how to balance her budget, makes a start on her career in a publishing house, and gets married.

"Recommended for older girls of 16-18 who are contemplating a business career." R. C. Buell

+ Library J 76:782 My 1 '51 70w

Reviewed by L. S. Bechtel

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Jl 22 '51 40w

"This is a realistic, sensible story." E. L. B.

+ N Y Times p22 My 6 '51 120w

LAIRD, JENNY. James and MacArthur; a novel about two cats [il. by Peggy Bacon]. 213p $2.50 Longmans

51-12748

James and MacArthur were two English cats, and brothers, altho very different in character. When they felt themselves neglected they left home. James, a lover of the ladies got led astray, and only returned home in time to rescue his quieter brother from a fire.

Booklist 48:31 S 15 '51

"There are, regrettably, only 213 pages in this fine yarn. But, taking 'James and MacArthur' strictly on its own, it is a book to be given to any of your friends who are slaves to their cats—which is to say, anyone who owns a cat. And, of course, a book to be cherished on your own shelves if you minister to feline wants in your house. Between the lines I think you will find, as I did, a delightful ribbing of humans and their foibles and follies." A. F. Otis

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 O 7 '51 350w

Kirkus 19:333 Jl 1 '51 160w

"The book is charmingly illustrated by Peggy Bacon. 'James and MacArthur' may annoy dog-lovers, but ailurophiles will find in Miss Laird a kindred spirit." Jane Cobb

+ N Y Times p22 S 30 '51 400w

LAIT, JACK, and MORTIMER, LEE. Washington confidential. 310p $3 Crown

917.53 Washington, D.C.—Description. Washington, D.C.—Social life and customs 51-9812

An exposé of life in Washington, D.C., similar to the authors' New York Confidential, and Chicago Confidential (Book Review Digest 1948 and 1950).

Atlantic 187:86 My '51 90w

Reviewed by A. R. Pinci

— Cath World 173:159 My '51 160w

"Politically, Washington may be corrupt and cynical. Its greatest sin is probably lack of leadership. Morally, Washington may be no better than any other city of comparable size, but it is not a great deal worse. Nonetheless there are disclosures in this book which deserve examination. . . If I were a city editor in Washington I would check the disclosure of this book in the interests of presenting news. But I would triple check every statement, address and phone number, because in their search for the sensational and scandalous the authors are careless of fact, which is inexcusable in reporters. However, those readers who get vicarious thrills out of sin will little note nor long remember the solemn injunction." Walter Trohan

Chicago Sunday Tribune p8 Mr 18 '51 800w

"It is scarcely news that Washington has its share of assorted crime or that five percenters abound in the Mayflower and Statler lobbies. Messrs. Lait and Mortimer, unfortunately, have added nothing of any account to what has already been published on either subject." Jack Steele

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p19 Ap 22 '51 450w

"As a portrait of a city of 800,000 people, most of whom are hardworking, modest-living solid citizens, it has all the verisimilitude of a $3 bill." Cabell Phillips

— N Y Times p33 Ap 1 '51 270w

"Having come fresh from their descents into the bowels of Manhattan and Chicago, yet not fully spent, Jack Lait and Lee Mortimer pursue their breathless, unmoral and flippant chase of metropolitan luridness, sometimes so shrill and strident they seem less like seasoned reporters than sophomoric libertines, heady with wines or snicker, snigger and sniff—yet naive and wide-eyed, using the sly wink of the postcard hawker." D. P.

— San Francisco Chronicle p23 Ap 15 '51 330w

"There is no question that there are crime, vice, sin, forbidden pleasures, grafters, lobbyists, and all sorts of horrible people in Washington. . . The pity of it is that Washington is not as beautiful or as pure a city as it might be. Gambling, prostitution, bootlegging, dope-peddling, and all the evils of a city are present in this overgrown town. But it is not as filthy, as despicable, as infested a town as these reporters say it is. They so overstress the evil as to border on the subversive. How the Nazis would have loved this book as proof of the decadence of democracy! The Kremlin will like it not less." Karl Schriftgiesser

— Sat R of Lit 34:17 Ap 7 '51 450w

LAMB, DANA, and LAMB, VIRGINIA (BISHOP). Quest for the lost city. 340p il $4 Harper

917.2 Mexico—Description and travel. Mayas—Antiquities 51-12172

"The authors of this book are a team of amateur adventurers whose first book 'En-

LAMB, DANA—Continued
chanted Vagabonds' was published several years ago [Book Review Digest 1938]. Now they are back with an account of a 2,000-mile safari down the extremely rugged west coast of Mexicoto Chiapas, where in the insect-dripping rain forests of that state (a section that was a blank on the maps) they spent several months seeking the relics of an ancient Mayan settlement." N Y Times

Booklist 48:29 S 15 '51

Reviewed by Richard Blakesley
Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 S 9 '51 180w

"One puts the book down aware of having shared a deep experience. It is an outstanding story." T. M. Longstreth
+ Christian Science Monitor p5 Ag 30 '51 350w

+ Kirkus 19:340 Jl 1 '51 200w

"Full of excitement and almost fanatic perseverance, the book reads like a rip-snorting adventure story. One could wish though for a more detailed description of the archeological discoveries. Recommended." W. K. Harrison
+ Library J 76:1335 S 1 '51 60w

" 'Quest for the Lost City' is an absorbing book—a sort of overland 'Kon-Tiki'—marred chiefly by an ingenuous style. If the Lambs are not storytellers, they do have a story to tell." R. C. Lewis
+ — N Y Times p11 Ag 26 '51 210w

"The narrative is full of the kind of satisfactory detail that answers questions before the reader can think of them, and is written in a breezy fashion that has no literary pretensions. There are sixteen pages of photographs and there could have been even more. The quest, by the way, was successful."
+ New Yorker 27:117 S 22 '51 160w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p20 S 4 '51 1100w

"A good saga should communicate on many levels: of intimacy, of information, of excitement. Never, since the 'Swiss Family Robinson,' has so much information about how to live in and with the jungle been imparted with such loving, intimate detail. . . But the minutiae of incident and personality—never more droll since Borrow's 'Bible in Spain'—would not by themselves be enough. For the best of a great adventure book is that the writer can communicate the disaster as well as the glory. This the Lambs do best of all." Anne Fremantle
+ Sat R of Lit 34:27 D 8 '51 650w
Wis Lib Bul 47:212 S '51

LAMB, HAROLD. Suleiman the Magnificent; Sultan of the East. 370p il $5 Doubleday

B or 92 Sulaiman I, the Magnificent, sultan of the Turks 51-9932

Sympathetic biography of this sixteenth century sultan of the Ottoman empire who was called the Magnificent by Europeans, the Lawgiver by his own people.

"Lamb's book is a fascinating and reflective study of a great personality, his empire and his epoch."
+ Atlantic 187:87 Je '51 110w
Booklist 47:292 Ap 15 '51

Reviewed by Kelsey Guilfoil
Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 Ap 22 '51 350w

Reviewed by H. B. Ellis
Christian Science Monitor p9 Mr 28 '51 390w

Reviewed by Philip Burnham
Commonweal 54:315 Jl 6 '51 650w
Kirkus 19:42 Ja 15 '51 330w

"It is a virtue of this book that it is told throughout from the Turkish point of view, by an American who knows and admires Turkey and is thoroughly at home in Suleiman's great capital." W. A. Borst
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 Mr 18 '51 1200w

Reviewed by Hasan Ozbekkan
+ N Y Times p7 Mr 18 '51 650w

"Mr. Lamb writes with his usual verve and out of a wide and scholarly knowledge of his subject. It is doubtful, though, whether even he knows just what young Suleiman said to the captivating Gulbehar as they lolled on a couch in the harem. That's where the 'narrative' comes in."
New Yorker 27:90 Mr 31 '51 240w

"Lamb's remarkable skill in building a recognizable picture of the Grand Turk with the paucity of materials available is complemented by his ability to make history lively and readable. He bridges the gaps in his resources with a restraint that other 'popular' historians might do well to emulate before they give free rein to their galloping imaginations." R. H. Dillon
+ San Francisco Chronicle p20 Mr 18 '51 900w

"Suleiman has been one of the least known of the giants of the sixteenth century, that age of giant men. Not the first—for we have Professor Merriman's solid book of 1944—but certainly the most eloquent, Harold Lamb sets out to correct this situation. He does so in a biography that is outstanding even for a man who has already distinguished himself with his fine writing. . . It is at once good reading and important history. It is at the same time a vivid portrayal of a complicated human being and a lucid presentation of the Turkish way of life." T. C. Chubb
+ Sat R of Lit 34:11 Mr 17 '51 1100w
Time 57:112 Mr 26 '51 390w

LAMBE, THOMAS WILLIAM. Soil testing for engineers. 165p il spir $5 Wiley

620.19 Soils (engineering) 51-11744

"Essentially a textbook for engineering college students, this work will be useful to many practicing civil engineers as well. Methods of testing soils in the laboratory are described explicitly, and many techniques and examples of apparatus are shown in illustrations. The various standard tests are evaluated from the engineer's standpoint. The author is a member of the faculty of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology." N Y New Tech Bks

"The book should be of interest to builders and civil engineers as well as to engineering college students." R. R. Hawkins
+ Library J 76:1938 N 15 '51 80w
N Y New Tech Bks 36:78 S '51

LAMBERT, ELISABETH. Sleeping house party. 220p $2.75 Coward-McCann 51-14104

Detective story.

Bookmark 11:60 D '51

"There are token shrieks but the general effect is that of a weary stock company playing something by a local author with a ghastly, glossy ebullience. No matter who turns out to be the murderer, the reader is the victim." James Sandoe
— N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p22 N 25 '51 120w

"At once the brightest and the most exasperating. The Australian locale (where Christmas comes in midsummer) is refreshing, and the sketches of worthless supersophisticates are occasionally devastating; but there's a hyperthyroid self-consciousness about the cleverness of heroine and author alike, and a really shocking ignorance of the barest rudiments of fictional technique." Anthony Boucher
N Y Times p11 D 23 '51 100w

Reviewed by L. G. Offord
San Francisco Chronicle p20 D 2 '51 50w

"The Sleeping House Party is excellent in its own bouncing original way. . . The detectives are police and none the worse for that, and the whole thing combines a high level of detection with a rollicking cheerful narrative style.

If Miss Lambert can keep it up, she will develop a nice little corner all her own." Esther Howard
+ Spec 185:459 Ap 6 '51 100w

LAMBURN, JOHN BATTERSBY CROMPTON (JOHN CROMPTON, pseud). Life of the spider [Eng title: Spider]. 254p il $3 Houghton

595.44 Spiders 51-13534

A popular book about spiders by an English writer, "a layman writing for laymen." In his Preface he says: "This book deals with living spiders and not with dead specimens. It tries to show the drama of their lives. This treatment is permissible only if exaggeration is avoided. Nothing therefore is given in these pages that is not proved fact."

Booklist 48:79 N 1 '51

Reviewed by Robert Cromie
Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 N 4 '51 450w

"This is 'popular' natural history at its best." A. W. B.
+ Manchester Guardian p4 Je 6 '50 260w

"If I have a quarrel with Mr. Crompton it is that, in his laudable desire to interest a hostile or apathetic public in the spider, he has been tempted to represent the insect world as being a perfect scream from start to finish. . . Mr. Crompton's style is deliberately informal and discursive, and very easy to read; it is spoiled by this determined facetiousness. Still, it is a highly entertaining book, and I hope Mr. Crompton means to make many more contributions to popular entomology." Margaret Lane
+ — New Statesman & Nation 40:257 S 2 '50 1050w

"Here is an excellent general survey of the spider world written for laymen in a pleasant and easy style." Winifred Duncan
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 D 30 '51 600w

"Crompton's book is pleasantly written, free of scientific gobbledegook. It should make many readers walk down their garden paths with new appreciation of spiders." J. N. Leonard
+ N Y Times p12 N 4 '51 380w
Times [London] Lit Sup p424 Jl 7 '50 550w

LAMONT, THOMAS WILLIAM. Across world frontiers [ed. from his original drafts; introd. by Thomas S. Lamont]. 278p $3.50 Harcourt

B or 92 51-12158

A sequel to My Boyhood in a Parsonage (Book Review Digest 1946) covering the years of the author's life from college days thru the first World war and to his service in international affairs in Europe and the Far East. The author died in 1948 and this second volume of a projected longer work has been edited by his wife and sons.

Booklist 48:30 S 15 '51

"This book was designed to be a portion of Lamont's autobiografy, part of which was published earlier under the title, 'My Boyhood in a Parsonage.' But death interrupted him and these notes and summations were edited. But even so here is a remarkable, if fragmentary, survey of the war-and-peace period, 1914-20. The viewpoints are sharp and incisive, there is no wasted rhetoric, the summations are honest and generous." R. J. Graf
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 S 2 '51 320w

Reviewed by Roland Sawyer
Christian Science Monitor p5 Ag 30 '51 1000w

Reviewed by W. L. Caswell
Churchman 166:17 Ja 1 '52 250w
Cleveland Open Shelf p18 S '51

"The moderate reflections of a humane, unprejudiced man whose position often placed him in the center of living history, this has merit but will probably not equal sales of its homespun predecessor."
Kirkus 19:477 Ag 15 '51 260w

"The book does, indeed, lack something of the finish of 'My Boyhood in a Parsonage,' the account of his youth that Lamont issued in 1946, and which, although written by a sick man, is one of the gayest and most charming of American autobiographies. But the content of this volume is of sufficient importance to justify its publication even with some imperfections of style and arrangement, for it deals with affairs that affect us all." G. W. Johnson
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 Ag 26 '51 650w

Reviewed by J. K. Galbraith
N Y Times p3 S 2 '51 950w

"In spite of its misleading title, this is a continuance of Mr. Lamont's book, 'My Boyhood in a Parsonage', and has much of the same charm. But it is not the intimate personal record that made the first book so appealing, except in the opening chapters." E. E. Calkins
Sat R of Lit 34:19 S 22 '51 550w

Reviewed by H. G. Leach
Survey 87:493 N '51 300w
Wis Lib Bul 47:214 S '51

LAMPMAN, MRS EVELYN SIBLEY. Coyote kid, by Lynn Bronson [pseud]. 224p $2.50 Lippincott

51-11160

A story for boys of cattle ranching in eastern Oregon in the 1880s.

Booklist 48:129 D 1 '51
Chicago Sunday Tribune p13 N 11 '51 150w

"This is a reliable novel of the Old West which covers some virgin territory."
+ Kirkus 19:442 Ag 15 '51 120w

"Characters are colorful, country and conditions are skillfully portrayed, and the book is full of stirring incidents. Recommended for ages 11-14." Sonja Wennerblad
+ Library J 76:1574 O 1 '51 80w

"The background of Oregon ranch life at the time of the sheep and cattle wars of the Eighteen Nineties is colorful and authentic. French and Ortego, a foreword tells us, were real-life people. They are strong, positive characters. Though fictional, Ty is an appealing hero. His development as an individual makes a heartwarming story." Howard Boston
+ N Y Times p36 S 23 '51 190w

LAMPMAN, MRS EVELYN SIBLEY. Elder brother; il. by Richard Bennett. 217p $2.50 Doubleday

51-12887

The Chinatown of Portland, Oregon, in 1908, is the scene of this story for grades six to eight. The Chans had six daughters and no sons, so they sent to China for an adopted 'elder brother.' The story is of the conflict between elder brother and his Americanized sisters, especially twelve-year-old Molly.

Booklist 48:109 N 15 '51

"While children will revel in the story's exciting events, they will also find great interest in the colorful background of Chinese-American family and community life which they will absorb along the way. The illustrations are highly effective, too." Polly Goodwin
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p16 O 28 '51 200w
Kirkus 19:391 Ag 1 '51 160w

"This period in Chinatown was an especially exciting one and Mrs. Lampman has made it live." Alice Fedder
+ Library J 76:1640 O 15 '51 100w

"Highly recommended for all libraries." Anne Izard
+ Library J 76:1816 N 1 '51 120w

"It's a little hard to believe in Molly's freedom in that time and place, but young readers caught up in the lively swirl of events won't quibble about that and they will gain an insight into the background of Chinese-American life." E. L. B.

LAMPMAN, E. S.—Continued

N Y Times p32 S 30 '51 170w

San Francisco Chronicle p8 N 11 '51 70w

Wis Lib Bul 47:259 N '51

LANCASTER, BRUCE. Venture in the East. 317p $3 Little

Caron, François—Fiction 51-3397

"This story tells of the adventures of members of the Dutch East India Company stationed in Japan during the early 17th century. Mr. Lancaster points up the type of culture existing in Japan at that time, delineates the government structure and shows how tenuous even the most amicable of trade relations were in a country that feared change." Library J

Booklist 47:363 Je 15 '51

Bookmark 10:232 Jl '51 30w

"The medieval Japanese character—about to be sealed off until the arrival of Commodore Perry—is well and sympathetically portrayed, perhaps the most commendable feature of a novel noteworthy also from the standpoint of current interest in Japan." Ruth Chapin

+ Christian Science Monitor p15 Je 14 '51 200w

Cleveland Open Shelf p20 S '51

Reviewed by M. C. Scoggin
Horn Bk 27:241 Jl '51 90w

"A first rate yarn with a unique setting and period background."

+ Kirkus 19:163 Mr 15 '51 330w

"Good historical fiction. Recommended." H. L. Roth

+ Library J 76:861 My 15 '51 100w

Reviewed by M. D. Read
Library J 76:1036 Je 15 '51 100w

"Both the historical and the adventure novel readers should be pleased with Bruce Lancaster's 'Venture in the East.' . . . Mr. Lancaster has told his story with such a fascinating wealth of detail, of customs and habits and movements, that it is hard to lay it down. Even his lovers seem credible."

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Je 10 '51 330w

"The exhaustive research which preceded the writing of this novel is apparent even to the casual reader. There are admirable descriptions of Japanese customs and of kenson, the elaborate ritual which must be observed at every visit or meeting. Unfortunately this zeal for historical and ethnological precision tends to overshadow the novel at times. 'Venture in the East' is a good story, but it falls considerably short of such other Lancaster items as 'Guns of Burgoyne' and 'The Scarlet Patch.' " Hoffman Birney

+ — N Y Times p4 My 20 '51 490w

"Whether a young woman of good family dressed as a Japanese would get around as freely as Trudy did is questionable. . . But to this reader, at least, such anachronisms—largely limited to the activities of the restless Trudy—are not important. What is of intense interest throughout 'Venture in the East' is the way the book brings alive the old prints we have all seen of spectacular Daimyo processions, of samurai grimacing in ferociously ornate armor, of villages and tea houses and clumsy sailing vessels. The torture and other customary brutalities are also presented. Perhaps most fascinating of all is the graphic portrayal of the deviousness of thought and manners that was (and is) instinctive with every Japanese." L. H. Crockett

+ — Sat R of Lit 34:14 Je 2 '51 750w

Reviewed by G. A. Panichas
Springf'd Republican p6D Jl 8 '51 350w

LANDES, KENNETH KNIGHT. Petroleum geology. 660p il maps $10 Wiley

553.28 Petroleum—Geology 51-9993

"An introduction to this important branch of geology. Its chief use will be as a textbook in college courses taken by students preparing for practical work as petroleum geologists, but it includes enough information on present day oil-locating techniques and on producing fields throughout the world to make it useful as a reference book. There are, for example, thirty-five pages of information on the oil fields of Texas alone." Library J

Reviewed by R. R. Hawkins
Library J 76:709 Ap 15 '51 60w

N Y New Tech Bks 36:28 Mr '51

LANDIS, CHARLES SINGER. Woodchucks and woodchuck rifles. 401p il $6 Greenberg

799.2732 Woodchucks. Rifles 51-12735

"Mostly about the rifle, sights, scopes and cartridges, but enough about the woodchuck, its habits, and how to shoot it. More than 100 photographs and diagrams." Library J

"Special features of the book include articles contributed by leading hunters other than the author. There are more than 100 illustrations." J. A. Menaugh

Chicago Sunday Tribune p18 O 7 '51 190w

Reviewed by R. W. Henderson
Library J 76:1814 N 1 '51 30w

"Landis has gone carefully into the ballistics problems of this kind of hunting and experts will find the result a satisfying morsel." Jack Pegues

+ San Francisco Chronicle p4 N 25 '51 80w

LANDIS, MILDRED M. Meaningful art education. 185p 30pl $4 Bennett

372.5 Art—Study and teaching 51-3517

"This book is written to help educators realize the many ways in which children may experience art at different levels of development. And to define the purposes of art education and extend the thinking of art educators in terms of broader aims." (School Arts) Contents: Four approaches to art education; Esthetic principles essential to a meaningful art education; The value of meaningful art education for the individual; The value of meaningful art education for society.

"This textbook is stronger in its philosophical clarification of meaningful activity than in its practical applications. The philosophy is broad; the practice narrow. The evaluative methods described are limiting to the extent that they may even destroy the purposes expressed. Although the illustrations are unlike in subject and technique, they are all too similar in structure. The elementary-school teacher can, however, profitably use this book if he follows the philosophy and disregards the practical applications explained." R. D. Erickson

El School J 52:119 O '51 750w

"Thoroughly modern in concept and application, this book fills a long-felt need by many art educators for an objective examination of today's art philosophies and applying them to classroom teaching.'

+ School Arts 51:adv S '51 120w

LANDMAN, LYNN, and LANDMAN, AMOS. Profile of red China. 245p $3 Simon & Schuster

951.042 China. Communism—China 51-5047

"This is a report of what two American correspondents saw and heard during twenty-seven history-making months. As correspondents for several American publications, they covered China from June, 1948 through September, 1950." (Publisher's note) Index.

Booklist 48:8 S 1 '51

Reviewed by Walter Simmons
Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 Jl 29 '51 370w

"Such an effort by Americans to see a Chinese movement through Chinese eyes has great value. It suffers from some weaknesses as well, mostly sins of omission. For example, the Landmans analyze skillfully and write with sympathetic understanding about democratic-minded Chinese who decided to go along with communism; less is said of those who wished to resist or even left China because they knew the Communists would tolerate no neutrals." Randall Gould

+ — Christian Science Monitor p9 Jl 25 '51 950w

"This is unquestionably a ticklish book to handle at the present moment of high blood pressure over Communist China. And yet it is the most objective and unimpassioned close-up of China under Mao that has been given us."
Kirkus 19:288 Je 1 '51 380w

"Highly recommended." H. P. Linton
+ Library J 76:1225 Ag '51 110w

"Lynn and Amos Landman, two American journalists, have written a brief report that might have been better called 'The Year of the Honeymoon in Communist Shanghai.' . . The trouble is that just about the time the Landmans left Shanghai, the honeymoon was already coming to an end and they give no evidence anywhere in this hasty little book that they were aware of it. The unfortunate result is to make this book sound like an apologia for the Communist regime which rings with peculiar hollowness in the light of more recent events." H. R. Isaacs
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 Jl 29 '51 950w

"Their book is tops among on-the-spot studies of the new oriental enigma. . . The final chapter of a generally well-written and informative book offers what the dust jacket describes as 'a number of inescapable conclusions.' Frankly, this reviewer finds some of the conclusions curiously beside the point." Stuart Lillico
+ — N Y Times p11 Jl 22 '51 550w

New Yorker 27:67 Ag 4 '51 150w

Reviewed by C. E. Miller
San Francisco Chronicle p14 Jl 29 '51 700w

LANE, CARL DANIEL. Fire raft. 210p map $2.50 Little 51-4411

Story of the first trip of the first steamboat to travel from Pittsburgh to New Orleans. For ages eleven to fifteen.

Booklist 47:405 Jl 15 '51

"An exciting, well told yarn." Polly Goodwin
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p9 Ag 19 '51 180w

"It makes exciting reading and is a good, if highly colored, picture of Ohio-Mississippi river-boat days." Ruth McEvoy
+ Library J 76:1236 Ag '51 70w

"Here is a rare combination of authentic historical adventure and well-knit, rapid-action plot." R. A. Brown
+ N Y Times p18 Ag 26 '51 140w

LANE, RAYMOND A., bp. Early days of Maryknoll. 311p $3 McKay
266.2 Catholic foreign mission society of America 51-10096

"It is less than forty years since Father Price, a missionary in North Carolina, and Father James Anthony Walsh of Boston founded the Catholic Foreign Missionary Society of America, or Maryknoll. One year later the author of this volume arrived in Ossining, New York, as a seminarian. Bishop Lane is the third Superior General of this American congregation which now numbers 2,500 men and women dedicated to the task of bringing the Gospel to the neglected peoples of Africa, South America and the Far East." Commonweal

---

"A perfectly delightful book by a self-effacing author who cannot conceal his gayety, his love of God, his apostolic zeal and his 'large intent of courtesy.' " J. B. Sheerin
+ Cath World 173:317 Jl '51 250w
+ Commonweal 53:654 Ap 6 '51 130w

LANGDON, GRACE, and STOUT, IRVING W. These well-adjusted children. 245p $3.75 Day
136.7 Children—Management. Parent and child 51-10176

"This book summarizes what parents of a group of well-adjusted children replied to the question 'What in the home life accounts for your child's good adjustment?' Based on two studies made by graduate students at Milwaukee (Wis.) State Teachers College and New York University, respectively, of 261 children." (Library J) Index.

Booklist 47:339 Je 1 '51
Bookmark 10:179 My '51 30w

"A most absorbing record." Millicent Taylor
+ Christian Science Monitor p10 Ap 14 '51 1100w

"The wealth of illustrative material and the emphasis on the well-adjusted child in a happy home will make this book welcome to parents and professional workers alike." H. C. Dawe
+ J Home Econ 43:727 N '51 200w

"Well-arranged and quite readable, this book should be made available to parents, teachers, social workers, psychology majors—anyone endeavoring to work with children. Excellent for discussion groups, recommended for all libraries." E. P. Nichols
+ Library J 76:405 Mr 1 '51 80w

Reviewed by Evelyn Adlerblum
Survey 87:441 O '51 320w

LANGEWIESCHE-BRANDT, WOLFGANG ERNST. Flier's world. 278p $3.75 McGraw
629.13 Flight. Aeronautics 51-10809

"A skilled aviator easily explains what makes an airplane fly, the intricacies of wind and weather and, in sensitive prose that communicates the beauty and adventure of flight, describes his impressions of the world as seen from the air. Drawings. Reprinted in part from magazines." (Bookmark) No index.

Bookmark 10:205 Je '51 50w

"He tastes the wonder of flight fully today. He imparts its flavor, probably, as no one but Antoine de Saint Exupery has done before. He does it with deep perceptivity, in an idiomatic American which at its best becomes, not breezy, but a song." R. R. Brunn
+ Christian Science Monitor p11 My 17 '51 800w

Cleveland Open Shelf p20 S '51

Kirkus 19:199 Ap 1 '51 170w

"Langewiesche is a natural teacher. That is one reason he appeals to men and women who have only a casual interest in flying. He explains without making them realize that they are being taught. . . The best writing is in the latter half of the book, where Mr. Langewiesche describes so vividly how this earth looks through the eyes of a thoughtful and sensitive airman." H. L. Smith
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 Je 10 '51 850w

"Mr. Langewiesche, a former test-pilot and the author of a pilot's manual, knows airplanes and flying from nearly all angles. He also writes well and clearly, and with as much humor and imagination as the subject permits." J. N. Leonard
+ N Y Times p9 Jl 8 '51 390w

"Mr. Langewiesche is a genius at coming through with a homely comparison that gives you brand-new light on the subject. His book, however, is much more than that. His chapters on the weather, for instance, are likely to make you understand air masses and how they operate, (hence what makes the weather) better than anything you've ever seen. His log of the trip he made when he flew a plane from this country to the Middle East is some of the finest stuff about flying ever printed, and that includes St. Exupery, too." J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle My 25 '51 950w

LANGHAAR, HENRY LOUIS. Dimensional analysis and theory of models. 166p $4 Wiley

530.8 Physical measurements 51-10529

"This book is a text-book designed for both advanced undergraduate and graduate students. According to the author, a method of computing dimensionless products, to which one chapter is devoted, is new. This chapter will be of interest to engineers already at work. The author is a member of the faculty of the University of Illinois." Library J

Reviewed by W. E. Winsche
Am Chem Soc J 73:5924 D '51 140w

"An excellent book that presents this fundamental method of attack in a straightforward method. The mathematics has been reduced to the use of a matrix method that may require some reviewing of fundamentals in this field, but it is a simplification of the usual attack on dimensional analysis." K. A. Kobe
+ Chem & Eng N 29:3404 Ag 13 '51 450w

Reviewed by R. R. Hawkins
Library J 76:1132 Jl '51 70w

N Y New Tech Bks 36:53 Jl '51

"The text is suitable for college seniors, or even juniors, yet can be read profitably by graduate students and research workers who are not familiar with the applications of dimensional analysis. The value of the book to undergraduates lies largely in the clear presentation; its value to professionals is its wide range of examples."
U S Quarterly Bk R 7:319 S '51 140w

LANGLEY, MICHAEL. No woman's country; travels in the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan; with 58 il. by the author. 221p $4.50 Philosophical lib.

916.24 Sudan, Egyptian—Description and travel 51-9912

"A description and travel book of the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan with the emphasis upon the natural resources and the agricultural development taking place at the present time by means of irrigation projects along the White and Blue Nile. Starting at Khartoum the author takes us by air, rail, river steamer, and road into every section of this tremendous country with a population of 7 million and an area of 967,500 square miles." Library J

Christian Century 68:1101 S 26 '51 100w

Foreign Affairs 29:681 Jl '51 10w

"Recommended." R. P. Breaden
+ Library J 76:703 Ap 15 '51 160w

"An easy, chatty book. . . Much of it is most amusing, and its title and general good humour should not be allowed to obscure its importance, for it is the only general account of the Sudan to be published for nearly thirty years." Nigel Nicolson
+ New Statesman & Nation 40:389 O 28 '50 90w

Sat R of Lit 34:41 Je 23 '51 170w

"[The author] is so anecdotic, and his comment is so haphazard, that no satisfactory presentation emerges either of the landscapes and peoples or of the administration. . . It would be unjust to convey the impression that this account of travel in the Sudan does not, in spite of its manner and method, contain much useful material, since the author is both observant and unbiased."
— + Times [London] Lit Sup p679 O 27 '50 290w

LANGNER, LAWRENCE. Magic curtain. 498p il $6.60 Dutton

B or 92 Theatre guild. Theatre—U.S.

"The distinguished co-director of the Theatre Guild ever since it was known as the Washington Square Players in 1915 has set down his memories in this [volume]. . . The fact that the Welsh-born author is one of the leading patent lawyers of the world, makes this account of interest to almost every field of art, science, and industry." (Library J) Index.

Booklist 48:143 D 15 '51

Bookmark 11:57 D '51 30w

"This handsome and carefully written volume is a piece of treasure trove for the theatrical section of any library, public or private. American theatergoers of the type that cherishes old programs and argues over the dates of first-nights should be happy over the opportunity to acquire it." Charles Collins
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 N 18 '51 450w

"'The Magic Curtain' is written with the enthusiasm and devotion of an ardent amateur of the theater. It is a mellow book, with charity for almost all and with sharp words for very few. Mr. Langner's geniality may come as something of a surprise to some of the theater people who have had dealings with the Guild." John Beaufort
+ Christian Science Monitor p15 N 8 '51 800w

"A lively, entertaining, egotistical success story."
+ Kirkus 19:470 Ag 15 '51 270w

"Thoroughly readable, extremely interesting volume. . . Recommended for general circulation and for libraries specializing in theatre, law and business." George Freedley
+ Library J 76:1328 S 1 '51 140w

Nation 173:484 D 1 '51 260w

"These young people who started in the Village more than thirty years ago came closer than most ever do to turning a dream into reality. They dreamed well for the theater. Mr. Langner has written an engrossing book about them; about the whole exciting time, as well as about his own contented frolicking in the clover of a greener field." Richard Lockridge
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 O 28 '51 950w

"His book is long and at times I found it dull. . . As I was introduced to Max Eastman, Edna St. Vincent Millay, Emma Goldman, Franz Werfel; then to Lynn Fontanne and Alfred Lunt, Robert Sherwood and Philip Barry, I longed for a vivid and living portrait of each of them. In spite of Langner's easy and graceful style of writing, these amazing men and women remain sketchy shadows. He has presented them all with flattering compliment and gentle homage, but after 450 pages I fear that, for the reader who does not know them, they will take on no more stature than what has already been given them in newspaper columns or by their own achievements." Ruth Chatterton
N Y Times p18 N 18 '51 900w

Reviewed by William Hogan
San Francisco Chronicle p6 N 25 '51 170w

"Wit and sober reflection, sensitivity, honest confession and self-appraisal, judgments and confidences walk hand in hand through 'The Magic Curtain' to make it not only one man's personal summing-up as he views the path behind him, but also a statement of faith in art, philosophy, and economics as unshakable as that of Shaw's Dubedat in 'The Doctor's Dilemma.'" Russell Rhodes
+ Sat R of Lit 34:23 D 1 '51 900w

LANSING, MRS ELISABETH CARLETON (HUBBARD). Pony that ran away; il. by Barbara Cooney. 149p $2 Crowell

51-10484

"Ted and Sue, twins, wanted a pony for so many years that they were fearful to speak of it by name. When their birthday wish is fulfilled, they soon learn that along with joy and pleasure go care and responsibility when one owns a pony." Library J

Booklist 47:369 Je 15 '51

Reviewed by Polly Goodwin
Chicago Sunday Tribune p7 Jl 1 '51 150w

"For the children who are young enough to feel that a pony is as exciting and desirable as a horse this story will have great interest." J. D. Lindquist and S. M. Andrews
+ Horn Bk 27:182 My '51 130w

Reviewed by A. C. Moore
Horn Bk 27:238 Jl '51 30w

Kirkus 19:126 Mr 1 '51 90w

"Recommended for ages 7-10." Averill Randall
+ Library J 76:604 Ap 1 '51 70w

"The difference between tenderhearted Sue and bossy Ted is well done. For some boys there will be too much of Robbie's baby talk, but small girls will enjoy it all. A special sort of realism prevails, making the farm adventures most vivid." L. S. Bechtel
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 My 13 '51 150w

"This is, we are told, a true story. Certainly it rings true. The children are as real as the next-door neighbors. So also is Pete, a grand man who not only shows Ted and Sue how to take care of Twinkle but makes them live up to their responsibilities. Because of the nicely balanced human relationships this is way ahead of the average horse story." E. L. Buell
+ N Y Times p20 Je 24 '51 160w

LANSING, MRS ELISABETH CARLETON (HUBBARD). Shoot for a mule; il. by Susanne Suba. 121p $2 Crowell
51-6447

Story of a sturdy little southern mountain boy, Jeb, whose greatest desire was to own a mule. When he saved a mule from the flood he thought his wish had come true, until he found another had a claim. The case was to be settled by a shooting match. Much as Jeb wanted the mule he would not take an unfair advantage of his opponent, and in the end he won the mule and more. For ages 7 to 10.

Booklist 48:161 Ja 1 '52

Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 N 11 '51 170w

Reviewed by E. C. Ince
Christian Science Monitor p11 N 21 '51 130w

Kirkus 19:579 O 1 '51 110w

"Recommended." A. B. McCreary
+ Library J 76:1946 N 15 '51 70w

"The mountain talk is not too easy for all readers under ten, but they will manage it if the story is first read aloud. It is a fine piece of Americana, none too gentle, and the Suba pictures exactly catch the moods, action and characters." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p16 N 4 '51 170w

"Jeb is a real boy—sturdy, independent and fair-minded. His story, short, told in simple style and set in large type, is a good choice for slow readers in the upper elementary grades. Susanne Suba's expressive illustrations add humor and pathos." Elizabeth Hodges
+ N Y Times p11 D 23 '51 100w

"An engaging tale, told simply but with verve, and with considerable knowledge of small boys." K. T. Kinkead
+ New Yorker 27:175 D 1 '51 50w

"Mrs. Lansing must know the mountain people well. The background, the atmosphere, even the speech of the people are absolutely 'true to life.'. . Susanne Suba's line drawings are as true to the locale as is the text."
+ Sat R of Lit 34:60 N 10 '51 140w

LA PENTA, HELEN (MRS FRANK DIAMOND). Cloudgap. 246p $3 Harper
51-10530

A story of an old Massachusetts house, "Cloudgap" which plays its part in the love affair between a descendant of the original owner and the daughter of the man who now held it. A part of the story takes place in Italy where the girl, Jodie, goes to spend a year with her mother's family there.

"'Cloudgap' is written with the delicacy which reviewers praised in Miss La Penta's first novel, 'Piccola.' The author herself, a native of New York's Greenwich Village, is of Italian descent, and there is validity and charm in her descriptions of persons and scenes in the various settings of the story in this country and in Europe. Unfortunately, however, the book is neither very closely nor clearly organized. Incidental characters move in and out, trailing bits of story that leave one up in the air. 'Cloudgap' is intelligent and sensitive writing but hardly an effective novel." Mary Ross
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p11 My 6 '51 320w

Reviewed by Roderick Craib
N Y Times p15 Jl 15 '51 320w

"Miss La Penta, who skips blithely over the parts of her story that might be difficult, writes pleasantly but with a curiously precocious air."
New Yorker 27:118 Ap 28 '51 40w

"As a portrait of a young and talented girl still reaching out hesitantly toward what she wants in life 'Cloudgap' is a sensitive and touching study. At moments it catches all the tender, different dreams of young girls the world over. It is the love story, specifically, of Jodie Maywood, but it is the eternal experience of vulnerable, unpredictable youth as well." P. T.
+ Sat R of Lit 34:38 Je 23 '51 270w

Wis Lib Bul 47:215 S '51

LARDNER, JOHN. White hopes and other tigers. 190p il $2.75 Lippincott
796.83 Boxing—History 51-3082

Describes the 1910 to 1930 period in heavyweight boxing in the United States. Index.

Booklist 47:342 Je 1 '51

Reviewed by Robert Cromie
Chicago Sunday Tribune p9 Ag 12 '51 240w

"A gaudy field in excellent recall."
+ Kirkus 19:175 Mr 15 '51 130w

Reviewed by R. W. Henderson
Library J 76:1128 Jl '51 40w

"Books on sports are a dime a dozen. This one should be a dollar a carat. It is pure gold. Pure Lardner, that is. John Lardner, that is." Red Smith
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p15 My 20 '51 550w

"White Hopes are sketched in with a prose of infectious discovery. Mr. Lardner comes upon new views and pleasurably shares them with the reader. His style is crisp and convincing, and the general effect is picturesque and animated. Having in my youth actually followed the events portrayed, I appreciate the gusto and humor that the writer displays through the twenty years he covers. And as one who appreciates boxing and its long history, I am delighted such an able author should make it his workshop." E. P. F. Eagan
+ N Y Times p6 My 20 '51 850w

LAROM, HENRY V. Bronco Charlie, rider of the pony express; il. by Wesley Dennis. (Whittlesey house publication) 48p $2 McGraw
Miller, Charlie—Juvenile literature 51-12232

"Stirring tale of Charlie Miller's first trip as a boy Pony Express rider. Bronco Charlie, now over 100 years old, lives in New York City and has recently spoken before groups of children. Spirited drawings by Wesley Dennis on almost every page. Ideally suited to ages 8, 9 and 10." Library J

Booklist 48:109 N 15 '51

Kirkus 19:318 Jl 1 '51 120w

"Should be very popular and highly useful in all public and school libraries." M. E. Martignoni
+ Library J 76:1713 O 15 '51 50w

LAROM, H. V.—Continued
Reviewed by L. S. Bechtel
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p30 O 7 '51 60w

"Nicely scaled in suspense for 6-to-10-year-olds. . . Wesley Dennis' illustrations are among the nicest he has done." E. L. Buell
+ N Y Times p38 O 14 '51 60w
San Francisco Chronicle p13 N 11 '51 50w

LARTHOMAS, PIERRE HENRI. Solitaire; tr. by Betty Askwith [Eng title: Meeting]. 158p $2.50 Houghton
51-12687

"A lonely French bank cashier befriends a derelict character whom he sees in the street, takes him home, binds up his hand, and discovers that he has just killed a woman. He listens to some of the story of his life, which includes experiences of concentration camps during the war, and tells the reader something about himself. Ultimately the murderer throws himself under a train, but for the cashier the encounter has been of the deepest significance; he no longer feels isolated." Times [London] Lit Sup

"On psychological grounds the author has depth and emotional values, but often the tenuous delving into the agonies of achieving self expression become tiresome to the reader. Limited appeal."
Kirkus 19:541 S 15 '51 190w

Reviewed by Elizabeth Jenkins
Manchester Guardian p4 O 27 '50 110w

"'Solitaire' is a terse and even dramatic novelette with the scenery that one can observe in the more dismal French films. The only trouble is that the murderer—not to mention the murdered girl—seems to be in the story mainly for the purpose of awakening in M. Thierry the idea that he may perhaps succeed in getting out of himself." Gouverneur Paulding
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p18 S 23 '51 490w

"Larthomas writes with compassion lighted by clarity. Besides telling a difficult tale expertly and with mounting suspense, he makes his characters speak their (and his) complicated thoughts with ease and natural eloquence." B. V. Winebaum
+ N Y Times p39 O 7 '51 320w

"Mr. Larthomas gives a touching picture of an encounter, but the cause of the encounter and the result of it are desperately contrived and hollow."
New Yorker 27:115 S 22 '51 100w
San Francisco Chronicle p14 D 9 '51 250w

"The writing is beautifully spare, trimmed carefully to reveal the simplicity of story and theme. The book can be read at a sitting, but despite its somber materials, it leaves a warm glow of enriched understanding and hope."
+ Sat R of Lit 34:37 D 22 '51 110w

"The tale, I fear, makes a portentous to-do of mere inexperience; it is made-up and empty."
— Spec 185:26 Ja 5 '51 220w

"The style is agreeably terse and the book makes a sharp impact in spite of a manifestly contrived situation. The translation is smooth and readable."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p673 O 27 '50 100w
Wis Lib Bul 47:216 S '51

LASERSON, MAX M. American impact on Russia; diplomatic and ideological, 1784-1917. 441p $5 Macmillan
327.73 Russia—Foreign relations—U.S. U.S.—Foreign relations—Russia 50-12185

For descriptive note see Annual for 1950.

"A constitutional history of the Russian Empire in English is a primary lack for those who seek to understand and teach the government of the Russian Empire. In the guise of an engaging account of the impact upon Russians of political ideas emanating from Americans, Professor Laserson has written a book which goes far to provide such a constitutional history. Teachers will still require the Russian language texts of Korkunov and Lazarevsky, but they will now have something to assign their students along with Leroy-Beaulieu's The Empire of the Tsars and Vernadsky's various brief discussions of the subject." J. N. Hazard
+ Am Hist R 56:563 Ap '51 450w

"Unfortunately, and contrary to the exaggerations of cover advertisement and preface, The American Impact on Russia is neither 'highly original' nor 'the first of its kind in English.' . . Lest these remarks be considered unduly harsh, we should observe that once the dubious claim to 'pioneer attempt' is dropped, Mr. Laserson's ambitious study will undoubtedly be found worthy of notice—in large part as a popularization of already existing materials." David Hecht
+ — Am Pol Sci R 45:267 Mr '51 400w

"This useful book is one of a growing number of studies that recognize the influence of the United States in world history. . . The book could have been pruned considerably if the author had been more faithful to his title. Much of his account is concerned with the impact of Russia on America, which is an entirely different story." T. A. Bailey
+ — Ann Am Acad 274:215 Mr '51 480w

Reviewed by A. W. Taylor
Churchman 165:17 N 1 '51 330w
Foreign Affairs 29:500 Ap '51 30w
Times [London] Lit Sup p79 F 9 '51 1250w

"'The American Impact on Russia' is a serious and valuable, if somewhat heavily written, pioneer study of Russian attitudes towards America from the reign of Catherine II to the Bolshevik Revolution. A former professor in Russia and Latvia, now Lecturer in Legal and Political Philosophy at Columbia University, Dr. Laserson is concerned mainly with American ideological influences in Russia, and his book contains much fascinating material that will be entirely new to most American readers." Gleb Struve
+ Yale R n s 40:557 spring '51 350w

LASKER, EDWARD. Adventure of chess. 296p il $3.95 Doubleday
794.1 Chess 50-10928

The first part of this book deals with the history of chess, and with some of the outstanding personalities who have been connected with it. Partial contents of this part are: Historic kaleidoscope; The literature and the early masters of reformed chess; Reminiscences of the great masters of our era; Chess, music, and mathematics; Chess in literature and art; Chess-playing automata. Part two contains a primer of chess.

Booklist 47:170 Ja 1 '51

Reviewed by John Randolph
Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 Ja 7 '51 160w

"Pleasant rambling reminiscences for old hands and easy and rewarding reading for the novice."
+ Kirkus 18:651 O 15 '50 200w

"The book is garnished liberally with many anecdotes which show well the game's tremendous popularity throughout the centuries. Recommended." R. P. Breaden
+ Library J 75:2076 D 1 '50 120w

"To the steadily growing library on the royal game, the veteran knight Edward Lasker now adds one of the best books I have ever read. The volume is well organized." Alfred Kreymborg
+ N Y Times p19 D 17 '50 300w

LASKER, EDWARD. Chess secrets I learned from the masters; with thirty-two drawings by Kenneth Stubbs. 428p $5 McKay
794.1 Chess 51-9263

Briefly set forth in an introduction the author's life story is: born and educated in Germany, moved to London shortly before the first world war, emigrated to the United States shortly thereafter. His autobiography, however, is concerned almost entirely with his experiences playing chess, in and out of season, and his meetings with famous chess players in Europe and America.

Booklist 47:325 My 15 '51

Bookmark 10:155 Ap '51 30w

Reviewed by Robert Cromie
Chicago Sunday Tribune p8 Mr 11 '51 110w

Reviewed by Alfred Kreymborg
N Y Times p14 F 25 '51 130w

"In describing his memorable matches with such men as Emanuel Lasker, José Capablanca, Alexander Alekhine, and Richard Reti, he not only recalls each game, play by play, and illustrates it with diagrams but writes deft little personality sketches of his opponents. Since most great chess players are fairly odd creatures, these pieces are very amusing. The book is technical in places, but there is nothing a competent amateur can't grasp."
+ New Yorker 26:107 F 10 '51 100w

Springf'd Republican p8C F 18 '51 130w

LASSMAN, GRACE HARRIS. Language for the preschool deaf child; forewords by S. R. Silverman and Harriet Montague. 263p il $5.50 Grune

371.912 Deaf—Means of communication 50-10170

"Sets forth the problems created by deafness and then goes on to give practical suggestions and specific techniques for guiding the language and speech development of preschool children with hearing losses. Though the book is addressed to students, teachers, and parents, the author directs sections throughout the book specifically to parents whose active role in the education of their deaf children she rightly deems indispensable." El School J

"Will fill a need long felt by parents and teachers of young deaf children." Alice Streng
+ El School J 51:468 Ap '51 600w

"A psychological and educational story, easy and fascinating to read and enriched by excellent photographs and a carefully selected bibliography. A wealth of practical experience with the young deaf child is presented with warmth, simplicity, and clarity. In spite of treating a specific problem, the author never loses sight of the child as a whole." E. M. Kaufmann
+ School & Society 74:154 S 8 '51 650w

LASSWELL, HAROLD DWIGHT. National security and individual freedom. 259p $3.50 McGraw

323.4 U.S.—Defenses. Liberty. U.S.—Economic policy 50-12917

"Although Harold Lasswell holds the post of Professor of Law, Yale University, his specialized training is as a political scientist and psychologist. . . In the present volume, Lasswell examines the significance for the fundamental values of a democracy of the conflict, now dominant in the world, between statism and democracy. Specifically, the study looks at the continuing crisis of defense as it may affect these four principles of a free society: civilian supremacy, freedom of information, civil liberties, a free economy." (Publisher's note) Index.

Reviewed by McGeorge Bundy
Am Pol Sci R 45:534 Je '51 400w

Reviewed by L. T. Heron
Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 F 25 '51 100w

Current Hist 21:96 Ag '51 40w

Foreign Affairs 30:159 O '51 30w

Management R 40:158 Mr '51 350w

"Those who may be led by the title of his book . . . to expect from it a critical appraisal of the extent to which security has already been impaired by unnecessary loss of freedom will be keenly disappointed. There is a mildly hair-raising chapter on what might happen in a 'garrison-police state.' . . But there are no more than oblique and parenthetical references to the wholesale loyalty investigations, the prevalence of vigilantism, the spread of police surveillance, the wire-tapping, the proliferation of test oaths, and the whole array of extra-legal punishments for heterodoxy which have already become familiar." Alan Barth
Nation 171:656 D 16 '50 1100w

Reviewed by J. K. Galbraith
N Y Times p3 N 26 '50 1050w

"Professor Lasswell argues eloquently for the security of the nation and the freedom of the individual. At the same time he succeeds in maintaining the discussion at a concrete level. His suggestions appear realistic and workable. But the subject matter covered in National Security and Individual Freedom is necessarily wide in scope, and it is, therefore, to be expected that the author would fall short in some areas. The discussion of maintaining economic freedom leaves much wanting." S. A. Levitan
+ — Pol Sci Q 66:132 Mr '51 750w

Reviewed by J. E. Burchard
Sat R of Lit 33:9 D 30 '50 700w

"The procedural suggestions are admittedly incomplete and likely to become rapidly obsolescent. The major contributions of the book are the formulation of the problem and the proposal of a framework of general principles for use in considering specific aspects of the security problem."
U S Quarterly Bk R 7:177 Je '51 290w

LASSWELL, HAROLD DWIGHT, and KAPLAN, ABRAHAM. Power and society; a framework for political inquiry. 295p $4 Yale univ. press

320.1 Political science 50-10115

"[The book] originated in a research project on wartime communications. The wartime partnership of the two authors has since been dissolved; Mr. Lasswell, the senior partner, has returned to his professorship at the Yale Law School, while Mr. Kaplan, a philosopher trained at the University of Chicago, has joined the teaching staff of the University of California in Los Angeles. Their common work does not represent a descriptive study of the political trends and forces of today. It aims rather to provide a basic framework for communicating the present hypotheses and findings of political science. Nevertheless, it is focused on two most urgent tasks of the present situation, the well-being of the people and the control of violence." (Survey) Index.

"Having heard the usual run of contra-Lasswell polemic these fifteen years, the reviewer is confident that this book will elicit even more intense versions of the familiar complaints, which sum to this: that Lasswell is not Charles Lamb or George Orwell. It is certainly true that Lasswell, though he is a masterful stylist, writes in a manner not conducive to rapid reading. His books are difficult, and this one more than most. For graceful essays on the past Lamb is admirable; and for vivid portraits of future horrors one consults Orwell. For a 'framework for political inquiry,' which uses the past to understand and deal with the future, one must turn to Lasswell. Grant him his purpose, then, and Lasswell must be studied with care by all who call themselves social scientists." Daniel Lerner
+ Am Soc R 16:118 F '51 1100w

Reviewed by Herman Finer
Ann Am Acad 275:179 My '51 950w

Reviewed by Gustav Bergmann
Ethics 62:64 O '51 1500w

Foreign Affairs 30:154 O '51 30w

"This deceptively small work is a vastly ambitious undertaking. . . The authors have not shown that an objective analysis of political-social process without value judgments

LASSWELL, H. D.—Continued
supports an inherently good system of political-social ethics; but, insofar as they have introduced their scheme of values into their analysis and description, they have, despite their effort to obscure the nature of their accomplishment, revealed some inadequacies in the contemporary practice and profession of man the political animal." T. I. Cook
J Philos 48:690 O 25 '51 4600w

"Collaboration between a leading political scientist and a young philosopher has produced an outstanding contribution to the systematic theory of the social sciences. . . Being a book of political theory, it is not easy reading. Yet, its study will repay the close attention demanded by the subject matter." Hans Kohn
+ Survey 87:44 Ja '51 400w
U S Quarterly Bk R 7:178 Je '51 300w

LASSWELL, MRS MARY. Wait for the wagon; with il. by George Price. 185p $2.50 Houghton 51-7401

Further chronicles of that dauntless trio: Mrs Feeley, Miss Tinkham, Mrs Rasmussen; this time on a trip back to California from Newark, New Jersey, in their own car, a 1926 Cadillac.

Booklist 48:101 N 15 '51
Reviewed by Marge Lyon
Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 N 4 '51 440w
Kirkus 19:498 S 1 '51 110w

"Good rowdy Americana, for readers who prefer something more robust than Henry Green." E. P. Walbridge
Library J 76:1703 O 15 '51 70w

"The story shows that a good joke can be juggled longer than you think."
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p21 O 28 '51 130w

"The synthetic shenanigans are accompanied by the customary melange of puns, malapropisms, vulgarisms, and quips, and cartoonist George Price is on hand again to illustrate it all with a zany touch not quite of this world. As we may have suggested by now, Lasswell fans will doubtless lap it up to the last syllable—and beat your reviewer to death with beer caps." C. L.
N Y Times p35 O 21 '51 360w
New Yorker 27:181 N 17 '51 100w
San Francisco Chronicle p23 N 25 '51 270w
Reviewed by E. J. Fitzgerald
Sat R of Lit 34:46 D 1 '51 110w

LATHAM, JOHN H. Lonesome longhorn; adapted from a longhorn tale by J. Frank Dobie. 220p il $2.50 Westminster press
51-9834

A western story for grades five to eight. It tells about a boy's devotion to his pet, a longhorn steer, his anxiety when he learns that Sancho had been sold, and what happened after the big cattle drive.

Booklist 47:369 Je 15 '51

"Adapted from a true longhorn tale by J. Frank Dobie, this splendid story for boys seems to come straight from the heart and memories of its author, son of a cowpuncher, who grew up in the southwest." Polly Goodwin
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p11 Je 10 '51 200w

"Recommended for all children's collections." M. D. Read
+ Library J 76:528 Mr 15 '51 70w

"The best Western of the spring for readers under twelve." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 My 13 '51 220w
U S Quarterly Bk R 7:247 S '51 70w

LATHROP, DOROTHY PULIS. Let them live [il. by the author]. 80p $2 Macmillan 591.5 Zoology—Juvenile literature 51-10177

A simplified presentation of the subject of animal conservation, suitable for ages nine to twelve.

Booklist 47:316 My 1 '51
Bookmark 10:158 Ap '51
Reviewed by Polly Goodwin
Chicago Sunday Tribune p11 My 6 '51 130w
Christian Science Monitor p10 Ap 14 '51 110w
Cleveland Open Shelf p16 Jl '51

"Neither Dorothy Lathrop collectors nor children should miss these drawings—probably the best that one of our most distinguished artists has ever done."
+ Horn Bk 27:192 My '51 240w
Kirkus 19:62 F 1 '51 130w

"Several inaccuracies are implied, but that is unavoidable in simplifications for children. As one of the first books on animal conservation for children, this fills a real need and should appear in all junior high and high school libraries." N. S. Chasteen
+ Library J 76:531 Mr 15 '51 80w

"Miss Lathrop's feeling for all living creatures is eloquently expressed. There is little sentiment here, chiefly facts put with dramatic impact, many clearly coming from her own life." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 My 13 '51 260w

"Beautifully illustrated book. . . It is gratifying that Miss Lathrop has not found it necessary in most cases to give human traits to the animals to make them interesting." F. A. Wiley
+ N Y Times p30 Ap 29 '51 140w
Reviewed by K. T. Kinkead
New Yorker 27:189 D 1 '51 60w

"Dorothy Lathrop's beautiful black-and-white drawings make this a book for art lovers as well as for everyone who is concerned with the preservation of wild animals and birds."
+ Sat R of Lit 34:47 My 12 '51 150w
Times [London] Lit Sup p9 N 23 '51 20w
U S Quarterly Bk R 7:247 S '51 60w

LATHROP, WEST. Unwilling pirate; il. by Edgard Cirlin. 277p $2.75 Random house 51-13111

A sea adventure for ages ten to fourteen. It tells of a New England boy captured by pirates who were terrorizing the Atlantic coast in the early 1700s.

Booklist 48:89 N 1 '51
Kirkus 19:297 Je 15 '51 130w

"Exciting. Recommended for ages 10-14." F. W. Butler
+ Library J 76:1574 O 1 '51 70w

"It is all well written and colorful, with a true feeling for the sea." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p22 N 11 '51 80w
Reviewed by Howard Boston
N Y Times p13 D 30 '51 140w

"This is a corking story, well told. The suspense never slackens, and the characterization is excellent. Even the pig and the rooster in the pirates' galley are distinct individuals. The illustrations are good." M. P. A.
+ Sat R of Lit 34:62 N 10 '51 230w

LATTIMORE, ELEANOR FRANCES (MRS ROBERT ARMSTRONG ANDREWS). Bells for a Chinese donkey; il. by [the author]. 126p $2 Morrow
51-4137

"A fishing village in China is the scene of this story about the doings of 5-year-old Kwei-li. That little girl's delight in a new donkey was tempered with wistfulness because he had no bells to jingle on his reins. When Kwei-li found a silver bracelet in a pirate's cave her determination to return it to its owner resulted in an exciting adventure, a new friendship and bells too." N Y Times

Booklist 47:405 Jl 15 '51
Bookmark 10:233 Jl '51
Reviewed by Polly Goodwin
Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 S 2 '51 140w

"A tantalizing peek at another land entirely within the framework of elementary school vernacular and understanding. Charmingly illustrated by the author."
+ Kirkus 19:293 Je 15 '51 150w

"Recommended." Lauretta McCusker
+ Library J 76:1341 S 1 '51 70w

"The little book combines action with detail and atmosphere on the very young reader's level. With its charming pictures, it is a happy introduction to real people both rich and poor living far away." L. S. Bechtel
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 Ag 19 '51 170w

"The background of everyday Chinese life is portrayed with the warmth which characterizes Miss Lattimore's work, and the appealing simplicity of the text is complemented by her drawings." Eugenia Garson
+ N Y Times p18 Ag 12 '51 70w

"An appealing story, written in an easy, lucid prose for children between kindergarten and the third grade." K. T. Kinkead
+ New Yorker 27:176 D 1 '51 50w
Sat R of Lit 34:58 N 10 '51 70w
Springf'd Republican p12C Ag 26 '51 70w

LATTIMORE, ELEANOR FRANCES (MRS ROBERT ARMSTRONG ANDREWS). Fig tree; il. by [the author]. 126p $2 Morrow 51-185

Eight-year-old Sallie lived in South Carolina. She had three brothers, so she prefered being a tomboy. In this story of one summer Sallie learns that it is just as much fun to sew, cook, and serve tea, as it is to climb trees and hunt treasure.

Booklist 47:261 Mr 15 '51
Bookmark 10:158 Ap '51
Reviewed by Polly Goodwin
Chicago Sunday Tribune p11 Je 22 '51 90w
Reviewed by J. D. Lindquist and S. M. Andrews
+ Horn Bk 27:247 Jl '51 80w

"Sallie is an independent little being, and has some amusing mishaps. Especially for little girls of the in-between age. Charming sketches by the author."
+ Kirkus 19:61 F 1 '51 150w
Reviewed by D. M. Blasco
Library J 76:782 My 1 '51 60w

"It is a gentle, happy, every-day story, easy reading for girls of Sallie's own age, offering them home situations they can understand, and a heroine with feelings and thoughts exactly on their own level." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 Ap 1 '51 170w

"This latest South Carolina story by the author-illustrator of 'Jeremy's Isle' is touched with exactly the right degree of mystery. Little girl readers who, like Sallie, are unhandy around the house will find the simple yet engaging account of her doings especially attractive." S. C. Gross
+ N Y Times p30 Ap 22 '51 140w
Springf'd Republican p16A Ap 1 '51 90w
Wis Lib Bul 47:123 My '51

LATTIN, MRS HARRIET (PRATT). Peasant boy who became pope; story of Gerbert. 179p il $2.50 Schuman
Sylvester II (Gerbert de Rëims) pope—Juvenile literature 51-9799

"Authentic though fictionized account of the life and times of the French peasant boy Gerbert who became Pope Sylvester II." (Library J) For ages 12 to 16.

"An interesting subject, but unfortunately this period is extremely confusing, to young people, and the style is loose and careless."
+ — Kirkus 19:65 F 1 '51 190w

"Recommended for children's and young people's collections." G. E. Cartmell
+ Library J 76:606 Ap 1 '51 70w

"An American medievalist here makes the tenth century alive and exciting." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p9 Je 3 '51 220w

"This biography gets off to a good start—the tenth-century background is well drawn—but it bogs down in a painstaking account of the complicated politics of that time. There are charming illustrations from contemporary sources." E. L. Buell
+ — N Y Times p26 My 13 '51 90w

LAU, MRS JOSEPHINE (SANGER) (FRANCES SANGER, pseud). Wooden mug [il. by Marian Larer]. 187p $2.50 Westminster press
50-9223

Story of Revolutionary war days in Vermont. Jane and Bram Drew discover a wounded Hessian soldier hiding in a cave and keep him supplied with food, but promise not to tell his whereabouts. After a time of anxiety their Hessian friend repays the whole family. For ages eight to twelve.

Reviewed by A. L. Shea
Chicago Sunday Tribune p10 F 11 '51 180w

"A lively glimpse of Colonial life in home and school."
+ Kirkus 18:519 S 1 '50 130w

"Exceedingly well-written story." Phyllis Fenner
+ Library J 75:1672 O 1 '50 100w
San Francisco Chronicle p19 N 19 '50 80w

LAUBACH, FRANK CHARLES. Wake up or blow up! America: lift the world or lose it! 160p $2 Revell
266 Missions. International cooperation 51-9911

"Dr. Frank C. Laubach, missionary, sociologist and educator, recognizes the capacity of America for world leadership and reform. It is his belief that the United States, with its natural resources and technological means must take immediate steps to end the 'groan and wail of the world's hungry, sick, exploited and illiterate.'" Springf'd Republican

Reviewed by G. A. Panichas
Springf'd Republican p16A Ap 1 '51 240w
Wis Lib Bul 47:117 My '51

LAURENCE, WILLIAM LEONARD. Hell bomb. 198p $2.75 Knopf
623.45 Hydrogen bomb 51-9101

A book on the hydrogen bomb, by the New York Times science news reporter who was the author of Dawn over Zero (Book Review Digest 1946). "The first two chapters describe what the hydrogen bomb is, how it differs from the present fission bomb, and a good deal about the problems that have to be solved if it is to succeed. The third and fourth chapters are concerned with the implications of the development of such a weapon, its military application, its effect on policy in the United Nations. The last chapter is a primer of atomic energy." (N Y Times)

LAURENCE, W. L.—Continued

Atlantic 187:86 Mr '51 190w
Booklist 47:201 F 1 '51
Bookmark 10:106 F '51 30w

"There is really nothing very new in Mr. Laurence's rather terrifying work to those who have kept abreast of the general field of development in atomic weapons. For the benefit of those who would wish for a closer, more technical peep at what makes an atom bomb work it is an admirable text-book. The amateur physicist will enjoy it." K. B.
+ Canadian Forum 31:94 Jl '51 210w

"Mr. Laurence's personal conclusions on the tactical value of the H-bomb are written in a masterful and convincing manner. His descriptions of the intricate technical questions and problems are crystal clear to the layman. His analysis of the political aspects has every appearance of being logical." W. J. Murphy
+ Chem & Eng N 29:603 F 12 '51 480w

"This is by far the most illuminating of any book to cross the desk of this reviewer on the subject of the hydrogen bomb. It might be designated as required reading to dispel fear." Roy Gibbons
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 Ja 28 '51 600w

"Mr. Laurence's views are certain to stimulate thinking and provoke strong replies. Other experts do not agree with him. Yet he has written both a simple and especially informative pamphlet on atomic energy as well as a passionate, though deliberate, message on what to do about it. Mr. Laurence clearly implies that he does not expect the worst. He sees a divine hand guiding the affairs of men and he has faith that mankind is marching forward, albeit by many advances and many retreats. This is the message of probably the best informed journalist on atomic energy in the world."
+ Christian Science Monitor p9 Ja 18 '51 750w

Foreign Affairs 29:490 Ap '51 30w

"Laurence writes with clarity and realistic vision as well as informed authority."
+ Kirkus 18:686 N 15 '50 130w

"As in his earlier book Dawn Over Zero, William Laurence has again taken a highly complex subject and made it understandable to readers lacking a scientific background. . . Particularly noteworthy is his discussion of the problems raised by the existence (?) of an H-bomb, and his conclusion that the U.N. plan for the international control of atomic weapons is outdated and requires immediate re-examination." J. E. Brown
+ Library J 75:2148 D 15 '50 140w

Nation 172:160 F 17 '51 220w

"Laurence is to be read, if at all, with circumspection. One's confidence in his grasp of technical as well as political problems is disturbed by his contradictions." J. R. Newman
New Repub 124:18 Ja 22 '51 1300w

Reviewed by G. P. Thomson
New Statesman & Nation 41:600 My 26 '51 500w

"In the field of popular atomic literature William Laurence ranks as one of the foremost writers. He has a remarkable ability to translate the tough technical facts of modern science into a form which is lively and even exciting. Furthermore, Mr. Laurence has a wide acquaintance with the leading figures of the scientific world so that his story of the hydrogen bomb should have a ring of truth to it." R. E. Lapp
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Ja 7 '51 1500w

"It would be comforting, indeed if we could agree with Mr. Laurence and his conclusions in 'The Hell Bomb.' Yet we cannot take the book on faith, and it certainly does not prove its case." W. A. Higinbotham
N Y Times p3 Ja 7 '51 1650w
New Yorker 26:90 Ja 27 '51 250w

Reviewed by Don Fabun
San Francisco Chronicle p14 Ja 21 '51 650w

"The best of Mr. Laurence's book is contained in the first eighty-seven pages—a discussion of the probable characteristics of the H-bomb. . . The latter section may appeal to many. It reinforces without serious questioning three popular ideas." David Bradley
+ — Sat R of Lit 34:17 Ja 6 '51 1000w
Wis Lib Bul 47:85 Ap '51

LAURITZEN, JONREED. Rose and the flame. 309p $3.50 Doubleday
51-10191

Romantic novel of the American Southwest in 1680, when Spaniards and Indians were fighting for possession of the land. The exiled Duke of Toledo, his two daughters, and a famous Spanish swordsman called El Tigre are the chief characters.

"The sense of open country is authentic and powerful, full of the details that come only from actual observation by what is cheerfully called the naked eye. Here too are new twists to the old romance and adventure combination. . . It is the Navajo material which is probably the finest section of the novel, coming with a clean force into a narrative which often suffers from superficiality of characterization and too easy division of men and women into good and bad." Paul Engle
+ — Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 Ap 22 '51 400w

"A lusty tale which has a vivid quality."
+ Kirkus 19:133 Mr 1 '51 110w

"A robust recital of adventure, tinged with philosophy. Devotees of Sabatini will gulp it down."
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p11 Ap 15 '51 150w

"A combination of explicit violence, nature writing and philosophical asides gives an uneven texture to the novel, but the total effect is one of swashbuckling vigor." James Kelly
+ — N Y Times p20 Ap 22 '51 350w

"A fine adventure story, a costume piece in which (bless you, Mr. Lauritzen) the characters do not always speak in parables but usually speak their minds in intelligible declarative sentences. Also, the author is at home in the religion with which the story is concerned and, as a result, his description is therefore adequate." R. H. D.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p24 Je 10 '51 320w

Reviewed by Herschel Brickell
Sat R of Lit 34:19 Jl 7 '51 310w

LAUTERPACHT, HERSH. International law and human rights. 472p $8.50 Praeger
341 International law. Civil rights A51-4824

For descriptive note see Annual for 1950.

"What scholars owe to Professor Lauterpacht is not only his exacting scholarship, which omits no detail of a problem from careful examination, but his tendency at all times to have recourse to fundamental principles and to interpret treaties liberally in the light of the objectives proclaimed by the parties. . . The present volume might be described as an application to the problem of fundamental human rights of the principles of the author's earlier volume, The Function of Law in the International Community, which belongs among the most significant contributions of this generation to the science of international law." C. G. Fenwick
+ Am Pol Sci R 45:229 Mr '51 850w

"The book is a substantial contribution which international law scholars will find closely reasoned and systematically presented. Interested lay persons will find it a readable and comprehensive treatment of one of the vital subjects of our time." W. J. Ronan
+ Ann Am Acad 275:167 My '51 460w

Reviewed by N. T. Dowling
Columbia Law R 51:670 My '51 1300w

"An important book."
+ Foreign Affairs 29:489 Ap '51 60w

"For those who have felt that the orthodox concepts of international law are in need of basic revision, this book will be a welcome source of cogent analysis; and the author's willingness to accept the full implications of his belief in the rights of the individual will appeal to many who are weary of verbal declarations of general principles." Cord Meyer
+ Harvard Law R 64:519 Ja '51 1700w

"Recommended for large public and research libraries." Donald Wasson
+ Library J 76:327 F 15 '51 110w

LAVRIN, JANKO. Ibsen: an approach. 139p $3 British bk. centre

839.8226 Ibsen, Henrik [50-58198]

"The battles engendered by the plays of Henrik Ibsen have long since subsided and are almost forgotten save by literary historians, but Ibsen the man is still a figure of intense interest. Professor Lavrin here reconstructs the man and thereby reinvests the dramas with life as he relates them to their times. . . It is chiefly in his capacity as pioneer that Professor Lavrin presents Ibsen." San Francisco Chronicle

"Recommended for large theatre and drama collections." George Freedley
+ Library J 75:2013 N 15 '50 20w

San Francisco Chronicle p33 D 10 '50 120w

Reviewed by R. D. Charques
Spec 184:119 Jl 28 '50 800w

Times [London] Lit Sup p566 S 8 '50 2000w

LAWLER, JOHN. H. W. Wilson company; half a century of bibliographic publishing. 207p il $3 Univ. of Minn.

655.4747 Bibliography. Wilson, H.W., firm, publishers. Wilson, Halsey William 50-7593

For descriptive note see Annual for 1950.

"The H. W. Wilson Company is the story of an extraordinary publishing house. . . The book is a skilfull blend of bibliography, company history, and technical exposition and should be read by all—and their number must be large—who have marveled at the industry, attention to detail, and regard for accuracy that the Wilson publications exemplify." P. M. Angle
+ Library Q 21:134 Ap '51 450w

"Mr. Lawler's narrative is more than a mere success story; it explains in detail Wilson operations and methods, and by example or inference offers valuable advice to anyone concerned in any type of research. A selective list of Wilson indexes and services and a chronological roster of general publications gives the uninitiate some conception of the tremendous scope of the company's activities. The lighthouse throws its beams far."
+ Sat R of Lit 34:39 F 3 '51 260w

"To the seasoned librarian, thoroughly acquainted with The Wilson Company's publications, this book could be pleasant reading; to the novice, who is just becoming acquainted with these library tools, the book is fascinating, and a revelation of their great importance to librarians—and to all research workers in many fields." M. L. Sleght
+ Special Libraries 42:265 S '51 450w

Wis Lib Bul 46:18 O '50

LAWRENCE, JOSEPHINE (MRS ARTHUR PLATZ). Picture window. 308p $3 Morrow 51-5967

Character sketch of Bonnie Wheeler, who makes a success of her marriage, even though she has her mother-in-law and sister-in-law and her father and young brother in the same household, and keeps her job besides. Even the addition of a young sister-in-law and an elderly boarder to the house is not too much for Bonnie. The scene is New York City.

Booklist 47:394; 48:12 Jl 15 '51; S 1 '51

Reviewed by Riley Hughes
Cath World 174:315 Ja '52 140w

"This is a book that will appeal particularly to women readers but it is too bad that Miss Lawrence bothers to go into detail about feminine apparel or clutters her book with so much aimless talk at the bridge table." Mildred Walker
Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 S 16 '51 450w

"Like her heroine Josephine Lawrence happily combines several demanding jobs: she is housewife, newspaperwoman and novelist, and this doubtless helps her to view fairly all sides of a question. . . 'The Picture Window' is a notable addition to her portrayals of the American scene." Kathleen Cannell
+ Christian Science Monitor p11 S 6 '51 550w

Kirkus 19:330 Jl 1 '51 80w

"The stories of Josephine Lawrence find favor because they are forthright and free from tricks. 'The Picture Window' is not the frame of harsh reality, but a softened recognizable reflection of something not too unlike it." George Conrad
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 S 9 '51 390w

Reviewed by Charlotte Capers
N Y Times p23 S 30 '51 170w

"Miss Lawrence's style is chatty but stern, and her book provides informative reading of the most soothing and familiar kind—such as may be found, at breakfast time, on the labels of jam jars, on department-store circulars, and on the household and obituary pages of the morning newspapers."
New Yorker 27:114 S 8 '51 130w

"Here is an interesting and human situation filled with dramatic possibilities, and one feels both sympathy and real concern for the bold and blithe pair who have plunged into it." C. R. Sumner
+ Sat R of Lit 34:14 O 27 '51 550w

Reviewed by S. M. Neal
Springf'd Republican p12C O 21 '51 250w

LAWRENCE, MRS MILDRED. Tallie; il. by Paul Galdone. 213p $2.50 Harcourt 51-11740

Tallie was an orphan, rather "medium" in most ways, but very practical in contrast to the somewhat erratic Jarretts with whom she lived. When the family left Florida to live in Pennsylvania Tallie went along, and for the health and happiness of the Jarretts, it was just as well she did. For ages nine to twelve.

Booklist 48:16 S 1 '51

Christian Science Monitor p11 S 6 '51 40w

Reviewed by J. D. Lindquist and S. M. Andrews
+ Horn Bk 27:411 D '51 100w

"A warm-hearted, spirited adventure."
+ Kirkus 19:392 Ag 1 '51 130w

"Recommended for ages 9-12." D. M. Blasco
+ Library J 76:1434 S 15 '51 70w

"The Jarretts, every one, are people who 'stand out in a crowd.' They stand out well on the pages, an amusing but perhaps rather difficult family, whose talk is fun to read. Tallie progresses in ability and self-confidence until she really is one of the family. There is one of the funniest fox hunts ever reported, and a lovely treasure is found." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p7 S 2 '51 120w

"This is a story with many small parts, some of them unsoundly fitted to the lose structure. Tallie is an appealing little girl with fine traits, proudly determined to earn her own keep. Touches of genuine pathos and several humorous characterizations help make up for the contrived plot." Irene Smith
N Y Times p18 Ag 26 '51 140w

LAWRENCE, MILDRED—Continued

"It is the characters that make this story so satisfying... Humor is instinctive in every word of the story as it is in all of Mildred Lawrence's books. In this one, however, she has drawn her most memorable character. Tallie is a unique and lovable young person."

+ Sat R of Lit 34:45 S 22 '51 270w

Springf'd Republican p14C N 4 '51 100w

Wis Lib Bul 47:219 S '51

LAWRENCE, ROBERT. Victor book of ballets and ballet music. 531p il $5 Simon & Schuster

792.8 Ballet 50-11189

"Synopses of 130 ballets, with notes on the history and notable performers of each, and, for most, quotation of musical themes. The selection covers most of the works being produced currently by companies in the U.S. but is not comprehensive, and the material on each ballet is equivalent to full program notes. A selective discography of RCA Victor recordings of ballet music is appended." Booklist

Booklist 47:202 F 1 '51

Cleveland Open Shelf p15 Jl '51

"A reliable item."

+ Kirkus 18:587 S 15 '50 130w

"Like all of the Victor Book series, this compilation is useful—up to a point. . . The big defect of the book is the helter-skelter manner in which it seems to be put together. The scholarship is not exactly stringent, and there is little consistency." Rosalyn Krokover

Sat R of Lit 34:31 F 24 '51 270w

"Balletomanes, as well as teachers and students, will appreciate the brief foreword, 'Ballet Perspectives,' which contains an unusually comprehensive history of ballet. This feature, plus the musical excerpts and the many rare photographs, should assure a place for 'The Victor Book of Ballets' on the book shelf of every ballet enthusiast in America." Arthur Todd

+ Theatre Arts 35:4 Mr '51 400w

LAWS, GEORGE MALCOLM. Native American balladry; a descriptive study and a bibliographical syllabus. 276p $4.50 Am. folklore soc.

784.4 Ballads. Ballads—Bibliography 51-1319

"Mr Laws studies the ballads, or ballad imitations, of native origin before 1925—most of them, he admits cheerfully, pretty terrible—classifies and numbers them, and lists all the versions of each that have appeared in print. He turns up as much weird material as one might expect, and includes a beguiling account of what half a dozen people who have confessed to inventing ballads are like." New Yorker

+ New Yorker 27:122 Ap 28 '51 100w

"The chapters themselves form a valuable unit, but their value is increased by four excellent appendixes, each of which contains carefully selected bibliographical material relating to the 185 native American ballads forming Professor Law's canon. Of great value to the teacher and student of the ballad is, for example, the listing of recordings of these ballads to be found in the Archive of American Folk Song of the Library of Congress."

+ U S Quarterly Bk R 7:184 Je '51 210w

LAWSON, ROBERT. McWhinney's jaunt; il. by the author. 77p $2.50 Little

51-6023

Describes, with picture, the summer's jaunt of Professor McWhinney, inventor of Z-gas. The professor on his bicycle with its z-gas inflated tires, crossed the United States to Hollywood, and completely disillusioned with it, came back again, part of the way with tire trouble. For ages eight to twelve.

Reviewed by M. F. Kieran

Atlantic 188:103 D '51 150w

Booklist 48:16 S 1 '51

Reviewed by Fanny Butcher

Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 Ag 5 '51 350w

Kirkus 19:294 Je 15 '51 120w

Reviewed by Phyllis Fenner

Library J 76:1341 S 1 '51 60w

Reviewed by L. S. Bechtel

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p7 S 2 '51 270w

"This brief tale is a pleasure because of its freshness and the humor in its expert drawings. Children will enjoy especially the ingenuity with which the practical details of this fantastic trip are worked out." Irene Smith

+ N Y Times p22 Ag 19 '51 130w

LEACH, H. W., and BEAKLEY, GEORGE C. Elementary problems in engineering. 269p il $3.50 Macmillan

620.76 Engineering—Problems, exercises, etc. 51-11783

"An 'orientation' book for young men who are thinking of becoming engineers and for freshmen students in engineering colleges. The nature of the various fields of engineering is outlined. Essential operations in mathematics are explained, and fundamental mechanics are reviewed. A considerable part of the space is given over to problems for the student to work." N Y New Tech Bks

Booklist 48:6 S 1 '51

"Although the book is designed for use under an instructor, senior high school students who are preparing to study engineering will undoubtedly find parts of it illuminating."

N Y New Tech Bks 36:69 S '51

LEAF, MUNRO. Geography can be fun. 63p il $2 Lippincott

910 Geography—Juvenile literature 51-11167

In which a boy named George is taught how interesting geography can be, by means of simple drawings and text.

Booklist 48:71 O 15 '51

Kirkus 19:529 S 15 '51 210w

Reviewed by E. C. Alexander

Library J 76:1709 O 15 '51 70w

"Leaf at his best, in talkative text and lots of informal, amusing pictures... Yes, parents, when your young ones announce that they are starting geography and don't like it, you can rush for the new Leaf, and be fairly sure it will help them out, at ages eight to ten." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 S 16 '51 180w

"Parents will be amazed at the simple clarity with which Mr. Leaf presents facts that puzzled them in their school days. The drawings are delightful, amusing and to the point." M. R. Brown

+ N Y Times p36 S 23 '51 130w

"Amusing and informing book."

Sat R of Lit 34:73 N 10 '51 90w

Springf'd Republican p7C S 16 '51 60w

LEARNED, EDMUND PHILIP, and others. Executive action. 218p $3.25 Harvard univ. Division of res.

658.3124 Executives 51-110

"Report based on field-work to explore the human aspects of line and staff relationships, and to state and discuss the human problem of coordination of a team of executives in the management of a business. Many actual cases are described in detail in the course of developing the elements and building of executive capacity on the job." (Library J) Index.

Am Pol Sci R 45:574 Je '51 20w

Reviewed by J. S. Ellsworth
Am Soc R 16:589 Ag '51 180w

"This is a clear and simply written book which manages with considerable success the creative manipulation of a number of basic administrative concepts. If it appears to be a good deal less sophisticated than its equivalent literature in the field of public administration, it is also true that it deals with executive action in a simpler and less fluctuating value system." Rowland Egger
+ Ann Am Acad 276:159 Jl '51 800w

Reviewed by Winifred Baum
Chicago Sunday Tribune p14 S 23 '51 30w

Reviewed by J. E. Cross
Library J 76:183 F 1 '51 60w

"The author's material has proved stimulating and provocative to an old-timer like this reviewer, who looks back with humility on management's errors and successes of the past —and ahead with confident faith to an era of broad and enlightened executive action which will raise our modern civilization to greater heights of material and spiritual satisfaction." C. M. Chester
+ Management R 40:311 My '51 650w
U S Quarterly Bk R 7:188 Je '51 230w

LEBER, CHARLES TUDOR, ed. World faith in action; the unified missionary enterprise of Protestant Christianity. 345p il $3 Bobbs
266 Missions 51-10349

"In this symposium twelve Christian leaders survey the world, section by section, and present their views of the missionary outlook. It will scarcely be necessary to say more about the competence with which these contributors treat their fields than to note that W. A. Visser 't Hooft writes about Europe, Emory Ross about Africa, Stanley Rycroft about Latin America, Frank Laubach about the problem of illiteracy, and Roswell Barnes about the organization of religious forces in America." Christian Century

Booklist 47:355 Je 15 '51

"This will be a very useful book of reference for all who are interested in the expansion of Christianity; and unlike most books of reference it can also be read with profit." W. E. G.
+ Christian Century 68:1379 N 28 '51 110w

LE BOURDAIS, DONAT MARC. Canada's century. 226p il $4 British bk. centre
917.1 Canada—Industries and resources. Natural resources—Canada [A51-9883]

"A bright future for Canada is forecast on the basis of the country's great natural resources. This survey of the physical features and economic geography of the country as a whole gives special attenion to the less well-known areas, such as the Canadian Shield, where minerals, oil, water, and timber are being developed. End-paper maps only." Booklist

Booklist 48:99 N 15 '51

Reviewed by C. H. Grattan
New Repub 125:17 S 24 '51 850w

LEE, JAMES AUGUSTINE. Materials of construction for chemical process industries. 468p il $6.50 McGraw 660.28 Chemical industries 50-10907

"A reference book of information about materials that have been successfully used in industrial chemical plants. The arrangement is alphabetical by name of product; for example: aluminum fluoride, aluminum sulphate, amino acids, ammonia, ammonium chloride. The range of information for each substance varies considerably. For the more important products it includes not only specific information about materials used in processing plants but concise descriptions of the process itself including, in many cases, a flow sheet and methods of handling and packaging." Library J

"As a primary source of practical information on construction materials in the chemical industries this book fills a long-felt want." G. H. Young
+ Chem & Eng N 29:818 F 26 '51 220w

"If one must find a fault with the book it would possibly lie in the need for more complete operating experience with some of the chemicals, particularly some of the less commonly used ones. This is of course not really a fault since the amount of data presented can be no greater than the amount of information which has been published or is available to the author. . . The book should provide a highly useful guide and reference work for all who are concerned with design, construction and maintenance of chemical process equipment as well as for engineering students." W. Z. Friend
+ — Chem Eng 57:267 D '50 950w

"The author has interpreted the term 'chemicals' liberally, hence apple products, apricots and beer are included along with less delectable substances. The book concludes with a useful directory of materials and their manufacturers." R. R. Hawkins
Library J 76:118 Ja 15 '51 140w
N Y New Tech Bks 36:4 Ja '51

LEE, ROY, pseud. See Hopkins, C.

LEECH, CLIFFORD. Shakespeare's tragedies, and other studies in 17th century drama. 239p $3.50 Oxford
822.33 Shakespeare, William. English drama —History and criticism [50-11616]

"A learned discussion of Shakespeare, his influence on other playwrights in the century of his death, and the discussion of the religious influence on drama and the audience." Library J

"A genuine contribution to university and large public library theatre collections." George Freedley
+ Library J 75:2013 N 15 '50 40w

Reviewed by H. B. Charlton
Manchester Guardian p4 D 8 '50 230w

"A disconcerting book. The publisher's summary states that the studies which it contains 'are related by a continuity of argument.' But the line of the argument, like the precise nature of the 'basic ideas on the nature of tragedy' which are said to inform the whole work, remains in doubt to the end. The reader is left with the feeling that, unless he has failed to understand Mr. Leech, the publisher has claimed for his book more than is honest. . . The book contains some interesting suggestions; but few of them have been adequately tested, and it is hard to avoid the conclusion that Mr. Leech has failed to think matters out sufficiently rigorously."
Times [London] Lit Sup p724 N 17 '50 1700w

LEFFLER, GEORGE LELAND. Stock market. 580p $6 Ronald 332.61 Stock exchange 51-9296

"[A review] of the operations and functions of the stock market under current conditions. Describes in detail the market and the exchange which have developed with the advent of the Securities and Exchange Act, the reorganization of the exchanges, and the widespread changes in trading practice and procedures." (Management R) Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 47:232 Mr 1 '51

"Clear and comprehensive." J. E. Cross
+ Library J 76:412 Mr 1 '51 70w

"A comprehensive and up-to-date review. . . A clearly written and helpful guide to all aspects of stock market operation."
+ Management R 40:104 F '51 80w

LE FORT, GERTRUD, FREIIN VON. Song at the scaffold; tr. from the German by Olga Marx. 110p $2.25 Sheed

51-10168

"[A story] of 16 Carmelite nuns who were condemned to death by the guillotine. . . The heroine of this story is Blanche de la Force, a Carmelite whose fear of her fate drove her away from the convent and caused her to abandon her religion to save her life. It was not until her sisters, singing their psalms, mounted to the scaffold to meet their death, that she experienced the exultation of spiritual awakening, and, as she stood in the crowd that had gathered to watch, she joined in the singing." San Francisco Chronicle

Reviewed by G. F. Whicher
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p16 Je 10 '51 80w

"A highly polished little story." J. A.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p23 S 23 '51 120w

Reviewed by Ethel Dexter
Springf'd Republican p11D Je 10 '51 80w

LEHMANN-HAUPT, HELLMUT. Book in America; a history of the making and selling of books in the United States; in collaboration with Lawrence C. Wroth and Rollo G. Silver. 2d ed 493p $10 Bowker

655.473 Booksellers and bookselling. Publishers and publishing. Printing—U.S.

51-11308

"Chapters on book collecting and the growth of libraries are omitted in favor of new material resulting from research on nineteenth century American bibliography and book trade history. Other revision throughout the text." (Booklist) For first edition see Book Review Digest 1939.

Booklist 47:403 Jl 15 '51

"If you bought a copy of the first edition of this indispensable volume and think therefore that you need not buy the second edition you are making a grievous error which you should hasten to correct, for the chapters have been enlarged, improved, and bought up to date with the addition of at least 150 pages of new material and, as I said in a review of the first edition, 'Anyone interested in the making of American books [and every Library must be] will have to read this volume.' " R. W. G. Vail
+ Library J 77:37 Ja 1 '52 300w

"This classic treatment of the making and selling of books in the United States . . . was originally written for a European audience and published in Germany. It proved to be not only the best book on the subject but the only book covering all angles of the book trade in a single comprehensive volume. As extensively modernized, it should retain its position of authority for at least a decade to come." G. F. Whicher
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p14 Ag 19 '51 160w

"This is an invaluable study, to read for pleasure and instruction and to own for constant reference, and no one in any way associated with the making and selling of books in the United States can afford not to have it. Ten dollars could not be better spent." Chester Kerr
+ Publishers Weekly p182 Jl 21 '51 2700w

"In general the distribution of emphasis in the volume as a whole has been reversed to an extent that might raise the eyebrows of James Lenox or George Brinley—or even Theodore de Vinne. Some readers will perhaps consider that the editor has swung the pendulum too far: that in his legitimate desire to be up-to-date he has devoted too much space and too much detailed attention to purely contemporary trends, problems and personalities. . . And the last 150 pages of text in this 500-page book contain a deal of matter which will look very 'dated' in 10 years' time."
Times [London] Lit Sup p428 Jl 6 '51 400w

LEHMANN-HAUPT, HELLMUT. Peter Schoeffer of Gernsheim and Mainz; with a list of his surviving books and broadsides. 146p il pl $5 Ptg. house of Leo Hart, 1776 Clinton av, N, Rochester 1, N.Y.

B or 92 Schöffer, Peter

"A new life of Peter Schoeffer. . . Schoeffer's life is full of adventure. As a student he copied manuscripts for wealthy patrons; as a young man he collaborated with Gutenberg on the invention of printing; as a mature person he printed books and broadsides of significance; in old age he established himself as an international bookseller and publisher of renown. . . There is a list of all of the surviving books and broadsides from the press of Peter Schoeffer which Dr. Lehmann-Haupt 'located on the premises of the library of the former Prussian State in the Soviet sector of ruined Berlin.' " Publishers' Weekly

"The author has presented us with a very readable account of Peter Schoeffer; this study will help to make him better known to a wider circle of persons interested in the early history of printing. But it still leaves unsatisfied the need for a final, exhaustive study of Schoeffer, comparable to Schorbach's life of Mentelin." Rudolf Hirsch
+ — Library Q 21:228 Jl '51 420w

"Dr. Lehmann-Haupt retells the facts well with, perhaps, a tendency toward writing down. But Peter Schoeffer's activities as 'calligrapher and type designer, book designer and printer, publisher and newsprinter, bookseller, merchant, and citizen' are best studied from the copious footnotes. These notes have been added 'for the demanding reader, the student of early printing and of bibliography.' " Karl Karp
Publishers' Weekly p2082 N 4 '50 370w

"Dr. Lehmann-Haupt's study assembles most of the known facts about Schoeffer and his press from a great variety of sources and publications, mostly, of course, German and therefore not everywhere accessible. He has rendered a most praiseworthy service in presenting the result of his researches in compact form, admirably printed and illustrated with excellent reproductions."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p60 Ja 26 '51 1350w

U S Quarterly Bk R 7:12 Mr '51 260w

LEHNER, ERNST. Symbols, signs and signets [a pictorial treasury of symbolic designs]. 220p 1355il $8.50 World pub.

704.946 Signs and symbols 50-9861

A pictorial history of the symbols of the gods, astronomy, alchemy, heraldry, Japanese crests, watermarks, western cattle brands, and modern hobo signs. It samples the symbols men have used both before and after the development of the alphabet. The compiler is a Viennese expert in the graphic arts who has worked in many countries, including the United States. Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by A. S. Plaut
Library J 76:43 Ja 1 '51 80w

"A large, beautifully designed and produced compendium, well arranged by category, with compact, informative text." Lincoln Kirstein
+ New Repub 123:26 D 11 '50 100w

"Though this was designed chiefly for those interested in the graphic arts, it is the kind of book that anyone who has a fondness for the oddities of artistic expression can pore over with delight."
+ New Yorker 26:143 O 21 '50 120w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson
San Francisco Chronicle p35 D 10 '50 200w

LEICHTENTRITT, HUGO. Musical form [tr. and enl. from the 3d German edition]. 467p $6.50 Harvard univ. press

781.508 Musical form 51-11139

"This book is intended for all those who are interested in the problem of musical structure. It is based on the aesthetic premise that a mass of sound gains artistic value primarily by a sensible, rational form, a certain method of construction, which is closely allied to what we call style in art and which in fact is the main element of style. But the book is not meant to make prescriptions to the creative artist: it does not state any rules. Its purpose is merely to demonstrate what the great masters of the art have done, how they have treated the problem of form, how sensibly and practically they have understood the demands of the art of construction." (Preface) Index.

"It is a pleasure to welcome a volume by a distinguished scholar whose devotion to music and whose high integrity of purpose have combined to produce a readable book of lasting value. Hugo Leichtentritt, during his long years of fruitful activity in Germany and now in America, has published numerous volumes on music that have become standard source books. The present book on musical form, written in lucid, literary English by Dr. Leichtentritt himself, is an enlarged edition of his manual on the subject first published in German in 1911." Nicolas Slonimsky
+ Christian Science Monitor p9 Je 27 '51 350w

"Recommended." C. K. Miller
+ Library J 76:1228 Ag '51 120w

Reviewed by Arthur Berger
Sat R of Lit 34:39 Jl 28 '51 450w

LEIDZEN, ERIK WILLIAM GUSTAF. Invitation to band arranging. (Oliver Ditson ed) 195p $5 Presser

781.63 Band music

"A guide for self-instruction; covers scorings from vocal settings, arrangements from piano compositions, and transcriptions from orchestral works." Booklist

Booklist 47:233 Mr 1 '51

"To my knowledge this work is the best of its kind, although it suffers from a lack of perspective and from over-specialization. . . Written as it is by a professional practitioner of the arranging craft, tested in the studio with individual students, this volume will probably find its most effective use in such an area. One cannot but doubt its value in the conservatory or college classroom or as a ready reference on the library shelf." W. E. Nallin
+ Music Lib Assn Notes 8:350 Mr '51 900w

LEIGH, ROBERT DEVORE. Public library in the United States [the general report of the Public library inquiry]. 272p $3.75 Columbia univ. press

027.473 Libraries—U.S. Library surveys 50-9138

For descriptive note see Annual for 1950.

Am Pol Sci R 45:241 Mr '51 90w

"This volume should not fail to interest and embolden library administrators, every one of whom should give it thorough study. Here is a realistic program, based on sound sociological research, which can lead the public library toward the attainment of its proper role as a significant cultural institution in American society." M. A. Kateley
+ Ann Am Acad 273:262 Ja '51 470w

"The Public Library Inquiry was an impressive undertaking, well planned and exceedingly well carried out. And the General Report is a stimulating and often a challenging document." C. B. Roden
+ Library Q 21:129 Ap '51 3450w

LEIGHTON, MRS MARGARET (CARVER). The sword and the compass; the far-flung adventures of Captain John Smith; il. by James Leighton. 264p $2.75 Houghton

B or 92 Smith, John—Juvenile literature 51-11810

Somewhat fictionized biography of Captain John Smith, following his career from boyhood days in England thru the years as sailor, soldier and colonial leader. For junior high school readers.

Booklist 48:53 O 1 '51

Chicago Sunday Tribune p20 N 11 '51 190w

"Young readers who associate Captain John Smith mainly with Pocahontas will be thrilled and impressed by the high adventure of his colorful life. Captain Smith lives in these pages, and so does the seventeenth century, in England, France, Turkey, and the British-American colonies." S. M. A.
+ Horn Bk 27:334 S '51 60w

"An exciting story in all events, told with a straight face and copious fictional dialogue."
+ Kirkus 19:398 Ag 1 '51 150w

Reviewed by S. J. Johnson
+ Library J 76:1434 S 15 '51 40w

Reviewed by L. S. Bechtel
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 N 11 '51 190w

"The provable parts of Captain John Smith's life are as incredible as the fabrications with which they are entangled. In this lively story of Smith's adventures Mrs. Leighton makes no attempt to separate history from legend, but embroiders on both." Elizabeth Hodges
N Y Times p32 S 30 '51 90w

LEINSTER, MURRAY, pseud. See Jenkins, W. F.

LEITES, NATHAN C. Operational code of the Politburo. 100p $3 McGraw

329.947 Communist party (Russia). Central committee. Politburo 51-2482

"The fruit of a long and careful search in the voluminous writings of Lenin and Stalin to discover the operational theses and precepts of the Politburo, this slim volume is one of the investigations conducted by the Rand Corporation for the United States Air Force and is the first of a series of monographs in which the results of the Rand research are being made available to the public." (U S Quarterly Bk R) Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by C. E. Merriam
Am J Soc 57:290 N '51 370w

"The careful reader will discern contradictions, ambiguities, and overlappings of treatment in the various chapters, especially in the formulations derived from Bolshevik texts. One can quarrel with the author on these limitations only with difficulty; he admits and celebrates them. If one admits Bolshevik capacity to change the party line capriciously, one cannot worry too much about the presence in a code of conduct of divergent precepts. . . Unhappily The Operational Code gives comparatively little help in predicting choice where alternatives are closely balanced. The riddle remains, although Mr. Leites has taught us a great deal about the rules and strategy of the game." C. A. H. Thomson
Am Pol Sci R 45:1200 D '51 750w

"On the critical side, neither the quotations nor many of the deductions are new. . . Many of the alleged 'rules' of Politburo conduct are but the author's sweeping generalizations. . . Despite these shortcomings, and a style which hardly makes for easy reading, there is a good deal of useful material and incisive thought in the book." Julian Towster
+ — Ann Am Acad 277:269 S '51 500w

Foreign Affairs 29:676 Jl '51 50w

"Dr. Leites is aware of the problems and difficulties presented by historical changes and skimpy data. Fortunately his wide knowledge of the facts of Bolshevik history enables him to avoid some of the traps of a rather rigid method. Thus, at a number of points he distinguishes between Leninist and Stalinist political methods and assumptions, without falling into the Trotskyite line of regarding Lenin as a Jeffersonian democrat. Further, he tries to fill out the gaps by showing how Politburo

LEITES, N. C.—Continued
policy in recent years has been consistent with a number of the major doctrinal points sketched in each chapter." Barrington Moore
+ New Repub 124:19 Je 4 '51 650w

"Unfortunately, it is my impression that despite the considerable amount of labor which has obviously gone into the preparation of this book, it is so condensed that the result is neither adequately profound nor, at times, even accurate. Much as one would desire to simplify and codify Soviet methods and aspirations it is just not possible to reduce them to such flat, kindergarten terminology." C. L. Sulzberger
N Y Times p12 Ag 19 '51 650w

"Contains no sensational revelations but is a scholarly and sober digest of the writings of Lenin and Stalin which, in the author's opinion, determine the course of the Soviets' chief policy-making body. . . Mr. Leites has tackled a formidable task with praiseworthy courage."
+ Pol Sci Q 66:624 D '51 390w
School & Society 74:238 O 13 '51 40w
U S Quarterly Bk R 7:178 Je '51 240w

LEMAITRE, GEORGES. Primeval atom; an essay on cosmogony; with a pref. by Ferdinand Gonseth; foreword to the English ed. by Henry Norris Russell; tr. by Betty H. and Serge A. Korff. 186p $3 Van Nostrand

530.1 Atoms. Physics—Philosophy. Cosmogony 50-10506

"The hypothesis of the origin of the universe which is expounded in this small book, has been recognized as a significant one since its publication in French several years ago. The gist of the hypothesis is that the universe has evolved from a single primeval atom which underwent fission and gave rise to the matter and energy now in the universe. The hypothesis is carefully examined in the light of our present knowledge of the universe and is also compared to other theories and hypotheses pertaining to cosmic origin." (N Y New Tech Bks) No index.

Reviewed by A. J. Coleman
Canadian Forum 31:92 Jl '51 380w
N Y New Tech Bks 35:86 N '50

"There are some tough parts, with mathematics, but the basic ideas come through clearly. The translators, B. H. and S. A. Korff, deserve a kind word for a good job." J. W. H.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p25 D 3 '50 70w

LEMERT, EDWIN MCCARTHY. Social pathology; a systematic approach to the theory of sociopathic behavior. 459p il $4.50 McGraw

301.15 Defective and delinquent classes. Social problems 51-2206

"This book reinforces the evidence that more sociologists are studying social deviation objectively. Part I, 'Theory,' develops a set of concepts for analyzing deviant or sociopathic behavior and the societal response to deviation. Part II, 'Deviation and Deviants,' applies the conceptual apparatus to seven areas of sociopathic behavior: blindness, speech defects, radicalism, prostitution, crime, alcoholism, and mental disorders." Am Soc R

"The importance of this book must be judged by its contribution to a mature theory of social systems, social change, and social deviation. It is a definite step forward on a long path." A. K. Davis
Am Soc R 16:584 Ag '51 650w

"As another attempt to bring order out of the confusion of data and interpretations, this book has merit. But it would find broader acceptance if presented more modestly, less ponderously, and less negatively and if it were directed toward a well-defined audience." S. A. Queen
+ — Ann Am Acad 277:253 S '51 320w

"A careful examination of this splendid text indicates that Professor Lemert in Social Pathology has successfully formulated the first scientific frame of reference for the analysis of the social pathologies." M. G. Caldwell
+ Social Forces 30:247 D '51 900w

L'ENGLE, MADELEINE. Camilla Dickinson. 245p $3; readers ed pa $1 Simon & Schuster 51-3595

Character study of a fifteen-year-old girl forced into a sudden maturity by the separation of her parents.

Booklist 48:12 S 1 '51

"[The book] has the poignancy and wry humor of Carson McCullers 'Member of the Wedding' and will recall to some the tragedy in Elizabeth Bowen's 'Death of a Heart,' yet it seemed to this reader to breathe more strongly than either of these the excitement of the mere fact of living. That is a happy thing to find in a book of adolescence." Mildred Walker
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 Ag 26 '51 320w
Kirkus 19:138 Mr 1 '51 130w

"This is a tender love story which all girls will love. It is a sort of grown up 'Seventeenth Summer,' and the characters are well drawn, the values fine. But . . . and it is a big but . . . both Camilla and Frank's parents are treated in detail, and there is a good deal of sex and stark detail in the book. Recommended for cautious purchase and use with young people, more for individual use with girls you know." M. D. Read
+ — Library J 76:1719 O 15 '51 110w

"Telling her story through Camilla, Miss L'Engle succeeds admirably in portraying the painful awakening of a finely wrought adolescent. She is less successful in portraying some of the adults in the story. But in the realm of troubled, questing youth, Miss L'Engle has the sensitive touch of one whose emotional remembrance has the clarity of the living moment." Rose Feld
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 Ag 26 '51 410w

"Miss L'Engle has chosen New York as a backdrop. Her present-day New York is recognizable but, as often happens, it remains a fictional vacuum. No author to ignore challenges, she has further elected to write in the first person, from the point of view and in the thought idiom of 15-year-old Camilla. It is a narrative path thick with pitfalls. On the whole, she has traversed it well." Trudie Osborne
N Y Times p14 Ag 26 '51 220w

"The natural chasm existing between the girl and her loving but unhappy parents is suggested with great skill and balance, but Camilla remains a fortunate person, and pleasant to read about, because it is obvious that her path is laid in relatively safe ways and that nothing disastrous is likely to happen to her."
+ New Yorker 27:114 S 8 '51 90w

Reviewed by Harrison Smith
Sat R of Lit 34:18 S 1 '51 550w

LENORMAND, HENRI RENE. Renée; tr. from the French by Frances Frenaye. (Creative Age Press bk) 256p $3 Farrar, Straus 51-2609

"The young Parisienne depicted here with clinical precision and more than a trace of admiration is a prostitute whose chosen and thoroughly congenial career is interrupted during the Occupation, in a necessarily spasmodic way, by an idyll with an artist released from a German prison camp. . . When it becomes vital for her to wangle her young man into the Maquis, Renée undergoes a sort of spiritual convulsion." New Yorker

"In this first attempt Lenormand reveals decided gifts as a story-teller, and at times the episodes in 'Renée' take on the suspense of a James Cain thriller. It is to be regretted that he did not turn sooner in his career to the full-length novel." E. J. Sheffer
Nation 172:522 Je 2 '51 700w

"'Renée' was his first and last novel. Surprisingly good, it is reminiscent of his plays." Justin O'Brien
+ N Y Times p22 Ap 8 '51 300w
New Yorker 27:137 Ap 14 '51 150w

"The effect, rather than of a moving, flesh-and-blood novel, is that of a skillful documentary." L. V.
San Francisco Chronicle p22 Je 10 '51 380w

"For a while, as we read, we think that the novelist is intent on maintaining a severe, even cynical, objectivity; but suddenly with surprise we bite into the sentimental heart of the book. Sentimentality is not only present. It is, I am afraid, fatal. This does not mean that 'Renée' is not an interesting, even fascinating book. It is both. Lenormand was a skilful, practised writer. He knew how to create characters, how to build scenes, how to sustain interest and communicate excitement. He was a master of dialogue. He had the gift of brilliant brevity." B. R. Redman
Sat R of Lit 34:10 My 19 '51 700w

LENSKI, LOIS (MRS ARTHUR COVEY). Papa Small. [44p] il $1.25 Oxford
51-12477

For very small readers, this picture-story book recounts the day by day doings of the Small family from Monday's washing to Sunday's church going and afternoon drive.

Booklist 48:53 O 1 '51
Reviewed by Marcia Winn
Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 N 11 '51 50w
Kirkus 19:528 S 15 '51 100w

"Recommended." Elizabeth Sussdorff
+ Library J 76:1709 O 15 '51 60w

"It is a happy first book about a family for the very youngest. The toy-like figures, the use of one bright color, the clear arrangement of details, the humor, all prove this artist's mastery of appeal to the seeing eyes of the nursery age." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p30 O 7 '51 70w
Reviewed by Frances Chrystie
N Y Times p32 S 30 '51 90w
Wis Lib Bul 47:257 N '51

LENSKI, LOIS (MRS ARTHUR COVEY) Prairie school [il. by the author]. 196p $2.75 Lippincott 51-11169

Story of a little school on the South Dakota prairie, and the life children and parents and teacher live when a great blizzard paralyzes all moving things. For ages eight to twelve.

"The book gave me a thrill and I am inclined to think it might be a good thing to have around the house for those under-twelves who have to be bribed with television to do their homework and threatened with its withdrawal if they don't get a hustle on, school mornings." M. F. Kieran
+ Atlantic 188:100 D '51 290w
Booklist 48:16 S 1 '51
Bookmark 11:35 N '51
Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 N 11 '51 120w
Christian Science Monitor p11 S 6 '51 60w

"Miss Lenski's real understanding of her prairie children makes this another distinguished contemporary regional story." J. D. Lindquist and S. M. Andrews
+ Horn Bk 27:329 S '51 90w

"The children and the adults are very real people, some strong, some weak, but all living very close to the fierce elements they must face. Illustrated by the author, in her familiar style which though unfortunately creating some rather unattractive faces, makes its point."
+ Kirkus 19:319 Jl 1 '51 210w
Reviewed by Nelle McCalla
Library J 76:1343 S 1 '51 80w

"A most vivid account of life in the wheat and cattle country. . . Real prairie children will greet it with special affection, for it shows the fortitude and courage their way of life demands." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Ag 26 '51 160w

"This is a chronicle based on the actual experiences of real children, supplemented by drawings which bring the homely setting to life and emphasize the hardy, endearing qualities of the prairie people. It is one of the most graphic of Miss Lenski's regional stories." Elizabeth Hodges
+ N Y Times p18 Ag 26 '51 110w
Reviewed by K. T. Kinkead
New Yorker 27:175 D 1 '51 80w
School & Society 74:128 Ag 25 '51 10w

LENT, HENRY BOLLES. O.K. for drive-away; how automobiles are built. 152p il $2.50 Macmillan
629.234 Automobiles—Juvenile literature
51-11403

"In this 'how it is done' book Mr. Lent tells something of the early history of automobiles and the men who made them, and a trip is made through a modern Detroit factory where a step-by-step explanation is given of how an automobile is made, from the designer's sketches to the test runs of the new models on the proving grounds." Library J

Booklist 47:406 Jl 15 '51
Bookmark 10:233 Jl '51

"Recommended highly for young machinists and as background material for driving lessons."
+ Kirkus 19:187 Ap 1 '51 90w

"There is some writing down, but the book should be useful with mechanically inclined children from 10-12." M. M. Smith
+ — Library J 76:713 Ap 15 '51 70w

"This is a good book and a much needed one." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Jl 22 '51 150w

"This book is sure to be highly popular among today's mechanically minded youth." H. B.
+ N Y Times p12 Jl 29 '51 140w
San Francisco Chronicle p7 N 11 '51 40w
+ Sat R of Lit 34:36 Ag 18 '51 90w
Wis Lib Bul 47:220 S '51

LEONARD, CHARLES L., pseud. See Heberden, M. V.

LEONARD, J. EDSON. Flies; their origin, natural history, tying, hooks; . . . il. by the author; phot. by Jack Leonard and the Cameo studios. 340p $5 Barnes, A.S.
799.12 Flies, Artificial 50-58276

"The standard book on flies. A dictionary of 2200 patterns of dry and wet flies, nymphs, streamers, salmon flies for fresh and salt water in North America and British Isles, with chapters on hook design materials, etc. Scientific and common names of insects, useful tables and charts showing correlations. Black and white drawings, eight colored plates. Indispensable reference." Library J

Booklist 47:185 Ja 15 '51
Cleveland Open Shelf p7 Mr '51
Reviewed by R. W. Henderson
Library J 76:50 Ja 1 '51 70w
Wis Lib Bul 47:59 Mr '51

LEPRINCE-RINGUET, LOUIS. Cosmic rays; foreword by John A. Wheeler; tr. from the French by Fay Ajzenberg. 290p il $6.65; to schools $5 Prentice-Hall
535 Cosmic rays 50-11323

"A survey and explanation of the many theoretical and experimental studies made in recent years on the cosmic ray phenomena. Clearly written and well illustrated with pictures, diagrams, and charts. By no means light going and intended for the better-than-average reader." (Booklist) Index.

LEPRINCE-RINGUET, LOUIS—Continued

Booklist 47:201 F 1 '51

Reviewed by R. R. Hawkins
Library J 76:333 F 15 '51 150w

"An authoritative and exceptionally readable book on this technical subject."
+ N Y New Tech Bks 36:6 Ja '51

"Prof. Louis Leprince-Ringuet of the Ecole Polytechnique of Paris does not hesitate to display overt enthusiasm from time to time. The result is an informal, readable account of one of the most important fields of modern physics." John Pfeiffer
+ N Y Times p10 F 11 '51 290w

LERNER, ABBA PTACHYA. Economics of employment. 397p $4 McGraw 330.1 Economics. Unemployment 51-3292

"This is an interesting presentation of Keynesian economics in non-technical language by an authority on the subject. Though an economic theorist—and a leading one at that—Dr. Lerner has succeeded in writing about such things as the determinants of income and the marginal efficiency of capital so that they mean something to the intelligent layman as well as the student of economics." Library J

"The book has a good index but no bibliography. Students of economics whether in school or in practical affairs will benefit from the study of this book. . . Recommended for all public and college libraries." Edward Di Roma
+ Library J 76:1130 Jl '51 180w

Reviewed by E. Devons
Manchester Guardian p4 S 14 '51 450w

"Clearly and provocatively written, this excellent introductory textbook for undergraduates and general readers is an important contribution to the tremendous literature of Keynesian economics."
+ U S Quarterly Bk R 7:259 S '51 180w

LERNER, DANIEL, ed. Propaganda in war and crisis; materials for American policy. 500p il $4.75 Stewart
301.1523 Propaganda. Psychological warfare 51-11562

"A unique collection of writings by 24 authoritative contributors, selected to clarify 'some key problems that confront American policy in the present time of high tension.'" Bookmark

"Despite the general excellence of Mr. Lerner's editorial labors, it is regrettable that he did not take a more active role in order to make the central themes in the book more explicit and to relate important points raised in different articles." Alex Inkeles
Am Soc R 16:732 O '51 850w

Bookmark 11:57 D '51 30w

Kirkus 19:316 Je 15 '51 160w

"Excellent for current circulation and sociology reference." J. M. Scherr
+ Library J 76:1337 S 1 '51 140w

LERRIGO, CHARLES HENRY. The better half of your life; how to live in health and happiness from forty to ninety. 270p $3.50 Day
618.97 Old age. Middle age 51-12478

A physician who is himself approaching eighty writes this advice for men and women from "forty to ninety." Partial contents: Exercise after forty? Sleep; Eyesight; Personal attractiveness; Hobbies—small and great! Hopeful outlook for cancer; Your blood pressure and your heart; Stroke; Surgical care even in the nineties; No such disease as 'insanity.' Index.

"One cannot proceed very far into The Better Half of Your Life without realizing that a wise, kind, and cheerful doctor is talking to you as he would in the privacy of his office. . . While this book is primarily addressed to an aging audience it would be profitable reading for everyone who has attained the right to vote. Dr. Lerrigo's personal charm and sense of humor, added to sound knowledge and a rare literary style, are compounded into this volume which will richly reward all who read it." Frank Kiernan
+ Am J Pub Health 41:1536 D '51 320w

Booklist 48:44 O 1 '51

Bookmark 11:57 D '51 20w

Kirkus 19:372 Jl 15 '51 120w

Reviewed by A. H. Weiler
N Y Times p16 S 23 '51 320w

"There is little here that has not been said by others who have written on this topic recently. But Dr. Lerrigo puts his sound advice well, backs it up with accurate observation, combining medical and the psychological counsel in good proportion. If the subject interests you and you haven't already seen some of the many other books on the middle and older years, then this will give you what you want." J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p18 S 5 '51 150w

LESLIE, JEAN. Darling sin. 189p $2.50 Doubleday
51-10457

Mystery story.

Booklist 47:382 Jl 1 '51

"No depth charge, but smooth surface values."
Kirkus 19:140 Mr 1 '51 70w

"Dr. Paul's attempts to unravel the individual personalities make a better mystery than the rather thin murder plot itself."
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p15 My 27 '51 80w

Reviewed by Anthony Boucher
N Y Times p16 Jl 1 '51 120w

"The killer's identity is no great surprise, but that's not too important in the telling of a solid story and the honesty of its conclusions." L. G. Offord
+ San Francisco Chronicle p25 My 6 '51 60w

"Interesting characters in promising situation of psychological deeps—but opportunities seem mostly muffed, though book is very readable."
+ — Sat R of Lit 34:38 My 19 '51 50w

Springf'd Republican p5D Je 3 '51 120w

LESLIE, MARGUERITE. Song for Arabella; with thirty-seven ils. by Lumen Winter. 41p $2.50 Coward-McCann 51-5019

Arabella is a Stanley Steamer automobile, one of the collection of James Melton. This story of her life, and the song written for her, is for ages up to ten.

"A period tale that will appeal to young people of any age. The illustrations by Lumen Martin Winter are 'gay nineties' in character and quaintly delightful and funny." M. J. T.
+ Christian Science Monitor p7 Je 30 '51 80w

"An unusual, fresh item with double appeal."
+ Kirkus 19:292 Je 15 '51 150w

"Recommended for grades 2-4." M. F. Cox
+ Library J 76:1138 Jl '51 60w

"It will appeal to boys as old as ten. The style is not too distinguished, nor is the song at the end. The pictures are clever, but we could do without the garish colors used on half of them." L. S. Bechtel
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Jl 15 '51 130w

"Texts and illustrations have humor and authenticity. Although the use of garish color is unfortunate, the many black-and-white drawings and panoramic endpapers are in keeping with the spirit of this gay picture book." Eugenia Garson

+ — N Y Times p16 Jl 22 '51 140w

LESTER, RICHARD ALLEN. Labor and industrial relations; a general analysis. 413p $4.25 Macmillan
331 Industrial relations 51-3791

"A college textbook examines objectively both labor and management behavior, collective bargaining, and government intervention in labor-management affairs. Concise, straightforward writing makes the book suitable for use with general reader." (Booklist) Index.

"As an over-all appraisal, this is an excellent text to start the student thinking and to help him toward getting a 'feel' for the subject. It will not give him the 'last word' beyond question, but it will, by its own example show him the way to find his own answers in full view of his own value judgments." H. J. Lahne
+ Ann Am Acad 277:245 S '51 550w
Booklist 47:376 Jl 1 '51

Reviewed by J. E. Cross
Library J 76:1229 Ag '51 40w

"A book that will both stimuate and inform. Recommended for both public library and college library use." D. K. Oko
+ Library J 76:1569 O 1 '51 140w

"It is regrettable that there are not more books as well-planned and well-written as this one. Extensive research and careful planning are evidenced, and the author is quite objective in his presentation, being neither excessively pro-management nor pro-labor." J. W. Wissel
+ Management R 40:710 N '51 650w

LE SUEUR, MERIDEL. Chanticleer of Wilderness road; a story of Davy Crockett; il. by Aldren A. Watson. 160p $2.50 Knopf
Crockett, David—Juvenile literature 51-11087

The story of Davy Crockett, told for young people, a mixture of fact, legend and tall tales.

Booklist 48:174 Ja 15 '52
Kirkus 19:531 S 15 '51 180w

"Libraries will find this a good addition to existing Crockett material, useful for readers not ready for the fuller Rourke volume." Virginia Haviland
+ Library J 76:2014 D 1 '51 80w

"Young people over twelve will find it a colorful supplement to that best straight story of him, Constance Rourke's 'Davy Crockett.' It is much like Shapiro's 'Yankee Thunder,' another tall-tale life, but longer, and with much more from Davy's own lips. The Watson pictures, in two colors, catch the spirit of the text well." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p3 N 11 '51 320w

LEVENSOHN, LOTTA. Vision and fulfillment; the first twenty-five years of the Hebrew university, 1925-1950. 190p il $2.75 Greystone
378 Hebrew university, Jerusalem 51-10101

"Miss Lotta Levensohn, noted Jewish journalist and translator, tells the story of the conception, growth and development of the Hebrew University in Jerusalem during its 25 years of existence, 1925 through 1950. The author describes the struggle and tribulations of such men as Chaim Weizmann, Martin Buber and Judah L. Magnes in the establishment of this great institution." Springf'd Republican

San Francisco Chronicle p20 Jl 15 '51 90w
Springf'd Republican p8C Ap 29 '51 80w

LEVERIDGE, RALPH. Walk on the water. 341p $3 Farrar, Straus
51-9994

"A squad of a platoon of a rifle company in some Pacific jungle is in the line; the enemy is cruel and survival is by guile instead of rules. The squad is led by a vocal sergeant who knows that his father, a United States Senator, will use his son's war record for bombastic political purposes. Other riflemen in the squad are a little more obvious—the coward, the married man, the boy. Their effects upon one another dominate the story." N Y Times

Kirkus 19:74 F 1 '51 170w

"Incidents are so graphically described that the book cannot be recommended for library purchase." W. K. Harrison
Library J 76:514 Mr 15 '51 80w

Reviewed by Harvey Swados
New Repub 124:30 My 7 '51 230w

"There are some notable moments in this novel about G. I.'s fighting on a Pacific island, but they did not seem to me to be enough to rescue it from its hours of soggy symbolism." V. P. Hass
— + N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p14 Ap 8 '51 400w

"If one test of a good war novel is that it leaves the reader with an anti-war feeling, then 'Walk on the Water' reaches that standard quickly. Though the book may not last from now to eternity . . . the author helps to make some truths more apparent. . . The book's primitive details indicate what sometimes can be unbearable about the Army—not the enemy, not even the physical discomfort, but the continual assaults on a man's sensitivity." Herbert Mitgang
N Y Times p21 Ap 29 '51 220w

"All of this is presented through scenes of action and conflict that are intensely readable and persuasive. We believe that these men were this way and felt these things under fire. Unfortunately, our concern goes little beyond that. I think the fault lies in the lack of clear projection by Mr. Leveridge of a central purpose in telling us their story." E. J. Fitzgerald
Sat R of Lit 34:16 My 12 '51 330w

LEVERSON, ADA. The Limit. 256p $3 Norton

"The plan of 'The Limit' is essentially a triangle: lovely, frivolous Valentia Wyburn; her devoted, inarticulate husband, Romer; her handsome, dilettante painter cousin, Harry de Freyne. Around them are grouped the members of their London 'set': Lady Walmer and her athletic marriageable heiress daughter; Hereford Vaughan, a most successful playwright, equipped with innate decency and a level head; Miss Luscombe, still, after ten or fifteen years, an aspirant actress. And—a most important element in the plot—Van Buren, the American millionaire." Christian Science Monitor

Reviewed by Riley Hughes
Cath World 174:234 D '51 200w

Reviewed by Milton Crane
Chicago Sunday Tribune p8 Ag 19 '51 350w

" 'The Limit' is both less complicated and more subtle than most of the literary fare we are being offered these days; but that does not make it any the less delightful." R. A. C.
+ Christian Science Monitor p7 Ag 23 '51 300w
Kirkus 19:329 Jl 1 '51 190w

"Psychology of the women in The Limit is quite perfect; the men are not impossible types of early 20th century England. Problems are solved without great agony. Excellent summer reading." K. T. Willis
+ Library J 76:1336 S 1 '51 110w

" 'The Limit' is always lucid; what depths it has are real. And it is more amusing and has more substance than the large and hollow profundities decked out as fiction that have come my way this summer." Ernest Jones
+ Nation 173:216 S 15 '51 600w

Reviewed by A. L. Goodman
New Repub 125:20 S 17 '51 250w

LEVERSON, ADA—Continued

"An intelligent light novel is to be prized in any season and particularly in the dog days. These qualities and the acuteness and essential kindliness of the author's view of the human comedy make 'The Limit' more than a mirage of a time that is past and a way of life that never concerned more than a trifling few. The publishers are to be thanked for displaying to our sober times a period piece no less admirable and amusing than it was when it first saw the light of print." Mary Ross

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 Ag 19 '51 340w

"Because Mrs. Leverson had a shrewd eye, an acute inner ear, and a loving but informed heart, 'The Limit' despite the bric-a-brac of its French phrases, sprinkled by hundreds-and-thousands throughout its otherwise impeccably written pages, is as amusing today as it was in 1911—perhaps even funnier, for to each succeeding generation the preceding one (save since 1930) is hilarious." Leo Lerman

+ N Y Times p4 Ag 19 '51 550w

"If 'The Limit' is worth reading at all, it is as a demonstration of the vast improvement in taste, technique, and plain common sense in the fashionable novel that has resulted from the triumph of feminism and the disappearance of the overdressed, overfed, underexercised, undereducated, and intolerably idle nineteenth-century middle-class woman. It is only in the proletarianized literature of the pulp magazines and in advertising copy that one now encounters beings of the order of Valentia Wyburn." Anthony West

— New Yorker 27:82 Ag 18 '51 1350w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson

San Francisco Chronicle p14 Ag 23 '51 650w

"Readers who thrive on anguish, who like their literature purposeful, and who want all novels to be centered in the silo, the soil, or the soul, will find little to please and much to annoy them in 'The Limit.' Most decidedly it is not their dish of tea. Instead, it is meant for those who find laughter no hardship, high comedy a delight, nonsense relaxing, and who are not made uncomfortable by worldlings both comfortable and conscienceless. . . Her novel is the kind of comedy at which the English excel." J. M. Brown

+ Sat R of Lit 34:21 S 1 '51 2550w

Reviewed by C. P. Snow

Spec 185:82 Ja 19 '51 800w

"The style and elan of her writing are absorptions and reflections of the dexterity with which she whips the gossamer froth of her material into well turned bon mots, delightful barbs, and titillating feminine anguishes all in a perfection of good taste." L. S. Munn

+ Springf'd Republican p14A S 2 '51 450w

Time 58:114 Ag 27 '51 380w

LEVI, CARLO. The watch; tr. from the Italian. 442p $3.75 Farrar, Straus

51-11404

"Symbolical novel of vast scope in which the narrator views sharply and imaginatively Rome and Italy in 1946 and the changes wrought by time in people and institutions." Bookmark

---

"The Watch is at times eloquent or amusing, and at times the going gets moderately dull; it has not the sharpness and the poignant life of Christ Stopped at Eboli."

Atlantic 188:88 Jl '51 270w

Booklist 47:401 Jl 15 '51

"For mature, intelligent readers."

+ Bookmark 10:232 Jl '51 30w

"It would be wise to read The Watch, not for any program it may suggest, but for those sad and beautiful visions of an artist which are also to be found in it. And despite its weaknesses, The Watch does one thing superbly well: it demonstrates just how difficult—how tragic—is the situation of the liberal humanitarian in Europe today." R. L. Weaver

Canadian Forum 31:139 S '51 450w

Reviewed by Fanny Butcher

Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 Je 24 '51 450w

"This is a book which certainly will hold strong interest for those who have spent enough time in Italy to gain some feeling for the ways of its people. Whether it can appeal to those who do not know the country, whether its scenes are sufficiently broad to have an interest over and beyond the national border is another question." J. G. Harrison

Christian Science Monitor p7 Jl 9 '51 480w

"Carlo Levi's new book will never vie with his first novel, Christ Stopped at Eboli, in popularity. It appeals to a more limited number of readers. . . This second novel lacks both the intensity and the freshness of theme of the first. And the moods of the two works are so different. . . The Watch, instead, is nostalgic, it is mellow, and it does not look to any future but meditates on disillusionment. It is one of the most beautiful nostalgic works to have come out of Europe recently." Serge Hughes

Commonweal 54:436 Ag 10 '51 550w

"A perceptive observer, a polished stylist, Levi documents the darkening lives of post-war Italy in a narrative which has something of the quality of The Bicycle Thief."

+ Kirkus 19:252 My 15 '51 250w

"It is more reflective and perhaps more profound than Christ Stopped at Eboli, but it is not nearly so fascinating. As in the earlier book, it is full of memorable portraits and terrifying anecdotes, and all written with grace." G. D. McDonald

+ Library J 76:1027 Je 15 '51 100w

Reviewed by Frances Keene

Nation 173:54 Jl 21 '51 1600w

Reviewed by Richard Match

New Repub 125:21 Jl 30 '51 550w

"While all sorts of people come weirdly to life in these pages, from prostitutes to Cabinet ministers, the narrator's self-conscious observations constantly get in the way. The result is a farrago of images and ideas, but no clarity sustained about either. And the meaning of the 'Watch' of the title as a symbol and a dream the author has about it eludes this reviewer." Irwin Edman

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p3 Je 24 '51 1200w

"I love 'The Watch.' I find it a broader and deeper book than 'Christ Stopped at Eboli.' Some friends, whose judgment I value, tell me that I am partly wrong—that 'The Watch' is also diffuse, uneven and occasionally parochial. It may well be so. Yet the book has two qualities which would make up for many more blemishes than these: it has much serenity and some wisdom." Paolo Milano

+ N Y Times p4 Je 24 '51 1000w

"The cloudy confusion of the political thinking in the book is strikingly at odds with the precision of its comment upon things seen. The inner conflict in Levi is much more interesting than the conflict between the Contadini and the Luigini." Anthony West

+ — New Yorker 27:75 Jl 21 '51 1700w

Reviewed by William Hogan

San Francisco Chronicle p16 Jl 15 '51 600w

"Though not as powerful as [Christ Stopped at Eboli] 'The Watch' is equally well written. The characters are alive, and the scenes are graphically described with the pen of a painter who knows how to write. The result is a glittering mosaic, highly polished but lacking a definite pattern. There is no plot: 'senza storia,' to use his own words." L. G. White

+ Sat R of Lit 34:8 Je 30 '51 800w

"Here & there, The Watch has patches of writing as good as anything in Eboli. But its pace is slowed by irrelevant incidents and by tedious, pointless speeches on Italian politics. Few books have so sorely needed a firm editor."

Time 57:94 Je 25 '51 390w

Wis Lib Bul 47:255 N '51

LEVI, WERNER. Fundamentals of world organization. 233p $3 Univ. of Minn.

341.1 International federation 50-62847

"An analytical study of international organization. Mr. Levi dispenses with a description of what a future world government might be like. He is of the opinion that we must first know fully what prevents and delays action toward a world organization and what are the human foundations on which all social organization rests. He points out that the main purpose of world government would be the preservation of peace. If peaceful methods are to replace war they must be able to accomplish the purposes which nations attempt to fulfill by war." (Current Hist) Index.

"This is a thoughtful essay which emphasizes the shortcomings of the United Nations. Professor Levi feels that these defects stem primarily from the continued existence of a system of sovereign nation-states. . . It is no fault of the author's that his 'answers' are weak and disappointingly familiar. . . A broad sociological perspective is evident in this book, particularly in its consideration of such matters as the community basis of international organization and the relation of ideology to interest in foreign affairs. But, though this study provides some useful insights, much remains that could be done to probe the organization of the UN from the standpoint of dynamic institutional analysis." Philip Selznick

+ — Am J Soc 56:612 My '51 320w

"The book gives a clear analysis and exposition, useful in bringing together the various elements of the problem. It is well-written, and covers understandingly a wide range of knowledge. It is not dynamic; it does not offer a panacea; it does not drive home a new point. It does give the reader the whole discouraging picture of his own inadequacy, and if he has the ability, he may learn a lesson as to what he must do to get world government." Clyde Eagleton

+ Am Pol Sci R 45:552 Je '51 480w

"This is a thoughtful book and one may hope at least that it will be thought-provoking as well." H. R. Winkler

+ Ann Am Acad 274:213 Mr '51 450w

Booklist 47:199 F 1 '51

Bookmark 10:187 My '51 50w

Reviewed by C. H. Voss

Churchman 165:15 Jl '51 200w

Current Hist 20:40 Ja '51 100w

Foreign Affairs 30:153 O '51 20w

Reviewed by Albert Guerard

Nation 171:647 D 16 '50 550w

"Altogether, a solid, tough-minded, highly informed study whose only big fault is a dullish writing style peppered with the specialized vocabulary of the social scientist." P. R. Levin

+ — Sat R of Lit 34:57 Ap 14 '51 260w

School & Society 72:334 N 18 '50 30w

"Not a textbook nor an introduction to its subject, Fundamentals of World Organization is primarily analytical. It avoids praise and invective and flabby generalizations. For the mature student, and for the official obliged to work in the somewhat uncharted field of international organization, the book is full of suggestions."

U S Quarterly Bk R 7:69 Mr '51 200w

LEVIS-MIREPOIX, ANTOINE FRANCOIS JOSEPH PIERRE MARIE, DUC DE. Jeanne of France, princess and saint; tr. by Charlotte T. Muret. 203p $3.50 Longmans

B or 92 Joan of Valois, Saint 50-10636

The life story of Jeanne of France, daughter of Louis XI, and wife of the Duke of Orleans, who later became Louis XII. After the annulment of her marriage Jeanne retired to a religious life, becoming the foundress of the order of the Annunciation.

Reviewed by Leon Harpole

Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 Mr 25 '51 60w

"Jeanne herself emerges vividly and touchingly as a woman facing the horror of physical defect and the pangs of her own heart, as a member of the royal family facing rejection from her birth prerogatives, and as a human being facing the problem of her ultimate destiny. The simple and moving prose (the translator, Charlotte T. Muret, should be complimented) adds in conveying to us the character of the achievement of sanctity." C. H. Bishop

+ Commonweal 53:307 D 29 '50 500w

Current Hist 20:40 Ja '51 50w

Kirkus 18:597 O 1 '50 180w

"Recommended." R. P. Breaden

+ Library J 75:1656 O 1 '50 100w

"Here then are the ingredients for an illuminating and penetrating biography. The Duc de Lévis Mirepoix never really writes it. On the whole, he is too cautious. . . Nor does he make us really see and feel Jeanne's transfiguration. One thing he does, though—he calls our attention to this wronged, unhappy lady. History has too often passed her by." T. C. Chubb

N Y Times p12 Mr 25 '51 400w

LEVITT, SAUL. Sun is silent. 303p $3 Harper

51-10293

A novel concerned with the members of the crew of an American bomber flying twenty-five missions over Germany from a base in England.

"'The Sun is Silent' is that rare article among war books: One that is entertaining and exciting and hard to lay down, and at the same time as realistic as a conscientious craftsman can make it." Robert Cromie

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 Jl 1 '51 450w

Kirkus 19:134 Mr 1 '51 190w

"Mr. Levitt tells this almost plotless story in a rich and graceful prose. His flight scenes are always arresting. But there is a curious leisureliness about the book that could prove fatal in less skillful hands. One has a feeling that the author was determined to leave nothing unsaid about his men. The result is that a lot of extraneous matter is introduced which has little to do with the great single factor that molds them all, the war. The narrative would have been better served if the characters' backgrounds emerged as part of the action, instead of all coming early in the book. Notwithstanding, 'The Sun Is Silent' is a genuine, deeply-felt novel." Louis Falstein

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 Ap 22 '51 550w

Reviewed by George McMillan

N Y Times p16 My 6 '51 230w

New Yorker 27:118 Ap 28 '51 60w

Wis Lib Bul 47:255 N '51

LEWELLEN, JOHN BRYAN. You and space travel; pictures by Winnie Fitch and Joe Phelan. 60p $1.50 Childrens press

629.13 Interplanetary voyages—Juvenile literature 51-12201

"This book traces the actual progress that has been made toward flight beyond the earth's atmosphere." (Publisher's note) For grades 5 to 8.

Booklist 48:71 O 15 '51

"Fascinating book for boys of 10 and up, and their fathers, too." Polly Goodwin

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p18 O 7 '51 130w

"Do not let the childish cover, and deceptively simple, amusing pictures mislead you. This book is announced for reading level of grades 5 and 6, and interest level of grades 5 to 10. Those levels are exactly right. The text is very clear in explaining progress from familiar types of [planes] to rocket ships. . . The funny pictures lead the eye on, but are on a much simpler mental level than that of the text. It is highly recommended for fathers and sons to share. Schools and libraries will be grateful for the cloth binding and the low price." L. S. Bechtel

LEWELLEN, J. B.—Continued
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 S 16 '51 120w

"The author's explanation of physical laws is sometimes rather involved. Nevertheless, boys with special interest in rockets and space travel and some science background will find John Lewellen's book interesting and helpful." G. O. Blough
N Y Times p12 N 11 '51 90w

LEWIN, KURT. Field theory in social science; selected theoretical papers, ed. by Dorwin Cartwright. 346p $5 Harper

301.8 Social sciences—Methodology 51-9715

"This is a source book on the methods of one of the most brilliant and productive minds in the history of social science and will be of cardinal importance to every teacher, student, and worker in the field." School & Society

Reviewed by R. E. L. Faris
Am J Soc 57:86 Jl '51 900w

"All of the material in this volume has been previously published, but it is a real service to have it brought together here in one well organized book. . . Taken as a whole this is a very valuable source book on the contributions of a man of distinctive genius in the fields of psychology and social psychology." D. O. Price
+ Am Soc R 16:404 Je '51 800w

Reviewed by M. H. Kuhn
Ann Am Acad 276:146 Jl '51 750w

"There is a missionary ardor through the essays which is offset by Lewin's genuinely humble recognition of the tentative and approximate nature of all scientific work. He emerges as one of the small band of seminal thinkers. If he overextends some of his ideas this might be put down as the price of being a self-starter." P. J. G.
+ Canadian Forum 31:114 Ag '51 450w
School & Society 73:94 F 10 '51 40w

"To the student, teacher, and worker in the field, it will serve as an outstanding and meticulously documented source book." G. A. Panichas
+ Springf'd Republican p8C F 18 '51 360w

LEWIN, PHILIP. Arthritis and the rheumatic diseases; foreword by Morris Fishbein. 175p $3.50 McGraw

616.72 Arthritis. Rheumatism 51-13466

"Explanations of the causes of arthritis and the rheumatic diseases, and the prospects of cure. Special attention is given to the remarkable effects of the new drugs ACTH and Cortisone." Publisher's note

Booklist 48:79 N 1 '51

Reviewed by T. R. Van Dellen
Chicago Sunday Tribune p2 N 18 '51 160w

LEWIS, ALFRED. Home is an island. 308p $3 Random house

51-9287

A sixteen-year-old youth about to leave his home in the Azores and go to America, begins to think back over the events of his brief life. Little by little he pictures his whole span of existence, from babyhood on. With the close of the book he is starting on his journey.

Booklist 47:237 Mr 1 '51
Bookmark 10:184 My '51 40w

Reviewed by Edward Wagenknecht
Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 F 18 '51 360w
Christian Science Monitor p14 Mr 8 '51 230w

"A reflection of a peaceable, primitive life, whose simplicity and innocence is rarely touched by other worlds, this is for a limited audience."
Kirkus 18:709 D 1 '50 120w

"There is about this novel a fine, tender, sensitive, spiritual quality, a quietness and repose quite in keeping with the simple, honest and straightforward lives of the villagers. Gives fine insight into a land too little known on this side. Pleasant relief from the high-tension novels now so prevalent. Well recommended." L. R. Etzkorn
+ Library J 76:111 Ja 15 '51 100w

Reviewed by F. H. Bullock
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 F 11 '51 750w

"What 'Home Is an Island' lacks in substance is somewhat compensated for by the quality of the narrative. Lewis' style is most refreshing. Some of his descriptive passages, in their pellucid simplicity and rich imagery, ring with the lyricism of poetry. Yet whether this is enough to offset a skeletal content is highly questionable." Robert Elkon
N Y Times p20 F 11 '51 290w

Reviewed by R. H. Dillon
San Francisco Chronicle p21 F 11 '51 700w

"Mr. Lewis uses the language uncommonly well for someone self-taught in English, but not even this can save a book deficient in story and characterizational interest." Charles Lee
Sat R of Lit 34:42 Ap 28 '51 290w
Springf'd Republican p8C F 4 '51 200w

LEWIS, ARCHIBALD ROSS. Naval power and trade in the Mediterranean, A.D. 500-1100. 271p $4 Princeton univ. press

940 Mediterranean sea. Naval history 51-706

"Did Moslem sea power on the great Middle Sea, as Pirenne thought, bring about the collapse of the Mediterranean area of Western civilization? This study is a critical examination of one of the major points of the Pirenne Thesis. It is pointed out that 'it was not the Arabs but Byzantium who destroyed the ancient unity of the Mediterranean,' and that Byzantium had a far more powerful naval force and more highly refined naval power than has been generally recognized." U S Quarterly Bk R

"As the work makes no new concrete contributions to our knowledge, it should be described as interpretive in nature. . . But the book is provocative and makes some interesting suggestions, although these are not always backed by conclusive evidence. . . It must be said that, as a work of scholarship, this book leaves something to be desired." Peter Charanis
Am Hist R 56:858 Jl '51 210w

"Merits the attention of all serious students of the period. . . Despite a tendency to overstress the more novel elements of his interpretation Mr. Lewis displays such wide research, cogency, and penetration in developing his arguments that they cannot fail to interest students striving to widen their focus and break away from an isolationist concept of Western Europe in the Middle Ages."
+ Sat R of Lit 34:38 Mr 17 '51 250w

"It cannot be said that Mr. Lewis has made any great contribution to medieval history; what he has done is to produce a concise study of his six centuries with special emphasis on movement by sea rather than by land."
Times [London] Lit Sup p456 Jl 20 '51 150w
U S Quarterly Bk R 7:168 Je '51 160w

LEWIS, SIR CLINTON GRESHAM, and others, eds. American Oxford atlas. 80,xxvi,96p maps $10 Oxford

912 Atlases Map51-1555

"A project of Oxford University, it employs new map-making techniques developed during the war and is specially designed for American users. The maps are large, and a newly invented projection enables land masses to be shown at twice the size possible before on the same-sized page. There are 120 pages of maps—including a series showing climate, vegetation, geographic structure, population and land use—and a Gazetteer with 60,000 entries. Among the recent details incorporated are information drawn from Russian war maps; new geographic knowledge about Korea; new canals and pipelines; and latest census figures." Atlantic

"This new world atlas is far and away the best of its kind I've encountered. . . The volume has been splendidly produced."
+ Atlantic 188:99 D '51 150w

"The American Oxford is a valuable addition to any map library, or the nucleus around which a map library could be built." W. H. Wisner
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 O 7 '51 170w

Reviewed by J. G. Harrison
Christian Science Monitor p11 O 11 '51 550w

Cleveland Open Shelf p25 N '51

Kirkus 19:509 S 1 '51 210w

Reviewed by R. P. Tubby
Library J 76:2002 D 1 '51 250w

New Repub 125:21 D 24 '51 100w

"The editors mined the resources of Oxford University, of the British and American Foreign Offices and many other public and private institutions. For all the maps entirely new bases were prepared and all material was newly gathered or researched. The maps themselves—while lacking the artistic character of, say, Bartholomew's—are excellently executed and, thankfully unusually large. In some ways they are better than Bartholomew's—boundaries are more clearly delineated; the type bolder and more legible; the colors sharper. Everywhere the editors have striven, with success, for clarity." John Desmond
+ N Y Times p40 O 7 '51 380w

LEWIS, CLIVE STAPLES. Prince Caspian; the return to Narnia; il. by Pauline Baynes. 186p $2.50 Macmillan
51-12799

"This is a sequel to 'The Lion, the Witch and the Wardrobe' [Book Review Digest 1950]. In it the four children go again to Narnia. . . They find great changes in Narnia. An evil king has usurped power. The tree and water spirits, the good animals, and the dwarfs are in hiding. Aslan has not appeared for many years. Prompted by one of the dwarfs, the four go into battle. Aslan reappears and the evil king and his army are defeated. The 'good spirits' of Narnia rule again." Sat R of Lit

Booklist 48:131 D 1 '51

"Convincing fantasy unusually well written." B. E. M.
+ Horn Bk 27:412 D '51 100w

Kirkus 19:393 Ag 1 '51 190w

"Plenty of excitement and the children have real personalities, but I can't believe the average child will like it. For older fairy-tale age." Phyllis Fenner
+ Library J 76:2123 D 15 '51 80w

Manchester Guardian p3 D 6 '51 70w

"It is a wonderfully well written tale for boys who like dwarves, ancient treasures, 'sorcery and wickedness,' and for those girls who, like Lucy, can remember the time when trees could talk. . . This sequel is better than 'The Lion, the Witch and the Wardrobe,' in being easier reading with a simpler plot. It can as well be read before the first book." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 N 11 '51 230w

"The cuteness and archness that mar so many books written for children is blessedly lacking here. The story is for boys and girls who like their dwarfs and fauns as solid as the traffic policeman on the corner. . . Either of the Narnia stories is a good gift for the boy or girl who has been fed to the point of indigestion on factual books." Chad Walsh
+ N Y Times p26 N 11 '51 220w

Reviewed by K. T. Kinkead
New Yorker 27:185 D 1 '51 80w

"Boys and girls who enjoyed the first book will find here the same reward: a good plot, convincing characters, and the graceful wording that distinguishes this writer. Adults reading it will be reminded in some phrases of his 'The Screwtape Letters.' "
+ Sat R of Lit 34:70 N 10 '51 140w

"The story has an odd mixture of Gothic and Greek mythology, but it is all hushed into sanctity by the author's honeyed prose. The obvious master is George MacDonald. It is a mysterious ecstatic book." Gwendolen Freeman
Spec 187:784 D 7 '51 140w

Times [London] Lit Sup p8 N 23 '51 20w

LEWIS, JANET (MRS YVOR WINTERS). Poems, 1924-1944. 62p $2.50 Swallow, A.
811 51-2802

Contains all the poems from the Wells College press limited edition of The Earth-Bound (1946). "Miss Lewis' short lyrics deal mostly with children, gardens, music and the transitory nature of human experience." (N Y Times)

Reviewed by Rolfe Humphries
+ Nation 172:139 F 10 '51 70w

"Miss Lewis is at her best on the wonder and promise of childhood and in 'April Hill,' 'Candle Flame,' 'No-Winter Country' and 'Lost Garden.' 'Helen Grown Old' (after the fall of Troy) strikes just the right note of detached interest on a familiar theme. These last are poems to remember." M. H. Irvine
+ N Y Times p17 Ap 8 '51 140w

"In such lyrics as 'Girl Help,' 'Remembered Morning,' and 'In the Egyptian Museum,' feminine song operates, as always in its moments of power, with moving tenderness and simple clarity." Louise Bogan
+ New Yorker 27:151 N 3 '51 60w

LEWIS, NORMAN. Dragon apparent; travels in Indo-China. 317p il map $4.50 Scribner
915.9 Indo-China, French—Description and travel 51-7080

Describes the author's trip thru Indo-China in 1950. "Apprehending that it may not be long before the whole of the Far East becomes, like China, inaccessible to the independent traveller, Mr. Lewis decided to go to French Indo-China while the going was good. It was not, as a matter of fact, at all good when he got there; but he is clearly a person of determination and resource, and in the end he saw a great deal of the sprawling, war-torn country, finishing up in a Viet Minh command-post under fire from French 25-pounders." (Spec)

Booklist 48:99 N 15 '51

Reviewed by L. Rogers
Canadian Forum 31:239 Ja '52 170w

Reviewed by Gordon Walker
Christian Science Monitor p7 D 26 '51 800w

"A book of personal discovery, this gives a pertinent, intelligently observed close-up. Illustrated by the author's photographs, some of them really stunning."
+ Kirkus 19:511 S 1 '51 160w

"Recommended." W. K. Harrison
+ Library J 76:1701 O 15 '51 80w

Reviewed by Guy Wint
Manchester Guardian p4 Ag 10 '51 140w

Nation 173:380 N 3 '51 30w

"The author reveals a country of remarkable beauty and unbelievable squalor. There is cruelty, double-dealing, superstition unbounded and misrule. This is an absorbing

LEWIS, NORMAN—Continued
and fascinating book, on no account to be missed." Arthur Marshall
+ New Statesman & Nation 42:209 Ag 25 '51 450w

Reviewed by Bradford Smith
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 D 9 '51 550w

"It is a full meal of adventure which Norman Lewis offers us on his travel menu. His approach to the political problem of Indo-China is perhaps a little over-urbane and even superficial. Nevertheless, the book is a pleasant armchair journey into a not-so-pleasant locale. It is vivid and written with careful craftsmanship." Richard Tregaskis
+ — N Y Times p6 N 25 '51 470w

"A good, factual piece of work, complemented by a number of photographs."
+ New Yorker 27:142 O 27 '51 180w

"One beautiful color plate and a smattering of handsome black-and-whites liven up the rather typical unemotional underplay in the writing."
Sat R of Lit 34:42 D 15 '51 180w

"A travel book of unusual interest and distinction. . . Mr. Lewis is a dispassionate and objective observer. . . By some happy coincidence, the selective precision of the author's prose is matched by his skill as a photographer. A Dragon Apparent is a very good book indeed." Peter Fleming
+ Spec 187:102 Jl 20 '51 420w

"For all its throng of sharp-set portraits and its evocative natural descriptions, his book wears a somewhat excluded, lonely air. Yet it is a very penetrating one in certain aspects, and particularly in its study of two hill tribes, the Mois of Central Annam and the Meos of the Laotian highlands."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p467 Jl 27 '51 380w

LEWIS, OSCAR. Life in a Mexican village: Tepoztlán restudied; with drawings by Alberto Beltrán. 512p maps $7.50 Univ. of Ill. press

917.24 Tepoztlán, Mexico. Mexico—Social life and customs. Ethnology—Mexico
51-11683

"Two decades ago, Dr. Robert Redfield, a young American anthropologist, went down into Mexico, studied the village of Tepoztlan and wrote a pioneering book, 'Tepoztlan: A Mexican Village' [Book Review Digest 1930] which has since become a classic in community studies. Some 17 years later, Professor Oscar Lewis of the University of Illinois, went to the same village to do a broad ethnographic and historical study of the social, economic, political, and religious life of the community, with special emphasis upon the changes that had occurred in the village since the Redfield study was made. The results of Mr. Lewis' study are now published as 'Life in a Mexican Village.'" San Francisco Chronicle

Reviewed by N. D. Humphrey
Am J Soc 57:392 Ja '52 950w

"This restudy of Tepoztlán is a richly textured, well written and conceived anthropological community study, based on more detailed and intensive investigation than is usual. Much more importantly, both in field work and in preparation of this report, the author has been highly conscious of significant methodological and theoretical problems." R. L. Beals
+ — Am Soc R 16:895 D '51 1000w

Reviewed by Melchior Palyi
Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 S 2 '51 140w

"This 512-page textbook is a masterpiece of the graphic arts. Purchase highly recommended." J. M. Scherr
+ Library J 76:1215 Ag '51 100w

"Handsomely produced and beautifully illustrated by Alberto Beltran this is essentially a detailed, professional examination of the community. It is nevertheless intelligible to the layman with a serious interest in the subject." J. H. Jackson
San Francisco Chronicle p16 Ag 16 '51 700w

LEWIS, OSCAR. Lost years; a biographical fantasy; il. by Maliette Dean. 121p $2.50 Knopf

Lincoln, Abraham—Fiction 51-11067

A fantasy based on the supposition that Lincoln was not killed by the assassin's bullet. The story shows what might have happened to Lincoln if he had not died a martyr's death.

Booklist 48:159 Ja 1 '52

Reviewed by H. E. Pratt
Chicago Sunday Tribune p24 N 11 '51 140w

Kirkus 19:455 Ag 15 '51 130w

"Occasionally the author allows a flash of great Lincoln to pierce the clouds of the public indifference, and he does it tellingly, but this book is a charge, and a true one, against the people, against all men. This is no mere collector's item about Lincoln: it is a fine piece of literature." W. B. Ready
+ Library J 76:1561 O 1 '51 110w

"One of those cute notions that the author should never have bothered to put on paper."
— Nation 173:409 N 10 '51 50w

"There are many pleasant touches here. . . And altogether satisfying—and entirely in character—is the climax of the fantasy in which the former President briefy reclaims national attention in a little California town." Coleman Rosenberger
+ N Y Times p20 O 21 '51 330w

"A story like this is an enormously difficult thing to make convincing, but Mr. Lewis manages it, and in a fashion, I think, that will take his book straight to the shelves of the thousands of collectors who cherish any book relating to its central figure." J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p18 O 24 '51 650w

Reviewed by U. K. Alpert
Springf'd Republican p30A N 11 '51 120w

LEWIS, SINCLAIR. World so wide. 250p $3 Random house
51-9716

When his pretty, managing wife was killed in an automobile accident Hayden Chart, a successful Colorado architect, decided to go to Italy. There he fell into the clutches of a handsome American Ph.D., another of those managing women. Then Roxanna, the girl from home with a sense of humor and a love of life, arrived and took over.

"It is disagreeable to speak tartly of the last work of a novelist such as Sinclair Lewis, but I cannot do otherwise without hypocrisy. World So Wide seems to me an egregiously ingenuous story. It has a certain amount of bounce and is moderately amusing in part, but as a whole it is unconvincing and embarrassingly earnest about what have long been portentous commonplaces." C. J. Rolo
— Atlantic 187:75 Ap '51 700w

Booklist 47:230; 254 Mr 1 '51; Mr 15 '51

Bookmark 10:184 My '51 50w

"Sinclair Lewis did not live to see the publication of his latest novel. If he had, poor man, he could be nothing but unhappy over what the reviewers probably will say about it, even reviewers who, like me, read it with an eagerness to find it a book from the pen of an old master, instead of, like some, a secret hope that it won't be. 'World So Wide' is not only the least good novel Sinclair Lewis ever wrote, it is simply not a good novel." Fanny Butcher
— Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 Mr 25 '51 500w

Reviewed by Horace Reynolds
Christian Science Monitor p11 Ap 2 '51 400w

"This is not a great novel, and it is more interesting as the culmination of a trend of thought than as a picture of exiles in Italy. It is quite badly written, and in some places so similar to a soap-opera script that, as a friend of this writer remarked, Sinclair Lewis is the only man in America who can write as if Sinclair Lewis had never written." Serge Hughes

Commonweal 53:648 Ap 6 '51 2650w

"Sinclair Lewis has lost his skill and his characters seem paper-thin, two dimensional, his situations artificial, his story dull. But there's still magic in the Lewis' name for dependable sales and rentals. We wish we could recommend this last novel from a once gifted pen."
Kirkus 19:29 Ja 15 '51 240w

"The city is described in interesting detail; all the characters talk Lewisite; the mixture is very much as before. All the old energy is there, however, and some of the acid caricatures of the British and American colony are very funny. Dodsworth, now 75, and showing his age, appears occasionally. Buy it to complete the set." E. F. Walbridge
Library J 76:514 Mr 15 '51 130w

Reviewed by Elizabeth Jenkins
Manchester Guardian p4 Ag 31 '51 80w

Reviewed by Harvey Swados
Nation 172:446 My 12 '51 650w

Reviewed by C. H. Gratton
New Repub 124:19 Ap 2 '51 1500w

Reviewed by John Raymond
New Statesman & Nation 42:318 S 22 '51 120w

" 'World So Wide' will not have the impact of the great novels that he published in his prime, between 1920 and 1930. It is, in a sense, a 'Dodsworth' twenty years later; in its first half, indeed, it has pages which match 'Dodsworth' in insight. The second half seems hurried and tired; the character of the charlatan Professor Lorenzo Lundsgard, who fortunately turns Hayden Chart back to the right girl, is a mere caricature." Lewis Gannett
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p1 Mr 25 '51 1500w

"It is unfortunate for his reputation that 'World So Wide' is possibly the weakest of all his books. I say 'weakest,' not 'worst,' because there is little in 'World So Wide' that is actively bad in the fashion of 'The Prodigal Parents,' or in the different fashion of 'The Man Who Knew Coolidge.' It is a pleasant and trifling story of which the chief fault is that, as a novel, it was never really written and doesn't quite exist." Malcolm Cowley
N Y Times p1 Mr 25 '51 1600w

Reviewed by Anthony West
New Yorker 27:114 Ap 28 '51 700w

Reviewed by Dorothy Marvin
San Francisco Chronicle p20 Ap 1 '51 550w

"I think Sinclair Lewis was ridden, so to speak, by his own reputation, by his conception of himself as a preacher in comic prose. Therefore, the admirable passages in 'World So Wide,' the flashes here and there of insight and of sympathy are drowned in the noisy prose elsewhere in the book. A theme which required penetration is reduced to the broad stroke, the comic exposure, burlesque, and knockabout. The story does not rise to the plane of the great Lewis novels but must nestle contentedly under their shadow." H. M. Jones
Sat R of Lit 34:20 Mr 31 '51 650w

"It is an awkward, rambling book, often close to a caricature of Lewis at his best. But it will be read for what it is: 'Red' Lewis' valedictory to his fellow Americans."
Time 57:106 Mr 26 '51 550w

"The only really entertaining passages are those in which Mr. Lewis drives his satire against the American abroad. Unfortunately, none of the characters is alive and the prevailing impression is one of weary contrivance."
Times [London] Lit Sup p625 O 5 '51 290w

Wis Lib Bul 47:166 Je '51

"This is Lewis' bread-and-butter letter to the land he so often seemed to scorn, and it is perhaps a good deal more gracious than might have been expected." Paul Pickerel
Yale R n s 40:575 spring '51 260w

LEWIS, WILMARTH SHELDON. Collector's progress. 253p il $5 Knopf

010 Walpole, Horace, 4th earl of Oxford. Book collecting. Strawberry Hill press
51-11290

The editor of the Yale Edition of Horace Walpole's Correspondence, relates the story of his years of collecting. The story begins with the child who collected coins and butterflies, progresses to the young man interested in the general field of English literature, and comes at last to the mature expert who has built up the world's greatest collection of books and manuscripts by and about Horace Walpole, Strawberry Hill, and the Strawberry Hill Press.

"Collector's Progress is quite the best we have had about book collection since A. Edward Newton. Mr. Lewis is more single-minded and less capricious than the Pickwick of Philadelphia. He catches the spirit of the eighteenth century as he writes about Walpole and his friends just as he catches the character of the twentieth as he writes about himself and that goodly company of booksellers and scholars, Mr. X, Evans, 'Tink,' Paget Toynbee, and R. W. Chapman, who helped him so loyally on his way." Edward Weeks
+ Atlantic 188:79 Ag '51 550w

Booklist 47:375 Jl 1 '51

Reviewed by Robert Cromie
Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 Ag 5 '51 440w

Reviewed by Margaret Williamson
Christian Science Monitor p7 Jl 12 '51 1000w

Kirkus 19:204 Ap 1 '51 180w

"This book is a new chapter in the centuries-old history of bibliomania and, with the exception of the story of the discovery of the Boswell Papers, probably the most important chapter contributed in our time." S. C. Chew
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 Jl 22 '51 470w

"Mr. Lewis' pages convey all the zest of the game. In the course of a quarter-century he has transformed himself from a collecting amateur to a ripe and humane scholar. What is more important, he has had fun doing it, and makes his readers share the fun." Delancey Ferguson
+ N Y Times p9 Jl 1 '51 800w

New Yorker 27:117 S 8 '51 100w

"This is a book for anyone who has enjoyed, say, the volumes of such collectors as the late A. Edward Newton, or Dr. Rosenbach's anecdotes of the collecting fever. Such readers will get full enjoyment from it. As for the beginning collector, who hopes some day to form his own modest collection of books on whatever subject, he also will be delighted with Mr. Lewis' stories about collection." J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p10 Jl 4 '51 800w

"This vivid, charming, and penetrating book ought to interest anyone above the level of 'the intellectual non-combatant.' It is not only the history of a collector extraordinary and his extraordinary collection, but it is an extra-illustrated study of men and manners in the eighteenth century and, incidentally, the twentieth." Leonard Bacon
+ Sat R of Lit 34:12 Je 30 '51 900w

" 'Collector's Progress' is Mr. Lewis's account of how his fabulous collection came into being. It is an engaging book for many reasons. Its tone is warm and personal; its touch light and relaxed. Its wit is as lively as that which makes Mr. Lewis one of the most captivating of conversationalists and speakers. It is a record of triumphs recounted without boasting and some failures honestly and humorously described; a yarn of pursuit and detection which happens to be true." J. M. Brown
+ Sat R of Lit 34:26 S 22 '51 2000w

U S Quarterly Bk R 7:226 S '51 160w

"By sharing his experiences so truthfully and entertainingly with his reader, Lewis has managed to accomplish as much in the way of offering guidance for collectors and editors as

LEWIS, W. S.—Continued
the author of any didactic how-to book. He has made his points vividly, justly, and painlessly." F. B. Adams
+ Yale R n s 41:125 autumn '51 1000w

LEWITON, MINA (MRS HOWARD SIMON). The tough and the tender. 308p $3 Watts, F.
50-10395

Story of an American artist, born in the Ozarks, but following his career in Paris and New York during the years of depression, war, and post-war conflicts.

"There's little direct action here as these intellectuals mill around and mull over issues and isms, talk with no particular spirit but class it up with some incorrect French, and afford very little entertainment."
Kirkus 18:400 Jl 15 '50 130w

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p15 F 11 '51 190w

"Mina Lewiton has tried to portray how difficult it is for the tender-hearted to make their way in this world in competition with the tough-minded. Yet they eventually triumph, and become 'leaders, shapers of thoughts, architects of the future.' She hasn't quite succeeded in illustrating her theme. . . The artist doesn't seem to struggle enough in meeting the tough-hearted. Perhaps it is an illusion caused by Mrs. Lewiton's tranquil, melodious prose. Mrs. Lewiton has produced a gentle, quiet book." A. B. S.
+ — San Francisco Chronicle p14 D 24 '50 370w

"The Westerlings' steadfastness might have been a brighter miracle if either of them had ever hesitated a moment between a job he didn't quite approve of and need of earning a living. But the Westerlings don't. Things don't come to that kind of crisis. It makes for a somewhat slow-paced, black-and-white effect, but an agreeable one, nevertheless, achieved with conviction." Patricia Highsmith
+ — Sat R of Lit 34:31 Ja 6 '51 450w

Springf'd Republican p8B Ja 7 '51 150w

LEY, WILLY. Dragons in amber; further adventures of a romantic naturalist. 328p il $3.75 Viking
574 Natural history 51-9226

"A book for those who are curious about the early ancestry of our more unusual plants and animals. The author leads up to his story with a detailed account of the origin and history of amber, then proceeds in a rambling but entertaining fashion to trace the evolution of various extinct animals and such living rare animals and plants as the milu, the panda, ginko trees and sequoias. He also describes the unusual life history of the eel and camel, and delves into the mysteries of adventive flora and fauna." (Library J) Index.

Booklist 47:109; 201 N 15 '50; F 1 '51

"A unique combination of scientific accuracy, imagination and humor."
+ Bookmark 10:131 Mr '51 30w

" 'Dragons in Amber' is no mere popularization of natural science; it is an account, written with a spirited imagination and a lively sense of humor, in an easily read style, of lesser wonders which are within reach of the man on the street, the enduring wonders of his own world which existed long before his time and are likely to mystify his race generations hence." August Derleth
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 Ja 28 '51 400w

Reviewed by Alan Devoe
Commonweal 55:238 D 7 '51 220w

Kirkus 18:688 N 15 '50 120w

"Most readers of Conquest of Space will be surprised to find that its author is as much at home in the field of paleontology as in the realm of interstellar space. . . The book provides a good account of the techniques and methods of historical geologists and paleontologists." J. E. Brown
+ Library J 75:2073 D 1 '50 140w

Reviewed by M. D. Read
Library J 76:1036 Je 15 '51 30w

Nation 172:237 Mr 10 '51 220w

Reviewed by Alan Devoe
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p17 Ap 22 '51 170w

Reviewed by J. N. Leonard
N Y Times p14 Ja 28 '51 650w

Reviewed by Edmund Wilson
New Yorker 27:74 Jl 14 '51 250w

" 'Dragons in Amber' is first-rate reading. And if you wonder just where it gets you to know all these things—well, a lot of people enjoy learning just for its own sake. Mr. Ley has what amounts to real genius for tapping this native curiosity in his readers, and for making them like it." J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p16 Ja 31 '51 750w

Reviewed by I. T. Sanderson
Sat R of Lit 34:18 Je 9 '51 800w

LEY, WILLY. Rockets, missiles, and space travel. 436p il $5.95 Viking 629.13338 Rockets (aeronautics) 51-11482

"The theory, history and modern practices of rocket research translated into language for the layman. Although representing a rewrite of Rockets, and Rockets and Space Travel, [Book Review Digest 1944, 1947] much new material, necessitated by the rapid advances of the last few years, has been added. . . Bibliography." Booklist

Booklist 47:403 Jl 15 '51

Reviewed by Roy Gibbons
Chicago Sunday Tribune p10 Ag 12 '51 170w

Christian Science Monitor p9 S 6 '51 500w

Kirkus 19:225 Ap 15 '51 100w

Reviewed by J. W. Krutch
Nation 173:155 Ag 25 '51 800w

"Presented so matter-of-factly and with such conviction that it would seem only plausible for space-conscious members of the younger generation to start drawing up lists of provender and equipment for the hazardous but undoubtedly alluring expeditions awaiting them."
+ New Yorker 27:86 Ag 18 '51 220w

LEYDA, JAY. Melville log; a documentary life of Herman Melville, 1819-1891. 2v 494;496-899p il $12.50 Harcourt
B or 92 Melville, Herman 51-13799

Documentary source material on the life of Herman Melville. "They include letters from Melville that somehow escaped the flames, letters from his friends and relatives preserved in various collections, extracts from publishers' files, books from Melville's library with passages that he underlined, newspaper gossip about him—in all, a comprehensive collection of items few of which are important when taken by themselves, but all of which, taken together, give us a factual record of his life from day to day." (N Y Herald Tribune Bk R) Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 48:143 D 15 '51

Reviewed by Edward Wagenknecht
Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 D 16 '51 300w

"Mr. Leyda is doubtless right in thinking this the first work of its kind in American letters. It deserves applause as a monumental piece of scholarship; it deserves use as an almost inexhaustible storehouse of knowledge about Melville." Denham Sutcliffe
+ Christian Science Monitor p15 D 6 '51 550w

Kirkus 19:659 N 1 '51 180w

"Present day students of Melville, of which there are many, will never cease to be grateful to Mr. Leyda for his uncompromising devotion to his worthy subject." Herbert Cahoon
+ Library J 76:1931 N 15 '51 130w

Reviewed by Richard Chase
Nation 173:478 D 1 '51 950w

"It is refreshing to find that the editor, Jay Leyda, makes no comments of his own; there have been too many comments on Melville. What we need now is exactly what Leyda has given us; the facts from which to compose our own picture of the man and his work. . . 'The Melville Log' can be recommended to every one in the history of American literature. For students of Melville it is indispensable." Malcolm Cowley
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p7 N 11 '51 1600w

"Leyda's is a new biographical technique in America. By placing the documents and facts in the chronological form of a ship's log and by omitting all interpretation, Leyda conveys a sense of contemporaneity, much like the newsreel sections in Dos Passos' U. S. A. This bald chronicle method ('documentary biography') may puzzle readers prepared for conventional biography. Each person must make his own synthesis from the generously supplied materials, but the rewards are worth the trouble, and delight increases as one builds his own portraits from this diary.' H. P. Vincent
+ N Y Times p1 N 11 '51 550w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson
San Francisco Chronicle p22 D 20 '51 380w

"Scholars as well as general readers, will be surprised by the revelations of this book, in which one of the greatest of America's writers emerges from the maze of myth, guesswork, and speculation that has surrounded his life and work."
+ Springf'd Republican p7C S 16 '51 180w
Springf'd Republican p6D D 30 '51 700w

LEYSON, BURR WATKINS. Atomic energy in war and peace. 217p il $3.75 Dutton

541.2 Atomic energy 51-2975

"The kettle from which so many atomic energy 'quickies' were scooped circa 1946 is simmering again. This book—one of the first of the second serving—ranges in content from basic atomic theory to the usefulness of radioactive isotopes, and the middle chapter outlines what the citizen under atomic attack should do for self-preservation." (Library J) Index.

Booklist 47:384 Jl 1 '51

"Comprehensive, accurate presentation, dispelling current fears and misconceptions."
+ Bookmark 10:206 Je '51 10w
Cleveland Open Shelf p9 My '51
Kirkus 19:148 Mr 1 '51 130w

"The author has a pleasant style, and obviously he has read widely in official publications, but the book seems too superficial for the times." R. R. Hawkins
+ — Library J 76:511 Mr 15 '51 80w

"The book contains excellent illustrations and graphs and tables much more technical than the text. For the informed layman this is a far better handbook on the atom and on shelters than any Government or private handbook so far published." Michael Amrine
+ N Y Times p19 Ag 12 '51 400w

L'HOMMEDIEU, MRS DOROTHY (KEASBEY). Togo, the little husky; with pictures by Marguerite Kirmse. 60p $2.50; bds $2.25 Lippincott

Dogs—Legends and stories 51-11170

A little husky puppy who learns to be a real dog team leader is the hero of this story for children. Illustrations are in color and in black and white.

Bookmark 11:85 Ja '52
Kirkus 19:577 O 1 '51 80w

"Recommended for ages 7-9." Juanita Walker
+ Library J 76:1713 O 15 '51 30w

"It makes a pleasant combination of puppy story and introduction to the Far North." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p14 O 21 '51 90w
School & Society 74:208 S 29 '51 30w

LIAQUAT ALI KHAN. See Khan, L. A.

LIBERMAN, SALLY. Child's guide to a parent's mind; il. by Kiriki, with a postscript by Mary and Lawrence K. Frank. 145p $3 Schuman

741.5 Humor, Pictorial. Parent and child 51-3067

"Some perceptive insights in cartoon form into the eery mass of parent-child relationships which keep psychoanalysts' couches occupied. . . A postscript by Mary and Lawrence K. Frank, questions at the end of each chapter, and bibliography will facilitate the use of this book in PTA and class-room groups." Kirkus

Churchman 165:16 N 15 '51 40w

"A serious, thoughtful analysis in humorous form investigating the tensions and frustrations in parent-child problems."
+ Kirkus 19:178 Mr 15 '51 140w

"Parents with a sense of humour will smile and say touche when they read this gay but meaningful book of irreverent and refreshingly imaginative cartoons and elliptical comment by two wise young women just out of Bennington College." Dorothy Bromley
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p9 Ap 1 '51 270w
N Y Times p25 My 13 '51 50w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p14 Je 21 '51 700w
School & Society 73:191 Mr 24 '51 30w

Reviewed by M. F. Langer
Survey 87:332 Jl '51 120w

LICHINE, ALEXIS, and MASSEE, WILLIAM EDMAN. Wines of France. 326p maps $3.75 Knopf

663.2 Wine and wine making 51-10831

History of the wines of France, including considerable information on each important wine district. The author discusses the faults and virtues of the different wines, and adds bits of local color and anecdotes about people he meets on his buying trips. Maps. Index.

"The only comprehensive and completely up-to-date book on its subject, by the only American to own a vineyard in Burgundy."
+ Atlantic 188:87 Jl '51 120w
Kirkus 19:201 Ap 1 '51 200w

"What a delightful book to go on the shelf with cook books! It is also a splendid reference book." K. T. Willis
+ Library J 76:966 Je 1 '51 50w

" 'Wines of France' will be of great assistance to all who concern themselves with wine and should be an inspiration to American wine growers. It will be a guide to connoisseurs and once he has absorbed all this information the amateur will also feel like one." Charlotte Turgeon
+ N Y Times p10 My 20 '51 470w

"There is a good deal of useful information about wine and its history in this book, as well as some interesting vignettes of the famous vineyards, which make the distinguished wine names come to life as something more than mere labels on a bottle."
+ New Yorker 27:107 Je 2 '51 200w

"Not only is Mr. Lichine an expert on the wines of France, but he has a love and enthusiasm for them which distinguishes every page. While it may not be the most comprehensive or best book ever written on the subject (as the jacket claims), it is surely a most delightful and authoritative essay on some of the finest wines in the world." M. A. Amerine

LICHINE, ALEXIS—Continued
+ San Francisco Chronicle p11 My 27 '51 950w

Reviewed by Lawton Mackall
Sat R of Lit 34:13 D 29 '51 900w

LIEBERMAN, ROSALIE. Man who sold Christmas. 128p $2 Longmans
51-13800

The story of a kitchen friar in a monastery near New York, who hears God's voice commanding him to go forth and carry the Christmas message to those who had forgotten it. The story relates Brother Angelo's experiences and his success in his mission.

Booklist 48:42; 101 O 1 '51; N 15 '51

"There is some engaging fun in the story and unquestionably a most admirable purpose; but somehow the final effect seems a bit managed." Richard Sullivan
Chicago Sunday Tribune p42 D 2 '51 210w

"If you are an old softie, this is for you, and it could charm some of the deadpan fraternity too, in its brightly unashamed radiance of belief."
Kirkus 19:495 S 1 '51 150w

"Starting out bravely enough and showing unusual promise, this little tale dwindles into the commonplace.. . . Of doubtful value to public libraries." M. H. Zipprich
— + Library J 76:1420 S 15 '51 70w

"Brother Angelo's adventures are presented with a worldly wisdom which considerably exceeds his own, but Miss Lieberman's humor is never brittle. Her tender little fable is as reverent as it is light-hearted." Jane Cobb
+ N Y Times p53 D 2 '51 220w

San Francisco Chronicle p14 N 25 '51 110w

LIEBERMAN, SAUL. Hellenism in Jewish Palestine; studies in the literary transmission, beliefs and manners of Palestine in the I century B.C.E.-IV century C.E. 231p $7 Jewish theological seminary of America

296 Jewish literature. Bible. Old Testament —Criticism, Textual. Jews—History 51-2776

"Saul Lieberman's latest publication is a companion and a complementary volume to his earlier book, Greek in Jewish Palestine. Both works deal with the play of hellenistic influences on Jews of all classes in Palestine during the Alexandrian and Roman periods. There is, however, a clear difference in the respective subject matters of the two volumes that make them mutually supplementary segments of work, rather than one a mere continuation of the other. Quite properly the first of the two investigations deals with the problem of hellenistic influences on the basis of the concrete linguistic and literary data involved. Quite properly the second of the two volumes advances to the consideration of the more inclusive and less well-defined social phenomena involved: manners, customs, institutions, thought patterns, religious rites, etc." Crozer Q

"Saul Lieberman is one of a very, very small group of scholars who can write equally instructively for both students of hellenism and for rabbinic students as well." H. R. Willoughby
+ Crozer Q 28:272 Jl '51 1100w

"A superb example of the method of research in talmudic literature which [Professor Lieberman] had already emphasized and illustrated in 1942 in his Greek in Jewish Palestine. . . Both in content and in method these studies are of major importance. One additional observation, however, is perhaps in order: the lucidity which characterizes every one of the discussions is a delight to the mind of the student and one more witness of the author's intellectual precision and reason for his impact." Judah Goldin
+ J Religion 31:303 O '51 800w

"The author has made a valiant and, on the whole, successful effort to present his materials lucidly and to translate every ancient source quoted by him into English. He has thus facilitated the reading of the volume by informed laymen as well. Both scholars and laymen will, in any case, be greatly indebted to him for a most suggestive work dealing with a major problem of historical scholarship." S. W. Baron
+ N Y Times p7 Jl 29 '51 1000w

LIEF, ALFRED. Harvey Firestone, free man of enterprise; foreword by Allan Nevins. (Whittlesey house publication) 324p il $3 McGraw

B or 92 Firestone, Harvey Samuel. Firestone tire and rubber company 51-11692

An account of the life and career of an American industrial leader, Harvey Firestone. Index.

Booklist 48:10 S 1 '51

"Lief has a matter-of-fact style that leaves the family jokes without much bounce, but that is highly effective in evoking the atmosphere of 19th century Ohio or the stages of business expansion. His is a sound craftsman's job. Harvey S. Firestone appears clearly thru the medium. So, too, does Akron, a good part of the rubber industry, and a representation of American capitalism in its most winning aspect." A. C. Ames
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 Ag 5 '51 400w

"The elemental drives that carried men like Harvey Firestone to industrial success in a cut-throat economic period are sugarcoated down to a limp approximation of reality that carries little warmth and even less conviction. Mr. Lief, who has done such excellent work on Holmes and Brandeis, has fallen far short of this standard in his biography of Firestone." A. H. Raskin
— N Y Times p25 Ja 6 '52 450w

LIESVELD, JOHN H. Retail florist. 393p il $5 Macmillan

658.9359 Florists Agr51-542

The proprietor of a Kansas City retail florist shop discusses all phases of operating such shops, from the educational background required to buying, pricing and discounts. No index.

Booklist 48:62 O 15 '51

"Practical and comprehensive. There is unfortunately neither index nor bibliography for further reading." J. E. Cross
+ — Library J 76:1934 N 15 '51 80w

LIETZMANN, HANS. From Constantine to Julian; tr. by Bertram Lee Woolf. (History of the early Christian church, v3) 328p $5.50 Scribner

270.2 Church history—Primitive and early church [51-1229]

The third volume in the series A History of the Early Church, of which The Beginnings of the Christian Church, and The Founding of the Church Universal (Book Review Digest 1937 and 1938) were the first two. The author died during World war II, leaving volume four nearly finished. The present volume covers the period in which the Church, emerging from the presentation under Diocletian, found comparative security under Constantine. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 47:246 Mr 15 '51
Christian Century 68:1132 O 3 '51 270w

"In spite of the shortcomings we find in the translation, and the excessively high price the reader must pay for the book, we must recommend it for theological students and others who wish to have some understanding of the life of the church in the fourth century. Lietzmann clearly shows that it did not live in a vacuum, while at the same time he does not stress the environment to the exclusion of everything else. His final chapter on the Christian liturgy is an invaluable summary." R. M. Grant

+ — Crozer Q 28:156 Ap '51 500w

"The third volume of the best of the recent histories of the first centuries of Christianity. It is by a distinguished German specialist." K. S. Latourette

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p14 F 11 '51 600w

"Lietzmann had the courage of his historical and theological convictions. He had made up his mind about all kinds of problems, and wrote plainly and forcefully what he thought to be the true explanation of them. . . The translation is outwardly felicitous, a fact which masks its occasional inability to make the sequence of the thought clear. Some slips have passed the censorship of the proof-readers."

+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p425 Jl 7 '50 850w

LIFE (periodical). Picture history of western man. 306p il $10 Time, inc; for sale by Simon & Schuster

901 Civilization, Occidental—Pictorial works 51-7640

"It is a big book, printed on Life-size stock, and it is liberally illustrated. Over 100 of the pages are full-color reproductions from the works of such masters as Michaelangelo, Raphael, Titian, Delacroix, Rembrandt, Turner and Vermeer. But it is much more than a collection of art treasures. It is the story of the science and the literature, of the exploration and the inventions, of the philosophy and ideas of Western Man since the rise of Christendom." (San Francisco Chronicle) List of illustrations. Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by Paul Engle

Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 N 4 '51 500w

Cleveland Open Shelf p26 N '51

Kirkus 19:659 N 1 '51 160w

New Repub 125:20 D 10 '51 130w

"The text is sensible and informative without being dull. This is difficult, and it is necessary. People realize nowadays that history is not made out of 'facts' alone. 'What really happened' is what was felt as well as what was done. Therefore, as well as giving the events, the wise historical writer will give something of the difficulty of the ideas, something of the excitement of the emotions. Much of this is given here by the pictures, and more by the text. . . The chief fault of the work seems to me to be its misunderstanding of the Greek and Roman civilization and of the way that civilization helped to build ours." Gilbert Highet

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 N 18 '51 650w

"The editors of Life are to be congratulated. Is it perhaps too much to hope that this splendid book reflects a recognition on their part that while cheesecake invariably goes stale and sour, culture in some one of its forms has been with us since time immemorial and in all probability is here to stay?" F. H. Taylor

+ N Y Times p7 N 4 '51 900w

New Yorker 27:189 N 17 '51 240w

San Francisco Chronicle p21 O 28 '51 190w

Reviewed by Crane Brinton

Sat R of Lit 34:20 N 17 '51 950w

"A possession to be prized." D. B. B.

+ Springf'd Republican p30A N 11 '51 160w

Time 58:127 N 5 '51 420w

LIGHTFOOT, ROBERT HENRY. Gospel message of St Mark. 116p $2.75 Oxford

226.3 Bible. N. T.—St Mark 51-9265

"Dr. Lightfoot brings together a number of lectures and essays composed in recent years and embodying the results of prolonged and careful study of our second gospel. The collection is headed by a series of four lectures given in Cardiff in 1949. These lectures form an admirable introduction to the study of St. Mark's gospel. . . [In other] chapters the author discusses the accounts of the cleansing of the Temple given by Mark and John. . . Another chapter is devoted to a question which has lately received a good deal of attention, that of the ending of Mark's account." Times [London] Lit Sup

"Drawing widely upon the best recent scholarship, this book provides many interesting and valuable insights into the nature and significance of Mark. It is a theological Gospel, and its historical concerns are secondary, although it is the most reliable historical material we have." R. C. Miller

+ Churchman 165:15 My 15 '51 70w

"This is an admirable and important inquiry into the meaning—not the origin—of Mark." J. W. Beardslee

+ J Religion 31:295 O '51 380w

"Like his other books, this one is written with beautiful lucidity, and yet it goes very deeply into its subject. There is nothing in Dr Lightfoot's account that need baffle the elementary student or bore the advanced and much that is profitable for both." T. W. M.

+ Manchester Guardian p3 Ja 22 '51 70w

"The book is written with the lucidity and careful statement that his readers are accustomed to expect from the author; and it is a work that can be studied with profit by students of the gospels at any stage of their career."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p11 Ap 27 '51 420w

LILLIE, AMY MORRIS. Judith, daughter of Jericho; il. by Nedda Walker. 192p $2.50 Dutton

51-6022

Story for older boys and girls about a twelve-year-old girl, Judith, who lived in Jericho at the time of Christ. She was baptised by John the Baptist and talked with Jesus on more than one occasion.

"The Bible characters [are] skilfully woven into this quite realistic story for middle and upper grade readers." F. D. Heron

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p16 N 11 '51 100w

"A readable, quiet story of life at the time of Christ."

+ Kirkus 19:435 Ag 15 '51 120w

Reviewed by E. E. Frank

Library J 76:1716 O 15 '51 60w

Reviewed by L. S. Bechtel

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p16 N 25 '51 80w

"Miss Lillie writes simply and directly but also with feeling and reverence. She is quite successful in portraying Jewish life and faith and the relationship of Jesus and His followers to this background." N. K. Burger

+ N Y Times p6 N 11 '51 140w

LIMBERT, PAUL MOYER, ed. College teaching and Christian values. 187p $2.75 Assn. press

377 Teaching. Religious education

"This book is written by faculty members of different colleges, teaching not only subjects that have been traditionally allied with religion, as literature, but also subjects that have been traditionally supposed to be antagonistic to a religious interpretation, as pure science, biology, economics, and psychology. These are departments of learning that had become secularized and it is especially in them that the authors of this book have found increasing opportunity for teaching Christianity as essential to the understanding both of the study and of the human responsibility for the uses to which the factual knowledge is to be put." Survey

Springf'd Republican p8C F 11 '51 380w

Reviewed by G. F. Alsop

Survey 87:333 Jl '51 280w

LIN, HAZEL AI CHUN. The physicians. 250p $3 Day
51-13467

A novel about two Chinese doctors: Old Dr Wang, a physician of the Chinese school; and his orphaned granddaughter who received her training in America. When the young doctor received honors in America her grandfather was present, and the granddaughter publicly acknowledged her indebtedness to him.

Booklist 48:86 N 1 '51
+ Kirkus 19:495 S 1 '51 150w

"A warm and gentle story with much feeling. Although the book is termed a novel, it is difficult to get away from the impression that much of the material is autobiographical." Helena Kuo
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p14 D 9 '51 550w

"The adventures of Hsiao-chen have a gentle charm that captivates the reader who is not in a hurry." F. G. Slaughter
+ N Y Times p37 O 14 '51 140w

"Miss Lin writes colloquially and sometimes amusingly, and gives a delightful picture of the Chinese girl's childhood and a touching account of her first love affair."
+ New Yorker 27:151 N 3 '51 50w
San Francisco Chronicle p23 N 11 '51 180w
Sat R of Lit 34:36 D 22 '51 120w

LIN, YU-T'ANG. Widow, nun and courtesan; three novelettes from the Chinese; tr. and adapted by [the author]. 266p $3 Day 51-10944

"Passion, philosophy, and humor are the themes of the three short tales translated from the Chinese and adapted. . . The first two stories are by well-known Chinese authors, translated for the first time. 'Miss Tu' is a traditional story of the tragic courtesan and known for centuries in China. This is Lin Yutang's own version." Library J

Reviewed by L. J. Rogers
Am Soc R 31:190 N '51 120w
Reviewed by Fanny Butcher
Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 Je 3 '51 600w

"A delightful book for all libraries." K. T. Willis
+ Library J 76:963 Je 1 '51 100w

"The three stories, reflecting as they do Chinese life in quite different periods and settings, and under contrasting conditions, make an interesting and pleasantly readable group." J. J. Espey
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p3 Je 17 '51 850w

"The sidelights on Buddhist, Taoist and Confucian practices are particularly attracting and the sketch of the peculiar predicament of a nun in an 'irregular' convent will interest readers, though they will be surprised at the sedateness of the tale. . . Of the three stories the tale of Miss Tu, the courtesan, a poignant story expertly told, will be most familiar in form and content to American readers." Mai-Mai Sze
+ N Y Times p16 Je 17 '51 340w

"The first, a meandering, patronizing study of village characters and their humor, is the most artificial piece in the book. The writing in all three stories is oppressively ironic, and so clouded with talk and atmosphere that it is hard to find one's way from sentence to sentence."
New Yorker 27:106 Je 2 '51 70w
Reviewed by J. H. Jackson
San Francisco Chronicle p14 Je 15 '51 600w
Reviewed by Preston Schoyer
Sat R of Lit 34:20 Je 23 '51 650w

LINCOLN, ABRAHAM. Treasury; comp. by Caroline Thomas Harnsberger [pen drawings by Harold D. Hoopes and William L. Marsh]. 372p il $5 Wilcox & Follett
B or 92 50-11878

Brief passages from Lincoln's speeches, letters, and reported conversations, arranged alphabetically under topics. Chronology, bibliography, index.

Reviewed by Jay Monaghan
Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 F 18 '51 400w
Reviewed by G. F. Whicher
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p16 Ja 21 '51 150w

"There is no end to books about Abraham Lincoln. Yet this one does have a special value. For here in alphabetical order, from abolition to writing, women and work, are quotations that reflect Lincoln's opinions, humanity and humor." H. I. Brock
+ N Y Times p15 D 31 '50 120w

LINCOLN, GEORGE ARTHUR, and others, eds. Economics of national security [contributors: H. Beukema and others]. 601p $6.65; to schools $5 Prentice-Hall
338.973 U.S.—Economic policy. U.S.—Defenses 50-11839

"In non-technical language [the book] surveys the scope and nature of the economic problems caused by our anti-aggression policy. The book is a corporate effort with contributions from more than a hundred specialists." N Y Herald Tribune Bk R

Reviewed by P. J. Strayer
Am Econ R 41:734 S '51 800w
Am Pol Sci R 45:574 Je '51 30w

"The members of the Department of Social Sciences of the United States Military Academy, in creating this book, have made a definite contribution." B. H. Williams
+ Ann Am Acad 276:154 Jl '51 380w
Reviewed by L. T. Heron
Chicago Sunday Tribune p10 Jl 1 '51 100w
Current Hist 20:293 My '51 110w
Foreign Affairs 29:670 Jl '51 20w
Reviewed by J. E. Cross
Library J 76:602 Ap 1 '51 130w
Management R 40:161 Mr '51 110w

"The editors have co-ordinated [the contributions] well. Together they form a readable story that supplies the student with a jumping off place in his consideration of such topics as economic mobilization, man power and material supplies, industrial resources, foreign aid, procurement and price control—the very subjects that are featured day after day on our front pages. For the lecturer, businessman and general reader, the book will be a guide to the new field of security economics." C. N. Stabler
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p19 Mr 11 '51 700w

"The enterprising authors of this volume are in line for some sort of commendation for their venture into a new as well as sadly relevant field that today is sharing the front pages with Korea. They have measurably illuminated their topic. . . The weaknesses of the book lie rather in its conception of the task of economic mobilization, and in its overall economic views." J. K. Galbraith
+ — N Y Times p3 Ja 28 '51 850w

LINCOLN, VICTORIA ENDICOTT (MRS VICTOR AUGUSTUS LOWE). Out from Eden. 311p $3 Rinehart 51-13628

The unorthodox doings of a lovable, unconventional family, in which the father is an artist; the mother a gentle matriarch, and her husband's favorite model; the daughter a beautiful hedonist; and the son a near-genius at mathematics.

Booklist 48:125 D 1 '51

Reviewed by August Derleth
Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 N 4 '51 320w

"She writes like an angel but she has to be read to be believed. Any outline of plot sounds incredibly naive, and yet, as you read, the characters have a ring of truth, and the mad pattern of circumstances takes on reality. I think this is her best book since February Hill."

Kirkus 19:492 S 1 '51 320w

"As always, Miss Lincoln has a good deal to say, and a winning tolerance for and understanding of the rebellious mind. Her people love life, and so, obviously, does she. But this time her story seems invented rather than come upon." J. K. Hutchens

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 N 4 '51 550w

"As the love story of childlike people or as entertainment in the tragi-comic manner, 'Out From Eden' is a brilliant performance." James Kelly

+ N Y Times p4 N 4 '51 450w

"It is an exotic and warm-hearted creation with a great deal of earthy humor. It contains those opposing factors which her critics in the past have noted; it is delicately fragile yet strong, restrained yet emotional, intensely serious yet amusing. Above all, 'Out from Eden' is entertaining, a quality that has been discarded by many of our younger writers who choose to believe that entertainment is no longer necessary to the art of fiction." Harrison Smith

+ Sat R of Lit 34:36 D 1 '51 800w

LINCOLN library of essential information; an up-to-date manual for daily reference. 18th ed 2175p il pl maps thumb indexed $19-21; lea $27; also in 2v thumb indexed $23-25; lea $34 Frontier press

031 Encyclopedias and dictionaries

"The copy examined was the 18th edition, 1949. The first edition appeared in 1924. Reviews of previous editions have appeared in the Subscription Books Bulletin for January 1930, July 1934, October 1937, and October 1944. The publisher states that the purpose of the book is to occupy a position between an encyclopedia and the 'one-volume reference work containing from 800 to 1000 pages . . . containing the minimum essentials of knowledge.'—Preface. The material is presented at a popular level, concisely and in a condensed form, making use of many tabulations and charts." Subscription Bks Bul

"Despite minor inconsistencies, there is a great deal of information, well indexed, contained in the book, and its presentation makes it well adapted for home use. Small libraries not having an extensive reference collection will find it valuable and some of the tables will be good ready reference material for larger libraries. The Lincoln Library of Essential Information, 1949 edition, is recommended unless a 1942 or later edition is available."

+ Subscription Bks Bul 21:56 O '50 800w

LINDSAY, PHILIP. Great buccaneer. 305p $3.50 Funk, W.

B or 92 Morgan, Sir Henry 51-3835

"Being the life, death and extraordinary adventures of Sir Henry Morgan, buccaneer and lieutenant governor of Jamaica." (Subtitle) Index.

"Mr. Lindsay describes the barbaric scenes of rape, plunder and torture with a great deal of extravagant rhetoric, some ghastly detail, and not a little poetry, but he never penetrates Morgan's 'mask of inscrutability.' Even as an aging, knighted royal governor, 'the Tamburlaine of the Indies' remains a shadowy figure." Richard Match

N Y Times p10 Je 17 '51 270w

San Francisco Chronicle p21 My 13 '51 200w

"Mr. Lindsay is attracted by the violence of it all, the treachery and the lechery. The treachery, rightly, he does not seek to play down; the lechery he is for ever seeking to play up, until the reader sighs for a penny-plain version of a tale that needs no spurious heightening and that would be vastly more convincing without the constant and wearisome intrusion of the suppositional."

— Times [London] Lit Sup p530 Ag 25 '50 700w

LINGENFELTER, MARY REBECCA, and KITSON, HARRY DEXTER. Vocations for girls. rev ed 364p $3 Harcourt

396.5 Woman—Employment. Profession, Choice of 51-10837

New edition of a work first published in 1939 (Book Review Digest 1939). "This edition is completely reorganized and revised. Information is briefly given and an effort has been made to include many different types of work under general headings of clerical workers, librarians, teachers and others. Disadvantages are clearly stated; salaries are not quoted. Reading lists include books and pamphlets—fiction, biography and other non-fiction—but without publication dates." (Booklist)

Booklist 47:366 Je 15 '51

"Valuable and useful to girls and to their advisors." S. M. A.

+ Horn Bk 27:338 S '51 50w

"We feel that the hazards and exact preparation requirements in some professions, medicine, newspaper reporting, farming, are too lightly passed over. Of course, this is a bird's-eye view, and the bibliography of books treating each occupation is of great value in tracking down more specific information."

Kirkus 19:246 My 15 '51 120w

"Friends of the first edition will welcome this pertinent, timely, revision. Format is improved; section headings more clever and captivating; introductory chapter, a concrete helpful guide. Fewer pages, but the total content is more effective, more informational. . . Recommended for older girls." R. C. Buell

+ Library J 76:1035 Je 15 '51 120w

Reviewed by L. S. Bechtel
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Jl 22 '51 120w

Reviewed by S. M. Neal
Springf'd Republican p11D Je 10 '51 120w

Wis Lib Bul 47:195 Jl '51

LINGG, ANN M. Mephisto waltz; the story of Franz Liszt. (Musical biography ser) 307p $3.50 Holt

B or 92 Liszt, Franz 51-14005

"Crowded with exciting figures and incidents, this is a minutely documented life of the fabulous Franz Liszt—whose career blazed across the romantic and revolutionary chiaroscuro of 19th century Europe like the comet that flared in the sky on the night of his birth. . . At the end of his long tempestuous life he returned to his early aspirations and became the Abbé Liszt." Christian Science Monitor

Booklist 48:146 D 15 '51

Reviewed by Kathleen Cannell
Christian Science Monitor p14 N 29 '51 550w

Kirkus 19:489 S 1 '51 130w

"Writing with honesty and considerable skill, the author makes Liszt and his contemporaries real, and quite often erring, human beings. Because other material on Liszt is lacking, this should be added to young people's collections where needed, but as interest in him among teen-agers is not widespread, this will probably be read only by those with a consuming interest in music." C. A. Hulton

+ Library J 76:2017 D 1 '51 80w

"The critical years at Weimar are very well done, giving us a most vivid sense of the place, the people, the music, and the struggle between

LINGG, A. M.—Continued
partisans of old and new, the attitude of the patrons and their relation to music elsewhere. The author is also very fine on the matter of Liszt's total contribution. . . The story lures one on, in spite of its length." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 D 16 '51 380w

"A great book, containing exhaustive psychological analysis, can be written about this most enigmatic of artists. Although Ann M. Lingg has obviously not tried to do this, she has succeeded in giving us a glittering picture of Liszt in a volume which displays the writer's good taste and Viennese education." H. E. Jacob

+ N Y Times p38 D 2 '51 410w

LINK, HENRY CHARLES. Way to security. 224p $2.50 Doubleday

137.32 Conduct of life. Psychology, Religious 51-9963

"A discussion of social, emotional and economic fears which offers a spiritual as well as practical antidote and calls upon religious resources to offset the troubled tenor of these times. Link, an experienced counselor, shows how security begins in the home but not through over-protection (the more progressive pattern is scored); demands the right kind of education (authority as well as affection) and sex education; points up the larger insecurities, the atom bomb, money, old age, and shows how to get rid of unnecessary fears; indicates the importance of personality, and particularly the mature personality; and guides the way toward a return to religion." Kirkus

Bookmark 10:181 My '51 20w

Cleveland Open Shelf p14 Jl '51

"A balanced point of view in a plainspoken presentation which does not pander to personal vanity or weakness."

+ Kirkus 19:90 F 1 '51 120w

"While Dr. Henry Link's latest book, The Way to Security, has been written for every thinking person, it can be especially helpful to any member of management who has time to squeeze it into his reading schedule. It will take a minimum of time because it is such easy and enjoyable reading." L. N. Laseau

+ Management R 40:450 Jl '51 750w

"Writing in a plodding, humorless style, Mr. Link trots out every platitude man has devised to meet the trials imposed by his tragic history. . . It is to these wise and loving messages that Mr. Link would have us return. After wading through his fifteen uninspired chapters, we can only do so with joy and relief." Betsy Barton

— N Y Times p41 O 21 '51 400w

San Francisco Chronicle p25 My 6 '51 500w

LINKLATER, ERIC. Mr Byculla. 160p $2.50 Harcourt

51-9210

Mr Byculla was a large mysterious gentleman of mixed ancestry, living in post-war London. He had a good income from some unknown source, and a knowledge of Thuggee which came to the notice of a psychiatrist, but did not alarm him. The other members of the cast are the psychiatrist's unfaithful wife, a retired British official, and his worthless son. The murder of a prostitute sets off the action.

Booklist 47:254 Mr 15 '51

Reviewed by Riley Hughes
Cath World 173:392 Ag '51 170w

Kirkus 18:705 D 1 '50 210w

"A neat story, expertly told." R. W. Henderson

+ Library J 76:326 F 15 '51 80w

Manchester Guardian p4 Je 9 '50 210w

Reviewed by Robert Phelps
Nation 172:284 Mr 24 '51 300w

Reviewed by Margaret Lane
New Statesman & Nation 39:723 Je 24 '50 190w

"Mr. Linklater has given his thriller a de luxe styling, which, from such a first-rate writer, means simplicity and subtlety combined; the essential horror of the story permeates, it is not conveyed by words so much as inlaid in thought and character. If you can enjoy a morbid theme bitter-sweetened with wit and a Senecan philosophy, then 'Mr. Byculla' will offer its own rare and wry entertainment." James Hilton

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 F 25 '51 600w

"Whether, in delivering himself of his latest opus, Mr. Linklater had a general moral for do-gooders in his rather tortuous mind, or if it is a threatening homily against the socialism which prevails in Britain, is a matter for the reader's personal decision. Certainly the book will have one undeniable result—its readers will survey the next fat man who offers to set them up to double, jumbo-sized martinis with considerable attention." Sugden Tilley

N Y Times p21 F 25 '51 360w

New Yorker 27:98 F 24 '51 70w

San Francisco Chronicle p20 Mr 25 '51 300w

"This is a subtle story, a thriller designed in true British fashion on understatement." John Cournos

+ Sat R of Lit 34:31 Mr 3 '51 290w

"It is a most successful experiment. . . The book is entertaining and light, and yet not exactly trivial."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p321 My 26 '50 300w

LINTON, RALPH, and LINTON, ADELIN SUMMER (BRIGGS) HOHFELD. Halloween through twenty centuries. 108p il $2.50 Schuman

394.268 Halloween 50-10187

"The Lintons trace the background and history, traditions, folklore, and superstitions, of Halloween. . . Tells how this harvest festival is celebrated all over the world." Library J

Booklist 47:71 O 15 '50

Kirkus 18:541 S 1 '50 190w

"It is an authoritative, readable, and interesting account. . . A vivid and valuable record for teachers, students, librarians, and others interested in authentic information. Recommended." Anne Whitmore

+ Library J 75:1504 S 15 '50 80w

"It will interest the average citizen, whether he enjoys Halloween or suffers from it. . . The authors have a good bit of information about witches, and also about cats, the witches' best friends. . . [It is] provocative and entertaining as well as educational." Thomas Sugrue

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p16 O 15 '50 280w

Wis Lib Bul 47:57 Mr '51

LIPKIND, WILLIAM, and MORDVINOFF, NICOLAS. Finders keepers. [28p] il $2 Harcourt

51-12326

A picture-storybook about two dogs who had found one bone and the difficulty they had to decide which of them owned it.

Booklist 48:16 S 1 '51

Reviewed by Polly Goodwin
Chicago Sunday Tribune p18 O 7 '51 110w

"The crudeness of some of the pictures is rather overdone and some people will find the use of broad color areas too extreme." E. C. I.
Christian Science Monitor p11 S 6 '51 80w

Cleveland Open Shelf p21 N '51

Reviewed by A. C. Moore
Horn Bk 27:318 S '51 100w

"Here is a perfect combination of rollicking story and pictures that have strength, life and humor in every line." J. D. Lindquist and S. M. Andrews

+ Horn Bk 27:320 S '51 80w

Kirkus 19:385 Ag 1 '51 120w

Reviewed by Mary Strang
Library J 76:1342 S 1 '51 50w

Reviewed by L. S. Bechtel
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p20 N 11 '51 200w

"[This] story has a good deal of the quality of a traditional fable, yet it is told in crisp modern style. It isn't, to be sure, quite so funny nor so action-filled as their notable picture book 'The Two Reds.' However, both story and pictures are done with great good humor. Nicolas' red, yellow and black illustrations are bolder in scale and in color than those in 'The Two Reds' but distinguished by the same droll imagination." E. L. Buell
+ N Y Times p18 Ag 26 '51 140w

Reviewed by K. T. Kinkead
New Yorker 27:171 D 1 '51 80w

"Nicolas has done an outstanding piece of illustrating in this, his second picture book. There are action and humor in every drawing, and the bold, black design against the gold background is particularly effective. Children know perhaps better than their elders how to reward an artist for the courage and originality of his work."
Sat R of Lit 34:44 S 22 '51 170w
Springf'd Republican p12C Ag 26 '51 60w
Wis Lib Bul 47:218 S '51

LIPMAN, MRS JEAN (HERZBERG). American folk decoration; with practical instruction by Eve Meulendyke. 163p 181il 4pl $10 Oxford

745.3 Folk art. Decoration and ornament. Design, Decorative 51-11035

Study of the decorative painting which flourished in rural New York, New England, and Pennsylvania during the past three centuries. Considers decorations on furniture, tinware, fabrics, architecture, coaches, signs, etc. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 47:378 Jl 1 '51
Christian Science Monitor p2 Ag 3 '51 100w

"A beautiful book, and a practical book as well."
+ Kirkus 19:290 Je 1 '51 180w

"Handsome volume strongly recommended as an aid to understanding our American heritage." A. S. Plaut
+ Library J 76:1425 S 15 '51 90w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson
San Francisco Chronicle p16 My 22 '51 60w

"There are specific instructions . . . for reproducing these designs in stencils, japanning, glass painting, and various other techniques. Fortunately, the examples chosen . . . are handsome and worth reproducing. These have all been selected with taste, and although no craftsman myself, I would say the instructions seem clear and fairly easy to follow." R. L. H.
+ Sat R of Lit 34:33 S 1 '51 130w

"American Folk Decoration is lavishly produced and the authors are to be congratulated on their comprehensive study as well as on the admirable practical details that further illuminate their subject."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p726 N 16 '51 340w

LIPMAN, MRS JEAN (HERZBERG), and WINCHESTER, ALICE, eds. Primitive painters in America, 1750-1950; an anthology. 182p il 4 col pl $6 Dodd

759.13 Painters, American. Painting, American 50-58059

An anthology composed of biographical records of sixteen early American painters by name, with locale, date, subject, and medium. No index.

Booklist 47:185 Ja 15 '51

"This admirable book is concerned with those painters who had no formal training in art but who painted the world and its people as the natural bent of their hand and eye dictated. . . One of the interesting aspects of these primitive paintings is the way in which, instinctively and without any training, the artists created some of the same effects as the most sofisticated painting; distortions, crude simplicities, formalizing of detail." Paul Engle
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 My 6 '51 450w

"Eight years ago, with the publication of her 'American Primitive Painting,' Jean Lipman made a valuable contribution to the appreciation of the first century of 'popular' painting in this country. . . Mrs. Lipman's new book, unfortunately, has few of the virtues of the earlier one. [It is] more expensive, less lavishly and tastefully illustrated, and contains an extraordinary number of typographical errors. . . While many of the brief biographies contain interesting historical sidelights, only one of them, Frank O. Spinney's piece on the elusive Davises, is written with any humor or style. But perhaps it is the method which has led to a fundamental distortion." Selden Rodman
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 D 17 '50 500w

LIPPER, ELINOR. Eleven years in Soviet prison camps; authorized translation from the original German by Richard and Clara Winston. 310p map $3.50 Regnery

365.947 Prisons—Russia. Convict labor 51-1816

"A gently nurtured Dutch girl studying medicine in Berlin in 1931 was deeply touched by the miseries of the German unemployed, and at Hitler's ascendancy transferred her loyalties to the Soviet Union. From 1937-1948 she was a political prisoner held without trial for the bulk of her hideous, subhuman imprisonment at Kolyma in Siberia." Library J

"The book gives a good account of life in Soviet labor camps, based on personal experience supplemented by knowledge gained from fellow prisoners during the long periods she was working as a nurse in hospitals attached to the camps. What she tells is, in general, already well known. Her presentation is not as good as V. Petroff's in his Soviet Gold which treats of exactly the same region and covers approximately the same years. Nevertheless, the book is welcome as another testimony to the reality of the gigantic machinery of delayed murder created by the Soviets." N. S. Timasheff
+ — Ann Am Acad 276:177 Jl '51 380w
Booklist 47:288 Ap 15 '51

Reviewed by J. L. Harrington
Canadian Forum 31:142 S '51 200w

"She has told the truth in pages which according to the reliable David J. Dallin combine conscientious reporting and absorbing writing. To learn what goes on in Soviet Slave Camps, you can get no better book than this."
+ Cath World 173:399 Ag '51 140w

Reviewed by W. H. Chamberlin
Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 Ap 1 '51 650w

Reviewed by Ylia Goldenberg
Christian Century 68:896 Ag 1 '51 550w

Reviewed by Ernest Pisko
Christian Science Monitor p11 My 24 '51 600w
Current Hist 21:35 Jl '51 70w
Foreign Affairs 30:163 O '51 40w
Kirkus 19:23 Ja 1 '51 110w

"No way to check authority on this book which must wait on the Iron Curtain raising. Please read it." F. A. Boyle
Library J 76:324 F 15 '51 70w

Reviewed by W. B. Walsh
Nation 172:616 Je 30 '51 290w

Reviewed by Frances Witherspoon
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p14 Mr 25 '51 500w

"From one point of view there is little that is new in this book. . . Nevertheless this book is an important contribution to our knowledge and certainly one of the best personal accounts that has yet appeared. It is written with a rare objectivity and the author attempts to analyze the meaning of what she saw and experienced rather than merely to describe." Harry Schwartz

LIPPER, ELINOR—Continued
+ N Y Times p3 Mr 25 '51 700w
New Yorker 27:89 Je 23 '51 140w
San Francisco Chronicle p17 Ap 8 '51 550w

"It seems impossible to convey, even in such a dramatic eye-witness report as this, the underlying currents that exist in the Soviet Union. Not since 'Darkness at Noon' has there been a truly stirring account of the basic horrors of Soviet life. This book, with its thorough documentation and convincing detail, is no exception to the difficulty. You believe every word of it, and the terror is packed tightly, but it is almost too much." Martin Ebon
+ Sat R of Lit 34:12 My 26 '51 550w

LIPSNER, BENJAMIN B. Airmail: jennies to jets; as told to Leonard Finley Hilts. 306p il $3 Wilcox & Follett
383.4973 Air mail service—U.S. 51-10616

"This year the air lines are celebrating the 25th anniversary of contract air mail, altho in reality United States air mail was started 33 years ago, when a captain of the aviation section of the army signal corps was assigned to the postoffice department to start the first air mail service in the world. . . The army captain who worked with the postoffice is Benjamin B. Lipsner. He has just finished a thrilling story of the vision and ingenuity of the men who pioneered in the service." Chicago Sunday Tribune

Booklist 47:356 Je 15 '51

"It is a most readable story of the events which have changed our entire way of life." R. McP. Cabun
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p11 My 20 '51 250w

LIPSON, EPHRAIM. Growth of English society; a short economic history. 467p $5 Holt
330.942 Great Britain—Economic conditions [50-2522]

"Professor Lipson offers to the serious but non-expert reader the fruits of forty years' study of Britain's economic development. His aim is to show 'how in our island home man has fulfilled the scriptural injunction to earn his bread in the sweat of his brow,' from Anglo Saxon times down to the Second World War—an aim including, beside the study of techniques, trade routes and fiscal and regulatory policies, the examination of the basic social ideas which partly determined, and were partly determined by, men's economic relations." (Spec) Index.

"This volume is an expanded and revised version of the author's earlier A Planned Economy or Free Enterprise. Its title may have less sales appeal, but it has gained much in the revision. Mr. Lipson has added breadth and depth as well as length to his examination of the rôle of state planning versus individualistic enterprise in English history. His position is more closely reasoned, his treatment tighter-knit, and although some of the freshness of the first effort is lacking in the second, its painstaking scholarship makes it a much more satisfying piece of work. Its publication will call for extensive reworking of many of the texts in English economic history now in use." W. T. Easterbrook
+ Am Econ R 41:688 S '51 1000w
Reviewed by Herbert Heaton
Am Hist R 56:954 Jl '51 410w
Reviewed by Paul Knaplund
Ann Am Acad 274:260 Mr '51 250w
Reviewed by Henry Sowerby
Christian Science Monitor p5 Ja 13 '51 550w
Manchester Guardian p4 D 2 '49 70w
Reviewed by Aylmer Vallence
New Statesman & Nation 38:739 D 17 '49 550w

"This book, 'the fruits of forty years' study' of the subject, will interest the student in its general approach or as revealing the economic and political faith of an important historian; it can be of very considerable value, both as exposition and stimulus, to the general reader. It is superbly organized; and despite an often jarring absence of commas, it is eminently readable." R. K. Webb
Pol Sci Q 66:601 D '51 650w

"The author has taught economic history at Oxford for many years, and his book can be used by students of that subject as a text, or it can be read with equal profit by the general reader, for its style is anything but academic." C. W. W.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p24 F 11 '51 320w

"[The book] offers an impressive example of the skilful blending of generalisation and evidence, of straight narrative and interpretation, even, with its well-chosen and neatly placed quotations from contemporary observers, of what in the novelist's phraseology could be called 'scene and summary.' Professor Lipson excels in the art of tracing from their inconspicuous beginnings economic and social trends of which one is accustomed to think only in connection with the periods during which they were either unmistakably in the ascendant or at least obviously gathering momentum." Honor Croome
+ Spec 184:82 Ja 20 '50 800w
Times [London] Lit Sup p854 D 30 '49 1350w

LITTEN, FREDERIC NELSON. Code of a Champion [il. by Bill Wickham]. 224p $2.50 Westminster press
50-10334

Story of a disillusioned young war hero who returns to his Louisiana home hoping to pay back his debt to a devoted father. Unfortunately he gets mixed up in politics on the wrong side, but good breeding and a fine dog finally turn the scales.

"There is an abundance of plot in this story. Thru the heart of it runs the theme of a dog's loyalty and a dog's example of character. Mr. Litten writes with a clear understanding of both dogs and people." Walter Havighurst
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p14 N 19 '50 120w

"It is unfortunate that all through this well-developed story with its action and dog interest there should run an undercurrent of contempt for the 'Cajuns' and a depressing traditional treatment of the Negro. Juvenile literature which perpetuates rather than surmounts cliched thinking handicaps instead of stimulates an active mind."
Kirkus 18:524 S 1 '50 200w
Reviewed by L. S. Bechtel
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 F 11 '51 50w

"Against an interesting background the political story is well blended with the outdoor sports story, though some may doubt that the outcome of a field trial could so influence an election, even in Louisiana." F. C. S.
N Y Times p10 N 12 '50 170w

LITTLE, CONSTANCE, and LITTLE, GWENYTH. Black Smith. 218p $2.50 Doubleday 50-10871

Detective story.

Kirkus 18:648 O 15 '50 60w

"The Littles write with a kind of flip humor which sometimes rings the bell, but often doesn't. And as always, this particular brand of humor gives any story a general air of unreality."
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p11 Ja 7 '51 210w

N Y Times p27 D 10 '50 70w

"The Littles' specialty of slapdash plotting and flippancy about gruesome subjects isn't too successful this time." L. G. Offord

San Francisco Chronicle p14 D 24 '50 80w

"No."

— Sat R of Lit 33:35 D 23 '50 40w

LITTLE, CONSTANCE, and LITTLE, GWENYTH. Blackout. 190p $2.50 Doubleday 51-13255

Mystery story.

Reviewed by Drexel Drake

Chicago Sunday Tribune p18 N 18 '51 140w

"Inanity, this time pushed to a point of impossibility."

— Kirkus 19:415 Ag 1 '51 90w

"This is a relatively sober book from the giggling Littles but the amnesia gambit is one of the weariest in the repertoire and nothing that follows Joe's return to the creaking mansion with its group of eccentrics seems to warrant your passage through these pages." James Sandoe

— N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p24 N 4 '51 40w

"The authors labor mightily, but the end-product displays as much chaotic ineptitude as any of their farces." Anthony Boucher

— N Y Times p44 O 21 '51 50w

"The Little sisters have provided a rich background for [Joe's] activities . . . and their plotting is ingenious and full of incident. The prose, however, may be a little trying to the really judicious, and the humor, especially in the person of a quaint old servant who has the habit of saying anything that comes into her head, is conceivably a trifle wearing, too. The whole piece could probably be described as a sound, if not altogether successful, reworking of a more or less familiar theme."

+ — New Yorker 27:156 N 3 '51 150w

"The usual odd and flippant characters troop in and out of a story which seems to have been written off the top of the authors' heads and left as it fell. C minus." L. G. Offord

— San Francisco Chronicle p12 O 21 '51 70w

Reviewed by Sergeant Cuff

Sat R of Lit 34:39 O 27 '51 50w

LITTLE, KATHARINE DAY. Francois de Fénelon; study of a personality. 260p $3.50 Harper

B or 92 Fénelon, François de Salignac de la Mothe 51-2713

"A biographical study of François de Salignac de la Mothe Fénelon, the tutor to the grandson of and heir apparent to Louis XIV. He was also the author of the once celebrated epic 'Telemachus;' the Archbishop of Cambrai; and a man of original and independent thought in religious matters, which in his day were the same as practical politics. The author focusses her book on Fénelon the mystic." New Yorker

Booklist 47:327 My 15 '51

"In this very intelligent and penetrating biography, perhaps the section of greatest permanent value, though not of the greatest biographical interest, is the pages (91-134) on French and Spanish mysticism in the 17th and early 18th centuries." W. E. G.

+ Christian Century 68:1223 O 24 '51 330w

"Mrs. Little's book is interesting and authoritative." R. C. M.

+ Churchman 165:17 O 1 '51 110w

"This readable study of the great French prelate is written with the intensity and sympathy kindled by the beauty of his character, the idealism of his motives, and the power of his intellect." W. J. Gaines

+ Crozer Q 28:359 O '51 950w

"Essentially, this is a study of a winsome and deeply spiritual personality. Recommended for both Protestants and Catholics."

+ Kirkus 19:180 Mr 15 '51 180w

Reviewed by Thomas Sugrue

N Y Times p28 S 30 '51 480w

"[The author] tries to make clear, in a conversational style, the religio-philosophical controversy he helped stir up over Quietism, a movement that came into being partly as a protest against the Catholicism of Louis XIV's time. . . [She] has not been completely successful in unravelling this theological snarl for the general reader, but she does present a fine portrait of her subject, whom she obviously venerates for his nobility of mind and integrity of purpose."

+ — New Yorker 27:105 Mr 24 '51 140w

"With a poise of style that matches the lucidity, the sensitive objectivity of the author's interpretation, this biography will point up the role that religion once played in the life of a people who today, as then, have suffered from the spasms of war." C. E. M.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p21 Mr 25 '51 400w

"The author of this book seems to have absorbed something of François de Fénelon's own clarity of style and directness of expression. She gives us a study of the personality of the seventeenth-century theologian and teacher that is unpretentious, discerning, and eminently readable." Sheldon Cheney

+ Sat R of Lit 34:15 Mr 31 '51 400w

LOCHLONS, COLIN, pseud. See Jackson, C. P.

LOCHNER, LOUIS PAUL. Fritz Kreisler. 455p il $5 Macmillan

B or 92 Kreisler, Fritz 50-12787

For descriptive note see Annual for 1950.

Atlantic 187:84 Ja '51 100w

Bookmark 10:82 Ja '51 40w

"The biography of anyone still living has certain obvious limitations; but it can nevertheless be very interesting, and Louis P. Lochner's biography of one of the most celebrated violinists of the twentieth century is all of that. Celebrities have a way of taking on statuesque qualities, and at the age of seventy-five Fritz Kreisler has already become something of a legend. It is gratifying in these pages to meet him as a human being, and a very admirable one." Fraser Macdonald

+ Canadian Forum 33:260 F '51 460w

"Mr. Lochner does not give an objective evaluation of his friend but rather a chronological collection of anecdotes, letters, dates of concerts, newspaper clippings, etc., all presented in an adequate journalistic style. But he does bring out the salient points: that as a musician Kriesler sang from a warm heart perhaps the tenderest, most human notes the world has ever heard; and that as a person he fulfilled most inspiringly all the talents God gave him." J. D. Casgrain

+ Cath World 172:397 F '51 280w

Cleveland Open Shelf p6 Mr '51

"It would have been possible, perhaps, for Mr. Lochner to have considered his subject from a critical standpoint but apparently the author believed that anything but undiluted praise might deprive him of the affections of an admired and treasured comrade. . . What in the matter of criticism is left undiscussed in Mr. Lochner's book is the strange quirk in Fritz Kreisler—a profound and serious scholar—which so often has taken the form of debasing and caricaturing the music of other men." Felix Borowski

+ — Music Lib Assn Notes 8:339 Mr '51 700w

New Yorker 27:136 S 15 '51 140w

San Francisco Chronicle p20 D 31 '50 360w

Reviewed by A. F. Wolfe

Sat R of Lit 34:32 Mr 10 '51 400w

"In some 450 pages Mr. Lochner tells just about everything of any interest about his

LOCHNER, L. P.—Continued
hero, and apparently with the violinist's approval. It is in no sense a critical volume but a comprehensive compilation of existing Kreisleriana." Victor Prahl
+ Springf'd Republican p8B Ja 7 '51 650w
U S Quarterly Bk R 7:5 Mr '51 300w

LOCKE, CHARLES O. Shadow of our own. 326p $3 Scribner
51-1293

"An inbred family portrait which airs, during the long death watch over Mary Tryon, the frictions and frustrations among the three children she had adopted, Ruth, and Jefferson and Betty, and in the next generation between Dan and Asher. For Ruth who had adopted Dan (knowing that he is her husband's son by another woman) prior to the birth of Asher, is not only concerned about the fact that they have fallen in love, but also by Dan's battle fatigue which finds expression in occasional uncontrolled violence. . . And the 'shadow' of Mary Tryon, whom they had all loved and to whom they turned in times of doubt, exerts its serene, regenerative influence." Kirkus

---

"An intelligent interpretation of unhappy people in uneasy situations, this is possibly too inactive for popular tastes."
Kirkus 19:6 Ja 1 '51 170w

Reviewed by Harvey Swados
New Repub 124:20 My 21 '51 200w

"Mr. Locke writes clean, hard prose. The structure of his novel is sound, if a bit hackneyed. He is at home in a small town. But, really, I think he should have another look at the people in it." V. P. Hass
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p16 Mr 4 '51 400w

"A most intriguing first novel. . . The complexities of Mr. Locke's book lie in his characters—a highly interesting grouping. . . Mr. Locke's dissection of his characters and his study of human motivation are well worth the price of admission." Joyce Geary
+ N Y Times p30 Mr 18 '51 270w

LOCKHART, SIR ROBERT HAMILTON BRUCE. Jan Masaryk; a personal memoir. ltd ed 80p $5.75 Philosophical lib.
B or 92 Masaryk, Jan Garrigue [51-6819]

A brief memorial volume, combining some facts with character interpretation and analysis of Jan Masaryk's place in history, by a lifelong friend.

"A warm, human portrait emerges, and the whole throws a good deal of light on the Czechoslovakia tragedy. But it is not as critical a study, nor as penetrating as one might wish."
+ — Kirkus 19:626 O 15 '51 190w

"These impressions of Masaryk as a diplomatist, as a statesman, and as a man help to explain to those who did not know him, and to recall to those who did, the personality of this remarkable man." Hugh Seton-Watson
+ Manchester Guardian p4 N 2 '51 350w

"An earlier generation would have given Jan Masaryk an elegant memorial of marble, with his virtues catalogued at the base. This memoir is even better; it is a tribute of affection and of regret. There is not a false note from beginning to end; simply the portrait of one man as he was known to another." A. J. P. Taylor
+ New Statesman & Nation 41:630 Je 2 '51 350w

"This memoir was a labor of love and duty, but the love transcended the duty and made it a work of art." H. F. Armstrong
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 D 23 '51 850w

Reviewed by D. A. Schmidt
N Y Times p6 N 4 '51 650w

Reviewed by Elizabeth Wiskemann
+ Spec 185:692 My 25 '51 360w

"This brief monograph is a touching record of a loyal friendship and a true portrait of a lovable man."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p296 My 11 '51 500w

LOCKRIDGE, FRANCES LOUISE (DAVIS), and LOCKRIDGE, RICHARD. Murder comes first. 192p $2.50 Lippincott 51-10617

Detective story.

Booklist 47:382 Jl 1 '51
Bookmark 10:233 Jl '51
Kirkus 19:167 Mr 15 '51 70w

"The Norths at their best."
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p11 Je 24 '51 150w

"The latest exploit of Pam and Jerry North is a little thin in basic plot. It is unusually delightful, however, in its trimmings." Anthony Boucher
+ — N Y Times p24 My 13 '51 140w
New Yorker 27:140 My 19 '51 120w

Reviewed by L. G. Offord
San Francisco Chronicle p13 My 27 '51 70w

"Motherlode grows wee bit thin."
Sat R of Lit 34:32 Je 30 '51 60w
Springf'd Republican p5D Jl 29 '51 100w

LOCKRIDGE, MRS FRANCES LOUISE (DAVIS), and LOCKRIDGE, RICHARD. Proud cat; with drawings by Elinore Blaisdell. 94p $2.25 Lippincott
Cats—Legends and stories 51-11172

A book for children by these authors, well known for their adult mystery stories. The story deals with the attempts of two children to win the friendship of Diana, the Siamese. Diana was a proud cat who didn't care for humans except the two who "belonged" to her, but the children finally earn her gratitude and confidence when they rescue a kitten from a tree.

Booklist 48:89 N 1 '51

Reviewed by Polly Goodwin
Chicago Sunday Tribune p20 O 21 '51 190w

Reviewed by E. C. Ince
Christian Science Monitor p11 O 25 '51 80w

"The Lockridges' knowledge of cats and their ability to tell Diana's story just as she lived it, without adding any fancy embroidery, gives this book value for cat lovers whether they are grown-ups or children." J. D. Lindquist and S. M. Andrews
+ Horn Bk 27:330 S '51 50w
Kirkus 19:482 S 1 '51 120w

"A charming story, readable for fourth graders, but suitable for all cat lovers." E. E. Frank
+ Library J 76:1574 O 1 '51 40w

Reviewed by L. S. Bechtel
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 S 30 '51 150w
N Y Times p28 S 16 '51 90w
Times [London] Lit Sup p9 N 23 '51 10w

LOCKRIDGE, RICHARD, and LOCKRIDGE, MRS FRANCES LOUISE (DAVIS). Client is canceled; a Captain Heimrich mystery. 185p $2.50 Lippincott 51-11206

Detective story.

Bookmark 11:61 D '51
Kirkus 19:502 S 1 '51 90w

Reviewed by James Sandoe
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p24 N 18 '51 130w

Reviewed by Anthony Boucher
N Y Times p50 N 18 '51 90w

"Barring the coyness, this is a sound and workmanlike job."
+ — New Yorker 27:76 Ja 5 '52 80w

Reviewed by L. G. Offord
San Francisco Chronicle p14 D 9 '51 70w

LOCKWOOD, CHARLES ANDREWS. Sink 'em all; submarine warfare in the Pacific; with a foreword by Chester W. Nimitz. 416p $5 Dutton

940.5451 World war, 1939-1945—Naval operations—Submarine 51-9835

"The tremendous exploits of the 'silent' service—the submariners—in the war against Japan." (Library J) Index.

Booklist 47:325 My 15 '51

Bookmark 10:229 Jl '51 30w

Reviewed by Gilbert Twiss
Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 Mr 18 '51 400w

Kirkus 19:43 Ja 15 '51 130w

"Although the Admiral probably includes too many statistics and names and the narrative form becomes repetitious, the story is so outstanding that it surmounts these petty obstructions." A. J. Gaines
Library J 76:177 F 1 '51 130w

"'Sink 'Em All' is worth anybody's reading, for historical perspective, for adventure starkly related, and for candor such as the Admiral employs to describe his nearly endless fight with Washington to arm his boats with torpedoes at least as good as the enemy and the Royal Navy possessed. Only the small-minded will raise an eyebrow at the Admiral's sometimes impetuous disregard for conventions of syntax and grammar." Walter Karig
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p1 Mr 18 '51 750w

"All in all, this is the best handbook on submarining this reviewer has read." W. J. Lederer
+ N Y Times p10 Mr 25 '51 550w

Reviewed by Ogden Tanner
San Francisco Chronicle p20 Ap 1 '51 1100w

Reviewed by Fletcher Pratt
Sat R of Lit 34:10 Je 2 '51 420w

Time 57:100 Mr 5 '51 500w

LODGE, RUPERT CLENDON. Applying philosophy [Eng title: Applied philosophy]. 243p $2.75 Beacon press

140 Philosophy [51-1915]

"Discussions of the application of philosophy to education, business, government, religion and everyday living. . . Its language is conversational. The 'prerequisites' for the course—if one may use the academic terminology which the author avoids so far as possible—are only an average degree of intelligence and a serious interest in serious things." Christian Century

Christian Century 68:1101 S 26 '51 270w

"While everybody probably agrees that some books on philosophy ought to be practical and serve the needs of everyday life, few philosophers know how to write such a book. An exception is the author of this volume, now professor in Queen's University at Kingston, Ontario, who combines Oxford scholarship and vision with North American practicality. . . The chapter outlining the three indispensable approaches of philosophy to religion is particularly interesting." W. K. Wright
+ Crozer Q 28:376 O '51 190w

Reviewed by William Sacksteder
Ethics 61:338 Jl '51 140w

"We are presented with 200 pages of quite innocuous and quite unphilosophical pep-talk about the means to success in life. The conclusion of the whole matter is that, if we pay adequate attention to 'facts, ideals, social-experimental programmes,' which are the 'three aspects of every problem,' we shall 'achieve a flexible equilibrium which will enable us to interact with the external environment in a way which, in the end, will continue to give all-round satisfaction.' We have called this innocuous pep-talk; it would be more correct to say that it would be innocuous if it were not supposed to be the final consummation of philosophy."
Times [London] Lit Sup p215 Ap 6 '51 370w

LODGE, RUPERT CLENDON. Great thinkers. 310p $3 Beacon press

109 Philosophy—History. Philosophers 51-10161

"Except for a supplementary chapter on post-Kantian movements, each of the eleven chapters of this volume contains a summary of the thought of a major philosopher, along with some biographical details and a brief estimate of his claim to greatness. The book is intended to be introductory to the men discussed, and the depth of analysis and mode of presentation are on a level appropriate to this intention." (Ethics) Contents: Plato; Aristotle; Plotinus; Descartes; Spinoza; Leibniz; Locke; Berkeley; David Hume; Immanuel Kant; Post-Kantian movements.

"The style is easy and as free from technical jargon as possible, but with none of that facile popularization by which some writers have professed to provide an understanding of the great thinkers for readers who are not willing or able to do some serious thinking. I like this book immensely." W. E. G.
+ Christian Century 68:1100 S 26 '51 250w

"While there are few major misrepresentations and the spirit of a given philosopher's work sometimes emerges with some clarity, the book, true to its genre, tends to emphasize the curiosities of each man's life and thought and loses sight of his systematic powers and his essential saneness." William Sacksteder
Ethics 61:338 Jl '51 120w

Times [London] Lit Sup p156 Mr 10 '50 400w

LODWICK, JOHN. Brother Death. 268p $2.75 Duell

51-9532

Story of the adventures of Eric Rumbold, a British ex-soldier, whose life of crime in France, Spain, and Great Britain is finally brought to an end on a cliff in Scotland.

Kirkus 18:731 D 15 '50 130w

"It is an evil story, with evil characters doing evil deeds. Well written, however, by an expert in this type of writing. The guilty are properly punished, and justice, to an extent, triumphs. Interesting, readable." L. R. Etzkorn
+ Library J 76:326 F 15 '51 80w

"'Brother Death' has the suspense of a tightly knit story of crime and intrigue, written with unusual care and detail, but its focus is on characterization. John Lodwick has dug rather deeply into the making of Rumbold and Fiona, his Madrid pick-up, and gives personality to the lesser characters." David Tilden
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 F 18 '51 600w

"In condensed form, the novel might pass as one of the lesser efforts of S. J. Perelman; but 85,000 words is a bit long to sustain even so absurd a joke as this." Anthony Boucher
— N Y Times p17 F 18 '51 190w

"Mr. Lodwick's people strike their assigned attitudes a little too consistently to be quite human, but there is no doubt about his ability to write an exciting and intelligent thriller."
+ — New Yorker 27:109 F 17 '51 60w

"The publishers indicate that this is meant to describe a philosophy of modern times. If the intention was indeed to point a moral, the author should have made his case history nearer to reality. If the book was meant to entertain it might as well have remained unwritten." L. G. O.
San Francisco Chronicle p25 Mr 18 '51 170w

LOEWENGARD, HEIDE HUBERTA (FREYBE) (MARTHA ALBRAND, pseud). Desperate moment. 242p $3 Random house 51-1857

After the war, while attempting to escape from a German concentration camp, Simeon Vernon became involved in the murder of an American M.P. and was given a life sentence. This story of suspense and adventure tells how Sim, with the help of a girl, Anne, finally was able to prove his innocence.

Booklist 47:273 Ap 1 '51

Bookmark 10:183 My '51 40w

Cleveland Open Shelf p12 My '51

Reviewed by M. C. Scoggin
Horn Bk 27:196 My '51 50w

"Intense, European, smooth, but not distinguished."
+ — Kirkus 19:31 Ja 15 '51 200w

Reviewed by M. D. Read
Library J 76:1036 Je 15 '51 70w

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p16 Ap 1 '51 170w

"The excellence of the book lies in Miss Albrand's understanding of present-day Germany, where much of the action transpires. 'Desperate Moment' is set in the infections of a nation's wounds and Miss Albrand has made them real and terrifying." Jane Cobb
+ N Y Times p22 Mr 11 '51 130w

Reviewed by L. G. Offord
San Francisco Chronicle p17 Ap 8 '51 90w

"Without its background 'Desperate Moment' might have been just an average thriller, but its cancerous setting gives it a breathless, nightmarish quality. It is the kind of book one reads at one sitting, and much of its fascination lies in the journey on which Miss Albrand conducts us across the maimed remains of Nazi Germany." Ray Pierre
+ Sat R of Lit 34:31 My 19 '51 270w

"The construction of her book is neat, clean and clever. Unfortunately, her characterization is purely conventional: Marie-Anne and the treacherous friends are sketched with the utmost casualness."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p673 O 26 '51 300w

LOEWENSTEIN, RUDOLPH M. Christians and Jews; a psychoanalytic study [tr. by Vera Damman]. 224p $3.25 Int. univs. press
296 Jews—Political and social conditions
51-9717

"Dr. Loewenstein, president of the New York Psychoanalytic Institute, analyzes anti-Semitic reactions in his patients, reviews the history of anti-Semitism, considers its motives, its use as a political weapon (e.g. by totalitarian regimes), examines the formation of Jewish character traits and the psychological interactions between Jews and Christians. He bases the explanation of anti-Semitism on his original theory of a 'cultural pair' formed by Christians and Jews, dividing and binding them." N Y Times

"It is in the discussion of Jewish character traits that carefully designed research is most needed to complement Loewenstein's inferences. It is almost superfluous to add Loewenstein's penetrating analysis of anti-Semitism which avoids oversimplification does not lead to a solution of the urgent social problem that anti-Semitism presents. Those Christians and Jews who are fighting its ugly manifestations and have maintained their 'faith in reason' will nonetheless be encouraged by this book." Marie Jahoda
Am J Soc 57:297 N '51 650w

"This is a profound, dispassionate and sincere book about anti-Semitism. . . The writing is simple and clear, reflecting disciplined and uncompromising thinking. Christians and Jews should read this book and learn to understand and control a social disease from which both have suffered." Herman Vollmer
+ N Y Times p11 Ag 12 '51 220w

"This is a sober and interesting attempt to give a psychiatrist's interpretation of the roots of anti-Semitism. . . Thoroughly intelligible, it offers many shrewd insights into a mechanism for which there should be no room in a world that calls itself civilized." B. R. Epstein
+ Survey 87:365 Ag '51 330w

LOEWY, RAYMOND FERNAND. Never leave well enough alone [the personal record of an industrial designer from lipsticks to locomotives]. 377p il $5 Simon & Schuster
B or 92 51-2096

"An autobiography by one of the leading industrial designers in this country. . . Mr. Loewy tells of his youth in France, his coming to America after the first war, his initial success as a fashion artist, and the dawn of industrial design and his part in it. He then proceeds, with words and photographs, to list his triumphs in that new and sometimes appalling art form." New Yorker

Booklist 47:309 My 1 '51

Reviewed by Russell MacFall
Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 Ap 29 '51 180w

Reviewed by Ed Willock
Commonweal 54:16 Ap 13 '51 1050w

Kirkus 18:744 D 15 '50 180w

Reviewed by Peter Blake
N Y Times p6 Mr 4 '51 700w

"The book is instructive, brash, cocksure, occasionally funny, sometimes vulgar, and always honest."
New Yorker 27:123 Ap 7 '51 150w

LOFTS, MRS NORAH (ROBINSON). Lute player. 465p $3.50 Doubleday
Richard I, king of England—Fiction 51-13985

A historical novel based on the life of Richard the Lionhearted. Blondel, the lute player, who rescued Richard from a German dungeon is the hero of the tale.

Booklist 48:102 N 15 '51

"The book is crowded with action, of varied, ever-shifting interest, and the opening section, which describes young Blondel's rebellion against cruelty and selfishness, is moving and wise. Nor is Richard himself by any means deprived of all heroic qualities. But, for heaven's sake, Mrs. Lofts, heed the plea of an old admirer, and leave frustration and kindred themes to those who do not know how to handle anything else. There is no real shortage of them." Edward Wagenknecht
+ — Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 N 25 '51 470w

"A fascinating portrait of a period, done with charm and vigor and a sense of contemporaneous reportage."
+ Kirkus 19:495 S 1 '51 240w

"An elaborately staged, richly mounted, narrative." Lisle Bell
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p22 N 18 '51 340w

"Whether or not Richard's aberration, as set forth here, accords with historical fact is a question only scholars can answer, and perhaps not even they. Certainly Richard's own courtiers whispered about it. Whatever the truth, historical accuracy is not especially relevant to the success or failure of this book as a work of fiction. Even in his own day, Richard Coeur de Lion was half legend. Norah Lofts has taken a medieval pageant that is half history, half myth, and has shaped it into high tragedy that revolves about a curiously 'modern' problem, yet achieves timeless pathos." Richard Match
N Y Times p26 N 11 '51 410w

"The writing is expert, obvious, and rapid, and the story is told in the first person by three different people, who speak in rotation."
+ New Yorker 27:181 N 17 '51 110w

"Here is no cloak-and-dagger romance, but something much more like a modern psychological novel. Indeed, it is a modern psychological novel that happens to be laid in the past. . . A novelist, even a historical novelist, is allowed some liberties, but he has no right to reconstruct—and so defame—a dead man's character simply because it adorns his tale." T. C. Chubb

Sat R of Lit 34:15 N 10 '51 650w

Times [London] Lit Sup p697 N 2 '51 30w

LOGGINS, VERNON. The Hawthornes. 365p $5 Columbia univ. press

920 Hawthorne, Nathaniel. Hawthorne family 51-12495

"The story of seven generations of an American family" from the first Hawthorne to live in America, Major William Hawthorne (1607-1681) to Mother M. Alphonsa (Rose Hawthorne Lathrop) (1851-1926), daughter of Nathaniel Hawthorne, the writer, with some information on others of the family both in England and in America.

Atlantic 189:91 Ja '52 170w

Christian Century 68:1078 S 19 '51 100w

"Not to cavil a little would make a book review sound unfinished, so let me say that I felt it a singularly infelicitous thing to call Nathaniel Hawthorne 'the romancer' throughout; this is too slight a word for his gifts and sounds rather condescending. And I do not like to have the long chronicle of generations end in the very last paragraph with Julian's second wife who was after all not a Hawthorne at all. These are small criticisms. The important thing is that a book so loaded with research—and the bibliographical note at the end proves this—should be so continually holding in interest. It is a chronicle of human progress, really filled, as Pompilia said life should be, not only with the grandeur, God, but with the comfort, Christ." Katherine Burton

+ — Commonweal 54:628 O 5 '51 480w

"Great erudition, as the appended bibliographies attest, has gone into the composition of this family saga, erudition which Mr. Loggins for the most part carries lightly. No less remarkable is the power of excision and condensation which has reduced these bulky materials within the compass of a manageable volume. But what stands out as the author's most admirable quality is his refusal to impose a thesis on the book. He has given the facts for what they may be worth and allowed them to speak for themselves." G. F. Whicher

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p7 D 16 '51 950w

"Vernon Loggins—an Associate Professor of English at Columbia—presents hitherto uncorrelated facts concerning Hawthorne ancestry. Even readers well acquainted with Hawthorne will find much that is new—and new reasons for Hawthorne's preoccupation with evil as a theme. . . The section dealing with Nathaniel Hawthorne, or 'the romancer' as Loggins likes to call him, is disappointing. Space given to Hawthorne's children, to round out that magic seven in the title, might have been used to advantage upon Hawthorne himself." L. H. Tharp

+ — N Y Times p28 S 23 '51 400w

"Mr. Loggins's genealogical study makes a beguiling narrative and also makes possible a fuller understanding of the mind and personality of Nathaniel. The section of the book that deals with Nathaniel's ill-starred son, Julian (among whose vicissitudes was a spell in the penitentiary, for fraud), however, makes painful reading, and could have been played down without loss."

+ — New Yorker 27:167 N 24 '51 160w

LONDON, FRITZ. Superfluids; v 1, Macroscopic theory of superconductivity. (Structure of matter ser) 161p $5 Wiley

537.5 Electric conductivity (50-11108)

"Essentially a presentation of a theory developed by Professor London and his brother to explain the properties and behavior of the 'superfluids' or 'quantum liquids.' Examples of superfluids are liquid helium and certain metals such as mercury, lead, and tin, when cooled to temperatures near absolute zero. The work is a fundamental one in any collection on modern physics." N Y New Tech Bks

---

"The mathematical treatment is presented in a very lucid fashion and wherever possible the consequences of this macroscopic theory are compared with experiment. Particularly interesting features of the book are the suggestions for additional experiments and the concluding section in which Professor London discusses the eventual form of the molecular theory." F. P. Buff

+ Am Chem Soc J 73:2405 My '51 140w

"The book is well written and attractively printed. The author emphasizes that the book has been written from the standpoint of a theoretician, and no attempt has been made to cover completely the experimental material on superconductivity. However, the coverage is adequate and references through 1949 are included." W. T. Ziegler

Chem & Eng N 29:3648 S 3 '51 360w

Reviewed by R. R. Hawkins

Library J 76:333 F 15 '51 120w

N Y New Tech Bks 36:29 Mr '51

"The treatise is recommended to those wishing to acquaint themselves with one of the vexing problems in theoretical physics, as well as to the active experimental worker in the general field of low temperature phenomena."

+ U S Quarterly Bk R 7:207 Je '51 280w

LONDON, JACK. Sun-dog trail, and other stories. 251p $2.50 World pub. 51-11745

Contents: The sun-dog trail; Brown wolf; The strength of the strong; The shadow and the flash; Moon-face; At the rainbow's end; To build a fire; Make westing; Too much gold; A son of the sun; A raid on the oyster pirates; Love of life.

Booklist 48:128 D 1 '51

"There are 12 stories in this collection and no fewer than six of them are absolutely first-rate while the remaining six, tho off London's best form, still are respectable specimens of the short story writer's art." V. P. Hass

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 Ag 5 '51 320w

Kirkus 19:280 Je 1 '51 120w

Reviewed by Harry Sylvester

N Y Times p18 Ag 19 '51 450w

LONDON. ROYAL ACADEMY OF ARTS. Art of India and Pakistan. See Ashton, Sir Leigh, ed.

LONG, AMELIA REYNOLDS (ADRIAN REYNOLDS, pseud). Leprechaun murders. 222p $2 Phoenix 50-10978

Detective story.

"Cleverly novel opening entices reader into murder puzzle with humorously fantastic angles." Drexel Drake

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p10 Ja 7 '51 60w

"'The Leprechaun Murders' limps on and on, getting duller as it goes. It is full of implausible incident, unconvincing characters and whimsey minus charm." Hillis Mills

— N Y Times p29 Mr 4 '51 130w

"The writing is easy and unpretentious; too bad it wasn't used on a better plot." L. G. Offord

San Francisco Chronicle p14 D 24 '50 70w

"Amusing but confusing."

+ — Sat R of Lit 33:35 D 23 '50 50w

LONG, EULA (MRS WILFRED JOSEPH LONG). Chocolate from Mayan to modern; il. by [the author]. 207p $2.75 Aladdin

663.9 Chocolate—Juvenile literature

"An account of the history of chocolate, traced from its beginnings in Mayan legend to the chocolate bar of today. Author inserts her factual material within story episodes, with children carrying the threads of the narrative." Library J

Booklist 47:208 F 1 '51

Cleveland Open Shelf p4 Ja '51

"An original and thoroughly absorbing account."
+ Kirkus 18:643 O 15 '50 190w

Reviewed by A. B. McCreary
+ Library J 75:2158 D 15 '50 80w

Reviewed by L. S. Bechtel
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Ja 7 '51 110w

Wis Lib Bul 47:66 Mr '51

LONG, MRS GEORGIA. All about Spain; maps by Gert Hounsell. (New Europe guides) 249p $2.50 Duell

914.6 Spain—Description and travel 51-9771

"A guidebook by one who evidently knows Spain well. A brief sketch of its history introduces a detailed tour of the land from Irun to Malaga. In writing about cities like Madrid the author gives not only the usual descriptive information, but also some brief biographical notes on such figures as Goya. . . Contains an appendix replete with data on passports, currency exchange rates, etc." (Library J) Index.

Reviewed by C. J. Rolo
Atlantic 188:84 Jl '51 140w

Booklist 47:292 Ap 15 '51

"Combines an interesting, fresh account of the history and culture of the Spanish people with detailed, up-to-date information."
+ Bookmark 10:155 Ap '51 40w

Cleveland Open Shelf p10 My '51

Kirkus 18:744 D 15 '50 90w

Reviewed by Joseph Borome
Library J 76:324 F 15 '51 80w

Reviewed by P. J. C. Friedlander
N Y Times p19 Je 17 '51 200w

"This first American guidebook on Spain since the war is a straightforward, unsmiling, academic study that is as timely as it is handy. . . Miss Long provides a simple, very clear-cut explanation of Spain's history up to the present time. My chief quarrel with that—and with the book—is her absolute whitewash of the Franco Government." H. S.
+ — Sat R of Lit 34:38 Mr 10 '51 200w

LONG, LAURA. David Farragut, boy midshipman; il. by Paul Laune. (Childhood of famous Americans ser) 192p $1.75 Bobbs

B or 92 Farragut, David—Juvenile literature 50-9960

The story of the boyhood of David Farragut, who decided at an early age that he wanted a naval career. He was a midshipman at nine, was given his first command at twelve, and later became the first admiral in the United States navy. For grades 3 to 5.

Booklist 47:161 D 15 '50

"Recommended." Elizabeth Sussdorff
+ Library J 75:1911 N 1 '50 70w

Reviewed by L. S. Bechtel
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p14 N 12 '50 90w

LONGSTAFF, TOM GEORGE. This my voyage. 324p il maps $5 Scribner

796.52 Mountaineering [50-12993]

Dr Longstaff is a mountaineer and explorer, whose ascent of Trisul in 1907 paved the way for a wave of renewed interest in mountain climbing. He has climbed and explored in the Caucasus, Tibet, Canada, Spitzbergen, and Greenland. This account of his experiences is based on his diaries. Bibliography. Index.

"The writing of the book is vivid and enthralling; the gusto of the amateur is formed and sustained by the classical education which at once enriches a vocabulary and simplifies its use." H. M. Rolleston
+ Christian Science Monitor p7 Jl 19 '51 500w

"For this book he has been able to draw on diaries methodically kept at the time, and perhaps this is a snare, for the perspective is sometimes obscured by an encumbrance of detail; and the author's modest urbanity makes matter-of-fact out of the unlikeliest adventures. But the discerning reader will appreciate the quality of the book, and the historian of exploration will want it for his shelf."
Manchester Guardian p4 D 1 '50 200w

"Although Dr. Longstaff has probably climbed more peaks in more ranges than any other man, he has never made climbing an end in itself. . . This My Voyage is a record of such pure enjoyment: the log-book of a traveller for whom mountains are not objects to be conquered, but presences to be understood and loved." J. A. Smith
+ New Statesman & Nation 40:558 D 2 '50 950w

"His excellently written book, spanning almost three-quarters of a century in time . . . is a product of a keen, mature and wide-ranging intelligence." Sudgen Tilley
+ N Y Times p23 Mr 18 '51 180w

"Mountains make a many-sided appeal to man. They engage him as gymnast, as scientist, as artist, explorer, poet and humanist. No mountaineer since Douglas Freshfield has made so full, so many sided a response."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p374 Je 15 '51 800w

LONGSTREET, STEPHEN. The Pedlocks, a family. 433p $3.50; readers' ed pa $1 Simon & Schuster

51-1907

A long, complicated chronicle of a Jewish-American family from Civil war days to the present.

Cleveland Open Shelf p12 My '51

"'The Pedlocks' is an opulent, crowded, loosely intergrated narrative, exuberant in its embrace of Jewish customs, cookery, fervor and fertility. It is also, now and then, a showcase for the novelist's display of sophistication." George Conrad
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p14 Ap 29 '51 750w

"A powerful novel. . . In his many-sided ventures the author has not always been this successful. It is quite apparent that he is the Peter Perry of this novel; and very probable that Peter's unfinished diary, of which the reader is given a glimpse, is in fact a carefully finished diary kept by Stephen Longstreet over many years." L. S. Doughty
+ N Y Times p20 Ap 29 '51 230w

"Mr. Longstreet has better command of his material than Laura Hobson or Norman Katkov. He is not a slogan writer or a yellow journalist. Indeed, two of his characters, Joseph Pedlock and Dr. Simon Manderscheid, almost achieve full-bodied reality, but the tale as a whole seems to be written like a longish movie scenario with short episodes, flashbacks, and one-word sentences. Most of the men and women are made of celluloid." Charles Angoff
— + Sat R of Lit 34:26 Je 30 '51 500w

LONGSTRETH, THOMAS MORRIS. Gallows rock. 169p $2.50 Macmillan

51-12146

Adventure story for older boys. The scene is the Gaspé and the sea nearby. Constable Bruce Fraser and a younger brother are instrumental in bringing two rumrunners to justice.

Booklist 48:87 N 1 '51

"The author is a grand story teller, who obviously knows and loves his setting. His characters are credible and sharply drawn. And his picture of the unified air, sea, and land operations of the Mounted Police is intensely interesting." Polly Goodwin

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p16 O 28 '51 180w

"A vigorously written, swiftly moving tale, filled with suspense and rich in seacoast background, this volume for older boys and young adults takes us to the Gaspé coast that Mr. Longstreth knows well." M. J. Taylor

+ Christian Science Monitor p13 S 13 '51 290w

Kirkus 19:323 Jl 1 '51 100w

Reviewed by E. S. Mitchell

Library J 76:1575 O 1 '51 70w

"Well written adventure-thriller." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 S 23 '51 180w

LONGYEAR, WILLIAM LLOWYN. Type and lettering; for typographers, letterers and designers. 128p $3.95 Watson-Guptill

655.24 Printing—Specimens 50-10402

"Students of typografy and lettering will find here a new manual. . . They will find elementary instruction in lettering more than 350 single line type specimens, and nearly 100 complete alphabets in various sizes and weights." Chicago Sunday Tribune

Bookmark 10:168 Ap '51.

Reviewed by Leon Harpole

Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 D 17 '50 50w

LOOK, AL. In my back yard. 316p $4 Univ. of Denver press

560 Paleontology. Colorado—Antiquities. Geology—Colorado 51-10338

The author's "back yard" is all of western Colorado. He is an amateur scientist, and his book is the story of what he learned about fossils, geology, and archeology, after the chance discovery of a dinosaur bone twenty years ago.

Booklist 47:289 Ap 15 '51

"In some hands his subject could be as dry as his country, but Mr. Look has the vast enthusiasm of an explorer and the easy-going prose style of a cowboy yarn spinner. The combination is rarely delightful." Russell MacFall

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 Ag 5 '51 230w

"The book is very informal non-fiction, unusual coming from a university press. Written in a jocular vein, and with a journalese style, it is by no means a study of archaeology and paleontology but the author's interest in his hobby is real and serious enough." R. H. D.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p18 Ap 8 '51 210w

"The author puts flesh on the ancient bones, gives them movement and feeling, and recreates from his imagination the world in which they lived. 'In My Back Yard' offers a mine of information. Its bases are authoritative and the volume adds materially to the sum of human knowledge." W. C. Smith

+ Springf'd Republican p11D Je 10 '51 550w

LOOMIS, ALBERTINE. Grapes of Canaan. 334p $4 Dodd

279.69 Missions—Hawaii 51-10030

The author's great-grandparents were among the first group of American missionaries to Hawaii in 1820. This account of their first seven years in Hawaii is based in part on the journals and letters of Elisha and Maria Loomis, inherited by their great granddaughter.

Booklist 47:287 Ap 15 '51

Reviewed by M. W. Stoer

Christian Science Monitor p9 My 28 '51 600w

"Based on journals and letters of Elisha and Maria Loomis preserved in the author's family, as well as other research, the book has the flavor of the times. Grapes of Canaan is a good antidote after reading current fiction or theology." R. C. Batchelder

+ Churchman 165:17 S '51 150w

"In the competent hands of Miss Loomis the ardors and urgencies of seven crowded and momentous years glow again with meaning. The little group of zealous religionists who embarked on the Yankee brig Thaddeus hoped singlemindedly to bring Christianity to the heathen. But their example of disinterested self-sacrifice was not without its effect in attaching the island kingdom of Hawaii to the American system." G. F. Whicher

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 Ap 1 '51 800w

"The Hawaiian Mission holds an important place in the history of American expansion, political as well as ecclesiastical, and Miss Loomis—who has cast her record in narrative form—has told the story with taste and skill." Paul Hutchinson

+ N Y Times p5 Jl 22 '51 600w

"The story of the missionaries' trip to Hawaii and their years there is told in considerable detail, at times too much detail. . . It is, however, a most interesting story, and not alone for the experiences of the mission men and their wives, who were the first white women to set foot in the islands. Miss Loomis actually has done better with the reaction of the native." R. F. H.

+ Springf'd Republican p10D Ap 15 '51 370w

LOOMIS, ALICE FISHER. Ride out singing. (Whittlesey house publication) 224p $2.50 McGraw

51-2608

Novel of western Canada in the 1880's for ages twelve and older. The heroine is Phyllis Vernon who came out from England to keep house for her brother and stayed to marry his partner.

Booklist 47:349 Je 1 '51

"A pleasant and encouraging tale that has interesting background and appeal."

+ Christian Science Monitor p10 Ag 4 '51 70w

"A sincere and unpretentious story that older girls will like." S. M. A.

+ Horn Bk 27:334 S '51 60w

Kirkus 19:67 F 1 '51 150w

Reviewed by Elizabeth Mitchell

Library J 76:971 Je 1 '51 80w

"It is a story of hard labor and love, full of fresh air and the future." M. L. Becker

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p13 My 20 '51 270w

Reviewed by Marjorie Fischer

N Y Times p20 Je 24 '51 150w

"This is an interesting novel in an unusual setting. . . Phyllis is an admirable character—sensitive, individual, courageous."

+ Sat R of Lit 34:56 My 12 '51 140w

LOOS, ANITA (MRS JOHN EMERSON). A mouse is born; drawings by Pallavicini. 214p $2.50 Doubleday

51-10650

The author of Gentlemen Prefer Blondes has written a new satire on Hollywood. Effie Huntriss, who left school while in the lower grades and spells accordingly, is about to give up her Hollywood career for a time to have a baby, the "mouse" of the title. Effie decides to write a book to explain the facts of life and sex appeal to the coming "mouse." The book is Effie's misspelled effort to describe her own career.

"Anita Loos has managed to write with utterly hilarious seriousness. Tho she doesn't write many books, what she does write is as

LOOS, ANITA—Continued
crusty and juicy as a huge gulf shrimp browned in deep fat. Mommy is certainly the shrimp in this book, and Anita Loos' words the deep searing fat of satire." Fanny Butcher

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 My 6 '51 600w

"This could be Lorelei Lee in Hollywood, with its dead pan innocence, misspellings and abuse of the English language, but it does not achieve the same heights of ingenue impropriety that Gentlemen Prefer."

Kirkus 19:160 Mr 15 '51 220w

"Hilarious reading. Highly recommended for paid circulation, general circulation and all collections of theatrical fiction." George Freedley

+ Library J 76:867 My 15 '51 50w

Reviewed by Jocelyn Brooke

New Statesman & Nation 42:739 D 22 '51 90w

"While Effie is highly rewarding in [some] bits, there are times when her unconscious humor, her misspelling of words, her mistakes in grammar are strained and forced. In some strange manner, too, she seems dated." Rose Feld

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p11 My 6 '51 440w

"Miss Loos' long service in the Hollywood vineyards highly qualifies her for the deft and hilarious satire she has written. As Effie naïvely sets down her reactions, we get a sly and acid picture of the lunacies of those who puff and plot in the vicinity of Hollywood and Vine." Richard Maney

+ N Y Times p4 My 6 '51 550w

"Despite its shortness, this book touches on practically all the topics that, over the years, have come to be associated in the public mind with West Coast studio life and with ambitious, untalented actresses. It is framed in the patois that was devised by Miss Loos for her first novel, 'Gentlemen Prefer Blondes,' which, as it turns out, isn't quite as durable as her nostalgic admirers would undoubtedly like it to be."

New Yorker 27:106 Je 2 '51 100w

San Francisco Chronicle p19 Jl 22 '51 280w

"I'm sorry, but that's how it is. Mommy's Fackts are both sordid and dreary, and Miss Loos's studied attempt to duplicate the tour de force of 'Gentlemen Prefer Blondes' is at the very least unfortunate. But I'm sorry most of all because I owe a debt of gratitude to Miss Loos, for when we were young and twenty and read 'Gentlemen' we appropriated Dorothy and Lorelei as our own and pirated their vernacular to our private use. . . All of which makes me feel very much of a heel." Jane Allen

— Sat R of Lit 34:13 My 12 '51 700w

Springf'd Republican p8D Jl 1 '51 80w

Time 57:108 Je 4 '51 200w

LORAC, E. C. R., pseud. See Rivett, E. C.

LORANT, STEFAN. FDR: a pictorial biography. 159p $3.95; pa $1.50 Simon & Schuster

B or 92 Roosevelt, Franklin Delano 50-11066

This pictorial biography contains 150 pages of photographs, sometimes three or four to a page, which show the course of Roosevelt's life from the age of eight months, to within a few weeks of his death. Some descriptive notes; selected bibliography.

Booklist 47:173 Ja 1 '51

"The carefully selected photographs, tasteful captions and descriptive text in this fine quarto make graphic the life story of our late President."

+ Bookmark 10:83 Ja '51 20w

Foreign Affairs 29:672 Jl '51 10w

"Recommended." Anne Whitmore

+ Library J 76:113 Ja 15 '51 110w

"Another delightful contribution to the staggering bibliography of Rooseveltiana." R. E. Sherwood

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p1 D 17 '50 160w

"A well-thought-out and well-laid-out album of photographs. . . Mr. Lorant, who did a similar book on Lincoln, has supplied a text and detailed captions, so the reader always knows exactly what he is looking at."

+ New Yorker 26:87 Ja 6 '51 150w

"This is an excellently selected, competently captioned pictorial anthology, and the text is a good refresher course in American and world history." J. T. Winterich

+ Sat R of Lit 34:18 Ja 27 '51 270w

Wis Lib Bul 47:22 Ja '51

LORANT, STEFAN. The presidency; a pictorial history of presidential elections; from Washington to Truman. 775p $15 Macmillan

973 Presidents (United States)—Election. Presidents (United States)—Pictorial works 51-12817

Pictorial panorama in text, photographs, and cartoons, of political life in America from Washington's first inauguration to the 1948 election. List of illustrations. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 48:82 N 1 '51

Bookmark 11:58 D '51 30w

"Never before has the always fascinating story of Presidential campaigns been so graphically and simply told." Richard Blakesley

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 O 21 '51 350w

"Stefan Lorant has used the 1,500 odd illustrations in 'The Presidency' as an underscoring of history, and their value is in this. Among the number of picture books published in the last few years, tracing in their various ways the currents of American life, it takes a superior one to justify its appearance now—particularly in the expensive format of this edition. But Mr. Lorant has succeeded amply." Francis Russell

+ Christian Science Monitor p10 O 25 '51 650w

Cleveland Open Shelf p26 N '51

"This will be a useful book for reference collections, although it is extremely expensive and the illustrations in some cases not too clearly reproduced. . . Recommended, however, principally for the extent of its coverage." Shirley Barker

Library J 76:1561 O 1 '51 80w

"Mr. Lorant provides a readable, unpretentious and on the whole reliable commentary, together with useful statistical data on the popular and electoral vote. A highly diverting book of its kind."

+ New Repub 125:21 D 24 '51 40w

"In the selection of illustrations Lorant is unrivaled. . . His work, which helps us to see ourselves and our American heritage more clearly than we otherwise might—in this way like the work of the young French visitor of a hundred years ago, de Tocqueville—is a reminder of how American life has been enriched by the talents and abilities of men and women of other nations—something which we do well to remember." H. M. Kilgore

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 O 21 '51 1000w

"This book gives us thousands of pictures . . . and as a whole they possess a striking freshness. . . The author provides a rich gallery of the best political cartooning of a century and a half, from the stilted drawings of William Charles early in the nineteenth century to the felicitous hits of Rollin Kirby and Gluyas Williams. He has found some material of high historical value previously neglected." Allan Nevins

+ N Y Times p5 O 21 '51 600w

"Mr. Lorant, who has put together two previous albums of this kind . . . has outdone himself in this one; as an example of graphic history, it is probably unrivalled."

+ New Yorker 27:155 N 3 '51 100w

San Francisco Chronicle p19 O 14 '51 150w

"This is a picture book with a gloss of reading material, not the reverse. But there is a brief synopsis of each Presidency and a fairly adequate story of each campaign. The text is by no means as complete as Stanwood's 'History of the Presidency,' but it includes campaigns since 1912, it is far more readable, and it is usually accurate. Inevitably there is the occasional slip." J. D. Hicks

+ — Sat R of Lit 34:22 N 17 '51 900w

LORENZO, LEONARDO DE. My complete story of the flute; the instrument, the performer, the music. 493p pl $6 Citadel

788.5 Flute. Musicians—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc. 51-9599

An informal account of the flute, its music, and the men who have played it. Bibliography, but no index.

"No index, although over half the book deals with names, some of which appear in no other books of reference." C. K. Miller

Library J 76:517 Mr 15 '51 50w

"Leonardo De Lorenzo has demonstrated again that artists can be men, that a broad outlook on life insures against senility, and that age proves no barrier to constructive achievement. . . At 75 years of age he has placed all flutists and music lovers in his debt. [His book] is beautifully conceived and admirably written. With its variety and charm it not only proves instructive but holds interest. . . . The compilation of this book necessitated a great deal of research and the author has been careful in checking and correcting inaccuracies which long have been accepted as truth. It is truly a work that will prove a valued addition to any library." Emil Medicus

+ Music Lib Assn Notes 8:716 S '51 280w

LOSSKII, NIKOLAI ONUFRIEVICH. History of Russian philosophy [sponsored by St Vladimir Orthodox theological seminary and academy, New York] 416p $10 Int. univs. press

197 Philosophy, Russian 51-11822

"When Peter the Great opened communication between Russia and the West, he also exposed Russians to the influence of Western philosophy. Russian philosophy thus reflects the varied movement of Western thought, though it also shows a tension between traditional Orthodox theology and Western ideas. Professor Lossky of the Russian Orthodox Seminary in New York gives a quite complete survey of Russian philosophy, with brief biographic sketches of the philosophers." Churchman

Christian Century 68:1193 O 17 '51 150w

Reviewed by E. W. Harris

Churchman 165:17 D 1 '51 120w

"Few Russian philosophers are as qualified as N. O. Lossky to interpret Russian philosophy to the West. He has won an estimable reputation for himself as an independent thinker. As the author of the first history of Russian philosophy to appear in English he has placed Anglo-American philosophers and all other students of Russian thought in his debt. . . [However] even when all allowances are made for the fact that this is a pioneer effort, Lossky's volume must be regarded as inadequate. It is more of a handbook than a history." Sidney Hook

+ — N Y Times p41 D 9 '51 800w

LOTH, DAVID GOLDSMITH. The people's general; the personal story of Lafayette. 346p $3.50 Scribner

B or 92 Lafayette, Marie Joseph Paul Yves Roch Gilbert du Motier, marquis de 51-1338

A biography of the Marquis de Lafayette, which focusses on his personal story. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 47:271 Ap 1 '51

"Mr. Loth has given Americans a sensitive account of the personal side of Lafayette's life." R. M. Brace

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p8 Mr 25 '51 400w

Reviewed by Wayne Andrews

Commonweal 54:97 My 4 '51 480w

Current Hist 20:291 My '51 70w

Kirkus 19:20 Ja 1 '51 210w

"Lafayette has attracted a number of biographers from Tuckerman to Whitlock and Woodward. But Mr. Loth has written one of the liveliest accounts of Lafayette's career to appear in English and it is safe to predict he will please a large number of readers." Geoffrey Bruun

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p25 My 13 '51 950w

"Mr. Loth's biography is at its best in the treatment of Lafayette's historical career. It is weak, however, as a 'personal story.' Many a reader no doubt will feel cheated by the paucity of detail about his romantic involvement with Madame de Simiane. For the rest the portrait of the public man is well rounded, colorful and alive." Frances Winwar

+ — N Y Times p32 Je 10 '51 450w

"It is pretty hard to swallow a historical drama in which Napoleon, Robespierre, Marie-Antoinette, George Washington, and Benjamin Franklin appear as minor characters, as they do here. Mr. Loth does his best, but he lacks the space, and perhaps the ability, to present the scene as a whole; the result is an entertaining, one-dimensional sketch of a highly interesting personality."

+ — New Yorker 27:120 Mr 10 '51 180w

"A few inaccuracies here and there in the text might have been caught by more careful proofreading, but there are no serious slips. On the whole Lafayette as a person receives excellent treatment from his biographer. But the evaluation of Lafayette's importance leaves a question or two in the reviewer's mind." Leo Gershoy

+ — Sat R of Lit 34:11 Mr 10 '51 900w

LOVELACE, MRS MAUD (HART). Trees kneel at Christmas; il. by Gertrude Herrick Howe. 127p $2.50 Crowell

Christmas stories 51-6802

Grandmother told how in Syria the trees kneel on the Night of the Birth, and seven-year-old Afify felt sure the miracle could take place in Brooklyn, too. So on Christmas Eve when the others had gone to midnight Mass, she and her little brother trudged over to Prospect Park where their faith was confirmed.

Booklist 48:71 O 15 '51

"A story full of family warmth and Christmas love—and faith—which small children will love having read to them." Polly Goodwin

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p41 D 2 '51 150w

Reviewed by A. C. Moore

+ Horn Bk 27:401 D '51 40w

"A delightful picture of the family and the home, and of the two children who secretly set out to see if trees in Brooklyn kneel too." J. D. Lindquist and S. M. Andrews

+ Horn Bk 27:416 D '51 80w

"Enchanting book, sure to be a treasured part of Christmas reading for years to come."

+ Kirkus 19:579 O 1 '51 160w

"With its attractive illustrations by Gertrude H. Howe, this will make a fine addition to the Christmas shelf and will be read by children from 8-12; even younger ones will enjoy hearing it read aloud." M. C. Skinner

+ Library J 76:1816 N 1 '51 70w

Reviewed by L. S. Bechtel

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p16 N 25 '51 130w

Reviewed by E. L. Buell

N Y Times p48 D 2 '51 90w

LOVELL, HAROLD WILLIAM. Hope and help for the alcoholic. 215p $2.75 Doubleday

616.861 Alcoholism 51-11309

An inquiry into the physical and emotional background of alcoholism, and a study of the treatment approved by doctors and other workers with alcoholics.

Booklist 47:398 Jl 15 '51

Kirkus 19:225 Ap 15 '51 120w

Reviewed by T. H. Maren
N Y Times p21 S 9 '51 160w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson
San Francisco Chronicle p22 Je 24 '51 100w

LOW, ARCHIBALD MONTGOMERY. What's the world coming to? science looks at the future; with il. by Henry Hewitt [Eng title: It's bound to happen]. 214p $3 Lippincott

901 Science. Progress. Prophecies 51-11194

A popular book on science in the future by a British writer. Contents: The dawn of the atomic age; Machines without men; Transport of to-morrow; Sport and leisure in the future; Radio in the future; Health and medicine in the future; The food of the future; War in the future; Crime, punishment and morals in the future; Where do we go from here?

Booklist 48:44 O 1 '51

Kirkus 19:425 Ag 1 '51 130w

Reviewed by J. W. Krutch
Nation 173:406 N 10 '51 450w

LOWE, VICTOR, and others. Whitehead and the modern world; science, metaphysics, and civilization; three essays on the thought of Alfred North Whitehead; pref. by A. C. Benjamin. 56p $1.50 Beacon press

192.9 Whitehead, Alfred North 50-11019

"These three papers were presented in commemoration of Whitehead at the 1948 meeting of the Western Division of the American Philosophical Association. Charles Hartshorne writes about Whitehead's philosophy with a thorough appreciation of its possibilities as integrative of both experience and the philosophic tradition. . . Victor Lowe illustrates the thesis that Whitehead's philosophy of science successfully combines concreteness with adventurous rationalism by expounding the method of extensive abstraction and indicating grounds for preferring it to other ways of relating mathematical space and time to common experience. A. H. Johnson sketches Whitehead's definition of civilization and his view of the conditions required for its development." Ethics

Reviewed by Walter Watson
Ethics 61:246 Ap '51 80w

Reviewed by Y. H. Krikorian
New Repub 125:17 Ag 6 '51 3500w

LOWELL, JAMES RUSSELL. Uncollected poems; ed. by Thelma M. Smith. 291p $5 Univ. of Pa. press

811 51-10335

"Not Lowell's own rejects, but all other poems not in the standard Elmwood edition are here brought together by the editor, 'because the final compilations by his own hand during his maturest years contain a surprisingly small portion of his entire literary product.'" (San Francisco Chronicle) Bibliography. Indexes.

"Competently edited volume."
+ New Statesman & Nation 41:200 F 17 '51 180w

"Regrettably, this uncollected work comes more under the classification of 'sputters of his pen' and holds little of the deeper meanings of his more familiar work. The editor admits this, but brings the material forward now for the student of Lowell and American life in the Nineteenth Century." D. P.
San Francisco Chronicle p13 Ja 14 '51 220w

Reviewed by Siegfried Mandel
Sat R of Lit 34:40 Mr 17 '51 230w

U S Quarterly Bk R 7:26 Mr '51 240w

LOWELL, ROBERT. Mills of the Kavanaughs [and other poems]. 55p $2.50 Harcourt

811 51-10214

"The seven poems which comprise the present volume reveal Lowell in another dimension of sensibility. The conflicts and the outrage are to a considerable degree resolved, and, in a number of these new pieces, we find the poet prepared to accept the dual nature of good and evil and the less than perfect conditions of personal harmony and individual peace in a world whose order remains essential mystery." N Y Herald Tribune Bk R

Reviewed by Peter Viereck
Atlantic 189:81 Ja '52 550w

Reviewed by Katherine Brégy
Cath World 174:76 O '51 150w

Reviewed by Paul Engle
Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 Je 10 '51 250w

Cleveland Open Shelf p10 My '51

"Combining the clean strength of New England landscape with the nostalgia of the classic myth, these poems are memorable contributions to poetry."
+ Kirkus 19:199 Ap 1 '51 100w

Reviewed by G. D. McDonald
Library J 76:1029 Je 15 '51 60w

Reviewed by Rolfe Humphries
Nation 173:77 Jl 28 '51 70w

"Robert Lowell's third book of poems carries his work to a new level of excellence and maturity." Gene Baro
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 Ap 22 '51 600w

"In his new book Robert Lowell gives us six first-rate poems of which we may well be proud. As usual he has taken the rhyme-track for his effects." W. C. Williams
+ N Y Times p6 Ap 22 '51 600w

Reviewed by Louise Bogan
New Yorker 27:110 Je 9 '51 210w

"Here is a rich and brilliant book all the more impressive for the evidence everywhere in it of an excellent mind which is as actively at work on the level of values as the imagination is in its business of seeing and recreating."
+ U S Quarterly Bk R 7:244 S '51 180w

"Though this small collection lacks the variety and the sheer poetic excitement of 'Lord Weary's Castle,' it demonstrates ample poetic richness and dexterity. There seems a lack of full control somewhere, an element of irresponsibility in the presentation which detracts from the human wholeness of each poem. I cannot help having the feeling that Mr. Lowell is letting his talents run wild, and that these poems are not pulled together as they should be. They all have a flushed air that makes us feel that we are watching the poet talk to himself before he has come to write the poem. But perhaps some such effect was intended." David Daiches
+ — Yale R n s 41:156 autumn '51 260w

LOWREY, MRS JANETTE (SEBRING). Margaret. 277p $2.50 Harper

50-10613

"When Margaret was 14, she was suddenly uprooted from the quiet, country life she had known with her foster mother and swept into the social whirl of her newly-found relatives. Margaret felt herself countrified and no match for her new friends, especially beautiful, unscrupulous Laura, but when the time came, Margaret found the courage to speak up for her convictions." Library J

Booklist 47:139 D 1 '50

Bookmark 10:110 F '51 10w

Christian Science Monitor p10 N 13 '50 60w

Horn Bk 27:34 Ja '51 90w

"A sensitive, well-written story about adolescence."

+ Kirkus 18:562 S 15 '50 200w

"Refreshing addition to young poeple's literature—good characterization, adequate plot, adult writing." B. W. Schein

+ Library J 76:123 Ja 15 '51 90w

"The unusual value of this beautifully written book is that, besides holding the interest with its mystery about Maggie's father, and with her relations to two attractive boys, it offers a deeply moving study of a sensitive, lovable girl slowly growing up." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 D 17 '50 270w

"It is a story in light and dark tones, subtly shaded, richly detailed, baring many kinds of lives; a readable bit of Americana built upon durable principles and ideals." Irene Smith

+ N Y Times p24 Ja 14 '51 190w

Wis Lib Bul 47:32 Ja '51

LUCAS, FRANK LAURENCE, comp. and tr. Greek poetry for everyman. 414p $3.50 Macmillan

881.08 Greek poetry—Translations into English 51-9690

"Besides long extracts from Homer, the book contains some very interesting, if casual, selections from a variety of poets, reaching from Archilochus and Bacchylides to Paulus Silentarius, and even to Musaeus' 'Hero and Leander.' For the Greekless Mr Lucas adds the necessary explanations and also, in defiance of the highbrows, puts stress-accents to show the proper pronunciation of those beautiful Greek proper names which have such a power of frightening the masses; and at the same time throws in a large provision of notes on Greece ancient and modern which cannot but be interesting and instructive even to advanced scholars." Manchester Guardian

---

"Although no two persons will probably ever agree about the words, rhythm, meter and spirit used in translating Greek into English, it can, I feel, be said that Mr. Lucas has chosen wisely. For his verse moves quickly, lightly, clearly and above all, with that resemblance to the Grecian mood which is its most important recommendation. Homer, Hesiod and Sappho can never be the same in English as in classical Greek, but they are still too rewarding to be ignored for that reason. Particularly good is Mr. Lucas's wealth of notes for those who enjoy wreathing their poetry with additional facts and fancy." J. G. Harrison

+ Christian Science Monitor p11 My 17 '51 650w

Reviewed by Gilbert Murray

+ Manchester Guardian p3 F 20 '51 800w

"Professor Lucas's various introductions, commentaries and notes are informative and delightful, even when he is being a little unjust. Unhappily, the actual text is the least readable portion of the book, partly because the publishers have used a small type and crowded too much material in a dull-looking page, partly also because, for all his good intentions, the translator's language becomes a little monotonous and his manner seems at times a bit too literary."

+ — Nation 172:237 Mr 10 '51 140w

Reviewed by Rex Warner

New Statesman & Nation 41:224 F 24 '51 500w

Reviewed by G. F. Whicher

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p14 Ag 19 '51 30w

"Mr. Lucas's introductions and notes are not only informative but often delightful." B. R. Redman

+ Sat R of Lit 34:16 S 15 '51 650w

"For Greekless Everyman I must think Mr. Lucas's book the best introduction that there is to Greek poetry." H. W. Garrod

+ — Spec 185:118 Ja 26 '51 900w

Times [London] Lit Sup p790 D 7 '51 480w

Reviewed by W. E. Brown

Yale R n s 40:736 summer '51 440w

LUCKHARDT, MRS MILDRED MADELEINE (CORELL). Church through the ages. 247p $3 Assn. press

270 Church history—Juvenile literature

A history of the Christian church from its earliest beginnings to the present, written for young people. Bibliography. No index.

"Designed for youth of junior high age, the book is equally enlightening to any adult reader looking for an introduction to this fascinating subject." F. D. Heron

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p11 Ag 19 '51 120w

"Some things of very great importance cannot be told in words of one syllable or in a constant glow of sweetness and light, so a certain amount of distortion accompanies the simplification. On the whole, however, the job is well done, very well indeed. Young people who read this will not know all that they ought to know about the story of Christianity, but they will know a great deal more than most young people know." W. E. G.

+ — Christian Century 68:845 Jl 18 '51 120w

"A book designed as a study book for older children and young people to be used in Sunday School and other groups. It covers in a cursory but readable fashion the history of the Christian Church."

+ Kirkus 19:268 Je 1 '51 160w

"Recommended for libraries needing additional material on recent church history. Libraries having Bainton's Church of Our Fathers will not need this longer book unless there is a great demand for books on the Protestant religions." M. M. Gantt

Library J 76:1035 Je 15 '51 120w

LUCKHURST, KENNETH WILLIAM. Story of exhibitions. 221p pl $6.50 Studio

606 Exhibitions 51-8554

"Brief summary of nearly three centuries of public inspection of art in France, nearly two in England; a generous account of International Exhibitions 1851-1939 and of course much space devoted to an account of the Crystal Palace of a hundred years ago. Illustrations, index and bibliography." Library J

"A useful book, easier to handle than journals and catalogs current when the shows were on." A. S. Plaut

Library J 76:1808 N 1 '51 50w

"Though not a brilliant book, it performs a worth-while job painstakingly, and for the reader, enjoyably." I. R. F. Calder

+ New Statesman & Nation 42:51 Jl 14 '51 240w

"When reading this book we find ourselves living in expectation of the chapters dealing with the really great industrial exhibitions; and when we get to them I think there is no doubt we find the idea of the exhibition in its fullest achievement. . . Not only is this book well illustrated, but it includes those essential—and often absorbingly important—tools, a good index, a bibliography, appendices and a table comparing the dimensions, visitors and finances of the great exhibitions of the world." C. H. Gibbs-Smith

+ Spec 185:660 My 18 '51 550w

LUM, PETER. Fabulous beasts; with il. by Anne Marie Jauss. 256p $3.75 Pantheon bks.

398.4 Animals, Mythical. Animal lore 51-8062

"Fact and legend about real and unreal animals are artfully blended by a student of Eastern and Western folklore. Illustrations in character. Bibliography, index." Bookmark

---

Booklist 48:154 Ja 1 '52

Bookmark 11:58 D '51 30w

LUM, PETER—Continued

"A desirable book for both children's and adult collections." R. B. Robertson

+ Library J 76:2005 D 1 '51 130w

"All twenty chapters are delightful reading. We thought we knew about mermaids, monsters, serpents, dragons, Pegasus: but here is much more, and in form that connects religion, art, literature." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 D 23 '51 380w

Reviewed by Rex Lardner

N Y Times p10 D 2 '51 450w

+ Sat R of Lit 35:36 Ja 12 '52 190w

LUNDY, MRS JO EVALIN. Seek the dark gold; a story of the Scots fur traders; il. by Edward Shenton. (Land of the free ser) 244p $2.50 Winston

51-13565

"This book tells how Alan MacGregor joined John Jacob Astor's traders on the Pacific coast, just in time to engage in a bitter trade war with British rivals. In this book, as in others of the series, the industry involved and the group activity is dramatized by a rousing adventure story. The hero is not exclusively interested in fur trading; he is also on the trail of his older brother, reported lost on a previous expedition." N Y Times

---

Booklist 48:150 D 15 '51

Kirkus 19:352 Jl 15 '51 130w

"Highly recommended." E. S. Mitchell

+ Library J 76:1237 Ag '51 70w

"The book is interesting more for its facts than for its story. It should be welcome in Oregon for its regional values." L. S. Bechtel

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p22 N 11 '51 60w

Reviewed by N. B. Baker

+ N Y Times p18 N 11 '51 140w

"Boys will like this story especially for its fine characterizations of the Indians."

+ Sat R of Lit 35:37 Ja 12 '52 80w

Springf'd Republican p14C N 4 '51 110w

LUSTGARTEN, EDGAR MARCUS. Defender's triumph. 239p il $2.75 Scribner

343 Trials 51-12066

Lengthy, detailed narrative accounts of four famous English murder trials of the late nineteenth and twentieth centuries. The stories are presented chiefly from the point of view of defending counsel: Edward Clarke defends Adelaide Bartlett; Marshall Hall defends Robert Wood; Patrick Hastings defends Elvira Barney; Norman Birkett defends Tony Mancini.

Bookmark 11:32 N '51 30w

Reviewed by H. C. Havighurst

Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 S 2 '51 240w

Kirkus 19:312 Je 15 '51 160w

"In consistently laying stress on the prowess of the defender, almost to the exclusion of all other principals in the trials, the book makes little attempt to present a balanced version of the evidence placed before the jury. Only if armed with all the evidence can opinion fairly be passed on the author's argument. Nevertheless, as entertainment value the book makes first-class reading." J. L. J. E.

+ — Manchester Guardian p4 Je 26 '51 270w

"When his 'Verdict in Dispute' was published, Mr. Lustgarten was compared to, among others, Edmund Pearson. Good as Mr. Pearson was at this sort of thing, it seems to me that Mr. Lustgarten is appreciably better. In addition to his other qualities, he has the penetration of a good novelist—as, of course, he proved a few years ago in 'One More Unfortunate.'" Richard Lockridge

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 Ag 26 '51 750w

"This book is a very fine job, worthy of reading by devotees of true crime stories." A. E. Clark

+ N Y Times p21 Ag 26 '51 300w

"In its special field, one of the most entertaining and impressive books of the year."

+ New Yorker 27:118 S 8 '51 180w

"I don't know whether an English writer can receive the annual 'Edgar' award of the Mystery Writers of America for true-crime writing; perhaps he may when his book is published in the U. S. If so, I'd like to nominate Mr. Lustgarten for the distinction. Since Pearson is gone and Roughhead writes no longer, I don't know of a better man than Lustgarten writing true crime anywhere." J. H. Jackson

+ San Francisco Chronicle p14 Ag 29 '51 750w

"It is a great pity that Mr. Lustgarten's style has become so flamboyantly journalese, and it is interesting that when writing about Sir Patrick Hastings, the least flamboyant of these counsel, Mr. Lustgarten's prose seems to quiet down in sympathy." Esther Howard

Spec 185:824 Je 22 '51 70w

Times [London] Lit Sup p355 Je 8 '51 370w

LUZADDER, WARREN JACOB. Technical drafting essentials; for vocational and technical students; architectural drafting section by William S. Hornung. 326p il $4; to schools $3 Prentice-Hall

744 Mechanical drawing 51-611

"A revision of the author's well-known Fundamentals of Engineering Drawing [Book Review Digest 1943] for use in courses in high schools and trade schools and for self-instruction. It contains considerably less material than the earlier book but is full enough to prepare students for practical work. There are 515 figures, many of which include reproductions of more than one drawing." N Y New Tech Bks

---

Reviewed by R. R. Hawkins

Library J 76:524 Mr 15 '51 70w

N Y New Tech Bks 36:22 Mr '51

LYNCH, JOHN W. This little while; with paintings by Marguerite S. Cockett. 93p $3 Macmillan

811 Jesus Christ—Poetry 50-10576

The life story of Jesus from the Annunciation to the Resurrection, set forth in a narrative poem in blank verse.

"The paintings by Marguerite S. Cockett add much to the beauty and the spirituality of the book."

+ Bookmark 10:63 D '50 30w

"Father Lynch writes in the modern and somewhat anomalous form known as free blank verse, and it must be confessed his music is always most beautiful when it keeps close to the iambic pentameter. He was fortunate in finding a collaborator whose work is in such fine harmony with the sacred text and his own approach as are the paintings of Marguerite Cockett." Katherine Brégy

+ Cath World 172:396 F '51 220w

Kirkus 18:497 Ag 15 '50 80w

Reviewed by Gerald McDonald

Library J 76:49 Ja 1 '51 50w

"It is a bold task that John W. Lynch has set himself in 'The Little While.' Yet he has succeeded very well in a project that many a writer would have bungled embarrassingly. In a composition of such length, an occasional lapse into opaqueness or turgidity is inevitable, but Father Lynch has achieved a well-imagined, excellently ordered poetic narrative in which not only events, but the meaning of events, are revealed." N. K. Burger

+ N Y Times p9 D 24 '50 220w

San Francisco Chronicle p13 Ja 14 '51 150w

LYNCH, KATHLEEN MARTHA. Congreve gallery. 196p pl $3.50 Harvard univ. press

928.2 Congreve, William. England—Social life and customs 51-11748

Sketches of five persons intimately connected with William Congreve. They include Dr Monsey, eccentric and wit; Henrietta, duchess of Marlborough; Mary, duchess of Leeds; and Joseph Keally, Congreve's Irish friend and correspondent. Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by John Randolph
Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 Ag 19 '51 110w

Reviewed by George Freedley
Library J 76:1706 O 15 '51 60w

"Professor Lynch has uncovered much new material including many hitherto unpublished letters, and some of her subjects now emerge as among the most attractive and entertaining of early eighteenth-century personages. Her method is rigidly scholarly and precisely detailed, but she manages at the same time to be vivid and amusing. The result is a book indispensable to students of the period but also one which even the casual reader is certain to find fascinating if he has any appreciation at all of the wit and charm of eighteenth-century society and personality."
+ Nation 173:177 S 1 '51 220w

"She has done a great deal of primary research, brought new facts to light, and dotted a good many i's. Most remarkable of all, however, is the fact that she is both meticulous and lively." J. W. Krutch
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 Ag 19 '51 650w

"Miss Lynch's hunting skill among wills, parish and school registers, the great family libraries of England and Ireland in considerable, as notes, bibliography and index show. If the book has a fault it is that Miss Lynch is too parti pris for a kindly Congreve. Still, the evidence is there and it seems to be irrefutable." E. C. Dunn
+ N Y Times p37 O 21 '51 300w
Springf'd Republican p7C S 16 '51 250w

LYNCH, MARY. Sewing made easy. 400p il $3.95 Doubleday

646.2 Sewing. Dressmaking 50-6328

"Step-by-step instructions on dressmaking and sewing for the home and family are given in a large, inviting book, liberally illustrated with helpful drawings. Cross references and full index." Bookmark

Bookmark 9:209 Je '50 30w

"Sewing equipment should include good books on construction. This book can fill the need of both the beginner and the more experienced home sewer." Christine Spraker
+ J Home Econ 42:665 O '50 360w

LYNES, RUSSELL. Guests; or, How to survive hospitality; with casual drawings by the author. 79p $1.50 Harper

395 Entertaining. Etiquet 51-11936

"A survey of the more common hazards of hospitality, presented in much the same nutshell form as the author's recent analysis of snobs. Mr. Lynes is amply qualified to speak on his present topic, for, as he points out, he got his social indoctrination while growing up in a New England rectory in the rigorous era when the relationship between host and guest was an intricate and serious affair." New Yorker

Kirkus 19:525 S 1 '51 140w

"The tone of the book is tolerant and mellow, and the style urbane and pleasantly feet-on-the-fender."
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p18 D 9 '51 90w

"The chapter on bores is, as they say, worth the price of admission alone; and that's fortunate, because the book is, otherwise, pretty thin even for a pretty thin book. But you take the chapter on the bore—not only the Crashing Bore but the Tinkling Bore, the boring Fascinating Conversationalist, the Noncomittal Bore, the Bored Bore and many, many other bores, including yourself—and you can't complain." Ted Robinson
N Y Times p10 N 4 '51 300w

"A good many of the guest types he describes have been mulled over before, and fairly frequently at that, by other commentators, but Mr. Lynes handles them cheerfully and with so much assurance that not too many traces of his predecessors show through."
New Yorker 27:189 N 17 '51 140w

LYON, JESSICA, pseud. See De Leeuw, C.

LYONS, DOROTHY. Dark Sunshine; il. by Wesley Dennis. 244p $2.50 Harcourt 51-11741

Story for older girls. The heroine had had polio and had a useless leg. When the family moved to an Arizona ranch Blythe was not interested at first. But the rescue and gentling of a wild mare finally brought about Blythe's rehabilitation.

Booklist 48:53 O 1 '51

"The solution is too simple for horseless, school-less sufferers, but the tone is wholesome, the adventure diverting."
Kirkus 19:351 Jl 15 '51 130w

"Details of training and the exciting endurance race, which provides the climax, are well told; otherwise, the story is undistinguished. Will be useful if more horse stories or books dealing with physical handicaps are needed." A. B. Martin
Library J 76:1435 S 15 '51 50w

"The school and family life are well done, and the final long-distance race exciting. To one who has been both lame and ridden horses over the trackless Arizona desert, it all seems a bit fantastic—but doubtless it is based on actual happenings." L. S. Bechtel
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 N 11 '51 100w

Reviewed by E. L. Buell
N Y Times p38 O 14 '51 30w

"This story of Blythe and her golden mare is warm with loyalty and affection."
+ Sat R of Lit 34:64 N 10 '51 140w
Springf'd Republican p14C N 4 '51 110w

LYONS, HERBERT. Other lives to live. 308p $3 Dial press 51-6510

A comedy of manners the scene of which is an Alabama city. Emily Waring, a wealthy widow who has unselfishly lived for her children, grandchildren, and friends since the death of her husband, suddenly decides to marry an elderly beau. The climax of the situation comes during the local Mardi Gras celebration.

Booklist 48:126 D 1 '51
Kirkus 19:541 S 15 '51 210w

" 'Other Lives to Live' has the defects of its virtues. Mr. Lyons has produced here something in the nature of a sketchy documentary in its intentness upon what goes on and why, though the novel is scarcely inclusive enough to be a first-class objective study of a little city in the new South. Whatever its weakness as a novel fictionally 'Other Lives to Live' is convincing, interesting and informing from page 1 to its amusingly persuasive denoument on page 308." F. H. Bullock
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 S 30 '51 550w

"The unpleasant young people, falsely self-assured in the midst of their neuroses, contrast sharply with the gentle, puzzled older folk. Mr. Lyons has described their self-centered, self-devouring world with more bitterness than humor—a bitterness that vitiates the drama he intends to project." Hubert Creekmore
N Y Times p38 O 7 '51 320w

LYONS, HERBERT—Continued

"Mr. Lyons's major characters, Emily and Julian, are soundly drawn, warmly human, with lovable frailities and sudden depths of strength. His others, Emily's petulant children, her half pompous brother, the Southern gentleman Senator, flighty Maudie, are perhaps etched with a little too much acid or, to shift metaphors, are balloons a little too easily pricked, but Mr. Lyons handles them with engaging deftness and keeps them moving through the artful contrivances of his tale at a nice pace. I think you'll enjoy his story." E. J. Fitzgerald

+ — Sat R of Lit 34:15 O 27 '51 350w

M

MAASS, ARTHUR. Muddy waters; the army engineers and the nation's rivers; foreword by Harold L. Ickes. 306p maps $4.75 Harvard univ. press

358.2 U.S. Army. Corps of engineers. Hydraulic engineering. U.S.—Public works 51-13265

"A searching study of the civilian duties and responsibilities of the Corps of Engineers, written primarily for students of government administration. Descriptions of river and harbor improvement projects are not included. Instead there is a minute probing of the Corps' functions and an examination of the extent to which it fulfills its responsibilities." Library J

Booklist 48:94 N 15 '51

"Within its limitations, it is scholarly, well-documented, clear, and of reference value for those interested in this phase of the subject."

+ — Kirkus 19:464 Ag 15 '51 220w

Reviewed by J. E. Brown

Library J 76:1561 O 1 '51 120w

Nation 173:456 N 24 '51 50w

Reviewed by P. B. Sears

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p16 N 11 '51 750w

MABIE, JANET. Heaven on earth. 242p $2.75 Harper

818 Northfield, Massachusetts 51-9460

Recollections of Northfield, Massachusetts, and the famous people who visited there during the author's childhood. Her father was a Baptist minister, and they lived in Boston during the winter, but it was Northfield in summer which to the author was "heaven on earth."

Booklist 47:270 Ap 1 '51

Bookmark 10:131 Mr '51 50w

Reviewed by W. P. Tryon

Christian Science Monitor p9 F 17 '51 440w

Kirkus 18:721 D 1 '50 180w

"Written with the easy competence and quick imagery of our best newspaper reporting, this delightful reminiscence of a child's perceptions of Northfield, Mass., during the days of its greatest fame, communicates the child's enjoyment of the lovely country engagingly, achieves many excellent sketches of notables and one fine full length portrait, that of the author's father." A. B. Parsons

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p9 Ap 1 '51 430w

Reviewed by N. K. Burger

N Y Times p19 Mr 11 '51 220w

"Miss Mabie has managed not only to adhere to the point of view of a quiet but extremely perceptive little girl but to avoid any trace of the archness that might have crept into a less skillful account of Bible-conference doings. An unpretentious book and a very pleasant one."

+ New Yorker 27:113 F 17 '51 130w

+ Springf'd Republican p6D F 25 '51 360w

Wis Lib Bul 47:250 N '51

MACARDLE, DOROTHY. Children of Europe; a study of the children of liberated countries; their war-time experiences, their reactions, and their needs with a note on Germany; with il. by Kalman Landau. 349p $3.75 Beacon press

940.53161 Children in Europe. World war, 1939-1945—Children [50-3275]

"Realizing that the scarcity of newsprint had left this saga of terror almost unreported, Miss Macardle travelled widely, gathered reports of what had happened during the Nazi occupation, talked with child psychologists, learned the present conditions of victims—though it was generally agreed that the damage done to children's minds will not be fully evident for ten years—and has now reported on nearly twenty countries, with a note on the Nazi training of youth and on starvation in Germany after the war, and an account of various relief agencies." (Times [London] Lit Sup) "She recounts what has been done to restore the children who survived to mental and physical health—and how pitifully small it must be compared with the damage done—and reminds us that we have yet to learn the psychological consequences of the years of deprivation, anxiety and ill-treatment; the full harvest of the misery still awaits us." (New Statesman & Nation)

"The book is written with a quiet fervor that is both moving and revealing." J. H. S. Bossard

+ Ann Am Acad 278:246 N '51 360w

Reviewed by Walter Allen

New Statesman & Nation 39:78 Ja 21 '50 650w

"A work of scholarship and will undoubtedly remain the standard work on the children of this war. But no other work of scholarship can ever have had so terrible a theme." Marghanita Laski

+ Spec 184:152 F 3 '50 800w

Reviewed by M. F. Langer

Survey 87:331 Jl '51 290w

"In nearly every way this is an excellent piece of reporting and collating. Two doubts, however, may arise in the mind of the reader who has toiled through its more than 150,000 words of horror. One is whether a book of Nazi atrocities should now have been written at all, and the other is whether many people will read it."

Times [London] Lit Sup p22 Ja 13 '50 950w

MACAULAY, ROSE. Fabled shore; from the Pyrenees to Portugal. 200p il $4 Farrar, Straus

914.6 Spain—Description and travel 51-9459

Account of the author's trip by road from the Pyrenees on the French border, along the coast of the Mediterranean Sea to the Pillars of Hercules (Gibraltar) and Cadiz and the southern coast of Portugal. "All the way down this stupendous coast I trod on the heels of Greek mariners, merchants, and colonists, as of trafficking Phoenicians, conquering Carthaginians, dominating ubiquitous Romans, destroying Goths, magnificent Moors, feudal counts, princes and abbots. History in Spain lies like a palimpsest, layer upon layer, on the cities, on the shores, on the old quays of little ports." (p.2)

Booklist 47:308 My 1 '51

Bookmark 10:155 Ap '51 30w

"She writes with querulous petulance of those 'red mobs' which burnt churches she had hoped to see intact. It is disturbing to note that the author does not make the slightest visible effort to discover why it is that a people reputedly sober and religious, periodically rise in anger, burning churches and killing the clergy. Is it too much to say that persons who cannot understand that, cannot really claim to understand Spain? Aside from this grave weakness, which, after all, is less damaging in a travel book than it would be in a political history, 'Fabled Shore' is rewarding for those who know and love Spain or for those who hope to do so someday." J. G. Harrison

+ — Christian Science Monitor p11 Je 7 '51 450w

Kirkus 19:84 F 1 '51 120w

"For anyone who has traveled even a part of that coast, by whatever conveyance, this is a book of extraordinary charm." Mildred Adams

+ Nation 173:17 Jl 7 '51 500w

New Yorker 27:128 Ap 21 '51 160w

"For the casual American traveler, perhaps the author has dwelt too much on architecture; on ruins, castles, cathedrals and churches which escaped the burnings of the late civil war. With her fondness for Spain and her appreciation of its culture, she might have worked a bit more 'human interest' into her book. This would have made a good book on Spain even better." R. H. D.

+ — San Francisco Chronicle p14 Ap 8 '51 300w

"A very literate adventure-travel story. Miss Macaulay writes with intelligence and frequently with wit of two countries about which she has read and studied and also written before." H. S.

+ Sat R of Lit 34:38 Mr 10 '51 100w

MCCAHAN, DAVID, ed. Life insurance trends at mid-century. 176p $2.75 Univ. of Pa. press

368.3 Insurance, Life 50-58100

"Third volume of ten lectures by executives of legal reserve life insurance companies, under the auspices of the S. S. Huebner Foundation for Insurance Education, dealing with significant trends and problems in life insurance at the present time. Subjects: Impact of Lower Interest Rates; Implications of the Guertin Legislation; Investment Trends and Problems; Selection of Risks; Reinsurance; Annuities; Disability Benefits; Industrial Life Insurance; Group Coverages; Research in Agency Management." (Library J) Index.

Reviewed by Winifred Baum

Chicago Sunday Tribune p10 Ag 5 '51 70w

Reviewed by J. E. Cross

Library J 76:183 F 1 '51 70w

"The lectures assume a considerable knowledge of life insurance principles and practices, and will not be of interest to a wide audience. They should, however, be of value to life insurance executives, to teachers and advanced students of insurance, and to others with a specialized interest in the field."

U S Quarterly Bk R 7:44 Mr '51 140w

MCCARTHY, SIR DESMOND. Shaw's plays in review. 217p $3 Thames

822 Shaw, George Bernard

"Sir Desmond is the doyen of the English literary and dramatic critics and reviewed Shaw from the Vedrenne-Barker regime at the Court Theatre in 1904 up almost until the end. Many of his most famous critiques as well as a personal Shavian memoir are included." Library J

"Recommended for Shaw and theatre collections." George Freedley

+ Library J 76:1427 S 15 '51 30w

"All gratitude to Mr. MacCarthy for giving us so much, unassumingly, and in short compass." Jacques Barzun

+ Sat R of Lit 34:37 O 13 '51 800w

MCCARTHY, JOHN A. Vocational education. 387p il $5.75 Am. tech. soc.

371.426 Vocational education 50-12076

"Intentionally provocative, and addressed to laymen rather than to specialists in the field, this textbook presents 'the principles and philosophies of vocational education in a simple, readable form.' The first six chapters trace the history of the development of vocational education in the United States, with special emphasis on the contributions to it made by the federal government. The remaining nine chapters discuss programs in vocational education." U S Quarterly Bk R

Booklist 47:199 F 1 '51

School & Society 73:15 Ja 6 '51 40w

"For those interested in the improvement of American education, the book renders a service by bringing together from scattered sources a consideration of various aspects of the vocational education movement. Readers may disagree with particular interpretations made by the author, although he has been careful to avoid the natural bias of one who has devoted his life to the promotion of 'America's greatest resource.'"

U S Quarterly Bk R 7:158 Je '51 200w

MCCASLAND, SELBY VERNON. By the finger of God; demon possession and exorcism in early Christianity in the light of modern views of mental illness; with an introd. by David Cole Wilson. 146p $2.75 Macmillan

225.81334 Mental diseases. Demoniac possession. Exorcism. Bible. N. T.—Psychology 51-9691

"A study of demon possession and exorcism in the Bible in relation to their occurrence or that of similar phenomena in various cultures of the past and present. Problem arises from puzzling stories recorded in New Testament books, especially the Gospels and Acts." (Library J) Indexes.

"There have been few satisfactory studies of demoniac possession in New Testament times and this one is especially valuable since the author is both a scholar in the religious field and well-versed in modern psychiatry." J. H. Titus

+ Churchman 165:17 S '51 90w

"Professor McCasland of the University of Virginia argues, in this clear and thoughtful little book, that Jesus' exorcisms of demons are well-attested historically, that they are healings of recognizable mental diseases, that they were performed by his personal command alone, and that they bear witness to a unique conception of his own vocation which Jesus held, namely, that he was Messiah in the later apocalyptic sense of Son of Man. . . Only here and there does the author fail to exercise his usual caution and care." S. E. Johnson

+ Crozer Q 29:61 Ja '52 1100w

"Recommended for all Libraries." O. G. Lawson

+ Library J 75:2074 D 1 '50 110w

MCCAUSLAND, ELIZABETH. A. H. Maurer. 289p il $5 Wyn

B or 92 Maurer, Alfred Henry 51-4396

A study of the life and art of Alfred H. Maurer whom the author calls "America's first modern painter." He was born in 1868, the son of a commercial lithographer, studied at the National Academy, and at twenty-nine settled in Paris. He was on his way to fame when, in his thirties, he began his connection with modern art. From that time his course was checkered and in 1932 he committed suicide. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 47:380 Jl 1 '51

"Although the writing may be too intimate for some, this is a valuable addition to the art biography library."

+ Kirkus 19:240 My 1 '51 200w

"Miss McCausland tells the story with great sympathy and feeling, though her effort to cast Maurer in an heroic mold and make him almost wholly the victim of public neglect seems a little far-fetched." Selden Rodman

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 Jl 8 '51 700w

"Miss McCausland, author, editor and educator in the field of modern art, states that her analysis of her protagonist was hampered by lack of information. To keep her story going, she uses over-dramatic prose. . . The fidelity with which Miss McCausland separates

MCCAUSLAND, ELIZABETH—Continued
fact from supposition, even when so doing weakens her effects, will make the book useful to students of modern art. Her discussions of Maurer's paintings reveal her a sane and perceptive critic: she neither deprecates nor overestimates an artist who was an interesting pioneer but not a major creator." James Flexner
+ — N Y Times p7 My 27 '51 500w

Reviewed by Don Pitt
San Francisco Chronicle p18 Je 24 '51 500w

Springf'd Republican p5D Je 3 '51 70w

MCCLANE, A. J. ed. See Wise fisherman's encyclopedia

MCCLINTON, MRS KATHARINE (MORRISON) KAHLE. Antique collecting for everyone. 252p il $5 McGraw

708.051 Antiques. Collectors and collecting. Art objects 51-4768

Brief chapters on small pieces, mostly of American manufacture, which may be collected at low cost. Partial contents: Mocha ware; Some popular 19th-century pottery; Children's mugs; American stoneware pots and jars; American tobies; English and American trivets and sadiron holders; Brass, iron, and copper cooking utensils; American woodenware; American glass; Bristol and other European and American opaque white and colored glass; American samplers and needlework pictures; Paintings on velvet. Index.

Booklist 47:398 Jl 15 '51

Cleveland Open Shelf p28 N '51

"Useful for hobbyists and collectors, illustrators and searchers for local color." A. S. Plaut
+ Library J 76:1425 S 15 '51 50w

MCCLOSKEY, ROBERT. Centerburg tales [il. by the author]. 190p $2.50 Viking 51-10675

Further tales about the doings of Homer Price, hero of the book of that name published earlier (Book Review Digest 1943). Uncle Ulysses still has his lunchroom, and Grampa Herc' tells more tall tales. Homer's experiences with the giant ragweed and the time the library got all mixed up on account of a juke box record, are only two of the stories in this book for ages nine to twelve.

Booklist 47:349 Je 1 '51

Bookmark 10:185 My '51

"If these new episodes in Homer's career don't tickle young readers' funny bones [and I think they will], the pictures are guaranteed to do so. They are absolutely wonderful."
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 Jl 8 '51 200w

Cleveland Open Shelf p16 Jl '51

Reviewed by A. C. Moore
Horn Bk 27:94 Mr '51 100w

"Pictures and story show a real, live American boy with a knack for getting into hilarious adventures that make perfect reading aloud for children from eight to twelve." J. D. Lindquist and S. M. Andrews
+ Horn Bk 27:179 My '51 110w

"In these refreshingly different tall tales there is a good deal of warm-hearted entertainment which is almost unrivaled in its spontaneity, feeling for real personalities, and colorful and original situations." H. M. Brogan
+ Library J 76:1034 Je 15 '51 80w

"Boys of ten to twelve will laugh as an adult cannot, at the last tale where the bewitched citizens make a shambles of the Dewey decimal system in the library, all due to a record slipped into the new juke-box by a dark stranger. But we all join in hearty laughter at and praise of the many pictures, funnier than ever. And for Grampa Hercules alone, the book is worth the money." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p17 My 13 '51 180w

"Homer moves through all this grand nonsense as canny and resourceful as ever, and somehow always remains a real boy. Proof of this is seen in Mr. McCloskey's illustrations." E. L. B.
+ N Y Times p22 My 6 '51 200w

Reviewed by K. T. Kinkead
New Yorker 27:185 D 1 '51 80w

"The hundreds of boys and girls who know and admire Homer Price have only to look at the first drawing in this book to be assured that he is with us again. Several of the exciting events in it are told by Grandpa Hercules, who was more or less of an institution in Centerburg. . . The drawings are just as funny and just as dramatic, and there are a generous number of them. We can only hope that many, many boys and girls will have this book to take with them on their vacation."
+ Sat R of Lit 34:46 Je 9 '51 150w

U S Quarterly Bk R 7:247 S '51 70w

Wis Lib Bul 47:153 Je '51

MCCLOY, HELEN (MRS DAVIS DRESSER). Alias Basil Willing. 213p $2.50 Random house 51-10618

Detective story.

Bookmark 10:208 Je '51

Reviewed by Drexel Drake
Chicago Sunday Tribune p10 Ag 12 '51 50w

Kirkus 19:166 Mr 15 '51 70w

"A literate story in which Miss McCloy again proves her ability to delve rather more deeply into character than the average mystery writer."
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 Je 3 '51 200w

"A reviewer can only hint that it's rather different in tone and concept from previous McCloys—but, of course, as admirably done as ever, with moments of bright wit and of dark grue." Anthony Boucher
+ N Y Times p14 Jl 8 '51 140w

"Well plotted and full of villainy, but not quite up to Miss McCloy's last, 'Through a Glass, Darkly.' "
+ New Yorker 27:132 My 12 '51 110w

Reviewed by L. G. Offord
San Francisco Chronicle p13 My 27 '51 60w

Reviewed by Kathleen Sproul
Sat R of Lit 34:32 Jl 7 '51 50w

MCCLOY, HELEN (MRS DAVIS DRESSER), and DRESSER, DAVIS, eds. 20 great tales of murder; by experts of the Mystery writers of America; ed. by Helen McCloy and Brett Halliday [pseud] pref. by Baynard Kendrick. 336p $2.95 Random house

Short stories—Collections 51-12105

Contents: The black cabinet, by J. D. Carr; The adventure of the dead cat, by Ellery Queen; Nine-finger Jack, by Anthony Boucher; Love comes to Miss Lucy, by Q. Patrick; The last day of all, by F. G. Stanley; You killed Elizabeth, by Brett Halliday; Chinoiserie, by Helen McCloy; Thread of life, by Will Oursler; Good-bye, Miss Lizzie Borden, by Lillian De La Torre; Uncle Charlie, by Philip Ketchum; The absent hat pin, by D. B. Olsen; Riviera renegade, by L. G. Blochman; The riddle of the snafu murder, by Stuart Palmer; My last book, by Clayre and Michel Lipman; The doctor takes a case, by G. H. Coxe; Live bait, by Morris Hershman; The man in the morgue, by Robert Arthur; The man who had no friends, by Hugh Pentecost; The nightmare face, by Walter Snow; The hand of God, by H. S. Keeler; Postscript, by Helen McCloy.

Booklist 48:144 D 15 '51

"The collection maintains a superior standard of selection and performance."
+ Kirkus 19:335 Jl 1 '51 100w

Reviewed by James Sandoe
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p18 N 11 '51 210w

"Probably the best M. W. A. anthology yet. The editors have chosen a subtle and effective unifying [theme] (which, in proper mystery fashion, is to be deduced by the reader as he goes through the book). And they have come up with a superlative batch of stories to illustrate it." Anthony Boucher
+ N Y Times p30 S 16 '51 220w

"As usual with MWA anthologies, this presents a group of fresh and excellent stories, including several originals specially written for the volume and only a few of which have been previously anthologized." L. G. Offord
+ San Francisco Chronicle p16 Ag 26 '51 90w

Reviewed by Sergeant Cuff
Sat R of Lit 34:42 S 22 '51 40w

Springf'd Republican p10D O 7 '51 90w

MCCLUNG, ROBERT M. Stripe; the story of a chipmunk; il. by [the author]. [48p] $2 Morrow 51-11438

Easy-to-read nature book for ages six to eight. It is the story of one year in the life of a chipmunk.

Booklist 48:16 S 1 '51

"Very useful additions to elementary school nature study collections." J. D. Lindquist and S. M. Andrews
+ Horn Bk 27:336 S '51 40w

"The black and white sketches by the author are accurate and appealing, but the two color illustrations are garish and off-register."
Kirkus 19:348 Jl 15 '51 100w

"Heartily recommended for third, fourth, and fifth grades." F. M. Hensey
+ Library J 76:1233 Ag '51 60w

Reviewed by L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p28 N 11 '51 50w

Springf'd Republican p14C O 14 '51 90w

Wis Lib Bul 47:218 S '51

MACCLURE, VICTOR. A certain woman; the story of Mary Magdalene. 313p $3 Pellegrini & Cudahy

Mary Magdalene, Saint—Fiction 51-11823

A story of Bible times in which the chief character is Mary Magdalene whom the author presents as the sister of Lazarus and Martha.

Reviewed by E. F. Murphy
Chicago Sunday Tribune p8 S 2 '51 300w

"Convincing and absorbing. . . The figure of Jesus is presented in reverent, non-dogmatic terms, following the Gospel outline. But there seems to be little historical basis for the successive facets of Mary's story."
+ — Kirkus 19:358 Jl 15 '51 220w

"Mr. MacClure's many years of study of Biblical times and settings enables him to clothe the simple statements in the New Testament with colorful particulars. . . He pictures the Christ reverently, first as a simple carpenter, then as the Man of Sorrows, and some of his interpretations of Biblical characters, especially Judas Iscariot, have interest and originality. On the other hand, the romantic love affair between Mary and Felix Scaliger has a disconcerting modernity." Ross Martin
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p11 S 9 '51 350w

"The author of this story, with Mary Magdalene as the heroine, has for the past eight years worked with J. Arthur Rank in the production of films of a religious nature. Hence, it is not surprising that the work shows strongly the influence of the motion-picture art. Its people are not individuals but types; the telling is not intensive but photographic; its effects are largely dependent on formula. . . Most of it—and especially the denouement—is purely cinematic, unworthy of the noble original." J. C.
— N Y Times p10 S 2 '51 240w

"Jesus is well presented and well interpreted in the crisis in which we see Mary offered an opportunity to save Him from the way of the Cross. The most appealing and original passages in the treatment of Jesus occur in our brief glimpse of Him before the beginning of His ministry as a practising carpenter." Edmund Fuller
+ Sat R of Lit 34:28 S 15 '51 360w

MCCOLLUM, VASHTI CROMWELL (MRS JOHN P. MCCOLLUM). One woman's fight. 221p $3 Doubleday

377.1 Church and state in the U.S. Public schools and religion 51-10068

"The heart of the issue in the nationally discussed McCollum case has been so misinterpreted and misstated that it is important to recognize the fact that the issue is specifically 'Whether or not the non-sectarian public school will continue to exist.' This book, which recounts step by step the fight from a local appeal to an Illinois school board to the United States Supreme Court, is a plea for clarification of the issue, which all will acknowledge is one of the pillars of our democracy, and, in addition, a personal story of the ways in which the McCollums were affected, the reactions of neighbors, fellow citizens, fanatics the country over, misinformed but basically well-intentioned people who thought the issue was atheism vs Christianity, and violent partisans of the extension of specific beliefs." Kirkus

Booklist 47:339 Je 1 '51

"The subject of the future role of nonsectarian public schooling in America is by no means uncontested or to be taken for granted. This book gives a powerful witness for its preservation." A. C. Ames
Chicago Sunday Tribune p8 Ap 29 '51 400w

"Her story is told with clarity, force, and feeling. . . Yet the very clarity with which Mrs. McCollum saw the legal issue appears to have led her to oversimplify some aspects of her narrative. For example, she quotes a great many abusive letters from cranks, and a great many 'beautifully written, beautifully phrased' letters supporting her position, all of the latter from people of 'apparently high average intelligence.' The net result is the impression that all the crackpots were against her and all the solid citizens on her side. Some qualification of this rather black-and-white picture might have strengthened her book." DeWitt John
+ — Christian Science Monitor p9 My 17 '51 800w

Reviewed by E. R. Johnson
Churchman 165:14 Je '51 700w

"Inevitably, Mrs. McCollum's analysis of the encroachments in Catholicism will bring blasts down upon this book, but in the main, her presentation is more objective (on the educational lines) than the Blanchard study of this aspect of Catholic power, in that she clarifies the meaning of Catholic Public Schools. An important book in specific contribution to factual knowledge of what is, after all, a national issue which has not ended with the Supreme Court decision."
Kirkus 19:143 Mr 1 '51 220w

"This is a vitally important book to all interested in the preservation of civil liberties." R. W. Henderson
+ Library J 76:775 My 1 '51 120w

Nation 172:450 My 12 '51 50w

"Mrs. McCollum's book would be even more valuable if she had included an appendix with the text of the Supreme Court majority decision written by Mr. Justice Black and the concurring opinion of Mr. Justice Frankfurter." Marcus Duffield
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Mr 25 '51 1000w

MCCOLLUM, V. C.—Continued
Reviewed by N. K. Burger
N Y Times p31 Ap 22 '51 350w

New Yorker 27:119 My 3 '51 270w

Reviewed by V. T. Thayer
Sat R of Lit 34:32 Je 30 '51 420w

Wis Lib Bul 47:210 S '51

MCCOMBE, LEONARD. Cowboy; phot; material for text and captions by John Bryson. 78p pa $1 Garden City bks.

917.64 Cowboys 51-1468

"Photographed in documentary fashion in the Red River area of the Texas Panhandle by a young English-born cameraman, it is a microcosm of the cowboy world, from the tumbleweed country of Montana to the heat-shimmering plateaus of Arizona. The volume is the first of a series whereby Picture Press plans to present popular-priced full length picture books, each to treat some interesting topic. . . Mr. McCombe and John Bryson tell how a cowpuncher lives, what he does from dawn to dusk and spring to fall, why he dresses the way he does and why his horse, rope and high cantle are as important to him as lipstick and nylons to a city girl." N Y Herald Tribune Bk R

"Colorful and entertaining." Al Chase
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p9 Mr 11 '51 70w

"It is excellent picture journalism." R. F. Crandell
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p17 Mr 11 '51 240w

"It will appeal greatly to boys." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 Ap 8 '51 110w

MCCOMBE, LEONARD. Navaho means people; photographs by Leonard McCombe, text by Evon Z. Vogt and Clyde Kluckhohn. 159p $5 Harvard univ. press

970.3 Navaho Indians 51-14098

"The word Navaho, like the word Eskimo, means 'The People,' and this book is a survey of the Navaho people and culture by means of the photographic essay, so useful but with the omnipresent faults of overgeneralization, omission, and the dramatization of selected, isolated incidents." Library J

Booklist 48:122 D 1 '51

"This book presents the greatly needed information about the American Indians to the American public." J. S. Kocsis
+ Churchman 166:17 Ja 1 '52 80w

Reviewed by R. H. Dillon
Library J 76:1803 N 1 '51 200w

"The text is pertinent, ordered to correspond with the broad sequence of the pictures, and amazingly compact. These writers are Harvard anthropologists, yet their style here is a fine example of the power of simple English. It is clear, cogent, and pleasing to read. I do not know of anything of this kind so effective, so worth having." Oliver La Farge
+ N Y Times p7 N 18 '51 400w

School & Society 74:287 N 3 '51 20w

MCCOMBS, KENNETH MONROE. Commercial photography; il. by the author and his students of photography at the Los Angeles trade-technical junior college. 363p $5 Am. tech. soc.

778 Photography. Photography, Commercial 51-692

"A successful commercial photographer gives step-by-step methods and hundreds of practical suggestions for attaining technical skill. Customer relations and business management are also discussed." Cleveland Open Shelf

Booklist 48:45 O 1 '51

Cleveland Open Shelf p18 S '51

"A very practical introduction. It is slanted particularly for students who are studying commercial photography in trade schools, but it is suitable also for those learning this business by themselves. Throughout the book the instructions are compact, specific, and often given in step-by-step style."
+ N Y New Tech Bks 36:75 S '51

MCCONNAUGHEY, MRS SUSANNE. Point Venus. 312p $3 Little

51-12234

"During Queen Victoria's early reign England allowed Tahiti to become a French Protectorate. In this novel the Tahitians, their English missionary friends, and an American writer and soldier-of-fortune fight a losing battle against the French." Library J

"It is with the Tahitians that Mrs. McConnaughey has her greatest success. Of these, her portrait of Queen Pomare is perhaps the finest. For all her dowdy dresses and squat figure, she is every inch the monarch." V. P. Hass
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 S 16 '51 450w

Kirkus 19:333 Jl 1 '51 170w

"As a first novel this book has all the required components of historical fiction; action, romance and idyllic settings are all part of the formula and they are all here. However, the pattern is too obvious, making the book just another candidate to be read by the omnivorous users of the pay duplicate collection." H. L. Roth
Library J 76:1423 S 15 '51 90w

"An agreeable narrative of saints and sinners."
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p22 N 25 '51 90w

Reviewed by John Cournos
N Y Times p21 S 16 '51 240w

"A good enough yarn—one of the historical-novel sort, but handled in a workmanlike way and with solid fact as her background." J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p16 S 7 '51 650w

"The characters in her novel are in effect old friends, as familiar as those encountered in 'Rain' or, more recently, 'South Pacific,' and suggest that in the tropics time really does stand still." Josephine Lawrence
Sat R of Lit 34:34 S 22 '51 230w

MCCORD, JAMES BENNETT, and DOUGLAS, JOHN SCOTT. My patients were Zulus. 308p il $3 Rinehart

B or 92 Zulus. Physicians—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc. 51-9899

An account of this American medical missionary's forty years of service doctoring South African Zulus.

Booklist 47:252 Mr 15 '51

Reviewed by W. M. Krogman
Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 My 6 '51 380w

Kirkus 19:45 Ja 15 '51 170w

"Fascinating autobiography for general readers and students of anthropology and medicine." J. M. Scherr
+ Library J 76:177 F 1 '51 140w

"Dr. McCord's collaborator has brought to the telling a story-teller's skill which will keep you enthralled from the first delivery of a child far in the Zulu hills to the end of the journey." Margaret Hubbard
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 Ap 15 '51 800w

"No American reading this book can help a feeling of pride in this inspiring record. As long as we can produce such men we will remain the friend and hope of little people everywhere." John Barkham
+ N Y Times p6 Ap 1 '51 1000w

"This record of his achievements is marred, on occasion, by a kind of fancied-up prose, but it makes absorbing reading just the same, since the Doctor was a talented and, on the whole, successful scrapper, with a well-ventilated attitude toward his profession and his surroundings."

+ — New Yorker 27:116 My 3 '51 130w

San Francisco Chronicle p21 Je 17 '51 290w

MCCORMICK, THOMAS CARSON. Sociology; an introduction to the study of social relations. 570p $4.50 Ronald

301 Sociology 50-8238

"This introductory textbook narrows the subject matter of sociology somewhat more than is usually done to a study of the structure and dynamics of the more important social relationships, especially in our society. Such a definition of the field of sociology has the advantage of distinguishing it more clearly from the fields of related social sciences. The assumption here has been that the function of an introductory text is not to exhaust any topic, but rather to guide the discussion, to stimulate it, and to give the student some confidence in his grasp of the main ideas involved. . . This book has a definitely socio-psychological point of view." (Pref) Index.

"With the plethora of new books in introductory sociology, one frequently wonders whether there is a need for yet another one. McCormick's new text, however, is a welcome addition. It is a text in sociology rather than a general collection of social science facts and fancies." J. B. Gittler

+ Am J Soc 56:377 Ja '51 320w

Reviewed by E. J. Ross

Am Soc R 16:121 F '51 320w

"His discussion of social processes may be more helpful to the introductory student than the usual treatment since he treats them in terms of the groups within and between which they operate." W. L. Godwin

Social Forces 29:468 My '51 260w

Reviewed by B. L. McCarthy

Social Studies 42:132 Mr '51 480w

MCCORMICK, WILFRED. Grand-slam homer; a Bronc Burnett story. 183p $2 Putnam

51-3561

Story of a small town baseball team with a good coach, for fifth grade and older readers.

Reviewed by Polly Goodwin

Chicago Sunday Tribune p10 My 27 '51 20w

Kirkus 19:246 My 15 '51 70w

"A good sport story with action and suspense." O. R. Way

+ Library J 76:1138 Jl '51 80w

Reviewed by R. A. Brown

N Y Times p14 Ag 5 '51 40w

"It is packed with a fresh new store of tips on 'inside baseball' which have evoked favorable comment from sports columnists and players alike." J. F. S.

+ Springf'd Republican p5D Jl 15 '51 70w

MCCREA, WILLIAM HUNTER. Physics of the sun and stars. 192p $2; text ed $1.60 Longmans

523.7 Astrophysics 50-10929

"A largely nontechnical presentation of what is now known about the constitution and physical processes of the sun and other stars in our galaxy. The author has taken special pains to explain how the knowledge of such matters has been arrived at." (N Y New Tech Bks) Index.

"The last three chapters on the stars—data and classification, constitution, variables and novae—are particularly good. It is to be hoped that the author will soon write again on these subjects without the restrictions imposed by the present volume." A. C. B. L.

+ Manchester Guardian p4 N 17 '50 250w

N Y New Tech Bks 35:95 N '50

MCCULLERS, MRS CARSON (SMITH). Ballad of the sad café. 791p $5 Houghton

51-10969

An omnibus volume containing the author's three novels: The Heart is a Lonely Hunter, Reflections in a Golden Eye, and The Member of the Wedding; a novelette The Ballad of the Sad Café; and six short stories.

Reviewed by Riley Hughes

Cath World 173:391 Ag '51 350w

"If at times there are people or episodes which seem a little incredible, all the rest of the time Miss McCullers writes with genuine insight and proved emotion." Paul Engle

Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 Je 10 '51 340w

Reviewed by Ruth Chapin

Christian Science Monitor p7 Jl 5 '51 800w

Cleveland Open Shelf p20 S '51

"The art of Carson McCullers has been called 'Gothic.' Perhaps it is—superficially. Certainly her day-to-day world, her little Southern towns, are haunted by far more masterful horrors than were ever conjured up in the dreary castles of a Horace Walpole. It seems to me, however, that the 'Gothic' label misses the essential point. Because Carson McCullers is ultimately the artist functioning at the very loftiest symbolic level, and if one must look for labels I should prefer to call her work 'metaphysical.'" W. P. Clancy

+ Commonweal 54:243 Je 15 '51 700w

Reviewed by Coleman Rosenberger

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p1 Je 10 '51 1550w

Reviewed by Hubert Creekmore

N Y Times p5 Jl 8 '51 700w

"Mrs. McCullers' situations and sentiments are so artistically evoked that it is no doubt carping to remark that her innocents often seem a shade too receptive, too conscious of truth and of each other, and that the atmosphere of hurt and betrayal in which they live their lives often becomes merely sticky, as though all that sensitivity had got a little out of hand."

+ — New Yorker 27:114 Je 9 '51 140w

San Francisco Chronicle p15 Ag 19 '51 300w

Reviewed by B. R. Redman

Sat R of Lit 34:30 Je 23 '51 280w

"Taken together, the 791 pages pretty well establish Novelist McCullers as one of the top dozen among contemporary U.S. writers. . . Her writing is part of the American tradition of mooning, the tradition represented by Sherwood Anderson, Thomas Wolfe, Eugene O'Neill sometimes, and, at his rare best, William Saroyan. She can be soft and soupy, but at top form, as in The Ballad of the Sad Café, Carson McCullers has sharp sight, warm tenderness."

+ Time 57:106 Je 4 '51 600w

Wis Lib Bul 47:166 Je '51

MCCULLERS, MRS CARSON (SMITH). Member of the wedding; a play. 118p $2.75 New directions

812 51-10532

Play based on the novel of the same name (Book Review Digest 1946). The scene is the kitchen of a southern house; the chief characters: the wise colored cook; Frankie, the adolescent daughter of the house; and John Henry, her young cousin. The action is concerned with Frankie's determination to join her older brother on his honeymoon.

Booklist 47:325 My 15 '51

Cleveland Open Shelf p14 Jl '51

Kirkus 19:198 Ap 1 '51 60w

"Excellent adaptation of Mrs. McCullers' novel. Highly recommended for theatre and drama collections." George Freedley

+ Library J 76:867 My 15 '51 40w

MCCUNE, MRS EVELYN. Kim rides the tiger; il. by the author. 150p $2.25 Day

Children in Korea 51-12290

Stories about two Korean cousins: Kim, the rich city boy, and Chiang, his country cousin. Mrs McCune was born in Korea and lived there many years; these stories were written for her children.

Bookmark 11:35 N '51

Kirkus 19:482 S 1 '51 130w

"Some good descriptions of Korean customs, but the book is spoiled by a contrived plot and poor characterizations. . . Satisfactory if you need another Korean story. Boys do read it." L. G. McCusker

— + Library J 76:2126 D 15 '51 70w

"The author writes after long residence in Korea, and happily mixes action and information. It is valuable for boys who read well, from about eleven to fourteen, to show what sort of people the Koreans are, and how they long for independence." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p16 N 4 '51 180w

"After one brief dip into Korean history, the book loses credibility in either local flavor or story. It is disconcerting when boys of 14 and 15 are referred to as children. Equally confusing are the nuances of family distinction between the two boys—who seemed, to this reader, to have identical social backgrounds." Eleanor Brent

N Y Times p28 N 11 '51 120w

"The story combines suspense, as Kim and Chang narrowly escape a variety of dangers, with background on Korean beliefs and customs, schools, family ceremonies, and the humor and warmth of personality of its people."

+ San Francisco Chronicle p11 N 11 '51 260w

Springf'd Republican p14C O 14 '51 90w

MCCUNE, GEORGE MCAFEE, and HARRISON, JOHN A., eds. Korean-American relations; documents pertaining to the Far Eastern diplomacy of the United States; 3v; v 1, The initial period, 1883-1886. 182p pa $2.50 Univ. of Calif.

327.73 Korea—Foreign relations—U.S. U.S. —Foreign relations—Korea (51-1111)

"This is the first volume in a three-part series which will deal with Korean-American relations between 1883 and 1905. The series should be of great assistance to the student interested in the work of the United States diplomats as America assumed a more active part in Far Eastern affairs. The first volume contains the documents which illustrate the role of American diplomacy in the struggle over Northeast Asia in the years 1883-1886. This struggle found Korea the central point and the United States the neutral in the contest between Japan, China, Russia and England." Current Hist

Am Pol Sci R 45:596 Je '51 20w

Current Hist 20:230 Ap '51 100w

"The authors tell their story in the form of selections from diplomatic documents. These are skillfully chosen and there is, too, an introduction which gives the setting concisely and judiciously." Nathaniel Peffer

+ New Repub 124:19 My 28 '51 500w

"Because the documents are cited verbatim, there are fantastic inconsistencies in spelling, capitalization, punctuation and grammar. But survive them and you have fascinating reading." D. P.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p24 Ap 1 '51 160w

MACDONALD, HAZEL CHRISTIE. Death walks softly. 224p $2 Phoenix

Detective story.

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p14 Ja 21 '51 80w

"Unfortunately, between crises, which are very exciting, the reader maintains a fixed disbelief in the plight of Adriana." M. H. O.

N Y Times p27 F 25 '51 110w

"The premises on which their suspicions are based [are] rather slim, but there's a lot of story here. With better organization of material it would be a rousing yarn." L. G. Offord

+ — San Francisco Chronicle p18 Ja 7 '51 80w

"Worth reading."

+ Sat R of Lit 34:34 Ja 20 '51 50w

MCDONALD, JAMES GROVER. My mission in Israel, 1948-1951. 303p $3.50 Simon & Schuster

956.9 U.S.—Foreign relations—Israel. Israel —Politics and government 51-3976

The first United States ambassador to Israel records his observations on the early growth of the new republic, and describes his share in the establishment of friendly relations between the two countries. Index.

Booklist 48:28 S 15 '51

Reviewed by H. B. Swope

Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 S 2 '51 950w

Reviewed by J. G. Harrison

Christian Science Monitor p5 Ag 30 '51 750w

Reviewed by C. H. Voss

Churchman 165:16 O 15 '51 130w

Cleveland Open Shelf p25 N '51

Kirkus 19:203 Ap 1 '51 240w

"Sympathetic to the Zionist cause, McDonald presents an intelligent analysis of the complex factors that guided early U.S. relations with Arabs, Israel, and Britain. The detailed narrative gives quiet emphasis to the vital issues related elsewhere with more drama and fire." M. E. Monroe

+ Library J 76:1215 Ag '51 100w

"Mr. McDonald's narrative is intimate, homely, and full of unmalicious anecdotes. But the book is more serious than appears on its engaging surface." Marie Syrkin

+ Nation 173:403 N 10 '51 600w

New Repub 125:28 O 29 '51 200w

"Wholly admirable. In offering us this record of the opening scenes in the birth and incredibly rapid growth of the Israeli State our first Ambassador to Israel has made available an encouraging report on one of the few truly hopeful developments in the post-war world." Sumner Welles

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p1 Ag 26 '51 1550w

Reviewed by Thomas Sugrue

N Y Times p1 Ag 26 '51 1500w

+ New Yorker 27:116 S 8 '51 160w

"This is the fascinating record of the years of the first American Ambassador to Israel: obviously a record carefully kept, and one which shows the profound influence of our ancient Republic, the United States, upon the tiny, newly reborn State of Israel. . . McDonald's word pictures of the leaders of Israel are sharp, penetrating and personal, based on many years of close friendship and acute observation." Bartley Crum

+ Sat R of Lit 34:9 Ag 25 '51 1350w

"Mr. McDonald was a pioneer in a pioneer country, and neither he nor the new state could depend on clear cut or consistent policies from Washington, London, the United Nations, nor anywhere else. In such a situation there was never a dull moment. Every morning threatened a new crisis. The story is, therefore, one of suspense, adventure, anxiety, and achievement. It is also full of sidelights and overtones." J. P. Jones

+ Survey 87:395 S '51 750w

Times [London] Lit Sup p723 N 16 '51 500w

MACDONALD JOHN DANN. Wine of the dreamers. 219p $2.75 Greenberg

51-12736

Science-fiction story.

"The story is smoothly and readably told; but a number of implausibilities, both in detail and in basic concept, kept this reviewer, at least, from attaining any suspension of disbelief." H. H. Holmes

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p22 O 14 '51 70w

"The yarn has real excitement, and more depth than most." Basil Davenport

+ N Y Times p41 N 18 '51 150w

"Smoothly and professionally done, with a thoroughly acceptable denouement, 'Wine of the Dreamers' is one of the better new novels to emerge in the science fiction field." Don Fabun

+ San Francisco Chronicle p20 O 7 '51 300w

MACDONALD, JOHN ROSS, pseud. See Millar, K.

MCDONALD, LAETITIA (MRS WALLACE IRWIN). Golden hammock. 373p $3 Little

51-11496

Family chronicle of a Southern clan, opening in 1899 and ending with World war I. The central character is Nisba, slightly handicapped by a beautiful mother, who managed to live her own life and marry the right man.

Booklist 47:286; 401 Ap 15 '51; Jl 15 '51

Reviewed by Riley Hughes

Cath World 174:72 O '51 180w

"A richly caparisoned portrayal of a way of life, now better remembered generally for its smug faultiness than for any worthwhile staying qualities it may have had." Henry Cavendish

Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 Jl 22 '51 420w

"Mrs. Irwin sensibly does not try to attribute to the period a perfection it never had, but she does memorialize it as the final era of a domestic innocency which was ripened away by World War I, never to return." Ruth Chapin

+ Christian Science Monitor p7 Jl 26 '51 300w

Kirkus 19:249 My 15 '51 130w

"Excellent tapestry of the times, interesting people, satisfactory story." Katherine Shorey

+ Library J 76:1125 Jl '51 80w

"In her chronicle Mrs. Irwin has a way of eliding time or place and jumping the reader into a new episode in which he struggles for a footing for a moment as though a hostess had suddenly left him in a roomful of people among whom at first glance he hardly recognizes any one. This and the detail frequently make the story confusing and somewhat blur its main theme. . . On the other hand, the very exuberance of the telling, will heighten the charm of the book for many who too were young in the first decades of the century." Mary Ross

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 Jl 22 '51 600w

"Mrs. Irwin looks backward with affection and humor on a way of life she knew intimately. Yet there are sharp, telling thrusts in her story." Andrea Parke

+ N Y Times p15 Jl 22 '51 220w

"If you're over 50 and if you were ever a small-town American you'll find yourself breathing the very air of your childhood in these pages. These are people you once knew, and their way of life is one you once knew too. Try the book and see." J. H. Jackson

+ San Francisco Chronicle p18 Jl 25 '51 1000w

"Leisure remains the key to these oleander activities. Mrs. Irwin skillfully observes the minutiae of a Southern town, of a way of life, of a pattern of thought. She succeeds in creating a lost and a capacious comfort." C. M. Brown

Sat R of Lit 34:19 Ag 18 '51 220w

Reviewed by L. S. Munn

Springf'd Republican p12C Ag 26 '51 220w

Wis Lib Bul 47:215 S '51

MCDONALD, MRS LUCILE (SAUNDERS), and ROSS, ZOLA HELEN. Mystery of Catesby Island. 224p $2 Nelson

50-9078

Mystery story for teen aged readers.

"Second rate but recommended."

Bookmark 10:12 O '50 30w

"This is a good yarn, full of the tang of salt water and swift enough to satisfy even those older boys and girls whose chief diet may be comics and other thrillers." M. J. T.

+ Christian Science Monitor p9 F 8 '51 210w

Kirkus 18:469 Ag 15 '50 140w

"For girls, whether mystery fans or not." R. M. McEvoy

+ Library J 75:1674 O 1 '50 80w

"The people in this book are especially real, from the five-year-old Twin Terrors to the irascible great-Aunt India. This fast-paced novel is fun reading with never a dull moment."

+ San Francisco Chronicle p19 N 19 '50 200w

MCDONELL, GORDON. The clocktower. (Atlantic monthly press bk) 310p $3 Little

51-3691

The scene is a tiny principality in the high Himalayas. It is the story of what happens when the rajah who rules over these primitive people tries to install a fine clock in the great tower he is building to the gods in order to insure the birth of a male heir.

Booklist 47:337; 363 Je 1 '51; Je 15 '51

Reviewed by Fanny Butcher

Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 Je 10 '51 550w

Reviewed by Ruth Chapin

Christian Science Monitor p15 Je 14 '51 330w

Kirkus 19:193 Ap 1 '51 240w

"Whether his novel pictures people and a place that may exist and events that may have taken place, or whether it is merely a colorful tale and perhaps a parable, one does not know. At least some of its western readers are likely to find pleasure in considering it in that last light. It is a smoothly written and intriguing story that incorporates adventure, exoticism and a pleasant amount of philosophy and also romantic love." Mary Ross

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Je 10 '51 440w

"The highly stylized dialogue Mr. McDonell has used is disconcerting to the otherwise easy flow of the story. The characters lack completeness—and each seems to represent only one facet of the Kotpali personality." M. J. Tweedy

N Y Times p23 Je 10 '51 380w

"Caught between the author's frankly sentimental intentions and the mannerisms of his modified realistic prose, the Himalayas come off a trifle less than a self-conscious version of themselves. Yet 'The Clocktower' is clean and readable escapism all the same." Joseph Hitrec

+ — Sat R of Lit 34:16 Jl 21 '51 550w

MCDONELL, MARGARET. Althea. 192p $2.50 Doubleday

51-3969

Mystery story.

"Startling originality in mystery drama that wields emotional wallop." Drexel Drake

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p10 Jl 1 '51 60w

Kirkus 19:196 Ap 1 '51 50w

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p9 Jl 15 '51 80w

"It's hard to find any element of novelty in this collection of all the superficial love-magazine clichés of plot and character. To be sure, there is something special in the author's bravery in venturing on a courtroom novel with an unstained innocence of the law." Anthony Boucher

MCDONELL, MARGARET—Continued

— N Y Times p14 Jl 8 '51 70w

New Yorker 27:120 Je 9 '51 100w

"Though the ending might not satisfy everyone, the new approach and double suspense give freshness to a simple story." L. G. Offord

+ San Francisco Chronicle p22 Je 10 '51 80w

"Well-managed suspense." Kathleen Sproul

+ Sat R of Lit 34:46 Jl 14 '51 60w

MACE, MYLES LA GRANGE. Growth and development of executives. 200p $3.25 Harvard univ. Division of res.

658.3124 Executives 50-8035

"This book, by an associate professor of business administration at Harvard who has served as a consultant on executive training for several manufacturing and utility firms, is a report on a year's investigation into what American business is and is not doing to promote executive development." (Sat R of Lit) Thruout the book the author gives case histories. Index.

Reviewed by W. H. Newman

Ann Am Acad 272:235 N '50 230w

Reviewed by Winifred Baum

Chicago Sunday Tribune p16 Mr 4 '51 60w

"Perhaps Professor Mace can be persuaded to write a popular version of his work. His sentences are long and often involved, and his vocabulary is not easy. Because it has so many valuable ideas in it the book should be read by all executives, but they are likely to be frightened away by the style in which it is written." J. F. Bender

Sat R of Lit 34:51 Ja 20 '51 500w

MCELROY, HOWARD C. Modern philosophers; western thought since Kant. 268p $4 Moore, R., 475 5th Av, N.Y. 17

190 Philosophy, Modern. Philosophers 50-11017

Thirty sketches about nineteenth and twentieth century philosophers "from Hegel to Brightman, from Comte to Brunschvicg, from Bolzano to Russell, and from Rousseau to Schweitzer. These four series or assortments are labelled respectively: God and Good Society, Science and Saintliness, Fact and Fancy, Reason in Retreat." (J Philos) The author is a professor at the University of Pittsburgh. Index.

Christian Century 68:821 Jl 11 '51 100w

"The bibliography, though not very critical, contains many unusual references. Throughout the text the reader comes upon bits of information (not always relevant or significant) which are not given in more conventional texts. A little of such philosophical impressionism is refreshing, but it must be taken in small doses. It does not afford a steady diet for sustained reflection." H. W. S.

J Philos 48:312 Ap 26 '51 210w

"This relatively short book on philosophy has little to recommend it. The author, who is a professor at the University of Pittsburgh, has attempted to deal only with the philosophers of the nineteenth and twentieth centuries, but the organization of his treatment requires him to ignore a number of writers in this time period and on the other hand, to explain the views of several earlier figures." Robert Bierstedt

— Sat R of Lit 34:29 My 12 '51 140w

MACEOIN, GARY. Cervantes. 223p $3.25 Bruce pub.

B or 92 Cervantes Saavedra, Miguel de 50-11175

"[A survey] of Cervantes and his times, examining in detail his works and their sources, and current philosophies which influenced him." Library J

"Gary MacEóin's scholarly and well-documented book presents an interesting picture, not only of Cervantes and Don Quixote but of sixteenth-century Spain."

+ Cath World 172:400 F '51 70w

"A scholarly survey. . . Well and cleverly documented." R. W. Henderson

+ Library J 75:2148 D 15 '50 140w

"While rich in surmise, [the book] is a little thin as biography. After reading Cervantes, those who would like to know its subject better are likely to find themselves right back where they started—staring into the sad, heroic face of the mad knight who called windmills his enemies and wore a barber's basin as a helmet."

Time 57:100 Ja 22 '51 750w

MACEOIN, GARY, and ZOMBORY, AKOS. Communist war on religion. 264p $3.50 Devin-Adair

335.4 Communism and religion 51-12534

"Today few Americans are complacent about the threat Communism constitutes to the things they hold dear. . . But we are still hazy about the essence of the Communist threat. The essential threat is to truth and freedom: that is, the freedom of men to be men, free to choose, free to move, to speak, to think—free to worship God. Wherever the Communists have seized power, they have destroyed these freedoms, wading through seas of human blood. . . This book tells that story as illustrated in the persecution of religion in every Communist-controlled country." (Introd) Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 48:139 D 15 '51

Reviewed by C. Seidenspinner

Chicago Sunday Tribune p13 N 18 '51 500w

"This book is a dispassionate but devastating indictment of the systematic repression and persecution of religion by the Soviet Union and the countries in her sphere of influence. It is studded with factual, often statistical, statements presented against a background of historical and cultural data concerning the countries reported on, from East Germany and the Baltic states to China and Korea. The author is a lawyer and newspaper man, a devout Catholic, whose concern for religious freedom is by no means confined to his own faith." F. E. Johnson

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p14 Ja 13 '52 750w

"How can one review this book? One can only say that it is the same story, told over and over again of any and every country where communism has taken over. . . The very monotony of the process gives to the book an effect of cumulative terror which is indeed the atmosphere under which millions live." H. C. Gardiner

N Y Times p35 N 4 '51 320w

"Carefully documented, acute in its historical and political analyses, and gratifyingly free from sectarian bias. It is approximately complete in its country-by-country coverage of Moscow's religious imperialism and should become part of the necessary equipment of church leaders of all faiths, since all religions are threatened by Communist subversion, fraud, and violence." James Rorty

+ Sat R of Lit 34:10 S 29 '51 850w

MACFALL, RUSSELL P. Gem hunter's guide. 2d ed 187p il maps $3 Science & mechanics pub. co, 450 E. Ohio st, Chicago 11

549 Precious stones 51-9865

Contents: It's fun and profitable to hunt gems; Typical crystal forms of prominent minerals; Characteristics of important gem stone materials; Formations in which gems occur; How to hunt for gems; Diamonds in the United States; American pearls for the finding; Black light for your minerals; Locations in which gem materials have been found; Gem materials and where they have been found. Glossary of mineral terms. Sources of information. Books recommended to gem collectors.

"This guide is done in such fascinating style that the average reader will put it down with reluctance." Roy Gibbons
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 F 18 '51 400w

"An introductory book for amateurs. Its longest and most valuable part is the directory of locations in which gem materials have been found. The chapter on diamond finds is interesting, even though the amateur collector has almost no chance of finding this stone."
+ N Y New Tech Bks 36:55 Jl '51

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson
San Francisco Chronicle p16 F 26 '51 100w

MACFIE, HARRY. Wasa-wasa; a tale of trails and treasure in the far north; with Hans G. Westerlund; tr. from the Swedish by F. H. Lyon. 288p $3 Norton

917.12 Frontier and pioneer life—Canada. Frontier and pioneer life—Alaska 51-12479

An account of twenty years' adventure in the far North, in an area extending from Hudson's Bay to Nome, Alaska.

Booklist 48:47 O 1 '51

Reviewed by V. P. Hass
Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 O 7 '51 480w

"Some lusty yarns here and a good bet for the man against nature audience."
+ Kirkus 19:383 Jl 15 '51 190w

"A superior account. . . A book to recommend to young people as well as adults." Clarence Gorchels
+ Library J 76:1329 S 1 '51 70w

"I should have liked this book better had the author troubled to cite a date now and then; and if he had been less vague in geographical matters. 'We went up the river for two days,' he says. I'd like to know what river. The book is largely episodic, though in the latter chapters there is a sort of continuity. I read it with pleasure, and with maps of Canada and Alaska handy and open. With these I managed in most cases to follow Macfie and his comrade. Theirs was a saga, sure enough, and if straight adventure is your meat, you will like this book." Stewart Holbrook
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 O 14 '51 650w

"Macfie's devotion to his partner, San Kilburn, and their unyielding optimism in their quest for gold, lend this narrative a certain sense of companionable adventure. Youngsters will rejoice in the yarns of one-eyed Indians, and Eskimo papooses who take snuff. If all the stories herein recounted aren't true, they should be." Stuart Keate
N Y Times p6 S 30 '51 210w

Reviewed by M. G. Davis
Sat R of Lit 34:37 O 20 '51 270w

"Macfie's memory for mood and color is better than his recollection of details. He tells in a smooth, poetic prose of sunrises and sunsets of summer, spring, and snow, and of occasional situations among the mining camps and bars and Indian lodges which would delight Hollywood, Robert W. Service, and Charles Wakefield Cadman. Yet of three almost incredible journeys which Macfie took he gives only very sketchy accounts." Raymond Holden
+ — Sat R of Lit 34:27 D 8 '51 500w

"An unnecessarily over-written, over-coloured account of some unusual and exciting adventures." Lovat Dickson
Spec 187:218 Ag 17 '51 350w
Springf'd Republican p10D O 7 '51 270w
Wis Lib Bul 47:252 N '51

MCGINLEY, PHYLLIS (MRS C. L. HAYDEN). Blunderbus; il. by William Wiesner. [47p] $2 Lippincott 51-980

Picture storybook about the last of the old-time, open-top Fifth Avenue buses, for ages six to eight.

Booklist 47:241 Mr 1 '51
Bookmark 10:134 Mr '51 10w
Kirkus 19:60 F 1 '51 90w

"Charming picture book. . . Recommended." E. E. Beatty
+ Library J 76:416 Mr 1 '51 80w

"This is a pleasant little fantasy of Fifth Avenue and its most familiar mode of transportation, which will amuse youngsters of six to eight. The pictures are clear and funny, not distinguished, but clever in giving a personality to a bus." L. S. Bechtel
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 My 13 '51 130w

"Miss McGinley has created the personality of a machine with easy humor and a feeling for the appropriate detail. The pictures are less imaginative than the text, but even so Blunderbus will doubtless take his place beside such favorite mechanical heroes as Hardie Gramatky's 'Little Toot' and Maurice Dolbier's 'Magic Bus.'" E. L. B.
+ N Y Times p30 F 18 '51 150w
Sat R of Lit 34:47 Mr 17 '51 280w
School & Society 73:80 F 3 '51 40w
Springf'd Republican p8C F 11 '51 150w

MCGINLEY, PHYLLIS (MRS C. L. HAYDEN). Horse who had his picture in the paper; pictures by Helen Stone. 47p $2 Lippincott
51-11174

Continues the adventures of Joey, The Horse Who Lived Upstairs (Book Review Digest 1944]. Joey still lived in his upstairs stall and pulled the vegetable cart for Mr. Pulaski. Times are hard and Mr. Pulaski worried about supporting his six children, so Joey decided to become a hero and get his picture in the paper, like the police horse in the next stall. Becoming a hero was not in Joey's line, but he managed to get his picture in the paper.

Booklist 48:109 N 15 '51

Reviewed by Marcia Winn
Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 N 11 '51 50w

Reviewed by E. C. Ince
Christian Science Monitor p11 O 4 '51 70w
Cleveland Open Shelf p21 N '51

"A story that is even better than the first one [about Joey], with exactly the right kind of pictures." J. D. Lindquist and S. M. Andrews
+ Horn Bk 27:408 D '51 130w
Kirkus 19:577 O 1 '51 120w

"Highly recommended for all libraries." Anne Izard
+ Library J 76:1815 N 1 '51 30w

"The brief tale is very well told. The pictures by Helen Stone are ever so good." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p30 O 7 '51 130w

"Phyllis McGinley's story is one which young readers may want to re-read as soon as they finish the last page. . . Miss McGinley, abetted by Helen Stone's gaily comic brush, arranges a happy surprise for Joey and Mr. Pulaski and the friends of the horse who in another book 'lived upstairs.'" S. C. Gross
+ N Y Times p41 N 11 '51 120w

Reviewed by K. T. Kinkead
New Yorker 27:181 D 1 '51 80w

"All of us who know—and love—Joey, 'The Horse Who Lived Upstairs,' are delighted to find that this is another book about him. He is just as funny and just as lovable as he was in the first book. . . It is impossible to resist this picture book. Everyone might just as well make up his mind to buy it at once and save it for the Christmas tree."

MCGINLEY, PHYLLIS—Continued
+ Sat R of Lit 34:54 N 10 '51 230w

MCGINLEY, PHYLLIS (MRS C. L. HAYDEN). Short walk from the station; il. by Roberta Macdonald. 175p $2.75 Viking 811 51-14175

A collection of verses about life in the suburbs, many of which first appeared in the New Yorker. In an introductory chapter the author describes her complete satisfaction with the joys of Suburbia.

Booklist 48:121 D 1 '51
Bookmark 11:58 D '51 10w
Kirkus 19:625 O 15 '51 110w

"The present collection is the cream of Miss McGinley's crop. I am not convinced that the title will sell the book, but the people who read it surely will. May it prosper and extend its cheer!" David McCord
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 D 2 '51 600w

"A warm heart, an observant eye, a witty style and an open mind constitute excellent equipment for a poet, so perhaps Miss McGinley will have to be allowed to remain in the order." Harry Gilroy
+ N Y Times p6 N 18 '51 460w

"Versifier McGinley's sixth book in praise of normal things, and it is disarmingly pleasant reading."
+ Time 58:64 D 31 '51 400w

MCGOWAN, GEORGE F. Diesel-electric locomotive handbook; mechanical equipment. 262p il $4.95 Simmons-Boardman
621.436 Diesel locomotives

"'A basic reference book for enginemen, maintenance men and other railroad personnel engaged in operating and maintaining diesel-electric locomotives.'—Subtitle. Would be of interest to anyone wanting to understand the inner workings of the diesel-electric locomotive. Individual engines are described and trouble shooting information is included." Booklist

Booklist 47:305 My 1 '51
N Y New Tech Bks 36:35 My '51

MACGOWAN, KENNETH. Primer of playwriting. 210p $2.75 Random house
808.2 Drama—Technique 51-11424

A guide to the selection of material, construction of plot, characterization, and the writing of dialog, for beginning playwrights. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 47:399 Jl 15 '51
Cleveland Open Shelf p19 S '51

"An excellent addition for classroom and study groups."
+ Kirkus 19:256 My 15 '51 110w

"It is a wise and sound book. . . Highly recommended for university and middle to large public libraries." George Freedley
+ Library J 76:1228 Ag '51 40w

MCGRATH, EARL JAMES. Education, the wellspring of democracy. 139p $2.50 Univ. of Ala. press
370.973 Education—Aims and objectives. Education—U.S. 51-9867

A collection of papers and addresses by the United States commissioner of education. Contents: Education and the people; Elementary education moves ahead; The secondary school today and tomorrow; The goals of higher education; Democracy's road to freedom; Education and foreign policy.

Reviewed by Newton Edwards
Ann Am Acad 278:225 N '51 400w
Booklist 47:339 Je 1 '51
Reviewed by J. P. Jewett
El School J 52:179 N '51 420w

"Though modest-sized, this volume has significant importance. It presents the fundamental educational outlook of our recently installed U. S. Commissioner of Education and does this clearly and convincingly. The title of the book well states its inclusive outlook." W. H. Kilpatrick
+ Sat R of Lit 34:14 S 8 '51 650w
School & Society 73:205 Mr 31 '51 30w

"The book will be of value not only to students but also to civic groups. It should certainly be read by administrative officers in both elementary and secondary schools, and in higher institutions also, since the author has much of importance to say about the organization of curricula, the administration of the extracurricular life of students, the preparation of teachers, and the provision of adequate facilities."
+ U S Quarterly Bk R 7:265 S '51 260w

MCGRATH, FERGAL. Newman's university; idea and reality. 537p $7 Longmans
B or 92 Newman, John Henry, cardinal. Colleges and universities

"When Newman's plan to have English Catholic youth attend Oxford and Cambridge under proper safeguards was rejected by Manning and disapproved by Rome, his hopes turned to Ireland where Archbishop (later Cardinal) Cullen of Armagh had invited him to establish a Catholic university. Newman's unhappy part in the new venture, finally abandoned as hopeless, has been told before . . . but never so completely as by the present author who has delved into a mass of hitherto unpublished material. He has gone over the correspondence of Newman's successor, Dr. Woodlock, which was missing for half a century; the diocesan archives of Dublin, Tuam, and Kerry; various State papers; the minutes of the National Education Board; the archives of Maynooth College; and, most important of all, the archives of the Birmingham Oratory which contain an enormous collection of diaries, letters and transcripts." Cath World

Reviewed by Joseph McSorley
Cath World 173:238 Je '51 470w

"Although Father McGrath's book with its mass of detailed information will be of greatest use to the expert, there is much here of general interest for anyone concerned with university education, particularly in a Catholic college or university. . . Father McGrath's study may not contribute much to the proposal to make Newman a saint, but he has certainly increased his stature as a man." G. B. Harrison
+ Commonweal 54:244 Je 15 '51 800w

"The author has been fortunate and judicious in the discovery and use of basic source materials. . . Although this able presentation of the historical setting of Newman's university leaves little to be desired, this reader does feel that not enough attention is paid to Newman's philosophical understanding of the university problem." A. H. Buford
+ — N Y Times p15 Ag 5 '51 600w

"Father McGrath's book was written for an Oxford D.Phil. Something of its origin is betrayed by the meticulous alembication of detail and footnote; the text is burdened by tertiary references and authorities. But everything is here for a study of the intricate problems presented to Newman by his Pope, his bishops and the country in which he had to work. What perhaps escapes, even through the ultra-fine mesh of Father McGrath's scholarship, is Newman himself." Ronald Lewin
+ — Spec 185:660 My 18 '51 1100w

MCGRAW, ELOISE JARVIS. Crown fire. 254p $2.75 Coward-McCann
51-10751

A novel for older boys and girls. The hero is a French-Canadian boy whose unruly temper causes him to lose his job in an Oregon logging camp. Back in high school in the hated city he nearly loses in a boxing match, before he conquers himself and his opponent.

Booklist 47:370 Je 15 '51

Bookmark 10:208 Je '51

Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 Jl 8 '51 220w

Cleveland Open Shelf p23 N '51

"This is a present-day story with an Oregon background, rich and colorful both in characters and atmosphere, and refreshingly different in plot and setting." S. M. A.

+ Horn Bk 27:252 Jl '51 130w

Kirkus 19:153 Mr 15 '51 140w

Reviewed by Marian Herr
Library J 76:1035 Je 15 '51 90w

"This exciting story swings along with continued suspense and real narrative power. The style varies from the almost, but never really, 'slick,' to very fine and touching." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 My 13 '51 230w

"This has everything a good story needs. The details of logging are colorful and authentic—not watered down. There is action to spare, with high-climbing, boxing, and fire-fighting. Chip's own French-Canadian buoyancy and explosiveness get into the style and the story surges along." M. C. Scoggin

+ N Y Times p26 My 20 '51 180w

Reviewed by S. M. Neal
Springf'd Republican p5D Je 17 '51 180w

Wis Lib Bul 47:194 Jl '51

MACGREGOR, ELLEN. Miss Pickerell goes to Mars; il. by Paul Galdon. (Whittlesey house publication) 128p $2.25 McGraw

51-13241

Science-fiction story for young readers.

Booklist 48:109 N 15 '51

"A delightfully funny science-fiction story." Polly Goodwin

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p17 O 14 '51 140w

Reviewed by E. C. Ince
Christian Science Monitor p11 O 11 '51 70w

"Bona fide and exciting science fiction for the eight-to-twelve-year-olds." J. D. Lindquist and S. M Andrews

+ Horn Bk 27:325 S '51 60w

"A lively novelty. Fact and fancy in a new venture for this age group."

+ Kirkus 19:350 Jl 15 '51 130w

"Recommended for wide purchase." M. E. Martignoni

+ Library J 76:2019 D 1 '51 80w

"This mixture of humor and scientific fact will please nine to eleven year olds, with its many funny pictures and large type. Miss Pickerell is a happily drawn character, a most welcome intruder into the cold world of inter-stellar space." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p20 O 14 '51 80w

"I am willing to believe that the scientific facts given in this story are correct, perhaps because the fantasy, humor and characterization are so right. Paul Galdon's illustrations are as witty as the story." Marjorie Fischer

+ N Y Times p26 N 11 '51 80w

MCGREW, FENN, pseud. Murder by mail. 246p $2.50 Rinehart

51-9813

Detective story.

Bookmark 10:158 Ap '51

"The gossipy details of university life and the thumb-nail sketches of campus characters are entertaining, and the detection-by-correspondence technique manages to sustain interest, although there is a little too much rehashing of some rather obvious deductions." E. F.

+ — Canadian Forum 31:48 My '51 140w

Reviewed by Drexel Drake
Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 Je 10 '51 60w

Kirkus 19:39 Ja 15 '51 70w

"An absurdly artificial way of telling a story, full of irritating parentheses and recapitulations. In addition, the generally jolly attitude toward murder is a little hard to swallow. The form is particularly unfortunate because the plot itself is excellently worked out and of real interest."

— + N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 Je 3 '51 140w

"Numberless coy allusions to other authors indicate that Miss McGrew has read a great many mystery novels—apparently without ever noticing any of the requirements of the form." Anthony Boucher

— N Y Times p16 Jl 1 '51 90w

"Mystery and characterization are all right, and the letter device is pleasant for a change. Maybe it's carping to say that the invalid seems too clairvoyant." L. G. Offord

+ San Francisco Chronicle p22 Ap 22 '51 70w

"Verbose but intelligent." Kathleen Sproul

+ Sat R of Lit 34:31 Je 2 '51 40w

MACHIAVELLI, NICCOLO. Discourses [tr. from the Italian with an introd. and notes by Leslie J. Walker] new ed 2v 585;396p $15 Yale univ. press

320.1 Political science [51-5903]

A new translation of Machiavelli's Discourses "in which Machiavelli speaks with confidence of founding an original empirical science of human nature, based on past and present history, valid for all men at all times; scientia sub specie aeternitatis. By history he means a small segment of the history of the Roman Empire and of the Italian Republics of his time. But no such exactness is evident in his idea of human nature." (Commonweal) Tables. Indexes.

Am Pol Sci R 45:286 My '51 80w

Reviewed by W. T. Jones
Ann Am Acad 275:207 My '51 550w

"Well translated and superbly edited." W. E. Garrison

+ Christian Century 68:113 Ja 24 '51 600w

Reviewed by Serge Hughes
Commonweal 53:376 Ja 19 '51 650w

"The present translation is technically a splendid production. . . Yet, in the eyes of an historian at any rate, there is something curiously wrong in the approach. The editor is a Jesuit who finds it necessary on more than one occasion to point out that Machiavelli's precepts are not in accord with Christian Doctrine. . . Most of what [Machiavelli] writes appears to us not so much wrong as meaningless. What politician could in fact learn anything from Machiavelli's entertaining rigmarole? In truth his Discourses are the most futile speculations on politics ever penned by a man of intellectual gifts. They teach one lesson, though only by reaction: that human behaviour cannot be reduced to rational abstract rules." A. J. P. Taylor

Manchester Guardian p4 O 17 '50 420w

Reviewed by H. R. Trevor-Roper
New Statesman & Nation 41:69 Ja 20 '51 2350w

Reviewed by G. F. Whicher
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p20 Mr 18 '51 230w

"This beautiful and impressive piece of scholarship undoubtedly represents the definitive edition of Machiavelli's Discourses." Robert Bierstedt

+ Sat R of Lit 34:30 My 12 '51 230w

"Father Walker dissociates himself from Machiavelli's not very Christian attitudes, but in effect gives a more fair and less weighted account of him than many more enthusiastic

MACHIAVELLI, NICCOLO—Continued
interpreters. It is a pity that the Discourses are to remain a rare library masterpiece, because the habit of reading Machiavelli can certainly become a very great pleasure. . . Machiavelli writes as a professional who had practised his craft from first-hand enjoyment, and anyone who has enjoyed politics as a spectacle must enjoy Machiavelli." Stuart Hampshire
+ Spec 184:764 D 29 '50 1650w

"There are minor blemishes in an impressive and noble work of modern scholarship. As well as a comprehensive introduction there are analytical summaries of the contents of each book, and indices as full, well planned and helpfully subdivided as indices should be, but so seldom are. The notes answer every question that the intelligent general reader or the student could want to ask, and the appendices on Machiavelli's sources, acknowledged or unacknowledged, show Father Walker to be master of what is in itself the study of a lifetime. All in all, these two volumes are an achievement of which English scholarship can be justly proud."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p36 Ja 19 '51 3250w

MCILVAINE, MRS JANE (STEVENSON). It happens every Thursday. 231p $3 Macrae Smith

071.48 The Archive, Downington, Pa. Journalists—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc.
51-14007

Describes the experiences of the author and her hsuband when they bought an almost-defunct country newspaper, and built it up into a near-paying proposition.

Booklist 48:114 D 1 '51

Bookmark 11:58 D '51 30w

Reviewed by John Randolph
Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 N 18 '51 100w

Reviewed by W. K. Rugg
Christian Science Monitor p15 N 8 '51 350w

"The small town with its quick criticism and slow praise, the definite establishment of a place in the community, the bigness of small things and little people give this color and wide appeal."
+ Kirkus 19:428 Ag 1 '51 180w

"'It Happens Every Thursday,' which has an admiring introduction by Arthur Krock, is a gay and full story of tremendously hard work, intelligence and imagination expended on something the author obviously feels is the most worth-while project on earth. Mrs. McIlvaine's enthusiasm is contagious, and reading her book is an interesting and happy experience." Joanna Spencer
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p23 N 4 '51 600w

MACINNES, HELEN (MRS GILBERT HIGHET). Neither five nor three. 340p $3 Harcourt 51-1551

"A group of attractive, intelligent, well intentioned New Yorkers who create, edit and publish an influential popular magazine called 'Trend' suddenly wake up to the fact that their magazine has been infiltrated, quietly and with devilish cleverness, that its columns are now being used subtly to disparage and undermine faith in everything American." N Y Herald Tribune Bk R

Booklist 47:253 Mr 15 '51

Bookmark 10:157 Ap '51 40w

Reviewed by Riley Hughes
Cath World 173:154 My '51 200w

"As a work of art the novel is slightly deficient. . . Nevertheless, I would rate this high among books of its kind. It is less subtle than others with similar themes, such as the works of Arthur Koestler, but it has the feminine touch: a greater personal intimacy." Kelsey Guilfoil
+ — Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 Mr 4 '51 650w

Cleveland Open Shelf p12 My '51

Reviewed by Edmund Naughton
Commonweal 53:574 Mr 16 '51 390w

"This is the most important book Helen MacInnes has done, and in suspense equals her first success, Above Suspicion."
+ Kirkus 19:68 F 1 '51 210w

Library J 76:718 Ap 15 '51 60w

"It is an excellent job of fact finding and fact facing incorporated into a story which makes good reading from start to finish." F. H. Bullock
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 Mr 4 '51 700w

"Never quite real and never quite dull, this novel is at its best when it stays clear of the magazine office; at its worst when it deals with Communist shenanigans there. It's a far cry from Miss MacInnes' first book, 'Above Suspicion.' This time she's simply too charming to be very frightening." John Brooks
N Y Times p21 Mr 4 '51 450w

"Her book is disturbing, if you accept her thesis that our native intellectual society is largely composed of Party members and fellow-travellers, but it is lively and well written. . . The plot is profuse and complicated, but not really too hard if you put your mind on it. Altogether a thoughtful and interesting novel, though likely to make you look askance at some of your best friends."
New Yorker 27:115 Mr 3 '51 150w

"Since Miss MacInnes' writing talent serves her well in the creation of believable characters with whom a reader can easily identify himself, the book may also give you the uneasy feeling that it could happen to you. That has long been one of the marks of a successful thriller, and there's no reason why it should not also be the mark of a successful novel." L. G. Offord
+ San Francisco Chronicle p18 Mr 16 '51 700w

"It is good, exciting reading; it arouses incredulity and then resolves it into acceptance. Obviously it cannot be and does not pretend to be all about the Party, nor can it depict all the ways in which the Party works. But it shows certain of its operations; and if it may exaggerate a detail here, perhaps it understates one there, considering the diverse activities of that protean organization." Edmund Fuller
Sat R of Lit 34:29 Mr 17 '51 650w

Springf'd Republican p16A Ap 1 '51 180w

Times [London] Lit Sup p705 N 9 '51 70w

Wis Lib Bul 47:89 Ap '51

MACK, GERSTLE. Gustave Courbet. 406p 60 il $6 Knopf

B or 92 Courbet, Gustave 51-11099

A factual biography of this French artist which takes up "the stormy life and massive works of the founder of the nineteenth-century realistic school in France, who was, in some degree, the precursor of the Impressionist movement as well." (New Yorker) Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 48:143 D 15 '51

Kirkus 19:471 Ag 15 '51 240w

"Carefully annotated, the result of many months of research abroad, copiously illustrated with reproductions of paintings, photographs of painted scenes, and pictures of personalities of the mid-nineteenth years, this book deserves a place on any reference shelf."
+ Library J 77:52 Ja 1 '52 140w

"Mr. Mack is warmly critical but understands Courbet's odd, noble stubbornness, his grotesque silliness that achieves a clumsy greatness."
+ New Repub 125:20 D 10 '51 60w

"Mr. Mack tells the story in his usual exemplary style, documenting every contentious statement from careful research and step by step producing a study that is beautifully composed, compact and final. Despite the vulgarity and melodramatic posturing of his hero . . . he presents him as he must unquestionably have been: an extraordinarily honest and generous soul with inordinate vitality, strong tastes and strong friendships, and likely to explode at slight provocation." Thomas Craven

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 D 9 '51 950w

"Gerstle Mack's biography of Courbet may be one of the signs of the re-evaluations now under way. Yet it does not do much more than make the facts available to English-speaking readers. As is the rule nowadays among those who write lives of artists, Mack is interested in his subject more as the figure of an artist in a certain time than as an artist working on his art. The remarks on Courbet's painting that he conscientiously and regularly puts in show only a second-hand acquaintance with the problems of painting as such. Nor does he compensate for this by giving more than an external view of Courbet's personality, which was full of contradictions." Clement Greenberg

N Y Times p56 N 25 '51 1200w

"Courbet's career was flamboyant enough to tempt many a writer into sensationalism, but Mr. Mack prudently avoids that, and his treatment is quiet, sympathetic, and extremely well documented. It makes a lively and readable book, and the sixty halftone reproductions supplement the text very well."

+ New Yorker 27:177 D 8 '51 90w

Reviewed by John Rewald

San Francisco Chronicle p10 D 9 '51 550w

"Mr. Mack's book is a straight biography. It is that to an extreme degree. How its author could have looked at his own illustrations and not felt impelled to say more about Courbet as a painter, is rather singular. But esthetic discussion was not his purpose. He set out to write a factual account of the artist's life for the English-reading public. Perhaps that is just as well. On the few occasions when he gives qualitative judgments on works by the master his opinions seem either conventional or plodding." J. T. Soby

Sat R of Lit 34:61 D 1 '51 750w

MACKAY, ALASTAIR I. Farming and gardening in the Bible. 280p $3 Rodale

220.8 Bible. Whole—Natural history 51-9556

Commander MacKay, since his retirement from the Royal Canadian navy, has been an active farmer. In his study of the plants and animals of ancient Palestine, he "gives us chapters on the gardens of the Bible, on its herbs, its flowers, field crops, fruit and nut trees, flocks and herds, farm laws and vineyards. The frankincense and myrrh of the Wisemen and the precious ointment of Mary Magdalene's alabaster box are here. We even learn of the tares and other weeds, and of plant pests such as swarms of locusts." (Christian Science Monitor)

Reviewed by L. T. Heron

Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 Ap 8 '51 50w

"Performs a very useful function in furnishing a kind of background for the biblical narrative that adds a good deal to the sense of its reality." W. E. G.

+ Christian Century 68:1224 O 24 '51 80w

"While the volume is written primarily for the layman, it is at the same time a serious piece of research and should serve to light up many a passage for ministers, Sunday school teachers and Bible scholars." Millicent Taylor

+ Christian Science Monitor p13 F 21 '51 400w

MCKAY, DONALD COPE. United States and France. (American foreign policy lib) 334p $4 Harvard univ. press

327.73 France. France—Foreign relations—U.S. U.S.—Foreign relations—France 51-11375

This book deals with the French land and people in their sociological, economic and political aspects as background for a discussion of the international relations of France and the United States both in the past and in the present. Bibliography. Index.

"A concluding section, in the form [of] a Postscript, September 1950, is composed of observations based on a brief trip to France at the date mentioned. Aside from its intrinsic interest and importance, this concluding section is a reminder that Professor McKay's small volume, in addition to its other virtues, is exceedingly timely." R. K. Gooch

+ Am Pol Sci R 45:1221 D '51 250w

Reviewed by Paul Farmer

Ann Am Acad 278:194 N '51 600w

"In this concise volume, Professor McKay has given a remarkably broad and deep picture of the France of 1951, of the France which must be a keystone in any defense of western freedom and civilization, and of the France to which the world is eternally indebted for its vast contributions to civilized living and thinking." J. G. Harrison

+ Christian Science Monitor p9 S 26 '51 550w

Current Hist 21:94 Ag '51 80w

Kirkus 19:253 My 15 '51 200w

"Highly recommended for the international affairs shelf." Scott Adams

+ Library J 76:1027 Je 15 '51 90w

"McKay's deep knowledge and fine understanding of France, past and present, will be appreciated by his readers. As Sumner Welles states in his Introduction, this book 'will do much to help the American people better to understand France's problems realistically.'" J. S. Schapiro

+ Nation 173:96 Ag 4 '51 440w

"Professor Donald C. McKay of Harvard, manages in small compass to present an astonishing amount of information and of shrewd and penetrating judgments." Hans Kohn

+ New Repub 125:18 O 1 '51 190w

Reviewed by Geoffrey Bruun

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 Jl 22 '51 1000w

"Mr. McKay has provided an illuminating, comprehensive, balanced guide. His scholarship is the more admirable because France is an extremely difficult country for Americans to understand being in many respects other than in age and power the opposite of the United States." Harold Callender

+ N Y Times p7 Jl 15 '51 900w

"Mr. Mckay's study is a handbook in the best sense of the term, for it will bear repeated consultation on the part of all who know France or wish to know her." P. H. Beik

+ Sat R of Lit 34:9 S 29 '51 750w

Springf'd Republican p4C Ag 5 '51 110w

"Though written primarily for an American audience, this book serves admirably for an introduction to the French problem for readers in any country. That it is France seen from an American angle increases its importance and value."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p579 S 14 '51 1600w

MCKAY, GEORGE LESLIE, comp. Stevenson library. See Beinecke, E. J.

MACKAY, JOHN ALEXANDER. Christianity on the frontier. 205p $2.50 Macmillan

204 Church and social problems [A51-8986]

"Mr. Mackay is a Presbyterian and president of the Princeton Theological Seminary. His long essay, 'Protestantism', is a first-rate presentation of the positive elements in the tradition of Christianity for which he speaks. The other essays range widely, touching on the ecumenical movement, the secularism and nihilism of our time, religion in Latin America." N Y Times

"This little book was not intended for a textbook in theology, but I can't think of anything that can be done in a classroom that would be more exciting than to take a class of theological students through it, giving plenty of time for the discussion of the points with which it bristles. In fact, I think I'll do it next year." W. E. Garrison

MACKAY, J. A.—Continued
+ Christian Century 68:820 Jl 11 '51 500w

"One of the most fervently Christian voices of our time is that of Dr. John A. Mackay. He has written a book which indicates that he sees as clearly as any man today the present dangers to freedom. And he sees these dangers not so much from alien and Godless ideologies, but as inherent in the reluctance of Protestant Christendom to abandon its lulling apathies, to arrest its tendency to secularize its activities, and to cease from compromise with materialistic—even merely technological—means, as a goal of salvation." Neil Martin
+ Christian Science Monitor p14 Ja 4 '51 650w

"Militant and forthright, Mr. MacKay takes a firm stand on vital matters, expressing his point of view clearly, cogently, impressively." N. K. Burger
+ N Y Times p10 Ap 1 '51 190w

MACKAY, MRS MARGARET (MACKPRANG). Poetic parrot; il. by Kurt Wiese. 96p $2.50 Day 51-597

Percy, an elderly parrot who lived in the Central Park zoo, always spoke in rhyme. In this tale for ages six to ten Percy escaped and flew away rhyming as he flew, pursued by the keeper and the fire department. He even aided in the capture of two burglars before he returned to his cage.

Bookmark 10:185 My '51
+ Kirkus 19:59 F 1 '51 120w

"It is difficult in a short review to tell of the fun found in this book. There is nonsense which children love, rhymes they will copy, and a bit of real excitement. It is completely original. Kurt Wiese's pictures need no comment." Phyllis Fenner
+ Library J 76:528 Mr 15 '51 70w

"Children will love the silly rhymes, and laugh at a parrot's eye view of New York. Kurt Wiese's pictures are delightful." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 Ap 1 '51 80w

"Although this entertaining tale is written and illustrated with somewhat less delicacy and distinction than was 'The Flowered Donkey' by the same author and artist, young readers will probably prefer the familiar setting and hilarity of this one." H. K. Lippmann
N Y Times p36 Ap 1 '51 140w
Sat R of Lit 34:49 My 12 '51 180w

MACKAYE, PERCY. Mystery of Hamlet, king of Denmark; or, What we will; a tetralogy; in prologue to the tragic historie of Hamlet, Prince of Denmark by William Shakespeare. 675p $6.50 Bond Wheelwright
812 51-35

"Four verse dramas grouped under the title, 'The Mystery of Hamlet, King of Denmark.' The first unit of the tetralogy takes us back to a time before Prince Hamlet's birth, and the last ends with one of the opening scenes of the tragedy the world already knows. The four plays are 'The Ghost of Elsinore,' 'The Fool in Eden Garden,' 'Odin against Christus' and 'The Serpent in the Orchard.' They were performed at Pasadena in 1949, and appeared in a special $100 edition of 357 copies earlier this year. They are presented for the first time in a trade edition." N Y Times

Booklist 47:233 Mr 1 '51

"A high-sounding commentary by Erlo van Waveren, who congratulates the author on translating his life-experience into the timelessness of a myth, decides the plays are 'wondrous' and 'profound.' I would say tedious and pretentious—chiefly for two reasons. Shakespeare gives us breathing, red-blooded human beings; Mr. MacKaye gives us ideas thinly disguised as people. Shakespeare writes freshly and passionately, in a language new and his own; Mr. MacKaye writes out of literature . . . in a language that is stale and literary and that he shares with practically everybody who ever shut his Shakespeare and took his pen, odd zooks, to have at these same pentameters." J. F. Nims
— Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 D 10 '50 440w

"Incomparably the author's greatest dramatic effort, this tetralogy stirs the imagination of the reader. . . Highly recommended for all drama collections regardless of size." George Freedley
+ Library J 75:2155 D 15 '50 40w

"The verse in which this tetralogy is written is by no means a nineteenth century smooth imitation of Shakespeare's. It is in MacKaye's own idiom, at times over flavored with archaic words, at times over-addicted to such constructions as are exemplified by Yeats' famous 'bee-loud glade' or MacKaye's 'God-be-praised welcome,' and at times even obscure. But again, when the author is caught into the dramatic impact of a scene, he can be simple, direct and moving, and the many songs sung by Yorick and others have great charm." W. P. Eaton
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Ja 14 '51 750w

"The tetralogy stands high above anything Mr. Mackaye has previously done; and whatever may be its flaws, one is inclined to feel that its soaring conception, its rich texture of utterance, and its dramatic sweep and strength promise a durability that few works in this generation will achieve." F. E. Hill
+ N Y Times p4 D 31 '50 850w

"This is a book to ponder. It is not light reading; but it constitutes a major and rewarding contribution to poetic drama." H. W. Wells
+ Sat R of Lit 34:12 Ja 27 '51 750w

MCKELWAY, ST CLAIR. True tales from the annals of crime and rascality. 339p $3 Random house
364.973 Crime and criminals—U.S. 51-3106

Twelve true stories dealing with crime and criminals and their pursuers. The tales "are based on pieces that originally appeared in The New Yorker . . . between the years 1933 and 1950."

Cleveland Open Shelf p17 S '51

"McKelway is an astute guide into the fascinating alleyways that run behind our front of respectability. You may moralize about some of these tales, if you feel so inclined, but he doesn't shove you into it. If you're not entertained, however, it would be better to quit reading and take up television in earnest." P. V. Farrell
+ Commonweal 54:150 My 18 '51 130w
Kirkus 19:174 Mr 15 '51 170w

"The book may disappoint fact murder fans but it is entertaining throughout and in spots much more than entertaining." J. B. Martin
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p9 Ag 12 '51 420w

"They are characteristic McKelway, which is to say they are superb examples of craftsmanship. . . It is lean stuff, with no fatty overhang. Each story moves rapidly, remarkable for its fine essential detail, for the neat flecks of wry comment which are McKelway hallmarks." Meyer Berger
+ N Y Times p10 My 6 '51 400w

"The book is good stuff throughout as you'd know it would be. It is recommended to anyone who enjoys civilized writing from a reporter who has the talent for suggesting the general through the particular." J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p16 My 4 '51 700w

"If I were a rascal worth chronicling I would want St. Clair McKelway to do it. He writes for the mature, portrays characters in depth, and gives both society and the rapscallion its and his just due." David Dressler
+ Sat R of Lit 34:14 My 5 '51 700w

MACKEN, WALTER. Rain on the wind. 312p $3 Macmillan
51-10559

The life of the poor fishermen of the west coast of Ireland, near Galway, provides the background of this story. The hero is Mico, an honest man, giant in stature, who has a badly disfigured face, which makes him imagine he will never win the girl he loves. His story is told from the age of five until he really wins the girl.

"The book had me in its pocket up until the very end. The children tide-caught on the fairy island where Mico stands off the plague of rats; the weary home-voyage on which Gran acknowledges that he is through with the sea. . . These are told as if I had seen them taking place. It is only the rampaging climax which seems to me melodramatic, but a book as good as this should not be scolded for its last five minutes." Edward Weeks
+ Atlantic 187:78 My '51 450w

Booklist 47:286; 310 Ap 15 '51; My 1 '51

Bookmark 10:184 My '51 40w

Reviewed by Riley Hughes
Cath World 173:391 Ag '51 220w

Reviewed by Fanny Butcher
Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 Ap 29 '51 500w

"Here is an Irish novel which is, most felicitously, different from the average. . . The author was born in Galway town, so it is his own country of which he writes. With utter clarity and conviction he describes it and its people." Margaret Williamson
+ Christian Science Monitor p11 My 3 '51 900w

"Here is a very Irish novel, loaded with Irish virtues and Irish vices. . . The story telling keeps the book a good night's reading, the blarney will keep it from being remembered long." Edmund Naughton
+ — Commonweal 54:174 My 25 '51 300w

"Highly recommended." M. H. Zipprich
+ Library J 76:704 Ap 15 '51 120w

"Mr. Macken has spun a tale full of dramatic and racy incident. He creates characters as naturally and memorably as he does the savage and the kinder moods of the sea. In its vigour, its humour and poignancy, this is an admirable novel of Irish life." H. I'A. Fausset
+ Manchester Guardian p4 S 15 '50 140w

"In this admirable novel of Irish life Mr. Walter Macken has created an unforgettable picture of a poor Galway fishing village and the grim, ceaseless struggle its rugged and simple people carry on against the sea." Richard Harrity
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 Ap 29 '51 750w

"The hero of this tale is a fine portrait of the resigned but indomitable Irishry of the west. The sea is also a main character. . . Mr. Macken does not see these Claddagh folk from the outside, as picturesque survivals of an older way of life. He is more interested in the humanity they share with all men than in any external differences in dress or deportment (he plays down rather than up the local color business), and he writes of them in a style devoid of apparent literary artifice. The result is a strong, beautiful book, eloquent with the humor, pathos and gallantry of life." Horace Reynolds
+ N Y Times p20 Ap 29 '51 370w

New Yorker 27:118 Ap 28 '51 80w

Reviewed by Don Pitt
San Francisco Chronicle p16 Ag 12 '51 650w

"An Irish novel that fulfills all of one's desires, for it is passionate in a mild and tender way and romantic in the best meaning of the word. It might be called without too much exaggeration a combination of 'Wuthering Heights' and one of James Stephens's beloved novels; its people belong both to present and past." Harrison Smith
+ Sat R of Lit 34:12 Ap 28 '51 650w

"If you want to read about nice people who are really nice and not in the least 'naice,' you will enjoy Rain on the Wind." Marghanita Laski
+ Spec 184:354 S 29 '50 110w

"Rain on the Wind never quite bursts into flame; the book carries so much sentimental moisture that it douses its own glim. Yet for pages together, it smolders with a pleasant aroma of the ould sod."
Time 57:112 Ap 30 '51 300w

Times [London] Lit Sup p609 S 29 '50 250w

Wis Lib Bul 47:121 My '51

MACKENZIE, COMPTON. Monarch of the glen. 313p $3 Houghton
51-2017

Hilarious doings in the Highland glens. The fiery tempered Scotch laird discovers hikers camping on his lands and takes stern measures. The hikers resent being shut up in the castle dungeon and retaliate. An American millionaire and his young wife and marriageable sister add to the joy of the proceedings.

Booklist 47:274 Ap 1 '51

"If there exists one particular genius of British humor, it is certainly Compton Mackenzie. The much touted P. G. Wodehouse cannot hold a candle to Mackenzie; Wodehouse is all broad slapstick as against Mackenzie's subtle farce, which holds people up to good natured laughter. . . If 'The Monarch of the Glen' is not the best comedy-farce of the year, it is so close to being that that readers will never forgive themselves for missing it." August Derleth
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 Ap 8 '51 410w

Commonweal 54:126 My 11 '51 80w

"A frolicsome blether which makes for cockeyed comedy, this is based on competent craftsmanship, and produces more than one wayward chuckle."
+ Kirkus 19:75 F 1 '51 230w

"Good clean fun. Recommended." R. W. Henderson
+ Library J 76:326 F 15 '51 60w

Reviewed by Richard Match
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Ap 8 '51 650w

"Mr. Mackenzie is lavish with Celtic lore and local color though Scotch with wit—an economy which makes the adventures of the Monarch seem rather leisurely. This loose little farce may lack so basically comic a situation as the author's 'Tight Little Island,' but there is still, for every reader who loves this part of the world, a pleasant reek of the peat." Wilmott Ragsdale
+ N Y Times p5 Ap 1 '51 350w

New Yorker 27:138 Ap 14 '51 40w

Springf'd Republican p10D Ap 15 '51 210w

Wis Lib Bul 47:89 Ap '51

MACKENZIE, JOHN, and MACKENZIE, MARJORIE GORDON (CAMPBELL). Ontario in your car. 291p il $2.75 Rinehart

917.13 Ontario—Description and travel
51-3754

"A guide which indicates road routes, sites interesting to the tourist, fishing and hunting spots, and includes some of the provincial history." Library J

Reviewed by C. J. Rolo
Atlantic 188:84 Jl '51 140w

Booklist 47:361 Je 15 '51

Bookmark 10:206 Je '51 30w

"What removes this book from the guidebook category is the way in which it is written; to put it plainly, the Mackenzies write well. As they go along, they touch on the history of places they visit, as well as items of present-day interest, and in this they show fine discrimination. They know their history, and one feels that they spare no pains to get their facts straight. Also, when they have a good word to say for a hotel or other catering place, one feels that their judgment can be trusted." D. M. LeBourdais
+ Canadian Forum 31:22 Ap '51 350w

"Recommended." W. K. Harrison
+ Library J 76:967 Je 1 '51 20w

MACKENZIE, KENNETH. Dead men rising. 243p $3 Harper
51-12524

"Fictionalized treatment of one of the most thankless and dispiriting duties during wartime—the job of guarding prisoners-of-war. Based upon his experiences in an Australian POW camp, the poet-novelist affords us sensitive insights into the effects of the prison life upon guard and prisoner alike." Library J

Booklist 48:144 D 15 '51

Kirkus 19:362 Jl 15 '51 160w

"Recommended." A. J. Gaines
+ Library J 76:1566 O 1 '51 60w

"Mr. Mackenzie, displaying a novelist's basic talent, has kept the advantages of the main theme while finding a new treatment of it. . . When all this is added to the inevitable manner in which the plot moves towards its climax the result is more than a mere entertainment. It would be more still if Mr. Mackenzie had not included a lyrical and passionate love-affair with which he is less successful than he is with his other relationships." J. D. Scott
+ — New Statesman & Nation 42:568 N 17 '51 360w

"It is unfortunate that Mr. Mackenzie seems to promise a story that never gets told, thus creating in the reader an expectation which need not have been aroused, and a consequent disappointment. It is unfortunate that the focus of the story is not announced earlier and more decisively. For Mr. Mackenzie is a writer of talent, with a gift for human portraiture, a quality of unsentimental compassion, and an original feeling for words and rhythms. We look forward to his next book." Bradford Smith
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p23 S 23 '51 550w

"Mr. Mackenzie's story is told out of a personal knowledge of the facts and bears the stamp of authority. It suffers, I think, from the disbalance of a long, long build-up to a climax that takes place off-stage for the most part and is over in a trice. The book's central and dominant event certainly calls for a more extended treatment. There is also a minor romance in the life of a sergeant in camp, which adds a pathetic note of humanity to the otherwise overall grimness of the tale." N. L. R.
+ — Sat R of Lit 34:36 O 27 '51 270w

"Anyone who has passed great deserts of his youth in some standing camp far from the enemy, will delight in these passages of brilliant description. . . Every character is conceived in the round, recognizable as a next-door neighbour. . . Here is a very good book indeed, presenting with freshness and conviction the sordid world of the back-area reservist."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p609 S 28 '51 500w

Wis Lib Bul 47:216 S '51

MACKENZIE, SEAFORTH, pseud. See Mackenzie, K.

MCKEON, RICHARD PETER, and ROKKAN, STEIN, eds. Democracy in a world of tensions; a symposium prepared by UNESCO. 540p $4.50 Univ. of Chicago press
321.8 Democracy 51-9183

"This volume embodies a valuable study of democracy made under the auspices of the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization. Experts in the fields of logic, philosophy, law, history, economics, sociology and political science from nations throughout the world were called upon to express their views on the nature and operation of democracy in the modern world." Current Hist

Reviewed by J. S. Roucek
Am Soc R 16:425 Je '51 150w

"A series of elaborated definitions of democracy by thirty-three men of the most divergent nationalities, traditions, and perspectives. Inspired and sponsored by the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization, it is inevitably international. To an Anglo-Saxon reviewer, the essays by English and American contributors come nearest to common sense. To this, however, exceptions may be taken, notably in the communistic propaganda of Paul Sweezy, who concludes an energetic defense of communism as the only true democracy with the prediction that all the obstacles to truth interposed by capitalism will eventually be overcome." L. M. Sears
+ — Ann Am Acad 275:164 My '51 450w

Canadian Forum 31:162 O '51 200w

"Repetitious and disjointed as such a book inevitably must be, it is still recommended reading for those who profess to speak of democracy and its true meaning." Marshall Knappen
+ — Christian Century 68:305 Mr 7 '51 800w

Current Hist 20:172 Mr '51 50w

Foreign Affairs 29:666 Jl '51 60w

MACKEY, DAVID R. Drama on the air. 468p il $7.35; to schools $5.50 Prentice-Hall
792 Radio plays 51-6240

"A textbook for classes in radio acting and production. Gives pointers on writing radio plays as preliminary to the special problems and techniques in acting and production. Three plays and scenes from many others are included for practice material." Booklist

Booklist 48:45 O 1 '51

Reviewed by George Freedley
Library J 76:1706 O 15 '51 20w

MCKINLEY, KAREN, pseud. Letter to a child. 249p $3 Holt
51-1858

After the death of her much-loved husband and the loss of her unborn child, the young widow resorts to artificial insemination, so that she may have a child. The story is a letter to this unborn child, telling of the woman's happiness in her marriage, and the plans which had been made, which never came to fruition.

Booklist 47:166; 254 Ja 1 '51; Mr 15 '51

"Embarrassingly, explicitly emotional, this seems pretty silly."
Kirkus 18:737 D 15 '50 160w

"Here is a charming, unusual love story. Recommended." Anne Whitmore
+ Library J 76:406 Mr 1 '51 80w

"'Letter to a Child' is written with dignity, often poignancy and, perhaps inevitably in the nature of its theme, a high degree of emotion. On the intellectual side, it poses an interesting question and is itself an interesting example of some current theories of child care and development, quite at odds with those of a generation or so ago that taught the perils of the silver cord. For readers who prefer to take the story straight, it offers ample incident and emotion." Mary Ross
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p13 Ap 1 '51 470w

"Karen McKinley (a pseudonym for an established novelist) has handled her unusual material expertly. What might have been a routine love story with a bizarre aftermath is instead poignant and convincing." Louise Anderson
+ N Y Times p20 Mr 25 '51 180w

"All the psychological ramifications of this theme would seem to be so conjectural and so delicate that an extraordinarily deft touch and rare sensitivity would be required. Even then it seems a little too removed from general experience to make good entertainment. In this novel, which aside from its unusual denouement belongs definitely in the class of popular fiction, the most abject sentimentality drips from every page and certainly affronts all common sense." Pamela Taylor
— Sat R of Lit 34:35 My 26 '51 220w

MACKINTOSH, ELIZABETH (GORDON DAVIOT, JOSEPHINE TEY, pseuds). To love and be wise. 210p $2.75 Macmillan 51-2359

Detective story.

Booklist 47:254 Mr 15 '51

Bookmark 10:158 Ap '51

Kirkus 18:710 D 1 '50 60w

"Admirers of Miss Tey's The Franchise Affair and Brat Farrar are likely to be thrown by this mystery, which careens brilliantly along till the end, and then fetches up with a solution so staggeringly unlikely that credulity and mystery both collapse like a house of cards." E. F. Walbridge
— Library J 76:407 Mr 1 '51 110w

"Admirers of Brat Farrar and The Franchise Affair will know what to expect and will not be disappointed." Ralph Partridge
+ New Statesman & Nation 40:528 N 25 '50 60w

"Josephine Tey is one of the best English mystery writers who has recently appeared on the horizon. In her four first books she was experimenting to find her proper metier. In this she has gone back to the sophistication of 'Miss Pym Disposes,' her earliest novel. . . This reviewer feels that the earlier and more ironic vein of 'Miss Pym' and the 'Franchise Affair' was preferable. However, a smattering of that irony does crop up in this newest novel which poses a rather slim story, but does it pleasantly."
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p15 Ap 8 '51 230w

"Miss Tey can do much better." M. H. Oakes
— N Y Times p18 My 27 '51 140w

"Miss Tey's style and her knack for creating bizarre characters are among the best in the field, but her plot this time is not quite as original and exciting as usual."
New Yorker 27:108 Mr 24 '51 110w

"Nobody can beat Miss Tey at characterization or elegance of style; this novel's a beauty." L. G. Offord
+ San Francisco Chronicle p22 Ap 1 '51 70w

"Witty and compassionate." Kathleen Sproul
+ Sat R of Lit 34:28 My 12 '51 60w

"For something to read in bed, it could hardly be better." Marghanita Laski
+ Spec 184:442 N 3 '50 50w

"The story is well worth reading for its ingenious dénouement alone."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p678 O 27 '50 110w

MACKNUTT, M. G. Death on the cuff. 224p $2 Phoenix

Detective story.

"One of the year's most engaging innovations in mystery fiction narrative, with nostalgic 18 year old countrytown boy's homespun detail of people and minute incidents related to puzzling murder of his uncle." Drexel Drake
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p22 O 21 '51 100w

"MacKnutt attempts something out of the way in telling his story through a self-centered 18-year-old; and at moments he all but succeeds in some fairly serious exploration of an adolescent mind. However, his story-structure is so confusing and his plot so crude . . . that his experiment fails to realize its interesting possibilities." Anthony Boucher
N Y Times p32 O 14 '51 70w

"This author has a fair talent for characterization, which should be used on better material." L. G. Offord
San Francisco Chronicle p22 O 7 '51 80w

MACLAURIN, JOHN, pseud. United nations and power politics. 468p $5 Harper

341.13 United nations (organization). International relations
51-6388

"This book by a layman aims to help laymen understand world events, to define what the machinery of the United Nations was set up to accomplish, and how American and British foreign policies have failed to utilize to the full its vast potentialities for peaceful co-operation." (School & Society) Index.

Booklist 48:79 N 1 '51

"It is good to have books like Mr. MacLaurin's, even if he does sometimes lean too far backward. He stimulates thinking outside the usual ruts. Incidently, it is a bit regrettable that he should have chosen to use a pen name; his identity—whilom visiting professor of education at Teachers College and New York University, UNESCO consultant, active frequenter of U. N. halls in 1949, brother of a much more leftist British politician—is an open U. N. secret. He has done an enormous amount of research, and much hard thinking. He might as well take the credit—and the criticism." Peter Kihss
+ — Nation 173:503 D 8 '51 1200w

"[The book] is in no sense important. But it may be read as a light-weight postscript to Professor Nef's scholarly investigation. . . The book is helpful and effective as a working demonstration of U.N. processes. For the rest it is a skilful polemic against the failure of the Powers to live up to their obligations. It is marred, however, as a serious critique of foreign policies by its somewhat disingenuous selection of subject matter." John Freeman
New Statesman & Nation 42:188 Ag 18 '51 120w

School & Society 74:272 O 27 '51 40w

Wis Lib Bul 47:216 S '51

MCLAVERTY, MICHAEL. Truth in the night. 218p $3 Macmillan
51-12038

Life on an island off the shore of northern Ireland is the background of this novel. Vera Reilly, a widow originally from the mainland, hates the life on the island, and determines to leave somehow. Her second marriage to Martin Gallagher does not go smoothly because Martin hates the mainland as his wife does the island. The outcome of their battle of wills is tragedy.

"Old Mrs. Reilly, Vera's mother-in-law, is a wonderful, and thoroughly believable character; the portrait Mr. McLaverty draws of her is almost the best thing in the book. Of the beauty of natural things and the beauty in the penitent heart Mr. McLaverty has seldom written with such rightness and eloquence." Riley Hughes
+ Cath World 174:232 D '51 230w

"Never even remotely sentimental, and mercifully free from overwork on the emotions, 'Truth in the Night' reads more like an experience profoundly felt in the heart than a tale worked out in the imagination." J. M. Flynn
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 S 9 '51 190w

"Reading the quietly powerful, vivid, masterfully indirect work of Michael McLaverty makes one nostalgic for the traditional fictional literature of our language. Let us face it—we have in our country many brilliant and capable journalistic novelists, but you can count on your fingers the number who are stylists of the first rank." Joe Dever
+ Commonweal 54:579 S 21 '51 600w

"The author's leisurely style allows the reader a glimpse of some very nice people, but Vera's character, only tentatively realized, retards the pace. Frugal, humble fare."
Kirkus 19:330 Jl 1 '51 180w

"This is a simple, Irish tale, but McLaverty's usual strong and beautiful prose gives it enchantment and raises it to the dignity and majesty of great tragedy that lingers in the mind long after reading. Highly recommended." M. H. Zipprich
+ Library J 76:1336 S 1 '51 70w

"Mr. McLaverty draws the characters of Vera and Martin with perception and honesty and tells the story of their conflicting desires with effortless artistry." Richard Harrity
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 S 2 '51 280w

MCLAVERTY, MICHAEL—Continued

"McLaverty obviously dreams over scene and action until they create a mood, which creates a prose rhythm, which in turn re-creates scene and action in the reader. The result is a beautiful illumination of life." Horace Reynolds

+ N Y Times p5 Ag 26 '51 490w

New Yorker 27:132 S 15 '51 110w

"With the exception of Vera, who is not a native, Ulsterman McLaverty's islanders have a primal innocence and joy of soul entirely consonant with the bracing winds and the sun-steeped cliffs of their sea-girt northland home. Never has this most poetic of Irish story-tellers written more luminously or tenderly of a simple faith-borne folk and their racial way with the land they love.'" A. F. Wolfe

+ Sat R of Lit 34:51 S 8 '51 270w

Springf'd Republican p6D D 30 '51 60w

"Truth in the Night is quiet and grave in pace. It will never shoot to the top of the best-seller list, but it will please a lot of people who find their way to it."

+ Time 58:112 S 3 '51 550w

MACLEAN, HELENE. There's no place like Paris! How to feel at home in the city and what to expect from the French; il. by Susanne Suba. 190p $2.50 Doubleday

914.436 Paris—Social life and customs

51-10031

"Have you ever been to Paris? Do you expect to go there? Then by all means read this book. . . It will let you in on things that Baedeker never thought of. Such things, for instance, as to how to post a letter, how to take a train from the Gare St. Lazare, how to use the metro [the Parisian subway], how to drive an auto or ride a bicycle in traffic. Simple, you say? Try it. Have you ever tried to telephone a friend in Paris? This will tell you just what to do, altho the best advice is to send a letter. If you know how, you can manage your money without haunting the American Express office." Chicago Sunday Tribune

---

Bookmark 10:181 My '51 30w

"Miss MacLean has combined the commonplace, the everyday thing that you'd learn only thru experience, into an extremely witty and charming summary." William Yates

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 Ap 22 '51 250w

Cleveland Open Shelf p10 My '51

"Not de riguer, but a helpful extra."

Kirkus 19:44 Ja 15 '51 90w

Reviewed by Beach Conger

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Ag 5 '51 110w

"A lively, pretty, Parisian little book of advice that will leave you without a gaucherie to commit. Mrs. MacLean having lived in Paris writes particularly for the American who is going to do likewise." Horace Sutton

+ Sat R of Lit 34:38 Mr 31 '51 150w

"For anyone planning a trip abroad the book is an indispensable guide and handbook containing invaluable hints on packing, immunization shots, money exchange, food, entertainment and hotels. Every conceivable problem likely to confront the average tourist is discussed." M. S.

+ Springf'd Republican p5D Je 3 '51 230w

MACLEISH, ARCHIBALD. Poetry and opinion; the Pisan cantos of Ezra Pound; a dialog on the role of poetry. 52p $1.25 Univ. of Ill. press

811 Pound, Ezra Loomis—Pisan cantos. U.S. Library of Congress. Bollingen prize in poetry. Saturday review of literature

50-13307

"A Socratic dialogue of considerable wit in the great and almost forgotten tradition of literary pamphleteering. The subject of [the] tract is the attack launched about a year ago in The Saturday Review of Literature on the 1948 award of the Bollingen Prize for poetic achievement to the pro-Fascist and anti-Semitic 'Pisan Cantos' of Ezra Pound. The purpose of his discourse is to show that the real issue, whether a poem is necessarily 'bad' because its opinions are 'bad,' was evaded both by the magazine and by those Fellows in American Letters of the Library of Congress who defended their choice." N Y Times

---

Reviewed by Robert Peel

Christian Science Monitor p7 D 9 '50 800w

"While a reappraisal of the kind of poetry represented by the 'Pisan Cantos' is now in order, MacLeish is to be congratulated for having opened the debate on such a high level. His pamphlet is something which everyone interested in the survival of literature should read." Selden Rodman

+ N Y Times p24 N 5 '50 850w

MACLENNAN, HUGH. Each man's son. 244p $3 Little 51-10097

Cape Breton Island in 1913 is the scene of this novel. Dr Ainslie, altho happily married, has no child, and attempts to adopt the son of a neighbor whose husband has disappeared. The return of the husband from the States is the signal for a tragic ending.

Booklist 47:311 My 1 '51

Bookmark 10:184 My '51 40w

"MacLennan has chosen a theme of interest and power, and incidents that climb steadily to a culmination of almost melodramatic horror. But the book remains a theatre in which human figures are moved by ideas, inexorably and sometimes savagely, and though the fusion between these figures and ideas is a little more complete than in any of the author's three previous novels, it still fails to be absolute. Ultimately, Calvinism must remain the true hero of the book." Joyce Marshall

Canadian Forum 31:140 S '51 550w

Reviewed by Riley Hughes

Cath World 173:311 Jl '51 220w

"It is the author's distinction that this fine book touches the true and basic dilemmas of living instead of merely the commonplace, physical-sensory ones that are the sole stock in trade of the run of the mine novelist." Edmund Fuller

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 Ap 8 '51 400w

"The book leaves one richer in understanding —including understanding of the author's chosen text." E. L. Snodgrass

+ Christian Century 68:895 Ag 1 '51 220w

"Born and brought up in Nova Scotia, Mr. MacLennan knows what he is writing about. Countryside and people are alike familiar to him. His sensitive insight and his evocative powers are here shown fully developed. . . With this, his fourth novel, Canada's leading English-speaking writer consolidates his claim to preeminence." Murray Ballantyne

+ Commonweal 54:46 Ap 20 '51 440w

Kirkus 19:79 F 1 '51 220w

Reviewed by Harvey Swados

New Repub 125:21 Ag 20 '51 250w

"'Each Man's Son' is well written and thoughtfully conceived; if the plot seems a little synthetic, the mood is unfailingly plausible, and the characters draw life from the subtlety with which the author has observed them. He has certainly told a story which will leave Cape Breton Island permanently more than a name in the minds of readers." James Hilton

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 Ap 8 '51 750w

"The novel is rich with minor characters. . . It is interesting to note that the author, a classical scholar by training, spent his own boyhood on Cape Breton, as the son of a Gaelic doctor. 'Each Man's Son' does not have the Canadian challenge of 'Two Solitudes.' But the universality of its theme and the controlled simplicity of the telling should gain it a wider audience—a reading public that Mr. MacLennan has always deserved on the American side of the border." Thomas Allen

+ N Y Times p5 Ap 15 '51 470w

New Yorker 27:137 Ap 14 '51 60w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson
San Francisco Chronicle p16 Ap 10 '51 650w

Reviewed by Harrison Smith
Sat R of Lit 34:11 Je 9 '51 850w

"Each Man's Son has both poignancy and the special flavor of its setting. MacLennan knows his island intimately, and writes about it with affection."
+ Time 57:112 Ap 9 '51 300w
Wis Lib Bul 47:121 My '51

MACLEOD, LILY. Return to life. 128p $2 Lippincott
616.994 Cancer 51-9626

"Lily Macleod tells out of her actual experience how it feels to learn that you have cancer, to be treated for it and to have reason to hope that you will live. Like many other people, the author had heard of symptoms that might be a warning of cancer. But unfortunately, like many other people, she delayed in going to a doctor. Even so, drastic treatment apparently scotched the disease, though neither she nor her doctor can be wholly sure until more time has passed. And here, at the urging of the doctor, she tells the whole story." N Y Herald Tribune Bk R

Booklist 47:305 My 1 '51

"Her fortitude is inspiring even tho it's dramatised to the hilt. She achieves serenity finally after she is assured the cancer has been brought under control. Undoubtedly a case history of this type will appeal to many lay readers." Theodore Van Dellen
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p2 Mr 18 '51 220w

Reviewed by Marie Miller
Churchman 165:15 Jl '51 70w

"Vulnerable, communicative, this achieves its definite intention and should find its audience."
+ Kirkus 18:745 D 15 '50 150w

"'Return to Life' may not be very helpful to the people who need it most—those who obstinately ignore the fact that cancer is a deadly disease not uncommon in middle and later life and can be overcome only by early discovery and persistent treatment. For the wiser and less fearful, and for those who must face the fact of cancer itself—patients and their families, doctors and nurses—Mrs. MacLeod's personal and, on the whole, encouraging, story will be a valuable adjunct to the weapons of science." Mary Ross
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p17 Mr 11 '51 320w

"It is both an extraordinary human document and a book that may well give immeasurable help to thousands." J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p14 F 21 '51 650w

MCLUHAN, HERBERT MARSHALL. Mechanical bride; folklore of industrial man. 157p il $4.50 Vanguard
301.15 Social psychology. Advertising. Consumption (economics) 51-13309

"'The present book,' says its author, 'makes a few attempts to attack the very considerable currents and pressures set up around us today by the mechanical agencies of the press, radio, movies, and advertising.' The use of large reproductions of advertisments illuminates the text. Herbert McLuhan is angry at many things. They range from what he calls 'The Ballet Luce'—the magazines Time, Life, Fortune—to the Great Books program of the University of Chicago to Emily Post and coeducation in our schools. Other blasts are leveled at the professional mortician, Charles McCarthy, Thornton Wilder, life insurance salesmen, the New Look in masculine apparel, Momism, hosiery ads, the comicstrip and Reader's Digest." N Y Times

Kirkus 19:90 F 1 '51 120w

"The idea of the book is excellent, its purpose admirable; unfortunately the effectiveness of the work is all but destroyed by an inflated and professorial style and by the author's predilection for positively blood-curdling puns."
New Repub 125:21 N 26 '51 160w

"Righteous anger has its uses, but it is here often abused to the detriment of the author's thesis that we are wallowing in vulgarity and shabbiness of values. A passionate no-sayer, he is sometimes carried away by his anger. . . One can often share the author's indignation while believing that with some display of humor on his part he might have made his book more corrosively cleansing." D. L. Cohn
N Y Times p26 O 21 '51 600w

MACMANUS, FRANCIS. Fire in the dust. 256p $3 Harcourt
51-9167

"A story of what happened to the Goldens, a family only half Irish when they settled in a provincial Irish town. . . The author evokes sympathy and understanding for all involved in a tragedy that was bound to happen; but he also makes the reader realize why the Kilkenny people felt and acted as they did." Library J

"A beautifully written, modern novel."
+ Bookmark 10:157 Ap '51 50w

"A book which finds its stature not in literary mannerism but in direct, loving observation of a people, of their speech, and of their actions. Faithful as it is to the depiction of provincial Ireland, this book achieves its depth and power from its Catholicism of value, rather than from mere externals of custom and usage." Riley Hughes
+ Cath World 173:72 Ap '51 300w

Reviewed by J. M. Flynn
Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 F 25 '51 380w

"In Stevie Golden [the author] makes us know again, what we ought never to have forgotten, the wistfulness and the loneliness of the young. I do not speak here of the other people in the book; for I am writing only a review of an Irish novel whose importation to our own country should be, I think, received as a spiritual gift, a thing to us of great joy." Francis Downing
+ Commonweal 53:474 F 16 '51 1350w
Kirkus 19:29 Ja 15 '51 130w

"Well worth reading." M. H. Zipprich
+ Library J 76:180 F 1 '51 70w

Reviewed by H. I'A. Fausset
+ Manchester Guardian p5 Ap 6 '50 110w

Reviewed by Antonia White
New Statesman & Nation 39:461 Ap 22 '50 550w

"Miss Dreelin, given her fatal part in the story, may be found under-powered. . . One might suggest that the final scenes with Miss Dreelin go on for too long. Otherwise, the construction of 'The Fire in the Dust' is admirable. So indeed is the dialogue. . . Ultimately, however, there is a paradox: the dominating character in this novel is speechless, being the River Nore. The river, in sunny calm or in angry spate, both reflects and expresses mood and emotion; around it revolves, nay, upon it is strung, the plot." Elizabeth Bowen
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p7 F 11 '51 700w

"Mr. MacManus beautifully portrays the scene of a small provincial Irish town, the life of its schoolrooms, shops, houses and river, its coziness, its lack of privacy which makes everyone's business the concern of all. He knows the value and interest of little things. He makes us feel with his characters. Mr. MacManus is poet enough to give all this experience some universality." Horace Reynolds
+ N Y Times p4 F 11 '51 550w
New Yorker 27:108 F 17 '51 80w

"'The Fire in the Dust' glows with artistry of atmosphere and character creation and gives off the warmth of a poet's insight into the human soul. Since the author writes Irishly, no man in his prejudice-ridden populace stands wholly condemned. . . This man MacManus has

MACMANUS, FRANCIS—Continued
power and discipline. He writes, as he himself might put it, more out of the bone than the flesh." A. F. Wolfe
+ Sat R of Lit 34:23 F 17 '51 550w

"Mr. Macmanus's novel is conventional in framework, but escapes the weaknesses common to its kind. . . Mr. Macmanus succeeds brilliantly in his portrayal of the suspicions, the obtuseness, the almost frantic prudery of these small provincial folk. . . Here is a novelist who understands people and whose writing has both rhythm and character." L. A. G. Strong
+ Spec 184:550 Ap 21 '50 170w

"The tragedy of the Goldens is a simple story of prudery and scandalous gossip on one side and excessive sensibility on the other, but seen through Larry's eyes it becomes somehow remarkably touching. Mr. MacManus realizes his characters fully, from the pleasure-loving Goldens to the savagely sadistic schoolmaster priest, Brother Brutt; and the climax of his story is handled with an indirect ingenuity reminiscent of Conrad."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p273 My 5 '50 360w

Reviewed by Paul Pickrel
Yale R n s 40:574 spring '51 200w

MACMANUS, SEUMAS. Bold heroes of Hungry hill; il. by Jay Chollick. 207p $2.75 Pellegrini & Cudahy
398 Folklore, Irish 51-12254

Twelve Irish folk tales retold for grades five to seven.

Booklist 48:37 S 15 '51

"These tales are good to read, and equally good to listen to when read aloud." Shauneen O'Flynn
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p17 N 11 '51 110w

"Though most of the themes are familiar, the fresh and lively style recreates the Ireland of legend. Highly recommended for storytelling and for folklore collections." C. A. Hulton
+ Library J 76:1574 O 1 '51 50w

"The tone and point of all these are beyond the usual fairy-tale age. But it is an elegant book to read aloud to any age group, and a rare one for story-tellers. Its language might be called 'Modified Irish,' a shade more so now than in this writer's early collections. It belongs on the shelf near Stephens' 'Irish Fairy Tales,' another much more adult than 'fairy,' and Colum's 'The King of Ireland's Son' and 'The Big Tree of Bunlahy.'" L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p35 N 11 '51 150w

Reviewed by Eulalie Steinmetz
N Y Times p42 O 7 '51 110w

"They are the romantic rather than the humorous Irish folk tales, although there is a good deal of humor in them. Reading them is an almost irresistible invitation to tell them."
+ Sat R of Lit 34:58 N 10 '51 140w

MCMEEKIN, CLARK, pseud. of DOROTHY (PARK) CLARK, and ISABEL (MCLENNAN) MCMEEKIN. City of the flags. 341p $3 Appleton
50-10336

A story of Louisville in the early days of the Civil War when Kentucky was trying to remain neutral, and families were torn apart by conflicting loyalties.

Booklist 47:34; 97 S 15 '50; N 1 '50

"Stronger on regional and period than on plot or characterization, but pleasant reading."
Kirkus 18:616 O 1 '50 200w

"The story of the Purchase family, social leaders of Louisville, and Murray Andrews, a rich young widow with Abolitionist sympathies, is entertaining and uncomplicated. That is, uncomplicated for the reader. It could hardly be more complicated for the principal characters. . . Murray's adventures, amorous and otherwise, keep things moving at a brisk, if contrived tempo." Charlotte Capers
N Y Times p26 Ja 14 '51 200w

Reviewed by Ray Pierre
Sat R of Lit 34:12 Ja 20 '51 310w

"Pro-slavery and anti-slavery sympathies have seldom been more realistically stated than in 'City of the Flags' or more readably presented." S. M. Neal
+ Springf'd Republican p8D N 12 '50 180w

MCMEEKIN, MRS ISABEL (MCLENNAN). Robert E. Lee: knight of the South. 238p il $2.75 Dodd
B or 92 Lee, Robert Edward—Juvenile literature 50-10886

A biography of Robert E. Lee for older boys and girls. Written from the Southern viewpoint. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 47:225 F 15 '51

"Good reading about a distinguished and congenial family as well as a critical period of our history, with bibliography and index useful to students." S. M. A.
+ Horn Bk 27:114 Mr '51 90w

"Full-length, informative, biography which emphasizes Lee as a family man rather than a soldier. Avoiding controversial issues and sentimental dramatics, it is quite readable." A. B. McCreary
+ Library J 76:340 F 15 '51 70w

"Written by a Southerner, its view of the war is completely fair, but very touching in its picture of those in the South who thought they were right." L. S. Bechtel
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 Ja 21 '51 60w

"Entertainingly written and convincing in spite of occasional sentimentality, the book will appeal to young readers." Elizabeth Hodges
+ N Y Times p26 F 4 '51 200w

MCMULLEN, MARY. Strangle hold. 206p $2.50 Harper
51-11693

Detective story.

Booklist 48:144 D 15 '51
Kirkus 19:281 Je 1 '51 70w

"A romantic mystery novel in the true sense, with a hero who brings back shades of Rochester and Heathcliff. This is Mary McMullen's first novel, but it has a finish and a rounded quality which suggest long experience."
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p14 Ag 26 '51 170w

"Despite a weak solution and a familiar plot, Miss McMullen's debut is surprisingly successful—as a novel, if not as a detective story." Anthony Boucher
+ — N Y Times p20 Ag 26 '51 170w

"A very acceptable combination of humor, excitement, and romance."
+ New Yorker 27:72 S 1 '51 80w

Reviewed by L. G. Offord
San Francisco Chronicle p16 Ag 26 '51 80w

"The agency setting is so real it will probably condition your liking for the book: if you can take agencyites—O.K. Plot involved and tries too hard—but writing sprightly." Kathleen Sproul
+ — Sat R of Lit 34:52 S 8 '51 70w
Wis Lib Bul 47:216 S '51

MCMURRAY, J. MAX. Far bayou. 186p $2.50 Rinehart
51-13112

A tiny settlement in a Southern bayou district is the scene of this novel. There is a college professor who has come to find a quiet way of life; a successful farmer and his sweet, gentle wife; a young couple; the Catholic priest; and a tipsy Irishman and his wife. The young married woman falls for an unscrupulous seducer, and serious trouble is only prevented by the gentleness and good sense of the neighbors.

Booklist 48:65 O 15 '51

"Mr. McMurray tells his story well; his later books are certain to be worth waiting for." H. T. Kane
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p8 O 28 '51 450w
Kirkus 19:364 Jl 15 '51 130w

Reviewed by W. K. Harrison
Library J 76:1807 N 1 '51 70w

"A brief, deft and pleasant novel." Hubert Creekmore
+ N Y Times p36 O 14 '51 360w

MCNEER, MAY YONGE (MRS LYND KENDALL WARD), and WARD, LYND KENDALL. John Wesley. 95p il $2.50 Abingdon-Cokesbury

B or 92 Wesley, John—Juvenile literature
51-10148

A biography of John Wesley, the eighteenth century English preacher who founded Methodism. For ages nine to fourteen. Illustrated in color and in black and white.

Booklist 47:298 Ap 15 '51
Bookmark 10:158 Ap '51
Chicago Sunday Tribune p7 Je 17 '51 370w
Christian Century 68:767 Je 27 '51 60w
+ Horn Bk 27:191 My '51 150w

"A vivid presentation which utilizes naturally dramatic incidents and sharp, forceful speech. The illustrations in color and sketches in black and white by Lynd Ward add depth and beauty to the story."
+ Kirkus 19:186 Ap 1 '51 170w

"Highly readable story-biography. . . Lynd Ward's double-spreads in full rich colors together with thirty-six quarter-page black-and-white drawings make this a handsome volume." Virginia Haviland
+ Library J 76:782 My 1 '51 70w

"Seldom has vital religion been put so simply and vividly before children in a book whose story keeps them reading. The pictures are part of it: full-page, full color, dramatic and authentic in detail." M. L. B.
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p21 My 13 '51 280w

Reviewed by E. L. Buell
N Y Times p26 My 13 '51 70w

"Mrs. Ward tells his story simply and convincingly. Lynd Ward's pictures, in black-and-white and in color, show first the country of Wesley's childhood and then London and Oxford and the many places where he preached saying, 'All the world is my parish.' The reproduction of the black-and-white drawings is good, but the color illustrations are less satisfying."
+ — Sat R of Lit 34:52 My 12 '51 210w
U S Quarterly Bk R 7:248 S '51 70w
Wis Lib Bul 47:154 Je '51

MCNEILL, JOHN THOMAS. History of the cure of souls. 371p $5 Harper

250.9 Psychology, Pastoral. Pastoral work
51-10832

"A church historian, Dr. McNeill is primarily concerned here with the cure of souls during the course of the history of the Christian Church. His book does, however, cover a wide range of periods and cultural areas. It considers the interest of the Roman and Greek philosophers in the welfare of the soul and in men's states of mind, and the giving of spiritual direction in Hinduism, Buddhism, Confucianism, and Islamism. In Israel, Dr. McNeill finds the interest in men's souls manifested especially in wisdom literature. Of the fifteen chapters, twelve deal with Christianity." U S Quarterly Bk R

"It does not deal with the light thrown by common sense psychiatry on the causes and cure of the unhappy states in which man finds himself. But it is a definitive work in its field for it is not likely that anyone will cover the same ground as thoroughly as this author has done it." H. J. Simpson
+ Churchman 165:16 S '51 170w
Kirkus 19:270 Je 1 '51 180w

"The book presents the results of a lifetime of research, and the mature judgments of an able historian. The religious leader who uses the techniques of modern psychology and psychiatry in guidance and in pastoral counseling will find here a book which will help provide perspective, and the psychiatrist will see in it something of the background of his profession. The large bibliography and the many references throughout the book will guide the interested reader in study of this important field."
+ U S Quarterly Bk R 7:251 S '51 360w

MCNEILLIE, JOHN (IAN NIALL, pseud). The deluge. 283p $3 Duell
51-9269

"Simple story of a [Welsh] town, one street of which lies along the sluiceway of an unused dam. Heavy rains have filled the dam to capacity threatening the lives of the people who live in Water Row. With this as background, the author peers into the lives of the people pointing out their hopes, fears, strengths and weaknesses." Library J

Booklist 47:237 Mr 1 '51

"The author sketches in the lives and problems of his varied characters with a deft hand, and manages his suspense well. The final scene in the inn, just before the waters come, and of the deluge itself are an exciting climax to a smoothly worked out yarn which doesn't pretend to be anything else." Riley Hughes
+ Cath World 172:472 Mr '51 250w
Kirkus 18:704 D 1 '50 230w

"His characters are sharply drawn and stand out as real people with feelings so recognizable that one wonders how he would act under situations similar to the ones presented. Recommended for all libraries." H. L. Roth
+ Library J 75:2150 D 15 '50 100w

Reviewed by Michael Ramsbotham
New Statesman & Nation 41:226 F 24 '51 120w

"Coincidence rather overplays its role in one major denouement, but the skill with which the story is unwound gives it real and mounting suspense. Mr. Niall writes deftly and concretely and with humor, and readers are likely to enjoy and remember his unpretentious tale." Mary Ross
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 Ja 28 '51 650w

"Mr. Niall effectively uses the suspense of impending disaster to hold tangled plot lines together, in this story of a community doomed by man's own blindness and inhumanity." James Kelly
+ N Y Times p5 Ja 21 '51 220w

"This is a competently executed specimen of the minor well made British novel. There are in fact many merits in it: effective characterization, if occasionally overdone, and generally persuasive, smooth-flowing writing. Its fault is in the absolute, cut-and-dried schematization." Edmund Fuller
+ — Sat R of Lit 34:36 F 17 '51 270w
Times [London] Lit Sup p33 Ja 19 '51 120w

MACNIECE, E. H. Production forecasting, planning, and control. 305p il $5.50 Wiley

658.5 Industrial management 51-10991

"This book is an attempt to integrate the normally separated factors of production noted in the title. Further, it supplements engineering discussion by economic and social implications. A number of features contribute to its usefulness as a text or review book: Statement of principles followed by exposition; illustration; summary; problems; discussion case; an overall practical problem and solution." (Library J) Index.

MACNIECE, E. H.—Continued

"Easily readable textbook... It is distinguished by a liberal use of charts and diagrams and the inclusion of a large number of practical forms and records... The chief drawback of the book, in the reviewer's opinion, is the small number of illustrations drawn from the chemical industry." F. L. Matthews

+ — Chem & Eng N 29:4016 S 24 '51 200w

Reviewed by J. E. Cross

Library J 76:1129 Jl '51 70w

"The tables, charts, sketches, photographs, layouts, and flow charts of paperwork and materials in this book are excellent. The entire volume is profusely illustrated with material which is cogent and up-to-date." F. A. H. Hulick

+ Management R 40:592 S '51 500w

MCNULTY, JOHN. A man gets around. 180p $2.75 Little

51-9719

A series of sketches reprinted from the New Yorker. Contents: Part I, A man gets around: Back where I had never been; Where the grass, they say, is blue; Bellevue days; The jackpot; Part II, People: Overlook lady; Slightly crocked; Mrs. Carmody's store; Müller with an umlaut; Yellow-ball-in-the-side; Part III, Happenings in New York: Can't slip any drugs to sisters on Fifth avenue; Third avenue medicine; The television helps, but not very much.

"A grand book." Riley Hughes

+ Cath World 173:152 My '51 250w

Reviewed by J. M. Flynn

Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 Ap 8 '51 310w

"Maybe some of these pieces won't be so funny ten years from now. But most of the current readers of A Man Gets Around will be too busy smiling to care." Joe Dever

+ Commonweal 53:627 Mr 30 '51 900w

"Able reporting and companionable yarning."

+ Kirkus 19:42 Ja 15 '51 110w

"In all of them McNulty reveals that great gift he has for compressing a complicated story into a very short space without losing any of the essential values. He also gives additional proof in this collection that he has just about the most accurate ear of any one writing in America today. And finally, in nearly all these stories there is that rare blend of humor and compassion which distinguishes McNulty's best work and which makes 'A Man Gets Around' a book that is a joy to read." Richard Harrity

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p7 Mr 18 '51 500w

Reviewed by Wilder Hobson

N Y Times p4 Mr 18 '51 650w

"In the last analysis, Mr. McNulty's collection of 12 stories represents the work of a mature artist who has made an indelible mark on his medium, and in those tales which reveal the 'man-swarm' and something of the metropolitan ferment, he has inadvertently contributed to a regional fiction paradoxically unique to every large city." C. E. Miller

+ San Francisco Chronicle p16 Mr 26 '51 750w

Reviewed by Thomas Sugrue

Sat R of Lit 34:13 Ap 7 '51 650w

MCQUEEN, ALEXANDER. Romance in research; the life of Charles F. Burgess, student, teacher, researcher, industrialist; with a foreword by George W. Heise and a technical appendix by Oliver W. Storey. 429p il maps $6 Instruments pub.

B or 92 Burgess, Charles Frederick 51-3074

A biography of Charles F. Burgess. The account is remarkable in containing excerpts from a tremendous number of letters and conversations giving the views of friends of Dr. Burgess. Oliver W. Storey, a close associate of the subject through some 30 years, prepared a Technical Appendix, which describes the scientific and technical aspects of Dr. Burgess' work." (Chem Eng) Index.

"The book gives a complete picture of a remarkable man, distinguished as an electrochemist, a teacher, a researcher, and an industrialist. It also provides an important history of the fruitful half century of electrochemistry just past. And above all it shows an example for the younger generation to emulate of a boy who rose to the top by his own efforts, but withal retaining a warm humanity." D. H. Killeffer

+ Chem & Eng N 29:3651 S 3 '51 300w

"It is a warm, human story—perhaps because it accurately reflects the lovable qualities of its subject. Although Charlie Burgess was my senior by more than twenty years, I enjoyed his companionship on many occasions. . . Alexander McQueen, a freelance writer, has done a masterful job in recounting so many interesting phases of the Burgess career. You will find delicious bits of CF's infectious humor." S. D. Kirkpatrick

+ Chem Eng 58:324 O '51 400w

MCSPADDEN, JOSEPH WALKER. Indian heroes [new ed]. 305p $2.50 Crowell

970.2 Indians of North America—Juvenile literature 51-1038

Reprint of a book which was first published in 1928. It is a series of adventure stories about American Indians, among them Squanto, Philip, Tammany, Logan, Little Turtle, Tecumseh, Osceola, Black Hawk, Sitting Bull, Geronimo. For high school age or younger.

Booklist 47:278 Ap 1 '51

Reviewed by L. S. Bechtel

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 Je 24 '51 70w

"Most readers will enjoy the book and will understand more clearly the Indians' position in their fight to hold parts of the North American continent. Mr. McSpadden presents his material in an interesting way and with sympathy for the original Americans." R. A. B.

+ Sat R of Lit 34:50 My 12 '51 220w

MCWILLIAMS, CAREY. Brothers under the skin. rev ed 364p $3.50 Little

325.73 U.S.—Race question. Race problems. Minorities 51-1031

"Since the first publication of this book [Book Review Digest 1943] great consciousness of racial problems has developed, and this is recorded in this revised, rewritten edition." Booklist

Booklist 47:257 Mr 15 '51

"This is one of the important books on that important theme." W. E. G.

+ Christian Century 68:1193 O 17 '51 40w

Reviewed by Clyde Miller

Churchman 165:16 N 15 '51 300w

Kirkus 18:727 D 15 '50 100w

Reviewed by Will Maslow

New Repub 125:19 D 3 '51 600w

"The author has condensed much new material into the framework of the original book and has added a new chapter on Anti-Semitism as well as a discussion of racial issues as related to American expansion in the Pacific and the Caribbean." G. F. Whicher

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p29 My 13 '51 100w

"Brothers Under The Skin will have to be revised from time to time, for it is essentially a systematic reporting of racial events and trends. But it is an important job well done for it performs the dual service of providing, on the one hand, the content material in terms of which the forms of human relationships can be understood, interpreted, and validated, and, on the other hand, assures a basis from which intelligent planning and action may be projected." A. W. Rose

+ Social Forces 30:116 O '51 490w

Wis Lib Bul 47:57 Mr '51

MCWILLIAMS, CAREY. Witch hunt; the revival of heresy. 361p $3.50 Little

323.4 Liberty. Persecution. Civil rights. Communism—U.S. 50-10670

For descriptive note see Annual for 1950.

Reviewed by C. E. Warne
Ann Am Acad 275:178 My '51 650w

Cleveland Open Shelf p4 Ja '51

Foreign Affairs 30:159 O '51 30w

"Carey McWilliams's latest book has the apparent misfortune of making its appearance at a time of extreme national tension, when events in Korea afford a spurious justification for the witch-hunting at home which he exposes, interprets, and decries. This fact may impair the book's reception and diminish its immediate impact, but it cannot impair its validity or diminish its real importance." Alan Barth
+ Nation 172:41 Ja 13 '51 1250w

Reviewed by L. B. Boudin
New Repub 124:21 Ap 2 '51 400w

Reviewed by Vern Countryman
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p11 Ja 28 '51 1000w

"His book is a psychological study of the heresy hunt; and by linking up McCarthyism, the University of Washington case, and the 'Berkeley crisis' with such admitted horrors as the Salem Trials, the Alien and Sedition Acts, and the Popish Plot in England, he puts it squarely up to the reader to recognize that it will not do to deplore the sins of our forefathers. . . It is good in these days to show Americans these similarities, but it is necessary, too, to make clear what is different from those times and ours. . . The President's loyalty program may not be perfect; but we should be glad it is administered as well as it is, and that the dossiers on suspected persons are handled as scrupulously as they are by the present staff of the F. B. I." Alistair Cooke
+ — N Y Times p16 Mr 4 '51 950w

"Fine though it is, there is one major weakness in 'Witch Hunt.' It is a result of Mr. McWilliams' apparent belief that there are no standards of good and evil or right and wrong—unless some can be found by science. From that comes the implication that to be orthodox is to be wrong, that to believe in the existence of heresy—or error—is to exhibit stupidity. Not all of the readers of 'Witch Hunt' will be able to accept that attitude or the conclusions that result from that attitude." W. R. White
+ — San Francisco Chronicle p14 Ja 21 '51 600w

Reviewed by George Soll
Survey 87:298 Je '51 720w

"Mr. McWilliams' perspective on the heated question of loyalty is one which should be taken into account, his argument one which should be pondered by thoughtful individuals. This argument, unfortunately, is not as tight as he could have made it. Granted the delusions of the hunters, there are still the delusions of the witches. Mr. McWilliams certainly believes that Communists exist, yet he acknowledges, perhaps, too little danger in their presence."
+ — U S Quarterly Bk R 7:56 Mr '51 320w

Wis Lib Bul 47:19 Ja '51

MADDEN, WARD ELLIS. Religious values in education. 203p $3 Harper

377 Public schools and religion 51-6826

"The author's purpose in writing this book is to suggest how education can in its normal and natural course help in building a spiritual outlook adequate to the needs of the young people of our age." (Preface) The author is assistant professor of education in Brooklyn College, New York. Bibliography. Index.

"Will be of interest to educators as well as to religious leaders."
+ Kirkus 19:562 S 15 '51 300w

School & Society 74:192 S 22 '51 50w

Springf'd Republican p12C O 21 '51 180w

Wis Lib Bul 47:247 N '51

MADELEVA, SISTER MARY. See Wolff, M. E.

MAGARSHACK, DAVID. Stanislavsky; a life. 414p il $5 Chanticleer

B or 92 Alekseev, Konstantin Sergeevich (Constantin Stanislavski, pseud). Moscow art theatre 51-2362

"Since Stanislavsky wrote his spiritual autobiography in 'My Life in Art,' translated into English in 1924, there is nothing vital to add to what he told us. Art was not only the life but the obsession of the eminent director of the Moscow Art Theatre; nothing outside art made much impression on him. Yet he omitted from his autobiography many details of his personal life, either from modesty or indifference, and he lived another fourteen years after his autobiography was published. Mr. Magarshack has industriously and reverently filled out the life of a master of the theatre." N Y Times

---

Cleveland Open Shelf p13 Jl '51

"Highly recommended to theatre, literature and Slavonic collections." George Freedley
+ Library J 76:867 My 15 '51 40w

Reviewed by Brooks Atkinson
N Y Times p3 Ap 8 '51 900w

"This is biography of a straightforward and undecorative kind, pleasantly instructive but rather too episodic in style to make the best sort of reading. One thing that Mr. Magarshack rightly emphasises all through, while illustrating how much the Moscow Art Theatre owed alike in prestige and security to Chekhov, is Stanislavsky's continued failure, or partial failure, springing largely from his 'literary' limitations, to understand Chekhov's plays." R. D. C.
+ — Spec 185:666 My 18 '51 360w

"This full-length biography has been made possible by the recent publication in Moscow of a large collection of documents, and Mr. Magarshack is enabled through them to draw a fairly intimate picture of Stanislavsky's relations with Chekhov, Gorky and other friends, and to give new details concerning the crises by which the Moscow Art Theatre was beset."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p128 Mr 2 '51 900w

MAGARY, ALVIN EDWIN. Saints without halos. 176p $2 Abingdon-Cokesbury

221.92 Bible. N.T.—Biography 51-9136

The saints are the people of the early Christian church, and their personalities are described in modern terms. The author is pastor of a Brooklyn Presbyterian church. List of Biblical references.

Bookmark 10:155 Ap '51 40w

"From first to last this book has given this reviewer pure delight, both for the author's grasp of the vital essentials of his subject and for his felicity of statement." W. E. G.
+ Christian Century 68:113 Ja 24 '51 300w

"Dr. Magary's title gave this reviewer little hint of the liveliness, the vitality, the highly communicable friendliness and gaiety of his book. . . No one can read this vivid account of the activities of the people of Palestine and the surrounding Gentile world without a new awareness that what is called human nature has little changed." Neil Martin
+ Christian Science Monitor p15 Mr 8 '51 1100w

"There is a wealth of illustrative material and new 'angles' to old truths and familiar personalities in this book. Preachers particularly should be glad to have it."
+ Kirkus 19:50 F 1 '51 70w

MAHANNAH, FLOYD. Golden goose. 252p $2.50 Duell 51-9614

Detective story.

Kirkus 19:196 Ap 1 '51 70w

MAHANNAH, FLOYD—Continued

"A nice romantic adventure with a good mystery plot behind it. The characters are both likeable and probable."
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Jl 8 '51 120w

N Y Times p12 Je 24 '51 120w

"Debit side: Story violates a cardinal rule of mystery construction, concerning murderers, which weakens the plot. Credit side: Wadell is unusually human; he admits he's too dumb to be a good detective, he has compunctions about his sins, and he actually catches cold. Somehow this makes the yarn agreeable and almost plausible." L. G. Offord
San Francisco Chronicle p22 Je 10 '51 80w

Reviewed by Kathleen Sproul
Sat R of Lit 34:32 Jl 7 '51 50w

MAHER, MARTIN. Bringing up the brass; my 55 years at West Point, by [the author] with Nardi Reeder Campion; foreword by Dwight D. Eisenhower. 234p il $3 McKay
355.07 U.S. Military academy, West Point 51-14105

Memoirs of the lovable Irishman who for fifty years was connected with West Point in one position or another, from waiter to swimming instructor.

"Autobiography with the twinkle and flavor of the man deftly preserved."
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p18 N 25 '51 400w

"Here is a marvelous old man, bold and funny and full of sap. . . It goes without saying that anyone who ever went to West Point will rejoice in this book, but to the outsider its charm lies rather in Marty's helter-skelter glimpses of his life." Brendan Gill
+ N Y Times p28 N 4 '51 650w

MAILER, NORMAN. Barbary shore. 312p $3 Rinehart
51-10764

A novel of combined symbolism and realism dealing with opposing political ideologies of today. The hero-narrator is a young author, suffering from amnesia, who takes a room in a Brooklyn boarding house in order to write a novel. The other characters are the land-lady, a blowsy, sexy ex-vaudeville actress; her mysterious husband, once high in the Communist hierarchy; Hollingsworth, another boarder; a young woman; and the landlady's little daughter.

"In Barbary Shore the parts are more impressive than the whole. In the final analysis, it is not, I feel, a successfully realized novel." C. J. Rolo
Atlantic 187:82 Je '51 700w

"Mailer's treatment is, unfortunately, not good enough—savoring at times too confusingly of Kafka, at others too rankly of James M. Cain. Mailer's dilemma, basically, is that he is a socialist, living in a country where there is no socialist party, and apparently no demand for one. Yet the book is worth reading, in lieu of any more coherent report from the socialist camp in the U.S.A.—and Mailer deserves credit for his intentions, if not for his accomplishments, on this try." L. J. Rogers
+ — Canadian Forum 31:167 O '51 200w

Reviewed by Edmund Fuller
Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 My 27 '51 450w

"Now that he's got all this out of his system, maybe Mailer will get back to the business of writing a novel. He has too much on the ball to be exchanging his birthright for a pot of message like this." John Cogley
— Commonweal 54:220 Je 8 '51 410w

Kirkus 19:164 Mr 15 '51 210w

"Unfortunately, the characters are neither believable nor convincing and the result is a rather dull and unsatisfactory book." R. H. McDonough
— Library J 76:862 My 15 '51 80w

"Mailer has come to his radicalism a little late: he does not really know in his flesh and bones what has happened to the socialist hope in the era of Hitler and Stalin, and that is why he can refer so cavalierly to democracy and carry on like a stale pamphleteer. He is sincere and he is serious; I admire his courage in writing a book he must have known would bring him grief and attack. But I can only say that his relation to his material, like his presentation of it, is not authentic. Otherwise he would not seem so sure." Irving Howe
Nation 172:568 Je 16 '51 650w

New Repub 124:20 Je 18 '51 500w

"Norman Mailer, brilliant young author of 'The Naked and the Dead,' whose first book was one of the most exciting realistic war novels ever written, has now written a postwar novel. Dull, in execution if not conception, it wraps itself in a billowy atmosphere of dreamlike unreality." Richard Match
— + N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 My 27 '51 900w

"At best, the result is not unlike a good modern painting, a yellow mist through which the reader sees only the essential shape and line, and in which a guilt similar to that informing 'The Trial,' is felt. At worst, Mailer can be very dull and, in his insistence on the lost purity and nobility of the Communist Left, sentimental and untrue." Harry Sylvester
— + N Y Times p5 My 27 '51 1000w

"It is an odd book, a political tear-jerker, delivered to the reader with its pages already blurred by its author's own tears of self-pity." Anthony West
— New Yorker 27:106 Je 9 '51 950w

Reviewed by Lewis Vogler
San Francisco Chronicle p11 Je 3 '51 1100w

" 'The Naked and the Dead' was a solid job of realism and social criticism in one of the main traditions of American writing. Mr. Mailer's second novel is a drama of ideas that is held together by a symbolic framework of complete human frustration. It is fashionable, it is literary by current standards, it is well done, but I think it is a mistake." Maxwell Geismar
— + Sat R of Lit 34:15 My 26 '51 750w

"Norman Mailer has a bad case of moral claustrophobia. Viewed through his polarizing spectacles, all the dice are loaded, all the cards are marked, all the wheels are rigged. All the world's a cage, and all its men & women merely slayers. His first novel, The Naked and the Dead, had enough of the juice of life to disguise this sophomoric fatalism. The only juice in Barbary Shore is embalming fluid."
— Time 57:110 My 28 '51 650w

MAJOR, JAMES RUSSELL. Estates general of 1560. 146p il $2.50 Princeton univ. press
328.44 France. Etats généreaux 51-3085

"An intensive study of the 1560 meeting of the Estates General, with a view to discovering why representative government failed to develop in France." Am Pol Sci R

Am Pol Sci R 45:914 S '51 20w

"Scholarly and useful little book."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p639 O 12 '51 500w

"Dr. Major presents a succinct, documented, and well-reasoned account of the situation leading up to the summons of the Estates General, procedures for the election of deputies, the agenda, actions taken at the meetings, and results."
+ U S Quarterly Bk R 7:275 S '51 300w

MALCOLM, GEORGE ARTHUR. First Malayan republic; the story of the Philippines. 460p il $5 Christopher 991.4 Philippine Islands—Politics and government 51-3454

"Mr. Malcolm, Dean of Law and Jurist for most of the 35 years he resided in the Philippines, dedicates his book to his 'former students, builders of the Christian, Democratic, Malayan Republic of the Philippines, the first in all history.' His career and intimacy with leaders qualify him to speak with authority on the history of government, politics, law, and international relations of a country which is really little known and yet of great importance to us." Library J

Am Pol Sci R 45:917 S '51 50w

"While [the author] is obviously and naturally in love with the country, he seems to have accomplished his aim 'to be fair, not sensational.' " H. P. Linton

+ Library J 76:962 Je 1 '51 90w

"Some may question the historical accuracy of the title of the book. The present Philippine Republic is really the second republic established by the Filipinos. . . [It] is a panoramic presentation of the Philippines and the Filipino people, a kaleidoscope that aims frankly at nothing more ambitious than variety and comprehensiveness. . . It is perhaps inevitable that some trivia should creep into such an exhaustive summing-up. Some of the information included in the earlier chapters would seem to belong more properly in a tourist handbook than in an historical study. In spite of his professed sympathy for the Filipino people, Justice Malcolm gives the impression that he grudged the increased autonomy enjoyed by the Filipinos under Governor General Francis Burton Harrison." C. P. Romulo

Sat R of Lit 34:13 S 1 '51 700w

MALET, ORIEL, pseud. See Vaughan, A. R. M.

MALKUS, MRS ALIDA SIMS. Colt of destiny; a story of the California missions; il. by Manning de V. Lee. (Land of the free ser) 244p $2.50 Winston

Horses—Legends and stories 50-12675

A story of the California missions two hundred years ago. Much of the interest of the tale centers in the boy, Jaime Otero, and his capture of a wild horse, descendant of horses the Spaniards had brought into the land years before. For young readers.

Booklist 47:191 Ja 15 '51

"Full of action and movement, with good characterization, 'Colt of Destiny' scores both as authentic history and fine adventure." A. L. Shea

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p14 N 19 '50 180w

Horn Bk 27:36 Ja '51 80w

"A scholarly contribution to the series, amply informed on region and period and the relations between Spaniards and Indians, and there is a delightful prologue in which the author reconstructs the probable events which accounted for the wild feral bands. Occassionally there is a somewhat pompous tone, but this will be forgotten in the main emphasis on horses."

+ — Kirkus 18:520 S 1 '50 280w

"Important because of background material but a bit ponderous in spite of hostile Indians, the unfriendly military, and the exciting capture of horses." M. B. Snow

+ — Library J 75:1839 O 15 '50 80w

"The style is excellent, and Mr. Lee's pictures are a worthy accompaniment, with their dramatic feeling for characters, action and background." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p20 N 26 '50 170w

Reviewed by N. B. Baker

N Y Times p22 F 11 '51 150w

Sat R of Lit 34:47 F 17 '51 90w

Wis Lib Bul 46:41 D '50

MALLESON, LUCY BEATRICE (ANTHONY GILBERT, pseud). Murder comes home. 247p $2.50 Random house 51-9479

Detective story.

Bookmark 10:105 My '51

Kirkus 19:12 Ja 1 '51 70w

"Cleverly plotted and eminently readable. Mr. Crook's streak of perversity makes him one of the mystery world's more likeable detectives."

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p17 Mr 18 '51 170w

"A solid, witty, complex-yet-fast-moving murder novel." Elizabeth Bullock

+ N Y Times p25 Mr 18 '51 140w

"Good as they come."

+ Sat R of Lit 34:38 F 17 '51 50w

MALLESON, LUCY BEATRICE (ANTHONY GILBERT, pseud). Wrong body [Eng title: Nice cup of tea]. 248p $2.50 Random house 51-12106

Detective story.

Kirkus 19:335 Jl 1 '51 90w

"Mr. Crook at his sly best in what turns out to be one of his more intriguing adventures."

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p18 S 16 '51 130w

Reviewed by Anthony Boucher

N Y Times p31 S 9 '51 130w

New Yorker 27:72 S 1 '51 100w

"The story skips along at a fine pace, the characters are well done, and Crook remains one of the liveliest detectives in the English-speaking countries." L. G. Offord

+ San Francisco Chronicle p18 S 9 '51 40w

Reviewed by Sergeant Cuff

Sat R of Lit 34:42 S 22 '51 40w

MALLEY, LOUIS. Horns for the devil. 305p $3 Appleton 51-5188

"Tale of gangsterism in New York's Italian section. [The book] is mainly interested in describing the intricate system of crime, punishment, and daily etiquette that rules a powerful body known simply as the Organization, whose workings become apparent as we observe the one false step and immediate downfall of a good-looking young gambler named Severio Lebbrosa." New Yorker

Reviewed by W. M. Kunstler

Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 O 14 '51 400w

Kirkus 19:248 My 15 '51 150w

Reviewed by E. F. Walbridge

Library J 76:1221 Ag '51 80w

Reviewed by Herbert Kupferberg

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 Ag 26 '51 260w

"A slew of underworld people molest each other and themselves with uncommon skill in a series of cheap episodes and flashbacks which suggest sensationalism for its own sake. One looks in vain for the meaningful undertone found in other famous literary slums. . . For gang influence in the U. S. A. it is still more profitable to read the Kefauver Committee's report." Herbert Mitgang

N Y Times p14 Ag 26 '51 200w

New Yorker 27:84 Ag 25 '51 40w

"Told in the manner of Mérimée's 'Mateo Falcone,' or in the manner of Verga's Sicilian sketches, it could have been a story of great power and suspense. But Mr. Malley will not stick to the point. The story is told by the flashback method, and this is the last method in the world to use for a tale of suspense. . . This is unfortunate, for Mr. Malley seems to know what he is writing about. He seems to understand the Sicilians and all their faults and virtues. He writes realistically and has a sharp eye for telling details. Here and there are excellent, but, unfortunately almost always, irrelevant sketches of slum life with the disturbing smell and feel of a harsh reality." W. R. Burnett

+ — Sat R of Lit 34:19 S 1 '51 550w

MALLICK, RANDOLPH W., and GAUDREAU, ARMAND T. Plant layout; planning and practice. 391p il $7.50 Wiley

621.7 Factories 51-10169

"This book deals both with the layout of new plants and the modernization of the layout of older ones. Principles and techniques that have general applicability are emphasized, but many concrete examples illustrating a variety of industrial establishments are discussed in the text and shown in the illustrations. The book is suitable both for college students and persons already at work in industry who are concerned with problems in the field. There is a good classified bibliography." Library J

"Written by two outstanding authorities on plant layout and materials handling, this book is a comprehensive, up-to-date survey of the two interrelated problems." R. R. Hawkins

+ Library J 76:709 Ap 15 '51 80w

Management R 40:723 N '51 90w

N Y New Tech Bks 36:41 My '51

MALLOCK, WILLIAM HURRELL. New republic; or, Culture, faith, and philosophy in an English country house; ed. with notes and an introd. by J. Max Patrick. 237p $4.50 Univ. of Fla. press

50-9045

A new, annotated edition of a nineteenth century classic, a satire on some of the religious and philosophical thinking of the time. "This book, subtitled 'Culture, Faith, and Philosophy in an English Country House,' is the product of Mallock's student days at Oxford. Published in 1877, it remains the best known of all his works. It is a series of long animated conversations, with a few sermons, at a party where guests of assorted opinions contribute to a Platonic symposium on their ideal republic. . . Most of the personalities who serve as mouthpieces are faintly disguised figures of the period, among them Matthew Arnold, Thomas Huxley, Tyndall, Jowett; the most admired of all is Ruskin, who praised the faithfulness of his benign portrait, and the most detested is Pater." (Sat R of Lit)

"Professor Patrick has done a first-rate job of editing. The temptation in editing a work of this kind is to overwhelm the text with explanatory and illustrative comment: Patrick has resisted the temptation to throw all his erudition at us and has given us notes which are tactful yet adequate. This edition of The New Republic is an example of the best kind of academic resuscitation." David Daiches

+ New Repub 124:26 F 26 '51 1250w

"'The New Republic' is most definitely worth (re)reading. The intellectual and spiritual dilemmas of the 1870's are still with us today though they are no longer argued with such passion and incisiveness. Professor Patrick's editing is exemplary in all ways, and his success in finding the sources of the characters and ideas shows how clearly the book mirrors its period." Robert Hallbrand

+ Sat R of Lit 34:39 Ja 27 '51 290w

Springf'd Republican p12D D 3 '50 310w

MALONE, DUMAS. Jefferson and his time; 4v; v2, Jefferson and the rights of man. 523p il $6 Little

B or 92 Jefferson, Thomas (48-5972)

"This second volume in the author's four-volume project devoted to Jefferson and His Time begins with the European mission, which lasted through the opening months of the French Revolution, and ends with Jefferson's having served all but his final year as our first secretary of state under the new Constitution." (Publisher's note) Bibliography. Index. For first volume see Book Review Digest 1948.

Booklist 48:84 N 1 '51

Bookmark 11:82 Ja '52 40w

Reviewed by Merle Curti

Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 N 18 '51 500w

Current Hist 21:353 D '51 100w

"A tremendous piece of scholarship, which triumphs over the difficulties of a period of national insecurity and doubt."

+ Kirkus 19:545 S 15 '51 370w

"Attractively written, amply documented; can be read as a unit. Recommended for all libraries." Dorothy Sinclair

+ Library J 76:1931 N 15 '51 160w

"Mr. Malone's style—and it's a good style, too, clear, incisive and analytic—is not a call to battle but an invitation to understand the history that Jefferson made." Douglass Adair

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 N 11 '51 1100w

"On the whole, this second volume exceeds the favorable impression made by the first. Jefferson's special 'passionate and unyielding devotion to fundamental principles, with patience in the actual working out of reforms' comes through with clarity and concreteness. Washington and Adams are depicted with sympathy, and the first working days of the new republic are treated in illuminating details." Arthur Schlesinger, Jr.

+ N Y Times p7 O 14 '51 700w

Reviewed by Carolyn Stull

San Francisco Chronicle p21 O 28 '51 300w

"Professor Malone's book is, as a work of technical historical scholarship, admirable. It has the fine qualities of careful workmanship, balance, and fairness. . . In a traditional sense this is good and honest history. But intellectually 'Jefferson and the Rights of Man' leaves one with a feeling of disappointment. To begin with, there is the matter of style. . . Secondly, there is the question whether the biography of a great historic figure can be satisfactorily written with the same technique and method, and from the same viewpoint, as conventional historiography. . . As the book stands, the reader—this reader, at any rate—does not have a clear or vivid picture of the man. Finally, it may be fairly asked whether creative history, that is, history that should say something relevant, can be written without a well-defined, philosophic point of view." S. K. Padover

+ — Sat R of Lit 34:15 O 20 '51 700w

Springf'd Republican p12C N 18 '51 160w

MALRAUX, ANDRE. Psychology of art; v3, Twilight of the absolute; tr. by Stuart Gilbert. 276p 158il $12.50 Pantheon bks

701.15 Art—Psychology. Art—Philosophy (49-48802)

"The third and last volume in 'The Psychology of Art', an analysis of the artistic creation, illustrated with beautiful reproductions of works of art. In this volume the author discusses the metamorphosis of meaning and taste and the waning of the concept of 'absolute perfection' in contemporary art to an appreciation of 'whatever forms attest the human.' The reproductions, in black and white and full color, illuminate the text. . . Indexed for three vols." (Kirkus) For volumes one and two see Book Review Digest 1949, 1950.

"For anyone interested in the general state of intellect in the western world today, for anyone concerned with the inherited art of the past, and for anyone wishing to be profoundly instructed in the artistic energy which modern art represents, this book is indispensable." Paul Engle

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p11 My 27 '51 170w

Kirkus 19:142 Mr 1 '51 70w

"The record of M. Malraux's long years of heroic service to his native France suggests endless vigils during which his love and knowledge of art must have been a comfort to him, as it is now a delight to the reader." A. S. Plaut

+ Library J 76:778 My 1 '51 140w

"The illustrations are abundant and of magnificent quality. Taken merely as a collection of images, the three volumes provide a superb compendium of the history of art, far more stimulating and informative than what is provided in the usual surveys. Like Roger Fry, Malraux cuts through traditional estimates to discover the artist. One is sufficiently persuaded that the living force of art survives all catastrophes and overcomes all taboos—and all academies." S. L. Faison

+ Nation 173:214 S 15 '51 950w

Reviewed by Lincoln Kirstein

New Repub 125:18 S 10 '51 1400w

Reviewed by J. J. Sweeney

N Y Times p3 Mr 11 '51 1550w

"If one should merely look through these volumes without paying attention to the text, turning over the handsome illustrations, one would not get any idea of the originality of the work or of the unconventional way in which these illustrations are used. It is the primary perception of Malraux, on which the whole book is based, that it has now, for the first time, become possible for humanity to take account of what has been produced in the plastic arts in all ages and all over the world." Edmund Wilson

+ New Yorker 27:129 Ap 14 '51 2200w

"When one of the most brilliant novelists of our period turns his serious attention to art the result is likely to be absorbing and unexpected in any case, but it is now quite clear with the publication of this third and last volume of 'The Psychology of Art' that André Malraux has produced one of the really great works of art criticism of our time. It is, of course, a tradition in France for men of letters to write ambitiously about the plastic arts, and Malraux now takes his place beside such nineteenth-century masters as Stendhal, Baudelaire, and Fromentin." William Barrett

+ Sat R of Lit 34:36 My 5 '51 1150w

MALVERN, GLADYS. Behold your queen! decorations by Corinne Malvern. 218p $2.50 Longmans

Esther, queen of Persia—Juvenile literature 51-11613

A romantic novel written for girls, telling the story of the little Hebrew maid who became Queen Esther of the Persians.

Booklist 48:16 S 1 '51

Reviewed by F. D. Heron

Chicago Sunday Tribune p16 N 11 '51 110w

"There are to be sure, some overripe passages in which full advantage is taken of the voluptuous Mediterranean background, but this is on the whole, fine story-telling."

+ — Kirkus 19:351 Jl 15 '51 160w

"A fictionized account of Esther which teenage girls will find fascinating." F. W. Butler

+ Library J 76:1716 O 15 '51 70w

Reviewed by N. K. Burger

N Y Times p6 N 11 '51 80w

School & Society 74:160 S 8 '51 20w

"This inspiring story of love and courage, based on Bible stories, will appeal to young and old alike, for Esther was both beautiful and great." J. F. S.

+ Springf'd Republican p14C O 14 '51 50w

Wis Lib Bul 47:221 S '51

MANCHESTER, WILLIAM R. Disturber of the peace; the life of H. L. Mencken; with an introd. by Gerald W. Johnson. 336p $3.75 Harper

B or 92 Mencken, Henry Louis 51-9028

"An authorized biography by a 28-year-old ex-Marine and newspaper man of the Baltimore iconoclast and lexicographer, which would seem to prove that Mencken is still able to charm and stir up the younger generation. . . It quotes freely from Mencken's own files and letters." (Library J) Bibliographical note. Index.

"Written with an élan worthy of its subject and with irreverent wit, this is a very entertaining but far from definitive biography of Mencken."

+ — Atlantic 187:86 Mr '51 140w

Booklist 47:165; 187 Ja 1 '51; Ja 15 '51

Bookmark 10:106 F '51 40w

"Mr. Manchester makes up for the handicap of his youth by writing in a style that is bright and with the touch of levity which the subject seems to demand. . . After reading this excellently written story of Mencken's life and career, I am still no nearer to an understanding of the man than I was after reading the last one. I still see no reason to revise my opinion that Mencken wrote to shock and irritate because he attracted more notice that way than he would have with a more sober exercise of his great critical power." Kelsey Guilfoil

+ — Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 Ja 21 '51 500w

"Mencken's satire and bombast constituted weapons America sadly needs in its periods when even many of its distinguished citizens are acting on their emotions instead of their minds. The story of this disturber is good reading." James van Zandt

+ Churchman 165:18 Ap 15 '51 140w

"This biography is never dull or blindly laudatory, records an exceptional figure in exceptionally readable terms. A must for Menckenites."

+ Kirkus 18:689 N 15 '50 210w

"Rambunctious, but recommended." E. F. Walbridge

Library J 76:113 Ja 15 '51 70w

"Mr. Manchester passes quickly over the familiar, refurbishing it as he goes, adds much that is new, and has joined new and old into a generally well-proportioned narrative that affords an adequate outline of Mr. Mencken's career and portrays his charm, vigor, and humor with notable effect. He is slapdash in handling some details and in brushing in the background, but, such matters aside, the story is authentic." George Genzmer

+ — Nation 172:350 Ap 14 '51 900w

"Now it has been done. A book has been written about H. L. Mencken which is worthy of the man and of his influence on American letters." DeLancey Ferguson

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 Ja 7 '51 1150w

"The book indicates diligent research but a lack of discrimination as to the worth or worthlessness of the materials dug up. It is a soup of truth and falsehood, of liberality and bias. And, since the real 'life' of Mencken remains to be written, it is to be put down in the meantime rather as an elaborated gossip column about a man who, if forty-two years of close personal and professional association with him have counted for anything, deserves, I think, something a little more mature and a lot more credible." G. J. Nathan

N Y Times p6 Ja 14 '51 1100w

"Mr. Manchester's book is written with verve, intellectual sophistication, and a prickly wit worthy of its eminent subject. As a work of criticism, it doesn't cut very deep." R. H. Rovere

+ — New Yorker 26:86 Ja 20 '51 1250w

San Francisco Chronicle p24 F 18 '51 470w

"While valuable, the book is not without its shortcomings. The writing is so Menckenian in style that it is sometimes embarrassing; carbon-copy Menckenese is not easy to take." Charles Angoff

+ — Sat R of Lit 34:14 Ja 6 '51 1300w

"In spite of his obvious hero worship, Biographer Manchester makes an honest if superficial effort to explain Mencken's decline as a critic of manners, morals and letters. But he still leaves undone the harder job of explaining just what made Mencken tick. Like every other book on Mencken to date, Disturber of the Peace is at its best and most informative when it quotes from its subject's own machete-swinging prose."

+ — Time 57:74 Ja 8 '51 600w

"Although at times almost painfully adulatory, this biography of H. L. Mencken is easily the most satisfactory and comprehensive yet published and a witty and engaging portrait of a highly elusive if highly articulate subject."

+ — U S Quarterly Bk R 7:128 Je '51 220w

Wis Lib Bul 47:164 Je '51

MANGONE, GERARD J. Idea and practice of world government. 278p $3.75 Columbia univ. press

321.04 International cooperation 51-11232

"Dr. Mangone starts out by discussing the theory of world government, under which heading come its premises, forms, and consequences. In the second part he discusses the progress of world government, dealing in particular with the idea of progress, the relationships between world government, on the one hand, and economic and spiritual progress, on the other. In part 3 the author broaches the problems of justice, international law and world community, and in a last part he analyzes the bearing of world government upon democracy." Chicago Sunday Tribune

Reviewed by Felix Oppenheim
Am Pol Sci R 45:1184 D '51 850w

Reviewed by W. J. Ronan
Ann Am Acad 278:196 N '51 390w

Reviewed by H. J. Morgenthau
Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 Jl 8 '51 470w

"This carefully written, well-annotated book is more than an analysis of world government intended to ascertain upon what terms it would be both feasible and desirable. It is above all this a clear and insistent call to action." Godfrey Sperling
+ Christian Science Monitor p9 S 21 '51 600w

Reviewed by T. D. Mygatt
Churchman 165:16 O 15 '51 190w

"Mr. Mangone's answer to the main question he sets himself is clear, though it will not satisfy those who want either to damn or join the movement—or rather, movements—to further the cause of world government. . . At bottom, and from the point of view of the ardent advocate of world government now, Mr. Mangone is almost as discouraging as out-and-out opponents of any attempt to get much beyond the United Nations. But his heart is not wholly in accord with his head. He comes out almost where the skeptics, the hard-bitten realists come out, but not quite. Something in him urges him on toward the side of the angels —if only they will be patient angels, and not ask for too much." Crane Brinton
+ Nation 173:175 S 1 '51 650w

MANION, CLARENCE EDWARD. Key to peace; a formula for the perpetuation of real Americanism. (Heritage Foundation publication) 121p $2 Garden City bks.

917.3 U.S.—Civilization. U.S.—Politics and government 51-754

"Dean Manion [of the College of Law, Notre Dame university] surveys the American story, analyzing the economic, political, and religious nature of our revolution as contrasted with the French. He discerns the American soul and prays that all may be dedicated again to true Americanism as the true hope of lasting peace. The key, he finds, is the American principles, particular to this continent, which made this nation a lodestar among nations because the very atmosphere of the United States 'seemed charged with a kind of electricity that spake the human spirit in a manner that was beyond all earthly precedent.'" Chicago Sunday Tribune

"This book should be read by every one who loves his church and his country. It is the finest politico-spiritual study of America I know. I read it twice in one night, have returned to it many times, and expect to do so as far in the future as my road may go." Walter Trohan
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 F 4 '51 600w

"This book is fundamentally at war with American tradition as this reviewer understands the ideas and forces that have made America great and its people free—with rationalism, with liberalism, with the belief that people can put their talents and abilities to work and through individual and collective efforts establish a just and rewarding social order." R. K. Carr
N Y Times p22 Ap 1 '51 450w

"The Dean's key to peace is an extremely vague, emotionalized appeal to faith and morality. Like most single-valued approaches to complicated matters such as peace, the book overlooks completely most of the issues involved." I. B.
— San Francisco Chronicle p24 My 6 '51 220w

Reviewed by G. A. Panichas
Springf'd Republican p8D Mr 11 '51 650w

MANKIEWICZ, DON M. See how they run. 307p $3 Knopf 51-9557

A novel about horse racing. The action centers on one race at Belmont Park, the running of the race, and its aftermath.

Booklist 47:237 Mr 1 '51

"This is a first novel which achieves what it sets out to do. To describe with vivid authority one's world (here the world of the race track, of the breeding, training, and running of horses) is no small thing. The author of this book at once comes to terms with his world and transcends it." Riley Hughes
+ Cath World 173:152 My '51 200w

"This is an intriguing, brutal story, closer to fact than fiction, and worth a $3 bet of anybody's money." Richard Blakesley
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 Mr 4 '51 320w

Kirkus 19:9 Ja 1 '51 180w

"Well written and fast moving with the very elements of suspense to be found in a race. Recommended as a worthwhile novel in a hitherto neglected field." M. H. Zipprich
+ Library J 76:406 Mr 1 '51 90w

"It is a tale that marches, that holds the attention, yet seems a trifle light-bodied to stay the Derby distance demanded of a major novel. It seems, in fact, more a movie scenario than a novel, with stock film characters. . . The racing background is authentic." Red Smith
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p14 Mr 4 '51 410w

"A tightly knit, trenchant, extremely effective novel. . . The painting of backgrounds is knowledgeable and sharp, the dialogue is hard. . . It is probably small praise to say of a novel that, having started it, one can't put it down, but that is virtually the case with 'See How They Run.' It is also one of the finest first novels I have ever read." Rex Lardner
+ N Y Times p5 Mr 4 '51 500w

"A lucidly written first novel. . . The backgrounds of three of the leading people in the book are neatly sketched in, particularly that of a trainer born in Ireland, but once all three fall into the hands of one of those masterminds of the underworld, an arch-criminal who sees all, knows all, fixes all, the story might as well be Hollywood's."
+ New Yorker 27:119 Mr 10 '51 100w

San Francisco Chronicle p25 Ap 1 '51 550w

"'See How They Run' is an ideal book for the general reader. It will take him into an alien world and make him acquainted with a kind of living he has known heretofore only by hearsay and false report. Such books are in a sense a form of experience—experience gained at little cost and practically no effort." W. R. Burnett
+ Sat R of Lit 34:28 Mr 3 '51 550w

MANKIEWICZ, JOSEPH L. All about Eve; a screenplay based upon a short story by Mary Orr. 245p $2.50 Random house

792 Moving picture plays 51-9627

The text of the film All About Eve. Includes some pages of dialogue which were cut from picture before it was filmed.

"One of the most adult films yet produced in America; Oscar potentialities abounding. Recommended for both drama and cinema collections." George Freedley
+ Library J 76:520 Mr 15 '51 20w

Springf'd Republican p30A Mr 18 '51 140w

"The film's finale, a blatant contrivance which stands out all the more because 'All About Eve' is elsewhere so scornful of conventional contrivance, would have been an infinitely more appropriate area of footage for the cutting knife. And, to wind up the department of minor carping, the illustrations are disappointing. . . It cannot help but come as a surprise to that portion of the public which still stubbornly clings to reading as its preferred pastime, to discover that a screenplay can be fun to read. This is due largely to Mr. Mankiewicz's laudable habit of allowing the plot to come out of the conflicts logically engendered by the interaction of several strong, real characters."
+ — Theatre Arts 35:7 My '51 600w

MANN, ARTHUR WILLIAM. Baseball confidential. 184p $2.50 McKay
796.357 Baseball 51-12689

The inside story of the "war among Chandler, Durocher, MacPhail, and Rickey."

"Assuming you're a baseball fan, there seems no chance at all you won't find this truly 'inside,' story . . . so enthralling that you'll sit up till dawn to finish it." Robert Cromie
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 S 30 '51 110w

Kirkus 19:459 Ag 15 '51 200w

"Not recommended." R. W. Henderson
— Library J 76:1814 N 1 '51 30w

Reviewed by Herbert Mitgang
N Y Times p30 S 30 '51 180w

"Arthur Mann, a New York sportswriter, was assistant to Brooklyn President Rickey at the time and brings an intimate view and considerable new material to his story. It is a partisan view, too, but the partisanship does not seem necessarily misplaced." C. X. L.
San Francisco Chronicle p31 N 4 '51 150w

Springf'd Republican p12C N 18 '51 460w

MANN, KATHLEEN. Peasant costume in Europe. rev 1 v ed 191p il col pl $6 Macmillan
391 Costume [51-699]

"Originally published in two volumes, this has been for some time a standard reference on typical peasant costumes. In this new volume edition there are 16 full color plates and 125 pages of line drawings, supplemented by descriptive text." (San Francisco Chronicle) See Book Review Digest 1931 for volume one, Book Review Digest 1937, for volume two, of earlier edition.

Booklist 47:221 F 15 '51

"Anyone who has anything to do with designing, making or selling clothes, or indeed anyone who likes a beautiful book, should make a point of examining this Macmillan import." E. J.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p31 D 10 '50 70w

Springf'd Republican p8D N 12 '50 40w

MANN, THOMAS. Holy sinner; tr. from the German by H. T. Lowe-Porter. 336p $3.50 Knopf 51-11092

A retelling of a medieval legend "of the exceeding mercy of God and the birth of the blessed Pope Gregory."

"I hold enormous affection for The Holy Sinner. It reads swiftly, and has an absorbing quality that makes you wish there were more—not because it is unsatisfactory but rather because it is so engaging and lovable. Why it is lovable (the book, after all, is concerned with the origins and nature, and only ultimately with the transformation, of evil) constitutes a triumph of Mann's art and skills." Harvey Breit
+ Atlantic 188:77 O '51 600w

Booklist 48:32 S 15 '51

Bookmark 11:34 N '51 20w

"Out of the simple tale of a strange life Thomas Mann has written an imaginative, subtle, powerful account of miraculous events." Paul Engle
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 S 9 '51 500w

Reviewed by Robert Peel
Christian Science Monitor p13 S 13 '51 500w

Reviewed by Karl Stern
Commonweal 54:624 O 5 '51 850w

Kirkus 19:355 Jl 15 '51 260w

"This most unusual story is told with every refinement and with tender beauty; rarely are mannerisms noticeable. It should have appeal for Thomas Mann's multitude of devoted admirers in this country. The translation by H. T. Lowe-Porter is excellent. Highly recommended for mature readers in all libraries." F. E. Hirsch
+ Library J 76:1221 Ag '51 220w

Reviewed by L. A. Fiedler
Nation 173:307 O 13 '51 1300w

"Thomas Mann still pursues his craft with confounding vigor. In his seventy-sixth year he has produced a brilliant novel which by its youthful zest and audacity alone should delight the most pessimistic of gerontologists." S. E. Lind
+ New Repub 125:20 N 19 '51 550w

"In Thomas Mann's long list of remarkable books, 'The Holy Sinner' must be ranked as a technical tour de force, but it is filled with humanity, beauty and strength." Gouverneur Paulding
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p1 S 9 '51 1450w

"In this book—which I believe to be a small masterpiece—Mann has pushed the connection of evil with magic and magic with evil to the point where he demonstrates that the magic can perform the final miracle of making evil good. It is a triumph of art indistinguishable from moral sensibility which makes the miraculous, most incredible part of the story—the seventeen years on the island—seem the least absurd (in a tale which audaciously risks absurdities) and the most convincing." Stephen Spender
+ N Y Times p1 S 9 '51 1600w

"It is hard to say what Mann can have had in mind when he embarked on the task of spinning this rigmarole out to the length of a novel. Anatole France's motive for doing this sort of thing was easy to understand—an anticlerical one. . . But Mann's tone is a teasing one, as if the medieval mind were being laughed at, and this seems oddly naïve and unlike him. . . Mann has his fun making his monkish narrator into a clumsy-minded clodhopper, and whatever the spirit of the Middle Ages may or may not have been, it is, in its slow way, surprisingly good fun." Anthony West
New Yorker 27:122 O 6 '51 380w

"'The Holy Sinner' is, at one level, a tale of 'transfiguration by divine mercy.' At still another it is a brilliantly erudite spoofing of medieval superstition and the traditions of chivalry—for which the author obviously has so great an affection. Perhaps only Thomas Mann could have created a narrator like Clemens who is scholarly, humane, crotchety and devout—but above all anxious to turn out a good story." Lewis Vogler
+ San Francisco Chronicle p10 S 16 '51 700w

Reviewed by Siegfried Mandel
Sat R of Lit 34:19 S 8 '51 1250w

"Read casually, The Holy Sinner seems merely an affectionate embroidery of a pious legend. But that would not be Thomas Mann. As usual, he has glazed the legend with elegant mockery; the notions of Freud creep in to jostle the miracles of faith. Here is a delightful story, Mann seems to say: thanks to God's mercy, an Oedipus with a happy ending. And Mann is too good a pessimist not to conceal his own derisive smile."

MANN, THOMAS—Continued
+ Time 58:102 S 10 '51 550w

MANNHEIM, KARL. Freedom, power, and democratic planning [ed. by Hans Gerth, and others]. 384p $5 Oxford
301 Democracy. Social problems 50-9374
For descriptive note see Annual for 1950.

"Taken by itself, this book is a major addition to the literature of power and democratic socialism. But for those already familiar with Mannheim's earlier works, especially his important Ideology and Utopia and Man and Society in an Age of Reconstruction, this volume—the first in a series of posthumous publications—is likely to produce mixed reactions. It is brilliant and immensely erudite; it grapples with fundamental issues; it contains penetrating insights and exciting speculations. But it is also repetitive of much that went before; and it is so marred by contradictions and spurious reasoning that it will exasperate both the novice and the disciple." David Spitz
+ — Am Pol Sci R 45:224 Mr '51 1650w

"Anyone who has carefully studied Mannheim's Man and Society (which for years to come must surely remain one of the most important theoretical works on planning) will find little that is new in the present volume aside from its concern with the social role of religion, and that is already foreshadowed in his wartime book, Diagnosis of our Time. There are shifts in emphasis here and there. . . The most important changes are less in content than in aim. First, this is a more understandable, less difficult volume, written no doubt with a wider audience in mind. Second, it is frankly prescriptive." R. A. Dahl
+ Am Soc R 15:807 D '50 2300w

"This stimulating volume may be considered the political testament of the late Karl Mannheim. . . The attention and the level of analysis even to international affairs do not appear to be adequate for Mannheim's stated intentions in this book. This is a loss because, if the reviewer recalls correctly some conversations in war-time London, the late professor of sociology at the University of London had interesting insights for the field of world politics." R. H. Heindel
+ — Ann Am Acad 273:272 Ja '51 410w

"Although not easy to read, the book helps to clear up many political and economic confusions of our time."
+ Bookmark 10:188 My '51 30w

Reviewed by J. A. Irving
Canadian Forum 30:278 Mr '51 1100w

"This is not a volume to be taken lightly. It is thoughtfully written and heavily documented. In this age of varieties of collective planning it discusses the crucial points of freedom, power, and integration. Perhaps its principal weakness lies in the fact that it is all prolegomena, with the real analysis never quite coming to the fore." R. L. Hightower
+ — Crozer Q 28:66 Ja '51 1700w

Foreign Affairs 29:491 Ap '51 30w

"This book's great virtues are comprehensiveness and a sense of proportion. It is also—and I say it with pleasure—a very German book; it is serious, sincere and thorough. It is the crown of a lifetime of hard work, for its author is now unfortunately dead." John Plamenatz
+ Hibbert J 49:417 Jl '51 1100w

Reviewed by D. M. Wright
J Pol Econ 59:175 Ap '51 600w

Reviewed by Michael Polanyi
Manchester Guardian p4 Jl 3 '51 310w

Reviewed by Morton White
New Repub 124:20 Ja 22 '51 800w

"Karl Mannheim, who died in 1947 in London, left behind a large number of unpublished manuscripts. Several of his friends and former students have collaborated in the task of making these manuscripts available to the public. This book is the first of a series of projected posthumous volumes, and is one of the most incisive critiques of modern social organization to have appeared in the past decade." B. E. Brown
+ Pol Sci Q 66:463 S '51 850w

Times [London] Lit Sup p223 Ap 13 '51 700w

Reviewed by B. F. Wright
Yale R n s 40:345 winter '51 380w

MANNIN, ETHEL EDITH (MRS REGINALD REYNOLDS). At sundown, the tiger. 310p $3 Putnam 51-12480

A novel of India while it was still under British rule. The chief character is an English official whose great passion is the pursuit of tigers. Easily master in love affairs, he finally meets and marries a girl who fights against his love of killing and finally conquers.

"The author succeeds fairly well in putting life into her characters. Perhaps, however, the main charm of the story lies in her descriptions of social life among the British in India and the dawns and twilights in the jungle." J. A. Menaugh
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p2 O 21 '51 150w

Kirkus 19:359 Jl 15 '51 160w

"If you have a hearty appetite for stories of tiger hunting and the terrors of the Indian jungle, you will find ample sustenance of spine-tingling content in Ethel Mannin's novel, but if you are willing to settle for that—and many readers will—you are not eligible for the author's inner circle. While you are foraging, Miss Mannin has penetrated a far deeper jungle of human relations and of relations between man and beast—a realm of symbolism, demonic drives, sacrifice and atonement that at times adds a fearful illumination to the narrative, and at others shrouds it in fathoms of fog." Lisle Bell
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 S 9 '51 490w

"As an adventure story of the Indian Forest Service and an elucidation of how an unassuming, liberal young man could be forced under an immutable system to become a pampered sahib, 'At Sundown the Tiger' is engrossing and illuminating. Miss Mannin, whose own emotions and ideas are often expressed through her characters, is evidently convinced of the superior wisdom of the East over the West. Her admirers should find this book her best for a long time." N. M.
+ — N Y Times p37 O 14 '51 370w

MANNING, CLARENCE AUGUSTUS. Twentieth-century Ukraine. 243p $3.50 Bookman associates
947.7 Ukraine—History. Ukraine—Nationality 51-1611

"Clarence A. Manning, a member of the Slavic department of Columbia University, describes the perennial and heroic struggle of the Ukrainian people to achieve independence. In a concise historical approach, Dr. Manning points out how the Ukrainian people fell under the yoke of Communist imperialism." Springf'd Republican

"His analyses of Marxist-Leninist-Stalinist methods are incredibly shallow. He is simply misinformed on some things and naïvely biased on others. . . One must, however, be grateful for the existence of an energetic scholar like Mr. Manning, whose books make it possible for Americans to establish some contact with an important and neglected European people. And at the close of this volume he has some advice that is certainly worth being considered by the State Department's psychological warriors." C. L. Sulzberger
N Y Times p20 Ag 12 '51 600w

"Dr. Manning's treatise is scholarly, and replete with notes, but is nevertheless a polemic in behalf of a Wilsonian concept of Ukrainian self-determination. There is, of course, an unquestionable ethnic argument in favor of Ukrainian political independence, but one wonders in reading Dr. Manning's thesis whether the purely ethnic argument may not be academic this late in the Twentieth Century, or even obsolete." A. B. T.

San Francisco Chronicle p26 My 6 '51 100w

Reviewed by G. A. Panichas
Springf'd Republican p5D Mr 25 '51 350w

MANNIX, DANIEL PRATT. Step right up! [Eng title: Memoirs of a sword swallower]. 270p il $3 Harper

B or 92 Sideshows 51-2123

When the author failed to meet the requirements at Annapolis he looked around for something to do, and found it in a carnival. This records his experiences as fire eater and sword swallower, among other things. Anecdotes about his associates, from palm readers to fakirs, are added to his own story.

Booklist 47:272 Ap 1 '51

Reviewed by C. B. Burnett
Christian Science Monitor p15 Je 14 '51 270w

Cleveland Open Shelf p16 Jl '51

"This misfit from the Philadelphia Main Line's investigation of a world apart is a natural for anyone for whom the circus and the outdoor show business has an appeal."
+ Kirkus 19:45 Ja 15 '51 180w

"Not recommended but mentioned because of the popular appeal of the subject matter." M. D. Read
Library J 76:1036 Je 15 '51 60w

New Statesman & Nation 42:499 N 3 '51 300w

"'Step Right Up!' should prove an excellent textbook for those who would like to take up fire-eating and kindred chicaneries as a modus vivendi, an amusing and anecdote-strewn work for more sedate, less adventurous coves." Richard Maney
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p15 Ap 22 '51 600w

"The book is an odd mixture of undeniable fact and what sounds like romancing, all jumbled in the best carny tradition, and the result is certainly readable. Simon-pure carnival aficionados will find some disturbing inaccuracies. . . It is a tantalizing book for just this reason—there are so many things that couldn't very well be made up." W. L. Gresham
+ — N Y Times p7 Ap 8 '51 650w

"A sympathetic and funny account of life with a carnival."
+ New Yorker 27:91 Mr 31 '51 120w

Spec 187:546 O 26 '51 600w

Time 57:105 Ap 2 '51 330w

Times [London] Lit Sup p706 N 9 '51 500w

Wis Lib Bul 47:249 N '51

MANSFIELD, KATHERINE, pseud. (KATHLEEN [BEAUCHAMP] MURRY). Letters to John Middleton Murry, 1913-1922; ed. by John Middleton Murry. 701p $6.50 Knopf

B or 92 Authors—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc. 51-12071

The volume of Katherine Mansfield's letters published in 1928 (Book Review Digest 1929) did not contain all of her letters to John Middleton Murry. Those which were considered too painful and intimate for publication were omitted at that time. In this volume those letters have been included, making it a complete volume of her letters to her husband, but omitting all of his replies, and also her letters to other people.

Booklist 48:143 D 15 '51

Reviewed by Paul Engle
Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 D 9 '51 420w

Kirkus 19:471 Ag 15 '51 170w

"A special book for all large collections and for any smaller library that has not the earlier edition of the Letters." K. T. Willis
+ Library J 76:1806 N 1 '51 160w

"No collection of letters are more impulsively alive than these in their tenderness and humour, in their day-to-day picture of her immediate surroundings, of her dreams and moods, or in her comments on people and on books." H. I'A. Fausset
+ Manchester Guardian p4 S 11 '51 260w

"It is a gripping and exhausting study—fearfully copious, unflaggingly intense, and very painful indeed. Even in brighter hours, what one would give for just a little flatness and sobriety! But there is none at all; even the brighter moments are intense, or winsome. . . Indeed this new material might form a tract against sensibility. 'Feeling to the last nerve' is not a moral distinction, it is a disease; when cultivated, it becomes a sin of pride and self-love. Katherine Mansfield's savage moods, her wallowings in hate and rancour, are a true expression of it." K. John
New Statesman & Nation 42:384 O 6 '51 1300w

New Yorker 27:170 N 24 '51 200w

Reviewed by Jane Voiles
San Francisco Chronicle p18 D 2 '51 150w

"Here is something rare and real, a book that will last. For its classic offering is a sense of the tragedy and beauty of experience, of the community and continuity of life, which among the arts literature is uniquely empowered to give." Paul Dinkins
+ Sat R of Lit 34:9 O 20 '51 800w

"To read this book is in some ways a harrowing experience. These are indeed astonishing letters; to describe them as merely 'remarkable' would be sinfully tepid. The reader may be distressed by a too frequent violation of privacy, but he will at least agree that these will take their place among the great letters of our literature—and, indeed, among the great letters of the world." C. E. Vulliamy
+ Spec 187:337 S 14 '51 700w

"Doubtless there will come a searching and definitive biography of Katherine Mansfield; certainly none could have been attempted without the knowledge of the intimacy of these letters. Such a biography will reveal the obscurities of this volatile writer and shed the light of even more brilliant truth on the ambivalence of her personality and her relationship with women, and men other than Murry himself, but no biography could reveal more deeply the heart and actual personality of Katherine Mansfield than do these letters." L. S. Munn
+ Springf'd Republican p28A N 25 '51 650w

Time 58:126 N 5 '51 950w

"Indispensable as this volume will be for the critical study of Katherine Mansfield's work, any application of criticism to these letters themselves would be entirely out of place. . . All the same, the picture is incomplete. We only get one side of the correspondence, and one side of the commentary—her letters, his comment written at a later date."
Times [London] Lit Sup p598 S 21 '51 1150w

MANSON, THOMAS WALTER, and others. Primer of Christianity; 3 bks. in 1 v. $3.75 Oxford

230 Christianity

A statement of the history and nature of Christianity in three parts or volumes: The beginning of the gospel, by T. W. Manson; The furtherance of the gospel, by R. W. Moore; The truth of the gospel, by G. B. Caird. "Volume 1 deals with the Gospel of Mark, and after a 25 page introduction is simply a commentary. Part II is a brief history of the church and compares favorably with the recent Chapters in Church History prepared by our National Council, except that the references to American

MANSON, T. W.—Continued
Christianity are very slight. Part III is an introduction to the Christian faith against the background of modern science and secularism." (Churchman)

"It is truly a primer for the casual Christian who can read a book, but Roman Catholics, members of the Lutheran church, Missouri synod, and Fundamentalists should beware of its blandishments—also Anglo-Catholic Episcopalians! And none is advised to read it carelessly. Beauty and facility of phrase sometimes numb the critical sensibilities. . . The authors achieved a survey not to be challenged as oversimplification. They are themselves too competent as scholars to admit that one book can tell everything about Christianity, and certainly, no three authors, however scholarly, could be sufficiently comprehensive in their scholarship to embrace so vast a field. However, the thoughtful reader of popularized works could increase his religious literacy many fold thru spending a dozen or so hours between the book's covers, and also enjoy the experience." John Evans
Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 F 11 '51 440w

+ Christian Century 69:45 Ja 9 '52 250w

Reviewed by W. L. Caswell
Churchman 165:15 F 15 '51 70w (Review of pt 1)

"A fine, clear and simple statement. . . Written by three competent English scholars." R. C. Miller
+ Churchman 165:15 My 15 '51 100w

"The translator has been outstandingly successful in reproducing the direct, vivid, unadorned and almost breathless style of the Marcan story. His rendering will come like a fresh breeze to those who have been soothed into somnolence by the smoothness of the official versions."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p646 O 13 '50 270w (Review of pt. 1)

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p646 O 13 '50 300w (Review of pts. 2 and 3)

MANTELL, CHARLES LETNAM. Adsorption. 2d ed 634p il $9 McGraw 660.284 Adsorption. Chemical engineering 51-11038

"A vast improvement of this second edition over its predecessor is evident throughout. Many new sections have been added, including water deodorization, fractionation of hydrocarbons, and fractionation of ions with particular reference to the rare earths and fission products." (Chem & Eng N) For first edition see Book Review Digest 1945.

"Dr. Mantell should be congratulated for doing such an excellent job of bringing his previous edition up to date. If you are a chemical engineer having the slightest contact with adsorptive processes, this book is a 'must.'" F. G. Sawyer
+ Chem & Eng N 29:3744 S 10 '51 190w
Chem Eng 58:264 Ag '51 30w

Reviewed by R. R. Hawkins
Library J 76:1132 Jl '51 100w
N Y New Tech Bks 36:49 Jl '51

MANVELL, ROGER, ed. Experiment in the film. 285p il $3 Macmillan 791.4 Moving pictures

"A symposium on the modern film, chiefly in Europe, with contributions from authorities in the countries discussed. Soviet and German films are given most space." Cleveland Open Shelf

Cleveland Open Shelf p3 Ja '51

"Of real scholarly value. Recommended for all cinema and theatre collections." George Freedley
+ Library J 76:867 My 15 '51 20w

"Any history of the cinema is, of course, a history of experiment. This volume, therefore, has no claim to novelty as to its subject. Its novelty lies, rather, in the good sense, the catholicity, and, be it added, the occasional pugnacity of its approach." J. H. M.
+ Manchester Guardian p3 Je 10 '49 210w
Sat R of Lit 34:42 Je 9 '51 30w

"Readers of this book may well find, though they are film-goers merely and not film-makers, that it infects with some of its feeling of discovery their own jaded jaunts to the local flicks." Cyril Ray
+ Spec 183:154 Jl 29 '49 390w

MARCEL, GABRIEL. Mystery of being; v 1, Reflection and mystery [tr. by G. S. Fraser]. 219p $3.75 Regnery
111 Ontology

"The first of two series of Gifford Lectures delivered at Aberdeen University in 1949 and 1950 by a Christian philosopher of world reputation. He calls this series 'Reflection and Mystery.' Marcel believes that ours is a 'broken world';—a world at war with itself—'togetherness' seems to be losing its meaning more and more. He shows how in such a world the urgent need for transcendence is born, and discusses truth, primary and secondary reflection, feeling identity, and presence in certain definite relationships." Library J

"M. Marcel is very competent and, despite the toughness of his subject matter, illumines this with the proverbial Gallic clarity of mind. His distinction between problem and mystery, the former projecting the mind outside, the later turning it within, is well made and promises to be very fruitful. After the despair and pessimism of Sartre, this approach is exceedingly welcome." F. A. Levy
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p14 Ap 1 '51 90w
J Philos 48:762 N 22 '51 300w

"Indispensable for theological and other academic libraries and of some value for large public libraries." O. G. Lawson
+ Library J 76:405 Mr 1 '51 130w

"The book is, I submit, a contribution to the problem of philosophy to-day of the first importance." D. M. Mackinnon
+ New Statesman & Nation 41:42 Ja 13 '51 800w

"It is a subtle inquiry, presented not as an architectonic system but as a series of connected reflections on the identity and nature of the self and the ways in which the self can transcend the sphere of the problematic." Robert Bierstedt
+ Sat R of Lit 34:16 Mr 31 '51 250w
Times [London] Lit Sup p73 F 2 '51 600w

MARCH, ARTHUR. Quantum mechanics of particles and wave fields. 292p $5.50 Wiley
531 Quantum theory 51-4231

Contents: Wave mechanics of a single particle; Wave mechanics of stationary states; Wave mechanics in matrix form; Perturbation theory; Systems of many particles; Relativistic wave equations; Quantization of wave fields; Quantum eletctrodynamics; Wave fields and nuclear matter; Introduction of a fundamental length. Index.

"The advanced student in quantum mechanics will find the treatise of immense help." Saul Dushman
+ Chem & Eng N 29:4112 O 1 '51 140w
N Y New Tech Bks 36:60 Jl '51

MARCHANT, SIR JAMES, ed. Coming-of-age of Christianity [by] John Foster [and others]. 190p $2.50 Regnery
270 Church history [51-4689]

"Book of essays in which the attempt is made to sum up the Christian story. The writers, and they are a distinguished group, invite the reader to look beyond his immediate circumstances, which may be depressing, to the astonishing story of what Christianity has hitherto achieved, and in the light of that to consider not only his own circumstances but the future." Times [London] Lit Sup

"It is not quite clear why this book of essays was gotten out. In one sense Christianity came of age at Pentecost; in another sense it will come of age on Judgment Day. Also, the particular orientation of the authors and the themes selected seem somewhat fortuitous. . . Yet each piece is worth while in itself. And in spite of reservations here and there, one is left with a total impression which will be quite heartening to those concerned for the cause of the church in the world." J. A. Pike
+ — N Y Times p14 O 14 '51 180w

"It is altogether a most thought-provoking book which deserves wide attention."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p5 Ap 27 '51 800w

MARCHER, MARION W. Bob's summer sleigh-ride; il. by Steven Medvey. [48]p $1.75; lib ed $2.25 Aladdin
51-12371

"Captain Dave, Bob's best friend among the fishermen, took him along to get the whale which Bob himself had sighted. The whale gave them the 'ride' so famous among whalers. Bob got into the papers, shared the whale money, and got some whale teeth." N Y Herald Tribune Bk R

Booklist 48:109 N 15 '51
Bookmark 11:35 N '51
Kirkus 19:348 Jl 15 '51 130w

"Recommended." E. T. Dobbins
+ Library J 76:1816 N 1 '51 80w

"This story sounds almost true, and its details will please the eight-year-olds who can read it themselves." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p32 N 11 '51 130w

"Simply told, the story is meaty enough to match happily the avid interests and slender reading abilities of second-graders." Miriam James
+ N Y Times p52 N 25 '51 100w

MAREK, GEORGE RICHARD. Puccini. 412p pl $5 Simon & Schuster
B or 92 Puccini, Giacomo 51-10114

A biography of Giacomo Puccini, composer of La Boheme, Tosca, Madame Butterfly, and other operas. "The book owes some of its interest to its portrait of Elvira Gemignani, the composer's mistress and later his wife. She was a tortured soul whose doubts about Puccini's fidelity [doubts which were not without foundation] drove her to an action of the greatest gravity and almost ruined her own life and that of the composer." (Chicago Sunday Tribune) Index.

Booklist 47:327 My 15 '51

"It is a tribute to George R. Marek that he has succeeded in turning out an interesting biografy of the composer. Puccini's dealings with his publisher and librettists, the anguish and the ecstasy which he experienced in the actual work of creation, the dizzying triumphs and the crashing failures which punctuated his career—these are skillfully woven into the narrative of his personal life. . . The biografer has done much painstaking research and he utilizes letters and other material not previously made public." Edward Barry
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 Ap 15 '51 290w

"This is a literate, well documented and beautifully written biography, by the critic who writes program notes for the Met. . . A fine contribution to music shelves."
+ Kirkus 19:21 Ja 1 '51 230w

"Highly readable." C. K. Miller
+ Library J 76:1029 Je 15 '51 80w

"This exceedingly readable volume is the result of the first thorough, not to say comprehensive, piece of research on Puccini's life which has so far been undertaken. Mr. Marek has had access to a large quantity of Pucciniana hitherto unpublished, and he brings out many incidents of the composer's career which have been glossed over or ignored by previous biographers. . . Mr. Marek's 'Discussion of Puccini's Major Scores' amounts, at times, to little more than an extended, chatty table of contents for each opera." Alfred Frankenstein
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 My 6 '51 850w

Reviewed by Moses Smith
N Y Times p17 My 13 '51 360w

"Puccini was not a great man; few would call him a great composer. He will not serve as a model for anything but worldly success and even that eluded him during the last twenty years of his life . . . and yet—both his biography and his music have power to fascinate. . . The book is to be admired for its generosity of spirit, its congenial warmheartedness, its lack of pomposity and pretentiousness. Unhappily but certainly these virtues will not make up for poor planning and unclear writing." Herbert Weinstock
Sat R of Lit 34:23 Mr 31 '51 750w

MAREK, KURT W. (C. W. CERAM, pseud). Gods, graves, and scholars; the story of archaeology; tr. from the German by E. B. Garside. 426p il maps $5.75 Knopf
913 Archaeology—History 51-11081

A popular story of the great archaeological discoveries of the last two centuries, and of the men who made the discoveries. Pompeii and Troy, Crete, Egypt, Assyria, Babylonia, Sumeria, and Yucatan are the scenes of the discoveries. Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by Edward Weeks
Atlantic 189:86 Ja '52 300w
Booklist 48:77; 99 N 1 '51; N 15 '51
Bookmark 11:56 D '51 10w

Reviewed by C. F. Kelley
Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 N 18 '51 350w

Reviewed by R. E. Donlon
Christian Science Monitor p14 N 29 '51 650w

"Ceram does a wonderful job of both narration and interpretation. The book should do for archaeology what The Story of Philosophy did to popularize that far less dramatic subject."
+ Kirkus 19:523 S 1 '51 240w

"Definitely the best popular history of archeology. . . Excellent for adult education. Warmly recommended for school, college, and public libraries." A. D. Osborn
+ Library J 76:1800 N 1 '51 120w

"An admirable book for the layman, written with zest and packed with information."
+ Nation 173:430 N 17 '51 40w

"This reviewer not only enjoyed it from start to finish but recommends it warmly to all laymen who want an up-to-date account of what archaeology is about. . . Here and there a few inaccuracies crop up." J. H. Breasted
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 N 18 '51 900w

Reviewed by V. W. von Hagen
N Y Times p7 N 25 '51 850w

"Mr. Ceram acknowledges that his purpose is to illuminate a subject usually reserved to scholars, and cites as his model Paul de Kruif. Whatever the master might have done, the disciple has unfortunately produced a book that, for all the conspicuous richness of its material, is by turns cozy and popeyed, and is nearly always skimpy."
— + New Yorker 27:79 D 22 '51 130w

"In his foreword the author says that he has undertaken the dramatic and human side of archaeology rather than its technical side. If he errs in the technical side, the present reviewer is not sufficiently versed to know it. On the dramatic and human side he has told an exciting story, and one that cannot be too widely told among our Western peoples." R. B.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p12 N 25 '51 400w

MAREK, K. W.—Continued

"A new and popular survey of archeological work. . . Its author has selected vivid episodes and related them in terms of colorful personalities. His stories are interesting and instructive, sometimes downright exciting, revealing a genuine respect for scholarship." C. A. Robinson

+ Sat R of Lit 34:11 N 10 '51 1150w

Time 58:120 N 12 '51 750w

MARIA DEL REY, SISTER. See Del Rey, M.

MARIANA, pseud. See Foster, M. C.

MARITAIN, JACQUES. Man and the state. 219p $3.50 Univ. of Chicago press

320.15 State, The. Democracy. Church and social problems 51-555

"A book that grew out of a series of lectures the author delivered at the University of Chicago. In this work, he examines the idea of a democratic charter by which free men might live in peace, and arrives, finally, at a statement of his own political philosophy and his concept of a world state. Before getting around to these matters, though, Professor Maritain redefines such terms as 'the people,' 'the nation,' 'the state,' and 'the body politic'—all of which, he says, are variously understood and about which there must be an agreement of meaning before any discussion of them can bear fruit." New Yorker

"Once again Professor Maritain has applied his philosophy of natural law to society and politics. Once again he is lucid, persuasive, and systematic. Although the theoretical background of his argument yields consequences that he does not explore, a background and consequences unacceptable to many democrats, his explicit conclusions are both a defense of democracy and a basis for cooperation against totalitarianism." R. G. Ross

+ Am Pol Sci R 45:899 S '51 700w

"On the face of it, this book appears to be what its title advertises, a serious work on political philosophy. It is serious without a doubt. Philosophical it is if philosophy can exist without a free mind, and it is political if politics be a branch of theology. To one, however, who is inclined to turn the latter matter around and to hold that theology is but 'transcendentalized politics,' the book is all askew." T. V. Smith

— Ann Am Acad 275:207 My '51 370w

"It is a rich book. From the center of metaphysics, of the Christian idea of the human person and of the Natural Law, the thought radiates into the contemporary world of politics. It joins a profound grasp of present data and of contemporary problems with a philosophical effort to make abiding human values the norms by which man everywhere ought to perfect himself and to save his soul." H. A. Rommen

+ Commonweal 54:239 Je 15 '51 2850w

Reviewed by Martin White

New Repub 124:18 Ap 9 '51 1200w

"Here is no easy writing, yet it is as easy as any one now alive could make it and—a few minor stiffnesses apart, arising from the fact that Maritain is a Frenchman writing in English—it is crystal clear. The vocabulary is easy and blessedly free of professional jargon. When you have finished reading 'Man and the State,' you may disagree, you may cynically call it a 'lovely dream,' you may be gleefully enthusiastic, but one thing is certain: you will have no doubt of what the author means." H. L. Binsse

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p13 Mr 25 '51 1350w

"Anyone who has the patience and the concentration to push on in the face of what the author apologetically calls the 'austerity of my analysis' will find in the end that his argument is controlled by reason and impelled by a hunger for truth."

New Yorker 27:122 Mr 10 '51 160w

San Francisco Chronicle p22 Mr 18 '51 750w

Reviewed by Albert Guerard

Sat R of Lit 35:17 Ja 5 '52 800w

U S Quarterly Bk R 7:251 S '51 210w

MARKLEY, KLARE STEPHEN, ed. Soybeans and soybean products. (Fats and oils ser) 2v 558;621p il ea $11 Interscience

635.655 Soy beans (50-58108)

This two-volume work is a comprehensive treatment on the production, composition, processing and utilization of soybeans. The twenty-five chapters, numbered continuously in the two volumes, are grouped under four headings: Production contains two chapters; Structure and Composition, eight chapters; Processing, five chapters; Utilization of Soybean Products, ten chapters.

"While most of the writers have used a strictly reportorial style, an occasional lapse into the editorial style disconcerts the reader. These few examples indicate that a somewhat tighter job of editing might have been done. Lack of subject and author indexes in Volume I makes the purchase of Volume II almost a necessity. Despite these minor criticisms, this reviewer feels that this book is an outstanding contribution to the technical fats and oils literature." J. C. Konen

+ — Chem & Eng N 29:1358 Ap 2 '51 380w (Review of v 1)

"Although the editor apologizes for unevenness of emphasis by the different authors, some duplication of subject matter, and marked differences in style, he appears to have brought it into a treatise of real reference value to any chemical engineer in the field of fats and oils." G. W. M.

Chem Eng 58:265 Mr '51 200w (Review of v 1)

N Y New Tech Bks 36:30 Mr '51 (Review of v 1)

"Nothing so comprehensive as these volumes has been published regarding soybeans and soybean products, nor is anything quite equal to it likely to be published for many years. . . Most of the writers are authorities in their fields and, on the whole, the volumes are well integrated and are bonded by extensive author and subject indexes, a subdivided table of contents, and very full documentation. The vastness of the undertaking apparently precluded references later than the 1940's."

+ U S Quarterly Bk R 7:193 Je '51 270w

MARKOWITZ, ARTHUR. The daughter; a novel of South Africa. 343p $3 Farrar, Straus 51-5106

"This first novel describes the emotional maturing of 20-year-old Maxa, the daughter of Polish emigrés who have settled in South Africa. Maxa comes of age the hard way, via disillusion, heartbreak—and the knowledge of men that comes from lovers selected haphazardly." N Y Times

Kirkus 19:235 My 1 '51 150w

"Though the family situation has many parallels, 'The Daughter' is essentially a story of an individual, as unlovable a girl as one is likely to meet in fiction in a long time, and the strength of the novel throughout is in its characterization. It is an unusual first novel in the maturity and effectiveness with which it portrays one of the deadlier varieties of the female." Mary Ross

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Jl 15 '51 550w

"Mr. Markowitz has told his slightly incredible story with warmth and gusto. The reader is entertained most of the way, even when Maxa's soul-searchings are most ludicrous." Nancie Matthews

+ — N Y Times p15 Jl 1 '51 90w

"A cheap and shoddy story that is partly redeemed by the accident of a highly interesting background. . . None of the characters in the book is worth a moment's thought, but

Mr. Markowitz's knowing picture of city life in South Africa is fascinating—mainly, no doubt, because fiction out of that part of the world is still fairly uncommon."
— + New Yorker 27:85 Je 23 '51 80w

"It is Mr. Markowitz's picture of South African cities and mores which gives the book its main distinction. His account of Maxa's didoes is overly portentous and often naïve; but the background of South African life against which his heroine moves is an interesting panorama of a society that is unfamiliar to most American readers." Martin Levin
— + Sat R of Lit 34:31 Jl 21 '51 250w

MARLETT, MRS MELBA BALMAT (GRIMES). Death is in the garden. 191p $2.50 Doubleday 51-10651

Detective story.

Kirkus 19:140 Mr 1 '51 60w

"A sensitive and subtly written mystery."
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p15 My 27 '51 140w

"Although some minor mysteries go unexplained, this is an expertly concocted book, packed with incident and suspense." K. S. C.
+ N Y Times p18 My 27 '51 90w

"Written with skill and restraint, this novel of character is peculiarly satisfying." L. G. Offord
+ San Francisco Chronicle p24 My 13 '51 70w

"Expert contriving." Kathleen Sproul
+ Sat R of Lit 34:32 Jl 7 '51 50w

"For a sustained atmosphere of impending doom in which the author is forced to rely on suggestion almost entirely for her effect, give a bow to Melba Marlett for a slick job." D. F. M.
+ Springf'd Republican p5D Je 3 '51 70w

MARQUAND, JOHN PHILLIPS. Melville Goodwin, USA. 596p $3.75 Little 51-12737

"Sidney Skelton is a famous radio commentator. The 'integrity' of his voice has brought him a national audience, a wealthy sponsor, an estate in Connecticut, an ambitious wife. . . The trouble is that Sid knows Melville Goodwin, a two-star general who has become newsworthy through his behavior with a Russian patrol in Berlin. The Army needs a hero to compete with the Navy and the Air Force, and Sid is in the position of protecting the general from making a fool of himself, which would ruin the effect. The main story is the gradual disclosure of Goodwin's true character through a feature newspaper interview in the style of Time and Life, and through a series of typical Marquand cutbacks into his past." Sat R of Lit

---

Reviewed by Edward Weeks
Atlantic 188:72 O '51 650w

Booklist 48:2; 50 S 1 '51; O 1 '51

Reviewed by Ellen Rogers
Canadian Forum 31:214 D '51 180w

"'Melville Goodwin, USA' shows Marquand at the top of his form as story teller and subtle satirist of American life. Some are sure to mention this as his best work. . . Where Mr. Marquand got his devilish, yet respectful, insight into the ways of the army, especially the middle brass, I do not know, but it is convincing." Edmund Fuller
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 S 30 '51 350w

Reviewed by W. H. Denney
Christian Science Monitor p11 O 4 '51 650w

Cleveland Open Shelf p28 N '51

"Melville Goodwin, U.S.A. is not a novel to be taken very seriously. The triteness of its situations is matched by the remarkable simplemindedness of its hero. It follows a formula and may achieve a certain popular success, but one regrets that its author is Mr. Marquand, a writer obviously capable of much better things." W. P. Clancy
— + Commonweal 55:17 O 12 '51 600w

"As convincing a piece of characterization as John Marquand has given us, and the very resistance he imposes at the start makes his final achievement all the more arresting. And in the process, he has taken the civilian behind the scenes and made him see what makes the Army tick. Good Americana, in the portrait of Melville Goodwin USA."
+ Kirkus 19:401 Ag 1 '51 300w

"Undoubtedly, deservedly a best seller." R. W. Henderson
Library J 76:1563 O 1 '51 60w

Reviewed by Margaret Marshall
Nation 173:355 O 27 '51 550w

"An engrossing novel with many virtues. . . The total picture is brilliant—but does it fully explain the General? . . Like every other novel by a deservedly popular novelist, 'Melville Goodwin, USA' reflects something of the emotional climate of its time." James Hilton
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p3 S 30 '51 1100w

"Marquand relates all this with great narrative skill. He rarely cuts very deep and seems content to play with his comedy of manners. And he does use an awful lot of words for this heavily detailed and apparently accurate account of life among the high brass. Every profession, he seems to be saying, has its occupational diseases, and if we only knew we would be more sympathetic to the brass. One will go along with him on this and at the same time remind him that writing fiction for the slicks has its occupational diseases, too." Harry Sylvester
+ — N Y Times p4 S 30 '51 600w

Reviewed by Anthony West
New Yorker 27:134 O 27 '51 480w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson
San Francisco Chronicle p20 S 30 '51 2100w

"It's odd that both Hemingway and Marquand have recently put in a defense for professional soldiers (officers, of course) and perhaps the younger writers like Norman Mailer or James Jones will finally have to take their stand against those literary ancestors who first showed them the path of revolt. Meanwhile this is probably all too solemn about a book which is meant primarily for popular entertainment, and an author whose unfortunate destiny has constrained him to do only what he can do so well." Maxwell Geismar
Sat R of Lit 34:11 S 29 '51 650w

Springf'd Republican p12A Ja 6 '52 180w

"Marquand is an old hand at arranging the facts so as to get a few things off his own chest, and Goodwin's uniform does not long conceal the fact that he is just a new variant of an old Marquand hero. . . This time Marquand worries the theme too doggedly, all but writes his book twice."
Time 58:104 O 1 '51 500w

Wis Lib Bul 47:216 S '51

MARQUARDT, MARTHA. Paul Ehrlich; with an introd. by Sir Henry Dale. (Life of science lib) 255p il $3.50 Schuman
B or 92 Ehrlich, Paul. Chemotherapy
51-9683

Biography of a famous medical scientist who discovered Salvarsan (606) the first specific and effective cure for syphilis. The author was Ehrlich's secretary for thirteen years before his death in 1915.

"There is a saying that nobody can stay a king before his valet, but for Martha Marquardt, Ehrlich's secretary during his most important years, the hero sometimes takes on superhuman qualities. With this little reservation, the book is very good reading." Bruno Gebhard
+ Am J Pub Health 41:592 My '51 250w

Booklist 47:380 Jl 1 '51

MARQUARDT, MARTHA—Continued

"Miss Marquardt writes in a slightly German idiom but the book makes good reading. She tells many anecdotes of Dr. Ehrlich's family life and his absent mindedness and gives a vivid picture of a complex personality who was brilliant and kindly, yet immature in some of his personal reactions." T. R. Van Dellen

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p11 Mr 4 '51 460w

"A fable-like quality pervades this biography. Like a folk story it is simply and even awkwardly written, depends on anecdote and frank hero worship and makes no real attempt to explore shadings of character and motive." T. H. Maren

N Y Times p10 Ag 12 '51 410w

"This biography, written by Ehrlich's devoted secretary Martha Marquardt, is an extraordinary study of the mind of genius. . . This book, with an intelligent introduction by Sir Henry Dale, is written in the simple, moving language of affection and gives us insight into the simple, moving life of an immortal scientist." Martin Gumpert

+ Sat R of Lit 34:20 Je 9 '51 800w

Times [London] Lit Sup p829 D 16 '49 200w

MARROW, ALFRED J. Living without hate; scientific approaches to human relations. 269p $3.50 Harper

301.153 Social psychology. Antipathies and prejudices 51-12889

"This is a report on work in process. Its aim: to sum up and appraise a variety of continuing studies in the nature and causes of tensions between people and in the methods by which these tensions might be released and people brought to be good neighbors. These studies are 'action research.'" (School & Society) Index.

Booklist 48:42; 61 O 1 '51; O 15 '51

Bookmark 11:32 N '51 30w

"The worth of this book is that it not merely tabulates known information about prejudice, but presents a heartening picture of what is being done by individuals, religious and lay groups, and in some few cases by an entire community working together. This could be a beginning textbook for others who wish to follow the path of positive action but who are bewildered and often frightened."

+ Kirkus 19:468 Ag 15 '51 230w

"While presented in simple, matter-of-fact terms, it is based on so wide a range of experimental data that it carries conviction. Recommended for generous purchase by all libraries, public, college and special." D. K. Oko

+ Library J 76:1935 N 15 '51 140w

Reviewed by Ralph Colp

Sat R of Lit 35:17 Ja 5 '52 650w

School & Society 74:192 S 22 '51 40w

Wis Lib Bul 47:210 S '51

MARSH, DONALD BAILEY. World trade and investment; the economics of interdependence; with a foreword by Howard S. Ellis. 594p $6.75; text ed $5.50 Harcourt

380.1 Commerce. Investments, Foreign 51-1334

"The author of Taxes Without Tears [Book Review Digest 1945] pitches this book at the level of the intelligent adult, designed for college undergraduate classes. A treatment of the outstanding economic theories of international trade and finance, and an application of those theories to current problems and policies in international affairs." Library J

"World Trade and Investment represents a remarkable combination of intensive theoretical reasoning and a realistic presentation of current institutional patterns of economic activity. . . The contributions of this book far outshadow its deficiencies as a text. Moreover, these deficiencies can readily be overcome by supplementary material, particularly in the field of commercial and foreign exchange practice and policy." R. F. Mikesell

+ Am Econ R 41:988 D '51 900w

"The division of the book into theoretical and practical sections will increase its usefulness to classes in our universities where the study of international finance is built upon an elementary course in economics." J. A. deHaas

+ Ann Am Acad 278:193 N '51 400w

"Each part is done well, but the emphasis on the last part is so great that the book may (and we hope soon!) become largely of historical interest. . . A few criticisms may be offered. Exchange control is an invention of the devil (p.79) and Professor Marsh sees a progression from it to political totalitarianism, whereas both may perhaps be traced to a general failure to deal with the aftermath of the first war. . . Professor Marsh sometimes labors the obvious and at other times assumes a fairly wide background of economics. His use of the word 'autonomous' is sometimes questionable, and surely 'arbitrageur' does not exist? Some of the descriptive material is clumsily expressed; to expect „distinction of style in the theoretical part is perhaps too much." C. A. Ashley

+ — Canadian Forum 31:45 My '51 330w

Reviewed by J. E. Cross

Library J 76:602 Ap 1 '51 90w

MARSH, JOHN THOMPSON. Introduction to textile finishing. 552p il $5.50 Wiley

677 Textile finishing 51-10162

"A British book in which the modern techniques of finishing textile fabrics are treated comprehensively with emphasis on the chemical aspects. The viewpoint is that of technical personnel in the industry and of students preparing for practical work. . . There are numerous literature citations in the text and also an international bibliography of books and periodicals." Library J

"As a statement of where chemical finishing stands today, Marsh presents a competent, workmanlike job. His style, though slightly verbose, is readable and goes to the point." J. F. Smith

+ Chem & Eng N 29:2514 Je 18 '51 200w

Reviewed by R. R. Hawkins

Library J 76:709 Ap 15 '51 80w

N Y New Tech Bks 36:45 My '51

MARSH, NGAIO. Night at the Vulcan [Eng title: Opening night]. 238p $3 Little 51-11439

Detective story.

Booklist 48:14 S 1 '51

Bookmark 10:233 Jl '51

"Miss Marsh writes with wit and charm, and has a ready faculty for making her characters credibly human. . . 'Night at the Vulcan' is compact and possesses movement which keeps the reader with its story." August Derleth

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 Jl 15 '51 290w

Kirkus 19:238 My 1 '51 140w

"Recommended to play-goers besides mystery fans." E. F. Walbridge

+ Library J 76:1226 Ag '51 110w

"Opening Night can be thoroughly recommended as a specimen of Miss Marsh at her best." Ralph Partridge

+ New Statesman & Nation 41:716 Je 23 '51 120w

"Subtlety, character and a delicate humor have always made Miss Marsh's mysteries outstanding. In this case, since she is dealing with the stage which she knows so well, there is a further depth of authenticity. The murder itself and its solution occupy only the latter half of the book, but the part which goes before, like the buried part of an iceberg, is an important piece of the whole."

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p9 Jl 22 '51 200w

Reviewed by Anthony Boucher

N Y Times p19 Jl 22 '51 160w

"The author has worked in the theatre herself, and her book, as well as being more than usually lively and literate, has the stamp of authenticity."

+ New Yorker 27:80 Jl 21 '51 330w

"It's questionable whether the murder—not a particularly brilliant one—was really needed in this book, except to bring in Roderick Alleyn for some incomparable detecting; but you've never read a more utterly enchanting stage novel." L. G. Offord

+ San Francisco Chronicle p18 Jl 15 '51 80w

"A master from Master Marsh." Kathleen Sproul

+ Sat R of Lit 34:45 Jl 21 '51 60w

"The important things about Miss Marsh are that she writes extremely well, and that her characters are not types subservient to a plot, but real people." L. A. G. Strong

+ Spec 185:598 My 4 '51 120w

"Miss Ngaio Marsh, so far as her literary pedigree is concerned, might be classified as a niece of Mrs. Christie, a daughter—perfectly legitimate—of Miss Sayers, and a descendant of Wilkie Collins. (The Moonstone, not The Woman in White). Opening Night is one of the most successfully entertaining books she has written."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p369 Je 15 '51 260w

MARSHALL, CATHERINE (WOOD) (MRS PETER MARSHALL). Man called Peter; the story of Peter Marshall. 354p il $3.50 McGraw

B or 92 Marshall, Peter 51-13266

"Peter Marshall was a Scotsman of rare gifts who came to this country as a young man with a mere two weeks' subsistence in his wallet. At the time of his death he had served many churches here and was Chaplain of the United States Senate." (Library J) This story of his life has been written by his wife.

Booklist 48:21; 64 S 15 '51; O 15 '51

Bookmark 11:32 N '51 30w

"The best stories are those that really happen. None of the novels concerning the ministry, written during the last few years, touches the heart and appeals to the mind in the way that Catherine Marshall does in telling the story of her husband's life." Clarence Seidenspinner

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 O 7 '51 440w

Cleveland Open Shelf p27 N '51

"Some will think the account too personal, too greatly concerned with the intimacies of their life together. However, the wife apparently absorbed something of her husband's gift for pictorial writing, for she certainly makes Peter Marshall come alive not only as her adored husband, but as a uniquely endowed man of God. . . It is a book which ministers will hugely enjoy. Many others who have heard of Peter Marshall and especially those in Washington, Atlanta and the many other cities where he occasionally preached who have become 'Peter Marshall fans' will welcome this tribute from the pen of his gifted widow."

+ Kirkus 19:463 Ag 15 '51 310w

"In this biography of her husband Mrs. Marshall's objectivity is impressive and her informality holds one's interest. . . Recommended for all public libraries. It will appeal especially to those who have been challenged by Peter Marshall's posthumous collection of sermons, Mr. Jones, Meet the Master." E. H. Weeks

+ Library J 76:1329 S 1 '51 110w

"In view of the overtones it suggests but does not realize, Mrs. Marshall's title seems over-impressive. Also the sermons quoted appear somewhat less original and profound than they seem to the book's author. However, great magnetism must be conceded to one able to draw the crowds that packed churches, forums and lecture-halls wherever Dr. Marshall preached. That he had the Senate's respect is obvious."

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p17 O 28 '51 190w

"It can scarcely be claimed that any man's wife is well equipped to be his most objective biographer. In the present case this does not matter, since objectivity is not essential in portraying a beloved person for a multitude of others who also loved him. Catherine Marshall writes extremely well. Those who do not accept her religious viewpoint will nevertheless admit that she presents it with grace and charm." A. P. Davies

+ N Y Times p30 O 7 '51 600w

San Francisco Chronicle p22 N 18 '51 70w

MARSHALL, DEAN. Wish on the moon; il. by Dorothy Bayley Morse. 192p $2.50 Dutton

51-11440

Continues the story of the four young Guthries of Dig for Treasure (Book Review Digest 1949). This time they celebrate Hallowe'en on Invisible Island, and solve the mystery of a ghost. For grades four to seven.

Booklist 47:406 Jl 15 '51

Reviewed by Polly Goodwin

Chicago Sunday Tribune p9 Ag 19 '51 180w

"Readable and suspenseful Hallowe'en mystery. . . Recommended for purchase where the other titles have been liked." M. E. Martignoni

+ Library J 76:1235 Ag '51 60w

"Children reading it will have a fine time—and perhaps they will not object, as did this reviewer, to Uncle John, who is an ambulatory information bureau." Marjorie Fischer

+ — N Y Times p12 Jl 29 '51 100w

Wis Lib Bul 47:193 Jl '51

MARSHALL, EDISON. Viking. 380p $3.50 Farrar, Straus

51-7196

A romantic tale of Ogier the Dane, of his love for the Welsh princess Morgana, and of how, at last, they sailed away to find the land of Avalon (America).

Reviewed by Charles Collins

Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 O 21 '51 390w

"Fantasy and adventure, history and legend, romance and poetry, this is a varied brew, much of it fascinating reading, though at times it grows involved and obscure in its symbolism."

+ Kirkus 19:497 S 1 '51 240w

"It is fast-moving and well-done, more interesting, as are most such novels, for its background than for its characters."

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p18 D 9 '51 100w

"It is astonishing that an author capable of writing such entertaining fiction as Edison Marshall has done in 'Gypsy Sixpence' should deliver himself of so dull and labored an effort as this." John Cournos

— N Y Times p35 O 21 '51 120w

Reviewed by John Falcon

Sat R of Lit 34:32 N 24 '51 230w

Time 58:128 N 5 '51 120w

MARSHALL, GEORGE N., ed. Church of the Pilgrim fathers; selected and ed. from the writings of John Cuckson [and others]. 143p il $2; pa $1 Beacon press

288.744 Plymouth, Massachusetts. First church. Congregationalism. Unitarianism

50-58120

"This little book is a collection of passages from various sources covering the history of the First Church in Plymouth, Mass.—'The Church of the Pilgrim Fathers'—from the time of its gathering in Scrooby Manor in England, through the period of exile in Leyden and the perils of settlement in Plymouth, to the present day. The nine writers who have been drawn upon are ministers or layman now or formerly connected with the church, and they give a loving account of the various phases

MARSHALL, G. N.—Continued
through which it has passed, and find in the principles which guided its founders the seeds of modern democracy and of liberal religion." Crozer Q

"The book stresses the direct spiritual descent of the liberal movement from the Pilgrims. . . Some historians may question the accuracy of some of the assertions, in the light of the subsequent intolerance in which the descendants of the Mayflower colonists certainly had a share." E. L. Pennington
Churchman 165:16 My 1 '51 140w

"The reader seeking information about the Pilgrims and their church will find it here in readable form, with illustrations, and with references to longer and more authoritative works, but the book throws no new light on a story very familiar to students of American history. None of the contributors has more than a local reputation as an historian, and the method of compilation results in a good deal of repetition of well-known facts." H. W. Foote
+ — Crozer Q 28:189 Ap '51 200w

MARSHALL, MRS LUCILE (ROBERTSON). Photography for teen-agers. 165p il $2.95 Prentice-Hall
770 Photography—Handbooks, manuals, etc. 51-11357

"Here are explained the parts of a camera, how to take pictures and what pictures to take, how to develop, print, and enlarge your pictures, and how to make money with your hobby. Book is non-technical and concise, but not written down." (Library J) Index.

Booklist 48:35 S 15 '51

"The author, a leader in the field, has written a dependable, competent book."
+ Kirkus 19:326 Jl 1 '51 70w

"First-rate book by an expert. Ages 12 and up." M. M. Smith
+ Library J 76:1237 Ag '51 50w

"A nice little handbook for a beginner."
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 Ag 19 '51 60w

MARSHALL, MAX SKIDMORE. Two sides to a teacher's desk; dedicated to students, teachers and bystanders. 284p $3 Macmillan
371.3 Teaching . 51-2420

"The author [was] for many years an instructor of bacteriology. He holds up for reexamination the old accepted techniques of teaching and of viewing students in our colleges. Orthodox methods of lecturing, giving assignments, grading, etc., are not tossed aside by him just because they are orthodox. But where these methods are employed through habit, the author wants them re-evaluated and brought up to date." Library J

"Undoubtedly a good teacher himself, he apparently doesn't know what makes good teaching and rambles around and around the subject without ever getting down to fundamentals." Kelsey Guilfoil
Chicago Sunday Tribune p2 Ap 15 '51 150w
Kirkus 19:88 F 1 '51 130w

"Any book jarring us out of our well-worn educational grooves has value, but a clearer and smoother style would have heightened the worth of this book." C. J. Roth
Library J 76:512 Mr 15 '51 130w

"Here is inside information, so carefully considered that it seems irrefutable, for those who teach and wonder about such things as the goals, principles and techniques of teaching in high school, college and professional school; also for the taxpayers, parents, administrators, students—for those who do not teach but wonder about the ones who do. In all these matters, Mr. Marshall holds persuasively to a middle ground, not of mediocrity but of fair play." Nancy Lenkeith
+ N Y Times p13 Ap 8 '51 300w

Reviewed by C. E. Miller
San Francisco Chronicle p19 Je 24 '51 900w

Reviewed by Logan Wilson
Sat R of Lit 34:18 Je 30 '51 350w

"Here is a book about teaching, written with wisdom, humor, and above all, a bluff common sense that is enormously refreshing."
+ School & Society 73:205 Mr 31 '51 30w

"In this lively, irreverent, and highly compact study, Professor Marshall touches upon every major aspect of educational goals and procedures. With considerable gusto, he pricks some of the most highly inflated and cherished balloons of the pedagogical specialists. . . Despite the familiar and even platitudinous ring of a large portion of the book, the main thesis, as well as the specific application, is basically sound and worthy of frequent and forceful reiteration." H. W. Hintz
+ — Survey 87:363 Ag '51 480w

MARSHALL, ROY KENNETH. Nature of things; il. by Jon Gnagy. 188p $2.95 Holt
504 Science 51-12738

"Dr. Marshall is a liaison intelligence officer between the reticent atom and us. He has been a planetarium director, is a consultant of the Atomic Energy Commission, and offers a television program on NBC's network. This book gives the substance of his telecasts and shows that he is a born teacher." Christian Science Monitor

"Readers who make the information in this book their own will find themselves orientated in the discussions today when they have but dimly understood. Jon Gnagy's illustrative drawings greatly help. Like a well-built novel, 'The Nature of Things' grows in excitement throughout and ends with an O. Henrylike snapper." T. M. Longstreth
+ Christian Science Monitor p9 O 8 '51 600w

"Here is a pleasant and not too difficult summary of the highlights of present-day knowledge about atoms, atomic energy and star structure, together with a brief account of the scientists who have contributed to that knowledge."
+ Kirkus 19:383 Jl 15 '51 160w

"The author may be charged with superficiality for his field is broad. . . The presentation however, merits attention, particularly those chapters which describe how scientists establish their theories and conclusions." J. E. Brown
Library J 76:1215 Ag '51 130w

MARSHALL, SAMUEL L. TV installation techniques. 330p il $3.60 Rider, J.F.
621.38836 Television receivers 50-9653

"The principles of television and radio propagation are treated briefly in the first two chapters, but the rest of the book is devoted to antennas and other problems that directly concern the men who install television receiving equipment in homes." Library J

Booklist 47:152 D 15 '50
Bookmark 10:167 Ap '51

"A thorough book for the practical television installer or serviceman. It is not padded, yet there are 330 pages, including several hundred illustrations." R. R. Hawkins
+ Library J 75:1831 O 15 '50 110w
N Y New Tech Bks 36:15 Ja '51

MARTIN, BETTY, pseud. Miracle at Carville; ed. by Evelyn Wells. 302p $3 Doubleday
B or 92 Leprosy 50-10381
For descriptive note see Annual for 1950.

Bookmark 10:233 Jl '51

"Miracle at Carville is an important social document as well as a moving human record." B. J. Thompson
+ Cath World 172:475 Mr '51 240w

"The story is told without pretension or straining for dramatic effect. Its simplicity and straightforwardness make it more effective than would have been any attempt to convert it to fiction. The plain, unvarnished tale, it is proved once more, often warms the heart more than the elaborations of art." Kelsey Guilfoil

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 F 18 '51 450w

San Francisco Chronicle p16 Ja 7 '51 450w

"Betty was a crusader in the heart-rending fight to break down public prejudice and ignorance as to the curability and virtually incommunicable nature of Hansen's disease. Americans should make amends to her by demanding that her inspiring and deeply spiritual story be read and publicized in our colleges, medical schools, and seminaries." A. F. Wolfe
+ Sat R of Lit 34:64 Ap 14 '51 320w

"A major contribution to the limited popular literature on the social and psychological aspects of Hansen's disease."
+ U S Quarterly Bk R 7:6 Mr '51 270w

Wis Lib Bul 46:32 D '50

MARTIN, DOUGLAS DEVENY, ed. Tombstone's epitaph. 272p il $4.50 Univ. of N.Mex. press

979.1 Tombstone, Arizona 51-10810

A history of the first ten years of Tombstone, Arizona, as told mainly in the columns of its leading newspaper in the 1880's, The Epitaph.

Booklist 47:360 Je 15 '51

Reviewed by Stewart Holbrook
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 Jl 15 '51 360w

"Mr. Martin is content to supply something less than 10 percent of the text, letting his selections from the Epitaph's files do the rest. It turns out to be a pretty good way to get the story told." J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p27 My 6 '51 850w

U S Quarterly Bk R 7:296 S '51 270w

MARTIN, MRS FRANCES GARDINER (MCENTEE). Nine tales of Coyote; pictures by Dorothy McEntee. 60p $2 Harper

398.2 Folklore, Indian 50-10860

Indian legends, each with Coyote as the principal character, set down in simple language for young readers. Contents: The upper world; West country boy; The bungling host; The hunger time; Old man moon; Ugly boy; The five swallow sisters; Orphan boy; The Kamiah monster.

Booklist 47:208 F 1 '51

Chicago Sunday Tribune p14 Ja 14 '51 120w

Reviewed by J. D. Lindquist and S. M. Andrews
Horn Bk 27:108 Mr '51 70w

"A fresh group of totemic stories, told well and with a minimum of academic flourishes."
+ Kirkus 18:512 S 1 '50 110w

"A fine addition to any storyteller's collection. Age appeal 8-12. Recommended for all libraries." E. T. Dobbins
+ Library J 76:186 F 1 '51 50w

"These are exciting animal stories from ancient America, told in an excellent style." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 D 31 '50 150w

"Miss Martin has used the publications of various anthropological and folklore societies as her sources. Throughout the book she has clarified and simplified her material, while preserving its authenticity of plot and style. Miss McEntee's illustrations, based on primitive Indian motifs, add color to the stories, but one could wish that the animals were depicted as animals, not as the humans whose forms they assumed from time to time." Eulalie Steinmetz
+ — N Y Times p26 F 4 '51 220w

"The wonderful Nez Percé legends of the time before man . . . are presented here more intimately than is customary in the pattern of conventional folklore, and with a gaiety and exuberance that will absorb eight- to twelve-year-olds. Chapter heads and four color illustrations in a primitive style make the book an arresting one."
+ New Yorker 26:186 D 2 '50 90w

"The tales are well worth reading and listening to; Mrs. Martin has kept them simple and direct in wording and there is folk humor in many of them. As far as this reviewer knows, they have not been told before for a wide audience."
+ Sat R of Lit 33:52 O 21 '50 130w

MARTIN, MRS FRANCES GARDINER (MCENTEE). Nine tales of Raven; pictures by Dorothy McEntee. 60p $2 Harper

398.2 Folklore, Indian 51-13612

"Myths from the Northwestern Indians, about the days when their animal ancestors ruled the world and the magic of wise old Raven was particularly potent." New Yorker

Booklist 48:150 D 15 '51

Kirkus 19:633 N 1 '51 140w

"Highly recommended for folklore collections." E. J. Bowland
+ Library J 76:2014 D 1 '51 90w

"The stories are well chosen for younger readers of about ten to fourteen, but could be read aloud to the age that plays Indian, or given to any age interested in American folklore. They are wonderfully exciting, often funny. . . For beautiful bookmaking, this stands near the top for this year. The color work, so well reproduced, is original, dramatic, clear in its story value for children, and very distinguished." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 N 11 '51 300w

"The style is brisk, the story-form compact and the illustrations dashing." E. L. Buell
+ N Y Times p48 N 18 '51 130w

Reviewed by K. T. Kinkead
New Yorker 27:187 D 1 '51 50w

MARTIN, HAROLD VICTOR. Kierkegaard, the melancholy Dane. (Philosophers' lib. ser) 119p $3 Philosophical lib.

B or 92 Kierkegaard, Søren Aabye

An analysis of the Danish theologian's philosophy, by an English doctor of philosophy formerly missionary in India. Index.

"With laymen and the pastoral clergy beginning to take considerable notice of Kierkegaard, a book well adapted to their needs comes from Dr. Martin in England. The Briton's 119 pages do a neat job of summarizing the views of the Danish genius, so far as the work of an intricate mind and a brilliant stylist can be summarized." L. T. Heron
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p11 Ja 28 '51 120w

"It is a very helpful, handy orientation for readers of Kierkegaard, with many excellent insights which help relate the 'melancholy Dane' to contemporary thought and problems." H. W. Thompson
+ Christian Century 68:796 Jl 4 '51 700w

Reviewed by W. K. Wright
Crozer Q 28:185 Ap '51 220w

"The book is short, but it has the merit of an unusual clarity and thus serves as a good introduction to its subject." Robert Bierstedt
+ Sat R of Lit 34:13 My 12 '51 150w

"This little study, so far as it goes, is admirable enough. But it contains little that is really new (though every new attempt at assessing Kierkegaard, if it be good, has no doubt some fresh orientation from the new author's mind), and it is the work of a writer who appears to know no Danish."
Times [London] Lit Sup p231 Ap 13 '51 550w

MARTIN, HENRY DESMOND. Rise of Chingis Khan and his conquest of North China; introd. by Owen Lattimore; ed. by Eleanor Lattimore. 360p maps $4.75 Johns Hopkins press

951.025 Jenghis Khan. China—History 51-444

"The primary object of the present study is to give as detailed and comprehensive a picture as possible of that phase of the Mongol conquest of China falling within the reign of Chingis Khan (1206-27). However, before embarking upon this, [the author has] considered it advisable to include a portrait of the conqueror, and an account of the Mongol army . . . and a brief survey of Chingis Khan's rise to power. . . Regarding the material drawn upon, a look at the bibliography will show that both Chinese and Occidental works have been used, but when dealing strictly with Mongol activities in China, [the author has] relied largely upon Chinese records." (Foreword) Folded map in pocket in cover. Index.

Reviewed by Woodbridge Bingham
Am Hist R 56:895 Jl '51 650w

Reviewed by L. T. Heron
Chicago Sunday Tribune p2 F 11 '51 150w

Reviewed by L. C. Goodrich
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p17 Ja 28 '51 850w

"Mr. Martin uses the manifold works of his predecessors but does not seek to compete with them. Instead, he is interested primarily in tracing the actual topographical course and locus of the Mongol military operations, pinpointing the battlefields, determining the routes of approach, the encampments and the battle order, and the sequence of events. The result is a careful geographical workout, inspired by the author's own travels across the Mongolian steppe in 1936." J. K. Fairbank
+ — N Y Times p11 D 31 '50 550w

Reviewed by Don Pitt
San Francisco Chronicle p14 D 17 '50 750w

MARTIN, ROBERT. Dark dream. 244p $2.50 Dodd

Mystery story.

"A believable group of characters and a country club setting in the O'Hara tradition are the main features of this readable mystery."
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 Ag 19 '51 100w

Reviewed by Anthony Boucher
N Y Times p17 Ag 5 '51 50w

"The solution is slightly corny and predictable from away back." L. G. Offord
San Francisco Chronicle p16 Jl 29 '51 50w

Reviewed by Kathleen Sproul
Sat R of Lit 34:29 Ag 25 '51 40w

Springf'd Republican p8C Ag 12 '51 110w

MARTIN, THOMAS LYLE. Ultrahigh frequency engineering. 456p il $8; to schools $6 Prentice-Hall

621.38 Electronics 50-12610

"This college text provides a brief and relatively simple introduction to such basic topics as the generation of radiation UHF range, amplification in UHF receivers, UHF circuit elements and the propagation of UHF signals. It describes such specialized devices as wave guides, klystrons and magnetrons. The book is designed for upperclass students in engineering colleges, but it is not beyond the grasp of radio amateurs who are at home with algebra and introductory calculus." Library J

Reviewed by R. R. Hawkins
Library J 76:118 Ja 15 '51 130w

N Y New Tech Bks 36:12 Ja '51

School & Society 72:319 N 11 '50 10w

MARVEL, MRS ELINORE J. Cook it ahead. 243p $3 Houghton

641.5 Cookery 51-6979

"Mrs. Marvel has worked out a method of doing the hard part of her week-end cooking on Wednesday so that she can greet her guests on Friday with a clean house and a cheerful smile and feed them through Sunday. Recipes are varied enough so that she can feed the same guests with the same system many times." New York Times

Bookmark 11:31 N '51 10w

"A book which should appeal to the working girl and wife as well as hostess."
+ Kirkus 19:423 Ag 1 '51 120w

Reviewed by K. T. Willis
Library J 76:2008 D 1 '51 40w

Reviewed by Charlotte Turgeon
+ N Y Times p26 N 25 '51 110w

Wis Lib Bul 47:249 N '51

MARVEL, TOM, ed. See Schoonmaker, F. Dictionary of wines.

MARX, ARTHUR. Ordeal of Willie Brown. 279p $3 Simon & Schuster

51-2841

Willie Brown was the twenty-first ranking tennis player in the United States, but nevertheless, he had his eye fixed on Wimbledon. This is the chronicle of one summer in Willie's misguided life, when he finally saw the light.

Kirkus 19:76 F 1 '51 160w

"Mr. Marx handles the practices of 'amateur' tennis gently and amusingly, using the sport as a background for Willie. Actually, the reader could stand a good bit more of this background . . . which tends to be more interesting than the specific tribulations of the hero. 'The Ordeal of Willie Brown' is too mild to have much satiric bite. It is, however, a pleasant and entertaining book."
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p15 My 6 '51 360w

"Although the story is not told with much literary skill, it adds up to a convincing picture of the tennis bum. Mr. Marx (the son of comedian Groucho) strongly suggests that professionalism is more common in this amateur sport than even cynics have supposed." Robert Hagy
N Y Times p16 My 6 '51 160w

"Mr. Marx, the son of Groucho, apparently has a sense of humor for which his father should keep him on bread and water. Kept down to twenty or thirty pages, this book of 279 pages might have just squeezed by as 'satire,' a word I stumbled across on the dust jacket. Whatever the vigor of his comedy and inventiveness, it is not strengthened by repetition, clichés, and inspired formula writing." Bernard Kalb
— Sat R of Lit 34:29 Je 2 '51 410w

Springf'd Republican p9B My 20 '51 130w

MARX, HERBERT LEWIS, ed. Universal conscription for essential service. (Reference shelf) 178p $1.75 Wilson, H. W.

355.22 Military service, Compulsory. Industrial mobilization (for war). Labor supply 51-6538

"This opens with the background and the steps, many now in effect, that may lead to universal conscription. These include various phases of current measures and universal military training. The report discusses manpower resources with recommendations falling short of compulsory measures for defense production." School & Society

Booklist 48:33 S 15 '51

Current Hist 21:229 O '51 50w

School & Society 74:160 S 8 '51 50w

MASON, GEORGE FREDERICK. Animal tools. 94p il $2 Morrow

590 Natural history—Juvenile literature 51-11615

Discusses special animal and insect tools, which help their owners in their locomotion, food gathering, house building, etc. Partial contents: Insect drills; The bee's tool kit; The fly's gyroscope; Mosquito surgery; Toilet articles; Spinning tools. Index.

Reviewed by M. F. Kieran
Atlantic 188:102 D '51 100w

Booklist 48:37 S 15 '51

Reviewed by Vernon Ives
Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 N 11 '51 100w

"An essential series for schools and libraries, as well as for the home."
+ Kirkus 19:395 Ag 1 '51 130w

"Like the other books in the series, this is a fine treatment. . . Recommended for all children's libraries." N. S. Chasteen
+ Library J 76:1434 S 15 '51 80w

"Like the other Mason books, this is good for any age over ten, and very stimulating to nature study." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p28 N 11 '51 80w

"Thoroughly fascinating reading for any age." N. B. Baker
+ N Y Times p32 N 11 '51 150w

Reviewed by K. T. Kinkead
New Yorker 27:190 D 1 '51 80w

"Like the other books in the series, it is illustrated with drawings and diagrams. It is small enough to slip into the pocket of a raincoat. It contains an amazing amount of information."
+ Sat R of Lit 34:66 N 10 '51 140w

MASON, MRS KATHRYN HARROD. James Harrod of Kentucky. 266p il maps $4 La. state univ. press

B or 92 Harrod, James 51-10080

Biography of an American frontiersman "founder of the first settlement in Kentucky, and an exciting history of the long and savage warfare with the Indians in which he participated and which earned for that region the name of 'the dark and bloody ground.' " (Nation) The subject of the book is a distant ancestor of the author.

"An excellent biography."
+ Nation 172:497 My 26 '51 30w

Reviewed by Carl Bridenbaugh
N Y Times p48 O 21 '51 460w

"In handling her details Mrs. Mason has failed frequently to tell her reader that she has gone from the specific to the general, and when the meticulous reader tries to check her facts he finds that perhaps she has not overshot her general history but she has perverted it by making it apply specifically to Harrod. . . Mrs. Mason writes with a charming style and she catches much of the spirit of the frontier. Her interpretation of the subject is somewhat akin to the modern musician's attempt to zip up an old folk tune with a little dash of swing." T. D. Clark
+ — Sat R of Lit 34:14 Ag 18 '51 650w

"Slow-paced but thoroughly readable biography. . . The author tells her story with the care of the historian and the skill of the journalist. Based upon years of search through family papers, travel accounts, and the like, her handsome book should appeal both to the general reader and the historian of the frontier."
+ U S Quarterly Bk R 7:128 Je '51 190w

MASON, MIRIAM EVANGELINE. Caroline and her kettle named Maud; with il. by Kathleen Voute. 134p $2 Macmillan

51-13835

Caroline was "going on eight" when her family moved to frontier Michigan. She had hoped for a gun for a farewell present, but instead she was given a shiny copper kettle. To add to her woe Old Witch, the cow Caroline hated, went along. But in the wilds of Michigan Caroline's kettle and Old Witch proved just as useful as the gun she did not possess. For ages 6 to 8.

Booklist 48:131 D 1 '51

Reviewed by Polly Goodwin
Chicago Sunday Tribune p18 N 18 '51 150w

Kirkus 19:435 Ag 15 '51 120w

"Recommended for third and fourth grades." Juanita Walker
+ Library J 76:2123 D 15 '51 50w

"To early readers, this offers a very real small girl, plenty of action, and a good honest look at pioneer America. You will not soon forget this kettle and this cow, even if you are an adult sharing the reading." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p18 N 18 '51 120w

"Miriam Mason's new story is full of little jokes, popping up from blandly matter-of-fact statements which will seem quite natural to children. As in her other books she tells a good story in simple but effective language." E. L. B.
+ N Y Times p20 D 16 '51 130w

MASON, MIRIAM EVANGELINE. Hominy and his blunt-nosed arrow; il. by George and Doris Hauman. 145p $1.75 Macmillan

50-10760

Story of a little Indian boy named Hominy, who took his very first arrows and went out to shoot the Bad Luck Bird. Instead of that he came home with a surprise—the first popcorn his tribe had seen.

Booklist 47:208 F 1 '51

"The book, written for the beginning reader, has large, clear type and simple illustrations in black and white, which tell a story of their own." A. L. Shea
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p13 Ja 7 '51 120w

Kirkus 18:416 Ag 1 '50 170w

Reviewed by Phyllis Fenner
Library J 76:55 Ja 1 '51 80w

"A delightful story for small boys." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 F 11 '51 30w

"This isn't quite as well integrated as most of Miss Mason's stories, but it is lively and humorous and tells the beginning reader just about all he needs to know about the Miami." E. L. Buell
N Y Times p26 Ja 28 '51 100w

MASON, VAN WYCK. Proud new flags. 493p $3 Lippincott

51-10079

Historical novel about the Confederate navy in the Civil war, in the year 1861 to 1862. The hero is Sam Seymour who followed his father Captain Felix Seymour, U.S.N. into the navy, but left it for the Confederacy.

Booklist 47:245; 274 Mr 15 '51; Ap 1 '51

Reviewed by Riley Hughes
Cath World 173:313 Jl '51 210w

Reviewed by Stanley Vestal
Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 Ap 22 '51 340w

Cleveland Open Shelf p16 Jl '51

"His coverage of shipbuilding problems in the South is excellent. Recommended." H. L. Roth
+ Library J 76:597 Ap 1 '51 120w

" 'Proud New Flags' has the distinction of being a historical novel about the Lost Cause in which the accent is upon boilers and armor plate and the slogging labor of building a fleet,

MASON, V.—Continued
rather than upon magnolia and roses—and which yet manages to be dramatic and colorful." H. W. Baehr

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p11 Ap 15 '51 800w

Reviewed by Richard Match
N Y Times p20 Ap 29 '51 360w

"As his readers know, Mr. Mason is not a stylist. Frequently ease of reading is marred by the abrupt transitions from one set of characters to another. Mr. Mason's real accomplishment in this book is that he has been able to give a meaning to his research. He makes you see the importance of the navy in the Civil War campaigns, not as an historical factor as historians have already done, but he shows its effect, emotionally and imaginatively, on the lives of the characters he has created." Jane Voiles

+ San Francisco Chronicle p25 Ap 29 '51 600w

Reviewed by Charles Lee
Sat R of Lit 34:32 My 12 '51 300w

Springf'd Republican p8C Ap 29 '51 100w

Time 57:114 Ap 16 '51 500w

MASON, VAN WYCK. Valley Forge: 24 December 1777. 30p $1.25 Doubleday

A brief tale of Valley Forge in late December of 1777, and of the near resignation of General Washington.

"The tale is fairly well written and succeeds in maintaining a certain interest to the end." Edward Barry

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p2 N 19 '50 200w

Kirkus 18:536 S 1 '50 60w

"This moving and heart-warming Christmas story manages to convey, in its 30 small pages, a more vivid picture of the suffering endured by Washington's troops during their violent winter of despair, than most of the full-length histories." C. W. W.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p26 D 3 '50 150w

"A resignation by Washington at the moment when he was under the most intense sniping from politicians and the Conway Cabal is completely out of character. . . No, Washington had his back up on Christmas Eve of '77 and was in a fighting not a quitting mood. With this reservation, Mr. Mason's simple tale should be prescribed reading for jittery Americans whose thoughts are with an American army facing the bleak prospect of Christmas along the inhospitable Manchurian border. They, too, will see it through." R. B. Morris

Sat R of Lit 33:17 D 9 '50 410w

MASSING, HEDE (TUNE). This deception. 335p $3.50 Duell

335.4 Spies. Communism—U.S. 51-2483

Autobiography of this ex-Communist, a German woman, once the wife of Gerhart Eisler, who was one of the "mysterious witnesses" for the prosecution in the Alger Hiss trial.

Booklist 47:339 Je 1 '51

Reviewed by Willard Edwards
Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 Ap 8 '51 430w

Reviewed by Ralph de Toledano
Chicago Sunday Tribune p2 Ap 22 '51 550w

"In Mrs. Massing's fluent, emotional story there is none of the hard, sinewy thinking that so often marked the one-time Communists who turned against 'The God Who Failed.' Apparently she never lost her individuality to the machine. . . Her story is that of a spontaneous, warm-blooded girl and woman whose slow process of disillusion wasn't primarily an intellectual process. This is a human document, so far as the reader can tell, of a feminine sense of decency which was outraged. . . Then come the passages purporting to tell . . . of the activities of Noel Field and Laurence Duggan as Russian spies. The reader is pulled up short. He probably has felt, up to this time, that the book has the ring of accuracy. He goes back in his mind to reappraise. Could all this ingenuous narrative be spurious? To the unaided reader, it doesn't seem quite possible that it is." Samuel Orcutt

+ — Christian Science Monitor p11 Mr 29 '51 1550w

Kirkus 19:86 F 1 '51 200w

"It is an absorbing record, not only of a real and vivid woman but of the truly 'displaced persons' who were her associates. One can find in 'This Deception' the raw material of such a novel as Koestler's 'The Age of Longing,' and recognize Fedya and Hydie Anderson." H. W. Baehr

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 Mr 25 '51 1350w

"Mrs. Massing's story, much of which was serialized a year ago in The Daily Mirror and other newspapers, is disarming, unpretentious and sometimes moving. . . In some respects it is a revealing story; yet it is not altogether a satisfying one. There are still too many questions unanswered, too many motivations left obscure, too many actions that lack adequate—or at least rational—explanation." J. B. Oakes

+ — N Y Times p6 Mr 18 '51 1000w

New Yorker 27:90 Mr 31 '51 200w

"Hede Massing's story is fascinating, informative, and sometimes moving, and she tells it simply and well. The book's one big shortcoming is her lack of insight and analytical perception. Her adherence to a party whose doctrines and aims she admittedly never even attempted or cared to understand, her entry into the Russian espionage service after her disillusioning first stay in Russia, her eagerness to recruit members for her underground apparatus while she herself tried to get out of it, her continued social contact with Communists and fellow travelers, even after her final break with Moscow, until they drop her—none of this she really explains or motivates." J. H. Lichtblau

+ — Sat R of Lit 34:56 Ap 14 '51 750w

Springf'd Republican p6D F 25 '51 70w

MASSINGHAM, HUGH, and MASSINGHAM, PAULINE, comps. London anthology; il. ed, Hilde Kurz. 514p pl $4.50 Macmillan

914.21 London—Description. London—Social life and customs [51-10081]

Excerpts from memoirs, letters, and newspaper and periodical reports, which add to the description of London life thru the centuries. Arrangement is by topic and not chronological. Partial contents: Accidents; Actors and actresses; Air raids; Executions; Food and drink; Funerals; Prisons; Royalty; Sundays; Traffic; Weather.

Reviewed by Richard Blakesley
Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 Ap 1 '51 370w

"The authors have chosen their extracts from a wide and sensitive knowledge of memoirs, letters of notable visitors, and books on London. Many of the items will be little known even to students of London." J. B.

+ Manchester Guardian p2 D 29 '50 290w

"A fascinating treasury of Londoniana." R. H. D.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p24 Je 10 '51 220w

Reviewed by Kenneth Young
Spec 185:19 Ja 5 '51 200w

"Mr. and Mrs. Massingham do not ignore the West End, but they consider the East End more important to an understanding of London and its history. They are very suspicious of the idyllic. . . Yet, in spite of their bias, how good their book is, and what wide and curious research has gone to provide both text and pictures! They have avoided nearly all the familiar things."

+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p812 D 22 '50 450w

MASSON, RENE. Cage of darkness; tr. from the French by Constantine FitzGibbon [Eng title: Sicily street]. 266p $3 Knopf 51-11064

Story of a gang of child criminals in Paris, led by the girl, Fleur. They kidnap a rich Jewish boy, but are finally defeated in their plans by the private detective hired by the boy's father.

"It is difficult to explain 'Cage of Darkness' to American readers, not because its scenes and its language are so French but because its technique is so very French. The author's object is to create a mood in his readers as French novelists always try to create an 'ambiance,' atmosphere of emotion. By that method Rene Masson has written a highly unpleasant novel, a book devoid of charm in any sense of the word, and yet, in its 'induced' fashion, a book filled with pity." Fanny Butcher
Chicago Sunday Tribune p11 O 7 '51 300w

"A narrative, which is effective in its economy, but which, for all its latent compassion, fails to provoke little more than a cold concern."
Kirkus 19:405 Ag 1 '51 170w

"This situation has many possibilities, and M. Masson seems often to be on the point of realising one of them. But no understanding comes to either side; the children remain consistently malevolent, and Circ remains scared and deeply conscious of the gulf of class. Perhaps that was what M. Masson intended, but it gives at the end a curious effect that throughout the book nothing—except physical action—really happens. One reads on to find out what the end is going to be, but when it is reached one feels that one has somehow been fobbed off with a kind of high-class thriller." J. D. Scott
New Statesman & Nation 41:724 Je 23 '51 190w

Reviewed by Gouverneur Paulding
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p19 O 21 '51 850w

Reviewed by Saul Colin
N Y Times p59 N 25 '51 450w

"Mr. Masson's writing is direct, melancholy, and self-conscious, and repetitious to such a degree that the pathos of his story finally lies and dies under the weight of words."
New Yorker 27:140 O 27 '51 100w

"Mr. Masson's theme and ground-plan had great possibilities, but he has only begun to realize them. 'Cage of Darkness,' like Fleur, is fleshless, undeveloped; too often its author is content with an easy cliché in phrase or incident. One need only place it beside Romain Gary's 'The Company of Men' to realize its comparative poverty. It falls—and fails, I think—somewhere between a simple crime story and a 'serious' novel, worthy of serious attention." B. R. Redman
— + Sat R of Lit 34:13 O 27 '51 600w

Reviewed by Marghanita Laski
Spec 187:106 Jl 20 '51 90w

"Sicily Street is a jumble of sex and violence, which, in spite of its smooth and economical narration, quite misses any effect of horror."
Times [London] Lit Sup p401 Je 29 '51 190w

MASTERS, JOHN. Nightrunners of Bengal. 339p $3 Viking
50-11094

A historical novel, based on the Indian mutiny of 1857. The author, who was born in Calcutta, is the fifth successive generation of his family to serve in India.

Booklist 47:86; 174 N 1 '50; Ja 1 '51

"For the mature reader."
Bookmark 10:109 F '51 50w

Reviewed by Clifford Manshardt
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 F 4 '51 410w

Cleveland Open Shelf p8 Mr '51

Kirkus 18:658 N 1 '50 170w

"A remarkably able piece of story-telling. . . Cannot fail to grip any reader's attention, though it may cause a few qualms." E. F. Walbridge
Library J 75:2150 D 15 '50 110w

Reviewed by John Raymond
New Statesman & Nation 41:754 Je 30 '51 210w

"The weakness in Mr. Masters's story is that the characters are not nearly as well done as the background, the events and the arguments. . . The best thing in the novel is the constant play of ideas and debate concerning the entire problem of India and imperial government—with the proviso again that this is not really a fictional merit." James Hilton
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 Ja 21 '51 950w

"It is a vivid and penetrating story, marred only by the occasional obscurity that creeps in with the calculated uncertainty whereby the air of suspense is maintained to the end." Henry Cavendish
+ — N Y Times p20 Ja 21 '51 330w

"A real adventure story, filled with risk, fighting, love, bloodshed, and hard-won victory. Mr. Masters is a good storyteller."
+ New Yorker 26:94 Ja 20 '51 120w

"So carefully has Masters built his story from the ingredients of history and first-hand knowledge that he writes almost a treatise instead of a story, yet the novel is heady and breathless, and for followers of the bosomy-school of historical novel, there is something of that here, too." Don Pitt
+ San Francisco Chronicle p9 Ja 14 '51 850w

Reviewed by Harrison Smith
Sat R of Lit 34:13 F 10 '51 650w

Springf'd Republican p8C F 4 '51 150w

Time 57:86 F 5 '51 350w

"The story moves swiftly, and Mr. Masters's full-blooded and straightforward narrative is flavoured by an uninhibited view of sex and a primitive disregard for human life."
Times [London] Lit Sup p385 Je 22 '51 230w

MASUR, HAROLD Q. You can't live forever. 213p $2.50 Simon & Schuster 50-11043

Detective story.

Kirkus 19:79 F 1 '51 70w

"Smooth, fast and well plotted."
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p14 F 11 '51 100w

"If it all gives you a faint feeling that you've read it somewhere before, you may well never have read it at such an admirably smooth fast tempo." Anthony Boucher
+ N Y Times p16 F 4 '51 190w

"There may not be any startlingly new stuff in this yarn, but it unfolds with admirable precision and is skillfully told." L. G. Offord
+ San Francisco Chronicle p16 F 4 '51 200w

MATERIAL HANDLING INSTITUTE. Modern methods of materials handling. 248p il $5.50; to schools $4.15 Prentice-Hall
658.78 Material handling 51-1973

"An attractive and useful book showing by series of photographic illustrations and sketches, the equipment and methods specially designed and applied in large industrial firms to save time and labor and cut costs in handling bulk materials in plants and warehouses. Seventeen kinds of materials in as many industries are included, nearly one-third of the space devoted to metal products." Library J

Reviewed by J. E. Cross
Library J 76:870 My 15 '51 90w
N Y New Tech Bks 36:73 S '51

MATHESON, JEAN. The cistern and the fountain. 256p $3 Scribner
51-11742

When Mrs Maudslie's husband disappeared with all their money and her jewels, Mrs Maudslie opened her beautiful home in Scotland to paying guests. The novel describes those guests, and the trouble made by a thwarted spinster.

Booklist 48:12 S 1 '51

Reviewed by Kathleen Cannell
Christian Science Monitor p7 Ag 23 '51 380w

Kirkus 19:303 Je 15 '51 240w

"Fine characterizations, engrossing plot make this first novel a welcome addition to small public libraries. Heartily recommended." F. A. Boyle
+ Library J 76:1222 Ag '51 90w

Reviewed by Paul Bloomfield
Manchester Guardian p4 F 9 '51 40w

Reviewed by Robert Kee
New Statesman & Nation 41:166 F 10 '51 40w

"If I had stopped reading after the first hundred pages, I should have had little but praise for this novel. The writing has warmth and humor; the characters and the situation show a disciplined hand directing a story that held high promise. But, reading to the end, the first happy impression was blotted out, as though, midway, the author had lost control of the reins and let her story gallop into extravagant and incredible characteristization and drama." Rose Feld
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p13 S 9 '51 360w

"The author's sound style, sincerity, and her success in evoking such opposites as the fragrant, cozy atmosphere of a nice woman's home and the cold horror of living Evil, save the book from the fatuousness which afflicts it when she is describing the exact color of the walls or precisely what the ladies are wearing." M. S. Hurst
+ N Y Times p18 Ag 19 '51 180w

"A delightful book. . . Unfortunately the last third of the book is somewhat bogged down in a series of lurid and rather unlikely scenes of accusal, confession, and remorse, but this is a small matter beside the pleasure of the rest of the story."
+ — New Yorker 27:84 Ag 18 '51 120w

"This is more of a novel than it may seem, simple as the general plot may sound, and moderately hackneyed though the whole idea may be. The reason for this is that Miss Matheson is a good and sensitive writer, alive to such things as weather and wind and sun and storm, responding to the small matters that create atmosphere, and, best of all, the possessor of a clean, direct, good style. While no one will turn handsprings about this particular novel, though many will find it pleasant reading, Miss Matheson, I believe, is a writer to watch." J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p12 Ag 31 '51 500w

"What makes 'The Cistern and the Fountain' a superior piece of entertainment is the skill which the author shares with so many makers of otherwise quite ordinary British films, that of creating attractive human figures who, though they are not obstrusively eccentric, have quirks and oddities about them that give them memorable identity. They seem to run up the banner of individual integrity and to march under it with a resolution that demands respect along the absurd, tortuous, goalless paths of their lives." James Gray
+ Sat R of Lit 34:17 Ag 18 '51 550w

"The Cistern and the Fountain, in spite of its unfortunate title, is much better, technically, than many first novels, and is alive with a burning religious sincerity. The interplay of personalities is neatly done."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p81 F 9 '51 90w

MATHEW, DAVID, abp. The mango on the mango tree. 260p $3 Knopf 51-11059

"The scene is a passenger plane in flight across Africa; at various points on the journey, new passengers arrive, others depart. The impression is of an almost endless series of variants on the quest for the unattainable mango, irresistible and just out of reach. Despite such incidents as a forced landing and the death of one of the passengers, physical action is at an absolute minimum, the scene being always the mind of a character in progress." Commonweal

---

"The contrapuntal effects of modern fiction have seldom been used with greater subtlety than they are used here. This novel is, one may say, civilized beyond the point of action, but its portrait gallery of characters makes it a book for slow delight and savoring." Riley Hughes
+ Cath World 174:151 N '51 240w

Reviewed by Edward Wagenknecht
Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 S 9 '51 240w

"Archbishop Mathew has an urbane and easy English style, thoroughly of this century and perfectly suited to his present purposes of exploration and discovery in the mountains of the mind, of revelation by juxtaposition. In the writing itself, as in the construction and in the impact of the theme, the word for this novel is poetic." Frank Getlein
+ Commonweal 54:507 Ag 31 '51 400w

Kirkus 19:302 Je 15 '51 130w

"This brilliant, erudite novel demands and deserves close attention. It is a remarkable delineation of a cosmopolitan group of characters." R. W. Henderson
+ Library J 76:1222 Ag '51 50w

"There are many 'good things' in this book. One wonders, however, whether it would be worth the trouble to dig them out were it not for a really solid achievement: the many-sided representation of the Middle African scene, from Kenya to the Gold Coast, and particularly the malarial effect of colonialism. . . The atmosphere of alienation—alienation from other human beings, from the continent, from all but the past—is suavely created and raises the novel above the level of cleverness. The Mango on the Mango Tree is puckery fruit but not unappetizing." David Goldknopf
+ New Repub 125:20 S 24 '51 280w

"'The Mango on the Mango Tree' does not preach, nor exhort, nor attempt to divide the sheep from the goats for moral purposes. The Archbishop's mind, polished, inclined to irony, is essentially unemphatic—as befits a scholar. His book is scarcely a novel, since there is no situation to be resolved, nor any change to be suffered. Rather it is a testimonial to the bewildered human spirit and to its need, whether conscious or unconscious, for a peace which the author clearly believes can be found only in God." Virgilia Peterson
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p9 Ag 19 '51 600w

"The intellectual reader will not be likely to find a more challenging and worth-while volume for a long time." Donald Barr
+ N Y Times p10 S 2 '51 320w

"This is a thoughtful, often witty, novel, written by a thinking man with something to say. If it seems in the end to be a bitter novel, well that's also in how you take it. But the intelligent reader who does not demand 'story' every minute, in the ordinary sense of sharply defined conflict, usually physical—such a reader will be happy to be introduced to Bishop Mathew's often ironic yet always understanding novel." J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p14 S 10 '51 1000w

Reviewed by N. L. Rothman
Sat R of Lit 34:14 S 15 '51 850w

"The book has no particular plot, and the action is purely incidental to the analytical theme, but it is well done from the point of view of craftsmanship."
+ Springf'd Republican p6D Ag 19 '51 140w

Time 58:90 Ag 20 '51 280w

MATHEWS, BASIL JOSEPH. Forward through the ages; maps and il. by Louise Drew [Eng title: Disciples of all nations]. 275p $2.75; pa $1.50 Friendship press

266.09 Missions—History 51-2627

"This is missionary history for young people, but adults will find it just right for them, too. Dr. Mathews tells the story as mystery and adventure, ties it in with modern scenes wherever helpful, and gives the whole dramatic sweep of our church's history in terms of significant people. From Paul to Brent, this well illustrated book captures the imagination and tells the story." Churchman

Reviewed by R. C. Miller
+ Churchman 165:16 Jl '51 80w

"It is the last volume to come from the gifted and prolific pen of Basil Mathews, who for a generation has written with charm and accuracy on various aspects of the world mission of the church. Much of it was composed under the handicap of physical weakness and suffering, for the verdict of death had been passed by the surgeons before the work was anywhere near to completion. Yet nowhere does the little volume give the slightest hint of impaired powers. Never had Dr. Mathews written more brilliantly. . . The book is designed for young people, but those in middle and later life will find it fascinating." K. S. Latourette
+ Crozer Q 28:270 Jl '51 400w

MATHEWS, JOHN JOSEPH. Life and death of an oilman; the career of E. W. Marland; with drawings by J. Craig Sheppard. 259p $3.75 Univ. of Okla. press

B or 92 Marland, Ernest Whitworth. Petroleum industry and trade 51-13242

A biography of Ernest Whitworth Marland (1874-1941) giving an account of his famous Oklahoma oil strikes and high financial transactions.

Reviewed by Stanley Vestal
Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 N 4 '51 300w

"It is a dramatic story, one well told by Mr. Mathews, of a man's rise in the oil business. And then, carefully and without bias, Mr. Mathews traces the ebbing of E. W.'s power, his $30,000,000 loan obtained from the Morgan interests, and then, ironically, his loss of the company and its conversion into a mere feeder for the Standard group. Not only should Mr. Mathews' book be of great interest to the oil industry, but it should attract those who are interested in, yet ignorant of, this fabulous (and here I use the word in its real, not Hollywoodian, sense) industry." Bicknell Eubanks
+ Christian Science Monitor p11 N 21 '51 950w
Kirkus 19:594 O 1 '51 170w

"Of all the filibusters, developers, demagogues (for no statesman of high rank can be named) cowmen, oilmen and other lusty figures who have played their parts on the vast earthen stage of the Southwest during the last hundred and fifty years, hardly half a dozen have received treatment in biographies that can be called mature. 'Life and Death of an Oilman' is one of the scant half dozen. It is mature both in style and wisdom, in perspective, compass and interpretative power." J. F. Dobie
+ N Y Times p3 O 21 '51 850w

MATHEWS, MITFORD MCLEOD, ed. Dictionary of Americanisms on historical principles. 2v $50 Univ. of Chicago press

427.9 Americanisms. English language—Dictionaries. English language—Terms and phrases 51-1957

"'A Dictionary of Americanisms' is the successor to, but not a revision of, the monumental 'Dictionary of American English,' on which Mr. Mathews worked for 19 years as assistant to Sir William Craigie, the English lexicografer who edited the DAE for the University of Chicago Press. The earlier work was more general, and included all English words of application to American culture. The DA includes only words which were introduced into the language in this country or which have taken on a special meaning here. Another feature of the DA is that it is edited on historical principles; that is, only those words for which definite printed or written evidence of use could be found, are listed." Chicago Sunday Tribune

"Amateur word fanciers like myself, and perhaps a few professionals, will have fun searching for possible omissions. No doubt their search will sometimes be rewarded, but of course Editor Mathews will welcome anything that might be material for future editions. The more than 400 illustrations pleased me, too, for I note that the original 'cowcatcher' on railroad locomotives was actually designed to 'catch' the cow instead of shunting her off the track." Kelsey Guilfoil
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 Ap 1 '51 700w

Reviewed by W. E. Garrison
Christian Century 68:636 My 23 '51 1350w

"I have sauntered through the whole of this dictionary, and I have enjoyed as well as profited by the saunter." Horace Reynolds
+ Christian Science Monitor p7 Ag 23 '51 1350w

"The accent is strongly on history in this new dictionary. As a by-product of doing a thorough linguistic job, the work brings together the answers to a host of queries on Americana of all kinds: political, social, ethnical, geographic, religious, cultural, and technological. It gives precisely dated information, from earliest Colonial times to the present, on changes in our manners, morals, and fashions, by unearthing, so far as possible, the first occurrences in print of words and phrases arising from our folkways. In tracing the origins of words first coming into the English language in the United States, the dictionary goes behind the words themselves to get at the things, persons or events which occasioned the new coinages." S. S. Smith
+ Library J 76:960 Je 1 '51 950w

Reviewed by Randall Jarrell
Nation 173:570 D 29 '51 900w

Reviewed by J. R. Newman
New Repub 125:18 Jl 16 '51 1450w

"A work of lively and sustained interest that may be read through from beginning to end with profit and enjoyment. It is virtually a source book, continental in its range and diversity, of American experience in its most completely American aspects." George Genzmer
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 Ap 8 '51 1400w

"Mr. Mathews and the University of Chicago Press have given us more than a dictionary. They have given us a linguistic record of three hundred years of American life. Its publication is an event the creative influence of which will be felt for generations." Horace Reynolds
+ N Y Times p4 Ap 1 '51 1500w
New Yorker 27:131 My 12 '51 240w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson
San Francisco Chronicle p18 Ap 15 '51 2500w

"The 'Dictionary of Americanisms' supplies us at last with an authoritative collection of the vast additions to the English language which have originated on this side of the Atlantic." Bergen Evans
+ Sat R of Lit 34:8 Ap 28 '51 2800w

Reviewed by D. W. Brogan
Spec 187:404 S 28 '51 1550w
Times [London] Lit Sup p630 O 5 '51 500w
U S Quarterly Bk R 7:212 Je '51 430w

MATHEY, JACQUES. Women, five centuries of master drawings; with an introd. and notes [tr. by Eveline Winkworth]. (Harper's art lib; Master drawing ser) 90p 57il $3 Harper

743.44 Women in art. Drawings 51-11215

Reproductions of drawings of women by artists from Italy, Holland, Belgium, France,

MATHEY, JACQUES—Continued
and Germany. Includes critical and explanatory notes.

Reviewed by A. S. Plaut
+ Library J 76:1425 S 15 '51 30w
San Francisco Chronicle p23 S 23 '51 70w

"Jacques Mathey, French connoisseur of drawings, has furnished the introduction to the volume and prepared the interesting critical and explanatory notes for each of the 57 drawings." W. C. Smith
+ Springf'd Republican p6D Jl 8 '51 200w

MATHIESEN, EGON. Blue-eyed pussy; story and pictures; tr. by Karen Rye. 111p $2 Doubleday 51-12291

Picture-story book for ages two to five about a Siamese kitten with blue-eyes, who was sneered at by the yellow-eyed cats until he discovered the Land of Many Mice.

Booklist 48:89 N 1 '51
Cleveland Open Shelf p21 N '51

"Both story and pictures (in black and white except for the blue and the yellow eyes) have freshness, originality and humor." J. D. Lindquist and S. M. Andrews
+ Horn Bk 27:403 D '51 100w

"Both sophisticated and highly moral. An unusual item and one that both adults and children will enjoy, although its proper place is the easy book collection. . . Recommended." M. E. Martignoni
+ Library J 76:1713 O 15 '51 70w

"It is a gay, silly, slight tale, fun to read aloud to ages three to six, with art work freshly imaginative and therefore very welcome to our picture-book world. Here is 'the essence of catness,' as one artist felt it. Humorously, it is labeled a 'novel'; never mind, tell the children it is a cat's novel." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 S 30 '51 180w

"No child ever got through early youth without feeling he was different from others—which is why the story of the blue-eyed cat will be agreeable reading. The Danish author and illustrator Egon Mathiesen has created a successful book, with the simplest and gayest pictures imaginable." M. F.
+ N Y Times p42 N 11 '51 150w
+ Sat R of Lit 34:54 N 10 '51 150w

MATTHES, FRANCOIS EMILE. Incomparable valley; a geologic interpretation of the Yosemite; ed. by Fritiof Fryxell. 160p il maps $3.75 Univ. of Calif. press

557.94 Geology—Yosemite valley 50-62799

The text of this "geologic interpretation of the Yosemite" is from the author's published and unpublished writings on the valley. The volume is illustrated with photographs by Ansel Adams and others. No index.

Booklist 47:201 F 1 '51

Reviewed by Leland Horberg
J Geol 59:516 S '51 180w

"A fascinating and readable exposition of the geology of the Yosemite valley. Though definitely written for non-geologists, even geologists who are about to spend their first vacation in the Yosemite valley will find it good reading."
+ N Y New Tech Bks 36:56 Jl '51

"Maybe geology has proved difficult for you; as a lay reader, you may have found that the geologists are inclined to toss their own special terms around a bit too freely for one who hasn't studied the subject. The exception is this book, in which Mr. Matthes has written with his invariable lucidity about the Valley's geologic history so that even the ordinary reader can make sense of what he says and enjoy sound, good prose at the same time." J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p8 Ag 4 '51 350w

MATTHES, FRANÇOIS EMILE. Sequoia national park; a geological album; ed. by Fritiof Fryxell. 136p il $3.75 Univ. of Calif.

557.94 Sequoia national park. Geology—California 50-62692

Annotated photographs of typical geological features of Sequoia National park were chosen to train new members of the park staff. After the death of Glaciologist Matthes the photographs, diagrams, and notes were assembled by Professor Fryxell of Augustana college to form this book. Glossary.

Booklist 47:201 F 1 '51

"Anybody who likes mountains in an inquisitive way will like the Matthes album, even tho he never may see Sequoia National park." L. T. Heron
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 F 4 '51 90w

"The presentation is successful not so much because of the quality of the photographs and brief text as because of the organization of the material. Each photograph and accompanying annotation is focused on a single feature and forms part of a graded series by which major concepts are developed." Leland Horberg
+ J Geol 59:516 S '51 200w
San Francisco Chronicle p14 Ap 8 '51 110w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson
San Francisco Chronicle p8 Ag 4 '51 350w
Sat R of Lit 34:38 Mr 24 '51 100w

MATTHEWS, TANYA (SVETLOVA). Journey between freedoms [Eng title: Russian child and Russian wife]. 281p $3.50 Westminster press

B or 92 Russia—Social conditions 51-12739

Autobiography of a Russian woman who was very young at the time of the first revolution. Her account is of her hardships, attempts to gain an education, marriage and early divorce, and her later mariage to an English correspondent.

Booklist 48:2; 30 S 1 '51; S 15 '51

"An informative story of a way of life, of interest to those who would know how the ordinary citizen lives behind the Iron Curtain. Not a political book, but a human document."
+ Kirkus 19:472 Ag 15 '51 120w

Reviewed by H. S. Taylor
Library J 76:1329 S 1 '51 100w

"Although Mrs. Matthew's physical lot wasn't ever much harder than that of the majority of her compatriots (it was still hard enough, to be sure), she labored under the ideological handicap of having a bourgeois ancestry, with the result that her career as a teacher was generally blocked by dicta from above. Thanks to a great deal of ingenuity and natural bounce, however, she surmounted both this difficulty and that of a tumultuously unhappy first marriage, and kept her wits about her to such an extent that she has been able to set down with impressive fidelity the minutiae of her everyday life."
+ New Yorker 27:185 N 17 '51 280w
Time 58:124 N 19 '51 500w
Wis Lib Bul 47:253 N '51

MATTHEWS, WILLIAM, comp. Canadian diaries and autobiographies. 130p $2.50 Univ. of Calif.

016.92 Autobiography—Bibliography. Diaries—Bibliography. Canada—Biography—Bibliography 50-62732

"The present bibliography lists both diaries and autobiographies relating to Canada; it covers both British and French Canada; and it includes both published and unpublished documents. It is presented as a non-selective guide to personal records relating to Canadian life." (Pref) "The arrangement is alphabetical by author's name supplemented by a 'serviceable' subject-and-place index, with each entry furnishing 'brief biographical data on the writer, the time span, brief notes on contents . . . and a bibliographical record.' Chronologically, Professor Matthews has limited his bibliography to the period from the beginning of the French and Indian War to the present; geographically, to the area of present-day Canada (including Newfoundland)." (Am Hist R)

"All in all, Professor Matthews' quest in the major libraries and depositories of Canada, England, and the United States has resulted in a bibliography which he rightfully claims will, despite its shortcomings, provide the Canadian historian with 'good transportation.' Nevertheless, to this reviewer the excessively narrow limits of the present compilation seriously impair the usefulness of what is otherwise an excellent guide." M. G. Lawson

Am Hist R 56:959 Jl '51 170w

"Students of Canadian culture will be grateful for this handy compilation. . . Perhaps the most striking omissions are William Lyon Mackenzie's Own Narrative of the Late Rebellion, and W. O. Raymond's scholarly edition of the Winslow Papers 1776-1826. On the whole, however, this book is a useful and convenient, if not an indispensable, guide to Canadian materials."

+ — U S Quarterly Bk R 7:114 Mr '51 220w

MATTHIESSEN, FRANCIS OTTO. Theodore Dreiser. (American men of letters ser) 267p $4 Sloane

B or 92 Dreiser, Theodore 51-1734

An interpretation of the life and works of Theodore Dreiser by the critic and scholar, professor of American literature at Harvard, who died in the spring of 1950. Bibliographical notes General index. Index of works.

Booklist 47:293 Ap 15 '51

Bookmark 10:155 Ap '51 30w

Reviewed by Edward Wagenknecht

Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 Mr 18 '51 600w

Reviewed by Horace Reynolds

Christian Science Monitor p9 Je 16 '51 700w

"Written by the late Harvard professor, long an authority on Dreiser, this is a fine biography of a major American writer. . . Both Dreiser's name, and Matthiessen's, combine to give this a steady, substantial interest, particularly for libraries."

+ Kirkus 18:716 D 1 '50 160w

"A sympathetic estimate, valuable as critique and as cultural history." H. W. Hart

+ Library J 76:324 F 15 '51 100w

Reviewed by Paul Bloomfield

Manchester Guardian p4 Jl 20 '51 360w

Reviewed by Richard Hofstadter

Nation 172:398 Ap 28 '51 1100w

"Likely to stand as a model of succinct biographical writing." G. W. Johnson

+ New Repub 124:26 Ap 16 '51 850w

Reviewed by Walter Allen

New Statesman & Nation 42:443 O 20 '51 950w

"Although Matthiessen's study of Dreiser is all in all the best one, on a limited scale, that has yet appeared, some may feel that it does not do as much justice to the sexual force in Dreiser's work as to the economic and social." Milton Rugoff

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 Mr 4 '51 1200w

"Mr. Matthiessen is nearly always right. He attributes Dreiser's formidable descriptive power to a freshness of eye and obstinate memory fused with a deep sense of changingness which made it seem historically important to preserve appearance. He analyzes handsomely the debts to Balzac and Spencer, and the devices, such as they are, used by the novelist to organize his materials. . . Thoroughly grounded himself in American radical thought, and sympathetic with the broodings of an inquirer, Matthiessen has unraveled as well as anyone could the tangled paths by which Dreiser approached simultaneously a membership in the American Communist party and a cloudy position somewhere in the universe of neo-Christian mysticism." John Berryman

+ N Y Times p7 Mr 4 '51 2000w

New Yorker 27:91 Mr 31 '51 170w

"Matthiessen's study has a curious flatness, and one has the impression that he never quite got to grips with Dreiser's true temperament: ruthless as well as sympathetic, fascinated by power, by brutality, by suffering, ambivalent in its approach to experience as well as tortured and destructive. The biographical material in this study is simplified, too, and barely mentions the sexuality—which Dreiser himself stressed—that was at the center of his beliefs if not indeed the secret core of his work." Maxwell Geismar

Sat R of Lit 34:15 Mr 17 '51 600w

"This is the last book Professor Matthiessen wrote before his suicide, and it would have been consoling to have seen it as his best. Alas, it is by no means so. Elsewhere, Matthiessen the critic was a different man from Matthiessen the Fellow Traveller, and at least once (in his book on Eliot) he specifically repudiated the Marxist aesthetic. Here we see the fellow traveller at work, and the private taste of a considerable critic almost paralysed by the promptings of a socialistic dogma." Maurice Cranston

Spec 187:338 S 14 '51 800w

Times [London] Lit Sup p813 D 21 '51 2450w

U S Quarterly Bk R 7:142 Je '51 190w

Reviewed by J. W. Beach

Yale R n s 40:747 summer '51 550w

MAUGHAM, ROBERT CECIL ROMER. Journey to Siwa; with phot. by Dimitri Papadimou. 121p $3.75 Harcourt

916.19 Siva, Egypt 51-9170

From ancient times the oasis of Siwa lying in the desert more than 300 miles from Cairo, has been famous for its oracle of Ammon. This book, in text and photographs, combines history and legend, reminiscences of the author's war service, and description of the town and its inhabitants today.

Booklist 47:235 Mr 1 '51

" 'Journey to Siwa' is a pleasant book. Mr. Maugham's text, while nowhere profound or particularly revealing, makes quick reading and gives an adequate insight into the oasis and its history. Considerably better, however, are the numerous photographs by Dimitri Papadimou, who accompanied the author." J. G. Harrison

+ Christian Science Monitor p13 F 21 '51 550w

Foreign Affairs 30:166 O '51 10w

Kirkus 19:40 Ja 15 '51 80w

"Mr. Papadimou's photographs catch exquisitely the air of decorative squalor in the buildings and the people. Mr. Maugham's text is observant, cool, and polished. But neither disguise the fact that Siwa, though interesting to read about, must be a nasty place to live in."

Manchester Guardian p4 O 17 '50 120w

Reviewed by Nigel Nicolson

— New Statesman & Nation 40:389 O 28 '50 450w

Reviewed by William Zinsser

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 F 18 '51 450w

"A nice piece of writing. . . Well rounded out by Mr. Papadimou's splendid photographs."

+ New Yorker 26:106 F 10 '51 150w

Sat R of Lit 34:39 F 24 '51 150w

Times [London] Lit Sup p559 S 8 '50 650w

MAUGHAM, ROBERT CECIL ROMER. The rough and the smooth. 238p $3 Harcourt

51-12092

"Pat Doyne, an innocent-looking young English girl who is really the soul of badness, picks up a budding lawyer named Mike Thompson and ensnares him with no trouble at all,

MAUGHAM, R. C. R.—Continued
because, besides being imperceptive and inexperienced, he is also something of a reformer, and hopes to make her change her way of life. In the end, of course, he goes down, damaged but not destroyed, and she continues on her way, wealthier by a few hundred pounds and not in the least improved." New Yorker

Reviewed by J. F. Nims
Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 S 23 '51 400w

"This book, coming after the glossy good intentions of Maugham's other post-war books, is very rewarding. Maugham is very smooth and very serious. He is not being clever here, he is talking about good and evil, honor and suicide, the varieties of corruption. Slickness, plottiness, still occasionally intrude. Characters have no life outside their courses of action; that is to say the reader has no peripheral understanding of any of the characters." William Pfaff
+ Commonweal 54:530 S 7 '51 300w

Kirkus 19:402 Ag 1 '51 160w

"Swift, accomplished story-telling, marred by an occasional startling vulgarity." E. F. Walbridge
Library J 76:1333 S 1 '51 80w

Reviewed by Elizabeth Jenkins
Manchester Guardian p4 S 28 '51 50w

Reviewed by William Maner
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p19 N 4 '51 360w

"Working allegorically, as one suspects [the author] is doing . . . one feels that he has not quite solved the riddle he has set himself. Is the Rough all bad, inherently and irrevocably spoiled—and if so, why? Does the Smooth, for all its genuine morality and its advantages, engender good? And if so, for whom?" B. V. Winebaum
N Y Times p22 S 9 '51 450w

"Neither the girl nor the lawyer has much life, which is a pity, because the story depends on their relationship. Mr. Maugham writes in a stilted and incredulous tone, appearing to be far more affected by the conduct of his characters than any of his readers are likely to be."
New Yorker 27:114 S 8 '51 130w

"Doubtless something could be done with this. Doubtless, also, I believe, Mr. Maugham could have done it; he showed sufficient talent in 'The Servant' particularly so that the reader knows he has it. But either because he wrote it too fast, or carelessly, or for some other reason, the little novel doesn't turn out as it might have, and the reader is left with the sense of having read a rather silly story." J. H. Jackson
San Francisco Chronicle p10 S 22 '51 290w

Reviewed by James Kelly
Sat R of Lit 34:50 S 8 '51 550w

Reviewed by Marghanita Laski
Spec 187:408 S 28 '51 100w

Times [London] Lit Sup p716 N 9 '51 50w

MAUGHAM, WILLIAM SOMERSET. Trio; original stories; screenplays by the author [and others]. 156p $2.50 Doubleday 51-512

Three short stories by Maugham, with the text of the screen plays made from them. Contents: The verger; Mr. Know-all; Sanatorium.

"Recommended for film and theatre collections, particularly in universities where film-writing is taught." George Freedley
+ Library J 76:330 F 15 '51 60w

"This combination makes possible an interesting comparison of the technical devices of two kindred arts." G. F. Whicher
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p20 Mr 4 '51 50w

Springf'd Republican p19A Ja 14 '51 240w

MAURER, HERRYMON. Collision of East and West; with an introduction by Hu Shih. 352p $4.50 Regnery

915 Eastern question (Far East). Civilization, Oriental 51-11234

A series of related essays, based on materials first collected for the editors of Fortune Magazine. The essays deal in general with conflicts between East and West in political and cultural fields.

Booklist 47:400 Jl 15 '51

"The governing motive of this serious study of east-west history is the admonition that the use of other persons or peoples as devices to make oneself superior provokes hostility and leads to emotional or cultural collision. Other peoples should be treated as ends in themselves rather than means to some other end. . . Notwithstanding his neglect of national interest as a source of foreign policy, the author offers some acute reflections upon recent history in the far east." Kenneth Colegrove
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p2 Jl 1 '51 500w

Reviewed by S. F. Burgess
Christian Century 68:1014 S 5 '51 430w

Reviewed by Randall Gould
Christian Science Monitor p15 Je 14 '51 950w

"The book is disappointing. Mr. Maurer seems to feel that he has adequately informed the reader on the nature of traditional Chinese civilization by giving him a superficial summary of the supposed teachings of Confucius, Lao-tzu, and a few other lesser philosophers. With regard to pre-modern Japan he is less disappointing. Mr. Maurer improves somewhat as he approaches the present." H. C. Hinton
— + Commonweal 54:267 Je 22 '51 800w

Current Hist 21:229 O '51 70w

Kirkus 19:223 Ap 15 '51 100w

Reviewed by H. P. Linton
Library J 76:771 My 1 '51 140w

"'Collision of East and West' is a much needed book today. . . It may be that Mr. Maurer pushes his thesis of cultural collision too far and thus revives the pessimistic view of the 'inscrutable Oriental,' but it is a healthy antidote for the many Westerners who have recently presumed that they know just what the 'Oriental mind' is and precisely what the Oriental really wants. Written in a delightful style, this book will probably give the reader more insight into the cultures and problems of the Far East than any other single volume." R. L. Walker
+ N Y Times p7 Jl 15 '51 550w

"In one or another way all this has been said many times before. It needs resaying, especially in the original manner of this book. However, one rises from a reading of the forceful pages with a strong feeling that the author has overstated his case." K. S. Latourette
Sat R of Lit 34:12 S 1 '51 800w

Time 57:114 Je 18 '51 550w

Wis Lib Bul 47:186 Jl '51

Reviewed by Milton Sacks
Yale R n s 41:129 autumn '51 410w

MAURER, HERRYMON, ed. Pendle Hill reader; introd. by Elton Trueblood; pub. in assn. with Pendle Hill. 208p $2.75 Harper

289.6 Friends, Society of 51-9036

"Though previously published as pamphlets used at the Pendle Hill Quaker community, these eight essays are non-sectarian in viewpoint and stress the value of shared religious experiences in solving man's inner crises." Bookmark

Booklist 47:198 F 1 '51

Bookmark 10:106 F '51 30w

Christian Century 68:563 My 2 '51 90w

Reviewed by Neil Martin
Christian Science Monitor p11 Mr 22 '51 200w

Reviewed by F. J. Moore
Churchman 165:16 Mr 15 '51 140w

"An index would have helped anyone who might well wish to use this volume as a resource book on various aspects of the spiritual life and for the witness of many Quaker leaders. Obviously, there is desirable variety of treatment in the collection, and the reader will find a rewarding emphasis on the inward conditions which must be met if the outward stress in the world is to be released." D. J. Fleming
+ Crozer Q 28:176 Ap '51 700w

"For all seekers for truth and for God, not alone for Friends, this will be a heaven-sent book."
+ Kirkus 19:53 F 1 '51 150w
Wis Lib Bul 47:56 Mr '51

MAURIAC, FRANÇOIS. Desert of love; tr. by Gerard Hopkins. 214p $3 Pellegrini & Cudahy 51-12060

"The story is seen through the eyes of a father and son, both of whom are intensely attracted to one woman, Maria Cross. The setting is Mauriac's Bordeaux, or a suburb thereof. Father and son and twice-unattained beloved are analyzed to the bewildering depths of their passion. Only Maria Cross (who is seen directly and ambiguously) achieves, in the static, seventeen year time-span of the novel, a direction, if not a goal. This she accomplishes by marrying an outsider who has long and vaguely been her lover." N Y Times

"This new translation into English, the first since 1929, of one of Mauriac's outstanding early novels comes with the impact of a book strictly contemporary with our own times. . . One sees again that M. Mauriac, who surely ranks among the very greatest of novelists in this century, is the aphoristic novelist par excellence. This Pascal of novelists, as Graham Greene calls him, unites again and again the specific incidents of his story with superb reflections and generalizations about the human heart." Riley Hughes
+ Cath World 174:152 N '51 280w

"Mauriac is a novelist of taste and subtlety—a welcome relief if one has been bludgeoned half to death by James Jones and his like. He has a great gift for working by suggestion and implication. Yet his work is by no means the pale, obscure thing which some of our writers offer us as alternative to brutal violence. In 'The Desert of Love,' he makes an intense drama of what does not happen in this triangle involving father, son, and a woman." Edmund Fuller
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 S 2 '51 390w

Reviewed by J. A. Lynch
Commonweal 54:533 S 7 '51 600w

"A diagram of desire and expiation which is precise and subtle, which carries none of the Catholic imprint of so many of the Mauriac novels, and which will appeal to his audience—limited on this side."
Kirkus 19:358 Jl 15 '51 190w

"A dull story about uninteresting characters. Not recommended." H. R. Forbes
— Library J 76:1222 Ag '51 80w

Reviewed by G. F. Whicher
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p16 S 30 '51 60w

"First published here in 1929, 'The Desert of Love' is not a 'psychological' novel. It is rather a novel of conscience, and so it is psychological and individualistic and free in its pursuit. Its content and its style will be familiar to readers of other works by this French Catholic intellectual, columnist and academician." Philip Burnham
N Y Times p10 S 2 '51 170w
New Yorker 27:132 S 15 '51
San Francisco Chronicle p26 N 4 '51 300w
Time 58:110 Ag 27 '51 430w

MAURIAC, FRANCOIS. Men I hold great [tr. by Elsie Pell]. 130p $3 Philosophical lib.
840.9 French literature—History and criticism. Authors, French 51-12861

"Thirteen critical essays on the life and literary work of thirteen French writers and one Englishman. The book discusses Pascal, Molière, Voltaire, Rousseau, Chateaubriand, Maurice and Eugenie de Guerin, Balzac, Flaubert, Loti, Barrès, Andre Gide, Radiguet, and Graham Greene." Library J

"The book's approach is Catholic and catholic. Mauriac, in talking of other men, gives us his own message, which is one of dignity and charity. It is good to come upon a book like this, at once urbane and humane. The writing is in the best French tradition, clear and simple, yet touched with poetry." John Randolph
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p8 N 18 '51 160w

"Despite its appearance in a translation sometimes timid, sometimes desperate, hence commonly opaque, and despite the unsettling sympathies which this book, being a work of judgment, frequently exacts, few who hold French literature great will fail to find in Francois Mauriac's Men I Hold Great a genuine treasure, and to acknowledge that this treasure enriches France by helping indeed 'to maintain her in the first ranks of the nations who know man best.'" W. J. Kerrigan
+ Commonweal 55:76 O 26 '51 360w

"The book presupposes an extensive knowledge of French literature in the reader, and interest will probably be confined to students and Catholic readers."
Kirkus 19:378 Jl 15 '51 100w

"Recommended." R. P. Breaden
+ Library J 76:515 Mr 15 '51 90w
New Yorker 27:143 O 27 '51 140w

MAUROIS, GERALD. Cooking with a French touch; introd. by André Maurois; il. by Jack Maxwell. 239p $3.50 Harper
641.5 Cookery, French 51-12800

"The author was brought up in France and has the innate understanding of good food peculiar to his nationality. Five years ago, he moved to this country and since then has become thoroughly acquainted with American budgets and bills, food stores and wine shops. With these—or perhaps despite these—he has managed to maintain his high standard of cooking. His book is a rambling discussion of food and the methods of preparing it, with emphasis on the fundamental simplicity of the French way of dealing with kitchen problems." (N Y Times) Index.

Booklist 48:62 O 15 '51

"The recipes, a few of them simple, others more exacting, are representative of French cooking at its finest, and are intended for the more selective, specialty practitioner."
+ Kirkus 19:376 Jl 15 '51 130w

"Excellent index. Just about the most collectable cook book I have used in many months." K. T. Willis
+ Library J 76:2008 D 1 '51 70w

"Mr. Maurois, son of André Maurois, who contributes an introduction has inherited his father's gift for writing. His witty and informative style makes for excellent armchair reading but the subject is so inviting that most people will leave their armchairs and head for the kitchen with new courage and enthusiasm." Charlotte Turgeon
+ N Y Times p43 O 14 '51 170w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p8 O 13 '51 340w
Wis Lib Bul 47:249 N '51

MAW, MRS MARGARET (PETERSON). Nikoline's academy; pictures by Mabel Woodbury. 249p $2.75 Oxford 51-2268

A continuation of Nikoline's Choice (Book Review Digest 1947). Nikoline, now sixteen,

MAW, M. P.—Continued
goes to Brigham Young Academy, to prepare herself as a teacher in a church school. Altho she works hard to gain all she can in one year, and tries to spin out her scanty funds, she manages to have fun too. The time is the 1890's. For ages twelve to sixteen.

Horn Bk 27:188 My '51 90w

"Rather slow and serious, but valuable for regional material, giving an understanding picture of the close union between the Mormon Church and its members' everyday lives. For larger libraries and all communities where the Mormon Church is established." Eleanor Kidder
+ Library J 76:606 Ap 1 '51 90w

"The whole book is a page out of the past—a past that is part of our future." M. L. Becker
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p13 My 20 '51 140w

"We don't see so many school stories nowadays. This is a good one, with a refreshingly novel background. . . The small adventures of Nikoline's academy year are commonplace enough, but they are told with warm sympathy, and the glimpses of Mormon customs are fascinating." N. B. Baker
+ N Y Times p26 Mr 4 '51 140w
+ Sat R of Lit 34:37 Ag 18 '51 130w

MAXIMOV, SERGEI. Restless heart; tr. from the Russian by Henry Reigart. 349p $3.50 Scribner
51-10216

Life along the Volga in the 1930's forms the background of this novel. There are three villagers in love with Manefa, the beautiful but highly emotional wife of Alim. Both Alim and his brother come to violent deaths, but the third man, Dennis, survives. Dennis, the river pilot, after his affair with Manefa, gives up his life on the Volga, and starts for Moscow.

Reviewed by Richard Sullivan
Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 Ag 12 '51 200w

"Maximov shows both skill and technique, surprising in one who had so little time to train in the literary field. He knows how to tell an absorbing story and to create attractive and colorful characters." Helene Iswolsky
+ Commonweal 54:195 Je 1 '51 600w
Kirkus 19:158 Mr 15 '51 200w

"'The Restless Heart' achieves a vivid immediacy; we see and smell the great surge of the Volga. The river birds come alive, the damp foghorns of rusty steamers, the woods changing with the seasons, along the shore, the pilots, the sailors, the fish-trap, and beachcombers. The novel is not all Volga, however, and the author does not do so well outside the sphere of peasants and fishermen. The urban intelligentsia, for instance, who stay in Otvazhnoye as resort guests lack genuine human depth. The same is true of the higher party officials." Frederic Morton
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p13 Ap 8 '51 600w

"Even where the novel as such bogs down in overlong descriptions and rhapsodic passages, it is always interesting as a document of Russia in the Thirties. Although the author has not fully utilized the main dramatic conflict inherent in his period—the destruction of the ancient rural society by the new bureaucracy—his few passages on the purges, on the annihilation of the film-maker Ivashev, belong to the best in the book." Richard Plant
+ N Y Times p18 My 13 '51 360w

"Soviet influence shows itself in the main outline of his book, which is a panoramic view of a section of the everyday world, a slice of life in the manner officially described as socialist realism—a manner that so unexpectedly duplicates the high bourgeois realism of the Goncourts and Zola. But that is where the Soviet influence stops; the thinking and writing, the muscle and flesh of the realistic skeleton, are of quite another kind. . . The indoctrination process has failed abysmally, and Mr. Maximov is all warmth, heart, and pity." Anthony West
+ New Yorker 27:119 My 12 '51 800w

San Francisco Chronicle p15 Ag 19 '51 300w

Reviewed by Robert Pick
Sat R of Lit 34:26 Je 30 '51 380w

MAY, ARTHUR JAMES. Hapsburg monarchy, 1867-1914. 532p $6 Harvard univ. press
943.6 Austria—History. Hungary—History
51-7368

A political and social history of Austria-Hungary from the union of 1867 to that fatal day, June 28, 1914. A second volume will bring the history up to the end of the dual monarchy. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 48:122 D 1 '51

"Author, professor of history at University of Rochester, has written respectable books on the age of Metternich and on Europe and two world wars. This present work is a far superior achievement, the product of many years of painstaking research. May writes extraordinarily well; in spite of the mass of details which he presents, there is no dull or ponderous paragraph." F. E. Hirsch
+ Library J 76:1802 N 1 '51 210w
New Yorker 27:168 N 24 '51 180w
Springf'd Republican p8C D 16 '51 120w

MAYER, CHARLES L. Man: mind or matter? tr. and with a pref. by Harold A. Larrabee. 168p $2.50 Beacon press
146 Materialism 51-10296

"Scientist-philosopher Mayer, French writer on physics, chemistry, politics and economics, attempts 'to set forth a renovated and rejuvenated philosophy of rationalistic materialism.' (Au. Pref.) The translator (of Union College, Schenectady, N.Y.) feels that American readers should welcome this sanely optimistic survey of man's place in the universe. I believe this book can help explain a great paradox: why Western cultures thrive under materialism, yet revile any philosophy of materialism." (Library J) Index.

"This book has little to say that I have not heard before and in a far better way. It simply makes me want to know more of the way of God in Christ Jesus. Some will find it interesting and 'enjoyable'; for others it will be a waste of time. . . The book is well written. The author knows his field—the one side—and argues well." A. B. Stanger
Crozer Q 28:375 O '51 180w

"The 'rationalistic' and 'progressionist' materialism expounded by Dr. Charles Mayer in Matérialisme progressiste (1947) and L'Homme: Esprit ou matière (1949) has now been made available in English by Professor Larrabee's straightforward and readable translation for the American readers." M. H. Thompson
Ethics 61:334 Jl '51 70w

"Naturally, there will not be many religionists of any faith who will accept the thesis of this book, but they would all profit by reading it for it would force them to clarify their own thinking."
Kirkus 19:50 F 1 '51 240w

"Thought-provoking for mature, educated, and tolerant readers." J. M. Scherr
+ Library J 76:864 My 15 '51 100w

MAYER, FREDERICK. History of ancient and medieval philosophy. 546p $5 Am. bk.
180.9 Philosophy, Ancient. Philosophy, Medieval 50-13818

"This is to some extent a re-evaluation of philosophers. The Skeptics, Atomists, and Philo, all of whose ideals are partially parallel to our own, are treated in greater detail than is usually the case." (School & Society) "From Thales to Ockham, Mayer sketches the biography and the thought of the men whose ratiocination has shaped our Western culture." (San Francisco Chronicle)

Reviewed by W. E. Garrison
Christian Century 68:942 Ag 15 '51 130w

"Professor Mayer's history is designed as a text book, and is intended, one gathers, for use in a lower division college course in philosophy—or rather, a broad, general survey serving as an introduction to philosophy. As such, it is well designed and well executed. . . For clarity and conciseness, [the biographies] will be hard to better." W. R. W.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p14 D 24 '50 140w

School & Society 72:128 Ag 19 '50 30w

MAYER, GEORGE HILLMAN. Political career of Floyd B. Olson. 329p il $5 Univ. of Minn. press

B or 92 Olson, Floyd Bjernstjerne. Farmer-labor party. Minnesota—Politics and government 51-3057

Political biography by a member of the faculty of history, economics and government at Purdue University. "When Floyd B. Olson [died] on the eve of the 1936 election, his political star was so definitely in the ascendant that not even the presidency seemed beyond his reach. Although barely forty-five, he had already served ten years as Hennepin County attorney in Minnesota, won three terms as governor of Minnesota, and made careful preparations to campaign for election to the United States senate." (p.3)

Am Pol Sci R 45:908 S '51 20w

Booklist 47:327 My 15 '51

"Professor Mayer has made a significant contribution in presenting this study of Floyd B. Olson, Farmer-Labor Governor of Minnesota from 1930 to 1936. In addition to providing shrewd insights into the strengths and weaknesses of an American radical movement, especially the uneasy relations between farmers and city workers, Mr. Mayer reminds us of the explosive conditions existing in the early days of the 1930 depression." H. H. Wilson

+ Nation 172:615 Je 30 '51 1100w

"This well-documented work is not merely the study of a strong, complex, and contradictory personality, but an unusually perceptive report of the latest phase of Midwest protest politics. The author gives clear demonstration of the new problems which changing economic and social conditions have thrust upon administrators and the makers of public policy. The book should interest the general reader no less than the student."

+ U S Quarterly Bk R 7:227 S '51 270w

MAYO, ELEANOR R. October fire. 275p $3 Crowell

51-761

Story of what happened in the lives of several people when a forest fire half destroyed a small Maine village.

Booklist 47:149; 237 D 15 '50; Mr 1 '51

Bookmark 10:233 Jl '51

"The story builds to a climax which when it comes is curiously anticlimactic, but the reader's interest is held by a well told tale."

Kirkus 18:731 D 15 '50 240w

"Librarians will be glad to have such a good story to recommend with enthusiasm and without reservations." H. R. Forbes

+ Library J 76:326 F 15 '51 100w

"'October Fire' is an extremely dramatic novel. Miss Mayo keeps the tension under control and achieves suspense without tricks. Her second climax tops the first." Lisle Bell

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 F 18 '51 320w

"This excellent book [is] recommended as both a novelty in the field and an accomplished piece of writing."

+ New Yorker 27:104 F 24 '51 70w

San Francisco Chronicle p15 Mr 11 '51 200w

"Miss Mayo has supplied enough plots for a dozen soap operas and she has tied them together in a neat package. She convincingly evokes the terror and tension created by the terrible threat of forest fire and the problems of fighting it. As a bit of over-caution she has strung her plot on a mystery line centering about a mad firebug, which could well have been left out." E. J. F.

Sat R of Lit 34:30 Mr 3 '51 240w

MAYORGA, MRS MARGARET (GARDNER), ed. Best one-act plays, 1950-1951. 269p $3 Dodd

812.08 Dramas—Collections (38-8006)

Contents: Turn down an empty jug, by Barbara Packer; Three parsons, by Gerty Agoston; Rise of her bloom (an opera), by E. W. Hughes; Muletail prime, by E. P. Conkle; Valley of the shadow, by A. F. Trevisan; Farewell appearance, by Norman Holland and Stanley Richards; Good-bye to the clown (a television script), by Ernest Kinoy; Gooseberry tarts, by C. F. Lowe; Brothers, by Edward Castro; The matron of Ephesus, by Georges Sion.

Booklist 47:360 Je 15 '51

Cleveland Open Shelf p19 S '51

MAYRANT, DRAYTON, pseud. See Simons, K. D. M.

MAZIARZ, EDWARD ANTHONY. Philosophy of mathematics. 286p $4 Philosophical lib.

510.1 Mathematics—Philosophy 50-9279

"A critical study of the origins and purposes of mathematical thinking in relation to man's other activities. In the first part, which occupies about half of the volume, the views of great mathematicians and philosophers on the subject are digested and discussed. In the second part the author attempts a philosophy of mathematics of his own. The book is of interest chiefly to students of the philosophy of mathematics and the philosophy of science in general. It was prepared originally as a doctorate thesis, and it is liberally equipped with literature citations and supplementary notes." (N Y New Tech Bks) Bibliography. Index.

"The author hopes that this book will be of interest to professional mathematicians and philosophers, but it deserves a wider audience. . . The book goes into the subject competently, but in a surprisingly untechnical manner. It is written in ordinary English, without a single formula, equation, graph, Greek or Hebrew letter, or other esoteric symbol. Any seriously minded reader who has had the usual courses in mathematics required in secondary schools and freshman year in college, and a one-year college course in ancient, mediaeval, and modern European philosophy, will find most of the book within his grasp." W. K. Wright

+ Crozer Q 28:91 Ja '51 450w

Reviewed by M. H. Thompson

Ethics 61:166 Ja '51 500w

N Y New Tech Bks 35:71 S '50

MEAD, EDWARD SHEPHERD. Tessie; the hound of channel one; il. by Weston B. Emmart. 251p $2.75 Doubleday

51-9267

The story of Tessie, a dog of character, and not a very good one, who nevertheless "made" television, and swept the country with a flood of Tessie-ism.

Booklist 47:219 F 15 '51

"The story has much less plot than a video wrestling match, and its value, if any, lies in the convincing glimpses it provides of that organized confusion that is New York television." Larry Wolters

Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 Ja 28 '51 420w

"A not very important, or successful, spoof on TV, which has on the credit side a touch of light lunacy."

Kirkus 18:682 N 15 '50 200w

MEAD, E. S.—Continued

"Despite its decided unevenness, this satiric flight into TV's future is amusing." Bernard Kalb

+ Sat R of Lit 34:30 Mr 3 '51 270w

Springf'd Republican p8D Mr 11 '51 70w

MEAD, FRANK SPENCER. Handbook of denominations in the United States. 207p $2.75 Abingdon-Cokesbury

280.973 Sects. U.S.—Religion 51-11298

A reference volume which the compiler hopes to make a biennial production. It contains "carefully prepared, alphabetically arranged data on 255 religious bodies in the United States, giving history, doctrine, organization and present status. Table of church membership, glossary, index." (Bookmark)

Booklist 47:395 Jl 15 '51

+ Bookmark 10:230 Jl '51 30w

"For better or worse, here are the facts about the varieties of American religion. Mr. Mead's task has been that of a diligent research student. . . The author has succeeded admirably in carrying out his avowed purpose of avoiding evaluative statements, especially of a derogatory nature. I have not gone through all these denominational sketches with a fine-toothed comb, but the many that I have examined with some care—including the description of my own communion, about which I would perhaps be most sensitive to inaccuracies or prejudicial phrases—seem to be strictly objective and factual." W. E. Garrison

+ Christian Century 68:767 Je 27 '51 550w

Kirkus 19:559 S 15 '51 100w

"Appears to be authorative, accurate and just. Of value as a reference book and also of vast interest to those who enjoy browsing through denominations they are interested in or have heard about. Extremely interesting work which, considering its low price, could well be heavily duplicated by larger libraries and bought by nearly all smaller ones." G. W. Wakefield

+ Library J 76:1424 S 15 '51 80w

"This is a book for browsing as well as reference. Beside excellent summary histories of the major denominations, the reader will get an impression of a remarkable spiritual turmoil and strange manifestations of faith at the grass roots of America." E. M. T.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p23 S 23 '51 180w

MEAD, MARGARET (MRS GREGORY BATESON). School in American culture. 48p $1.50; text ed $1.40 Harvard univ. press

371.11 Education—U.S. Teachers 51-9913

"This small volume presents the Inglis Lecture on March 15, 1951 at Harvard University by Dr. Margaret Mead, an authority in anthropology. Recognizing the gap between the experiences and values of today's teachers and the children in their classrooms, Dr. Mead offers an original and provocative 'cause-and effect' interpretation of this situation." J Home Econ

Reviewed by E. C. Hughes
Am J Soc 57:404 Ja '52 240w

Cleveland Open Shelf p11 My '51

"This inexpensive, easy to read publication offers excellent background material for faculty study and discussion at every educational level." Letitia Walsh

+ J Home Econ 43:451 Je '51 160w

Kirkus 19:94 F 1 '51 120w

"That much abused word 'provocative' fits Margaret Mead's Inglis Lecture of 1950 so well that there is no avoiding it." Richard Plant

+ N Y Times p6 S 2 '51 260w

"Miss Mead's ways of solving the problem are less provocative than her analysis of it." Thomas Brameld

Sat R of Lit 34:15 S 8 '51 700w

School & Society 73:205 Mr 31 '51 10w

Reviewed by Frances Mayfarth
Survey 87:442 O '51 700w

MEAD, MARGARET (MRS GREGORY BATESON). Soviet attitudes toward authority; an interdisciplinary approach to problems of Soviet character. 148p $4 McGraw

914.7 National characteristics, Russian. Authority 51-12890

"This book is a survey, on different levels, of the nature of Soviet leadership today. It was prepared for The Rand Corporation by a research group of anthropologists, psychologists, political scientists, under the direction of Margaret Mead. Since direct study within the U.S.S.R. was impossible . . . an intensive study was made of Soviet newspapers, professional journals, movies, and records of Party Congresses, and selected interviews were carried on with émigrés of different periods. The basic research was done in the Russian language." Publisher's note

Reviewed by Alex Inkeles
Am Soc R 16:893 D '51 1000w

Booklist 48:63 O 15 '51

Reviewed by R. A. Spencer
Canadian Forum 31:234 Ja '52 420w

Current Hist 21:357 D '51 130w

"An enlightening and spellbinding report on our bewildering Communist antagonists."

+ Kirkus 19:544 S 15 '51 300w

Reviewed by H. H. Bernt
Library J 76:1216 Ag '51 120w

Reviewed by Barrington Moore
Nation 173:306 O 13 '51 850w

"All who are seriously interested in the Soviet Union will find many suggestive insights in this book. But they will note that its judgments are far from established and its evidential basis inadequate. In particular, they will note that the study assumes the existence of a traditional Russian 'character' upon which a Soviet pattern has been impressed. All this, even if true, leaves out the non-Russian half of the Soviet population and fails to explain the influence upon Soviet personality development of leadership given by such non-Russians as Stalin, Beria, Mikoyan and Kaganovich." Harry Schwartz

+ — N Y Times p14 O 7 '51 450w

"This reviewer must confess that he finds none of this highly original. Moreover, the book suffers from naivete and tameness. The findings are not quite digested. One sometimes has the impression of wandering in a maze of raw research material written heavily and presented dully. However, as tentative notes Miss Mead's book is worthwhile—but to the specialist rather than to the general reader." David Hecht

Sat R of Lit 34:36 D 22 '51 600w

MEADE, EDWARD GRANT. American military government in Korea. 281p $3.75 King's Crown press

951.9 Korea—Politics and government 51-9103

An analysis of the American occupation administration of Korea during 1945 and 1946. Bibliography. Index.

"Meade's book is honest and written with courage. Sometimes he may understate the more dramatic; elsewhere he may be bold. He has given us a good document to add to the literature of American postwar foreign policy, and a mine of source information, but one does wish that a reference map of Korea had been included." T. K. Noss

+ Am Soc R 16:411 Je '51 550w

"This small book is another worthwhile contribution to the increasing bibliography on military government. Its feature is the usually neglected local administration: the examination and analysis of the operations of American civil affairs officers, in one Korean Province, during 'the crucial first year of occupation' (p. 1).

It is unfortunate that the author did not clarify a common indistinction of terms." P. H. Taylor

+ — Ann Am Acad 275:229 My '51 440w

Booklist 47:234 Mr 1 '51

Reviewed by M. B. Janson
Christian Science Monitor p9 Ja 30 '51 300w

Foreign Affairs 30:168 O '51 10w

Reviewed by C. Kondapi
Pacific Affairs 24:324 S '51 750w

"Despite its slimness, this is a substantial book, combining broad coverage with depth and solid detail." R. M. Leighton
+ Pol Sci Q 66:622 D '51 420w

Sat R of Lit 34:57 Je 16 '51 270w

"Although this study is commendably objective and informative, its use of Korean documents is unfortunately limited, and it suffers from failure to identify personnel in the military government. A map would obviously have been helpful to the reader."
U S Quarterly Bk R 7:276 S '51 300w

MEADER, STEPHEN WARREN. Bulldozer; il. by Edwin Schmidt. 239p $2.50 Harcourt 51-12710

With the aid of a bulldozer salvaged from a lake, they bought and reconditioned, two boys set up a contracting business and make a success of it.

Booklist 48:71 O 15 '51

"Bill learned a good deal about the D2 and also about men. He had to deal with underhanded competitors, as well as with blizzards and forest fires. His is a vigorous, eventful, and appealing story." W. H.
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p18 N 11 '51 120w

Cleveland Open Shelf p22 N '51

Kirkus 19:534 S 15 '51 140w

"Highly recommended for any boy—or girl—who has taken apart a clock, whether he got it together again or not. Good for slow readers. Grades 7-10." Learned Bulman
+ Library J 76:2017 D 1 '51 80w

"The detailed realism of Bill's story would not fascinate every one, it will be absorbing to any boy over twelve who has a flair for machinery, or who welcomes a book that sounds honest, about putting over a hard job." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p16 N 11 '51 230w

Reviewed by H. B. Lent
N Y Times p20 N 11 '51 150w

"It is the story of a sturdy machine and a boy with courage, ingenuity and grit." J. F. S.
+ Springf'd Republican p14C N 4 '51 110w

Wis Lib Bul 47:261 N '51

MEANS, MRS FLORENCE (CRANNELL). Hetty of the Grande Deluxe; il. by Helen Blair. 188p $2.50 Houghton
51-283

Sixteen-year-old Hetty and her family move into an apartment house in an unfashionable section of Denver. Hetty finds her neighbors of her own age are a crippled boy and a rather pathetic girl, the daughter of a share-cropper. The story is of Hetty's adjustments to her new situation, in which she is helped by the boy, and in turn helps the girl. For ages twelve and older.

Booklist 47:223 F 15 '51

Reviewed by A. L. Shea
Chicago Sunday Tribune p17 Mr 4 '51 200w

"High school classmates of many races and different social backgrounds are well integrated as part of her development. But girls will read the book because they will find themselves in Hetty and understand her, and because the story moves quickly from one situation to another and is lively and modern." S. M. A.
+ Horn Bk 27:113 Mr '51 150w

Kirkus 19:27 Ja 15 '51 180w

"An interesting and very worth-while story by this excellent writer of stories of tolerance." E. E. Frank
+ Library J 76:416 Mr 1 '51 70w

"Purposeful as are all this writer's books, still this offers her followers a teen-age heroine more honestly portrayed than most. The incident of the 'spiked punch' is well handled, as are all the high school scenes." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p19 My 13 '51 200w

"There are many lessons here, but they do not overweigh the straightforward story of a likable girl." M. C. Scoggin
+ N Y Times p30 F 25 '51 180w

Sat R of Lit 34:56 My 12 '51 150w

Times [London] Lit Sup p9 N 23 '51 60w

Wis Lib Bul 47:94 Ap '51

MEDICINAL chemistry; a series of reviews [prepared under the auspices of the Division of medicinal chemistry of the American chemical society; Chester M. Suter, editor-in-chief]. v 1 473p il $10 Wiley

615 Chemistry, Medical and pharmaceutical

"The first volume published in a series which should prove widely useful to professional workers in pharmacology and biochemistry. Each volume will contain several monographs in which the existing knowledge of biological properties of particular substances will be summarized, with some emphasis on correlating chemical structure and physiological activity. The present volume contains six monographs of which 'Antithyroid Compounds' by George W. Anderson and 'Benzoates and Substituted Benzoates as Local Anesthetics' by Thomas P. Carney are typical." Library J

"Those who are fascinated by the 'will-o-the-wisp'—the relationship between chemical structure and physiological activity—will find that wherever possible, the authors have indulged in such correlation. Their objectivity and restraint is indicative of their years of experience in the area under discussion. Despite the magnitude of the job it is hoped that succeeding volumes will soon be forthcoming; those who attempt to keep up with developments in medicinal chemistry will find such reviews invaluable library additions." George Rieveschl
Chem & Eng N 29:4773 N 5 '51 300w

Reviewed by R. R. Hawkins
Library J 76:877 My 15 '51 70w

"Each of the authors of the articles in this volume is actively engaged in industrial research in the field he discusses. It seems likely that this series will become a necessity for research workers in the fields it covers."
+ U S Quarterly Bk R 7:314 S '51 210w

MEE, JOHN FRANKLIN, ed. Personnel handbook. 1167p il $10 Ronald

658.3 Employment management 51-9456

"A manual in ten sections; explains and gives detailed procedures for all phases of a personnel program in industrial and business organizations. Small type, thin paper in the usual handbook format." Booklist

Booklist 47:248 Mr 15 '51

"Good index. There are some references to sources, but unfortunately no bibliography. A valuable desk book for the executive and for library collections." J. E. Cross
+ Library J 76:707 Ap 15 '51 110w

"A good 'refresher course' for those experienced in personnel administration, as well as helpful guides to newcomers in the field. . . Valuable as the Personnel Handbook is to the novice, it is even more helpful to those with experience, for it aids them both in seeing the forest and distinguishing the trees. There is no single recipe which suffices to meet all needs. But in this compact book lots of experience and wisdom have been distilled in a

MEE, J. F.—Continued
universally useful form. Whether as 'refresher' or as a road map, Personnel Handbook serves a useful function." E. M. Herrick + Management R 40:248 Ap '51 500w

MEEK, STERNER ST PAUL. Pagan, a border patrol horse. 238p $2.50 Knopf 51-9814

Story for older boys about a man and his horse employed by the Border Patrol. Their duty is to keep Mexican aliens from entering the United States illegally.

Kirkus 19:128 Mr 1 '51 70w

"Rousing adventure and horse lore will certainly appeal to fans of this genre. Recommended where needed." C. A. Hulton
Library J 76:1237 Ag '51 60w

"Neither Mexico nor the U.S. is presented in a good light. Corrupt officials, conniving farmers, rough language, and the exploits of two superhuman patrol men who track down 'border rats' and 'rabbits' fill the book. Over 30 footnotes impede the narrative. Book lacks integrity. Not recommended." M. K. Walraven
— Library J 76:1237 Ag '51 100w

"Boys over twelve will like the thrills. . . As usual the Colonel's preface tells how he gathered his facts, working with various patrols along the Mexican border as a volunteer inspector. Actually, horses no longer are widely used in this service, but Pagan he did know and rode on the trails himself." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 Ap 8 '51 80w

"As in all Colonel Meek's books, the relationship between a man and his horse or dog is the basis of the good work done by both."
+ Sat R of Lit 34:48 My 12 '51 90w

MEG, ELIZABETH, pseud. of ELIZABETH WENNING GOEPP and MARGARET WEBB SANDERS. Packet Alley; a magic story of now and long ago. 182p il $2.50 Putnam
51-3155

The twins, Cathie and Ted, are told by their father to find out something about the past of New Castle, Delaware. This story for young readers tells how, with the help of some magic glasses, they completed their assignments.

Reviewed by A. C. Moore
Horn Bk 27:238 Jl '51 40w

"A delightful and magical glimpse of history."
+ Kirkus 19:184 Ap 1 '51 140w

"A delightful story of fantasy and fact. . . Recommended for all libraries." C. W. Field
+ Library J 76:969 Je 1 '51 70w

"The device is simple if not exactly original . . . for the most part these incidents are not so dramatic as one expects them to be. Yet they are told in an easy fashion which convinces one that, with a little imagination, the past can be seen as Cathie and Ted saw it, with 'the eyes of the mind.' " E. L. B.
+ — N Y Times p24 Je 17 '51 180w

Springf'd Republican p8D Jl 1 '51 100w

MEHRING, WALTER. The lost library; the autobiography of a culture; translated by Richard and Clara Winston. 290p $3.50 Bobbs
B or 92 Books and reading 51-11567

"Mr. Mehring, a distinguished German poet, was forced to flee his country when Hitler took power. . . Mr. Mehring's father was one of those wonderful European liberals who believed . . . that the solutions to all the dilemmas of the human race were to be found in the proper books. This library that possessed all the secrets and riddles and solutions, the elder Mehring accumulated; and the younger Mehring, through the Lord knows what manipulations, had it successfully smuggled out of Germany. It is with love and not a little bitterness that the author touches on the various tomes of his father's library; through such intellectual and symbolic 'touching,' the author touches, as it were, on the history of man's ideas, on the magnificence of his cultural progress, on the illusions of the man of good will, and on the eventual destruction of the beauty and ideals that man had been able to create." Atlantic

"Mr. Mehring has a flair for summing up a book's meaning. . . Though this book may be rough going for the casual reader, it is a beautifully conceived and beautifully executed job. The author, at a guess, is in these untutored days a highly unexpendable man."
+ Atlantic 188:85 Ag '51 250w

Reviewed by Fritz Richter
Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 Ag 5 '51 430w

Reviewed by Serge Hughes
+ Commonweal 54:408 Ag 3 '51 1800w

Reviewed by C. E. M. Joad
New Statesman & Nation 42:632 D 1 '51 800w

"As a record of a humane spirit who lived to see humanism at bay, this is a moving book. In an age of television and atomic bombs, it makes clear what the humanistic tradition has meant to a European intellectual, and what one man has learned about the fragility of spirit, against the threats of barbarism both of men and of machines used for brutal or brutalizing ends." Irwin Edman
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 Jl 22 '51 900w

"If there is any criticism to be made of Mehring's book, it is that the writer has not told us enough of his own adventurous story. An American rightly might have put the main emphasis upon this. Not so Mehring. Native to an intellectual climate which demands of a book that it have either German profundity or French wit, he tries not without luck to satisfy both requirements and to produce something which is both witty and deep. . . The translation by Richard and Clara Winston preserves all the polish of the original. Whoever cares for books will love this book about books." H. E. Jacob
+ N Y Times p4 Jl 15 '51 480w

New Yorker 27:70 S 1 '51 190w

San Francisco Chronicle p22 S 30 '51 400w

"It is not easy to classify this volume. Its narrative evolves from fragments of memories which come to the narrator as, in his rented Vienna room, he unpacks the thousands of books once owned by his father. Yet this is not autobiography, or memoir. . . The stories he tells about people he met—great, near-great, and small—are as numerous as they are varied in their importance. His book's index is, among other things, a veritable Who's Who of European Bohemia and literary coffeehouse society between the wars. Experimental writers and artists and founders of ephemeral 'isms' are mentioned side by side with a Proust, a Gide, or the impression a Conrad made on young Mehring." Robert Pick
Sat R of Lit 34:8 Ag 18 '51 1200w

Times [London] Lit Sup p786 D 7 '51 380w

MELLAN, IBERT. Industrial solvents. 2d ed 758p $12 Reinhold
660 Solvents. Chemistry, Technical. Chemicals 51-9102

"Although it is eleven years since the first edition of this book was published [Book Review Digest 1940] it is still the most comprehensive treatment of solvents of industrial importance. The work is a basic reference tool, and it contains in textual, graphical, and tabular form a vast amount of information regarding the physical and chemical properties and applications of commercially useful solvents. Extensive rewriting and the inclusion of new data account for almost 300 additional pages in this edition. More specifically, the former appendix on nitroparaffins has been expanded to chapter length; there are new chapters on amines and furfural; and the chapter on alcohols has been considerably enlarged.

Chapter references have been brought up to date, and an extensive bibliography has been added." N Y New Tech Bks

"Several details are worthy of separate mention. A most useful table gives the solubility of water in solvents—information which is often hard to find in the literature. The section on azeotropy and solvent theory is often incoherent. A number of typographic improvements could have been made. Space is wasted in the placement of many tables. Text is occasionally scattered among tables in such a way as to make reading a discontinuous chore. There is a noticeable lack of uniformity in drafting styles and type faces used in many tables and graphs. These are but minor distractions in a book which contains such a wealth of useful solvent information." F. G. Sawyer

Chem & Eng N 29:2224 My 28 '51 210w

"The author's presentation of the dynamics and thermodynamics of the liquid and vapor states is hardly the best, the questions of formulations of solvents for synthetic and natural resin surface coatings is far from complete, the long chapter on industrial applications of solvents can at best only be spotty. And the valuable chapter (new to this edition) on safe handling of solvents cannot begin to go into all of the engineering aspects of the question. . . Nevertheless this is an invaluable repository of the many thousands of facts about many hundreds of materials which are here made available. . . Certainly it is a first place to look for all data needed on solvents industrially." D. F. Othmer

+ — Chem Eng 58:296 My '51 550w

N Y New Tech Bks 36:14 Ja '51

MELLERS, WILFRID HOWARD. Francois Couperin and the French classical tradition. 412p $6 Roy pubs.

B or 92 Couperin, François

"Contains not only a full-length study of all Couperin's music, something never before undertaken even in France, but also an attempt to place the man and his music in the larger setting—social, political and artistic—of France during the last two decades of Louis XIV's reign." Times [London] Lit Sup

"A major piece of description and criticism, by the British musicologist, and the first considerable book on Couperin in English. Illustrates on a much smaller and more intensive scale the intent of the author in his rather less successful—but probably more popular—Music and Society; for here is a thorough-going interpretation of the values, moral concepts, tastes, and artistic accomplishments of courtly life in the time of Louis XIV, the background against which Couperin lived out his days." C. K. Miller

+ Library J 76:866 My 15 '51 150w

"This book includes a critical estimate of all his works, and another valuable feature is a description of the intricate ornamentation in the keyboard music—a most illuminating explanation that is the best thing of its kind since Arnold Dolmetsch wrote." G. A. H.

— Manchester Guardian p4 Ja 16 '51 300w

"A volume of lasting importance and usefulness, in marked contrast to the flood of trifling —and often piffling—little books about music which now pour from the press. Mellers on Couperin will become as indispensable a work of reference as Toye on Verdi: both books are distinguished by extreme thoroughness, together with a passionate love and deep understanding of a previously underestimated composer. And Mr. Mellers's elaborate appendices contain everything we are likely to need about editions, style of performance, the meanings of the titles of the clavecin pieces, and so on." Desmond Shawe-Taylor

+ New Statesman & Nation 41:162 F 10 '51 1000w

N Y Times p17 My 13 '51 200w

"Mellers well illuminates the background and atmosphere in which Couperin lived and worked. Whatever he writes about the lute and its influence on the harpsichord is worth study. In general he has written a valuable book. But some questions—vital to an understanding of Couperin—remain obscure." Wanda Landowska

+ — Sat R of Lit 34:48 Mr 31 '51 2000w

"The great point is that, from the book as a whole, Couperin really does emerge as le grand, not merely the most eminent musician of the Couperin dynasty, but a great composer. . . The illustrations are well chosen and the book is replete with musical examples; unfortunately, many of the latter are not as meticulously accurate in every ornament and slur as Couperin himself would have wished." Dorothy Swainson

+ Spec 185:532 Ap 20 '51 650w

Reviewed by Victor Prahl

Springf'd Republican p11D Je 24 '51 480w

"The voluminous information and the abundant reflections contained in this book do not make it an easy one to read. . . Mr. Mellers has staked a new claim for English scholarship in this field, and if his book has some of the failings of its kind, it is nevertheless a remarkable achievement and provides a classical study of a composer and period wholly neglected in this country and insufficiently investigated elsewhere."

+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p802 D 15 '50 900w

MELLERS, WILFRID HOWARD. Music and society. 2d ed 230p il $3.50 Roy pubs.

780.9 Music—History and criticism. Music —Philosophy and esthetics [51-1247]

"That the author has done considerable revision in this second edition of a much-read history augurs well for the future; for Prof. Mellers has a flair for the handling of matters sociological in conjunction with the musical, and should be quietly reworking and amplifying his material against a later date, perhaps a decade or two hence, when he should publish a yet more definitive and larger work. . . The author 'argues that our modern composers might well need a completely new technique to overcome the bias against serious contemporary music, especially if music is to become the popular force it has been in the past.' Americans may be interested to note that Blitzstein comes in for about the same amount of attention as does Copland." Library J

"A stimulating book which makes the reader think for himself." C. K. Miller

+ Library J 76:866 My 15 '51 160w

"If the American reader has any doubts about the authority of the author these will be resolved by the final chapter on 'American Music and Industrial Community.' Limiting the discussion mainly to Charles Ives, Aaron Copland, and Marc Blitzstein, Mr. Mellers writes more understandingly about these American composers than most American critics." M. S.

+ N Y Times p17 My 13 '51 120w

"Illumined by remarkable erudition combined with deep musical sensitivity and literary artistry, this account of the evolution of English musical styles in relation to social concepts shows the importance of the social background in shaping British music and explains plausibly the flowering of this music at certain periods as well as the lack of a first-rate musical culture from Purcell's time until the present." N. C. Carpenter

+ Sat R of Lit 34:26 My 26 '51 270w

Reviewed by Victor Prahl

Springf'd Republican p11D Je 24 '51 230w

MELLOR, ANDREW. India since partition. 156p $2.50 Praeger

954 India—History. Pakistan 51-5545

"A brief account by a British newspaperman of the political and diplomatic events of the last decade in India, with emphasis upon the climactic months which preceded and followed the partition, on August 15, 1947, of the Indian subcontinent into the countries of Pakistan and India." Library J

MELLOR, ANDREW—Continued

"While a convenient outline, this study has no penetrating analysis of Indian developments since 1947. There is no realistic estimate of the new Constitution, the problem of population pressure is barely mentioned; no attempt is made to assess the role of Gandhi; and too little is said about inconsistencies in Indian foreign policy, especially in the case of Kashmir." T. W. Wallbank

Ann Am Acad 278:234 N '51 500w

Reviewed by Gilbert Twiss

Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 S 9 '51 80w

Christian Century 68:1283 N 7 '51 60w

Current Hist 21:167 S '51 70w

Foreign Affairs 30:167 O '51 10w

"Except for evident sympathy for the cause of India, this is a well-balanced and objective treatment. It contains excellent chapters on the constitutions of the new countries, and on the present economic and political situation, but does not attempt to explain in any detail the long-standing religious and sociological causes of discord among the peoples of India and Pakistan. Recommended." J. W. Rogers

+ Library J 76:1124 Jl '51 120w

Reviewed by W. N. Brown

Nation 173:528 D 15 '51 200w

Reviewed by H. N. Brailsford

New Statesman & Nation 42:79 Jl 21 '51 500w

"Mr. Mellor has given his well-documented account with a minimum of obstructive detail, and I can think of no other book that covers as competently, clearly and thoughtfully the major events of recent Indian history." Santha Rama Rau

+ N Y Times p3 Jl 1 '51 800w

"Mr. Mellor 'covered' the transfer of power in India for the London Daily Herald. His book, as far as it goes, is an honest and forthright presentation of recent events in India and of some of the problems arising from them. But it does not go far enough and, therefore, as an overall report on present-day India, it is an unbalanced book, both in its facts and in its interpretation." Sidney Hertzberg

+ — Sat R of Lit 34:46 Ag 4 '51 750w

"The book can be compared to a judge's summing-up, balancing carefully all that has been said for both sides without being dull or prosaic. . . A complete stranger to India and its problems can, from this book, get a very accurate general impression of the present situation and its origins."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p367 Je 15 '51 500w

MENDELSOHN, OSCAR ADOLF. Earnest drinker; a short and simple account of alcoholic beverages (with a glossary) for curious drinkers; with a pref. and add. notes by T. A. Layton. 241p $3.75 Macmillan

663.1 Beverages, Alcoholic

"This volume might not improperly be described as a short encyclopaedia dealing with nearly every aspect of drinks and drinking. It is divided into a score of chapters on the various categories of beverages from wines and beer through the various spirits and liqueurs to ciders, vermouths, etc. The author is an Australian scientist, whose technical knowledge is augmented by an uncommon appreciation and sense of values." New Statesman & Nation

"Here, at last, is a book which deals sensibly and factually with drinks and particularly with wine drinking." R. G. E. Willison

+ New Statesman & Nation 40:558 D 2 '50 650w

"Besides being out to bust what [the author] calls the 'aristocratic wine tradition,' he presents much sound, well-organized information concerning the making of wine, whiskey, brandy, liqueurs, and malt beverages, as well as notes on their origins and special characteristics. He is aided in his war of extermination against the connoisseur by one of the most inept preface writers who have come along in some time."

+ — New Yorker 27:114 Mr 3 '51 160w

"Unfortunately, with the best will in the world Mr. Mendelsohn has turned out a dullish book. Many will wish that it had been written by someone like, say, Reginald Reynolds, who did that amusing but immensely informative little book about household sanitation called 'Cleanliness and Godliness' a year or two ago, and another on the subject of beards some months later. That would have been the ideal approach." J. H. Jackson

San Francisco Chronicle p14 F 21 '51 200w

Sat R of Lit 34:23 D 29 '51 140w

"As a compendium of exact scientific and technical information, with a comprehensive glossary of alcoholic beverages and terms, it can be recommended to the lay reader."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p731 N 17 '50 700w

MENDL, ROBERT WILLIAM SIGISMUND. Soul of music; foreword by Ernest Newman. 291p il $3.50 Macmillan

780.4 Music [51-1585]

"Mr. Mendl describes the form of his book as a theme and variations. The theme is 'the relationship between music and the world outside itself. The variations show the ways in which that relationship works itself out in musical embodiments of religion, emotions, nature, and so on.' " Times [London] Lit Sup

"The self-evident contradictions in this thesis are nowhere overcome. . . Stylistic analyses of certain forms here are illuminating—especially the waltz as related to modern life. But music's independence is never actually allowed; to find the symphonic poem, for example, ideal for 'plumbing the depths of human nature' again confuses objective and subjective. For music is everywhere sui generis, expressing itself, not feelings and emotions. Nor is it for this reason any less meaningful to listener or performer, who may bring to it whatever associations he wishes." N. C. C.

Sat R of Lit 34:26 My 26 '51 270w

Times [London] Lit Sup p112 F 23 '51 600w

MENDOZA, DANIEL. Memoirs of the life of Daniel Mendoza; ed. and with an introd. by Paul Magriel. 116p il $4 Batsford

B or 92 Boxing 51-13258

"A view of 18th century England from an unusual vantage point is to be found in this account of the ups and downs of Daniel Mendoza, the great English boxer of a century and a half ago. Mendoza, who seemingly wrote his memoirs without the aid of a literary 'ghost,' describes how he drifted into pugilism thru the medium of several street brawls [none of them his fault—or so he insists] and even includes the complete public correspondence between himself and Richard Humphreys and his three bouts with that fighter. Also dealt with are Mendoza's financial reverses, boxing school, exhibition appearances, and immense popularity with the public." (Chicago Sunday Tribune) Originally published in 1816.

"The book has especial interest, naturally, to followers of 'the fancy,' but also is human enough to afford pleasure to those to whom the prize ring is anathema." Robert Cromie

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 O 14 '51 170w

"Recommended for both boxing and social history." R. W. Henderson

+ Library J 76:1340 S 1 '51 60w

Manchester Guardian p4 Ag 17 '51 170w

"The intelligence which Mendoza shows throughout his book enabled him to have considerable effect in removing from boxing some of the brutality which characterized it. . . All those interested in the evolution of fighting into boxing must be grateful to Mr. Magriel for resurrecting and resetting this minor classic of the ring."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p600 S 21 '51 500w

MENKE, FRANK GRANT, comp. All-sports record book. rev ed 326p $5 Barnes, A.S.

790.3 Sports

"Follows arrangement of author's New Encyclopedia of Sports (1947), necessarily duplicating some data, but with immense additions. Eighty-seven sports and pastimes, indoor games, dogs, horse shows, to name a few, are covered, giving records, statistics, facts and a variety of information. A standard reference book which should stand beside the Encyclopedia. We would like to see the publisher combine both books, competently edited, and with detailed index. If Cummin's Dictionary of Sports were added we would have the perfect encyclopedia!" Library J

Booklist 47:131 D 1 '50

Reviewed by R. W. Henderson
Library J 76:50 Ja 1 '51 80w

San Francisco Chronicle p17 Ja 21 '51 100w

"Despite the limitations of its index, The All-Sports Record Book will provide answers to most of the questions that arise in regard to records in sports and will appeal to a wide audience. It is recommended for general library purchase."

+ Subscription Bks Bul 22:11 Ap '51 1300w

MERCER, CHARLES E. Narrow ledge. 251p $3 Morrow

51-1622

A love story in which the hero-narrator, a thirty-eight year old psychiatrist, finds his professional tenets do not help much in his personal life.

Kirkus 19:32 Ja 15 '51 110w

"This book is good reading and a better than average novel. Plot is well constructed and characters are convincing. Recommended." H. R. Forbes

+ Library J 76:514 Mr 15 '51 100w

"Brightly written, steadily amusing and thoroughly shrewd and witty in its urbane analysis of the professional, social and love life of a psychiatrist with a suburban practice, 'The Narrow Ledge' is tops in sophisticated summer reading." F. H. Bullock

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 Je 10 '51 400w

Reviewed by Henry Cavendish
N Y Times p15 Jl 1 '51 80w

"Psychiatric background, a self-conscious first-person approach and the tiresome conventions of the so-called modern novel create pitfalls which the author circumvents with dubious success." M. L. Mueller

San Francisco Chronicle p17 Jl 29 '51 110w

MEREDITH, ROY. Mr Lincoln's contemporaries; an album of portraits by Mathew B. Brady. 233p $6 Scribner

973.7 Portraits. U.S.—Biography. U.S.—History—Civil war—Pictorial works 51-12294

"Collection of 172 photographs illustrating American social and political life between 1850 and 1865. . . The magnificent Brady portraits, many of them never before reproduced, give a vivid representation of the personality and character of men and women who were the prominent citizens of nearly a century ago." (Library J) Index.

Booklist 48:21; 28 S 15 '51

Reviewed by Paul Engle
Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 S 23 '51 400w

Reviewed by Henry Sowerby
Christian Science Monitor p11 O 25 '51 500w

Kirkus 19:421 Ag 1 '51 120w

"This volume will be of value to all American historical collections and will have a lasting importance for pictorial research." Herbert Cahoon

+ Library J 76:1418 S 15 '51 100w

"There is not an uninteresting plate in the book and the majority are of such vitality, so straightforward yet so guilefully designed, that you blink, start and mutter to yourself as you turn the pages."

+ New Repub 125:21 O 1 120w

"In all the images is some self-consciousness. Such was Brady's genius, however, that the limitations of the medium could not suppress the diverse characters, temperaments and essential liveliness of his subjects. History owes much to him and students will be grateful to Mr. Meredith for intensifying the indebtedness. Those who would see the nineteenth century and see it plain can do no better than to look into this book. In it the past is not restored; it lingers. The text is excellent; more than commentary, more than background, never intrusive it adjusts the focus on Mathew Brady's world." D. C. Mearns

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p7 S 23 '51 750w

Reviewed by Walker Evans
+ N Y Times p7 S 30 '51 420w

New Yorker 27:123 S 29 '51 130w

San Francisco Chronicle p19 S 23 '51 80w

"Brady was a genius; the word is not too big for him. And these portraits are astonishingly fine, for his time or for any time." J. H. Jackson

+ San Francisco Chronicle p18 S 28 '51 550w

Reviewed by J. G. Randall
Sat R of Lit 34:17 O 20 '51 700w

MERGENDAHL, CHARLES HENRY. It's only temporary. 273p $3 Doubleday

50-11190

"The adventures—sometimes humorous, sometimes serious—of several couples thrown together by chance in a giant housing development." Publisher's note

Reviewed by F. N. Litten
Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 F 4 '51 400w

Kirkus 18:647 O 15 '50 230w

"Mr. Mergendahl has written an amusing novel, with passages of extremely witty satire. . . When he tears into his subject—Camptown as a whole—he is more successful than in his description of personal relationships, and if he occasionally attributes to community living things that his particular people would probably have done in a desert, it is forgivable because he does it cleverly." Joanna Spencer

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p9 D 31 '50 650w

"The author has a true ear for dialogue plus a camera eye for detail and his story is spun with blunt truthfulness and considerable skill." Andrea Parke

+ N Y Times p13 D 31 '50 230w

"Unfortunately Mr. Mergendahl's young people suffer from the same multiplicity of detail that afflicts the housing development. The confused reader, essaying to follow their tangled lives, becomes involved in a large scale real estate project to the detriment of his interest in the tenants as human beings. There are too many people, just as there are too many houses; with the best of intentions the author's treatment of them is confined to the surface, again like the architectural emphasis." Josephine Lawrence

Sat R of Lit 34:34 Ja 27 '51 250w

Time 57:64 Ja 1 '51 390w

MERK, FREDERICK. Albert Gallatin and the Oregon problem; a study in Anglo-American diplomacy. 97p $2.50 Harvard univ. press

327.73 Oregon—History. Gallatin, Albert 50-10277

"A study of the negotiations between the United States and Great Britain over the division of the Oregon Territory in the years 1826-1827. Professor Merk deals with the negotiations as an example of peacemaking. He shows how Albert Gallatin, through his moderate and cosmopolitan outlook, was able to soothe British temper and quiet American aggressiveness in the cause of peace." (Current Hist) Index.

MERK, FREDERICK—Continued

"A small but meaty volume. . . This is a fresh account of how Albert Gallatin, the 'peacemaker,' caught between the American intransigence of John Quincy Adams and the British intransigence of George Canning, worked out an agreement which settled nothing permanently but which relieved Anglo-American tensions, educated each party to the dispute in the claims and attitudes of the other, and thus helped to prevent provocative acts that might have led to armed conflict. The book, however, is much more than a mere narrative of this one negotiation. It delves deep into the motives on both sides and incidentally throws new light upon the noncolonization principle of the Monroe Doctrine." J. W. Pratt
+ Am Hist R 56:670 Ap '51 400w

Am Pol Sci R 45:269 Mr '51 60w

"This is a scholarly and well written monograph." A. H. Kelly
+ Ann Am Acad 274:227 Mr '51 450w

Reviewed by W. N. Sage
Canadian Hist R 32:84 Mr '51 160w

Current Hist 20:103 F '51 50w

"Frederick Merk knows more about the Oregon Question than anybody else is ever likely to know. Reading his scholarly and lucid book one marvels at the over-conciliatory disposition of the 'peacemaker' Albert Gallatin." S. F. Bemis
+ N Y Times p6 D 24 '50 600w

U S Quarterly Bk R 7:56 Mr '51 240w

MERLE, ROBERT. Weekend at Dunkirk; tr. from the French by K. Rebillon-Lambley [Eng title: Week-end at Zuydcoote]. 255p $3 Knopf 51-11083

The story of a group of French soldiers stranded on the beach near Dunkirk while the British troops were embarking for England. One of the group, Maillat, saves a young French girl who insists on staying in her house so it will not be looted, but in the end both she and Maillat are killed.

Booklist 48:126 D 1 '51

"Among war books, this has a tautness which makes it distinctive."
+ Kirkus 19:451 Ag 15 '51 210w

Reviewed by Paul Bloomfield
Manchester Guardian p4 Ap 21 '50 110w

"This war novel, by one of the new school of Algerian-born French writers, was awarded the Prix Goncourt; but American readers, while recognizing its qualities of unflinching honesty and understated compassion, and appreciating its grimly nihilistic picture of the Dunkirk débâcle, are likely to feel that it tells them little that they have not already learned from earlier war novels, regardless of locale."
Nation 173:430 N 17 '51 60w

Reviewed by J. D. Scott
New Statesman & Nation 39:522 My 6 '50 360w

"The value of the novel is both as a vividly written story (the character of the girl is explored with much subtlety) and as a lens through which the outsider can see significantly into the contemporary European mind. That 'neutralism' which is so logically seductive yet in any world-view so perilous was doubtless a good deal born at such a time and place as Dunkirk—yet not among the illogical ones." James Hilton
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 N 25 '51 800w

"The novel does not lay claim to depth or to psychological subtlety. However, it is swift, straightforward, moving in its restraint, and truly alive." Henri Peyre
+ N Y Times p36 N 4 '51 500w

New Yorker 27:181 N 17 '51 80w

Reviewed by Marghanita Laski
Spec 184:514 Ap 14 '50 330w

"A deftly written personal account of an historical eipsode, horrible for ourselves and for France. The translation leaves a good deal to be desired."
Times [London] Lit Sup p241 Ap 21 '50 340w

MERRILL, FRANCIS ELLSWORTH, and others. Social problems. 425p $4 Knopf
308.2 Social problems 50-13264

"It is, as the introduction states, 'a core book' to provide the basis of a semester course in social problems. It consists conveniently of 16 chapters, and, instead of attempting to cover the entire range of social pathology, confines itself to five projects or groups of problems. The first sets forth the frame of reference for the study of social problems in general; the second concerns itself with personality problems; the third deals with problems of delinquency; the fourth is devoted to the problems of the changing family; and the fifth surveys the problems of American minority groups." (Ann Am Acad) Chapter bibliographies. Index.

Reviewed by Melvin Tumin
Am J Soc 57:97 Jl '51 280w

"All in all the authors of this book are to be commended for their attempt at an integrated analysis even if their arrows went somewhat wide of the target. The insufficiency of the analysis, deductive and testing procedures is a simple reflection of the abstractive weaknesses of the field in which they worked, too far beyond which we could not expect them to go. Aside from this high cavil the book stands well on its own as an economical treatment of several of the more important problem areas of our culture." E. M. Lemert
+ — Am Soc R 15:815 D '50 500w

"If, on the one hand, there is nothing essentially new in this volume, it is, on the other, a useful, teachable, and interesting organization of established material on major social problems. The book should have wide usage." J. H. S. Bossard
Ann Am Acad 273:249 Ja '51 240w

MERRILL, JAMES INGRAM. First poems. 72p $3 Knopf
811 51-9092

A first book of poems by a young American writer. "Merrill's images derive from both Symbolist and metaphysical sources—substances such as glass, crystal, and flint are linked with apparatuses of one kind or another (compasses, barometers, spectrums, and hourglasses)—and he speaks of 'the machinery of light' and 'the machinery of decay.'" (New Yorker)

Kirkus 18:690 N 15 '50 80w

"Mr. Merrill is a young poet who writes very proficiently indeed; he has a wealth of vocabulary and allusion, yet does not verbalize, does not gush, is not sentimental." Rolfe Humphries
+ Nation 172:138 F 10 '51 160w

"Mr. Merrill is clearly both a connoisseur of bright ideas and a careful collector of images; he also possesses considerable skill in the mechanics of versification. A carefully cultivated sensibility and a studied cunning in the use of image and analogy testify to his self-conscious artfulness. Yet the cleverness and the craftsmanship are not always wholly convincing." David Daiches
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 F 25 '51 310w

"A number of Merrill's finest poems are missing from his collection; nevertheless it is representative of his complete sensibility and finest artistry. 'Variations and Elegy: White Stag, Black Bear' and 'The House' are especially revealing." Anthony Harrigan
+ N Y Times p17 Jl 8 '51 300w

"His poems follow the purest modern models. They are impeccably written, but everything about them smells of the lamp; they are as frigid and dry as diagrams. . . The only human elements detectable are a slight enthusiasm for certain aspects of nature and a slight nostalgia about childhood." Louise Bogan

New Yorker 27:109 Je 9 '51 120w

"It is important to bear in mind in connection with Merrill's poetry that he mirrors a rich and complex world. There is no Auden-like description of the gasworks and storekeepers of a drab metropolis. First Poems allows the reader to enter into the most elegant existence in the republic and through the medium of the highest type of American sensibility." Anthony Harrigan
+ Poetry 78:233 Jl '51 1400w

"James Merrill's modestly titled First Poems is one of those rare books, a richly exciting and rewarding one."
+ U S Quarterly Bk R 7:146 Je '51 220w

MERRILL, JEAN, and SOLBERT, RONNI. Henry, the hand painted mouse. il $1.75 Coward-McCann 51-12295

Nonsense story in text and line drawings. Henry the Eighth was just a grey mouse living on the top floor (the 8th) of a loft building and nobody paid any attention to him. But along came an artist who painted neckties and the two became fast friends, and because the artist wiped off his brushes on Henry, Henry became the Hand-Painted Mouse whom everybody noticed.

Reviewed by O. D. Hormel
Christian Science Monitor p7 S 20 '51 50w

"The story and line drawings have some sophisticated touches that only adults will appreciate, but they have originality and humor that will appeal to children too. Henry makes me feel that here is a new author-illustrator team worth watching." J. D. Lindquist and S. M. Andrews
+ Horn Bk 27:320 S '51 80w

"Although the style is often a bit arch and self-consciously uninhibited, this is a tantalizing story with an amusing twist about a wistful and sensitive mouse and his artist friend."
Kirkus 19:480 S 1 '51 100w

"Pictures and text practically beg for color but there is none of it in the book. The black-and-white outlines will present an almost irresistible temptation to the reader. Perhaps the librarians should hand-paint their copies before circulating." Anne Izard
+ Library J 76:1710 O 15 '51 80w

"This rather sophisticated little story has real charm. The big black and white pictures, clever and modern, have distinction. It will appeal as a gift book and might even be put with the right person's new gift necktie." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p32 N 11 '51 100w

"The story is amusing as far as it goes, which isn't very far. But the black-and-white drawings are so good that they more than right the balance; they are beautifully placed and spaced, and witty as well." Marjorie Fischer
+ N Y Times p40 N 11 '51 110w
Springf'd Republican p14C N 4 '51 60w

MERRITT, WALTER GORDON. Destination unknown; fifty years of labor relations. 454p $5.65; to schools $4.25 Prentice-Hall

331 Industrial relations. Labor and laboring classes—U.S. 51-2878

"A very personal version of relations between unions and management during the last fifty years. Mr. Merritt, whose father owned a small hat factory in Danbury, Connecticut is a lawyer who has apparently spent his life in the employment of various industrialists for whom he has been trying to settle labor disputes. His first case was that of the Danbury Hatters at the beginning of the century. His book deals with many other historical cases and discusses many phases of government controls, ending with the Taft-Hartley Act." (Library J) Index.

Reviewed by Z. C. Dickinson
Ann Am Acad 278:215 N '51 450w

"The frankness of Mr. Merritt's approach makes the book of particular value to union members who want more insight into the true feelings of some employers and some of their agents. For the more enlightened members of the managing class, this heavily tinted point of view should serve as a deterrent rather than a guide. The book is written for the layman in an easy autobiographical style." D. K. Oko
+ — Library J 76:1131 Jl '51 170w

"In a way, it is difficult for me to discuss Walter Gordon Merritt's interesting book Destination Unknown, an account of his 50 years of labor relations, objectively. For I agree with everything he says. . . To me the highly personal account that the author gives of the development of organized labor —from the occasion when a privately printed pamphlet that he wrote on the boycott when still in college drew fire from Sam Gompers himself, to the present—is a fascinating retelling of a tremendously significant story." B. F. McClancy
+ Management R 40:588 S '51 1100w

MERTON, ROBERT KING, and LAZARSFELD, PAUL FELIX, eds. Continuities in social research; studies in the scope and method of The American Soldier. 255p $3.50 Free press

355.1 Stouffer, Samuel Andrew—The American soldier 51-9172

"This book consists of essays by different authors discussing various aspects of The American Soldier [listed under Studies in social psychology in World war II, Book Review Digest 1949]. . . [It] is an attempt 'to examine selected hypotheses, methods and findings with an eye to their specific implications for the further advancement of certain parts of social science.' It is a book for research psychologists and sociologists." Ann Am Acad

"Perhaps the best thing about this book is its demonstration that significant hypotheses can be tested from data collected for quite different purposes. They will not, of course, be fully confirmed by such data—but whose hypotheses have ever been fully confirmed by even his own data? Even if we do not have the money and manpower to collect perfect data, we can do a lot with data systematically gathered by others." T. M. Newcombe
+ Am J Soc 57:90 Jl '51 1750w

"The real significance of this book and of its parent text inheres not particularly in the exactitude of their formulations, but rather in their challenge. Even if we had indeed shown that here and there a faulty use had been made of the data or had gone back into the original material discovering imperfections, these would probably have resulted in little or no detraction from the significance of the project. Its achievements lie in its approach to the study of social attitudes, an unshakable devotion to the controversial hypothesis that attitudes can be measured." O. C. Cox
+ Am Soc R 16:419 Je '51 1450w

"It should be helpful to those who do research on soldiers who fight in future wars or garrison the garrison state of the future. More important, perhaps, is its suggestion that analytical concepts developed about the behavior of soldiers may have validity for other segments of the population as well. Provisional generalizations may be tested by further research." C. W. Smith
+ Ann Am Acad 277:248 S '51 350w

"The papers make a positive contribution to such widely different subjects as primary groups, the sociology of war and military organization, the sociology of knowledge, the reception of research studies by the public, the theory of reference group behavior, and the problems of analysis and interpretation of mass survey data."
+ U S Quarterly Bk R 7:294 S '51 230w

MERTON, THOMAS. Ascent to truth. 342p $3.50 Harcourt

242 John of the Cross, Saint (Juan de Yepes). Spiritual life 51-12819

"This new book by Thomas Merton is three things in one. It is a general introduction to Christian mysticism; it is an interpretation of the mystical methods of Saint John of the Cross; it is an essay on the irreligion of our time and on the fact that from a spiritual point of view the more a modern man knows the more ignorant he becomes. . . With the threat of a negative destiny hanging over society, people turn instinctively toward religion, and Father Merton expects a wave of false mysticism. As an antidote to that anticipated wave he has written this book." (N Y Herald Tribune Bk R) Contains brief biographical notes on some of the saints. No index.

Booklist 48:93 N 15 '51

"For those who may be curious about mysticism, and for those who may be called to a life of contemplation this is an excellent book. It is a guide for further reading in the great mystics. Above all it demonstrates that mysticism and contemplation demand the highest type of activity, and do not destroy but perfect human nature." Walter Sullivan

+ Cath World 174:156 N '51 350w

Reviewed by J. A. O'Brien

Chicago Sunday Tribune p13 O 7 '51 500w

"The Ascent to Truth cannot be gulped down at one sitting. Like Chinese rice wine, it should be taken sip by sip. It must not be inferred from the above that Father Merton is getting pedantic. His is a learned book, but not a pedantic one. It is one of the two best introductions this reviewer knows to the mysticism of Saint John of the Cross. . . Every layman of normal intelligence can read it with profit; he will realize how infinitely rich is the heritage of a Christian." J. C. H. Wu

+ Commonweal 55:72 O 26 '51 550w

Kirkus 19:561 S 15 '51 210w

"Lucidly written, using modern metaphor and vivid imagery. Biographical notes of mystics quoted. For those seeking serious spiritual guidance regardless of creed." R. J. Hurley

+ Library J 76:1418 S 15 '51 140w

"The book is naturally not for every one, though it is designed for a knowledge far below that of the expert. . . For any who have a desire to look into meditation and contemplation, for any in fact who feel the mysterious pull which thins out worldly desire and sets the heart toward heaven, this is a book for which they have waited. It is clear, precise, and to the point." Thomas Sugrue

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p7 S 23 '51 900w

"Entirely apart from its treatment of contemplation the work provides much in the way of interpretation of contemporary man and of basic Christian beliefs. Appended is an interesting collection of biographical notes, in which, incidentally Pascal fares rather badly." J. A. Pike

N Y Times p3 S 23 '51 500w

"This is inspirational writing on a very high plane."

+ New Yorker 27:122 S 29 '51 180w

San Francisco Chronicle p26 O 28 '51 160w

Springf'd Republican p10D O 7 '51 300w

MERWIN, SAMUEL, 1910-. House of many worlds. 216p $2.75 Doubleday 51-12481

Science-fiction story.

Bookmark 11:61 D '51

Kirkus 19:337 Jl 1 '51 90w

"One may resent an unnecessary and unfair surprise ending, but the writing is well above Merwin's previous average (though why must he use throughout that abominable word 'poetess'?), and the story provides a great amount of unlikely fun." H. H. Holmes

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p22 S 23 '51 180w

"This is a fast-moving adventure story, told with engaging humor." B. D.

+ N Y Times p41 N 18 '51 110w

"The basic idea of simultaneous worlds of probability is not a particularly fresh one in science fiction, but Mr. Merwin has created characters that are human and given them dialogue that is entertaining and realistic. Certainly it ranks among the better probability and 'If' books." Don Fabun

+ — San Francisco Chronicle p20 O 7 '51 150w

Springf'd Republican p30A N 11 '51 110w

MESSER, MARY BURT. East and West; as face to face and side by side; a Christian Scientist replies to the Communist manifesto. 66p $3 Philosophical lib.

335.4 Communism. Christian science 50-8978

"Reply of a Christian Scientist to the Communist Manifesto, written in a style primarily of sectarian interest." (Am Pol Sci R) Index.

Am Pol Sci R 44:1067 D '50 10w

"The book offers certain obstacles even to a friendly reader: a sketchiness of treatment, a cryptic, elliptical style (achieving poetic power at times but seldom the logical precision at which it aims), an eccentric system of punctuation which distracts attention from the theme, and small but numerous inaccuracies in its quotations. A wise editor and a careful proofreader could easily have spared the book some of these disabilities."

Christian Science Monitor p7 S 9 '50 420w

"It may be that there is something profound in this little book. If so, it eludes me. It speaks a language that is vague, and it is exceedingly difficult to get any precise meaning out of it." C. S. Braden

Crozer Q 28:96 Ja '51 150w

San Francisco Chronicle p12 My 27 '51 60w

MESSER, MONA NAOMI ANNE (HOCKING). See Hocking, A.

METCALF, CLELL LEE, and FLINT, WESLEY PILLSBURY. Destructive and useful insects; their habits and control; 3d ed. rev. by R. L. Metcalf. 1071p il maps $10 McGraw

632.7 Insects, Injurious and beneficial Agr51-521

"Revision is extensive, and some parts of the book have been rewritten. New material has been added in insect physiology, and on diseases transmitted by insects; formulas and descriptions of the properties of more than 150 substances used in insect control and descriptions of important new insect pests are incorporated." (Booklist) For earlier edition see Book Review Digest 1940.

"The illustrations are excellent, and the format and typography good. It is a pleasure to see this standard manual revised so as to continue its usefulness." H. F. Gray

+ Am J Pub Health 41:1428 N '51 280w

Booklist 47:365 Je 15 '51

Reviewed by R. R. Hawkins

Library J 76:1231 Ag '51 130w

MEYER, MRS ANNIE (NATHAN). It's been fun; an autobiography. 302p il $3.50 Schuman

B or 92 51-13631

Autobiography of a New York writer and philanthropist who was the moving spirit behind the founding of Barnard College, and who was still on the board of trustees when she died September 24, 1951.

"All in all, a life that was personally exciting and rewarding and has a warmth in its reading."
+ Kirkus 19:429 Ag 1 '51 140w

"The most entertaining and most important part of Mrs. Meyer's recollections concerns the later years when she was pouring out her energy on so many writing projects and knew so many interesting people. . . The reader wishes there had been fewer pages about Papa's practical jokes and Mama's amateur theatricals, and more about her own sorties into playwriting." Emma Bugbee
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p19 N 4 '51 650w

"This is an inspiring story of an active, distinguished, long, and happy life."
+ School & Society 74:336 N 24 '51 30w

MEYER, ERICH. White mineral oil and petrolatum. 135p il $4.75 Chemical pub.
665.4 Mineral oils 50-12568

"The heart of this rather short book is the second chapter in which data is provided on the uses of petrolatum (including white mineral oil) in a wide range of industries and products. Typical of the arrangement of this part is the matter presented under 'Household-type Insecticides.' Here the variety of oil and its use are stated briefly; the ingredients and proportions of typical sprays are given; then the requirements to be met by the oil, and the requirements expressed in standard tests taken from Army and Navy specifications, are tabulated." N Y New Tech Bks

---

"In the opinion of this reviewer, 'White Mineral Oil and Petrolatum' lacks authority and detail. The vast literature on white mineral oil and petrolatum manufacture, properties, and application is literally untouched. The specialists in the field of either manufacture or application will only find this book of general interest. It should be of primary value to students, engineers, chemists, manufacturers, and users of white mineral oil and petrolatum as a guide and for background purposes." C. F. W. Gebelein
Chem & Eng N 29:1255 Mr 26 '51 250w
N Y New Tech Bks 36:11 Ja '51

MEYER, JEROME SYDNEY. Book of amazing facts; il. by William G. Johnson. 186p $2 World pub.
031 Curiosities 51-243

This listing of "world superlatives and extremes" is a collection of verified facts, arranged alphabetically by subject. Index.

Booklist 47:223 F 15 '51

"A valuable quick reference tool and a source of unusual, entertaining information."
+ Bookmark 10:83 Ja '51 30w

"Besides being a valuable reference book for librarians, it will also have wide appeal for all ages as a most fascinating book that will both entertain and inform. Recommended highly for all libraries." Harriet Morrison
+ Library J 76:56 Ja 1 '51 80w

"It is an informing collection. Boys and girls who want to be a social success will find it invaluable."
+ Sat R of Lit 34:48 F 17 '51 50w

MEYER, JEROME SYDNEY. Picture book of chemistry; il. by Richard Floethe. 40p $2 Lothrop
540 Chemistry—Juvenile literature 50-11174

A beginner's chemistry, containing information about atoms, solids, liquids, gases, etc.

Booklist 47:241 Mr 1 '51
Christian Science Monitor p10 Mr 10 '51 90w

"Simple, but not written-down, text. . . The many illustrations add to the attractiveness of the book."
+ Horn Bk 27:42 Ja '51 60w

"The scientific accuracy is on the whole good, except for a half dozen or so astonishing errors that could have been caught by a high school student of chemistry. However, this book should have some value because of its qualities of brightness and ease."
+ — Kirkus 18:725 D 15 '50 120w

"Worthwhile addition to the home as well as school and public library. Recommended for children of 10-14 and their elders." E. T. Dobbins
+ Library J 76:121 Ja 15 '51 50w
Sat R of Lit 34:48 F 17 '51 50w

MEYER, PETER. English cathedrals. See Hürlimann, M.

MEYER, ROBERT. Festivals U.S.A; il. by Lee Owens. 438p $4.50 Washburn
394.26 Festivals—U.S. 50-11439

"Americans stage some 1200 festivals every year. Mr. Meyer, a festival fancier, who operates Festival Information Service has compiled a fat list of them, in most cases providing the background for the celebration and, as well, facts on the landmarks and national parks which might be encountered en route. The festivals are taken up according to the state in which each occurs, beginning with the Lobster and Seafood Festival of Maine and ending with the Watermelon Eating Contest of Leesburg, Florida." Sat R of Lit

---

Booklist 47:170 Ja 1 '51
Bookmark 10:83 Ja '51 40w
Kirkus 18:628 O 1 '50 130w

"This book, gaily illustrated by Lee Owens and with a complete index, should prove useful and stimulating to all travellers. Highly recommended." R. P. Tubby
+ Library J 75:2002 N 15 '50 120w

"Start reading this book at your own state—most people will—read straight ahead or sideways; it is likely to leave you with a sense of having been on good terms with the country at large." M. L. Becker
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p13 F 11 '51 950w

"Mr. Meyer has struck another blow, and quite a happy one, in the campaign to make life easier for the American tourist. Here in one volume the traveler can find out what will be going on of interest in the forty-eight states and the District of Columbia and he can plan in advance to revel with the natives or, if he is so inclined, to route his holiday trip to avoid the crowds. Either way, the tourist wins." P. J. C. Friedlander
+ N Y Times p38 Ap 1 '51 450w
Sat R of Lit 33:36 D 16 '50 140w
Wis Lib Bul 47:19 Ja '51

MEYERS, SISTER BERTRANDE. Devotedly yours. 400p $3.75 Newman press
914 Daughters of charity of St. Vincent de Paul. Europe—Description and travel. Africa, North—Description and travel. Palestine—Description and travel 51-12465

"Sister Bertrande is Director of Marillac House of Chicago, the largest social center in the United States. When she was named with three other Sisters to make the Holy Year Pilgrimage, all the unfortunates who had to stay at home implored her to 'write and tell us everything.' She did—quite literally." Cath World

---

"Sister Bertrande is a born storyteller. The charm of her writing lies in the illuminating descriptions of small incidents caught by her quick eye and compassionate imagination. Every reader will devoutly hope that she may soon go traveling again."
+ Cath World 173:160 My '51 140w

Reviewed by Kelsey Guilfoil
Chicago Sunday Tribune p2 Mr 11 '51 120w

MEYNELL, MRS ESTHER HALLAM (MOORHOUSE). Story of Hans Andersen. (Story biography ser) 135p il $2 Schuman

B or 92 Andersen, Hans Christian—Juvenile literature A51-9819

A short biography of Hans Christian Andersen told in story form, for grades seven to nine. Illustrated with photographs and drawings. No index.

Booklist 47:225 F 15 '51

"First-rate biography."
+ Kirkus 18:677 N 15 '50 150w

"Highly recommended." Virginia Haviland
+ Library J 76:531 Mr 15 '51 90w

Reviewed by L. S. Bechtel
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 Ja 21 '51 50w

MEZERIK, AVRAHM G. Pursuit of plenty; the story of man's expanding domain. 209p $3 Harper

333.7 Conservation of resources 50-9869

For descriptive note see Annual for 1950.

"In the current debate over the future sufficiency of food and other resources to meet the needs of expanding populations, Mezerik clearly stands on the side of the optimists. . . His program for augmenting America's productive wealth is thought-provoking, but his faith in sheer necessity as the goad to rational control of fertility raises doubt about his optimism." J. K. Myers
Am Soc R 15:835 D '50 250w

"This book deals with a topic of great importance to the nation. It was written by a journalist of considerable repute and was sponsored by a group of organizations, including the Public Affairs Institute and the National Farmers Union. But despite this fortunate combination of circumstances, the book is not a good one." Norman Wengert
— Ann Am Acad 274:234 Mr '51 480w

Booklist 47:168 Ja 1 '51

Reviewed by Carey McWilliams
Nation 172:304 Mr 31 '51 300w

"While the abuse of our natural resources has been the despair of many a commentator the only remedy most of them have suggested is either a restriction on their use or a limitation in population. Both methods are rejected by A. G. Mezerik, who in this stimulating and well-written book sets forth in broad, clear strokes the only sensible approach to resource utilization—an integrated, planned program of development." B. B. Seligman
+ New Repub 124:21 F 19 '51 410w

Reviewed by P. B. Sears
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p17 Ap 15 '51 450w

"In these days of general gloom, the author has provided a needed stimulant, not only by revealing the amazing potentialities of applied science but by outlining a method by which this new knowledge may be translated into a more abundant life for all the people. However, the book offers no basis for complacency; rather it should alert us to the danger of allowing the prize of the centuries to be forfeited through ignorance, timidity, and greed." P. W. Wager
Social Forces 29:454 My 1 '51 700w

"The author's generally aggressive attitude does not induce him to a careful assay of the scientific and other evidence, all of which is used here in selective and not always consistent fashion. The progress already made through voluntary private and local initiative is, for example, overlooked, and its very great possibilities are not even considered. Nonetheless, Mr. Mezerik's fearlessly written work drives home many points that ought not to be disregarded in the development of future policy."
+ — U S Quarterly Bk R 7:79 Mr '51 230w

Wis Lib Bul 47:19 Ja '51

MICHAEL, MAURICE A., ed. Traveller's quest; original contributions towards a philosophy of travel, by Henri Bordeaux [and others]. 320p $3.75 Macmillan

910.82 Travel [51-9558]

"In this book sixteen well-known travellers have recorded just what quest it is that forces them to leave normal existence. Some have been specifically attracted by the sea; some by the mountains, deserts or arctic wildernesses. Some have combined travel with a calling as painter, archaeologist, journalist. . . There are travellers who set out to 'prove' themselves or to quell some specific curiosity. The book ends with Walter Starkie's accounts of gipsies, the 'eternal travellers.'" Spec

"These essays are both a defense and a challenge, guaranteed to make the settled and static discontented with their lot. So many-faceted they are, and yet so equal in interest and delight, that one would not wish to overlook any of them." Francis Russell
+ Christian Science Monitor p11 Ap 12 '51 700w

New Statesman & Nation 40:376 O 21 '50 230w

New Yorker 27:137 My 19 '51 130w

"These essays, naturally enough, are not all of the same standard, and many are distinctly self-conscious, though a surprising proportion of travellers turn out to be excellent writers. . . Some of the essays have turned into rather discursive and autobiographical reminiscences, not all of which are very satisfying. But many retain their interest despite condensation. . . This is a digressive book, admirable for the armchair traveller, and a book also of natural philosophy, of the determination of individuals not only against physical obstacles but against the almost irresistible force of the collective. A change from the usual collection of travellers' tales." Anthony Huxley
+ Spec 184:772 D 29 '50 600w

MICHAEL, WILLIAM W. Dry-fly fishing. 191p il $3.50 McGraw

799.1755 Trout fishing. Fly casting 51-10811

"Drawing freely on his wide experience in all parts of the U.S., the author tells of ways and means of fly fishing for trout of various kinds, in many waters." Library J

Booklist 47:359 Je 15 '51

Bookmark 10:205 Je '51 20w

Kirkus 19:89 F 1 '51 140w

Reviewed by R. W. Henderson
+ Library J 76:414 Mr 1 '51 50w

MICHAELIS, JOHN UDELL. Social studies for children in a democracy. 466p il $5.65; to schools $4.25 Prentice-Hall

372.83 Social sciences—Study and teaching 50-12658

"An addition to the field of social studies in the elementary school. Although the author gives emphasis to the social studies, he recognizes social living as a broad area of the curriculum and stresses social learning as the most inclusive area of child experiences both in and out of school. This broader conception of the social studies is being adopted more and more extensively in school systems. The book has sixteen separate chapters, with pertinent bibliographies at the end of each. Many of the references are of recent date and indicate present and future trends in the teaching of the social studies." El School J

"One of the most comprehensive and practical volumes available today. It should have a unique place in the pre-service training of teachers. It can be used with profit by teachers, supervisors, and administrators." Gertrude Boyd
+ El School J 51:469 Ap '51 650w

School & Society 72:351 N 25 '50 20w

"Mr. Michaelis should be commended for the organizational structure of the volume. The reader is helped by the frequent use of center- and side-heads. The book is effectively indexed, and the bibliographies are up to date. In the opinion of the reviewers, Mr. Michaelis has made an important contribution toward improving the education of children in a democracy." R. N. Burress and H. D. Drummond

+ Social Educ 15:301 O '51 420w

MICHEELS, WILLIAM JORDAN, and KARNES, M. RAY. Measuring educational achievement. (McGraw-Hill ser. in educ) 496p il $4.50 McGraw

371.26 Educational measurements 50-10598

"This covers in considerable detail the uses, advantages, and limitations of various types of tests which can be constructed by the classroom and shop teacher and presents specific procedures for evaluating and improving them." (School & Society) Bibliographies.

School & Society 72:303 N 4 '50 40w

Reviewed by W. W. Brickman

School & Society 74:202 S 29 '51 80w

"The authors present many helpful and, in some instances, original suggestions to the teacher who constructs tests for a continuous program of measurement and evaluation. . . The most significant contributions of this book, the reviewer believes, are found in the chapters on product and procedures measurement—an often neglected or casually conducted aspect of pupil evaluation." J. R. Gerberich

+ School R 59:244 Ap '51 950w

MICHEL, J. G. L., ed. See Allcock, H. J., and Jones, J. R. Nomogram

MICHENER, JAMES ALBERT. Return to paradise. 437p $3.50 Random house

919 Oceania 51-10217

A series of informal essays about the South Pacific islands, alternating with stories, each growing out of the central theme of the essay which precedes it. "Thus the reader could see from the essay what I thought about a given island; while from the fictional story he could determine what the island thought about itself."

Reviewed by Edward Weeks

Atlantic 188:82 Jl '51 200w

Booklist 47:285; 308 Ap 15 '51; My 1 '51

Bookmark 10:208 Je '51 300w

"Most of the stories depend on some worn device or other, usually coincidence's long arm, to see them through. Mr. Michener is obviously trading throughout on landscape and piquant mores. . . In Return to Paradise Mr. Michener turns out to be a kind of John Gunther—the same insatiable curiosity, the occasional pompousness, the bad, utilitarian prose—of the sparse places; a Gunther with a dash or two of Dr. Kinsey." Riley Hughes

— Cath World 173:390 Ag '51 280w

"Working under the handicap of inevitable comparison, Michener has produced a brilliant book and a worthy successor to 'Tales of the South Pacific.'" Kelsey Guilfoil

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 My 6 '51 550w

"A chatty, lively, factual and personal introduction to an area is followed by a short story which vaults off from the theme of the factual sketch. Whether or not the plan of the book is quite so novel as Mr. Michener supposes, the experiment as he has made it is an unqualified success." Ruth Chapin

+ Christian Science Monitor p9 My 1 '51 500w

Cleveland Open Shelf p16 Jl '51

"Michener conveys the beauty and color of the islands, sensitively and perceptively. More than that he carefully, imperceptibly, without grinding any axes, reaffirms the human dignity of even the most primitive savage and our responsibility to respect it. This is most welcome now, when the peoples of the world are suddenly being 'discovered' by Americans, variously as customers for creature comforts, decimal points in a Point IV program, birth control prospects, sandbags against Communism or, eventually, votes." P. V. Farrell

+ Commonweal 54:67 Ap 27 '51 500w

"There's drama and pathos and adventure and humanity and with minor exceptions, a very high degree of excellence. Michener can write—and he has a flair for selection of material that fits his pen."

+ Kirkus 19:131 Mr 1 '51 390w

Reviewed by Harvey Swados

Nation 172:446 My 12 '51 650w

Reviewed by C. H. Grattan

New Repub 124:18 My 14 '51 600w

"An informative, attractive, and at times wonderfully awkward book. As a reader whose knowledge of the areas covered ranges from nothing to moderate familiarity, I found the essays packed with interesting detail and fresh information. They give, so far as I can judge, an accurate picture of the various islands' history, development, and present problems, and they do this in a thoroughly unaffected manner. The range of information, as one looks back over it, is enormous, and Mr. Michener has made it all painlessly available to the general reader." J. J. Espey

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p7 Ap 22 '51 1250w

"This is a book that should be read by everyone who has seen or wants to see 'South Pacific,' which should take care of the bulk of the population. And all who have seen the South Pacific (without benefit of Hammerstein) will find on every page the odors of frangipani, copra, blood and beer." Walter Karig

+ N Y Times p7 Ap 22 '51 600w

"Mr. Michener has handled this Hydra-headed assignment modestly and in an easy going and sometimes distinguished style. His fictional pieces, however, seem to have been tossed off without any long period of incubation, and the points they make, while undoubtedly estimable, are arrived at in fairly obvious ways."

+ — New Yorker 27:114 My 3 '51 200w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson

San Francisco Chronicle p22 My 6 '51 1600w

"With 'Return to Paradise' Mr. Michener puts away childish things. The passage from childhood to maturity has not been painless. . . Some vestiges of childhood remain, for the stories are bunk. It is when Mr. Michener describes his travels that he is most convincing, and the mature eye, selecting fragments of experience from the past and then setting them against the present, possesses a splendid power of evocation. One elbow is still on the bar-counter, but the things he sees through the open doorways are magnificently told." Robert Payne

+ — Sat R of Lit 34:10 Ap 28 '51 1000w

Time 57:114 Ap 23 '51 450w

Times [London] Lit Sup p680 O 26 '51 160w

U S Quarterly Bk R 7:242 S '51 200w

Wis Lib Bul 47:190 Jl '51

MICHENER, JAMES ALBERT. Voice of Asia. 338p $3.50 Random house

915 Asia—Social life and customs. Eastern question (Far East) 51-13727

The author of Tales of the South Pacific traveled extensively thru the trouble spots of Asia from Japan to India, not as a writer of fiction, but as an historian and observer of world politics and social conditions. His method was to interview a great many people from all walks of life and to record his observations on conditions thus obtained.

Booklist 48:2; 99 S 1 '51; N 15 '51

Bookmark 11:58 D '51 30w

Reviewed by A. L. Bader

Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 N 25 '51 460w

MICHENER, J. A.—Continued
Reviewed by Robert Peel
Christian Science Monitor p11 N 1 '51 900w

Cleveland Open Shelf p25 N '51

"Michener's book is not free of over-simplification and of an easy American optimism as to the feasibility of our aim. But if the book is digested with a grain of salt, it will prove a useful patent medicine for convincing Americans that we need an active Asiatic policy." Max Fischer
+ — Commonweal 55:154 N 16 '51 600w

"In variety of viewpoints, in coordination and commentary and summation, Michener shares a rich and challenging experience, and makes of each episode a gem of narration and characterization. Creative journalism, which goes to the heart of the matter."
+ Kirkus 19:506 S 1 '51 330w

"Highly recommended as a thoroughly painless, though serious, study of current history." H. P. Linton
+ Library J 76:1932 N 15 '51 130w

Reviewed by W. N. Brown
Nation 173:529 D 15 '51 300w

"Not one of the interviews is of the stereotyped or perfunctory variety. (A few of them were published serially in the Herald Tribune.) Perhaps 10 per cent of them are amusing without having any particular bearing on the world situation. Ninety per cent of the interviews and all of Mr. Michener's 'observations' reflect his intelligent way of searching for greater understanding of the mind of Asia. He is forever on the track of how people think and what they are thinking about. Not the stuffed shirts, not officialdom, but the people who make a place live and breathe." Marcus Duffield
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 O 28 '51 1000w

"Michener, both as a straight reporter and in his analytical passages, succeeds in giving a picture of complex Asia today that is clear and accurate, on the whole. It should be read to increase American understanding of an area that is not as well known as it should be." Robert Trumbull
+ N Y Times p6 O 28 '51 1000w

New Yorker 27:162 N 10 '51 180w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson
San Francisco Chronicle p18 O 31 '51 1250w

MIDDLETON, ROBERT DUDLEY. Newman at Oxford: his religious development. 292p il $5 Oxford

B or 92 Newman, John Henry, cardinal 51-5457

"This new study of [Cardinal Newman's] religious development down to the date (1845) of his joining the Roman Church makes no claim to throw fresh light on his career in the Church of England. It is based on a careful examination of Newman's published writings and his letters (some of which are published here for the first time), together with the usual works of reference for this period." Manchester Guardian

---

"We are already indebted to the author for his illuminating and entertaining volume Newman and Bloxam [Book Review Digest 1948] and this one makes a good companion to it." F. J. Moore
+ Churchman 165:17 F 1 '51 150w

"Mr. Middleton has produced a worthy companion to his earlier biography of Dr. Routh and his 'Newman and Bloxam.' [It is] a scholarly and yet eminently readable account." C. W. Dugmore
+ Manchester Guardian p4 O 20 '50 360w

"A study for the experts. As its sub-title indicates, it is a commentary on the Apologia, a lucid and scholarly account of Newman's religious thought while he remained in the English Church. . . Though his book contains much interesting material and several unpublished letters, the author makes few concessions to the common reader, who is likely to prefer Maisie Ward's cosy and more excitingly illustrated biography." John Raymond
+ — New Statesman & Nation 40:606 D 9 '50 900w

"Gives a charming picture of Newman's early years and happy family life. The author's analysis of Tract 90 is admirably thorough and brings out most clearly the completely logical continuity of Newman's development." Anne Fremantle
+ N Y Times p12 Ja 28 '51 320w

Times [London] Lit Sup p772 D 1 '50 1450w

MIERS, EARL SCHENCK. General who marched to hell; William Tecumseh Sherman and his march to fame and infamy. 349p maps $4.50 Knopf

973.7378 Sherman, William Tecumseh. U.S.—History—Civil war 51-3354

A new interpretation of General William Tecumseh Sherman and his march from Chattanooga to the sea in 1864. Index.

Booklist 47:343 Je 1 '51

"In the handling of his material and putting it together so skilfully, Earl Miers has worked with a master's hand." Kelsey Guilfoil
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 Je 3 '51 450w

Reviewed by Henry Sowerby
Christian Science Monitor p9 Je 12 '51 550w

"Sherman, not an easy person to understand, comes alive with his conflicts and problems of personality. The military strategists, practical and armchair variety alike, will find it absorbing on this level, while the story itself reads like the best of historical fiction."
+ Kirkus 19:202 Ap 1 '51 160w

"The co-editor of Gettysburg has fashioned a military history which will excite interest beyond the coterie of inveterate arm chair strategists." A. J. Gaines
+ Library J 76:860 My 15 '51 90w

Nation 173:18 Jl 7 '51 50w

"The author treats Sherman and his activities with remarkable detachment and calm. In presenting such touchy and controversial subjects as the pillage of Georgia and the burning of Columbia, his technique is to present the best evidence on both sides and let the reader draw his own conclusions. In general, he appears to be sympathetic toward Sherman, but he does not hesitate to cite testimony which presents him in unfavorable light. . . 'The General Who Marched to Hell' is a splendidly conceived, ingeniously organized and well executed book, rich in drama and full of excitement." B. I. Wiley
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p1 Je 3 '51 1350w

"There is an overlong review of the war in general, including political and other events at home, North and South. This is not well done, and the effect is cluttery and confusing. Nor do I find the choice of language felicitous. So much of it is of the 'compelling' variety, as in the long title of the book. When events themselves are sufficiently compelling, language can be quiet without loss of impact. Once Sherman is in Georgia matters improve in this book." Marquis James
N Y Times p7 Je 3 '51 1000w

New Yorker 27:106 Je 2 '51 200w

"Because he is an artist with words, with an ideal sense of what will fire the average imagination and touch the common heart, Mr. Miers is able to . . . come forth with a chronicle of General Sherman, his March to the Sea, and the general circumstances attending the man and the events, which will enthrall anyone who reads his book." S. L. A. Marshall
+ Sat R of Lit 34:8 Je 2 '51 1100w

Time 58:100 Jl 2 '51 750w

MIHANOVICH, CLEMENT SIMON. Current social problems; chapters on unemployment and race, by Joseph B. Schuyler. (Science and culture ser) 452p il $3.50 Bruce pub.
301.153 Social problems 50-6089

"Twelve years of teaching experience, plus a poll of over twenty Catholic colleges and universities, furnished the background for the selection of the book's contents and the form of presentation. After defining each problem and outlining something of the historical background, the authors give attention to the political and economic as well as the social implications of the issue. Solutions—generally several—are suggested to the reader." Social Forces

"As a text, it would benefit by clearer statement of why the topics chosen constitute 'social problems,' more thorough interpretation of factual evidence of problem causation, and better understanding of contemporary psychology. Particularly striking is the compartmentalization of Catholic social philosophy in the supposedly keynoting first chapter; the fourteen other chapters, on as many problems, read more like social science." S. W. Reed
Am Soc R 15:456 Je '50 200w

"Designed to meet the needs of beginning students or readers with a general interest in the subject matter covered, Current Social Problems contains several features which will make it more acceptable for nonspecialized circulation. . . Only a limited amount of statistical material is included, this being attractively arranged in pictogram form." Anna Holden
Social Forces 29:222 D '50 600w

MIHANOVICH, CLEMENT SIMON. Principles of juvenile delinquency. (Science and culture ser) 138p $2 Bruce pub.
364.36 Juvenile delinquency 50-8258

"This monograph aims to bring together the essential findings of leading authorities on juvenile delinquency concerning the main questions which authorities in this field have sought to answer through years of study and research. . . Amply documented, the study portrays the facts gained through research without superimposing a theory of delinquency and its treatment upon the reader. Whatever value judgments are made are concerned with pertinent moral and religious norms and principles related to human conduct, but these are held to a minimum." Social Forces

"While this informative booklet is, contrary to the claim of the editor, not the equivalent of a college text, one may discern a certain gain over similar publications in the past, due to the author's sincere effort to relate himself to the main stream of the sociological discussion on the subject." Ernest Manheim
+ — Am J Soc 57:98 Jl '51 190w

"The professional worker will find little that is new or stimulating, and the college teacher will find the treatment too sketchy for classroom purposes. Probably the book's chief appeal will be to the general public, particularly the Catholic public, as a sane and balanced review of the accepted literature on delinquency. To such readers it may be safely recommended." P. H. Furfey
Ann Am Acad 273:252 Ja '51 320w

"The layman will not find a more thorough and concise summary of the principles and problems of juvenile delinquency than is here offered. The youth worker will welcome the volume because it places at his fingertips the pertinent issues and authoritative references that are helpful in his work." M. J. Williams
+ Social Forces 29:339 Mr '51 230w

MILES, JOSEPHINE. Continuity of poetic language: studies in English poetry from the 1540's to the 1940's. 542p $5 Univ. of Calif. press
821.09 English poetry—History and criticism A51-3514

"Josephine Miles's method consists of tackling the fourth decade of each century from the sixteenth to the present, listing authors and poems significant for the period, tabulating the proportional relationship between adjectives, nouns, and verbs, breaking the poetic vocabulary into a majority and a minority of words used and the frequency of their appearance in individual poets, and climactically comparing five centuries of major and minor poetic preference for certain words. Her hypothesis that every poem is bound to its time and yet shares the major vocabulary of all English poetry is borne out by the statistics presented. . . Supplementing the statistics are helpful and extended analyses of poetry and prose passages, ranging from Chaucer to Auden, with emphasis on style and word effect." Sat R of Lit

"The tables, in themselves, are fascinating; and the text, which amplifies, explains, diverges now and then, disavows perfection, and directs delight, is illuminating and refreshing. A most interesting job."
+ Nation 173:37 Jl 14 '51 130w

"This volume will neither help the statistician understand poetry nor help the poet understand statistics; however, the literary historian in the search of trends, traditions and tastes will find much of interest here." Siegfried Mandel
+ Sat R of Lit 34:46 O 13 '51 160w

MILHOUS, KATHERINE. Patrick and the golden slippers. il $2 Scribner 51-12317

"[This book] tells of the Mummers' Parade which has taken place in Philadelphia every New Year's Day since the time of George Washington, and especially of one small boy's part in the celebration." Horn Bk

Booklist 48:71 O 15 '51

Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 N 11 '51 100w

Reviewed by E. C. Ince
Christian Science Monitor p11 O 11 '51 60w

"As soon as I looked at this gay, beautiful book, I thought, 'My, what fun children could have making a pageant out of this story!' Here are action, enchanting costumes—everything." J. D. Lindquist and S. M. Andrews
+ Horn Bk 27:320 S '51 100w
+ Kirkus 19:578 O 1 '51 120w

Reviewed by E. T. Dobbins
Library J 76:2010 D 1 '51 80w

"The art work is dashing, interesting, but not very appealing for small children. Those a bit older will get a gay idea of an unusual American custom." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p30 O 7 '51 140w

"An exciting story. The paintings by the author express the gaiety and the spirit of this traditional celebration." Lois Palmer
+ N Y Times p40 N 11 '51 80w

"This is a picture book of enduring value to young Americans." M. G. Davis
+ Sat R of Lit 34:38 O 20 '51 180w
Wis Lib Bul 47:257 N '51

MILL, JOHN STUART, and MILL, MRS HARRIET (HARDY) TAYLOR. John Stuart Mill and Harriet Taylor; their correspondence and subsequent marriage, by F. A. Hayek. 320p $4.50 Univ. of Chicago press
B or 92 A51-9055

"Using a large number of hitherto unpublished letters Professor Hayek here tells the story of the relationship between John Stuart Mill and the woman who was his life's guiding star. The fervent tributes to her character and intellect which Mill paid in his 'Autobiography' have often been regarded as extravagant, but the letters which passed between them during the early years when she was still Mrs. Taylor and the later years after her marriage to Mill show that he relied to a great degree upon her opinions and her critical powers and that she certainly helped to shape the pattern of his thought along various lines of radical reform." (N Y Herald Tribune Bk R) Index.

MILL, J. S.—Continued

Reviewed by H. M. Lynd
Nation 173:240 S 22 '51 2000w

"The fragmentary and elusive nature of its contents makes this not an easy book to read; and no one is advised to borrow it from a library for a cursory glance. Its place should be on the permanent shelf for future reference when a full life of Mill comes to be written. In the meantime admirers of the great Utilitarian can take comfort that his stature has in no way been diminished by Professor Hayek's revelations." Ralph Partridge
New Statesman & Nation 41:628 Je 2 '51 1100w

"Though nearly eighty years have passed since Mill's death an authoritative biography is still lacking. . . An abundance of documentary material is accessible in public collections here and in England. The correspondence which Mr. Hayek has now published with an admirable connecting narrative will be one of the principal primary sources for the biography which needs to be written." S. C. Chew
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 Ag 5 '51 400w

"Professor Hayek makes an entertaining as well as scholarly book from his research into the relationship between Mill and Mrs. Taylor, bringing both personalities closer to the reader than ever before." M. S.
+ Spec 185:666 My 18 '51 300w

MILLAR, KENNETH (JOHN ROSS MACDONALD, pseud). Way some people die. 245p $2.50 Knopf 51-11053

Detective story.

Kirkus 19:308 Je 15 '51 70w

"For the reader who is weary of the standard 'private eye' adventure with its cynical sentimentality and its increasingly stereotyped characters, John Ross Macdonald is to be recommended. . . John Macdonald can write really well and his book follows the hard-boiled pattern with a rare freshness and originality."
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 Ag 19 '51 140w

"Probably Mr. Macdonald's best to date—and thereby automatically the top hard-boiled novel of the year." Anthony Boucher
+ N Y Times p17 Ag 5 '51 170w

Reviewed by L. G. Offord
San Francisco Chronicle p19 Ag 5 '51 70w

"Subtle hard-boiled gem." Kathleen Sproul
+ Sat R of Lit 34:29 Ag 25 '51 50w

Springf'd Republican p10D O 7 '51 40w

MILLER, ALFRED JACOB. The West of Alfred Jacob Miller, (1837) from the notes and water colors in the Walters art gallery; with an account of the artist by Marvin C. Ross. 200p il $10 Univ. of Okla. press
751.42 West—Pictorial works 51-4602

"One of the earliest western travelers to make a pictorial record of the new world across the plains was the young Baltimore painter Alfred Jacob Miller, who accompanied Capt. William Drummond Stewart to the Rocky Mountains and beyond in 1837. The present volume gathers two hundred reproductions of Miller's water-color drawings of the hunting Indians of the plains, the fur trappers of the Rockies, and the animals and landscapes of the Far West. These drawings are studio revisions of more immediate sketches done in the field while on caravan, and are presented, except for the colored frontispiece, in black and white. . . Miller kept written notes for each of his drawings. These are printed here facing their subjects." N Y Times

Reviewed by Paul Engle
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 Jl 8 '51 470w

Kirkus 19:344 Jl 1 '51 130w

Library J 77:53 Ja 1 '52 150w

"The book will delight any one who has a responsive eye and from now on it will valuably serve all students of Western life and Western history. The landscapes and the people it pictures were memorable in their period and are even more memorable now. Miller brought them out of the blindness of the printed page into visual reality and so not only enhanced the historical record but heightened our imaginative realization of the last American frontier." Bernard De Voto
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p1 Jl 22 '51 1600w

"This is a useful and distinguished volume. The introduction, appendices and index by Mr. Ross are excellent, but it is regrettable that the original size of the drawings is not supplied." Paul Horgan
+ N Y Times p7 Je 24 '51 500w

"The University of Oklahoma Press has taken extraordinary care with the printing, doing the book one eight-page form at a time, and they have worked out an excellent scheme to give the pictures depth by using a shade of ink just a bit off black toward green. Even the hardened customer, I think, will find this one of the finest trade books to come from any press in recent years." J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p12 My 19 '51 380w

Reviewed by J. F. Dobie
Sat R of Lit 34:16 Ag 18 '51 600w

MILLER, DAVID MICAH. The chain and the link. 368p $3.50 World pub.
51-3333

A novel about a little Lithuanian Jewish community in the time of Napoleon. The scholar Ezra and his wife Leah are the central characters.

Booklist 47:363 Je 15 '51

Reviewed by Richard Sullivan
Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 My 13 '51 290w

Cleveland Open Shelf p16 Jl '51

"Whatever universal implications this novel possesses, they are embodied in forms and expressed in terms that are intensely Jewish. The novel is saturated with Hebrew wisdom and Hebrew lore. . . It is astonishing, that an author of American birth and education, even if he is of Jewish origin, should have had the learning and the ability as well as the interest to recreate with such fidelity the atmosphere, the rhythm, the evocative details of life in the Jewish-Lithuanian townlets of long, long ago." Joshua Kunitz
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 My 6 '51 650w

"Lyrically written and accurately aimed at every reader who has speculated about life's meaning, 'The Chain and the Link' is a solid achievement by a new American author. Drawing freely from Talmudic lore, Christian ethic, Kantian imperatives and Napoleonic chaos, Mr. Miller has woven a durable tapestry before which the people of his morality play can move." James Kelly
+ N Y Times p4 My 13 '51 550w

"Like his protagonist, author Miller is too detached, too loftily cogitative, to arouse emotion. He makes an honest effort to record the thoughts and psychological convolutions of his characters, but fails to evoke sympathy or even sustained interest. Such is the main weakness of this potentially interesting study of a man trying vainly to dig his living soul from under the icy mausoleum of his learning." E. P.
San Francisco Chronicle p15 S 16 '51 280w

"Music of custom, profundity of thought, and the agony of one man in search of self are firmly knit to make a book of special worth. I am conscious of pride in commending David Miller to his readers." N. L. Rothman
+ Sat R of Lit 34:13 Ap 28 '51 850w

MILLER, DELBERT CHARLES, and FORM, WILLIAM HUMBERT. Industrial sociology; an introduction to the sociology of work relations. 896p il $6 Harper

331 Industrial relations 51-9367

"The authors, associate professors of sociology at, respectively, the University of Washington, D.C. and Michigan State College, approach the subject of work relations from the modern human relations point of view, giving both its historical background and its present applications. While they introduce much scientific and academic evidence, they obviously base their conclusions on experience in the field as well as in the class room. They are sympathetic to unions and have a good grasp of labor's objectives." Library J

"Any person who has been teaching a course in industrial sociology must be searching for a book which will provide a balanced and intelligible text in this field. Miller and Form have written a book which is by far the most acceptable of those now available for teaching purposes, especially at the undergraduate level. . . [However] one of the most serious defects of this volume is the relative lack of balance among the topics which may be included in a total coverage of industrial sociology. D. E. Wray

+ — Am Soc R 16:420 Je '51 850w

"A voluminous amount of material has been collected here and organized into a very informing college textbook." D. K. Oko

+ Library J 76:603 Ap 1 '51 200w

MILLER, DONALD G. Conqueror in chains; a story of the Apostle Paul; il. by Albert DeMee Jousset. 271p $2.50 Westminster press

225.92 Paul, Saint—Juvenile literature 51-12690

Story of the life of apostle Paul covering his years as a missionary, his years as a prisoner, his trials, and execution. List of scripture references. Map of journeys of Paul on end papers.

Booklist 48:128 D 1 '51

Kirkus 19:612 O 1 '51 80w

Reviewed by M. M. Gantt

Library J 77:70 Ja 1 '52 80w

"Many with a casual knowledge of Paul will be surprised at this exciting, thoughtfully told life, especially at Paul's struggles against the division of the one church. . . The author, who is a professor at Union Theological Seminary, Richmond, Va., gives no credit for the lively adaptations of the Bible quotations, so we assume they are his own. Those from Paul's Epistles will give a new sense of his personality to most readers." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p26 N 11 '51 350w

San Francisco Chronicle p20 D 2 '51 100w

MILLER, DONALD CALVIN. Taxes, the public debt, and transfers of income. 160p il $3; pa $2 Univ. of Ill.

336.2 Taxation—U.S. Debts, Public. Income—U.S. 50-62929

"A study of the federal tax and debt structures, focused on the year 1945, concerned with determining their effect upon the transfer of income across income group lines. It attempts also to estimate the deflationary or inflationary influence of the public debt in the year 1945." Library J

Reviewed by M. S. Kendrick

Am Econ R 41:476 Je '51 800w

"The book is an exhibit of the courage, diligence, and patience required for such work in the social studies. Almost every one will take exception to this or that decision among alternatives. But all should agree that the work is high grade and useful." H. M. Groves

+ — Ann Am Acad 274:240 Mr '51 400w

"The analysis is of value not only because it throws light on some probable effects of the public debt in 1945 but also because it clearly reveals gaps in statistical information. Procedures developed here may facilitate other more precise measurements in this area of public finance." D. H. Eldridge

+ J Pol Econ 59:268 Je '51 600w

Reviewed by J. E. Cross

Library J 76:45 Ja 1 '51 40w

Reviewed by P. R. Levin

Sat R of Lit 34:37 Jl 14 '51 300w

"The study exhibits a high order of diligence, courage, and patience; it is an excellent example of first-class quantitative research."

+ U S Quarterly Bk R 7:44 Mr '51 190w

MILLER, FREDERICK DEWOLFE. Christopher Pearse Cranch; and his caricatures of New England transcendentalism. 81p il $2 Harvard univ. press

B or 92 Cranch, Christopher Pearse. Transcendentalism 51-10752

Christopher Cranch was called "one of the most delightful of the Transcendental group." The discovery of a series of his caricatures of some of the leading Transcendentalists was the basis of this book. Besides the cartoons, there is a discussion of their history, and a biographical account of Cranch. Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by J. L. Blau

J Philos 49:22 Ja 3 '52 380w

"Even after a century his fooleries are still funny, and they serve a useful purpose in showing that high thinking could give rise to high spirits." G. F. Whicher

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 Ag 19 '51 290w

Reviewed by Carlos Baker

N Y Times p15 Je 3 '51 250w

"A well-rounded biographical account. . . Most of the caricatures have an amateurish air about them and indicate how far modern cartooning has left behind the cartoonist of Cranch's day, yet insofar as they good-naturedly and critically probe transcendentalism they are more than tolerably amusing."

+ Sat R of Lit 34:31 Ag 18 '51 220w

+ U S Quarterly Bk R 7:233 S '51 230w

MILLER, GLENN WASSON. Problems of labor. 560p $5 Macmillan

331 Labor and laboring classes—U.S. 51-4695

"The justification for this new text, in the words of the author, lies in 'a different organization and degree of emphasis on various subjects,' particularly 'a much heavier emphasis . . . on government intervention in labor-management relations than is customary.' In other words, as between the encyclopedic type of text and the texts which choose some identifiable and more digestible portion of the field, Professor Miller has chosen the encyclopedic, with a variation of emphasis." Ann Am Acad

"It is always difficult to quarrel with personal preferences, but looking at the organization of the volume, which the author states is a result of his teaching experience, it seems to this reviewer that the sequence in which the subjects are covered is such that any student with a logical mind (and there are such) will read the volume in a different order unless forced by assignment to do otherwise." H. J. Lahne

Ann Am Acad 278:216 N '51 500w

"Author insists that the problems are various and that many of them can be solved by government intervention only. Perhaps it is this emphasis which justifies another book on the subject. Other than that, neither the manner nor the matter seem to make this an important contribution to the general literature in this field. For college libraries seeking additional texts this will undoubtedly prove a good one." D. K. Oko

Library J 76:1339 S 1 '51 70w

MILLER, HARRY HERMAN. Gallery of American dogs; phot. by Arthur S. Mawhinney and Katherine Holt Mawhinney; pen and ink drawings by Paul Brown. 262p $5.95 McGraw

636.71 Dogs Agr50-490

"As of this writing, there are in the United States 113 recognized dog breeds of distinctly pure bloodlines. . . It is the purpose of this book to bring together in text, photographs, and drawings a complete gallery of American dogs, so that any interested person may become better acquainted with the varied array of canine talent in the United States today. In grouping the dogs in such categories as the Hounds, the Terriers, the Gun Dogs, the Working Breeds, and the Companion Dogs, we have tried to make it easy for the reader to see the relationship of dogs similarly evolved or similarly utilized." Pref

Booklist 47:169 Ja 1 '51

Bookmark 10:83 Ja '51 30w

"A handsome, large octavo which will delight all dog lovers. Recommended." R. W. Henderson

+ Library J 76:51 Ja 1 '51 40w

MILLER, MRS HELEN (TOPPING). We have given our hearts away. 313p $2.75 Bobbs

50-9561

A story of family life in a small southern town. It shows what happens when one of the leading business men of the town comes close to bankruptcy, describing the effects on his wife and half-grown children, and the complications in the lives of some of the family friends.

Christian Science Monitor p16 N 18 '50 190w

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p21 Mr 18 '51 90w

Reviewed by Beatrice Sherman
N Y Times p26 Ja 7 '51 140w

"This 'bleeding hearts' novel seems to have stepped out of the pages of a women's magazine. Rarely have so many suffering people foregathered within one bookbinding. Like obedient puppets they get into all sorts of jams, romantic and otherwise, and are yanked out of them in due course." Ray Pierre

Sat R of Lit 33:33 D 23 '50 280w

MILLER, JEAN (DUPONT). For a brave tomorrow. 247p $2.50 Dodd

50-10887

After she graduated from high school Jill drifted for a time to her parents sorrow. She fell in love with a boy her family disapproved of, to make things worse. So she was sent off to France to visit relatives, in an attempt to help her grow up. The experiences in France were hard at first, but gradually her interest in the French Girl Scouts, and her help in a family crisis achieved just what her parents had hoped.

"The book should have a special appeal to all Girl Scouts." S. M. A.

+ Horn Bk 27:113 Mr '51 90w

"Good medicine for older girls and at the same time lively and interesting. Recommended." E. E. Frank

+ Library J 76:340 F 15 '51 70w

Reviewed by L. S. Bechtel
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 F 11 '51 30w

"The style is undistinguished and the characterization rather thin, but the book is important because it emphasizes international goodwill and understanding in terms of everyday life." E. L. B.

+ — N Y Times p22 F 11 '51 170w

MILLER, JOHN CHESTER. Crisis in freedom: the Alien and Sedition acts. (Atlantic monthly press bk) 253p $3.50 Little

973.44 Alien and sedition laws, 1798. U.S.—Politics and government—1797-1801

51-14177

A study of the years 1798 to 1801 when the Alien and Sedition acts were promulgated. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 48:122 D 1 '51

Reviewed by Roland Sawyer
Christian Science Monitor p9 D 27 '51 600w

Kirkus 19:518 S 1 '51 120w

Reviewed by R. S. Taylor
Library J 76:1561 O 1 '51 130w

Reviewed by O. K. Fraenkel
Nation 173:570 D 29 '51 220w

Reviewed by Allan Nevins
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 D 2 '51 1100w

"This account of a brief but stormy period in our history, by a scholar who is at the same time a skillful writer, has much intrinsic interest as a story. It is also rich in analogies with our own time." Dumas Malone

+ N Y Times p22 N 25 '51 1000w

MILLER, JOSEPH. Monument valley and the Navajo country, Arizona . . . Utah [photographs]. 96p $3 Hastings house

917.91 Navaho Indians—Pictorial works. Arizona—Pictorial works. Utah—Pictorial works 51-11815

Photographs and some text provide an introduction to the Monument Valley and to the customs and lives of the Navajo Indians who live in the area.

Booklist 48:9 S 1 '51

Reviewed by P. J. C. Friedlander
N Y Times p23 S 16 '51 70w

"Some of the portraits he has included are as good as any camera-studies of Indians I have seen, and he keeps his tight-packed introductory section down to something under seven pages, all of it informative and interesting." J. H. Jackson

+ San Francisco Chronicle p14 Ag 2 '51 180w

MILLER, LOYE HOLMES. Lifelong boyhood; recollections of a naturalist afield. 226p il $2.75 Univ. of Calif.

B or 92 Naturalists—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc. 50-62871

Reminiscences of the early years of a University of California professor, describing his love for birds; his youthful collecting days; his participation in some of the first natural history expeditions in the West; and a trip into the tropics in 1936. The latter part of the book has some of his writings which have appeared in magazines.

Booklist 47:155 D 15 '50

Reviewed by D. C. Peattie
N Y Times p12 D 31 '50 330w

"Pleasant gathering of reminiscences. . . It is a volume which both bird students and admirers of Professor Miller will be delighted to have." J. W. H.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p35 D 10 '50 150w

"The rocellections take up about three-quarters of the volume. They are followed by 'selected writings,' consisting of readable scientific papers on various aspects of ornithology and a lecture on 'California's Ancient Bird Life.' The whole is imbued with vigorous optimism and satisfaction in living." L. J. Halle

+ Sat R of Lit 34:33 Mr 10 '51 180w

MILLER, MAX. Cruise of the Cow. 256p il $5 Dutton

917.22 California, Lower. California, Gulf of. San Diego, California 51-6623

"Written by the experienced waterfront reporter this is an 'introduction to San Diego, Mexico's Baja California and a voyage into the Gulf of California.' Some tongue in cheek historical and descriptive writing and an account of a brief cruise of naturalists, with the burning enthusiasm of Lew Walker, ornithologist and photographer." Library J

Kirkus 19:379 Jl 15 '51 110w

"Recommended." H. A. Wooster
+ Library J 76:1216 Ag '51 60w

"The book, when it strikes its stride, is primarily a tale of a cruise by six men through the parlous Gulf of California in a small, open, home-made craft with an unpredictable engine. The ensuing divertissement are among the most uproarious since Jerome K. Jerome wrote 'Two Men in a Boat,' and the hazards far worse." R. C. Murphy
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 S 30 '51 500w

"There is said to be now a large and loyal army of Miller fans who constitute a dependable market for anything he turns out. This is an enviable situation. Yet it also involves the pitfall of tempting a person to write when he doesn't have a great deal to say. Which—as Miller, an incomplete-sentence addict, might put it—seems to be the present case." Gladwin Hill
N Y Times p41 O 14 '51 470w

"A melange of opinion, frank prejudice, mild philanthropy and quiet humor. All of which is as good a reason as most for writing any book." J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p18 O 9 '51 650w

MILLER, MRS OLIVE KENNON (BEAUPRE), and BAUM, HARRY NEAL. Picturesque tale of progress. 6th ed 9v il maps $47; $39.60 to schools and libraries Bk. house for children

909 History, Universal—Juvenile literature

"A Picturesque Tale of Progress was originally released in four volumes, volume by volume as it was written. Partial reviews of the set appeared in the Subscription Books Bulletin of October 1930, July 1932, and July 1933. The eight-volume edition, first published in 1935, was reviewed in the Bulletin of April 1936. The present edition, 1949, devotes eight volumes to text and a ninth to the index. The eight volumes of text present in narrative form the story of mankind from the Old Stone Age to the discovery of the Mississippi River by Hernando de Sota in 1541. According to the publisher, they are 'written primarily as recreational reading for children of grammar and high school age.' Myths, hero stories, folk tales, and passages of translated poetry are introduced at appropriate points. . . The textual content of these volumes has not undergone revision since the 1935 edition. . . The publisher reports that 'the 1949 copyright was obtained almost entirely upon the improvement of illustrations, including redrawing, retouching and simplification.' The new illustrations give substantially the same effect as the old, with an occasional figure omitted or other slight change." Subscription Bks Bul

"These nine volumes of history, planned for children of elementary and high school age, consider all the important civilizations, tying them together by means of well-written running narrative, illustrations, footnotes, summaries and a comprehensive, easy-to-use cross index. The arrangement and the presentation of the material are such that the books will serve admirably as recreational reading or as a ready reference in connection with classroom assignment." Edith James
+ San Francisco Chronicle p11 Ag 27 '50 440w

"The general appraisal of the set remains substantially the same as that in the April 1936 review. The set is better adapted for reading and browsing than for reference work. The price seems high for the kind and amount of material offered. A Picturesque Tale of Progress is recommended for schools and libraries which have well-developed history collections for sixth, seventh, and eighth grades and which can afford it."
+ — Subscription Bks Bul 22:34 Ap '51 650w

MILLER, RANDOLPH CRUMP. Clue to Christian education. 211p $2.75 Scribner

268.6 Religious education 50-11377

"The clue to an adequate Christian education, according to Dr Miller, is the rediscovery of a relevant Christian theology. This theology is not so much to be taught per se but rather to form the necessary background for all teaching. Thus used, it promises to bridge the gap between content and method in Christian education and to set forward the ultimate purpose of leading the pupil into a vital relationship with the living God. The bulk of the book consists of a freshly handled topical exposition of such a theology, together with accompanying suggestions on how these doctrines can be stated for the several age groups and woven into their day-by-day experience." J Religion

"Those who know Dr. Miller's writings may be confident that there is nothing reactionary or authoritarian in his theology."
Churchman 165:16 Ja 15 '51 120w

"As for the theological point of view here represented, it can perhaps be fairly described as intelligent, warmly evangelical, and colored by a high regard for the church as the community of believers within which the grace of God is peculiarly operative. The treatment, while certainly not neo-orthodox, just as certainly reveals the impact of neo-orthodoxy upon American religious thought and life." N. C. Harner
+ J Religion 31:230 Jl '51 200w

MILLER, WADE, pseud. See Wade, B.

MILLS, CHARLES WRIGHT. White collar; the American middle classes. 378p $5 Oxford

323.32 Middle classes. U.S.—Social conditions 51-5298

"About the new middle classes in twentieth-century USA—managers and teachers, secretaries and nurses, salesgirls and insurance agents, receptionists and lawyers. The author discovers, describes, and explains their white-collar worlds." (Publisher's note) Index.

"It is a strong theme and well presented. One might wish, however, that several crucial points could be better documented. Actual data are reported primarily in relation to such things as occupational changes, unionization, etc., but the more significant bases of the argument too frequently rest on simple assertion and insightful observations. Nevertheless there is much incontrovertible truth in the book, and within the limits set by its interpretive nature it must stand as a valuable contribution to the literature on social stratification." P. K. Hatt
+ — Am Soc R 16:727 O '51 900w

Reviewed by Melchior Palyi
Chicago Sunday Tribune p12 N 25 '51 340w

"The book is brilliantly written. Professor Mills must be praised for avoiding the often baffling jargon of the sociologists, for a 'tangy' style, and an arresting feel for words. There are some provocative statements on the ease with which executives move back and forth between the bureaucracies of business and government. His analysis of white collar unionism is excellent." R. R. Brunn
+ Christian Science Monitor p13 S 27 '51 460w

"The book contributes considerable wisdom concerning the current scene, placing its specific problem in its larger setting. One learns,

MILLS, C. W.—Continued
however, less about the middle class than he might expect in a book of this length. As a study of the middle class this never quite comes up to reasonable expectations. As a commentary on important social trends it supplies much valuable sociological material for the religious interpreter." Harvey Seifert
Crozer Q 29:82 Ja '52 800w

"A perspective which is informed, inquiring, and in many ways disturbing, this is important as social philosophy and commentary."
+ Kirkus 19:371 Jl 15 '51 190w

"One of those rare works which really should be read by every literate person both for its solid contribution to a field in which Veblen stands like a giant and its implications for the future." M. S. Byam
+ Library J 76:1216 Ag '51 120w

Reviewed by Irving Howe
Nation 173:309 O 13 '51 1300w

"This book is the product of solid thinking and good writing, exhibiting a perception of society that is not often met with in works of this kind. It offers an absorbing though sometimes bitter picture of the new white-collar middle-class personality. In a number of places, however, the author is only suggestive; one would have liked, for example, a fuller discussion of the accumulation of power or of the new literature of resignation (The Hucksters, The Big Wheel) or of social hierarchies in a permanent war economy. But this is asking for more of a good thing." B. B. Seligman
+ New Repub 125:20 S 17 '51 950w

"I think his book would have been better for some attention to the positive, creative developments in his new middle classes that may be transforming them into still newer ones. As it stands, the book conveys a feeling of hopeless disillusion. Yet there are also grounds for hope through disillusion. That Mills does not consider them even in order to refute them makes him an authentic voice of the futility he portrays. Even so, 'White Collar' is a book that persons of every level of the white-collar pyramid should read and ponder. It will alert them to their condition for their better salvation." H. M. Kallen
+ — N Y Times p4 S 16 '51 1200w

"This is, of course, a very large subject, and it often gets out of Mr. Mills' hands, especially when it comes to keeping his middle class within the somewhat arbitrary bounds of his definition. Still, it is a serious study and an original approach to an undeniable problem."
+ — New Yorker 27:117 S 8 '51 190w

"In structure and organization, Mr. Mills' book is excellent and on every page is evidence of incisive investigation and merciful scrutiny. The sharp edge of the probing instrument is nearly unbearable, yet the reader finds himself lifted by the firm and knowledgeable hand which holds and guides it." Don Pitt
+ San Francisco Chronicle p16 S 9 '51 650w

"Sociologists are notoriously given to jargon, and it is a pleasure to report that Professor Mills eschews the mere trade patter. Only when he comes to the department store does the influence of the environment overcome him and some of the literary habits of copywriters infect his style. But even when he is pushing his points as hard as he can (and he is a vigorous point-pusher) he writes clearly and plausibly (often convincingly as well)." D. W. Brogan
+ — Sat R of Lit 34:19 S 15 '51 1450w

MILLS, RANDALL VAUSE. Railroads down the valleys; some short lines of the Oregon country. 151p il $3.50 Pacific bks.
385 Railroads—Oregon 51-503

A general reader's history of five short-line railroads in the Pacific Northwest: The Walla Walla and Columbia River; The Oregon Pacific; The City of Prineville Railway; The Oregon, Pacific and Eastern; and Portland's interurban lines.

"In general, Professor Mills' book is a well-written contribution to the history of the railroads and economic development of the Northwest. It however, contains little technical data on corporate history, traffic, or earnings." J. F. Due
+ Am Econ R 41:737 S '51 300w

"Mr. Mills thoroughly knows his subjects, and writes of them with affection tempered with a keen appreciation of the humor of the incongruities involved. The book contains many really rare photographs, and an Appendix which lists and describes locomotives used on all the lines treated. Probably the book is a collector's item. I found it most entertaining." Stewart Holbrook
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p17 S 16 '51 280w

MILNE, LORUS JOHNSON. Machine shop methods. 376p il $5; to schools $3.75 Prentice-Hall
621.75 Machine shop practice 50-14119

"An introductory text suitable for use in trades-school classes and also as a self-instruction book or elementary reference for home mechanics. All of the common machine tools and the chief operations performed on them are discussed clearly. The author has taken special pains to make the advantages and disadvantages of particular processes clear and to explain the reasons for doing certain things in certain ways." (N Y New Tech Bks) Bibliography.

Booklist 47:111 N 15 '50

Reviewed by R. R. Hawkins
Library J 76:333 F 15 '51 140w
N Y New Tech Bks 35:90 N '50

MINNESOTA. UNIVERSITY. Laboratory of physiological hygiene. Biology of human starvation. See Keys, A. B.

MINTS, LLOYD WYNN. Monetary policy for a competitive society. 236p $3 McGraw 332.401 Money 50-9762

"A theme set forth in the earlier writings of Professor Mints and the late Henry C. Simons, both of the University of Chicago, is presented and elaborated in this study. It may be summarized as follows: (1) Monetary policy, a potent force in the economy, if improperly administered can accentuate instability; if properly administered, it can promote stability. (2) The essential problem of monetary policy is 'rules versus authorities.' . . (3) Some single rule is essential; all in all, the most satisfactory rule is stability of price levels. The Congress should, therefore, order the Federal Reserve System to stabilize price levels." U S Quarterly Bk R

"Each of us, I suppose, evolves his views on policy out of his own private blend of optimism and pessimism. Professor Mints's particular blend seems to me rather an odd one, unduly coloured by his over-riding phobia of the State as enterpriser. But I think he is right to be disquieted at much that he sees being done (and taught) around him; and I hope I have not failed to convey the impression that his book deserves respectful attention from many who will find difficulty in swallowing all his conclusions." D. H. Robertson
+ — Am Econ R 41:465 Je '51 1650w

"Although it is doubtful if this work will go very far toward producing the desired united front among monetary economists, it should be given careful and thoughtful study by members of this group who can scarcely fail to benefit by such action." F. A. Bradford
Ann Am Acad 273:237 Ja '51 450w

Reviewed by J. E. Cross
Library J 75:2005 N 15 '50 90w
U S Quarterly Bk R 7:45 Mr '51 250w

MIREPOIX, ANTOINE FRANCOIS JOSEPH PIERRE MARIE, duc de LEVIS-. See Levis-Mirepoix, A. F. J. P. M.

MIROV, NICHOLAS TIHO. Geography of Russia. 362p maps $6.50 Wiley

914.7 Russia—Description and travel. Physical geography—Russia 51-1947

"A physical geography of Russia, written with 'the college student primarily in mind,' this work is based on five standard Soviet treatises, personal observations, and other sources. The author has chosen to exclude discussion of economic geography because of the scarcity of available data. The book begins with a general survey, touches briefly on history, peoples, languages, and religion, then describes each of twenty regions in the USSR. In a regular pattern, the location, climate, topography, soils and vegetation, animal life, and people of each region are described objectively in detail. The selection of concrete examples has been made with an American reader in mind." (U S Quarterly Bk R) Index.

"This book is designed primarily for the college student, although the author hopes it will be read with both pleasure and profit by the interested layman. Since it is written in interesting style, and with a minimum of technical language, this hope should be realized." C. P. White

+ Ann Am Acad 276:175 Jl '51 310w

"Mr. Mirov's work is well-written and should be of great value to the student."

+ Current Hist 21:95 Ag '51 90w

Foreign Affairs 30:163 O '51 10w

Reviewed by W. A. Hance

Pol Sci Q 66:617 D '51 190w

"It is logically planned for easy reference... The product is a far better proportioned survey than most of those available in English... 'Geography of Russia' must not be taken as a superfluous addendum to other recently published works on the same subject... 'Geography of Russia' stands apart on the basis of its own special features: the author's attempt to prevent it being merely encyclopedic, his successful direction of it toward the American audience, and his transformation of the professional language of the geographer into interesting and understandable English." Sidney Harcave

+ Sat R of Lit 34:29 Je 23 '51 650w

